HOUSE GRAIN PROBERS PRAISE DULUTH PEOPLE AND THEIR FRANKNESS

Well Pleased With Result of the Investigation at Duluth.

Another Plan By Southern Senators to Cut City Representation.

Former Speaker Dunn Is Given Crushing Rebuke By the House.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives C. M. Bendixen, A. F. Teigen and Martin Schwartz of the house grain investigation committee returned from Duluth this morning unanimous and enthusiastic in their praises of Duluth, its people, its grain market, its grain men and their fairness and frankness. They are well pleased with their trip and with the result of their investigations there.

In spite of the concession by the senate reapportionment committee of two senators to Southern Minnesota in addition to what that section is entitled to on a population basis, there is a renewed movement among Southern Minnesota senators to devise a scheme of cutting down the city representation. This was talked over at a meeting of Southern Minnesota senators last evening, but no plan was agreed upon. This may mean trouble, but the friends of reapportionment are confident that they can withstand the attack on the floor Friday if not in the committee Wednesday afternoon.

A Crushing Rebuke.

Seldom has a bill or its author been so crushingly rebuked as the house bill proposing a tax of 7 per cent for state purposes exclusively on the gross earnings of street railway companies, and its author. Former Speaker H. H. Dunn, were this morning. The tax committee recommended that the bill be returned to its author. Its author asked that the report be laid over to the next meeting as a favor from the house.

Representative R. C. Dunn moved that the report be amended to provide for indefinite postponement. H. H. Dunn had no support whatever, and his bill was condemned severely by Representatives Knapp, A. J. Peterson, Olsthun,

MAY NEVER LEARN CAUSE OF DISASTER

Investigations Begin Into Cause of Explosion of Dynamite.

Baltimore, Md., March 8.—Investigation was begun today to ascertain the cause and fix the blame for the disastrous explosion of dynamite in the hold of the British tramp steamer Alum Chine, lying at anchor in the local harbor, which brought death to more than forty persons and serious injury to three score more and caused property loss of more than $250,000. One investigation already has been completed by the city authorities, but no definite conclusion reached, because the accident occurred outside the city limits.

Immediately after the accident the Federal authorities at Washington were apprised of the serious damage to the new collier Jason which was near the anchorage of the ill fated Alum Chine and was about to be accepted by the navy department. Word was received that the department would inquire into the disaster. At the same time it is probable an investigation will be undertaken by the interstate commerce commission which has jurisdiction over the shipment of explosives in American waters.

Most of Crew Britons.

Because most of the crew of the destroyed steamer were subjects of Great Britain, the British consul at Baltimore, Gilbert Fraser, also will inquire into the explosion with the view of protecting the interests of the families of the killed and wounded Welshmen and to make a report to the British admiralty. The coroner of Anne Arundel county will at once impanel a jury and this probably will complete the number of inquiries to attempt the fixing of blame for the disaster.

Authorities who have made a partial examination express the opinion, however, that the real cause of the explosion will never be definitely learned, chiefly because those who might give information either are among the dead or are so seriously maimed and injured they will never be in a position to make a statement regarding the accident. The general theory, which seems to be borne out by the statement of eye witnesses to the tragedy, is that the coal in the vessel's bunkers was set afire by spontaneous combustion and the flames were communicated to the dynamite.

Cripples Coast Defenses.

The explosion was so terrific that it has seriously crippled the coast defenses of the harbor, in many instances the concrete foundations of the heavy guns in Forts Howard, Armistead and Carroll were cracked while several of the guns themselves were damaged by falling pieces of steel from the wrecked steamer. At Fort Armistead the damage, it is estimated, will reach several thousand dollars, while at Fort Carroll the damage is placed at $2,500.

Early reports of the extent of the loss of life aboard the destroyed steamer and the other vessels lying in her immediate vicinity materially differed and even yet no accurate list of those who lost their lives has been compiled. It is accepted, however, that the list will total between forty and fifty dead and almost as many more were injured. Several of the former died at the hospitals here last night.

It is regarded as almost certain that all the bodies have not yet been recovered from the waters of the harbor while others may never be recovered.

Up to a late hour last night the number of dead had reached twenty-six, of which twenty-four had been identified.

COUNTY JAIL CONDEMNED

Licensing of Hotels and Boarding Houses Is Recommended.

That John Chop, insane suspect, who committed suicide Monday at the county jail by hanging himself in his cell, might have been saved if there had been proper accommodations at the institution for this class of prisoners is not only the opinion of Sheriff John R. Meining but also that of the March grand jury which finished its deliberations yesterday.

In its report to the court at 5:30 o'clock last evening, the jury pointed out the crying need for a new jail and emphasized the present lack of accommodations for the confinement of the insane or for taking care of women prisoners.

The jury states that "a recent case of suicide probably was the result of this lack of accommodation for this class of prisoners." Yesterday Sheriff Meining stated that in his opinion Chop would have been saved if there were quarters at the jail where a man with suicidal tendencies could be placed. At present there are none.

The grand jury also urged additional regulation in the way of ordinances licensing all hotels and boarding houses in order that a closer check might be had on people who register as guests.

The grand jury also passed a resolution complimenting Mason M. Forbes, new first assistant county attorney, for the "able and business like manner in which he presented the cases" which came before that body at this term of court.

The report which was made to the court last evening reads as follows:

"Duluth, Minn., March 7, 1913.

"To the Honorable William A. Cant, "Judge of the District Court.

"The grand jury having completed the work assigned to them, and having returned the different indictments as presented you herewith, beg to recommend in addition, that the large number of cases and witnesses called seem to indicate a degree of immorality which would call for some certain additional regulations in the way of ordinances and jail accommodations which has not heretofore been carried out. One of these is that we believe that it would be a proper thing and to the advantage of this city, for the city council to pass an ordinance licensing all hotels and boarding houses in order that they may have a closer check upon the inmates of those places and the people who are allowed to register as guests.

"We also recommend the construction of a new jail for the reason that proper accommodations are not available at present for the confinement of the insane, and that a recent case of suicide probably was the result of this lack of proper accommodations for this class of prisoners.

"We also wish to urge that in both the city and county jails that matrons be employed so as to be always available for the taking care of women prisoners and young girls that are brought in for various charges.

Respectfully submitted,

WASHINGTON POLICE READY WITH DEFENSE

The first witnesses who appeared in defense of police methods were greeted with ridicule and in some cases with hisses when their testimony differed from that given by the suffragette witnesses.

The first witnesses today were George S. Canfield of Spokane, Wash., Commodore W. S. Moore of Washington and Judge Henry D. Pierce of Indianapolis. They declared the police methods lax and inadequate.

Judge Pierce told of seeing Chief Sylvester giving orders to patrolmen, but he said the patrolmen evinced a lack of interest in carrying them out. As Sylvester's back was turned the policemen would lapse into inactivity, he said.

Other witnesses testified to indignities and insults to the women marchers, none of which seemed to stir the police into any effective efforts for protecting the parade.

Commodore Moore declared Sylvester had refused police protection for the suffrage rehearsal that took place a day or two before the parade. He said the police superintendent had told him that he sympathized with the suffrage cause, but that he did not approve the methods adopted by the women who were trying to advance it.

COMMITTEE TO SUMMON MANY WOMEN

asked Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara, chairman of the commission.

"Yes, I do," came the prompt answer, the first of the kind from employers thus far heard.

"Thank you," said Mr. O'Hara, apparently surprised at the admission.

"If one of your $3 girls lost her virtue would you care?" asked Mr. O'Hara.

"Yes, certainly."

"Would you hold yourself responsible?"

Parents Responsible.

"Well, now, let me think: would I? Here's a girl brought in by her parents, living at home—should I be responsible? I think not. I think the parents would be responsible."

There was a tense, dramatic moment at yesterday's session.

Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., multi-millionaire, philanthropist and employer of more than 4,000 women, himself at one time head of a vice investigation committee, had been on the witness stand for hours, testifying to the wage scale of his company and explaining that in his judgment wages and the immorality of women had little to do with each other.

Then a young woman, clad in black, and answering to the name of "Emily" took her seat in front of the inquisitors and by the side of Rosenwald.

No Fault to Find.

She had been employed by Sears, Roebuck but left there to take a better position. Her only criticism of the firm was that forewomen "scolded."

Suddenly attention became acute as Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara, a young man, leaned over, and, with blushes, asked the witness a question which he found difficulty in wording.

"We have a great deal of philosophy here today from men; now let's find out what your's is. If a girl was getting $8 a week and had to support a widowed mother, would you blame that girl if she—if she—she committed a crime?"

The witness looked puzzled for a moment and then, comprehending, looked up frankly as she replied, "No, I wouldn't."

"Would you blame her if she killed herself?"

"No, I wouldn't," came the emphatic reply.

"And would you blame her if she committed a greater crime?"

"No, I wouldn't," she replied distinctly.

"Emily" was then dismissed.

ings between the national palace and the arsenal.

Anxious for Revenge.

The reported arrival of Alfonso Madero at Washington where it is said the details of the former Madero conspiracy were developed, has been called to the attention of the Mexican cabinet. It is said the Washington government will be asked to exercise extraordinary precautions in order to prevent professional revolution-makers in the United States from participating in the plans of the fugitives, who are declared to be anxious for revenge.

Annul Train Service.

It was reported today that the Southern Pacific railroad has transferred all its rolling stock from Sonora to Nogales and has annulled the train service.

Three columns of the regular army and 2,000 adherents of Pascual Orozco are closing in on Venustiano Carranza, the rebel governor of Coahuila, according to official dispatches today. A decisive battle is expected on Sunday near Monclova, unless Carranza manages to escape over the border.

Accused of Looting Bank.

Dr. Rafael Cepeda, ex-governor of the state of San Luis Potosi, today was officially accused by the government of looting the bank of the City of San Luis Potosi of 10,000 pesos and also of disposing of government property for the purpose of procuring funds for the revolution. The administration declares that Cepeda is acting in connivance with Carranza.

The rebel forces commanded by Francisco Pachico, Fabrian Padilla and Gregorio Pulido, three Zapata leaders, today threatened to resume their old tactics because one of their peace messengers had been arrested. They had advised the government of their desire to surrender and had sent envoys to enter into negotiations. One of the envoys was taken into custody by Luis Lascurain, prefect of Xechimilco in the Federal district, who was suspicious of the messenger's mission. The Federal authorities today ordered the prefect to release the messenger and to make efforts to atone for his act and to placate the Zapata followers.

Heated Debate.

There was a heated debate in the chamber of deputies lasting until a late hour last night on the question of the amnesty bill introduced by Provisional President Huerta. The bill passed through its preliminary stage and will be taken up for further discussion shortly.

The leaders of the opposition criticised the government keenly for desiring to offer an amnesty to rebels who had been guilty of incendiarism and other forms of brigandage, but Querido Moheno, the leader of the governmental party declared that the administration must pardon all and be liberal in its new efforts at reconstruction. He concluded:

"We are today playing perhaps our last card for the nation's future."

Deputy Fabela, the leader of the faction which favored the late President Francisco Madero, declared that the amnesty should be granted to political offenders only and not to robbers and bandits. Senor Fabela asked why the government had failed to prosecute Manuel Bonilla, the former minister of fomento, and yet was dealing severely with other political offenders.

Deputy Roque Gonzales Garcia praised the late president Madero and declared that the ideals and promises of the revolution of 1910 must be fulfilled before peace could be restored to Mexico. He added:

"There are 40,000 victims of the revolution of 1910 crying for justice and the present government must fulfil the promises for which that fight for liberty was made."

save myself, but if I had done that my conscience would have bothered me the rest of my life. If I had told the truth my husband probably would have gone to the gallows. I couldn't do it—not even to save myself."

It is said the jurors will write the state board of pardons asking that the woman be liberated after serving eleven months.

Cramer was a circus clown, balloonist and high diver and was known as Conway. His wife was a chorus girl. Both fled to Lima, Ohio, after the murder of Miss Singer in an Indiana avenue rooming house Oct. 29, 1912, and made confessions to the police after being brought back to Chicago. At the trial both repudiated their confessions.

POST OFFERED RICHARD OLNEY

post, because he is 78 years old and has had an exceptionally active life. In official circles it was thought Great Britain would not be likely to object to this appointment, since he held two cabinet positions under Grover Cleveland. Mr. Olney's legal ability, administration advisers believe, would be of great value in the conduct of the Panama canal negotiations, and they are anxious that he accept the London post.

At the White House today it was said that next to Chairman McCombs of the Democratic national committee, Augustus Thomas, the playwright, was foremost in President Wilson's consideration for the post of ambassador to France. Mr. McCombs, it was said, had not made up his mind whether he would take the post of ambassador or remain as chairman of the committee.

Olney Surprised.

Boston, Mass., March 8.—The definite announcement from Washington that President Wilson had offered him the post of ambassador at the court of St. James, took Richard Olney and his intimate friends by surprise today.

Mr. Olney said:

"I have received no such offer and I doubt the accuracy of the report."

He did not indicate whether he would accept the mission.

Mr. Olney was born in 1835. His last public service was as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Cleveland. He has been occupied since with the practice of law in this city.

When his name was first mentioned in the present connection Mr. Olney treated the suggestion as a joke and those closely associated with him expressed the opinion that his advanced years would make his entrance to the diplomatic service improbable.

MADE REPORT OF WAGES OF WOMEN IN MINNESOTA IN 1910

The revelations made before a committee of the Illinois legislature at Chicago in regard to the wages of woman workers have attracted attention in Duluth.

Somewhat similar revelations were made in the annual report for 1910, made by W. E. McEwen of Duluth, as state labor commissioner. Mr. McEwen's department conducted an investigation of the employment of women in thirty-two industries, employing 7,537 women. It showed that 25 per cent received less than $6 per week, 47 per cent from $6 to $8, 18 per cent from $8 to $15, and 10 per vent over $15.

Mr. McEwen's report for 1910 said:

"The results show that in spite of the wage increases that have obtained during the past decade, 24.45 per cent of all female wage-earners are paid less than $1 a day. A study of female wages by industries shows considerable variation in the proportion of females in the 'less than $1' class. The contrast is especially noticeable between such industries as foundries or street railways, which employ only skilled office help (stenographers and bookkeepers), and typical female industries.

"Seven dollars a week, $1.17 a day, seems to constitute the minimum wage of efficiency, decent comfort and self-respect for self-supporting females in Minnesota. And yet there are only four industries of those reporting, and these of lesser importance, in which 80 per cent of the female employes are paid $7 a week or more. In ten industries from 20 per cent to 50 per cent of the female employes, in six industries 36 per cent to 50 per cent, and in eleven industries over 50 per cent, are paid less than $7 a week.

"It is of interest to know that over 90 per cent of the females in two industries, glove making and confectionery manufacture, are paid less than $1.50 a day; 76 per cent to 90 per cent in nine industries; 51 per cent to 75 per cent in ten industries: 26 per cent to 50 per cent in five industries, and 20 per cent to 35 per cent in four industries.

"From 35 per cent to 50 per cent of the females in two industries, street railways and tailoring, are paid over $2 a day: 20 per cent to 35 per cent in nine industries; 10 per cent to 20 per cent in eight industries, and less than 10 per cent in thirteen industries."

HOUSE GRAIN PROBERS PRAISE DULUTH PEOPLE

Representative Knapp said that the house was ready to vote on it now and that there was no use in consuming unnecessary time in considering bills introduced for "certain obvious purposes."

Representative Campbell charged that the bill would let the street railways off with lighter taxes, besides local assessments.

Representative Ofsthun, chairman of the tax committee, said that he was proud that the vote in committee against the bill was unanimous, because it proved that the country wanted to be fair to the cities and not rob them of their taxes.

"If the author of this bill," he said, "wanted to apply the gross earnings system to street railways, he should have had sense enough to draft a bill that would be fair."

The motion to kill the bill was adopted unanimously, not even the author voting to save it.

Public Domain Department.

The house this morning voted to make a special order for March 18 on a bill by the house committee on public domain, creating the office and department of public domain, into which all matters relating to natural resources will be placed, and abolishing a large number of departments, including the game and fish commission, the drainage commission, the timber commissioner, the offices of surveyors of logs and lumber, the state forestry board, the reclamation board, the board of immigration and others.

R. C. Dunn gave notice that he would fight the bill. The attempt to make a special order was supported by Frank Hopkins, Cleon T. Knapp and D. P. O'Neil, and opposed by John G. Lennon. A similar bill was introduced in the senate this morning by Senators Boyle, Marden, Putnam and Clague.

The house tax committee reported out without recommendation the Westcott bill proposing to increase the railroad gross earnings tax rate from 5 per cent to 6. The rate was raised at the last election from 4 per cent.

Railroad to Grand Marais.

The Hillman bill allowing Cook county to bond itself to build a railroad was reported for passage by the house transportation committee. This bill may open the way for the railroad connection with the outside world for which Grand Marais has waited for a quarter of a century. The Alger-Smith line will be within twenty-five miles of Grand Marais at its nearest point, and the plan is to raise funds to build a line from Grand Marais to the Alger-Smith line, thus opening up rail connection with Duluth. The bill just introduced permits Cook county to contribute toward this purpose by issuing bonds up to the limit of 5 per cent of its assessed valuation. According to Senator Cheadle and Representative Hillman, the plan has the sanction of practically all of the prominent citizens of Cook county. As the bill applies only to that county, there is little or no doubt of its passage.

Tax Bill Killed.

The house tax committee's report killing the Hopkins bill allowing the deduction of debts from moneys and credits when returned for taxation was adopted by the house.

The house education committee introduced a bill providing that the school enrollment on which state aid is based shall include pupils of five years and up instead of six years and up.

Representative Burchard is the author of a new bill making it unlawful for railroads to carry passengers with mileage books at a less rate than those with ordinary tickets.

Representative Bendixen introduced a bill requiring annual reports from all corporations organized for profit.

Both houses are in session this afternoon, and both will adjourn to Wednesday.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

BEMIDJI MAN SAYS HIS TOWN IS GROWING.

H. G. Hovey of Bemidji, who is at the Spalding today, says that the territory around Bemidji is settling as fast as any portion of the northern part of Minnesota. He predicts the greatest growth in this section of the state within the next five years.

"The territory around Bemidji is becoming settled," said Mr. Hovey. "Bemidji is growing, as are all of the towns in that section of Northern Minnesota. I can recall the time when that portion of the state was simply a wilderness. Agricultural development has accomplished wonders for us; more, perhaps, than the majority realize. But the foundation has been built and the greatest development is to come in the next few years.

"The dairy industry is, in my opinion, destined to bring thousands of dollars to the settlers in that part of Minnesota. Already we are raising the right grade of cattle. This is due to the bringing of better cattle for breeding purposes. With the establishing of co-operative dairies more generally and the utilizing of the wonderful agricultural advantages that have simply lain dormant during the past, there is not the least reason in the world while the resident of this section of the state should not believe fully in its future."

SALARIES NOT DISCUSSED

Board Does Not Consider Increase in Pay for Teachers.

Special Meeting Will Be Called Soon for the Purpose.

The meeting of the board of education last night developed no features of interest. There was nothing done about increasing the teachers' salaries, but there will likely be a special meeting held sometime during the month. President W. E. Magner, who is absent, wrote that he will be back in a few days and would call a special meeting. Director Nelson presided in the absence of the president.

The effect that the crowded condition of Franklin school has reached a deplorable stage, and that somethin should be done at once to relieve the situation. Supt. Denfeld told the board that everything possible is being done at that school, pupils being transferred to other schools when possible. Thomas Walsh, a former Duluthian, but now of Albert Lea, Minn., has written the board asking an appointment as superintendent of construction of the proposed Denfeld school.

A communication from the state superintendent of instruction had attached to it a petition from residents of Smithville, asking that something be done to improve the sanitary conditions of the school there. The matter was turned over to the committee on buildings.

Dr. Boyer suggested that each year six teachers be sent at the board's expense to Faribault, Minn., to attend lectures on child mentality by Supt. A. C. Rogers. This matter was referred to the committee on schools.

Supt. Denfeld suggested that the Smith Memorial association be permitted the use of the assembly hall of the Central high school building free on the evening of March 24. They will give a concert that evening, the purpose being to add to the fund being raised for some memorial in honor of the late Principal Smith of the high school.

INDIAN CHIEFS CALL ON SECRETARY LANE

Head of Interior Department Tells Them He Is Their Friend.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Seventy Indians, representatives of all the tribes in the country, and including twenty-seven chiefs, called on Secretary Lane at the interior department yesterday to pay their respects. In the party were many of the wealthiest tribesmen, and it is said their aggregate wealth would total $300,000,000.

Secretary Lane assured his visitors they could depend upon him to look after their interests and protect them from wolves, particularly wolves of the human species.

"I know the plains and I know the mountains and I know the big game country," said the secretary. "I want you to feel always that you have in me one who is devoted to your interests. You know that I stand here as the voice and with the hand of the great man in the White House. He loves to do justice above all things. He will see that justice is done you.

"Most of the big game in your country and in mine—the Western country, such as the buffalo, the elk and the antelope—has gone. There are just a few wolves left. When I have been hunting I have made a fire, which protected me against wolves at night, and there was always some man in the party who would watch, so that he could throw a firebrand out to scare them off. I have been chosen by the big chief in the White House to sit up and watch to keep them as far away from you as I can."

The secretary's words were received with exclamations of approval, and "Plenty Coups," chief of the Crow tribe, responded.

DULUTH PASTOR CALLED TO OHIO

Rev. J. E. Shewell Will Take New Charge at Lorain.

Rev. J. E. Shewell, pastor of St. John's English Lutheran church, has accepted a call to take the pastorate of the First Lutheran church at Lorain, Ohio. Rev. Shewell has held his present pastorate during the last three years. His farewell sermon will be preached on the morning of March 30 and he will leave April 1 for Lorain. His present pulpit is the first charge he ever held. He came to Duluth three years ago from Philadelphia, where he graduated from Mount Airy Lutheran Theological seminary in May, 1910.

MERICA HINTS AT LEAVING MINNESOTA.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 8.—Dr. C. A. Merica, superintendent of the boys' state school at Red Wing, spoke before the Commercial club members here Wednesday evening. A feature of his address was a hint that he is not satisfied with conditions in Minnesota, and may terminate what he called his "sacrificial endeavor." In other words, it may mean that unless the state adopts a plan advocated by him he may seek another field of labor.

Acquit Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—Clement Bofferding, accused of manslaughter, was acquitted by a jury in the district court here last night. Bofferding was charged with having caused the death of Hanle Sigal, an aged man, by running him down in an auto on the street on Oct. 7, 1912.

BOARD OF TRADE EMERGES WITH ITS COLORS FLYING

Counsel for Investigators Thanks Local Men for Frankness.

The investigation into the Duluth board of trade and the handling of grain at the Duluth-Superior terminal ended unexpectedly last evening.

During the noon recess, Counsel C. A. Russell was notified that he was wanted in St. Paul in the morning, so the hearing here was concluded and adjournment taken shortly after 5 o'clock.

The investigation ended in a burst of good feeling. On behalf of the commission, Counsel Russell thanked the Duluth Commercial club for the use of the rooms and the members of the board of trade for frankness and cheerful furnishing of information. Chairman Bendixen made a similar statement, and the members of the Duluth board and the counsel thanked the committee for fairness.

The committee, in the estimation of those who attended the sessions, did not uncover anything to the discredit of the board of trade. In three days of hearings, not one member of the board of trade failed apparently to satisfy the committee that the business of the board is conducted honestly and with justice to the shipper. Mr. Teigen of the committee practically admitted as much after the hearing was concluded.

The desire of members of the board of grain appeals to be divorced entirely from the control of the state railroad and warehouse commission was aired again before the committee yesterday afternoon. Grievances were specified by H. P. Bjorge and A. R. Apland of the board, and they led to a clash between C. E. Elmquist of the state railroad and warehouse commission on one side and Counsel Russell and the members of the appeal board on the other.

Separating Departments.

Mr. Bjorge told of the introduction of bills in the legislature for the divorcing of the appeal board from the commission, but said they have been defeated by members of the commission. He said requests were made both to Governor Johnson and to Governor Eberhart, but no relief was ever afforded.

Mr. Elmquist tried to break in with a statement as to the reason for opposing the bills for separating the two departments, but Mr. Russell cut him short, and the committee required him to leave his explanation until later.

Mr. Bjorge testified that the appeal board should have a sampler of its own instead of depending on resamples taken by men employed by the inspection department.

The principal argument for separation was made by Mr. Rehnke, who declared that a year ago last October a request was made that a test be made to determine the percentage of moisture that might safely be left in grain for storage, but nothing has been done. He said a request was made for a moisture machine, and it was not forthcoming, although there is one in the inspection department that is available for the use of the appeal board. He said the commission dealt with the request for a laboratory by installing one for the joint use of the inspection department and the appeal board, with employes of the inspection department in charge.

Mr. Elmquist asked if the department had not offered to appoint and designate for the service of the appeal board any man the board might name.

Mr. Rehnke declared the board wants its own man, not any man named by the railroad and warehouse commission. He said the board doesn't question the honesty of the employes of the commission, but that it feels the best interests of the grain trade would be served by having the two departments separated.

F. W. Eva, chief inspector, testified that Mr. Chambers, general chairman of the appeal board at Minneapolis, had discouraged the moisture test and had declined to give any assistance in establishing the laboratory.

Mr. Rehnke replied that Mr. Chambers was opposed to any change in present methods and was the only one of the six members of the appeal board to decline to sign the request for a moisture test.

Mr. Elmquist admitted that the commission had opposed separating the two departments. He said the commission is entrusted with the supervision of the grain trade of the state and the members felt that it should also have supervision of the appeal board.

Counsel Russell recommended to the committee that its report contain a recommendation that the two departments be divorced.

"Since the integrity and policy of the commission has been attacked in this inquiry, I want to say right here that every member of the commission is ready to adopt any scientific advancement that can be suggested in its methods," said Mr. Elmquist.

Lind's Offer.

The line of inquiry adopted by Counsel Russell at the hearing yesterday caused John Lind, attorney for the commission men, to offer the committee the right to send an auditor into the offices of the commission men to determinate whether they were guilty of trading consigned grain back and forth on the board.

William Grettum, president of the Receivers' association, took the stand and declared positively that the commission men of Duluth do not trade consigned grain among themselves on the floor. Mr. Grettum said that in case a request is made on him for coarse grain for local consumption, if he hasn't it on consignment, he goes on the floor and buys it, but there is never more than one trade made.

Mr. Bendixen asked if it weren't possible for a commission man to buy consigned grain and sell it for local consumption, making a profit at the expense of the shipper.

"I would be playing with the doors of the penitentiary if I did that," Mr. Grettum declared. He pointed out that there would be a penalty under the criminal statutes, that he would be subject to expulsion from the board of trade, that a fine of $1,000 to $2,000 would be assessed against him and that the shipper could recover on his bond to the state.

H. J. Edwards, J. M. Wilson, C. W. Poole and Charles W. Swanstrom, inspectors in the state department, all testified during the afternoon. They all said that they had never been approached by any grain man and asked for any special favors. During Mr. Edwards' examination, Mr. Russell asked if any part of his salary went to a political fund.

There was an immediate and an effective objection by Mr. Elmquist. Mr. Elmquist declared that the committee had no right to go into the political standing of the department. Mr. Russell declared it had, but Mr. Bendixen decided to drop the line of inquiry.

Andrew L. Apland, an employe of the Duluth sampling bureau, testified that the bureau has no connection with the state department.

W. J. McCabe, president of the Duluth board of trade and operator of country elevators, was the last witness. He testified that the terminal elevators pay a premium for dockage and the premium goes to the shipper. Mr. McCabe also made Mr. Teigen of the committee happy by declaring that there is never any trouble disposing of velvet chaff on grade in the Duluth market.

Mr. Russell stated at the close of the hearing that some Duluth men may be called to testify when the committee resumes its hearing at Minneapolis.

CANDIES GOOD FOR CHILDREN?

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg, A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Reprinted from Leslie's Weekly.

Boys will be boys and girls will be girls; you may beat them and punish them, you may lock up all the jarred jam and loose sugar in a hermetically sealed closet, but as sure as a magnet drifts toward the North Pole, a child will lead the way to the sugared dainties.

"Doctor, are candies good for children?" requires a discreet, yet valorous reply. As Sir Roger de Coverley might say: "They are and they are not." Sweetmeats, like bread, may be mouldy, they may be stale, they may be eaten in excess. Happily for those who cannot afford to squander large sums of money on candies, cakes, sweetmeats, jellies and other gimcracks, corn syrup, or as it is often called glucose, can be had at a very low price, and from it can be made all sorts of compound foods. What a blessing it is that at this day of higher prices of living people of moderate means can obtain all kinds of appetizing desserts, the cost of which, if made of other ingredients, would be prohibitive.

I have repeatedly and deliberately eaten the commercial glucose and have given it to my own child, with only content and pleasure as the result. Moreover, when I was a child of 12 years old, after school hours I was employed in a candy store where all the dainties were made from inexpensive glucose contained in barrels. You may be sure I ate my fill in those days and set a good example to all purchasers of glucose-made sweets.

The digestive systems of various species are arranged so as to digest certain different classes of food. The coral takes carbonates of lime from sea water to build its fairy-like skeletons; the ostrich jumps with joy as the pebbles rattle merrily in its hide-bound stomach; milk sugar with scarcely a particle of sweetness, nourishes the first years of a baby's existence much better than cane sugar, or even ice cream, with a little corn starch, against which, for infants and invalids, Good Housekeeping is holding up its hands in holy horror. The bees seek the sweetness of the pollen of the flowers; mice in the barn nibble out the germ or chit of the corn, for here is the fat and protein they need or relish, and leave untasted the starch they do not care for.

Our good friend, Dr. Wiley, who should know about what is good for us, says in his celebrated work on "Foods" that candies are made from cane sugar, beet sugar and glucose, and although they are eaten more as a delicacy, yet that their food value is high on account of the sugar they contain. What more can you ask? The same thought was in the mind of the Bourbon queen, the spouse of Louis XVI., who asked why the besieging peasants who yelled for bread were not supplied with cake. She anticipated by any man the board might name. opportunities now available for many who might otherwise be deprived of the use of cane sugar. For, despite popular delusions to the contrary, no evil consequences follow the use of glucose any more than follow the use of cane sugar.

There's lots of ignorance floating around about the things we eat, especially the sweet thing called sugar, for there is not one, but many sugars, varying one from the other in certain qualities. There is a sugar from the cane, from the beet and the maple. There is a sugar called glucose and another called fructose, which when combined are invert sugar. One or both of these sugars are universally distributed. They are to be found in all fruits. When cane sugar has been boiled with an acid or cream of tartar in the making of candy it is changed into glucose; in the human system all starch is digested into this glucose. Also this is the starch which gives the sweetness to commercial glucose, which when made from starch of the corn is known as corn syrup, and when made from starch of the potato has been called potato syrup. Then there is the sugar of milk.

Cane sugar is intensely sweet, fructose is even sweeter, glucose is not as sweet and milk sugar has scarcely any sweetness. They are all equally nutritious. Commercial glucose, or corn syrup, which is the form in which the sugar glucose appears, although not as sweet as cane sugar, yet has a wonderful quality of giving to candy and preserves that soft and pliable condition which is so desirable and which is not readily obtained by the use of cane sugar alone.

Anything that replaces the smallest fragment of a simple substance is an adulterant. When gold is added to copper to soften this metal, gold is an adulterant. That does not in any way detract from the intrinsic quality of gold. Not by a jugful. Hence, when glucose is added to cake, fudge, taffy, bonbons or jelly, it is just as much and no more of an adulterant than cane sugar, maple crust or salt would be. Let us then have done with such jugaling. It is a mendacious scheme of convicting a substance without evidence.

Commercial glucose is less sweet than molasses, cane syrup or cane sugar. It is all the better. Commercial glucose and candies made therefrom can harm no one. Most of the ninety millions of Americans have been unknowingly and uncaringly using it for forty years, yet paying for cane sugar. Now, when everybody knows what we are paying for, a few misguided laboratory chemists set up an impracticable hurrah and scare the poor people to death. Personally, as one who has knowingly eaten and prescribed glucose for twelve or more years, all such maniacal prejudice seems due to a foolish obsession.

Let the child who loves candies, the daddy who eats them and the mamma who makes them, select her "adulterant" as her pocket permits. No harm can come to the little taster's stomach or the parent's digestion, be the "adulterant" molasses, syrup, honey, glucose or milk sugar. Call a rose in a bouquet of carnations an "adulterant" and you speak truly, yet it will smell just as sweet. Call the gold and copper in a silver dollar "alloys" or "adulterants" and you will spend it all the same. Similarly call glucose an "adulterant," a "Patsy Bolivar" or a "commercial product" and it will be just as good, go just as far, and be just as cheap as if you gave it its correct name. So, then, let all of us candy eaters save money and buy glucose candy and no longer fear the high cost of living.

Advertising serves the double purpose of creating a demand and telling where it may be supplied.

BUILDS FIRE TO DRIVE OFF WOLVES

Former Duluthian Has a Thrilling Experience Near Angora.

John Owens, Jr., formerly of Duluth, had quite a thrilling experience last Wednesday night.

He is working with his father John L. Owens who has extensive lumber business at Angora. He was sent from camp T which is situated near the station to camp V, which is located six miles away at 10 o'clock at night with an important message. He was accompanied only by his dog "Nig." He reached the camp in safety and was about two miles on the return trip when he heard wolves howl on both sides of the road. The dog became frightened and would not leave the road. John, Jr. had the presence of mind to build a fire. He stayed by the fire for several hours. Finally the pack went further back in the woods and he was able to proceed. The young man stated that the howls sounded as if ten or twelve animals were in the pack. The farmers around this part of the country state that wolves are quite numerous but have never been known to come so close before.

MINNESOTA WOMAN HURT AT HOT SPRINGS

Hot Springs, Ark., March 8.—Thirteen persons were injured, several seriously, and property damage of $200,000 was done here yesterday by an explosion of natural gas in the basement of a store building and by fire which followed. Two buildings were destroyed. Reports that four persons had perished were unfounded.

Of the seriously injured, Miss Leota Willoughby, Hot Springs, may not recover. Miss Albert Berg, Spooner, Minn., suffered a broken leg when a heavy timber pinned her down.

TO PROTECT PINPOINT.

Milwaukee Women Hope to Elude Anti-Hatpin Ordinance.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 8.—Alderman Hughes, who fathered the famous "hatpin ordinance," which became a law upon Mayor Badin's signature, is being swamped with devices which are aimed to protect the point of the pin and thus save the wearer from arrest if it protrudes beyond half an inch from the crown of the hat. One woman appeared at the alderman's office with a cork wound with gold braid which she avers will be the "coming thing" for women.

RYDBERG NOT INDICTED.

No True Bill Against Former Spooner Village Marshal.

Spooner, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Public sentiment here seems to indorse the action of the Belstrami county grand jury in failing to return a true bill against Former Marshal H. A. Rydberg, who accidentally shot and killed John Harvey of Pitt, on the streets here Dec. 10, last, in front of the Auditorium by mistaking him for a man he was seeking to arrest.

Several witnesses from Spooner, Baudette and Pitt were examined before the grand jury in reference to the shooting and after several hours' deliberation the jury brought in a "no bill."

As soon as this was done the court ordered the bondsmen released, and Rydberg went home.

PRISONER TO REFORM.

Good Treatment In Minneapolis Jail Wins Him to Respectability.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 8.—Pillow slips and white sheets on his bed combined with music and compulsory baths may bring about the reform of Charles Diamond, alias George Hall, who has served time at Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore and other cities for larceny, burglary and other offenses and who is now on trial here as an alleged horsethief.

Diamond was so affected by the methods of the local jailors that he has taken the stand that when he ges out of his last trouble he will live a clean life and will go about the country reforming other criminals with whom he is acquainted.

He was brought here from Baltimore several days ago. He was amazed upon entering the bastile to find the prisoners singing while one was playing on a piano. His nice white, soft bed, excellent meals, compulsory daily baths, good sanitary conditions and compulsory attendance at Sunday religious services so affected Diamond that he now avers he will "be good" and attempt to reform his "pals."

Prefers Workhouse to Home.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 8.—Preferring life in the house of correction to that in a private home, Mrs. Mary Gass, who was recently adopted as a mother by a young woman, appeared before District Judge Neele B. Neelen and asked that she be sent to the workhouse. She was given sixty days.

St. Paul Cocaine "Ring."

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—Harry Brown of St. Paul was arrested here Friday and detectives are looking for three other men, one of them said to be a druggist, charged with being leaders of a cocaine "ring." It is alleged that the men have been supplying messenger boys, clerks in downtown stores and some high school students with the drug.

FEEL SHAKY, BILIOUS, HEADACHY, OR CONSTIPATED? TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches!—Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous, constipated matter, gases and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bile and constipation poison move on and out of the bowels. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies whose sensitive organisms are especially prone to sick headaches, need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Children need Cascarets, too—they love them because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Were You Ever Handed a Lemon

That was raised in the Isle of Pines? If so, you found it the finest, juiciest and best looking lemon you ever saw in your life.

There is a reason for this, and the same reason applies to every thing grown on the Isle of Pines. It takes climate and soil to raise lemons, and the Isle of Pines soil and climate are the best adapted to the business of any place on earth. Lemons cannot be raised in Florida and it is a precarious business in California on account of the frosts. Sicily is too far away. Eventually the Isle of Pines will supply the United States. This is only one more good thing about the Isle of Pines. There are more to follow.

JUDGES SHOULD NEVER JOKE.

London Globe: A joke emanating from the bench is not like the ordinary quip in company, which can be promptly sat upon. A nice sense of deference compels counsel on either side to smile loudly, though frequently against their will; the officials dutifully hold their sides; the legal limbs at the back guffaw; while a raucous ripple runs through the gallery. All this takes time to subside, and when we take into consideration the fact that expensive counsel are sometimes engaged at fat fees with hundred guinea refreshers, it is not difficult to calculate that the long suffering litigants have to pay for the judge's jokes at the rate of so many shillings a minute. If judges want to satisfy their cravings for humor, they should pay for it themselves. A solution of the difficulty would be to compel them to write a comedy, consisting of the type of joke they indulge in, and mounting it at their own expense. The loss on production would speedily cure them of the habit.

A. M. LOCKER
Of Minneapolis, General Secretary.

BISHOP W. A. QUAYLE

W. B. PATTON,
President of Local Committee on Arrangements.

REV. J. A. McGAUGHEY,
Chairman of Publicity Committee.

Fifteen hundred delegates from the Sunday schools in Minnesota will assemble here from March 27 to 30 for the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Minnesota State Sunday school association. The sessions will be held at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

Among the speakers at the convention will be the most prominent Bible teachers and Sunday school experts in the country. Some of these are James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible institute of Chicago; John L. Alexander of Chicago, considered the greatest expert on boys' classes; Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick of Corinth, Miss., prominent field worker of the South; Andrew Stevenson of Chicago, Sunday school book publisher and worker among men and boys, and J. Lincoln Hall of Philadelphia, prominent composer and director.

A feature of the convention this year will be a grand union chorus of 100 voices, which will be heard at the various sessions. The chorus is now being trained by A. C. Anderson of the West end and will be taken in charge by Prof. Hall of Philadelphia several days before the convention. Adam Geibel, the blind composer of Philadelphia, will accompany the chorus on the organ. The chorus is composed of choirs from several Sunday schools in the city.

A local committee on arrangements has been appointed to make the preparations for the convention. W. B. Patton is president of the committee and Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church is chairman of the publicity committee and Rev. Edward Erickson of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church is in charge of the entertainment.

The 1,500 delegates, 800 of whom are credited representatives of the Sunday schools, will all be cared for by local churches and church members. The committee has arranged to give the delegates their room and breakfasts free of charge. This is a feature never before followed out at any of the state conventions. Lunches and dinner will be served by the women of the Swedish Mission church at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, just a block from the church.

The convention will open Thursday evening, March 27, with an address by Bishop W. A. Quayle of St. Paul. The sessions will open the next morning and continue throughout each day until the following Sunday evening.

Dr. O. A. Oredson, chairman of the garden committee of the West End Commercial club, will this year conduct another prize garden contest among the children of the West end. Plans have already been made by the members of the oommittee.

Dr. Oredson announced yesterday afternoon that this year $75 in prizes will be given away to the children having the best gardens in this end of the city. As soon as the weather will permit, the garden committee plans to start its campaign.

A feature of the contest this year will be the systematic arrangements. Dr. Oredson has secured the promises from C. E. Roe, Mrs. R. P. Boyington and L. A. Simonson to conduct a series of lectures among the school children on gardening. The children will receive careful instruction on how to start and keep up a garden. They will be told how to raise both flowers and vegetables before the contest starts.

The prizes will be awarded late in the summer and will again be the cause of a celebration by the local club. Last fall the members gave an entertainment in the evening and the prizes were awarded the winners.

FRAMES HIS PLATFORM

W. I. Prince Presents His Plea to the Voters of Duluth.

Ten Planks on Which He Stands---Larson Will Manage Campaign.

The platform on which W. I. Prince will make his campaign for mayor and the campaign plans made by his friends were announced today.

Mr. Prince's campaign will be managed by Oscar J. Larson, who will head a committee of seven. The rooms formerly occupied by Paine, Webber & Co., on the first floor of the Torrey building have been engaged for Prince's headquarters and the campaign will be conducted from there.

Mr. Prince's platform consists of ten planks, including declarations for law enforcement, the restriction of the patrol limits, the suppression of the social evil, the reduction of the cost of living, the acquisition of public utilities by the city, better railroad service, the eight-hour day for city employes and economical business management of the city's affairs.

The platform follows:

"I stand for the following principles. If elected mayor, in co-operation with the other members of the commission, I shall strive to see that such principles are followed in the administration of city affairs. Speaking to all who hold similar views, I invite your active assistance that this city may give a more complete practical recognition to higher and better standards.

"1. I stand for obedience to law along all lines.

"2. Among others, dealers in intoxicating liquors must confirm strictly to the above rules. They should ask nothing else. All, however, must be treated alike and no favoritism shown. The patrol limits should not be extended.

"3. The social evil must be dealt with in a determined and vigorous manner and, as far as possible, suppressed. There should be no segregation of vice.

"4. The cost of living in this city should be reduced. At times, the municipal authorities, acting together or with other organizations, may do much along such lines when the individual can do nothing. I shall welcome such an opportunity.

"5. I am in favor of municipal ownership of public utilities and their acquisition by the city as the public necessities require. All matters of regulation of public utilities by franchise or contract should be submitted to the voters for their consideration by the referendum and their decision must govern and must be followed. This applies to both the past and the future.

"6. Public service corporations should be treated fairly, but they must be active in giving still better service and in extending their lines of operation wherever such extension becomes reasonably necessary. In case of serious dispute as to their powers or their duties, the matter should be submitted promptly, for determination, to the courts. The railways entering the city must be persuaded or compelled to provide a service adequate to our growing public needs and commensurate with the important traffic to and from this point.

"7. Public improvements must be made whenever reasonably necessary, but greater care should be exercised in ordering the same where the cost will fall upon the cheaper classes of property and upon those least able to bear such burdens. I favor the eight-hour day for city employes.

"8. Local organizations, whose purpose is to remedy existing evils or help the people to live more easily or to live better, should be heartily encouraged.

"9. In all fields there must be fair treatment and prudent and economical business management combined with a thoroughness in all lines of constructive work.

"10. There should be an enlightened, forward outlook. Duluth is a city of promise. Its public officials, assisted by the citizens generally, should strive to realize the best. This includes material prosperity, and still more, the higher welfare in every way of those who make this city their home."

THE LINCOLN PARK BRIDGE.

DULUTH is steadily, though perhaps rather slowly, proceeding along a policy to replace all the wooden bridges of the city with concrete culverts and fills of concrete or steel structures.

The city has a large number of bridges which have about outlived their usefulness. They have been patched and repaired until they are scarcely any longer fit for service. In many instances it is safe to drive across them only along the center or to one side and in some instances the unsafe sections have been fenced off from the part which may be used by the traffic.

The cost of the permanent work is considerably heavier than that of wooden bridges, but it is infinitely more economical. Once finished no repairs of consequence are necessary for indefinite periods of time. Had fewer wooden bridges been erected in the early days, or had none at all been constructed, the city would be much better off. The expense was great and the use gotten out of most of them was not in proportion to the money expended on them. If the ravines and gulches had been crossed by fills and culverts they would now be just as serviceable as when made. In the early days wooden culverts were in vogue and it is probable that it would have been found necessary to replace these with the concrete culverts, which would not have been extremely difficult.

The city is planning to replace several of its antiquated and nearly useless wooden bridges this summer. Work has already been started and is only waiting for milder weather for resumption, at Fortieth avenue west and Oneota street. The intersection of the avenue and the street comes in the ravine, requiring a bridge shaped like a "T" with the upper line exaggerated. It is believed that the culvert and fill will be completed this summer.

A concrete culvert and fill is under way at Eighty-first avenue west and Grand avenue, where a wide ravine was crossed by one of the longest wooden bridges in the city. One end was destroyed by fire of supposedly incendiary origin about two years ago. This was started last fall and was to have been completed before winter, but various delays were experienced and the council granted the contractor an extension to June 1.

The city engineer has prepared plans and estimates for a concrete culvert and fill at Sixtieth avenue and Grand avenue, the terminus of the belt line running to Bay View Heights. Contracts for this job may be awarded this summer. The engineer has recommended that the bridge near Woodland avenue and St. Marie street be replaced the coming summer.

Where streets cross ravines near parks the city plans to erect concrete or steel bridges in order to preserve the natural beauty as far as possible. This was done when a bridge was built across Tischer's creek at the lower end of Congdon park. It is a concrete structure in two large parts and thus far has been said to give excellent satisfaction. It is expected that this will be done when the Third street bridge over Miller's creek, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues west is replaced. This bridge is at the lower end of Lincoln park. The same situation is presented at Seventy-third avenue west and Third street, at the lower end of Fairmont park.

SOCIAL SERVICES IN LEGAL AID

Societies, Nationally Federated, Have Wide Opportunity to Protect Poor and Serve the Community.

By JOHN V. LADDEY,
Attorney New Jersey Legal Aid Society.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

The ways of the law often seem intricate enough to the average man. But to the poor, unfortunate and oppressed, victimized by loan sharks, grasping employers or ordinary swindlers, the methods of legal redress are not merely strange but out of reach financially. Few people realize how much distrust, bitterness and cynicism toward the law is created by unjust treatment of the poor who feel helpless owing to poverty or smallness of claims.

Legal aid societies, organized in many cities and recently federated into a national alliance, were started to provide for those too poor to engage lawyers, an agency through which they could effectively seek to secure justice. But the very general impression that these societies exist solely as a charity whereby individuals may be given legal help, is a very inadequate conception of their function. Not only must effort be made to protect the applicant—sometimes by a service quite different from that which he seeks, but the interests of the community must also be kept in mind if the legal aid society is to render the social service it should. For it has the opportunity to do much more than merely dispense benevolence through a bureau of legal advice and assistance.

Take, for example, the case of Mrs. K., who wanted her son discharged from the army. She had been sick and needed him for her support, she said. Incidentally, she told how when he enlisted at the age of 16, he declared his age to be 21. It was found that the boy was stationed in the Philippines. The war department, when informed of the situation, promised upon receipt of evidence that the boy was only 16, action would be taken. But it was added that his discharge would be without honor on account of the fraudulent enlistment, and would involve forfeiture of all pay and allowances including travel pay. In the meantime, investigations proved that the mother had two older sons who were already contributing to her support; that smaller contributions came from three daughters, and that the enliste boy had made several remittances of money to his mother of $10 and over. It became apparent that the boy was not wanted solely for reasons of support. If the boy's release were obtained, the stigma of a dishonorable discharge from the United States army would handicap him for life. The mother was then shown how unfortunate would be the effect if she persisted in her course, even though actuated by a deep sense of mother love.

Many applicants, perhaps a third of those who come to legal aid societies, are unworthy of the help they seek. Some are of an unduly litigious character, some are dishonest or have shown dishonorable conduct in connection with their cases, and some are found to be quite able to engage an attorney in the ordinary way.

But fully a third are entirely worthy and the other third questionably so. It is, of course, the function of a legal aid society to do its utmost for the worthy. And as already pointed out, this aid effectively given at a critical turn in the affairs of a lowly citizen, helps to give him that respect and confidence in our institutions which produces law-abiding members of the community. Recourse to acts of violence inspired by methods of personal revenge can thus be lessened, and the efficacy of legal procedure demonstrated.

The timely help given a 14-year-old boy in the following case may easily have affected his whole future point of view toward the law. He came to the legal aid society office with his mother and told how $5.50 had been deducted from his pay because a certain tool had disappeared from his employer's factory. He declared that he had not stolen it but had seen a workman wrap it up and take it from the room. An inquiry directed to the employers elicited the surly response that the boy would be paid his $5.50 if he returned the tool, but that if he should fail to do this, they would proceed against him criminally. The superintendent of the factory said the boy was a bad boy anyway—he had once climbed in a trolley car window, he had taken an umbrella belonging to a man who took his by mistake, and he whistled and sang. This list of heinous crimes somehow failed to impress the legal society attorney as bearing on the case.

After a telephone discussion in which the attorney pointed out that no proof of the charge against the boy had been adduced, the employers ended abruptly by saying—"Send up the boy—we will pay him his money, but we'll have him arrested at the same time." The boy, when told of this, instantly and with convincing frankness, said he wasn't afraid to go, for he had done noth'ng. The attorney advised him that if this was true he had nothing to fear. The next morning the factory superintendent telephoned the attorney, thanked him for his perserverance and said that the boy had been paid and that further investigation had removed suspicion to another. But for the strong backing he received this boy might have had an experience of a most embittering sort.

The applicants whose worthiness is questionable—those who bring trouble upon themselves by their irresponsible conduct—present the greatest difficulties and at the same time the greatest opportunities for social service. For they are often guilty of the most inexcusable negligence and culpable improvidence. A community service as arduous as it is worth while may be rendered in the efforts to teach these people to develop habits of thrift, to reckon the consequences of given conduct, and to become self reliant. It is not enough simply to help them out of a tight place, giving them freely of our knowledge, our experience and our skill, doing all the thinking and carrying all the responsibility while their part is the purely passive one of presenting a problem which we have to solve.

This leads to what might be called "mental pauperization," just as indiscriminate alms giving leads to physical pauperization. The applicants emerge with the idea that no matter what trouble their foolishness or carelessness leads them into, we are there to help them out. By such a method there is no incentive to them to become more thoughtful, more accurate, more intelligent. Often they should be compelled to suffer the results of acts the possible consequences of which they had ample opportunity to contemplate. The point is to turn the misfortune into a lesson from which they may derive a lasting benefit. If legal aid is merely palliative, pulling the applicant out of one difficulty to leave him ready to tumble into the next, it is perfectly useless. If, on the other hand, it is educative, disciplinary, regenerative, if it stimulates independence, providence, thrift and manhood, it is indeed eminently worth while, both to the applicant and to the community.

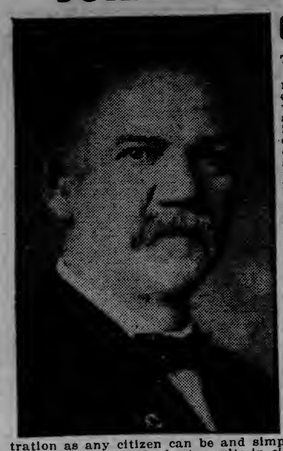
JOHN T. ARMSTEAD,
Candidate for Commissioner



To the Voters of Duluth:

I believe each candidate for commissioner should state before the election the principles for which he would stand if elected. In accordance with that view I desire to say, if elected, I will work for a clean, economically managed, and prosperous Duluth. Clean as to its streets, alleys and back lots, and clean as to its moral tone. Law enforcement, with no favor shown, is absolutely necessary to bring about a clean moral condition and, if elected, I will insist on having it and will strive to bring about a healthful moral condition.

Municipal ownership is one of the cardinal tenets in the creed of Duluthians. I believe in it fully and will work to carry out the wishes of the voters regarding the electric lighting plant as expressed at the polls over a year ago. Action on that matter has already been too long delayed.

I believe a great deal of the enormous waste, inevitable under the old system, can be prevented under the new and my best efforts will be devoted to that end. I have been a resident of Duluth for twenty-four years and am as much interested in an economical administration as any citizen can be and simply on the basis of wanting to assist in bringing about the best results in city government I solicit your support.

J. T. ARMSTEAD,
Candidate for commissioner for the four-year term.

LUMBER IS IN DEMAND

Loggers Unable to Get Men to Man Their Camps.

That the incoming season for the lumber industry at the Head of the Lakes will be one of the greatest in recent years is the opinion of J. P. McDonald of the Mullery-McDonald company. Mr. McDonald says that recent reports of heavy sales are undoubtedly true, but as to who the sellers are is uncertain; but that all companies have been making sales of greater or less magnitude is the fact in this part of the country. Said he to The Herald today:

"Prices in general will be much higher during the coming year than last. The reason is obvious: For the purchases of the past year have been heavier, and in consequence stocks are much lower. I venture to say that piles on the docks in Duluth are lower this spring than for several years. In addition to this we have had an awfully hard time to get men to work in the woods. I really think that our company has been more fortunate than most and at that we have nothing to boast about.

"The season too, until lately, has been unfavorable, but now we have good weather. We were afraid that the breakup would come along about this time, but unless all signs fail we look for logging to last until about March 20. Of course, that is always problematical but it will relieve the situation immensely if it goes through.

"The market stands at the present time at a severe advance. It is believed the prevailing prices for the year will be much heavier than last years. Box lumber is scarcer than for several seasons. This, of course, consists of spruce, tamarack and norway, and you will find box lumber from 25 to 30 per cent higher than last year. Cull dimensions will be about 30 per cent higher and No. 3 common or better will be from 10 to 15 per cent higher. Other grades will be in proportion."

It is understood that the Cloquet mills and some of those on the range will be short in cut because of the lack of labor. Laborers for the woods have been acting, according to lumbermen in general, in a most inexplicable way. They do not seem to care for work in the woods, and no reason, apparently, is assignable for this attitude. One lumberman said the other day that one has to deal with these fellows as tenderly as with babes. They take a job, earn a few days' pay, said he, and if one looks crossly at them they quit and head for the nearest town. This condition has had a baleful effect upon the lumber business.

Fargoans Seeks Better Rates.

Fargo, N. D., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wholesalers and the jobbers of Fargo are after better rates out of Fargo. This city has ideal railroad shipping facilities and with reasonable rates a great jobbing business could be built up like the Twin Cities now enjoy. WILL OPEN HOME FOR INCURABLES

Mrs. Julia Wood Plans to Care for White Plague Victims.

Incurable consumptives will have a haven of refuge and a place to spend their last days in comfort, if the plans of Mrs. Julia A. Wood materialize.

Mrs. Wood is the widow of the late A. De Lacey Wood, pioneer newspaper editor of Northern Minnesota. During the last few months she has had a private hospital for consumptive patients in the Twin Cities, but she has returned to Duluth and plans to open a sanitarium on a larger scale.

"I hope to have a building either at Solon Springs or at Lake Nebagamon," said Mrs. Wood today. "The purpose is to offer a home for incurable patients. These patients are generally turned out of a sanitarium when it is found that their cases are hopeless, and there is such a growing belief that the disease is so contagious that their relatives and friends are afraid to offer them a home. I am planning to establish a sanitarium where such patients may be cared for."

Mrs. Wood is at present staying with her daughter at 111¼ East First street.

Because of legal requirements each candidate must have his full name on the ballots. For that reason the ticket shows my name as James A. Farrell, although since boyhood I have always been known as "Bert" Farrell. To avoid confusion, I wish to state that "Bert" Farrell and James A. Farrell are one and the same.

Born and raised in Duluth, I have an intimate knowledge of the needs of the city, furthered by 20 years' in the office of the city engineer. My duties took me to all parts of the city.

If elected a commissioner for the two-year term, I will give the people of Duluth an administration which I am confident will meet with their approval and commendation.

Mother's Friend in Every Home

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. QUESTIONING CANDIDATES

Questioning the candidates is a popular form of amusement during the present municipal campaign. Hardly a day passes on which the candidates do not receive a list of questions with a request that they submit their answers to some organization.

That all requests will be complied with by all candidates is out of the question. Some of the candidates will prefer not to go on record in writing on certain questions, for they may want to change their minds. Others are answering fully and freely in the hope that frank answers may gain votes.

The latest list of questions to be sent out is that of the Stirrup club. The club has considered the questions at several meetings and the list has been prepared so that no definite views on the part of the club are expressed, but the candidates are asked to go on record on definite propositions. The list of questions follows:

"1. (a) Are you in favor of municipal ownership of all public utilities?

"(b) Will you use your best endeavors to at once establish by the most practical method a municipal electric lighting plant in the city of Duluth for municipal and commercial purposes?

"(c) Will you use your best endeavors to establish municipal docks in the city of Duluth at the earliest possible time?

"2. Will you, if elected, use your best endeavors to pass and enforce an ordinance prohibiting the granting or renewing of a license to sell intoxicating liquors in any building in the city for a period of one year from the date of the conviction of any person for the violation of any liquor law or ordinance in such building?

"3. Are you in favor of the abolishment of the so-called redlight or segregated district?

"4. Are you in favor of the eight-hour day for municipal work done for or by the city at the current or usual wages prevailing at the time the work is performed?"

At a meeting at Woodmen's hall in the West end last evening, Marcus L. Fay, candidate for mayor, declared a combination headed by Matt Gasser and Harris Bennett on behalf of the breweries is working to head off the election of candidates who will enforce the law.

Mr. Fay termed the combination the "Bennett-Gasser - Banking-Drygoods-Real Estate-Electric-Brewing company." Mr. Fay did not name any specific candidates, but said the combination is at work to have elected candidates who will not enforce the law.

"I stand for law enforement which means law enforcement," he continued. "Not one of the other candidates will stand on the same platform.

"The enforcement of law will solve the social evil. If the liquor law was lived up to there would be no competition between the legitimate saloon and the resorts on St. Croix avenue. The latter are given their existence by lack of law enforcement and are allowed to sell liquor at exorbitant prices without a license in competition with the saloonkeeper who has to pay the city $1,000 annually. The enforcement of the liquor law would mean that the red light district of the city would die a natural death.

"I am against giving one class of people a more elastic license than another. Take for instance the hotel with the cafe. There is no reason why this cafe should be allowed to sell liquors at all hours of the day and night and on Sundays when the saloon doing legitimate business next door is compelled to observe every feature of the law. What is good for one is good for another and the well-to-do hotel man is not entitled to more for his $1,000 than the other fellow."

Mr. Fay declared that he is not tied down to any interest or to anybody.

"This is one of the reasons why the evening paper which claims to be independent, but is really strongly Democratic, has never supported me although I have always been a strong follower of the party. It would not support me when I ran for congress eight years ago, because I would not stand for any petty interest which it fathered," he said.

He said he favored the eight-hour day for city employes and men working on city contracts. He advocated the city doing its own improvement work.

The Municipal Ownership league will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Room A, Kalamazoo hall, to lay plans for the campaign. It is expected the league will indorse all candidates who line up for municipal ownership, especially of the electric light plant. It is probable that the indorsement will be put off until all candidates are given an opportunity to go on record. At the meeting tonight, officers will be elected and campaign plans outlined.

P. G. Phillips and Morris Kaplan, Socialist candidates for the commission, spoke at Victor hall, West Duluth, last night. Mr. Kaplan said that the social evil is due to existing economic conditions. He advocated the establishment of a municipal lodging house.

Monday evening, the Socialist campaign will switch to New Duluth. Morris Kaplan, W. E. Towne and E. N. Edes being the speakers. The same candidates and P. G. Phillips will speak at the Bricklayers' hall, Nineteenth avenue west and First street, Tuesday evening.

Leonidas Merritt, J. Scott Cash, A. M. Balfany, George W. Power, W. L. Barnard and other candidates addressed the French Naturalization club at the St. Jean Baptiste hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, last evening.

Roderick Murchison and E. R. Cobb filed their accentances of nomination with City Clerk C. S. Palmer this morning. Both are candidates for the short term. Those who have not yet filed accentances are M. R. Culbum, P. E. Dowling, W. R. Getchell, W. I. Prince and C. S. Wilson for mayor, Chan Smith for the long term and C. E. Evens and W. E. Kern for the short term. Next Wednesday is the last day for filing accentances.

Next Tuesday is the first registration day. Saturday, March 15, is the last registration day.

Victor L. Berger, the first Socialist to be elected to congress, will probably speak here Sunday, March 30, in the afternoon. His subject will be: "The Achievements of the Socialist Administration of Milwaukee." The Armory has been engaged for that occasion. On Monday, March 10, Messrs. Towne and Kaplan will speak at New Duluth. Tuesday night in Bricklayer's hall, Nineteenth avenue west and First street, Phillips, Towne and Kaplan will address a campaign meeting.

THE READING ROOM.

THE DINING ROOM.

Lumberjacks do like to be clean. So do sailors, miners, railroad laborers and workingmen of all crafts. Any who are skeptical about this statement need only see what use such men make of the opportunities afforded them at the Bethel to become clean.

One of the most highly appreciated of all the facilities afforded for human comfort in the new Bethel building on West First street is the laundry room. Here the men find stationary washtubs and an abundance of hot and cold water with which to wash their clothing and they are indeed glad to do it. The soap they must pay for. Otherwise they would be apt to waste it. It costs them just 5 cents a cake. They wash not only their underwear, shirts and socks, but their coats, vests and trousers. Instead of ironing their garments, they merely stretch them out. Two men will often exert all their strength stretching a pair of trousers. They are glad to help each other in this way.

An important adjunct to the laundry is the fumigator. Here the clothing is subjected to a temperaturo of 225 deg., which kills any noxious germs that may be lurking in it.

Not only boarders at the Bethel take advantage of the facilities afforded here for cleansing both bodies and clothing, but men of the same class from many parts of the city come to the place for that purpose only. All they need pay for is their soap.

Friend of Homeless.

The Bethel is the friend of the laborer and the wanderer. There is a regular schedule of rates to be charged for lodging and board, but many a poor wanderer gets things for nothing. Of course the managers do not wish to encourage shiftlessness. They wish to help a man get on his feet and take care of himself. Sometimes, after a man has slept in a bed in that institution once or twice free of charge, and comes back, expecting the same favor again, all he gets is permission to sleep on the floor. There must be an individual diagnosis of each case before the remedy is determined.

Most of the men who frequent the Bethel are amply able to pay for what they get. For 15 cents they can get a bed for a night. For 90 cents they can get it for a week. For $1.75 they may have a separate room for a week. For 10 cents a man is served in the morning with a stack of hot cakes, with syrup, butter and coffee. For 15 cents he can get a dinner of soup, crackers, meats, vegetables and bread and butter, with coffee, milk or tea. For the same sum he can get a supper, which is much like the dinner. He buys his meal at a counter, loads the food on a tray and carries it to a table, the plan of the lunch room being the same as that of many other public eating places.

Place to Leave Money.

Some of the men who live at the Bethel are well supplied with money. Many of them come from the lumber camps with several hundreds of dollars about them. This money they often leave in the charge of the Bethel managers, until they are ready to leave. If every man on arriving at the Bethel would thus entrust his money to the officers for safe-keeping, they would be able to get the use of it, but this precaution is frequently neglected and the owner loses his money in consequence.

"Almost every day," remarked Supt. Henry E. Ramseyer today, "some man comes to us complaining that he has been robbed in a saloon. This is being done right along in Duluth. A man comes to town with his savings, goes into a saloon, drinks, is drugged, and his money disappears. It is an old story.

"A little Frenchman came here a few days ago with over $500 in his clothing. He turned all his money but $10 over to the office. After he had spent $10, we managed to induce him to go back to the woods without spending any more of his money.

"I recall the case of another man who got both his legs broken, working on the ore docks. He was in the hospital for some weeks, but after he was well, he received several hundred dollars from the company by way of settlement. He left nearly all of his money at our office and went downtown with a little change. Some of his old associates, knowing that he had received a considerable amount of money, went through his pockets and took what money he had. They got very little, however, for he had little with him.

Reading Room Popular.

It is interesting to look into the reading room on almost any morning, afternoon or evening. It is nearly always well filled. The chairs about the tables are seldom empty, and the numerous papers and magazines are in use almost constantly during the day. Most, but by no means all, of the men can read and write.

There are three tables with checker boards and sets. That is the only game that is played at the Bethel. Three games are almost always going on. Those workingmen, especially the men from the woods, are great checker players. If one of them were pitted against an average college graduate at this game, the chances are that the alumnus would soon find he had struck something well worthy of his steel.

Religious services.

The religious services at the Bethel are always well attended. The men are not hard to interest. On the contrary, they seem to enjoy listening to any speaker that happens to appear before them. When the folding doors are thrown open and the reading room and chapel hall united into one auditorium, it frequently happens that a speaker has an audience of more than 150 men. There are singers among those humble boarders, too, and many is the sailor, miner or lumberjack who has surprised those in charge of the service by the power and sweetness of his voice and the correctness of his intonation. Sometimes, and by no means infrequently, a newly converted member of the gathering will himself address the rest and preach with simple fervor a discourse that is all the more eloquent because of the total absence of preparation or erudition.

Religious meetings occur on Sunday afternoon and evening, and Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. On Thursday afternoons services for women are held.

Arrangements are being made for addresses to be delivered each evening during the latter half of March and the first half of April by the well-known Higgins camp missionaries. Matt Daly, Jack McCall and Mr. Sorenberger will have a week each. Rev. W. N. Payne of Wayzata, Minn., will also speak each evening for a week.

DENIES CHARGES OF HER HUSBAND

Former Wife of Motion Picture Show Man Says She Was Maligned.

Irene Weiss, divorced wife of Harry Weiss, former Duluth moving picture show man, now at Minneapolis, who got a divorce from his wife a year ago at Dubuque without her knowledge, as she claims, strenuously denies the charges on which his divorce was granted from her.

"The publishing of the charges he brought against me—charges which I had no opportunity whatever to defend—places me in a bad light," she declared today. "The charges are false, every one of them and my friends here will bear me out in that point."

R. H. Hadfield, manager of the Savoy theater, Superior, denies the story which Weiss told in the Iowa court that his wife had to be discharged from the Superior playhouse on account of her dishonesty.

"Mrs. Weiss was grossly misrepresented in regard to her deportment while both she and her husband were in my employ at the Savoy theater," he stated. "She and her husband left my employ of their own free will and accord, and not due to anything that Mrs. Weiss had done or how she deported herself. I had no complaint to make as to her honesty, sobriety or accuracy while in my employ. It is no more than fair to her that this should be set right as I feel that she has been falsely represented."

Mrs. Weiss stated this morning that she believed that she would let the matter drop and not attempt to have the Iowa divorce set aside. "I have had altogether too much notoriety now."

AUTOMOBILE AND WATER BONDS

Council Will Consider Several Matters of Importance Monday.

Several matters of importance will come before the council Monday for consideration.

Among them will be the opening of bids for a combined automobile patrol wagon and emergency ambulance and the awarding of the $100,000 of water and light bonds for which bids were opened last Monday night.

It is believed that the council will take no action upon the ordinance which was drawn for the purpose of enabling the welfare board to hire an expert for social center work and to supervise playgrounds, public baths, etc. The sentiment appears to be that this should be left to the commission which will take office April 14.

The health department will ask that bids be advertised for a new smallpox ambulance to replace the present unsatisfactory vehicle. The city engineer's report on the rustic bridge over Lester river will be submitted.

WARROAD'S FACTORY.

New Hoop Making Concern Is Now Being Operated.

Warroad, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new hoop factory is now manufacturing hoops, and settlers are getting a good price for their ash timber.

Frans Fransson of Warren expects to open a harness and saddlery store here in a short time.

Martin Nelson, chairman of the county board, was a business visitor here last Saturday and went from here to Swift. He is out working in favor of the courthouse bonds.

Martin Widsten of the Plaindealer returned from his trip to the Twin Cities last Saturday.

On March 11 the voters of Roseau county will again vote on the question of issuing bonds for a new courthouse to be built at Roseau. The question was voted on at the November election, but failed to carry.

H. C. Reed was a business visitor from Badger on Wednesday.

C. A. Moody and Hans R. Selvog spent this week in St. Paul on business.

R. J. Bell of Roseau was in the village Wednesday on legal business.

"Facing the Music," the play put on by local talent, was given Thursday evening at the Lyceum and was a grand sucess. It was all fun from start to finish and received enthusiastic applause from the audience.

COMMISSION ALLOWS ADVANCE IN RATES.

Chicago, March 8.—Chicago will be compelled to pay an advance in the rates on linseed oil under a decision which the interstate commerce commission has handed down. At present the rate on linseed oil from Minneapolis to Chicago, Minneapolis being the principal point of production, is 10 cents per 100 pounds, and the railroads propose to advance the rate to 15 cents per 100 pounds. After investigation the commission has decided to permit the new rate, which was suspended, to be placed in force.

The railroads claim that the present rate is a war rate.

Helena, Mont., Paper Sold.

Helena, Mont., March 8.—The Helena Independent, morning daily, was sold this week to a company of Montana Democrats, headed by United States Senator T. J. Walsh, at a reported price of $90,000. William A. Campbell of St. Paul, secretary of the Northwest Development league, is secretary of the new publishing company. Guy E. La Follette, formerly an Eastern newspaper man, who has been running a Democratic paper in Portland, Or., is the new managing editor.

BOOST FOR DULUTH

We are taught that self-preservation is the first law of nature. It is perfectly natural that one should preserve and protect his home, but how many realize that every dollar out of town to the merchant or manufacturer in the larger cities is, so to speak, "a shingle taken off his own roof?" The merchant, the farmer and the individual citizen are all dependent upon each other.

Buying From Foreign Concerns a Menace to Your Own Home!

Every time you fail in allegiance to home industries you strike a blow against your own permanent success. As the home merchant and manufacturer enlarge their business and plant just so surely does the city extend greater chances for success and growth to all its citizens. If on no higher grounds than that of self-preservation, let us all pull together for the success of all Duluth firms.

PUTTING BILLY WISE

Brother-to-Brother Letters By Johnny Wise.

Dear Bill—There is one mark that distinguishes all candidates. If you walk down the street, you can't tell a candidate at a glance. If he stops you, shakes you warmly by the hand, assures you that he is your friend for life and asks you to vote for him yourself and to speak a good word for him to your brothers and uncles and nephews and relatives-in-law, you may be sure he is a candidate.

However that isn't the distinguishing feature of which I speak. That isn't visible to the naked eye at first glance. If one of those phrenologist guys, who feel the bumps on your head and tell you what way you like your eggs for breakfast, should examine the heads of all candidates, he would tell you of one bump that is abnormally developed on each of them.

It is the bump of optimism. The candidate is the most optimistic species of the human race. Optimism is his motive power. Optimism works his talking machine. Optimism is air to his lungs and food to his palate. Without optimism he would be in the drear, damp depths of dismal despair.

One may take the young city directory that answers for a ballot in this election, close his eyes and stick a pin through the paper, and he will puncture the name of an optimist. There are no exceptions. You and I know that some of the candidates haven't any more chance of dragging down $333.33 1-3 per month from the city of Duluth, now or ever, than some original Duncanite among the Maoris. Yet those candidates go in and out among the voters in this town and have their bump of optimism further developed by the fact that nobody is cruel enough to tell them how they look as others see them.

I don't know what human characteristic it is that makes men believe they can be elected to office. Some people have the right to become candidates, for they have a chance, but some people seem to be just doomed to disappointment in office seeking. Before the free and open primary days they went around seeking appointive offices and pestered the life out of a few office holders. Now they go around seeking elective offices and pester the life out of all the voters.

Some of the candidates are making an effort to stir up the voters to a degree of interest commensurate with the coming opportunity for every man to exercise his suffrage. They are raising issues, decorating them with the grotesque habiliments that language can shape when properly handled, and holding them up for the public gaze. The public for some reason doesn't gaze. It's too busy studying the ballot and wondering whether it ought to cast a second and third choice.

I believe 75 per cent of the voters have already made up their minds as to just how they are going to vote. They know the men, they know their methods and they are going right ahead earning whatever the exigencies of our competitive labor conditions will allow them to earn, and waiting for election day to cast their votes. I don't believe any amount of oratory and literature thrown into this campaign now can change an appreciable number of votes.

Of course there is a large silent vote, and that same bump of optimism (See paragraph 2, supra) is hard at work. Each candidate thinks he can capture the silent vote and he intends to do his level best to capture it. However, I venture as the opinion of one who thinks he knows the political mind of the body politic that if the vote were taken today the ultimate result would be exactly the same as it will be on April 1.

There will be some huling of charges and counter charges. There will be some orating and gesticulating on the part of candidates. There will be public meetings, floods of literature, hundreds of unsightly placards and thousands of annoying hand cards in the remaining three weeks, but I don't think the voters are going to get very excited. It's a habit the voters have cultivated in recent campaigns. Campaign excitement went out of fashion about the same time the torch light parade became quite the thing in Hickory Corners. Yours, votes when the absent members are in attendance.

JOHNNY.

LACKED ONLY FOUR VOTES

Representative Campbell made his motion to reconsider immediately after the roll call, but Representative R. C. Dunn foreclosed action upon it by moving to adjourn, that motion prevailing.

When the bill was reached on the calendar, Representative Thomas Frankson offered an amendment substituting for it the provisions of the Wilson bill, which has passed the senate, providing the death penalty only for life prisoners who commit felonious assaults on their keepers.

Pless Objected.

Representative Pless, the author of the bill, objected to any amendments, which settled that matter because under the rules no amendments can be offered to a bill except by unanimous consent.

Whereupon Mr. Frankson moved that the bill be re-referred to general orders so it could be amended, and Representative W. I. Nolan, who was occupying the chair in the absence of Speaker Rines, called home by a death in his family, ruled that this could be done by a majority vote.

Mr. Frankson's motion, however, failed to get a majority vote, being defeated 63 to 38. This brought the bill to a direct vote—after the debate was concluded, which was not for another hour or more.

Most of the arguments were against the bill. Representative C. N. Orr of St. Paul called attention to the fact that the bill abolishing capital punishment was passed by a house much less progressive than the present one, and said that it was unthinkable that the most progressive house in the history of the state would pass such a bill as the pending one.

Representative N. J. Holmberg of Renville refused to believe that the house would pass such a bill. He said that the legislature should not set the example of deliberately destroying sacred human life, and that capital punishment is brutalizing in its effects.

Representative Frank Hopkins of Fairfax pointed out that where the advocates of the bill showed that there had been more convictions for murder since capital punishment was abolished than there were before, they were offering an argument against their own bill, because juries often hesitate to convict in first degree murder charges because they dread to condemn a man to death; and when the phantom of that tragedy is removed from their consideration they are more likely to return verdicts of "guilty."

Representative W. T. Stone of Park Rapids said that sometimes unjust convictions occur on circumstantial evidence, and that it is easy to remedy the wrong when the sentence is life imprisonment, but impossible when the death sentence has been executed.

Representative Frankson of Spring Valley said that if the house was going to take this step back into the dark ages, it might as well take another step and re-establish the pillory.

Representative Gunnar B. Bjornson of Minneota said that the bill was an abomination, and that he considered his vote against it the most sacred vote he would be called upon to cast at this session.

How They Voted.

Nevertheless, a majority of those present voted in favor of the bill, the vote being as follows:

Against—Anderson, W., Bjorge, Bjornson, Braatelien, Burchard, Burrows, Campbell, Campbell, Child, Clementson, Coates, Crawford, Davis, Finke, Flowers, Frankson, Frye, Hafften, Hillman, Holmberg, Hopkins, Johnson, J. T., Knopp, Larson, Lee, Lennon, Lindberg, McMartin, Marschalk, Morken, Nelson, Nolan, Norton, Olien, Orr, Peterson, A. B., Peterson, A. J., Preston, Putnam, Southwick, Steen, Stone, Sundberg, Vasaly, Virtue, Voxland, Walker, Warner, A. L., Warner, E., Wefald, Westman, Williams—50.

Before the result of the roll call was announced, Representative Campbell changed his vote from aye to no, so as to be in a position to move a reconsideration and give the bill another chance. His motion to reconsider was cut off by the adoption of a motion to adjourn, but it can be made at any time during the next two session days.

This means that there will be another fight on the bill, probably next Wednesday, when the house reconvenes after the intermission.

Dunn Bill Killed.

As expected, the house yesterday afternoon killed the H. H. Dunn drastic anti-trust bill by a decisive vote. There was little debate, the author making only a half-hearted appeal for his measure, and Representative Crane pointing out that the bill would affect such organizations as the American Society of Equity, of which he is a member. The vote was 43 for and 61 against.

By a vote of 76 to 13 the house yesterday afternoon passed the Lydiard bill, requiring that one day's rest in seven be given to all workers employed in factories, workshops or mercantile establishments.

The Marden senate bill, giving the state board of health power to abolish the public drinking cup in all public places, squeezed through the house yesterday afternoon by a narrow margin, passing by a vote of 64 to 37.

The house passed a bill by Representative G. W. Brown of Glencoe, changing the law relating to exemption of wages from garnishment so as to give merchants a better chance to collect their bills. The present law exempts $25, whether wages are paid weekly or monthly. The bill as passed exempts $50 during any one month. Under the present law a worker getting $25 a week would have all his wages exempt, but under the Brown bill only $50 in each month would be exempt from garnishment.

Normal School Bill Passes.

The bill by the house committee on normal school, providing for the location of a new normal school in Northern Minnesota, passed the house yesterday afternoon by a vote of 76 to 27. The bill provides no appropriation, but proposes that the site shall be selected by a commission to be appointed by the lieutenant governor and the speaker, and that it must be north of the Northern Pacific line between Duluth and Moorhead, and west of Carlton county.

The senate put in a busy afternoon yesterday in committee of the whole advancing to the calendar a large number of bills, mostly of minor importance.

Among these bills the one of greatest interest to Northern Minnesota was the Bouck house bill authorizing county boards to appropriate amounts up to 5 cents per capita for the support of development associations that will work to attract settlers.

By Senator Haycroft—Appropriating $10,000 to buy a site for a woman's state reformatory, to be selected by the state board of control.

By Senator Handlan—Repealing the law which mitigates damages for libel where newspapers retract the statements alleged to be libelous.

By Senator G. H. Sullivan—Making it a felony to take liquor, drugs or firearms into the grounds of the state penitentiary or the state reformatory.

By Senators Cheadle and Wallace—Removing the present limit of ten high schools that can be given state aid in any one county.

Senate Grain Probe.

The senate grain investigation committee was still engaged yesterday afternoon in studying the methods of the Equity Co-operative exchange as exemplified by its dealings with the farmers' elevator at Voltaire, N. D.

In the direct testimony it had been shown that the Equity concern claimed to have paid the Voltaire elevator $500 more than it had been given credit for, and it was stated that the check, indorsed by the Voltaire people, had been received and cancelled and had been mailed to them at Voltaire while they were on their way to Minneapolis. H. G. Bundy, treasurer of the Voltaire elevator, had wired to have this check mailed to him here, and he produced it yesterday afternoon and showed by his books that he had given the Equity concern credit for it.

Later the Equity people stated that they had been studying their books, and had found that a check for $245, sent the Voltaire people, had been entered in the books as $745 instead of $245, which accounted for the discrepancy. The Equity people admitted that the Voltaire company was correct in its contention.

The evidence of F. H. King, bookkeeper for the Equity concern, seemed to show that it was the practice of that company, when wheat was shipped to it for storage, to sell the wheat instead of storing it. This also is the practice of other commission firms, but it appeared that instead of hedging these sales in the market, as other companies do, the Equity concern in this case at least took the hedge itself—a transaction which chamber of commerce men describe as "bucketshopping."

DENIES WOMAN IS TO ADMIT GUILT.

Manawa, Wis., March 8.—Describing as a rumor not founded on fact a report from Stevens Point to the effect that Mrs. Albert Patzer, charged with killing her husband on a farm near this city, would plead guilty at the coming trial, William N. Martin, attorney for Mrs. Patzer, declared that the statement must have emanated from the office of the district attorney at Stevens Point.

"The statement was pure gossip," said Mr. Martin.

For Rough, Wrinkled Freckled, Pimpled Skin

(From the Woman's Home Journal.)

As March winds, flying dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches, or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles and furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel will prove wonderfully effectual.

We are taught that self-preservation is the first law of nature. It is perfectly natural that one should preserve and protect his home, but how many realize that every dollar out of town to the merchant or manufacturer in the larger cities is, so to speak, "a shingle taken off his own roof?" The merchant, the farmer and the individual citizen are all dependent upon each other.

Buying From Foreign Concerns a Menace to Your Own Home!

Every time you fail in allegiance to home industries you strike a blow against your own permanent success. As the home merchant and manufacturer enlarge their business and plant just so surely does the city extend greater chances for success and growth to all its citizens. If on no higher grounds than that of self-preservation, let us all pull together for the success of all Duluth firms.

PUTTING BILLY WISE

Brother-to-Brother Letters By Johnny Wise.

Dear Bill—There is one mark that distinguishes all candidates. If you walk down the street, you can't tell a candidate at a glance. If he stops you, shakes you warmly by the hand, assures you that he is your friend for life and asks you to vote for him yourself and to speak a good word for him to your brothers and uncles and nephews and brothers-in-law, you may be sure he is a candidate.

However that isn't the distinguishing feature of which I speak. That isn't visible to the naked eye at first glance. If one of those phrenologist guys, who feel the bumps on your head and tell you what way you like your eggs for breakfast, should examine the heads of all candidates, he would tell you of one bump that is abnormally developed on each of them.

One may take the young city directory that answers for a ballot in this election, close his eyes and stick a pin through the paper, and he will picture the name of an optimist. There are no exceptions. You and I know that some of the candidates haven't any more chance of dragging down $333.33 1-3 per month from the city of Isaiah, now or ever, than some original Democrats among the Muoris. Yet those candidates go in and out among the voters in this town and have their bump of optimism further developed by the fact that nobody is cruel enough to tell them how they look as others see them.

I don't know what human characteristic it is that makes men believe they can be elected to office. Some people have the right to become candidates, for they have a chance, but some people seem to be just doomed to disappointment in office seeking. Before the free and open primary days, they went around seeking appointive offices and pestered the life out of a few office holders. Now they go around seeking elective offices and pester the life out of all the voters.

Some of the candidates are making an effort to stir up the voters to a degree of interest commensurate with the coming opportunity for every man to exercise his suffrage. They are raising issues, decorating them with the grotesque habiliments that language can shape when properly handled, and holding them up for the public gaze. The public for some reason doesn't gaze. It's too busy studying the ballot and wondering whether it ought to cast a second and third choice.

I believe 75 per cent of the voters have already made up their minds as to just how they are going to vote. They know the men, they know their methods and they are going right ahead earning whatever the exigencies of our competitive labor conditions will allow them to earn, and waiting for election day to cast their votes. I don't believe any amount of oratory and literature thrown into this campaign now can change an appreciable number of votes.

Of course there is a large silent vote, and that same bump of optimism (See paragraph 2, supra) is hard at work. Each candidate thinks he can capture the silent vote and he intends to do his level best to capture it. However, I venture as the opinion of one who thinks he knows the political mind of the body politic that if the vote were taken today the ultimate result would be exactly the same as it will be on April 1.

There will be some hiding of charges and counter charges. There will be some orating and gesticulating on the part of candidates. Representative Campbell made his motion to reconsider immediately after the roll call, but Representative R. C. Dunn foreclosed action upon it by moving to adjourn, that motion prevailing.

When the bill was reached on the calendar, Representative Thomas Frankson offered an amendment substituting for it the provisions of the Wilson bill, which has passed the senate, providing the death penalty only for life prisoners who commit felonious assaults on their keepers.

Pless Objected.

Representative Pless, the author of the bill, objected to any amendments, which settled that matter because under the rules no amendments can be offered to a bill except by unanimous consent.

Representative Frank Hopkins of Fairfax pointed out that where the advocates of the bill showed that there had been more convictions for murder since capital punishment was abolished than there were before, they were offering an argument against their own bill, because juries often hesitate to convict in first degree murder charges because they dread to condemn a man to death; and when the phantom of that tragedy is removed from their consideration they are more likely to return verdicts of "guilty."

Representative Gunnar B. Bjornson of Minneota said that the bill was an abomination, and that he considered his vote against it the most sacred vote he would be called upon to cast at this session.

Nevertheless, a majority of those present voted in favor of the bill, the vote being as follows:

For the bill—Anderson, J., Borgen, Bouck, Brown, G. W., Brown, W. W., Carey, Carlson, Crane, Dindorf, Dunn, H. H., Dunn, R. Before the result of the roll call was announced, Representative Campbell changed his vote from aye to no, so as to be in a position to move a reconsideration and give the bill another chance. For Rough, Wrinkled Freckled, Pimpled Skin

(From the Woman's Home Journal.)

As March winds, flying dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches, or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles and furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel will prove wonderfully effectual.

CLUB OPPOSES NEW EXPERT

Attacking the present methods of the Associated Charities and the public welfare board, urging the city council to first investigate the proposed ordinance providing for a social center expert at a fixed salary of $2,000 a year and recommending the work of social centers to the school board, the West Duluth Commercial club last evening passed a resolution to that effect, which will be submitted to the council Monday evening.

The members of the club are opposed to the plan of hiring an expert, who they claim in the resolution is to be brought here from New York. The resolution further states that the board of welfare is encroaching on other charitable institutions of the city and county. The city council is urgently requested to first investigate the proposed ordinance before bringing it up for its final hearing, scheduled for next Monday evening.

The resolution in full follows:

"To the Honorable, the City Council:

"We are creditably informed and believe that the ordinance now being considered by your honorable body and providing for the employment of a social center expert whose salary is to be fixed at $2,000 a year, is ill advised legislation, and seeks to create a position, the duties of which can be discharged through co-operation with the school authorities.

"We are creditably informed and believe that a board of public welfare which is behind this ordinance to provide a social center expert is gradually encroaching upon the powers and duties of other boards and bodies in the city of Duluth, namely, the probation office, the county poor board, the Humane society and other public institutions that exercise an official influence for public uplift and better morals.

Heavy Salaries and Expenses.

"We are creditably informed and believe that if a committee of your honorable body would look into this matter it would result in a great saving of money to the taxpayers of Duluth for these reasons:

"That the city pays $12,000 a year for salaries and expenses to the welfare board, while approximately $8,000 more is raised by private contributions for the support of the Associated Charities, an adjunct to the welfare board, which engages to perform the same philanthropic work as those performed by the Salvation Army, the state employment bureau, the Humane society and the deputy state factory inspector.

"That this sum of $20,000 paid by the welfare board and the Associated Charities is little less than one-half of what it takes to pay all the running expenses of the county poor farm, which maintains a hospital for the sick and wards for the decrepit and modern treatment for tuberculosis patients.

"That neither of these charitable organizations has yet published an annual statement showing receipts or disbursements and only vague reports are made, stating 'We found employment for 500,' or 'We have helped 700 destitute families.'

"That when the destitute of the city are exploited and the afflictions of the fallen are investigated, first credit goes to these dual organizations, while the responsibility, in most cases, for the moral, physical, financial and religious advancement of these poor unfortunates falls inevitably upon the county poor commission.

"That before first aid or any aid can be rendered in cases called to the attention of these dual agencies at least nine persons, drawing salaries of $1,000 or over, must receive their compensation.

Mrs. Atwood Active.

"That one-half the activity of these dual agencies is furnished by Mrs. Agnes L. Atwood, who has charge of the State Free Employment bureau, an institution created with a definite aim and purpose, but which in Duluth is scattered over a wide field of endeavor, and by the deputy state factory inspector.

"That with the money obtained by these dual agencies, and through the influence of Mrs. Atwood, who is a member of the board, and with the connivance of a colored woman named Mrs. A. M. White, the fair name of Duluth is shortly to be dragged in the mire by a Federal grand jury investigation of alleged vice and immorality declared so often to exist here but never has been proven.

"That if this ordinance is adopted and the position created for a social center expert we are creditably informed and believe that a person who is now a resident of the state of New York will be appointed to fill the vacancy.

"These resolutions were unanimously adopted by the West Duluth Commercial club and the president and secretary were instructed to forward them to your honorable body, to have the same investigated.

"WEST DULUTH COMMERCIAL CLUB.
"A. G. MACAULEY, President.
"M. J. MURRAY, Secretary."

Capt. D. E. Stevens gave a short talk in which he declared that the Duluth Terminal Railway company was given a franchise seventeen years ago on the condition that other roads entering the city would be permitted to use its tracks. The Terminal has since been purchased by the Northern Pacific and the latter road, he said, is refusing the terminal rights to the other roads. The following committee was appointed by the club to investigate the matter: M. J. Murray, J. J. Frey and H. H. Phelps.

OPEN CLUB TO SUFFRAGISTS

The Oneota and Hazelwood Improvement club at its regular meeting last evening went on record in favor of woman's suffrage, and the meeting next Friday evening is to be given over to the cause. Speakers on suffrage will be secured and the women throughout the city invited. The meeting will be open and it is expected will be the largest suffrage gathering the city has ever had. A committee was appointed to complete the arrangements.

It was also decided last evening to hold an open meeting March 21 for all the candidates for mayor and the commission. Each speaker will be given ten minutes in which to address the crowd and outline his platform. The meeting will be open to the voters of the West end and West Duluth.

Last evening the members of the club were addressed by Roderick Murchison, C. E. Roe, L. A. Larsen, B. N. Wheeler and John L. Morrison, all candidates for the commission. The large Merritt school assembly hall was filled and the voters enjoyed the addresses by the candidates. Mr. Murchison had been invited by the club and he spoke on the work of the board of public works. He also explained the system of tax assessments. The other candidates spoke briefly, outlining their platforms and requesting the support of the voters.

WITH THE CURLERS.

All Events Will Be Finished By End of Next Week.

Play in all the events at the Western Curling club will be brought to a close by the end of next week, according to the announcement made this morning by Frank H. Wade, president of the club.

It is planned to rush the play before the ice melts, as the warm weather of today, should it last, would rapidly spoil the ice for curling. Nearly all the events have been played down to the semi-finals or finals, so that the local curlers expect to have little trouble in completing the games.

This evening Zauft and Keyes will play in the semi-finals of the Pharmacy event for the right to meet Holland in the play for the cigars. The last game will be played Monday evening. Olson will play Getchell in the Esterly event this evening.

Last evening Holland won from Getchell, 10 to 8, in the Bagley event, thus entering the semi-finals.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WAS SOLD LIQUOR.

That local saloons are selling beer and whisky to minors and even high school pupils, is the claim of business men and residents of West Duluth.

As a result of this sale to one of the Duluth Industrial high school boys, the young man has been suspended from the school and two workmen about the building discharged. The young man brought a bottle of whisky to school the other afternoon and the trio got drunk. Several other young men were in attendance at the drink fest.

The local police authorities are going to investigate these claims of the business men and prosecute the violators to the full extent of the law. The young man suspended is said to be only 19 years old, although he claims he is 21, and of age to buy liquor. He was a junior at the high school.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

Nineteen Indictments and Two No True Bills Returned.

Eleven of the Men Wanted Are Not in Custody.

Nineteen indictments and two no true bills were returned by the March grand jury, which completed its sessions late yesterday afternoon. The jury reported to Judge Cant in district court at 5:30 o'clock.

Of the nineteen true bills returned, three charged grand larceny, first degree; three, grand larceny, second degree; three, carnal knowledge; three, forgery, second degree; two burglary, third degree; one, assault, first degree; one, indecent assault; one, incest, and one for desertion of family.

Eleven of the indictments were returned against persons not in custody and therefore are not made public. The other eight were returned against the following:

Albert J. Mason for indecent assault. Mason is accused of having enticed 19-year-old Catherine Scott to a room in the North Star hotel lodging house opposite the union station and to have attempted to take liberties with her there. The offense is alleged to have taken place on March 2 last.

Lawrence Lafferty for grand larceny, first degree. Lafferty, it is claimed, robbed the till in Frank Eskro's saloon at 204 Lake avenue south. He walked into the saloon with a gun in hand and emptied the cash register under the eyes of the startled proprietor. Lafferty is 25 years old and is an ex-convict.

August Klar for burglary, third degree. Klar was held at the county jail on a minor offense until he was indicted. He is accused of having broken into a building at 1724 West Superior street, belonging to Jacobson Bros., contractors, and to have stolen $200 worth of carpenter tools. While the grand jury was in session he was serving time for petty larceny, having been found guilty in police court of stealing a pair of shoes on March 4.

Severt Often for grand larceny, second degree. Often is a familiar police character. He is accused by an indictment of having stolen a suit of clothes and two razors from the room of Larry Wright, 422 West First street. The police traced the offense to him through the fact that the stolen articles were sold to Harry Verteiney, 202 Lake avenue south.

Edwin Edward Alaupri, alias Ed Alanen, for grand larceny, first degree. Alanen was arrested in Virginia on Jan. 17 and brought to Duluth to answer to a charge of having robbed Frank Tuomi of $99 while the two were together in the toilet of a Sutphin street saloon.

Fred Trombley, alias A. J. Trombley, alias A. F. Spencer, for grand larceny, second degree. Trombley is charged with having passed worthless checks drawn on a bank at Correll, Minn., and to have secured $40 from Buchanan & Hogan, East Superior street saloon keepers on Feb. 11 last.

John Aalto for grand larceny, first degree. Aalto was arrested on Feb. 19 on a charge of having robbed Setti Beckman of $32 and a watch worth $15 in Beckman's room in the Ormond hotel on Lake avenue south. Beckman claims that Aalto got him drunk and then took his money.

Harry Dale for forgery, second degree. Dale, the indictment states, passed a forged check for $15 on Gust Eadahl, a bowery saloon keeper.

The no true bills returned were for Anna Peslar and John Korda; and John W. Johnson and Louis Hanson.

PRESIDENT HAS MANY VISITORS

Prominent Men From All Over Country Call on Executive.

Washington, March 8.—Col. E. M. House of Texas, an intimate friend of President Wilson, led the list of callers at the White House today.

National Committeeman Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, and Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former Representative Pujo, who presided over the house money trust investigations; Representatives Sherley of Kentucky and Moon of Tennessee; Senator Pomerene of Ohio, and Governor O'Neil of Alabama, all had engagements with the president during the forenoon.

The president also received the supreme court in the blue room of the White House during the forenoon.

President Wilson next week will begin preparation of his first message to congress. It is probable that it will deal with only two subjects — the tariff, at some length, and currency reform, briefly.

During the special session other messages may be sent to congress on various subjects. Predictions today were that the president will not attempt to attack the present tariff in a statistical manner, but that he will confine himself largely to an exposition of general policy.

BRAKEMAN BURNS BENEATH ENGINE

Warroad, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A westbound Canadian Northern freight ran into the rear of a freight on the main line at Spradue, eighteen miles east of here, a few days ago. The engine of the rear train was thrown from the track and ten freight cars were burned. One brakeman was killed. He was burned under the engine, and only a few bones and his watch were found. He was a Galician, who had been running through here for the past year.

One fireman had his hip dislocated.

TWO BODIES FOUND IN RUINS AT HOT SPRINGS.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 8.—Charles A. Cary and E. J. Reynolds of Utica, Ill., perished in the fire which destroyed several mercantile establishments here yesterday. Their bodies were found in the ruins of a store today. The discovery bore out yesterday's fears that all patrons had not escaped from the store which was set afire by a gas explosion.

FALL FATAL TO LITTLE GIRL

Was Running Away From Boys Who Were Teasing Her.

Slight Pain Was Only Evidence of Severe Internal Injuries.

Running away from some boys who were teasing her as she was on her way home from school last week, little 6-year-old Annie Spath stumbled and fell to the ground, striking on a protruding chunk of ice or other obstruction.

She picked herself up without much trouble and made her way to her home, 134 Mesaba avenue. There she complained of an internal pain. Her parents didn't think that it was anything serious but she did not go back to school.

She didn't show any improvement but continued to get worse. Yesterday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Spath, called a doctor for the first time. But the little girl was beyond medical aid. The doctor, summoned several days after she was hurt, could not save her and early this morning she passed away.

The death certificate was filed at the health department this morning by her father. It was signed by the physician who was called yesterday. The cause of death was given as internal injury caused by a fall.

PROF. OLSON HELD FOR GRAND JURY

St. Paul, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. Oscar N. Olson of the state agricultural college, who, the police say, has confessed to shooting Clyde N. Darling, a laundry driver, today pleaded not guilty in municipal court here to the charge of murder in the first degree. His plea was made through his attorney, S. J. Donnelly of St. Paul, and C. A. Fosnes of Montevideo, Minn., who waived examination for their client. He was remanded to the county jail to await action of the grand jury. No mention was made at all today to the "unwritten law" which Prof. Olson has been quoted as saying was the reason for the shooting.

The grand jury will take up the case at an early date and it is expected that the case will be tried some time next month.

The court room was crowded when the professor, still maintaining the calm shown by him since the shooting, was brought in. He appeared at first not to notice the curious throng, but after a few moments whispered consultation with his attorneys, straightened up in his chair and surveyed the crowd without showing traces of emotion.

Because he has been accustomed to a life in the open, his confinement is said to be telling against him. Shortly after being returned to the county jail, his attorneys sent for a physician.

It developed today that the postal card found in Darling's pocket after his death, which was thought at first by the police to have been a lure, was written by Mrs. Darling herself and sent to her husband on St. Valentine's day as a joke. Darling's funeral was held late today.

OBITUARY

Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, U. S. N., retired, who as commander of the transport Resolute in the Spanish-American war, informed Admiral Sampson that the enemy's fleet was leaving Santiago Bay, died suddenly at his home at Norwell, Mass., March 8. Alfred Maurice Picard, former minister of marine and a member of the academy of sciences, died March 8 at the age of 69. He was the delegate of the French government to the world's fair at St. Louis.

Woman Murdered.

Teheran, Persia, March 8. — Mme. Constant, wife of the Belgian director of customs at the port of Bushire, was murdered early today by an unidentified Persian who also severely wounded M. Constant. M. and Mme. Constant were driving home when the assailant ran from behind their carriage and emptied his revolver at them.

SLANDER OF WOMAN'S TONGUE.

New York Mail: It was in Ireland that the witty saying originated, "Silence is a fine jewel for a woman, but it is little worn."

This is one of the mildest of the innuendoes with which woman't tongue has been visited among all nations. In fact, one legend has it that Eve was created dumb, but that Adam "an aspen leaf from the devil he gat," and placing this beneath her palate, she forthwith spoke and has been talking ever since.

The Chinese say: "A woman's sword is her tongue, and she does not let it rust;" while the Hindus have a proverb, "For talk I'm best, for work my elder brother-in-law's wife." The old English adage has it: "A woman's strength is in her tongue."

The prejudice against too much talking has been mirrored in many proverbs, for even the African savages say: "If a woman speaks two words, take one and leave the other;" while in the Orient, where woman is held in little esteem, they say: "A woman's talk—heat from grass," which signifies that there is little in it.

Even the artists of the olden time had to make fun of woman's tongue, though they could not paint exquisite beauty without her form. One of the ancient British inns had a sign picturing "The Good Woman," and while originally this referred to a saint who had lost her head through her persecutors, and she was therefore painted headless, in later times the sign was interpreted as "The Silent Woman," and popularly it was held that the only silent woman was the one without a head.

The Germans have a quaint saying: "When a woman has no answer the sea is empty of water."

The French say: "Foxes are all tail and women are all tongue." It was a current Alsatian proverb: "If you would make a pair of good shoes, take for the sole a woman's tongue—it never wears out."

LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED

North Dakota Solons Wind Up Business of the Session.

Woman's Suffrage Will Be Submitted to the Popular Vote.

Bismarck, N. D., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The session of the North Dakota legislature came to a close at an early hour this morning and the members are now leaving for their homes.

The house late yesterday afternoon passed Senator Bronson's woman suffrage bill after a lengthy debate, and the question will be submitted to the people at the next state election, having passed both houses.

The report of the conference committee appropriating a total of $313,500 to the Jamestown asylum was adopted by the house, the selection of the location to rest with the 1915 legislature. The house also passed the senate bill appropriating $35,000 for North Dakota's exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco; also a senate bill providing for an expenditure of approximately $15,000 which has accumulated at the old soldiers' home to defray expenses of North Dakota veterans to the Gettysburg reunion.

Others among the bills passed by the house were the senate's "blue sky" law, an act authorizing the supreme court to hold terms outside of Bismarck, and several appropriation measures.

The senate passed a bill providing for a one-half mill tax for creating a fund to be used in leasing or building and equipping terminal elevators in Minnesota or Wisconsin, or both. This is under a constitutional amendment which was passed by a 3 to 1 vote by the people at the last general election. The senate passed the house bill appropriating $30,000 for the maintenance of the National Guard.

NAMES FOR CHILDREN.

Many Pretty Names Which Will Give Baby a Happy Start in Life.

London Daily Mail: There is little doubt that the fervent wish of every mother's heart is that her child's life may be a happy one, so, in furtherance of this desire, the young mother cannot do better than give her baby a "happy" name with which to start life.

Everyone is familiar with the names Ada and Ina, but perhaps their beautiful meaning of "happy one" is not always equally well known. Then Felicia and Felicity (happiness) are used in several countries. In France, under the forms of Felise (happy), and Felicite (happiness); in Italy as Felice and Felicita; in Spain, Felicade, and in Portugal as Felicadade.

Another name, not so much used as it deserves to be, is the pretty Hilary, which also reveals the same virtue.

Joy should assuredly be the inheritance of those christened so, or by the uncommon and beautiful name Aine (joy), a title borne by a famous Irish queen of the fairies.

"Merry," or "sportive" is the signification of the names Joye, Jocosa and Jocelin; but two somewhat similar names, Joycelin and Joscelin, mean "just."

"Mabel," ever popular and ever loved, denotes "mirth;" it is not, as often erroneously imagined, derived from the two French words, Ma Belle, but from the old Irish word Meadhall, a shout of mirth. Meadhbh or Meave, being another lovely Irish princess who was chosen to be the queen of the fairies in Leinster.

Eustace is one who should be "happy in harvest," while the rare but lovely Greek names Eudora (happy gift) and Eunice (happy victory) are indeed worthy of notice.

And since true happiness is mainly dependent upon possibility of life and character a selection may be made from the class of "noble" names, which include such familiar ones as Ethel (noble) and its combinations—Ethelburga (noble protection), Ethelred (noble council), Alice, Adelaide, Adela and Adele (noble cheer); Adelina (noble manner), Athelstane (noble stone), Albert (noble bright), and Alaric (noble ruler); or from the "kingly" names Oswald (famous king), Richard (stern king), Tiernan (kingly), Stephen (a crown), Robert and Rupert (bright fame), and Rex (a king).

Do you imagine that any worthwhile buyer of real estate is going to overlook your ad in this paper? Not unless he is sick abed.

AMATO IS HEARD IN A NEW ROLE

AMATO AS "CYRANO."

Pasquale Amato has just made his first appearance at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, as Cyrano, in Walter Damrosch's opera "Cyrano de Bergerac." The character was made known to theater-goers some years ago, first by Richard Mansfield, and later by Coquelin, who appeared in the play from which the Damrosch opera was taken. The part is a strong acting part and in it Mr. Amato does perhaps the best piece of histrionic work he has done while on the American opera state. His fine voice also is heard to advantage.

PUTS HIS SON ON BANKNOTE

Figures of Peace, Plenty, Commerce and Labor Shown.

Denver Times: Kenyon Cox, as one of the leading academic artists of the time, has been commissioned by the secretary of the treasury to design the pictorial back of the new currency, which will be uniform on all the issues—United States notes, coin certificates and national bank notes.

At the same time the size and shape of the new notes are to undergo a noticeable change. They will be six by two and one-half inches, or only about two-thirds the size of the bills now in circulation.

Simple Though Elegant.

Altogether, the transformation in progress is to be so radical that at first we shall be a bit puzzled to recognize a $10 bill when it stares us in the face. When it turns its back upon us, according to its more habitual custom, the disguise will be even more markedly apparent.

"It is generally acknowledged that our American currency is clumsy and antiquated in style as compared with that of European nations, France and England especially," said Mr. Cox. "The foreign bank notes, as a rule, are economical in size, fine in texture and simple, though with elegance and dignity in the pictorial designs printed upon them. These are qualities which fittingly characterize a great nation's currency—not a maze of complicated lathe work or a tangle of meaningless scrolls or large surfaces of heavily shaded engraving, such as is ordinarily put in on a portrait plate or a line reproduction, for black-and-white printing of the effects of an oil painting.

"That won't be making it dead easy for the counterfeiter, will it?"

Mr. Cox smiled wearily at the naive question.

"Heavy shading would be no special obstacle to the counterfeiter. As a matter of fact, the figures in my design will be quite elaborately modeled and shaded, but in one fine, silvery tone—like that of an Albert Durer wood engraving, for instance. The government bureau of printing and engraving, which, under the authority of the secretary of the treasury, directs the whole mechanical and artistic production of the new notes, will undoubtedly supply the necssary and accustomed safeguards against counterfeiting. What I am especially grateful for is the fact that all these official features, and all the numbering, lettering and signatures will be on the face of the bill, leaving the back a clean slate for my allegorical design. The only lettering on my side of the currency will be 'U. S. A.' under the central figure, typifying the United States of America."

Explains the Design.

The artist, pointing to the pencil sketch of his completed design, which was tacked upon a drawing board on his easel, explained his conception and the method of working it out:

"America and Peace and Plenty, as you see, are women's figures draped and seated. Labor and Commerce are men's figures, of classic type, more or lass undraped, standing, and in action. No background or accessory details break the harmonious simplicity of the design. America's liberty cap, Peace's olive crown, Plenty's indispensable cornucopia, Labor's sheaf and Mercury's caduceus wand are the symbols by which these respective characters are universally identified."

"These figures are studied from models, are they not?" was the next question leveled at Mr. Cox. It may have sounded superfluous, but there was the artist working away on his group, in a big studio filled with his own and Mrs. Cox's life studies, portraits and the like, but no sign of a living model anywhere about the place.

Posed From Life.

"Please don't ask me for the name and address of the model I used chiefly for my central figure of Miss America," said Mr. Cox. "She is a professional, and a New Yorker, and has figured in other works of mine known to the public. Yet you would not recognize her if you met her, nor would her photograph help at all in the identification. Here is one of my studies from life."

"But—this is a nude, and not at all like——"

"All my figures are first drawn that way from life, in the nude. Then I make the drapery studies separately, outline them on tracing paper and put them on their respective figures.

"The head and figure are the first consideration. Now, this model of mine, whom I posed for the first study of the seated America, also furnished some hints for the other figures of Peace and Plenty, though I had another model for them.

"At the same time the shoulders and arms of America herself as she appears in any final drawing are 'documented,' as we may say, from another woman, not a professional model at all, but whose lines in that respect are peculiarly graceful and symmetrical. In some of my pictures—not this one—the same person appears as a youthful front-face and as an elderly profile—both essentially modified from the original. It goes to show how I use models in the same way you do books of reference—not to copy from literally, but only to verify facts and details, and to suggest original ideas and motives. Ah! here is my Mercury model."

His Son as a Model.

One of Mr. Cox's sons, a boy of perhaps 13, had come into the studio. He was a tall, slim, good-looking young fellow, but he did not resemble Mercury so that you'd notice it.

"Certainly not," assented the artist, as he showed us the graceful drawings of the nude figure, and then of the swirl of drapery to be thrown on where it would do the most good. "In this instance I used the model for the poise of the head and the general action of the figure only. Portraits of individuals have no proper place in an allegorical composition.

"My design for the new currency is as severely conservative as it can be, and yet possibly the novelty of the bills may at first bring down criticism upon me as an iconoclast. Had I sought to do something really revolutionary I might have submitted a cubist conception of a bank note or a post-impressionist figure group."

CLUB OPPOSES NEW EXPERT

Attacking the present methods of the Associated Charities and the public welfare board, urging the city council to first investigate the proposed ordinance providing for a social center expert at a fixed salary of $2,000 a year and recommending the work of social centers to the school board, the West Duluth Commercial club last evening passed a resolution to that effect, which will be submitted to the council Monday evening.

The members of the club are opposed to the plan of hiring an expert, who they claim in the resolution is to be brought here from New York. The resolution further states that the board of welfare is encroaching on other charitable institutions of the city and county. The city council is urgently requested to first investigate the proposed ordinance before bringing it up for its final hearing, scheduled for next Monday evening.

The resolution in full follows:

"To the Honorable, the City Council:

"We are creditably informed and believe that the ordinance now being considered by your honorable body and providing for the employment of a social center expert whose salary is to be fixed at $2,000 a year, is ill advised legislation, and seeks to create a position, the duties of which can be discharged through co-operation with the school authorities.

"We are creditably informed and believe that the board of public welfare which framed this ordinance to provide a social center expert is gradually encroaching upon the powers and duties of other boards and bodies in the city of Duluth, namely, the probation officer, the county poor board, the Humane society and other public institutions that exercise an official influence for public uplift and better morals.

Heavy Salaries and Expenses.

"We are creditably informed and believe that if a committee of your honorable body would look into this matter it would result in a great saving of money to the taxpayers of Duluth for these reasons:

"That the city pays $12,000 a year for salaries and expenses to the welfare board, while approximately $8,000 more is raised by private contributions for the support of the Associated Charities, an adjunct to the welfare board, which engages to perform the same philanthropic work as the as performed by the section April, the state employment bureau, the Humane society and the deputy state factory inspector.

"That this sum of $20,000 paid to the welfare board and the Associated Charities is little less than one-half of what it takes to pay all the running expenses of the county poor farm, which maintains a hospital for the sick and wards for the decrepit and modern treatment for tuberculosis patients.

"That neither these charitable organizations has yet published an annual statement showing receipts or disbursements and only vague reports are made, stating: 'We found employment for 500,' or 'we have helped 700 destitute families.'

"That when the destitute of the city are exploited and the afflictions of the fallen are investigated, first credit goes to these dual organizations, while the responsibility, in most cases, for the moral, physical, financial and religious advancement of these poor unfortunates falls inevitably upon the county poor commissioner.

"That before first aid or any aid can be rendered in cases called to the attention of these dual agencies at least nine persons, drawing salaries of $1,000 or over, must receive their compensation.

Mrs. Atwood Active.

"That one-half the activity of these dual agencies is furnished by Mrs. Agnes L. Atwood, who has charge of the State Free Employment bureau, an institution created with a definite aim and purpose, but which in Duluth is scattered over a wide field of endeavor, and by the deputy state factory inspector.

"That with the money obtained by these dual agencies, and through the influence of Mrs. Atwood, who is a member of the board, and with the connivance of a colored woman named Mrs. A. M. White, the fair name of Duluth is shortly to be dragged in the mire by a Federal grand jury investigation of alleged vice and immorality declared so often to exist here but never has been proven.

"That if this ordinance is adopted and the position created for a social centres expert we are creditably informed and believe that a person who is now a resident of the state of New York will be appointed to fill the vacancy.

"These resolutions were unanimously adopted by the West Duluth Commercial club and the president and secretary were instructed to forward them to your honorable body, to have the same investigated.

"WEST DULUTH COMMERCIAL CLUB.
"A. G. MACAULEY, President.
"M. J. MURRAY, Secretary."

Capt. D. E. Stevens gave a short talk in which he declared that the Duluth Terminal Railway company was given a franchise seventeen years ago on the condition that other roads entering the city would be permitted to use its tracks. The Terminal has since been purchased by the Northern Pacific and the latter road, he said, is rescinding the terminal rights to the other roads. The following committee was appointed by the club to investigate the matter: M. J. Murray, J. J. Frey and H. H. Phelps.

The Oneota and Hazelwood Improvement club at its regular meeting last evening went on record in favor of woman's suffrage, and the meeting next Friday evening is to be given over to the cause. Speakers on suffrage will be secured and the women throughout the city invited. The meeting will be open and it is expected the city hall will be the largest suffrage gathering the city has ever had. A committee was appointed to complete the arrangements.

It was also decided last evening to hold an open meeting March 21 for all the candidates for mayor and the commission. Each speaker will be given ten minutes in which to address the crowd and outline his platform. The meeting will be open to the voters of the West end and West Duluth.

Last evening the members of the club were addressed by Roderick Murchison, C. E. Roe, L. A. Larsen, B. N. Wheeler and John L. Morrison, all candidates for the commission. The large Merritt school assembly hall was filled and the voters enjoyed the addresses by the candidates. Mr. Murchison had been invited by the club and he spoke on the work of the board of public works. He also explained the system of tax assessments. The other candidates spoke briefly, outlining their platforms and requesting the support of the voters.

WITH THE CURLERS.

All Events Will Be Finished By End of Next Week.

Play in all the events at the Western Curling club will be brought to a close by the end of next week, according to the announcement made this morning by Frank H. Wade, president of the club.

It is planned to rush the play before the ice melts, as the warm weather of today, should it last, would rapidly spoil the ice for curling. Nearly all the events have been played down to the semi-finals or finals, so that the local curlers expect to have little trouble in completing the games.

This evening Zauft and Keyes will play in the semi-finals of the Pharmacy event for the right to meet Holland in the play for the cigars. The last game will be played Monday evening, Olson will play Getchell in the Esterly event this evening.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WAS SOLD LIQUOR.

That local saloons are selling beer and whisky to minors and even high school pupils, is the claim of the business men and residents of West Duluth.

As a result of this sale to one of the Duluth Industrial high school boys, the young man has been suspended from the school and two workmen about the building discharged. The young man brought a bottle of whisky to school the other afternoon and the trio got drunk. Several other young men were in attendance at the drink fest.

The local police authorities are going to investigate these claims of the business men and prosecute the violators to the full extent of the law. The young man suspended is said to be only 19 years old, although he claims he is 21, and of age to buy liquor. He was a junior at the high school.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

Nineteen indictments and two no true bills were returned by the March grand jury, which completed its sessions late yesterday afternoon. The jury reported to Judge Cant in district court at 5:30 o'clock.

Of the nineteen true bills returned, three charged grand larceny, first degree; three, grand larceny, second degree; three, carnal knowledge; three, forgery, second degree; two burglary, third degree; one, assault, first degree; one, indecent assault; one, incest, and one for desertion of family.

Eleven of the indictments were returned against persons not in custody and therefore are not made public. The other eight were returned against the following:

Albert J. Mason for indecent assault. Mason is accused of having enticed 19-year-old Catherine Scott to a room in the North Star hotel lodging house opposite the union station and to have attempted to take liberties with her there. The offense is alleged to have taken place on March 2 last.

Lawrence Lafferty for grand larceny, first degree. Lafferty, it is claimed, robbed the till in Frank Eskro's saloon at 204 Lake avenue south. He walked into the saloon with a gun in hand and emptied the cash register under the eyes of the startled proprietor. Lafferty is 25 years old and is an ex-convict.

August Klar for burglary, third degree. Klar was held at the county jail on a minor offense until he was indicted. He is accused of having broken into a building at 1724 West Superior street, belonging to Jacobson Bros., contractors, and to have stolen $200 worth of carpenter tools. While the grand jury was in session he was serving time for petty larceny, having been found guilty in police court of stealing a pair of shoes on March 4.

Bovart Often for grand larceny, second degree. Often is a familiar police character. He is accused by an indictment of having stolen a suit of clothes and two razors from the room of Larry Wright, 422 West First street. The police traced the offense to him through the fact that the stolen articles were sold to Harry Verteley, 202 Lake avenue south.

Edwin Edward Alaupri, alias Ed Alanen, for grand larceny, first degree. Alanen was arrested at Virginia on Jan. 17 and brought to Duluth to answer to a charge of having robbed Frank Tuomi of $99 while the two were together in the toilet of a Sauphin street saloon.

Fred Trombley, alias A. J. Trombley, alias A. P. Spencer, for grand larceny, second degree. Trombley is charged with having passed a worthless check drawn on a bank at Cornell, Minn., and to have secured $40 from Buchanan & Hogan, East Superior street saloon keepers on Feb. 11 last.

John Aalto for grand larceny, first degree. Aalto was arrested on Feb. 19 on a charge of having robbed Seth Beckman of $32 and a watch worth $15 while in Beckman's room in the Ormond hotel on Lake avenue south. Beckman claims that Aalto got him drunk and then took the money.

Harry Dale for forgery, second degree. Dale, the indictment states, passed a forged check for $15 on Gust Egdahl, a lowers saloon keeper.

The two true bills returned were for Anna Peslar and John Korda; and John W. Johnson and Louis Hanson.

PRESIDENT HAS MANY VISITORS

Prominent Men From All Over Country Call on Executive.

Washington, March 8.—Col. E. M. House of Texas, an intimate friend of President Wilson, led the list of callers at the White House today.

National Committeeman Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, and Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former Representative Pujo, who presided over the house money trust investigations; Representatives Sherley of Kentucky and Moon of Tennessee; Senator Pomerene of Ohio, and Governor O'Neal of Alabama, all had engagements with the president during the forenoon.

The president also received the supreme court in the blue room of the White House during the forenoon.

President Wilson next week will begin preparation of his first message to congress. It is probable that it will deal with only two subjects — the tariff, at some length, and currency reform, briefly.

During the special session other messages may be sent to congress on various subjects. Predictions today were that the president will not attempt to attack the present tariff in a statistical manner, but that he will confine himself largely to an exposition of general policy.

Warroad, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A westbound Canadian Northern freight ran into the rear of a freight on the main line at Spradue, eighteen miles east of here, a few days ago. The engine of the rear train was thrown from the track and ten freight cars were burned. One brakeman was killed. He was burned under the engine, and only a few bones and his watch were found. He was a Galician, who had been running through here for the past year.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 8.—Charles A. Cary and E. J. Reynolds of Utica, Ill., perished in the fire which destroyed several mercantile establishments here yesterday. Their bodies were found in the ruins of a store today. The discovery bore out yesterday's fears that all patrons had not escaped from the store which was set afire by a gas explosion.

FALL FATAL TO LITTLE GIRL

Was Running Away From Boys Who Were Teasing Her.

Slight Pain Was Only Evidence of Severe Internal Injuries.

Running away from some boys who were teasing her as she was on her way home from school last week, little 6-year-old Annie Spath stumbled and fell to the ground, striking on a protruding chunk of ice or other obstruction.

She picked herself up without much trouble and made her way to her home, 134 Mesaba avenue. There she complained of an internal pain. Her parents didn't think that it was anything serious but she did not go back to school.

She didn't show any improvement but continued to get worse. Yesterday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Spath, called a doctor for the first time. But the little girl was beyond medical aid. The doctor, summoned several days after she was hurt, could not save her and early this morning she passed away.

The death certificate was filed at the health department this morning by her father. It was signed by the physician who was called yesterday. The cause of death was given as internal injury caused by a fall.

St. Paul, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. Oscar N. Olson of the state agricultural college, who, the police say, has confessed to shooting Clyde N. Darling, a laundry driver, today pleaded not guilty in municipal court here to the charge of murder in the first degree. His plea was made through his attorney, S. J. Donnelly of St. Paul, and C. A. Fosnes of Montevideo, Minn., who waived examination for their client. He was remanded to the county jail to await action of the grand jury. No mention was made at all today to the "unwritten law" which Prof. Olson has been quoted as saying was the reason for the shooting.

The grand jury will take up the case at an early date and it is expected that the case will be tried some time next month.

The court room was crowded when the professor, still maintaining the calm shown by him since the shooting, was brought in. He appeared at first not to notice the curious throng, but after a few moments whispered consultation with his attorneys, straightened up in his chair and surveyed the crowd without showing traces of emotion.

Because he has been accustomed to a life in the open, his confinement is said to be telling upon him. Shortly after being returned to the county jail, his attorneys sent for a physician.

It developed today that the postal card found in Darling's pocket after his death, which was thought at first by the police to have been a lure, was written by Mrs. Darling herself and sent to her husband on St. Valentine's day as a joke. Darling's funeral was held late today.

Woman Murdered.

Teheran, Persia, March 8. — Mme. Constant, wife of the Belgian director of customs at the port of Bushire, was murdered early today by an unidentified Persian who also severely wounded M. Constant. M. and Mme. Constant were driving home when the assailant ran from behind their carriage and emptied his revolver at them.

SLANDER OF WOMAN'S TONGUE.

New York Mail: It was in Ireland that the witty saying originated, "Silence is a fine jewel for a woman, but it is little worn."

This is one of the mildest of the innuendoes with which woman't tongue has been visited among all nations. In fact, one legend has it that Eve was created dumb, but that Adam "an aspen leaf from the devil he gat," and placing this beneath her palate, she forthwith spoke and has been talking ever since.

The Chinese say: "A woman's sword is her tongue, and she does not let it rust;" while the Hindus have a proverb, "For talk I'm best, for work my elder brother-in-law's wife." The old English adage has it: "A woman's strength is in her tongue."

The prejudice against too much talking has been mirrored in many proverbs, for even the African savages say: "If a woman speaks two words, take one and leave the other;" while in the Orient, where woman is held in little esteem, they say: "A woman's talk—heat from grass," which signifies that there is little in it.

Even the artists of the olden time had to make fun of woman's tongue, though they could not paint exquisite beauty without her form. One of the ancient British inns had a sign picturing "The Good Woman," and while originally this referred to a saint who had lost her head through her persecutors, and she was therefore painted headless, in later times the sign was interpreted as "The Silent Woman," and popularly it was held that the only silent woman was the one without a head.

The Germans have a quaint saying: "When a woman has no answer the sea is empty of water."

The French say: "Foxes are all tail and women are all tongue." It was a current Alsatian proverb: "If you would make a pair of good shoes, take for the sole a woman's tongue—it never wears out."

Woman's Suffrage Will Be Submitted to the Popular Vote.

Bismarck, N. D., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The session of the North Dakota legislature came to a close at an early hour this morning and the members are now leaving for their homes.

The house late yesterday afternoon passed Senator Bronson's woman suffrage bill after a lengthy debate, and the question will be submitted to the people at the next state election, having passed both houses.

The report of the conference committee appropriating a total of $513,500 to the Jamestown asylum was adopted by the house, the selection of the location to rest with the 1915 legislature. The house also passed the senate bill appropriating $35,000 for North Dakota's exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco; also a senate bill providing for an expenditure of approximately $15,000 which has accumulated at the old soldiers' home to defray expenses of North Dakota veterans to the Gettysburg reunion.

Others among the bills passed by the house were the senate's "blue sky" law, an act authorizing the supreme court to hold terms outside of Bismarck, and several appropriation measures.

The senate passed a bill providing for a one-half mill tax for creating a fund to be used in leasing or building and equipping terminal elevators in Minnesota or Wisconsin, or both. This is under a constitutional amendment which was passed by a 3 to 1 vote by the people at the last general election. The senate passed the house bill appropriating $30,000 for the maintenance of the National Guard.

NAMES FOR CHILDREN.

Many Pretty Names Which Will Give Baby a Happy Start in Life.

London Daily Mail: There is little doubt that the fervent wish of every mother's heart is that her child's life may be a happy one; so, to the unthinking mother can not do better than give her baby a "happy" name with which to start life.

Everyone is familar with the names Ada and Ida, but perhaps their beautiful meaning "happy one" is not always equally well known. Then Felicia and Felicity (happiness) are used in several countries. In France, under the forms of Felise (happy), and Felicite (happiness); in Italy as Felice and Felicita; in Spain, Felicado, and in Portugal as Felicadade.

Another name, not so much used as it deserves to be, is the pretty Hilary, which also reveals the same virtue.

Joy should assuredly be the inheritance of those christened so, or by the uncommon and beautiful name Aine (joy), a title borne by a famous Irish queen of the fairies.

"Merry," or "sportive" is the signification of the names Joye, Jocosa and Jocelin; but two somewhat similar names, Joycelin and Joscelin, mean "just."

"Mabel," ever popular and ever loved, denotes "mirable." It is not, as often erroneously imagined, derived from the two French words, Ma Belle, but from the old Irish word Meadhail, a shout of mirth. Meadhbh or Meave, the another lovely Irish princess who was chosen to be the queen of the fairies in Leinster.

Eustace is one who should be "happy in harvest," while the rare but lovely Greek names Eudocia (happy gift) and Eucharis (happy victory) are indeed worthy of notice.

And since true happiness is mainly dependent upon nobility of life and character, a selection may be made from the class of "noble" names, which include such familiar ones as Ethel (noble) and its combinations—Ethelburga (noble protection), Ethelred (noble council), Alice, Adelaide, Adela and Adelle (noble cheer); Adelina (noble manner), Athelstane (noble stone), Albert (noble bright), and Alaric (noble ruler); or from the "kingly" names—Roderick (famous king), Richard (stern king), Tiernan (kingly), Stephen (a crown), Robert and Rupert (bright fame), and Rex (a king).

Do you imagine that any worthwhile buyer of real estate is going to overlook your ad in this paper? Not unless he is sick abed.

AMATO AS "CYRANO."

Pasquale Amato has just made his first appearance at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, as Cyrano, in Walter Damrosch's opera "Cyrano de Bergerac." The character was made known to theater-goers some years ago, first by Richard Mansfield, and later by Coquelin, who appeared in the play from which the Damrosch opera was taken. The part is a strong acting part and in it Mr. Amato does perhaps the best piece of histrionic work he has done while on the American opera state. His fine voice also is heard to advantage.

Denver Times: Kenyon Cox, as one of the leading academic artists of the time, has been commissioned by the secretary of the treasury to design the pictorial back of the new currency, which will be uniform on all the issues—United States notes, coin certificates and national bank notes.

At the same time the size and shape of the new notes are to undergo a noticeable change. They will be six by two and one-half inches, or only about two-thirds the size of the bills now in circulation.

Simple Though Elegant.

Altogether, the transformation in progress is to be so radical that at first we may be a bit puzzled to recognize a $10 bill when it stares us in the face. When it turns its back upon us, according to its more habitual custom, the disguise will be even more markedly apparent.

"It is generally acknowledged that our American currency is clumsy and antiquated in style as compared with that of European nations, France and England especially," said Mr. Cox. "The foreign bank notes, as a rule, are economical in size, fine in texture and simple, though with elegance and dignity in the pictorial designs printed upon them. These are qualities which fittingly characterize a great nation's currency—not a maze of complicated lathe work or a tangle of meaningless scrolls or large surfaces of heavily shaded engraving, such as is ordinarily put in on a portrait plate or a line reproduction, for black-and-white printing of the effects of an oil painting.

"That won't be making it dead easy for the counterfeiter, will it?"

Mr. Cox smiled wearily at the naive question.

"Heavy shading would be no special obstacle to the counterfeiter. As a matter of fact, the figures in my design will be quite elaborately modeled and shaded, but in a fine, silvery tone—like that of an Albert Durer wood engraving, for instance. The government bureau of printing and engraving, which, under the authority of the secretary of the treasury, directs the whole mechanical and artistic production of the new notes, will undoubtedly supply the necssary and accustomed safeguards against counterfeiting. What I am especially grateful for is the fact that all these official features, and all the numbering, lettering and signatures will be on the face of the bill, leaving the back a clean slate for my allegorical design. The only lettering on my side of the currency will be 'U. S. A.' under the central figure, typifying the United States of America."

Explains the Design.

"America and Peace and Plenty, as you see, are women's figures draped and seated. Labor and Commerce are men's figures, of classic type, more or lass undraped, standing, and in action. No background or accesory details break the harmonious simplicity of the design. America's liberty cap, Peace's olive crown, Plenty's indispensable cornucopia, Labor's sheaf and Mercury's caduceus wand are the symbols by which these respective characters are universally identified."

"These figures are studied from models, are they not?" was the next question leveled at Mr. Cox. It may have sounded superfluous, but there was the artist working away on his group, in a big studio filled with his own and Mrs. Cox's life studies, portraits and the like, but no sign of a living model anywhere about the place.

Posed From Life.

"Please don't ask me for the name and address of the model I used chiefly for my central figure of Miss America," said Mr. Cox. "She is a professional, and a New Yorker, and has figured in other works of mine known to the public. Yet you would not recognize her if you met her, nor would her photograph help at all in the identification. Here is one of my studies from life."

"But—this is a nude, and not at all like——"

"All my figures are first drawn that way from life, in the nude. Then I make the drapery studies separately, outline them on tracing paper and put them on their respective figures.

"The head and figure are the first consideration. Now, this model of mine, whom I posed for the first study of the seated America, also furnished some hints for the other figures of Peace and Plenty, though I had another model for them.

"At the same time the shoulders and arms of America herself as she appears in any final drawing are 'documented,' as I may say, from another woman, not a professional model at all, but whose lines in that respect are peculiarly graceful and symmetrical. In some of my pictures—not this one—the same person appears as a youthful front-face and as an elderly profile—both essentially modified from the original. It goes to show how I use models in the same way you do books of reference—not to copy from literally, but only to verify facts and details, and to suggest original ideas and motives. Ah! here is my Mercury model."

His Son as a Model.

One of Mr. Cox's sons, a boy of perhaps 15, had come into the studio. He was a tall, slim, good-looking young fellow, but he did not resemble Mercury so that you'd notice it.

"Certainly not," assented the artist, as he showed us the graceful drawings of the nude figure, and then of the swirl of drapery to be thrown on where it would do the most good. "In this instance I used the model for the poise of the head and the general action of the figure only. Portraits of individuals have no proper place in an allegorical composition.

"My design for the new currency is as severely conservative as it can be, and yet possibly the novelty of the bills may at first bring down criticism upon me as an iconoclast. Had I sought to do something realy revolutionary I might have submitted a cubist conception of a bank note or a post-impressionist figure group."

BUTTER FOR NAVY.

Is Furnished By Michigan and Minnesota Creamery Concerns.

Calumet, Mich., March 8.—(Special to The Herald)—A produce company with headquarters here and creameries in Minnesota has again been awarded a year's contract for supplying the United States navy with butter. The product is used exclusively in the officers' messes, as it is not bought in quantities sufficient to supply the enlisted men. The contract totals 108,000 pounds. The government will pay for this butter 8 cents in excess of the highest New York quotations the day of the bidding. It makes the price about 45 cents a pound. This high figure is a result of the extra care in producing the butter. The commodity must be made between May 15 and July 15 in the presence of a government inspector who stays right at the creamery and inspects each churning, rejecting all that does not come up to test. The Upper Michigan company did not have a single churning rejected last year, though in the six years it has had the contract it has not always been as lucky.

In only two and one-half days the students of the agricultural college and farm school raised not only the $1,600 required for a permanent Y. M. C. A. secretary, but $1,558. A great deal of spirit was shown among the student body and among the faculty, $500 being pledged by the faculty and over $1,000 by the students. It was an exciting and thorough campaign and there were many meetings and speeches. Several state officers were present. Several men are being considered for the new secretary and already those interested are looking forward to an association building on the agricultural campus. Heretofore the secretary on the main campus tried to cover the work at the farm college.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

New Publication Called the Beadle Issued By the Seniors.

Thirteen Duluth Students Who Expect to Graduate This Year.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new college publication made its appearance on the campus last week. The new paper is called the "Beadle," and it is exclusively a senior paper. It contains notes and items of interest to the seniors and will be issued every third week. The senior joint council composed of the presidents of all the senior classes is behind the project. There are about 600 members in the senior class, but since they are in different departments their interests are so different that it is difficult to keep all of the seniors united. The "Beadle" will try to keep them all posted on the senior activities and get them moving together as well as possible.

DULUTHIAN EXPLORED THE MEXICAN WAR ZONE MORE THAN THIRTY YEARS AGO

Captain J. C. Bush, president of the Lester Park club, visited Mexico City and crossed the greater part of the present war zone, thirty-three years ago at a time when there were no railroads in Mexico, and only twenty-five Americans in Mexico City.

"It was back in 1880," said Captain Bush today in recalling the incident. "I had been an ocean captain and knew navigation. I was in San Antonio at the time, and they were looking for men to make a preliminary survey of a railroad. I knew how to take the latitude and longitude, so I was employed. There were twenty-five men in the party, and we started out from Lerado with a six mule team, and a big camping outfit.

"We had an odometer on the wheel, and with this and a compass we kept our reckonings. Every day at noon we would take the latitude and longitude and correct our reckonings. We visited Monterey, crossed the battlefield of Buena Vista, and the desert of Balsam de Mapimi. This desert was sixty miles across and there was only one watering place. If you wandered five feet from the roadway, you were stuck in the mire.

"Much of the country through which we passed was right in what is now the war district. There were no railroads in Mexico then. They were just grading for the first one. We spent two years on this expedition, and during a great part of the time we were in great danger from bandits, outlaws and horse thieves. In every state through which we passed we made application for a guard of state troops, and we generally got them, as we were armed with a letter from the Mexican government calling for this aid to be extended to us. That was before the time of Diaz and Mexico was a most lawless country when you got away from the big cities.

"Mexico City was not the modern municipality it is today. They had an old horse car street railway, and there were only twenty-five American residents. Now there are thousands of them, I suppose.

"That trip through Mexico was responsible for my coming to Duluth. I contracted ague, and the doctor told me I must seek a cold climate. One of my friends gave me a letter to the Northern Pacific agent in Duluth, and I came here. I have been here ever since, and believe me when I say that if the country is anything like what it was then, I have no desire to go back."

AUTO FEVER PREVALENT

Everybody Joins in Effort to Sell Auto to County Board.

The auto dealers of the city are too busy these days to think up much in the way of news, but the way they can talk autos without stopping to think seems a fair indication that now is the busy season—as they say it is. There is hardly an auto dealer in the city who is not on the jump from a fairly early hour in the morning until well into the evening showing prospective customers what his special machine can do.

The tune—and it is universal—is that for this early in the year the inquiry is exceptional. Everybody seems to have the auto fever, and everybody, seemingly regardless of rank, is looking over the machines as they stand on the display floors of the various garages. A good deal of inquiry for both new and second-hand machines exists, and some of the seconds seem to the casual onlooker even better than the new, for when they are just out of the paint shop, their sides glisten as nicely as the newer machines, and it seems that the machinery works better.

The chief item of interest in local autodom during the week was the attempt of practically every auto dealer to sell a car to the county board. The board advertised that it wanted a car for the sheriff's use. That advertisement acted like the caving in of earth, with the members of the county board underneath. All kinds of offers were made, and they range all the way from a "sting" to a really and truly bargain. The matter was left in the hands of a committee, which will soon decide which of the cars offered seems the correct one to take.

J. T. Peacha, manager of the Interstate Auto company, feels fairly well convinced that The Herald has some "spread." At the rooms of the Zenith Sales company at 216 East Superior street is being exhibited these days a rather unique vehicle for quick delivery uses. This machine has the two wheels in front and the single one in the rear. Between the two wheels is a good-sized boxlike affair, in which parcels can be placed and covered up. As a quick-delivery machine it is said to be a wonder.

Traceable in most instances to its display of a remarkably handsome piece of motor fire apparatus at the Chicago truck show, the Kissel Motor Car company has completed several important sales to municipal fire departments. Cities which have, within the last two weeks, made contracts for Kissel Kar fire apparatus include the following: Columbia, Mo., Grinnell, Iowa; Newton, Iowa; Winnipeg, Man.; Calgary, Alta.; and Duluth, Minn., the latter being sold by J. T. Peachu, manager of the Interstate Auto company.

DULUTHIAN WILL DELIVER ADDRESS

Cloquet, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sons of Norway will formally open their new building in East end next Wednesday evening. There will be speeches and music, the latter by the Viking chorus, and addresses by John Heitman of Duluth, and Alfred Gabrielson, the district president of the organization. Later the Daughters of Norway will serve a banquet and Freeman's orchestra will furnish music for dancing. The building is a brick structure, 48 by 38 feet with hall upstairs and store rooms on the lower floor. It is a handsome, building and a credit to the Norwegian people of the city as well as an immense improvement to the section of the city in which it is located.

Mothers' Club Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Mothers' club was held Thursday evening at the Lincoln school and there was a large attendance, it being a purely social meeting. There were several numbers by the high school orchestra under the direction of K. D. Van Wagmen, stereopticon views and a brief address by Peter Olesen, superintendent of schools. It was at Mr. Olesen's suggestion that the club was organized and after several months' successful work the organization requested that he express his opinion of the institution. Mr. Olesen made a very brief but feeling speech and paid the highest tribute to mothers. The occasion was concluded with dainty refreshments and a social hour.

The Otterbein Quartet and Bell Ringers, who give the closing number of the high school lyceum course tonight, have agreed to remain over Sunday in the city and will give a free concert in the opera house Sunday afternoon. The concert will consist of sacred, popular and classical music.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

"Anti-smoke ordinances are now the vogue in hundreds of towns and cities in this country. How one of these ordinances works to the discomfiture and loss of motorists who do not own our unique smokeless olling system may be seen any day at the intersection of two busy thoroughfares in almost any large city," says R. E. Olds, president of the Reo Motor Car company.

"In New York city it is a common occurrence to see a member of the traffic squad stop his motorcycle in front of a smoking motor car with a signal to stop. The driver may be going slowly wholly within the law excepting the one thing which the average city dweller abhors next to a plague, namely, a smoking automobile. I state these facts as a plain condition which confronts the motorist everywhere and in nowise do I offer them as a criticism or defense of some of the anti-smoke ordinances now being rigidly enforced in so many cities. The point is that motorists are now expected to qualify with smokeless cars or else be heavily fined or go to jail. Our patrons everywhere are congratulating us for our foresight in designing and building all Reo cars successfully to meet the present day anti-smoke ordinances. We foresaw the result of the smoke nuisance years ago and were among the very first who designed and built the smokeless automobile olling system. With it our patron is saved the worry and discomfiture of being 'pinched' for smoking when possibly most driven for time, besides he saves from 25 to 50 per cent of his oil bill saying nothing of the many engine troubles caused by short circuits arising from faulty oiling of the cylinders. We challenge comparison of our oiling system with that of the best foreign or domestic car built."

"I have always held that to compare motor haulage with horse haulage is about as sensible as to compare the perfected telephone with the speaking tube," says H. B. Pruden of the Kissel Kar, "and here is some fresh and striking evidence of that fact.

"The Silver Lane Pickle company's factory is located at Silver Lane, Conn. They have their own farms at Vernon and Rockville where their vegetable product, which is afterward transformed into the succulent pickle, is raised. Thus their haulage considerations start with the transportation of vegetables from farm to factory. The extent of this work may be partially realized when it is known that 10,000,000 pickles are manufactured from the product of these farms.

"Last April the company purchased a three-ton Kissel Kar truck which was intended to cover the farm to factory route, not much additional duty being expected of it. The company soon learned, however, that the truck is a new element in modern industry—that it stands alone in its transit possibilities. They found that it could handle the trade in nearby cities, deliver direct to customers, save time and expense and greatly increase the satisfaction of patrons. Thus this truck takes care of the company's business in Northampton, Mass., 50 miles distant, Hartford, Conn., 14 miles, and Bridgeport, 108 miles, and its ground covering ability is not yet exhausted. It is now proposed to send the truck in regular trips to Worcester, Mass., 90 miles away.

"Manager F. C. Gould of the Silver Lane company tells of a record which shows the manner in which his Kissel Kar truck has improved upon certain railroad facilities which it supplanted. A shipment of sauer kraut from Rockville to Hartford, 14 miles, was so delayed in transit that its arrival took place eight days from the date of shipment. The truck performs this service with regularity and certainty inside of two hours.

"This truck has been driven between 8,000 and 9,000 miles since April and has often been in constant service night and day. During the harvest period, according to Mr. Gould, it actually earned—earned mind you—more than $50 a day in excess of its operating cost. The approximate cost of operation, based upon figures estimating a year of similar average cost on a basis of 300 working days, is $12.50 a day. This includes 5 per cent interest on the investment, 20 per cent depreciation, wages, fuel, repairs, tires and taxes."

"Many of the people who look over our cars," says M. W. Turner, who represents the Jackson Automobile company in this territory, "ask us why we use four full elliptic springs. The use of other types is so general, that the prevailing idea seems to be that they provide all the spring action that is necessary or desirable in a motor car.

"If you stop and think for a moment, you will remember that the easiest-riding carriages are fitted with full elliptic springs all around. So, in the case of the Jackson, we have simply taken the carriage builder's idea and applied it to our cars. It is a fact, too, that the full elliptic spring equipment gives an action of 33 to 100 per cent greater than other types commonly used; and the action is easier and softer.

"This equipment is quite unusual, so the questions we get on the subject are quite natural. I know of but one other car that carries full elliptic springs front and rear."

Frequent drainage of oil from the motor crank case is advisable. Fresh lubricant must be added to the supply at intervals to make up for the wear which is just as evident in oil as in other materials, and care must be exercised to not have a surplus of the fluid on such occasions. On most cars the drain cock for withdrawing the worn out oil is difficult to find and to reach, usually requiring the driver to crawl under the car.

Marion engineers have overcome this difficulty by installing an extension lever handle on the drain cock, thus bringing the handle just under the hood and above the dust and oil which accumulates on the bottom of the case. There is no discomfort experienced in draining the Marion crank case and no necessity for crawling under the car. With the raising of the hood on the left side of the motor the extension lever is at hand and a simple turn opens the drain cock.

R. A. Evans, a real estate man of Oakland, Neb., has a wonderful Kissel Kar. Mr. Evans has driven this car, a model of 1911, nearly 50,000 miles with no replacement whatever with the exception of two spark plugs, and no repairs excepting one grinding of valves. He adds: "We have used this car constantly over the rough roads through the Indian reservation, where there has never been any highway improvement."

"The remarkable success of the motor car shows this year in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and nearly all other large cities should serve to quiet the talk that has been common lately of discontinuing these annual exhibitions," said R. J. Schmunk, director of sales of the Peerless Motor Car company.

"The crowds at all the big shows this year were as great or greater than they have been in previous years. An unusually large proportion were buyers also. The Peerless Motor Car company sold many times more cars at the Madison Square Garden this year than it did last year, and our experience has been much the same at nearly all the shows that have followed.

"For the success of the big shows the newspapers deserve much credit for the splendid support they gave them. The special editions devoted to the displays arouse great public interest, while the vast amount of matter relating to motor cars both interests and instructs the motor car public on every point connected with the sale and manufacture of motor cars."

The introduction of the new Garford Six has demonstrated an interesting fact in connection with the sensational development of the automobile industry, as pointed out by Vice President G. W. Bennett, of the Garford Company of Elyria, Ohio. So rapidly has the industry grown and so occupied have the manufacturers found themselves in keeping up with the constant refinements and improvements demanded by motor car users, according to Mr. Bennett, it was not until a few months ago that the uselessness and unnecessary expense of two headlights was realized.

"It is more than fifteen years since the automobile came into prominence in the industrial world, but in all that time until very recently no one saw the economy of eliminating one of the headlights," said Mr. Bennett, in discussing the new product of the Elyria factory. "It was not until our engineers and designers, in studying problems of economy and beauty for the new six, hit on the plan of using a single head lamp that the true state of affairs was forced home on us.

"There are any number of reasons why the single lamp as used in the Garford is superior to two. More and better light, more evenly and economically distributed for the benefit of the driver is provided by having the lamp in the exact center of the car. Unsightly and expensive brackets and holders, which, on the higher grade cars have long been made of drop-forgings to insure strength and lightness, are eliminated, as the Garford 'Cyclops' lamp, as it has been dubbed, is contained in a receptacle set in and flush with the top of the radiator. This location is also insurance against damage in case of collision, for the springs, frame and wheels must crumple under the shock before the lamp is hurt."

What is declared to be the biggest single foreign shipment in the history of the commercial vehicle left the Gramm Motor Truck company of Lima, Ohio, a few days ago, when eight of that concern's big trucks started for journeys which will take them more than half around the globe. Six of the trucks were consigned to a contracting firm in Manila, P. I., and the other two go to Australian customers. The Manila shipment left the United States via San Francisco; the others were shipped from New York city.

The Gramm company has built up a good business for its trucks in Manila, one firm there now operating a fleet of more than twenty. The vehicles are giving excellent satisfaction in transporting building material and supplies, as well as regular merchandise over the variety of roads to be found on the Island of Luzon.

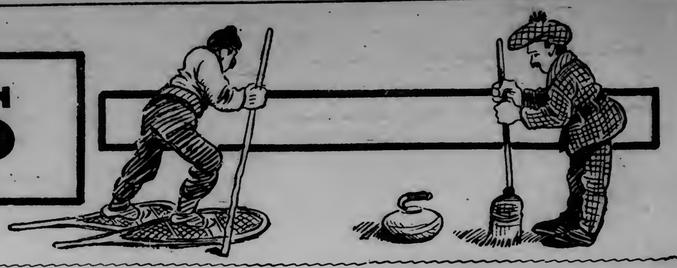
SPORTS



Gossip, Comment and Sporting Editorial Review as Written By Bruce.

GALLOPING over the undulating pastures of the sport grazing land with fountain pen in hand as the spur of progress, the intent being to pass briefly on the events of the present week, the Papke-Klaus embroglio dents the horizon and gradually heaves into view as one of the shooting marks. In the gaudy Paris preamble we had learned to expect much from this encounter, but like others it failed miserably to come up to the great expectations that were reared high upon the shifting sands of the flighty imagination of the French press.

In his day it is a perfectly sane belief that Papke would have crushed this Pittsburg stoic—not stogie. But the day of William Papke has passed, as the days of prime have flittingly gone from others of the great athletes of the large procession, and he remains in France to beat some of the men who would not class with fighters the passe Papke beat before the fire of battle was taken from him.

Klaus sprung into prominence principally through the six round stand he made against Ketchel. At the time of the contest Ketchel was tearing around the country, performing a series of crazy stunts, that coupled with a great press agent, served to keep the assassin before the public as one of the greatest cards out of jail. Steve was in no condition to do battle, but nevertheless the Klaus boy received the glory for failing to take the count.

Since that large evening in the lower circles of Pittsburg society the progress of Klaus, unlike that of Pilgrim, has been uninterrupted. The Dutchman came on the scene when two great middleweights were on the decline, thus escaping the inevitable determining battle that must have come with Ketchel and Papke, when these great finishers were right.

Klaus has elimnated Papke from serious consideration as an aspirant for the undisputed title to the middleweight honors, and it is probable that he will tight it out with Eddie McGoorty as the holder of the red badge of supremacy in the middleweight division—though, to be on the level with you all, it might be stated here that there is a sentiment of doubt as to whether some of the boys flirting with this titular talk can make the prescribed weight.

While the aforementioned Papke-Klaus battle was one of the events of the passing week, it failed to fulfill the eager anticipation, simply serving to place the former holder out of the running.

Throwing the rowels into the narrative nag we pass on to other subjects.

The running of this Hannes Kohelmainen is a subject that has passed examination and shown a true fitness to come into the little gossip circle.

Perhaps the greatest of all runners—and, Bill, that is some statement, covering as it does a lot of territory—the little Finn has been astonishing the world during the past few months; and it seemed a monumental task to make the staid old sphere sit up and gasp after the wonders this slight athlete accomplished in the Olympic games.

But heroic Hannes has gone right along breaking every conceivable kind of a record and beating the best men that have been brought against him. He met with one of the first set backs of his loving invasion just the other night. It is probable that Kohelmainen is stale, for critics have pronounced him greater than George, the great English runner of the past; greater by far than Alfred Shrubb, one of the most marvelous and consistent performers that the track has produced, and greater by far than our own little Tommy Conneff, who in 1895 astonished that important part of the universe known as Great Britain, by defeating the cracks of the English international team in the mile and three-mile events at Traverse island; indeed, and this, friends, on the same day.

Great is Hannes: indeed, the peer of the world at his specialty, and it may be years, aye, decades and weary numbers of them combined, before we will behold so great, so absolutely perfect a running machine as this simple little artisan from the little northern nation.

While riding the sport roundup it would be considered in the worst of taste to skip over the review without mentioning the baseball thing. The old game is growing bolder each day, crowding some of the more timid of the winter sports off the page. Exhibition games are daily programs now, and while the robin is getting ready to bg discovered thereby pleasing some amateur Chris Columbus of the village, or the milliners are planning to make patient fathers or harrowed husbands more weary of step and more empty of pocket; while love and the approach of spring descend upon us, the baseball game keeps gingerly apace.

It is early yet to prophesy. A wise guy remarked that it was early before the Fourth of July. Perhaps so, William, but to us it looks like an excellent hunch to keep the wary eye on and the agile dollar away from the Philadelphia Athletics; meaning thereby not to bet too heavily against the White Elephants.

Old Connie Mack, that wise and deep observer of the greatest of all outdoor games, is a hard man to beat. He has been down in the past, and he came ambling back. Many are willing to believe that his wonderful team is still the class of the younger major. We are simply using some stuff. Rud Kipling made a lot of money out of, when we say, "That's another story."

McGraw will be the best bet in the National. The Pittsburg Pirates are going to prove awfully hard to beat with that pitching staff; but McGraw commands the confidence of a legion of followers of the sport of baseball and will continue to be backed heavily until the Giants are clear out of the running—if such a condition is ever brought about while the little Napoleon of the national game is at the helm in Manhattan.

Marquard is an obdurate creature and remains out of the New York fold. Jackson has not reported. Ty Cobb is reported pacified. The press agents have discovered great possibilities in the rejuvenated Yankees for Frank Chance, and thus doth the week pass into its end.

WIN ONE; LOSE ONE.

White Sox in Two Fast Games in California Cities.

San Francisco, Cal., March 8.—Five clean hits in the sixth inning, after the San Francisco team had established a lead of three runs, brought in four tallies for the Chicago Americans yesterday and gave them the ultimate victory, 5 to 4.

Lord, of the Sox, drove a high one over the right field fence for a home run, in the first inning, and in the third inning he doubled, but died on second.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 8.—Fourney, the recruit first baseman of the Chicago Americans, was the star again yesterday in the second game between the No. 2 team and the Los Angeles coast leaguers, aiding largely in making it a 7 to 5 victory for the visitors by negotiating four hits in five times up.

TWO MATCHES; NEAR RIOT.

Lively Time at Wrestling Bouts in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., March 8.—Constant Le Marin defeated Marlon Plestina of Austria, and George Lurich of Russia won from Raymond Cazeau of Italy in wrestling bouts here last night. Each winner defeated his opponent in straight falls.

The Lurich-Cazeau match almost developed into a riot. During the match Cazeau, according to Referee Dave Porteaus, took a strangle hold on Lurich and the referee therefore interfered. Cazeau broke away and started for Porteaus, who met his rush with a blow. Policemen stepped forward and further trouble was prevented.

NAT GOODWIN ADVISES—WELL, HE OUGHT TO KNOW.

Atlanta, Ga., March 8.—Battling Nelson, who was here last night to engage in a prize fight, received the following telegram from Nat Goodwin at Los Angeles:

"They're here today and gone tomorrow. Cheer up! Millions of girls left in the country. Can I give you any advice? Win tonight.
"(Signed.) NAT GOODWIN."

PORTAGE LAKERS TAKE THE OPENING CONTEST

Houghton Defeats Duluth By Score of 3 to 1 in Fast Hockey Game Thereby Winning the Amateur Title.

Houghton defeated Duluth by the score of 3 to 1 last evening, thus giving the great Portage Lake aggregation the clear claim to the amateur emblem of puck chasing championship. On the showing of last evening the local seven, loath as one is to admit, was clearly outclassed by the great playing of the visitors.

Just why Arnie Olson was removed from the lineup of the Duluth is a question that many followers of the game here would like to have answered to their satisfaction. If a star had been put in the place of the West End boy the explanation would not be buried so deeply in the mysterious. But when a player of the less than the ordinary playing ability of the man who replaced Olson is brought here, the reason for the change indeed takes on a color so complex that the majority of the rooters for the home team have given the problem up as one quite impossible of solution.

As the result of the removing of Olson from the lineup of last evening there was a local shifting of positions. Grenner went to center and Barkell to rover. To the majority of the spectators it seemed as if this shift weakened the offense of the Duluth seven.

Be that as it may, one must come to the surface and give the visitors credit for the great game they played. In most instances the Duluth rushes were effectively broken up before they were fairly started. In combination play Portage Lake clearly excelled Duluth, and to this one can attribute the victory.

Unable to work combination rushes to the immediate vicinity of the goal, Duluth seemingly wasted effort in shooting at the net from the mid-section of the rink. Most of these shots were blocked before they reached Carly Haug and those that came to him were easily turned aside.

In scrimmage in front of the net Duluth had several excellent opportunities to score. On several occasions the local players failed to realize their advantages, and on several other occasions it might be said that the break of the game was against them.

In this connection it ought to be stated that Haug played a wonderful game. He made some truly sensational stops, and with an ordinary guard at the yawning mouth of the coveted cage it might have been that we would have won the contest.

Helmer Grenner was one of the stars of the Duluth team. Captain Joe Linder played one of the greatest games he has shown here, while Doc Tamblyn in that smooth style of his also must be set down in the steller light.

Some of the spectators of the contest are of the opinion that Duluth's offense was impaired by the shifting of the lineup. Whether this is so or whether it was the almost marvelous checking of the visitors, it is quite certain that the locals did not exhibit the dash that was so apparent in the last game played here in the previous home series.

Reynolds scored the first net for the visitors at the expiration of ten minutes of play, the speedy center of the visitors, who one day plays with the Cleveland team and the next may be seen in the abbreviated garb of the Portage Lakers, shooting the net on a pretty combination with Sicotte. In just 17 minutes from the call of time Pryor took the puck down the ice and made the second and final net of the first half, shooting the goal from an intercepted pass just in front of the goal.

Just five minutes after the call of time for the second period of play Helmer Grenner drove the puck forward at one of the faceoffs and following the rubber through shot a clever goal, the rubber going high and true and escaping the vigilance of Haug.

The speedy Chaput, taking quick advantage of the absence of Linder, rushed the puck down the ice some four minutes later and shot the final goal for the visitors.

The final game with Houghton, and perhaps the final contest also of the present season will be played this evening. Duluth is going to make every effort to win this game, thereby getting an even break on the closing series of the year.

The lineup:

LONG-AWAITED BOUT IS TAME

New York, March 8.—Packey McFarland outpointed Jack Britton in ten rounds of fairly rapid and clever fighting at Madison Square Garden last night. While McFarland had the better of the argument as a whole, Britton made the better showing in the final round.

Neither of the two Chicago lightweights, whose long-talked-of match has excited such interest, boxed up to the expectations of those who have been anxiously looking for a meeting between them. Packey's nose was bleeding during the last two rounds and his left eye was slightly marked as he left the ring. Britton did not show any marks of his encounter other than a small scratch over the bridge of his nose.

Chicago Beats Wisconsin.

Chicago, March 8.—The University of Chicago basket ball team last night defeated the University of Wisconsin team, 23 to 10 for the first time in two years. This gives Chicago a clear title to second place in the Big Nine. The Wisconsin team had won 28 straight games including 11 this year, before meeting Chicago.

Prepare for Divorce.

Chicago, March 8.—Battling Nelson yesterday began to make preparations to engage in a new style of battle for him—that of the divorce court. He retained an attorney to look after his interests. The attorney and Nelson's manager who staged all the scenery of the marriage including the hiring of a special train and a brass band, left last night for Denver.

Y.M.E.A. QUINT IS DEFEATED

The Contest Is Fought Nip and Tuck Throughout and Is Also Rough.

In a contest replete with thrills, and in which the winner was a doubtful quantity until the call of time, the Duluth Boat club basket ball team defeated the Y. M. E. A. five at Superior at the Superior normal school gymnasium last night by the score of 19 to 18.

The game was hotly contested from the start, Erickson for the Y. M. E. A. scoring first on a long shot, followed quickly by a nice shot by Johnson for the boat club, the rest of the half being nip and tuck, Holman shooting two beautiful baskets just before the end of the half which ended 13 to 12 with the Y. M. E. A. leading.

The boat club started the second half with a rush and established a small lead on a basket by Harris and a free throw by Johnson, the Y. M. E. A. in their anxiety to win roughed it considerably and managed to tie the score. With three minutes of play left, Harris and Johnson scored a field basket and foul throw respectively, just before time. Haskell caged a nice shot, but that ended the scoring and the game ended with a score of 19 to 18 in favor of the oarsmen.

The game appeared to be slow, but a good deal of the apparent lack of team work was due to the fact that both teams guarded so closely that team plays were blocked as soon as started.

The lineup:

Boat club—		Y. M. E. A.—
Johnson	f	Cook
Harris	f	Holman
Lathrop
Paddock	c	Erickson
Boerner	g	Olson
Solheim	g	Haskell

Summary: Field goals—Johnson, 2; Harris, 3; Boerner, 1; Solheim, 1; Cook, 2; Holman, 2; Erickson, 1; Haskell, 2; Olson, 1. Points on free throws—Johnson, 5; Cook, 1; Holman, 1.

REFEREE RESCUED FROM ANGRY MOB

Kansas City, Mo., March 8.—Five policemen were required to protect Peter Hell, instructor in athletics at the Topeka, Kan., high school, when a crowd of students incensed at his rulings as referee of a basket ball game, tried to attack him at the Kansas City, Kan., high school last night.

The game was between the Topeka and Kansas City, Kan., high schools. Although the rivalry between the two schools is intense it was agreed that Hell should act as referee. Frequently during the game a large number of students in the gallery voiced their displeasure at his rulings, and two policemen were summoned to preserve order. The Topeka team won by 34 to 32 and at the conclusion of the game the students made a rush for the referee. He was pushed into a small dressing room and three more officers were summoned. With the escort of five policemen he made his way through the crowd and hurried to the depot.

LIPTON ASKS LIMIT.

His Challenge Violates Terms of Gift of America's Cup.

New York, March 8.—Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for the America's cup will be considered at a special meeting of the New York Yacht club called by Commodore Pratt for the evening of March 12. Already a difference of opinion has arisen among the club members whether the challenge should be accepted on the terms proposed by Sir Thomas Lipton that the competing yachts be limited to seventy-five feet on the water line.

The deed of gift provides that the challenger, if a sloop may be anywhere from 65 to 95 feet on the water line. The challenger can elect to sail on any water line length within the designated limits of 65 and 95 feet and the defender has the same right and the larger incurs a penalty of time allowance. By the deed of gift Sir Thomas can challenge with a 65-foot boat if he desires, and the New York Yacht club can meet him off Sandy hook with a 90-footer, although, of course, the defender would be compelled to give a heavy time allowance.

Sir Thomas' suggestion that both yachts be limited to 75 feet would bar out the unbeaten 90-footer Reliance which many of the yacht club members believe could successfully defend the cup.

CARL HANSON DOWNS BUTCHER

Carl Hanson, the terrible Swede of the West end, last evening at Kalamazoo hall defeated Walter Deil, the Butcher boy, in two straight falls, the first in 13 minutes and the second and deciding fall in 7 minutes.

The contest was wrestled as the result of a long standing argument between the two athletes. Despite the rapid strides Hanson has been making in the grappling game of late Diel was of the opinion that he could defeat the stocky Scandinavian. He played this opinion for place and show and lost.

At the conclusion of the contest Hanson expressed the desire to wrestle Otto Suter, the famous little Cleveland grappler.

CHAMPION SKATERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Norval Baptie, the greatest ice speed marvel that this grim and matter of fact old world has ever produced, is expected to reach Duluth today. Officials of the curling club, after some months of angling, have secured this marvelous skater of Bathgate, N. D., and the equally famous Miss Isabel Butler, who ranks among the women fancy skaters of the world as Baptie does among the demon speed boys.

Miss Butler is the young woman who did the perilous "Dip of Death" with Barnum's circus for three years. One day the immense steel platform broke and down came lady, automobile and all. When they rescued the pettite and daring driver from the ruins of the crash, it was found that she was unconscious. Some weeks later Miss Butler recovered, but her premonition of death was so strangely rounded out and fully developed by this time that she decided to seek other fields of endeavor.

Not only is Baptie the recognized master of the speed skaters, having decisively defeated Johnny Nillson before the retirement of that marvelous flyer, but he is also the holder of several victories over John S. Johnson, perhaps the greatest combination athlete this country has ever produced.

After defeating all of the greatest skaters of this country and Europe Baptie took to the fancy skating game and with Miss Butler won the team prize at the St. Nicholas rink competition, the greatest skaters in the United States being entered for the grand prize.

Miss Butler is the holder of the national gold medal for women skaters and is recognized as the peer of all in fancy exhibitions. Many people of Duluth will recall the remarkable exhibition given by Miss Butler and Mr. Baptie upon the occasion of their visit here, some two years ago.

The exhibition will be given at the curling club rink Tuesday evening.

NORWAY IS THE GREAT HOME OF WINTER SPORTS

Norway has already had four months of skiing, tobogganing and skating, for winter set in in the last days of October, and by the 3rd or 4th of November the snow was in perfect condition, not only in the mountain regions of the interior, but throughout the Nordmarken district above Christiania. The usual winter crowds have been pouring out nightly from the capital to Holmenkollen, Voksenkolen and Frognesaeter, all of which are, as your special correspondent said in his letters from Norway last winter, as near to the center of Christiania as Hampstead Heath is to the heart of London. The famous Corkscrew toboggan truck has been busy every evening since the first week of November, and the woods in all directions are full of ski-runners. At Besserud Lake, moreover, arrangements are this year being made to cater for those winter visitors who ask for other sports than the great Norwegian staples of tobogganing and skiing. The lake is almost at the door of the Holmenkollen Tourist hotel, and it is from it that the annual long-distance ski races start, and on its shores rises the famous jump at which the "Norwegian Derby," the international ski-jumping contest, takes place. Beyond being used for these events, the surface of the lake has not heretofore been utilized as it might have been, but has been allowed to become snow-covered as the winter progressed. Now, however, a 4,000-meter rink for skating and curling has been made upon it, and both the Holmenkollen and Voksenkollen hotels have laid in the necessary outfit of curling stones.

In a few years the pressure of the demand by foreign, and especially by English tourists, will compel the institution of rinks at all, or most, of the Norwegian winter resorts. Besides that at Besserud one is now being prepared at Lillehammer in the Gudbrandsdalen, while at Finse (beyond doubt the finest skiing center in Norway) the foundations of a great hall have been laid which will be used for roller-skating and other sports in summer, and for skating and curling on natural ice in winter. The surface will be large enough to accommodate three curling rinks, and the hall will have a skittle alley, a gallery for an orchestra, refreshment rooms, and other attachments. It is not known that any new tourists hotels of importance have been opened in Norway this year, but to at least two of the established houses considerable additions have been made. A large extension to Haug's hotel at Gjeilo is ready to be opened this month, and a similar extension to the Vatnahaesen hotel at Myrdal is expected to be ready for the Easter rush.

Tousist Trade.

In various ways, in fact, the Norweglans are preparing to cope with the tide of tourist travel which is bound to set in with ever-increasing force as the advantages of the country for winter sports, especially in the months from January onwards, become more widely recognized. Not least among the new facilities is the night sleeping car train provided by the Bergen railway for the winter season between Bergen and and Christiania, by which one can leave the capital at 11 o'clock at night and reach Finse or Gjeilo between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning, the return trip being made at the same hours. This is a greater advantage, perhaps, to the residents of Christiania who go up to the mountains for the week-end than it is to tourists who are not commonly so pressed for time; but even the latter, unless they wish to see the country, may reasonably be glad not to lose on the train the better part of two good days which could as well be spent on skis. From all the places above mentioned, as well as from others where there are first-rate hotels, like Fefor in the Gudbrandsdalen and Tonsaasen in the Valdress district, reports indicate that the influx of visitors will be considerably greater this year than in any former season.

MAKES BOWLING RECORD

Toledo, Ohio, March 8.—Another American Bowling congress record was established yesterday when Louis Huebner of Chicago, rolling in the individuals, scored 278 in his first game. This surpasses the former record of 280 held by L. Vellstick of Kansas City.

Hueber's work was marvelous from a bowling standpoint. In his first game, he had nine straight strikes.

In the two-men events Fesl and Ad Trapp of Chicago rolled 1,226 and went into sixth place in this event.

The Rovers of Buffalo, N. Y., rolled the highest score of any of the five-men teams last night, ending with a count of 2,834. This high score fails to put them among the leaders. None of the thirty-two teams competing last night in the two squads rolled high enough to make any change in the standing of the five-men teams. Techs of Pittsburg were high team on the first squad, rolling 2,742.

Five-men standing: Overlands, Toledo, 2,992; Hudson Stars, Newark, N. J., 2,946; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,943; Gambrinus, Columbus, 2,903; Collonas, Chicago, 2,900; Ducators, Chicago, 2,896; Lexington No. 1, Lexington, Ky., 2,890; Brunswickes, Hamilton, Ont., 2,883; Indiana Democratic club, Indianapolis, 2,876; El Utillas, Chicago, 2,862.

SOLHEIM, "BUNK" HARRIS, LATHROP, PADDOCK, DEIGHTON, MANAGER; OSMAN, JOHNSON, M. HARRIS, BOERNER.

For the second year in succession the Duluth Boat club basket ball team has earned their title to the championship of Northern Minnesota, and will hold the championship cup until next season.

The state championship and the Head of the Lakes title are the present goals for which the team is striving, and if the team continues its present gait there is good reason to expect the realization of this ambition.

Either the strong St. Joseph or Ascension teams of the Twin Cities will probably win the Southern Minnesota championship and the boat club expects to bring the winners to Duluth for a game to decide the state title.

"Roy" Johnson, "Money" Harris and Oscar Solheim were members of the Central high team that made such a splendid showing in the interscholastic championship games three years ago.

"Money" Harris, at right forward is still considered the most accurate basket shooter at the Head of the Lakes, and the addition of "Money" has greatly strengthened the team.

"Roy" Johnson has scored more points from his position at forward than any other man on the team. In addition to his scoring ability Roy plays a splendid guarding game.

NELSON'S HANDS ARE CRIPPLED

Former Champion of the World Has Very Bad Tools.

Chicago, March 8.—Still as game and willing as ever, still possessed of the demonical force and aggressiveness, poor old Bat Nelson is fighting along, making a brave front and repeating so often that he is "coming back into his own," that he is beginning to believe it himself.

But Bat cannot come back, because his fighting tools are all against such a thing. Bat's knuckles are mushy and yielding and no longer can stand the strain that he is putting on them in these, the declining years of a wonderful career in the ring.

Bat is the Bat of old in many ways, but he isn't as tough as he used to be, that's almost certain. The same old spirit is there and he is as eager as ever to carry the fight to the foe and mix wildly at all times. But there is something lacking, just the same.

In a Racine ring Bat beat up a tough young fellow named Jock Sorenson, who stood the whaling manfully and gave back the best he had in the shop. It wasn't much, but he staggered Bat a couple of times and shook the veteran former champion to the heels in the ninth round with a crack on the chin. This same at a time, too, when Sorenson looked to be at his worst from the rough usage he had received.

Has To Club His Punches.

But Bat has to club his punches now because of the sore knuckles. He whangs away with both sides of his fists and even uses the forearms like Bob Fitzsimmons used to when he was going through the same desperate experience that now faces the Dane.

Nelson could not quit fighting if he wanted to, and he certainly doesn't want to. It is his very life, this thing of flying all over the country, meeting any one and all that he can get. This, I garner from a few brief talks with him.

"What could I do if I wasn't fighting?" Bat walled the other night. "It's the very best thing I do and I feel that I am just as good as ever, if only these darned old knuckles of mine would stay where they belong."

That tells the whole story of Bat's declining days. Like many another man of gameness and force, the spirit is there, but the tools have been put out of business.

Yes, with the aid of heavy bandages and a little dope now and then, Bat will worry along through many a stiff argument, picking up the festive guarantee hither and yon, until some strapping young puncher hangs one on the iron jaw and puts Bat down and out completely.

Danes Fail to Support Show.

Then Bat will find that perhaps he can do other things about as well as he did things in the ring during a long and strenuous career. He will simply have to.

A strange thing about the Racine situation was the way in which the Danes fell down in their patronage of their great athletic star. There is a strong Danish colony in the Wisconsin town, and this colony was pretty well worked up over Nelson's presence there, especially when pitted against another Dane.

Bat was up there for several days working and incidentally was given a banquet by the Danes. Perhaps Bat's gymnasium work was all that the Danes cared to see, for they failed to turn out at all for the contest itself, thus proving a tremendous disappointment to the Hegewisch gladiator.

"I wish they had forgotten about the banquet and turned the coin it cost into the gate instead," mourned Bat, after the tickets had been counted and been found about 50 per cent short of what had been so confidently expected.

GUSTAFSON IS AFTER MILLER

The Canadian Middleweight Champion Wants to Wrestle the Duluth Boy.

Charley Gustafson, champion middleweight wrestler of Canada, is after a match with Walter Miller of this city and has sent a defi to the little chap.

Gustafson is one tough mat customer; a lad who has a victory over Conkle to his credit of illustrious wins, and he believes that he can pin the shoulders of the Miller man to the mat. In this belief he will not find many supporters on this side of the line, however.

In his letter to the sporting editor Gustafson cites his win of a handicap match from Miller when the latter was just coming up the ladder, and also gives some of his other victories.

At the present time Miller is working out at the Catholic club gymnasium every day, following the long rest the boy took after the gruelling match with Carr, which was pronounced the greatest and also the roughest contest ever wrestled in the Northwest.

TEMPERAMENT A SECRET OF SUCCESS ON THE LINKS

Student of Game Suggests That Player Know Himself Before Trying to Blame Expert.

Long ago it became a truism that success in golf more than in any other outdoor sport depends largely upon the temperament of the individual concerned. This has been admitted by implication in countless descriptions of famous players in both amateur and professional ranks, and there are conceded to be qualities which enable a man to win an even larger number of matches and medals than his manual dexterity warrants. It may well be said that the most successful golfer is he who invariably faces the facts exactly as they are, which naturally does not mean that to play golf well it is necessary for a man to be dull, unintelligent or devoid of imagination. Granting that the style is of the man, the writings of several golfers of wide reputation prove that the gaining of the highest honors in golf by no means argues stupidity or even extreme stolidity of their possessors. It may be said, however, that when championships are won the winners seem to go on their way with nothing on their minds but the matter immediately at hand and turning the eye of the mind neither backward nor forward.

It is easier to take accurate note of the manner of a well-known player than to imitate it in its essentials. There seems to be a tinge of irony in the fact that the harmful unessentials are easily acquired. Many an habitual foozler never forgets to remind the casual onlooker that he intends to hit the ball exactly as Braid or Vardon, either by working his right foot firmly into the ground when taking his stance or by throwing hands and club out and away when "waggling" in preparation for his shot. Many an expert has declared that this method of imitation is of no particular benefit when a player's best shots are most needed for the reason that what might be a good mannerism in one man might prove devoid of benefit to another who imitates the first named. The individuality so prominent in golf will not permit it.

It ought to be possible for everybody to improve his nerve. Golf is a game that tries the nerves, and the greater the advancement in this kind of improvement the better the game of the particular individual becomes. It is impossible to get away from the strain imposed by external causes, such as are produced by the wind, the presence of hazards close to the proposed line of play, and so on. But many a man has declared that the subjective difficulties, which the golfer creates for himself and which more frequently than otherwise lead to disaster, can be largely diminished, if not completely eliminated. Just here is where temperament enters the field.

Training the Nerves.

One authority, who is fond of considering the matter of self-improvement on the links, suggests what he calls a "system of practical philosophy." The first step for the golfer to take, he says, is to subject himself to a rigid course of self-examination; in fact, form a catechism for his own use. He suggests the first question to be: "Do I prefer a four-ball match to a foursome? If so, why?" Considering the question, this authority continues:

"Now the man who, after answering the main question in the affirmative, goes on to say that he likes four-ballers because he gets more shots to play and consequently more exercise, may be pitied because he cannot be contemned. He may even claim respect if he admits that he likes to count the score of his rounds and estimate his progress by the diminution of their totals. True, he is cutting himself off from the highest pleasure of the match play game, but self-sacrifice, even for a less worthy object than self-improvement, is always respectable."

The second question this particular authority would propound is: "Do I invariably refuse to give myself the benefit of any doubt which may arise about those of my scores which are not recorded by an appointed marker duly furnished with card and pencil?" He then proceeds:

"It does not greatly matter if a man proclaims to others that he has been round approximately in a certain figure. 'Approximately' is a blessed word. It informs the listener that he may discount, as he thinks fit, the statement which it qualifies, and at the same time it saves the speaker from accusation of wilful indulgence in terminological inexactitudes. But it is dangerous to acquire the habit of relying on salvation by adverb. The golfer who always keeps his score, and keeps it incorrectly, is laying up for himself a heavy store of future tribulation. He is encouraging the internal growth which Plato called the Lie in the Soul. Many a one believes himself when he has failed in an attempt to deceive his fellows. Therefore he is liable to get frightened of himself when he has started a round really well, and the end of it is that a good score, which might have been actual remains approximate."

It probably is true that luck in the long run equalizes its favors shown contending parties, though this is denied by many. But it does not follow that everybody makes the same use of those favors of fortune. The possessor of the ideal temperament seems to take a piece of bad luck with no perturbation and to dismiss the matter from his mind at once. Something of this man's virtue may be acquired if a resolution be made, and, what is more important, kept, never to say a word either of immediate comment or subsequent reminiscence about an adverse rub of the green.

Although a great many authorities on golf have given vent to opinions on putting and probably will continue to do so for an indefinite period, there is probably no department of the game of which there is less to be learned from the study of the methods of the best performers than there is about putting. In no other branch of the art of golf is there a more bewildering variety of stance, grip and delivery than in the apparently simple operation of putting the ball at the hole.

So great indeed are the differences in the putting methods of even the best players that it can hardly be said that they have any point in common except perhaps, the essential and universal habit of keeping the eye on the ball at the moment of striking. A golfer may play off the right leg or off the left or with the ball between the feet; he may grip tight or loose with either hand or with both; he may put with his wrists alone or with the arms alone or by a subtle combination of the two. He may hold the club with the hands together or separated, or at the top of the leather or at the bottom or at any portion of the shaft; he may do any of these things and a great many more, and yet oblige his adversaries to confess that he is a first-class putter.

It cannot even be said that a follow through is essential, for although most of the best putters strike the ball with the follow through action there are some excellent punters, such as Taylor and Herd, on the other side, who chip their putts habitually.

"It is only possible to give the most general counsel as to putting," said a golfer the other day. "First, it may be said that the make and shape of the club are of no importance so long as it is well balanced. Second, always aim to get into the hole, and do not be contented with a vague try to get somewhere near it. Third, to one part of care always add two parts of cheek."

BRADY RETURNS WITH THE SPOILS

Duluth Featherweight Won Six Contests During Short Trip.

Jimmy Brady, one of the cleverest featherweights in the boxing game, returned to Duluth last evening. The tall and rangy boxer, whose chief ambition is to face Johnny Kilbane in the ring, has won six victories since leaving these parts and is slowly forcing recognition among the boxing promoters of the country.

Jimmy has engaged in six fights while he was absent and won all of them. He had several knockouts to his credit, all of which shows that the phantom is slowly developing the punch.

"I want to meet Johnny Kilbane," declared Brady today. "I don't think this fellow, fast and clever as he is, can beat me so very badly. Anyway the chance to meet him would surely make the fans recognize my claims. Kilbane is perhaps the cleverest boxer in the world, but he would face an awful handicap in overcoming my reach. There is no little man in the world who has the reach that I possess, and this fact would give me an advantage over the champion featherweight of the world."

HIS NECK IS BROKEN.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—John Ihle, the University of Minnesota student who was injured while engaged in a wrestling bout at a local gymnasium Thursday night, is still living, although his neck was broken in the accident. An X-ray examination revealed the cause of Ihle's condition, according to Dr. H. L. Williams, coach of the university football squad, who is attending the injured student at a local hospital. Ihle's body, arms and legs are completely paralyzed and physicians say his recovery is doubtful. Ihle is conscious and does not suffer any pain.

Dr. Williams said that while Ihle was engaged in the wrestling bout he slipped and fell forward, striking on his head, the weight of his body breaking his neck.

BRADLEY AND FORSYTH ARE CURLING WINNERS.

Owing to the fact that there was the hockey game on last evening, but two games were played in the curling draw. Bradley defeated Stocking in the Herald event and Schiller defeated Forsyth in the Universal event. There are but thirteen more games to be played in the regular trophy events, and it is expected that all of the remaining games in the regular draw will be completed by the latter part of next week.

Oshkosh, Wis., March 8.—The Oshkosh baseball club has made arrangements to secure Catcher Spellman of Kearney, Neb. The deal involves a trade of several local players.

San Francisco, Cal., March 8.—Rube Marquard, when told of the report that he was expected to join the New York Giants at their spring training camp in Marlin, Tex., said it was without foundation. He said his theatrical contract ran until June 5.

SHIP SUNK WITH A MILLION.

London Chronicle: The news that a fresh attempt is to be made to recover sunken treasure from the General Grant recalls the story of that ill fated vessel. It sailed for London from Melbourne in 1866, and was wrecked off the Auckland islands. For two years its disappearance remained a mystery, then chance led to the rescue of a few survivors, who told how the vessel had been dashed against a cliff 400 feet high and in sinking had been swept into a cave at its base. There for close on half a century the wreck has lain in fourteen fathoms of water with treasure to the value of $1,250,000 in the bullion room to tempt the treasure hunter.

CHAMPION SKATERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Norval Baptie, the greatest ice speed marvel that this grim and matter of fact old world has ever produced, is expected to reach Duluth today. Officials of the curling club, after some months of angling, have secured this marvelous skater of Bathgate, N. D., and the equally famous Miss Isabel Butler, who ranks among the women fancy skaters of the world as Baptie does among the demon speed boys.

Miss Butler is the young woman who did the perilous "Dip of Death" with Barnum's circus for three years. One day the immense steel platform broke and down came lady, automobile and all. When they rescued the petite and darling driver from the ruins of the crash, it was found that she was unconscious. Some weeks later Miss Butler recovered, but her premonition of death was so strangely rounded out and fully developed by this time that she decided to seek other fields of endeavor.

Not only is Baptie the recognized master of the speed skaters, having decisively defeated Johnny Nilsson before the retirement of that marvelous flyer, but he is also the holder of several victories over John S. Johnson, perhaps the greatest combination athlete this country has ever produced.

After defeating all of the greatest skaters of this country and Europe Baptie took to the fancy skating game and with Miss Butler won the team prize at the St. Nicholas rink competition, the greatest skaters in the United States being entered for the grand prize.

Miss Butler is the holder of the national gold medal for women skaters and is recognized as the peer of all in fancy exhibitions. Many people of Duluth will recall the remarkable exhibition given by Miss Butler and Mr. Baptie upon the occasion of their visit here, some two years ago.

The exhibition will be given at the curling club rink Tuesday evening.

Norway has already had four months of skiing, tobogganing and skating, for winter set in in the last days of October, and by the 3rd or 4th of November the snow was in perfect condition, not only in the mountain regions of the interior, but throughout the Nordmarken district above Christiania. The usual winter crowds have been pouring out nightly from the capital to Holmenkollen, Voksenkollen and Frognsaeter, all of which are, as your special correspondent said in his letters from Norway last winter, as near to the center of Christiania as Hampstead Heath is to the heart of London. The famous Holmenkollen toboggan track has been busy every evening since the first week of November, and the woods in all directions are full of ski-runners. At Besserud Lake, moreover, arrangements are this year being made to cater for those winter visitors who ask for other sports than the great Norwegian staples of tobogganing and skiing. The lake is almost at the door of the Holmenkollen Tourist hotel, and it is from it that the annual long-distance ski races start, and on its shores rises the famous jump at which the "Norwegian Derby," the International ski-jumping contest, takes place. Beyond being used for these events, the surface of the lake has not heretofore been utilized as it might have been, but has been allowed to become snow-covered as the winter progressed. Now, however, a 1,000-meter rink for skating and curling has been made upon it, and both the Holmenkollen and Voksenkollen hotels have built the necessary outfit of curling stones.

In a land where the pressure of the crowd by foreign, and especially by English tourists, will compel the institution of rinks at all, or most, of the Norwegian winter resorts, besides that at Besserud one is now being prepared at Lillehammer in the Gudbrandsdalen, which at Finse beyond doubt the finest skating center in Norway, the foundations of a great hall have been laid which will be used for roller-skating and other sports in summer, and for skating and curling on natural ice in winter. The surface will be large enough to accommodate three curling rinks, and the hall will have a skittle alley, a gallery for an orchestra, refreshment rooms, and other attachments. It is not known that any new tourists hotels of importance have been opened in Norway this year, but to at least two of the established houses considerable additions have been made. A large extension to Haug's hotel at Gjelo is ready to be opened this month, and a similar extension to the Vandalsen hotel at Myrdal is expected to be ready for the Easter rush.

Tourist Trade.

In various ways, in fact, the Norwegians are preparing to cope with the tide of tourist travel which is bound to set in with ever-increasing force as the advantages of the country for winter sports, especially in the months from January onwards, become more widely recognized. Not least among the new facilities is the night sleeping car train provided by the Bergen railway for the winter season between Bergen and and Christiania, by which one can leave the capital at 11 o'clock at night and reach Finse or Gjelo between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning, the return trip being made at the same hours. This is a greater advantage perhaps, to the residents of Christiania who go up to the mountains for the week-end than it is to tourists who are not commonly so pressed for time; but even the latter, unless they wish to see the country, may reasonably be glad not to lose on the train the better part of two good days which could as well be spent on skiis. From all the places above mentioned, as well as from others where there are first-rate hotels, like Fefor in the Gudbrandsdalen and Tonsaasen in the Valdress district, reports indicate that the influx of visitors will be considerably greater this year than in any former season.

MAKES BOWLING RECORD

Toledo, Ohio, March 8.—Another American Bowling congress record was established yesterday when Louis Huebner of Chicago, rolling in the individuals, scored 278 in his first game. This surpasses the former record of 289 held by L. Veilstick of Kansas City.

In the two-men events Fesl and Ad Trapp of Chicago rolled 1,226 and went into sixth place in this event.

The Rovers of Buffalo, N. Y., rolled the highest score of any of the five-men teams last night, ending with a count of 2,834. This high score fails to put them among the leaders. None of the thirty-two teams competing last night in the two squads rolled high enough to make any change in the standing of the five-men teams. Techs of Pittsburg were high team on the first squad, rolling 2,742.

Five-men standing: Overlands, Toledo, 2,922; Hudson Stars, Newark N. Long ago it became a truism that success in golf more than in any other outdoor sport depends largely upon the temperament of the individual concerned. This has been admitted by implication in countless descriptions of famous players in both amateur and professional ranks, and there are conceded to be qualities which enable a man to win an even larger number of matches and medals than his manual dexterity warrants. It may well be said that the most successful golfer is he who invariably faces the facts exactly as they are, which naturally does not mean that to play golf well it is necessary for a man to be dull, unintelligent or devoid of imagination. Granting that the style is of the man, the writings of several golfers of wide reputation prove that the gaining of the highest honors in golf by no means argues stupidity or even extreme stolidity of their possessors. It may be said, however, that when championships are won the winners seem to go on their way with nothing on their minds but the matter immediately at hand and turning the eye of the mind neither backward nor forward.

It 's easier to take accurate note of the manner of a well-known player than to imitate it in its essentials. There seems to be a tinge of irony in the fact that the harmful unessentials are easily acquired. Many an habitual foozler never forgets to remind the casual onlooker that he intends to hit the ball exactly as Braid or Vardon, either by working his right foot firmly into the ground when taking his stance or by throwing hands and club out and away when "waggling" in preparation for his shot. Many an expert has declared that this method of imitation is of no particular benefit when a player's best shots are most needed for the reason that what might be a good mannerism in one man might prove devoid of benefit to another who imitates the first named. The individuality so prominent in golf will not permit it.

It ought to be possible for everybody to improve his nerve. Golf is a game that tries the nerves, and the greater the advancement in this kind of improvement the better the game of the particular individual becomes. It is impossible to get away from the strain imposed by external causes, such as are produced by the wind, the presence of hazards close to the proposed line of play, and so on. But many a man has declared that the subjective difficulties, which the golfer creates for himself and which more frequently than otherwise lead to disaster, can be largely diminished, if not completely eliminated. Just here is where temperament enters the field.

Training the Nerves.

One authority, who is fond of considering the matter of self-improvement on the links, suggests what he calls a "system of practical philosophy." The first step for the golfer to take, he says, is to subject himself to a rigid course of self-examination; in fact, form a catechism for his own use. He suggests the first question to be: "Do I prefer a four-ball match to a foursome? If so, why?" Considering the question, this authority continues:

"Now the man who, after answering the main question in the affirmative, goes on to say that he likes four-ballers because he gets more shots to play and consequently more exercise, may be pitied because he cannot be contemned. He may even claim respect if he admits that he likes to count the score of his rounds and estimate his progress by the diminution of their totals. True, he is cutting himself off from the highest pleasure of the match play game, but self-sacrifice, even for a less worthy object than self-improvement, is always respectable."

The second question this particular authority would propound is: "Do I invariably refuse to give myself the benefit of any doubt which may arise about those of my scores which are not recorded by an appointed marker duly furnished with card and pencil?" He then proceeds:

"It does not greatly matter if a man proclaims to others that he has been round approximately in a certain figure. 'Approximately' is a blessed word. It informs the listener that he may discount, as he thinks fit, the statement which it qualifies, and at the same time it saves the speaker from accusation of wilful indulgence in terminological inexactitudes. But it is dangerous to acquire the habit of relying on salvation by adverb. The golfer who always keeps his score, and keeps it incorrectly, is laying up for himself a heavy store of future tribulation. He is encouraging the internal growth which Plato called the Lie in the Soul. Many a one believes himself when he has failed in an attempt to deceive his fellows. Therefore he is liable to get frightened of himself when he has started a round really well, and the end of it is that a good score which might have been actual remains approximate."

It probably is true that luck in the long run equalizes its favors shown contending parties, though this is denied by many. But it does not follow that everybody makes the same use of those favors of fortune. The possessor of the ideal temperament seems to take a piece of bad luck with no perturbation and to dismiss the matter from his mind at once. Something of this man's virtue may be acquired if a resolution be made, and, what is more important, kept, never to say a word either of immediate comment or subsequent reminiscence about an adverse rub of the green.

Although a great many authorities on golf have given vent to opinions on putting and probably will continue to do so for an indefinite period, there is probably no department of the game of which there is less to be learned from the study of the methods of the best performers than there is about putting. In no other branch of the art of golf is there a more bewildering variety of stance, grip and delivery than in the apparently simple operation of putting the ball at the hole.

So great indeed are the differences in the putting methods of even the best players that it can hardly be said that they have any point in common except perhaps, the essential and universal habit of keeping the eye on the ball at the moment of striking. A golfer may play off the right leg or off the left or with the ball between the feet; he may grip tight or loose with either hand or with both; he may put with his wrists alone or with the arms alone or by a subtle combination of the two. He may hold the club with the hands together or separated, or at the top of the leather or at the bottom or at any portion of the shaft; he may do any of these things and a great many more, and yet oblige his adversaries to confess that he is a first-class putter.

It cannot even be said that a follow through is essential, for although most of the best putters strike the ball with the follow through action there are some excellent punters, such as Taylor and Herd, on the other side, who chip their putts habitually.

"It is only possible to give the most general counsel as to putting," said a golfer the other day. "First, it may be said that the make and shape of the club are of no importance so long as it is well balanced. Second, always aim to get into the hole, and do not be contented with a vague try to get somewhere near it. Third, to one part of care always add two parts of cheek."

BRADY RETURNS WITH THE SPOILS

Jimmy Brady, one of the cleverest featherweights in the boxing game, returned to Duluth last evening. The tall and rangy boxer, whose chief ambition is to face Johnny Kilbane in the ring, has won six victories since leaving these parts and is slowly forcing recognition among the boxing promoters of the country.

Jimmy has engaged in six fights while he was absent and won all of them. He had several knockouts to his credit, all of which shows that the phantom is slowly developing the punch.

"I want to meet Johnny Kilbane," declared Brady today. "I don't think this fellow, fast and clever as he is, can beat me so very badly. Anyway the chance to meet him would surely make the fans recognize my claims. Kilbane is perhaps the cleverest boxer in the world, but he would face an awful handicap in overcoming my reach. There is no little man in the world who has the reach that I possess, and this fact would give me an advantage over the champion featherweight of the world."

HIS NECK IS BROKEN.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—John Ihle, the University of Minnesota student who was injured while engaged in a wrestling bout at a local gymnasium Thursday night, is still living, although his neck was broken in the accident. An X-ray examination revealed the cause of Ihle's condition, according to Dr. H. L. Williams, coach of the university football squad, who is attending the injured student at a local hospital. Ihle's body, arms and legs are completely paralyzed and physicians say his recovery is doubtful. Ihle is conscious and does not suffer any pain.

Dr. Williams said that while Ihle was engaged in the wrestling bout he slipped and fell forward, striking on his head, the weight of his body breaking his neck.

BRADLEY AND FORSYTH ARE CURLING WINNERS.

Owing to the fact that there was the hockey game on last evening, but two games were played in the curling draw. Bradley defeated Stocking in the Herald event and Schiller defeated Forsyth in the Universal event. There are but thirteen more games to be played in the regular trophy events, and it is expected that all of the remaining games in the regular draw will be completed by the latter part of next week.

OSHKOSH CLUB TO SECURE SPELLMAN.

Oshkosh, Wis., March 8.—The Oshkosh baseball club has made arrangements to secure Catcher Spellman of Kearney, Neb. The deal involves a trade of several local players.

Marquard Under Contract.

San Francisco, Cal., March 8.—Rube Marquard, when told of the report that he was expected to join the New York Giants at their spring training camp in Marlin, Tex., said it was without foundation. He said his theatrical contract ran until June 5.

SHIP SUNK WITH A MILLION.

London Chronicle: The news that a fresh attempt is to be made to recover sunken treasure from the General Grant recalls the story of that ill fated vessel. It sailed for London from Melbourne in 1866, and was wrecked off the Auckland Islands. For two years its disappearance remained a mystery, then chance led to the rescue of a few survivors, who told how the vessel had been dashed against a cliff 400 feet high and in sinking had been swept into a cave at its base. There for close on half a century the wreck has lain in fourteen fathoms of water with treasure to the value of $1,250,000 in the bullion room to tempt the treasure hunter.

AT THE LYCEUM

"Broadway" Jones, which comes to the Lyceum March 21 and 22, is the latest play from the pen of the brilliant young author, George M. Cohan. The story deals with "Broadway" Jones, a young man about town, who squanders a fortune in an endeavor to "do Broadway," and suddenly finds himself penniless and heavily in debt. He engages himself to a rich old widow in his desperate attempt to recoup his fortune, and despite the protestations of his friends he plans to carry out his agreement with the widow. But at the psychological moment a wealthy uncle dies, leaving him a chewing gum factory in Jonesville, Conn. "Broadway" Jones' first thought is to dispose of his inheritance to the highest bidder, but through the influence of "the only girl" he retains his chewing gum factory and becomes a highly respected citizen of Jonesville, Conn.

Martin Beck and Mort H. Singer's big musical success, "A Modern Eve," which has been enjoying a record-breaking engagement in Chicago since last April, will be the attraction at the Lyceum Easter Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Messrs. Beck and Singer have assembled a cast of prominent principals for this tour, and will offer an elaborate scenic and costume production. "A Modern Eve" has proven to be the greatest musical success Europe has sent over and it already surpasses, in point of popularity, any previous musical comedy presented in years. The music, by Victor Hollaender and Jean Gilbert, embraces many song hits already established as popular favorites all over the country. The now famous "Goodbye, Everybody," waltz is being whistled and hummed everywhere. Other popular numbers are "Is the Girl You Married Still the Girl You Love?" "Lonesome Moon," "Rita, My Margarita," "Every Day is Christmas When You're Married," and "Won't You Smile?"

Knowing that an actress, to be successful, must be given a play that fits her as well as do her gowns, Francis X. Hope, who has successfully directed the tour of Adelaide Thurston for several seasons fully realized that "the play is the thing," selected Frederick Paulding as the playwright to furnish Miss Thurston with her new comedy. It has taken Mr. Paulding one year to fulfill this task, but all concerned are wonderfully pleased with the new comic play, "The Love Affair." Mr. Paulding wrote it, knowing Miss Thurston's ability through close association with her as leading man and director. He has selected a capable cast of players. The production will be a sumptuous one with many new and original effects. Miss Thurston's latest gowns secured her while abroad are said to be stunning and will appeal strongly to the feminine portion of the audience. Miss Thurston will be seen at the Lyceum early in April.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," which comes to the Lyceum for four days in April is a virile romance that in book form has been read by 3,000,000 and more of book lovers. Eugene Walter's dramatization is one that warms the blood and stirs the emotion. It is a story of romantic love with just a requisite tinge of the feudal spirit of the Virginia hills to give it bubbling color. In the part of June, the wild mountain girl, Miss Isabelle Lowe has a role in which she will make a direct appeal to all who have already met June in Mr. Fox's original story. The play is given a beautiful production and its long runs in Boston and New York were marked by the largest business of late years.

Every visitor to Broadway the past summer returned home whistling the "Rose Song" or some other "catchy" melody from "The Rose Maid." The newly imported opera ran for two hundred nights before New York could drink its fill of the sweet, enduring melodies and its rollicking fun. This latest production by Werba and Luescher proved so captivating in its music, so full of romance and laughter and so refreshing in its pictorial features, that it was hailed as a prettier work than the same firm's sister production of "The Spring Maid," and its spectacular features warmly praised.

Werba and Luescher are sending their New York cast including Perle Bartl, the Italian prima donna, Juliette Lange, Jeannette Bageard, Ida Van Tine, Henry Coote, Edward Gallagher, Harry Lester Mason, Leo Stark and others, to the Lyceum.

Atheism is exhibited in remarkable measures in the play "The Rosary," which is booked for an early appearance here. Rowland and Clifford are repeating with this play this season.

AT THE ORPHEUM

The bill at the Orpheum next week is rather a family affair or at least so far as two of the acts are concerned. The headline act will be presented by Miss Lydia Barry, comedienne, and the next most important act on the bill will be presented by George Felix, Miss Barry's husband in private life, assisted by Miss Barry's two younger sisters. Lydia Barry formerly appeared in the act with Mr. Felix and the sisters, but since she has produced an act of her own, in which she shines as a single star, she has established herself as a Broadway star of no mean magnitude. Miss Barry has proved herself a comedienne of rare charm and her act is presented with a rippling accompaniment of laughter. Her songs are her own exclusive property written for her by Junie McCree and among their number are "Twenty Years Ago," "Toodle Dum," "The Best Man," "Mrs. Cupid," "Who Let Father Out," "Original Bits" and "Barry." Miss Barry wears some stunning frocks in her act and in addition to her ability as a vaudeville star she claims to have discovered the methods of achieving a "perfect thirty-six." For the thin person who would be plump Miss Barry gives this pleasant advice: "Eat plenty of candy and ice cream, pastries, baked potatoes and lots of butter and after each meal sit down and loll around and don't worry."

For herself she doesn't do this. With Spartan courage Miss Barry advises herself to do this: "Keep away from all sweets; don't touch candy or pastries, or liquors of any kind. Eat no meat except fish and the white meat of chicken and very little of that. Avoid starchy foods such as potatoes and cereals. Drink plenty of water and take lots of exercise. Eat only two meals a day and get up from the table hungry." This is what Miss Barry advises herself to do.

Mr. Felix assisted by the younger Barry sisters will present an act called "The Boy Next Door" and provides ample opportunity for the irresistible comedy for which Mr. Felix has become widely known. His assistants in the act have a chance for singing, dancing, chatting and looking extremely well. Mr. Felix is remembered by many vaudeville patrons for his clever acts with his wife, Lydia Barry, and next week at the Duluth Orpheum vaudeville's patrons will have opportunity to enjoy both performers in separate acts.

Cats are popularly supposed to care and embrace only an existence that provides ample opportunity for sitting by the fire and purring for comfort, unlimited saucers of cream and petting that requires no return, not even in affection. Because a cat is mysterious they have been ascribed all sorts of qualities or rather in most cases lack of qualities, but Mlle. Alaska Teschow has trained a company of cats to perform a series of tricks that astonish many people who have believed the cat merely a creature that can respond only to conditions of creature comfort. Mlle. Teschow with her company of trained cats will be at the Orpheum next week. The cat has ever been considered an animal difficult to instruct and manage and this clever teacher has her company trained to run over the tops of ten pins, go under and over gates, jump through burning hoops, turn a spinnet and two of the number perch on a tight wire and give a most realistic representation of a back alley cat fight. The act will without doubt prove a most interesting one to lovers of animals.

European tumbling clowns are the Arnaut brothers who will appear on next week's bill, and they bring an act that proves a most popular one to the lovers of vaudeville. There have been many accomplished musicians on the Orpheum circuit, but the Arnaut brothers do something entirely new, playing the violin while doing a routine of tumbling tricks. They do their series of tricks while accomplishing other feats in the air and the act is a delightfully amusing one.

The Harvey and De Vora trio in a diversified dancing review will be a popular act of the bill without a doubt. Miss Millie De Vora is an eccentric toe dancer, and with Master John Dough, just three feet high, and Bert Harvey, a trio that fills twenty minutes most pleasingly, is made up. John Dough is called the pocket edition of Bert Williams and is said to be the smallest comedian on the vaudeville stage. Mr. Harvey has originated all of the comedy steps used in the act.

"In the Good Old Summer Time" is a happy mixture of song, dance and story to be presented by Ruby Raymond and Bobby Heath. The duo make their appearance most effectively in a rolling chair before a drop that represents the famous board walk of Atlantic City. Miss Raymond is a particularly chic and attractive young actress of the ingenue type and Mr. Heath is a comedian of much ability, and this partnership recently formed should prove one of the most attractive in vaudeville.

The Youngers, both the man and woman athletes of merit, will be seen in an act of poses and balancing feats and the combination results in an act quite different from that usually presented by gymnasts.

The ever interesting motion pictures of world events and the numbers by the Orpheum concert orchestra will conclude the program which will be given every afternoon and evening of next week beginning with the matinee Sunday.

Daniel Frohman, another earnest worker for the advancement of the American stage has turned his serious attention to vaudeville. Mr. Frohman has produced a one-act play called "Detective Keane," which has already received the brand of success. The playlet will shortly begin a tour over the Orpheum circuit.

Musical comedy has no more popular favorite than Sallie Fisher. A dozen successes owo much to her ability and charm. Miss Fisher has decided on a vaudeville sojourn to be made via the Orpheum circuit.

Those delineators of negro characters, McIntyre and Heath, conceded responsible for minstrelsy being named among the arts, are returning by popular request to several of the Orpheum circuit cities.

That rollicking farce "Billy," which served to exploit Edgar Atchison Ely as a star has been returned to its original form and under its first title "Billy's Tombstones" has been routed over the Orpheum circuit with Mr. Ely in the role he is so closely identified with.

Will J. Ward, a well known comedian, assisted by the Five Melody Maids, a quintet of pretty girls, graceful femininity, are westward bound over the Orpheum circuit. Mr. Ward with his attractive support offer a pot pouri of song and music that is decidedly attractive.

AT THE EMPRESS

Thrills, laughs and pleasing songs will be the order of the vaudeville program starting at the Empress theater on Sunday matinee, March 9, if an enthusiastic press agent is to be believed. Four very pleasing and entertaining acts will be assembled, whose combined efforts will fill out a very delightful hour and a half of entertainment.

First on the bill will be a novelty act, Bulger's Animals. Bulger's animals are three highly trained goats which perform a number of clever stunts and conclude with a novelty in the shape of a burlesque on Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Second come Vance and Vance. These two boys sing, dance and talk. They create much laughter, sing a little and then exchange some merry repartee. The boys have some snappy conversation and most all the patter will be new to Duluth theatergoers, it is claimed. The men sing well together, are good dancers and one of them is a good comedian, according to the advance notices.

Another feature of this bill will be "Those Rathskeller Boys," the Wellington trio. The three boys are said to be artists in the line of entertaining. They can rag and sing popular songs. They will sing "You're My Baby," "Down in Dear Old New Orleans," "Jingle Bells" and "Baby Bumble Bee." All three are said to have very pleasing voices.

Gormley and Gaffrey are in last position, and close the bill. They are comedy acrobats, and are said to be really funny. Comedy acrobatic feats are very hard to perform. It is a good deal easier to do the straight acrobatics. Gormley and Gaffrey are said to give many thrills and laughs.

No one has any fault to find with the good musical shows excepting the price. The only trouble with the average $1.50 musical comedy is the price of the seats. There is no one objecting to seeing a bevy of pretty chorus girls executing dances and singing. No one objects to listening to entertaining comedians; anyone can laugh at the really clever jests, written by the best known American humorists. A kick has never been registered against the scenery and equipment of the successful musical comedies. The trouble, as stated above, has been the price of admission.

There are people who feel that $1.50 is a lot of money for an evening's entertainment; there are men who cannot give theater parties and pay that price for the seats. There are young men working for a modest salary who figure a little that they may take Genevieve to see the choicest entertainments that come.

Those who look upon $1.50 as a sum worthy of notice will be pleased with the announcement that Manager Abrahamson has arranged for the appearance of another musical show at the Empress for three days, starting Thursday matinee, March 13. The scale of prices will remain the same. The name of the show is "A Broken Idol." It is the same show seen on Broadway with a few changes and the price of admission is within reach of every pocketbook. Harry Keesler and Alice Clark are both with the company—and still the prices are "popular."

Empress Notes.

That tabloid promises to be one of the biggest things in latter-day vaudeville is demonstrated by the fact that the biggest men in the business are putting the time, experience and money into it.

The newest venture of this class is the Western Extravaganza company, which is headed by Messrs. Charles E. Kohl, president; Mort Singer, vice president; Hamilton Coleman, producing director, and Louis Macloon as business manager.

Their first production, a condensation of Mort Singer's "The Flirting Princess," was put on at Gary, Ind., one day night, Feb. 17, and the piece was a success and played the capacity.

Reports have it that their chorus is one of the most beautiful and talented that has ever been presented in tabloid. However, there is a reason.

The girls have all served Mr. Singer at the La Salle and at the Princess in the hands of Mr. Coleman have been moulded into near perfection.

Boyle Woolfolk has secured the rights to "Madame Sherry" and will put that piece out in tabloid form later in the season. Dave Marlon's son will probably be one of the players.

In "Miss Nobody From Starland," the record-breaking Mort H. Singer musical comedy, which will be seen at the Empress theater this season, the first act takes place on board a transAtlantic liner, the Lusitania, approaching New York harbor, and when the steamer "lands" the gangplank is lowered into the center aisle and principals and chorus "land" in a mad rush through the audience. The unexpected is always happening in this novel Singer musical success. Particularly attractive and unique is the big dress rehearsal scene supposed to take place at the Princess theater, Chicago. The troubles of a stage manager and the inside workings of a show are realistically portrayed, the auditor being literally taken behind the scenes.

Manager Abrahamson of the Empress theater announces that arrangements have been completed with Mort H. Singer, whereby the music play, "A Stubborn Cinderella," the greatest musical and dramatic success of the season, will be produced in Duluth at the Empress very soon. This is attraction that has been produced over 465 times at the Princess theater in Chicago, holding several records—the record for having "sold out" for more performances than any other attraction ever produced in Chicago; the world's record inasmuch as every seat for every performance was sold out twenty days in advance.

Less than a year ago when tabloid musical comedy first began to make its inroads there were those among the showmen who shook their heads and declared it was only a passing fad that would succumb with the advent of another season.

Boyle Woolfolk was the original producer of tabloid musical comedies. It is through his efforts that such producers as Mort Singer and B. C. Whitney have been induced to become his partners in producing these pemmicanizations of musical success.

The "Isle of Spice" and the "Time, Place and Girl" are the latest former $1.50 attractions to be offered in houses heretofore devoted to variety. The "Isle of Spice" will be an attraction at the Empress theater in the near future.

LYDIA BARRY,

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

The first performance on any stage of "At Bay," the new romantic drama being presented by the Shuberts, with Andrew Mack and Chrystal Herne featured at the head of the company, took place last week in Plainfield, N. J. After a brief out-of-town tour, the play will be offered in New York. The opening of William Hodge in his new play, "The Road to Happiness," also occurred last week. Mr. Hodge, however, will remain on tour for the remainder of the current season, and will not present his new play in New York until autumn.

According to a report, Richard Harding Davis is to write a play for Charles Frohman, to be produced at the Empire theater next fall. It will be the first play Davis has written in a number of years.

Lieblers are planning a revival of the old English Morality play, "Everyman." It is to be given in the Children's theater in the Century Theater building, and Edith Wynne Matthison, who created the title role in this country, will again head the cast.

Some Londoners in the first-night audience of "Oh, Oh, Delphine," when it was produced in the British capital, shouted loudly for the censor. Apart from that, the musical comedy registered a big hit.

Frank Tinney, the comedian, plays five weeks in the Palace Music hall, London. At the end of that time he will visit Paris and then return to this country to rehearse for Ziegfeld's new "Follies." Tinney pleased the Londoners so much that they are offering him $1,250 per week to return, but he wants $1,500.

Julian Eltinge is to have a new piece next season, warranted to give him sufficient opportunities for his impersonation abilities. It is being written by Frederick Chapin.

When the two Farnum brothers, Dustin and William, scored jointly in the production of "The Littlest Rebel," it was determined to form two companies for the road, each brother to head one. Thus the advertising advantage of the Farnum name would be preserved for both. William Farnum has now returned to Broadway on account of poor business, and Dustin Farnum, who has been touring the South, has evidently been having hard sledding because he is stating that this is his last year in the legitimate and that next season he will go into the moving pictures.

For vaudeville purposes Edwin Arden and Anne Sutherland have allied themselves as co-stars and placed their affairs in the hands of Joseph Hart. Their offering will be a playlet by Alice Leal Pollock and Carrington Phelps, entitled "The Stool Pigeon," another story of the underworld.

Albert Phillips and Lelia Shaw as co-stars are to give a revival of "The Great Divide." In private life Miss Shaw is Mrs. Phillips.

Cecilia Loftus, who was to appear at the Orpheum theater, Memphis, last week, is threatened with pneumonia. Miss Loftus contracted a cold in Pittsburg. On arriving in Memphis she went immediately to the theater for rehearsal, but fainted and had to be taken to the hotel in an ambulance.

"Top o' the Mornin'," Anne Caldwell's comedy, produced by Henry W. Savage, ended its long and highly successful engagement in Chicago last week. From Chicago the piece will move to Boston to begin an indefinite engagement there on Easter Monday.

The long and very successful tour of the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera company came to an end in Montreal last week. The principals, including Dolf Wolf Hopper, Eugene Cowles, George J. MacFarlane, Arthur Cunningham, Arthur Aldridge, Blanche Duffeld, Viola Gillette, Louise Barthel and Kate Condon, have been instructed to report in New York immediately after the close of the road tour in order to begin rehearsals of the opera which is to be used by the Shuberts for their annual spring revival.

"The Red Petticoat" begins an unlimited engagement at the American Music hall in Chicago Monday. This production has been extremely successful since its New York run at the Broadway theater, and is still being offered by Helen Lowell and the entire original New York cast.

Blanche Ring will appear in a new comedy, "When Claudia Smiles," early in the springtime, presumably to a season in New York or Chicago. Miss Ring will appear under the direction of Frederic McKay, who has directed her starring tours previously. She will close her season in "The Wall Street Girl" next month, and after a brief vacation at Palm Beach, will return to New York to begin rehearsals of the new piece. "When Claudia Smiles" is by Leo Ditrichstein, author of "The Concert." It is based upon Mr. Ditrichstein's "Vivian's Papas," in which Miss Ring first appeared as a star. Jerome and Schwartz are writing the songs for the new comedy, which will be staged by R. H. Burnside.

The two-a-day audiences are to be entertained further by Janet Beecher, a recruit from the regular stage. Miss Beecher has acquired a sketch which the booking powers like. In passing, it is proper to state that Janet Beecher is one of the best satisfying leading women on the stage.

Norman Hackett has withdrawn Satan Sanderson, which he has played with success for nearly two seasons, and is now starting his new play, "A Double Deceiver," which made a splendid impression when it was tried out in Grand Rapids last November, under the title of "The Deceiver." It is founded on O. Henry's famous story by Donald Clive Stuart of Princeton university, and is the second O. Henry story to reach the stage, "Alias Jimmy Valentine" being the first.

Maude Fealy is now appearing under the management of John Cort in a new play by Clara Louise Burnham, entitled, "The Right Princess," dramatized from the author's novel of the same title. Mental healing is the theme around which the author has woven a delightful love story. In Miss Fealy's company are James Durkin, Teresa Dale, Howard Gridland, Joseph Daily, Henry Douglas, Marcia Harris, Julia Hanchett and Ethel Lodge.

Carter and Mrs. Flora Parker De Haven will grace vaudeville beginning next week.

Ernest Poole, magazine writer, called a Socialist by the Socialists and a Progressive by the Progressives, has written a play. It is called "A Man's Friends," and tells the story of a big fight on the system, waged by the District Attorney of New York. Very few defects of modern political conditions are left unmentioned.

Preparations for the revival of "Rosedale," under William A. Brady's direction, are rapidly advancing.

Under the direction of William A. Brady, John Barrymore is to be seen shortly in a new comedy drama.

Preparations are being made, under the management of William A. Brady, for an elaborate revival of one of the famous classics. Robert B. Mantell, supported by a famous American woman star, will be seen in the production.

Stanley Houghton's brilliant drama, "Hindle Wakes," playing at the Fine Arts theater in Chicago, has attained so great a degree of success that Mr. Brady is preparing to submit Rutherford Mayne's "The Drone," to the same audiences.

When W. H. Post and William Collier were writing "Never Say Die," in which Mr. Collier is now appearing at William A. Brady's Forty-eighth Street theater in New York, an enterprising agent induced the actor to purchase a pencil-sharpening machine. Collier fixed the device to his desk and ground out scenes and shavings industriously and apparently, happily. At the end of a week, however, he began to borrow Post's pocket knife.

"It's a secret, Billy," responded the actor. "But I don't mind telling you. You see, the machine sharpens the pencils so rapidly I can't think. I think while I whittle—no whittle, no think. So if you don't mind, your pen knife, please."

"Years of Discretion" broke all box office record for one week's total receipts at the Belasco theater, New York, last week. This delightful Hatton comedy is overwhelmingly the dramatic hit of the season.

"The Governor's Lady" began a successful four weeks' engagement at the Hollis Street theater, Boston, Monday, Feb. 24. William Elliott and David Belasco have arranged to present this powerful drama in only a few of the large Eastern cities this season, but next year it will cover a coast to coast tour.

Ernest Lawford as the Poet in "A Good Little Devil," which is drawing crowds to the Republic theater, New York, has scored a hit that parallels his famous Capt. Hook in "Peter Pan" and his Tramp in "Passers-by."

A correspondent of the Liebler company takes exception to calling the goddess of the Irish players machine "Lady Agusta" Gregory. Says she is simply "Lady Gregory," being the widow of a knight. However this may be, the Irish players are enjoying the greatest popularity of their young Irish lives. New York having made their Wallack's theater engagement as big a box office success at the players have made it an artistic achievement.

Patricia O'Connor, a young California girl appearing in "Joseph and His Brethren" at the Century theater, New York, appears to be a bigger inheritor in the kingdom of talent than most of her age. Then it was discovered that she could sing, and she was given a vocal number in addition. At a recent special matinee she recited and now she is in receipt of an offer to be almost the whole part of a daily afternoon bill, where she would give the sort of entertainment popularized by Miss Kitty Cheatham.

May Irwin opened in New York the other day, and the newspapers forgot there was any such thing as adverse criticism. The praise of the lady of laughs got was almost hysterical, the general idea being that she and "Widow By Proxy" will run at George M. Cohan's theater as long as Niagara. So much for the famous good fortune of young Mr. Cohan. His own play, "Broadway Jones," stayed at his theater for almost a record-breaking run, and now along comes the Liebler company production of "Widow By Proxy" to continue the cash intake. The morning after the May Irwin opening there was a line in front of the window as long as a dress rehearsal of Niebelungen Ring.

Viola Allen, now starring in the big Century theater spectacle, "The Daughter of Heaven," in the larger cities, has been offered $25,000 to appear for moving pictures in her famous role of Gloria Quayle in "The Christian," provided that arrangements can be made with Hall Caine, the author of the play. It is estimated that it will take ten days to prepare and take these pictures, so that Miss Allen will be paid for her services at the rate of $2,500 a day.

even the intense feelings with which we meet a crisis in life. That morning, when the nine men and boys of the village stood before me in line on the ice in front of their huts of snow and skins, I knew I was standing face to face with an important scientific discovery. From childhood I had been familiar with the literature of the North; I knew that here a thousand and there a hundred men of Scandinavia and of England had disappeared into the Northern mists, to be hid by them forever from the eyes of Europe, and when I saw before me these men who looked like Europeans in spite of their garb of furs, I knew that I had come upon either the last chapter and solution of one of the historical tragedies of the past, or else that I had added a new mystery for the future to solve; the mystery of why these men are like Europeans if they be not of European descent."

Zane Grey's new novel, "Desert Gold," which is appearing serially in the Popular Magazine, promises to be as great a story as "The Heritage of the Desert," which was first published in the Popular, and is now having a wide sale in book form. Mr. Grey's new story is staged on the borders of Mexico, and one gets a close view of that country from the wonderful pen pictures which lend reality to the narrative. The descriptive powers of Zane Grey were never more in evidence; and there is plenty of stirring action, too, in the tale.

President Wilson's policies and methods have been the subject of many magazine articles, but the opening paper in the March Atlantic takes a different turn and attempts an acute but fair-minded characterization of the kind of man Mr. Wilson is. The signature, E. S., is the same as that subscribed to former papers on Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan, much discussed at the time. A paper of peculiar interest at the moment is an appraisal by Francis E. Leupp of the present and future prospects of the Republican party. The title, "The Passing of a Dynasty," sums up Mr. Leupp's conviction that the Republican party, as we understand the term, has lived its life and will never be known again. Important in the number is Theodore N. Vail's weighty discussion of "Public Utilities and Public Policy." Mr. Vail's position as president of two of the greatest American public service corporations renders his statement of ideal policies peculiarly interesting. Another article of public interest in this issue is a discussion of "The Courts and Legislative Freedom," by George W. Alger.

The March Century contains many special features, both in text and illustration. Robert Hichens's travel series on the Balkan peninsula begins in that number, and is illustrated in color by Jules Guerin, who has done similar duty in previous travel series by Mr. Hickens written for the Century. Joseph Pennell's new series of lithographs also begins in the March number, with six views of the capitol at Washington. Mr. Hichens's article also has two Pennell pictures. Three of the March Century features are given timeliness by a Democratic president's inauguration—"The Kind of a Man Woodrow Wilson Is," by W. G. McAdoo; "Woodrow Wilson as a Man of Letters," by Prof. Bliss Perry, and "Grover Cleveland and His Cabinet at Work," by Hilary A. Herbert, who was secretary of the navy in the last Democratic administration. The After-the-War feature for March—the fifth in that noteworthy series—is an account of "The Arbitration of the Alabama Claims," written by Col. William Conant Church, editor of the Army and Navy Journal. The article is profusely illustrated.

The Popular Science Monthly for March contains the following articles: "Henri Poincare as an Investigator," by Prof. James Byrnie Shaw; "A Chronicle of the Tribe of Corn," by Prof. E. M. East; "The Utilization of the Nitrogen of the Air," by Prof. Arthur A. Noyes; "The Laboratory Method and High school efficiency," by Prof. Otis W. Caldwell; "How European Agriculture is Financed," by Prof. H. C. Price; "A Study in Jewish Psychopathology," by Dr. J. C. Wilson; "The Language of Meteorology," by Charles Fitzhugh Talman; "The Sweden Valley Ice Mine and Its Explanation," by Marlin O. Andrews; "What Becomes of the Light of the Stars," by Dr. Frank W. Very; "The Academic Situation;" "The Depths of the Ocean;" "Sir George Howard Darwin."

The Easter number of Life is a large, more-than-double number, containing seventy-two pages of pictures, text and advertisements—not the least of which are the advertisements. There is a cartoon in colors by Angus MacDonald, showing His Satanic Majesty looking longingly at the world, to which presumably he will return on the twenty-third of March. Among the other features may be mentioned a striking picture of "Father Time" in half-tone; a continuation of Life's "Collection of Old Prints," this one being "Elijah's Experience with the Fiery Chariot;" and the "Perfect Lady," being some hints upon etiquette pictorially rendered by Chester Garde.

The World's Work for March might well be called an Inauguration number. President Wilson unfolds his ideas on the trust question and its remedy in an article entitled "Monopoly or Opportunity." This article is the third in his series on "The New Freedom." William Bayard Hale describes "Presidential Inaugurations at Four Crises." R. W. Woolley describes the national patronage situation—its humors, tragedies, and serious import—in "The Race for Federal Jobs." Hon. Franklin K. Lane, perhaps the most influential member of the interstate commerce commission, reveals very frankly the ideals and methods of the commission in its work of regulating the railroads. Illustrated articles include "Five Rattling Detective Adventures," by Arthur B. Reeve (revelation of the new methods by which crooks are made to catch themselves under the influence of the "law of suggestion"); "A City Health Pilot," by Frank Parker Stockbridge (the courageous and winning fight by which Dr. Charles T. Nesbitt has regenerated sanitary conditions in Wilmington, N. C.); "The Day's Work of the Mt. Wilson Observatory," by Prof. George Ellery Hale (the largest American observatory and its work described by the foremost student of solar phenomena.)

The March National contains one of the most enjoyable biographical articles published in recent years, "A Day with John D. Rockefeller" by the editor, and it is accounted one of the most interesting sketches concerning Mr. Rockefeller that has ever been published. In line with the National editor's policy to keep in touch with prominent men, the story of "Henry Ford and the Birds" is intensely interesting. Mr. Ford is the head of the Ford Automobile company, one of the largest motor factories in the world, but when he tells of the song of the robin being the first thing he can remember, he chronicles the depth and tenderness of his life interest in birds. One of the most powerful poems ever written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "The Sword," appears in the March National splendidly illustrated. "The Fall of Constantinople" by Charles W. Hall is an effective sketch of the centuries of struggle between the Crescent and the Cross for the possession of Constantinople, and is elegantly illustrated.

The Wide World magazine for March contains stories and articles dealing with places in all the quarters of the globe. Among the narratives is one entitled "Expelled From Mexico," which is decidedly tropical. It appears that a few months ago an article appeared in the Wide World entitled "The Master Bandit" which roused the ire of President Madero's government with the result that the author, Henry H. Dunn, was arrested, confined for thirty-six hours without food or water in a "filthy, verminous cell," denied communication with his consul or ambassador and finally sent under guard to the frontier where he was expelled as a "pernicious foreigner."

The Strand magazine for March contains some excellent fiction by such writers as Morley Roberts, Richard Marsh, E. M. Jameson, Herman Scheffauer and Beatrice Heron-Maxwell. The story by Scheffauer, entitled "The Hostage of the Air," is one of the most remarkable that this writer has given us for some time. A long serial by Conan Doyle, entitled "The Poison Belt," is announced and also one by Baroness Orczy, "Unto Caesar." Prof. John J. Ward writes an interesting article on "The Mystery of the Sap," and Prof. A. T. Poffenberger of Columbia university describes the operations of "Testing the Senses."

In the issue of Harper's Weekly for March 1 appears an article by Edward G. Riggs entitled "Boss Lord," which describes the famous managing editor of the New York Sun. Other articles in this issue are: "Winter in the Catskills," by A. W. Dimock; "The Motor-truck and the Farmer," by Thaddeus S. Dayton; "Our New Industrial Conservation," by Robert Sloss. This issue contains the usual editorials, fiction, cartoons, illustrated accounts of current events, drama, finance and humor features.

GETTING READY FOR THE OPENING

The first of next week will see the beginning of the annual "fitting out" of the fleet of freighters at the Head of the Lakes. Vessel men are waiting anxiously and on edge for the season to open—for what a wonderful season seems about to open! The banner season of all time on the Great Lakes is the promise and the hearty expectation, and if it does not reach fulfillment there are going to be many captains, engineers and even deckhands basely deceived and disappointed.

More than 50,000,000 tons of ore to go down the lakes from Lake Superior in 1913," has been the slogan ever since the tie-up last fall, and it is asserted and generally believed that millions of more bushels of grain will go forward by lake than ever before; also that the coal movement during the coming season will establish a new mark, so far ahead of all other seasons that the past will be forgotten and forgiven.

It is with eagerness that the masters and engineers are gathering at the Head of the Lakes to get their vessels in ship-shape. Already those of the advance guard are prowling about the docks of the ships until one with little imagination can almost see impatience for the beginning of the season in the inanimate hulks themselves. These giant craft, of which aside from tugs, there are almost seventy in the harbor, are frozen in ice, but one was moved the other day, the Pendennis White being cut out of the ice and moved under the spouts of Elevator E of the Consolidated group to take on board almost 300,000 bushels of grain. All vessels that are insured by the underwriters must remain at least 100 feet away from docks or elevators or from anything which is of an inflammable character, but the vessels whose companies carry their own insurance lie where the company managers please.

Over 13,000,000 bushels of grain are stored in hulls afloat in the harbor, and when the season opens all the vessels that are light will be loaded either with grain or iron ore and rushed to Lake Erie. That there will be cargoes for all both up and down, there is no question. The chief trouble seems to be that bottoms enough cannot be chartered for the movement of the various commodities.

The coming season will see several freighters on the lakes and one or two new passenger steamers.

The engineers of the Pittsburg fleet will begin the overhauling for the opening of the season on Monday in some of the ships and will get under way in this line at different times, according to the class of the ship, from then until March 10. Soon after that the newly collected crews will be mustered, and in fact at the present time the initial crews are being signed up. It is expected that navigation will open some time between April 10 and 20.

GUARDING AGAINST AIRSHIPS

Bill Passed by British Parliament to Stop Passage of Aircraft Over Certain Specified Areas---Alarmed by Midnight Visits of Continental Aviators.

London, March 4.—A popular pastime nowadays with continental aviators would seem to be flying trips by night over England. Daring air pilots in Germany or France leave their moorings at dusk, speed over the channel, and then circle over British cities and forts, flashing their lights to mystify and alarm the people below them. With the first indications of dawn the adventure comes to an end. The prowling birdman heads for home, houses his machine before the sun is well up, and leaves the officials of England to report his excursion to the war office in London.

Reports of these night visits became so general, and were at the same time so disconcerting, that the government finally took official action and passed a bill prohibiting the passage of aircraft over certain specified areas. Aircraft violating this regulation will be fired on and otherwise warned away. The bill was introduced into the house of commons by Col. Seeley, secretary of war, and it passed through all its stages at one sitting, without discussion. It went to the lords the day before recess, and passed that house just as hurriedly. How the measure is to be enforced has aroused considerable interested speculation. The bill authorizes the proper officers, after giving a prescribed warning, to fire at any aircraft infringing this law, and to use any and every means to prevent infractions. The government is providing "sky guns" to repel these aerial trespassers, and it will also have the services of the naval aeroplanes and hydroplanes and the flying fleet of the army, which consists of about a dozen aeroplanes and three small airships.

Experts have very grave doubts whether these precautions will be sufficient to prevent the midnight visits. Col. Seeley, in introducing the bill, said it was not aircraft belonging to foreign governments that were aimed at, but mischievous private persons, possibly from over-seas, who might "hover over places where there are combustible stores, to the great inconvenience of the people of the country."

Cause of Government's Action.

What gave rise to the action of the government were reliable reports, in some cases from army officers, that aircraft had been seen over Dover, Sheerness, Portsmouth and Liverpool, and on at least two occasions as far west as Cardiff, always at night. The first visits were paid in October and they have continued up to the present time. At first there was an inclination to make light of them, or to ascribe the moving lights and the noise of the propeller to some airship privately owned in England. But investigation showed that this could not be, and now the government places the blame on privately owned foreign airships.

Some people, however, discard this assumption, and declare that at least one of the aerial visitors came from Borkum, the German fortress nearest the English coast. From Borkum it would be a very simple matter for a modern airship to pass over the North Sea and even right across England, as in the case of the ship that flew over Cardiff, and be back at her base before morning. Those who claim to have evidence that this flight was made from Borkum go further and say that the German government has several airships at Emden, and that when a flight over England is projected one of these crafts is taken to Borkum and the start made from there.

According to official returns Germany had twelve airships of large dimensions at the end of 1912, and it is believed that she had added to this number since. There are also ten privately owned airships in Germany. Against these England has three airships of very small dimensions, and one large airship now under construction in Germany. England has a greater number of aeroplanes than Germany, however, and when a prospective battle in the air is discussed British officers argue that an aeroplane, acting as a destroyer, could very easily put a night-prowling airship out of business.

New Suffrage Bill.

Those Liberal members of the house of commons who support women's suffrage have agreed upon a bill which will be introduced at the next session of parliament, but they have not been successful in getting the Unionists and Laborites, who also believe in giving the vote to women, to act with them. In fact there is a very wide difference of opinion among the suffragists as to how broadly the franchise should be extended in the case of women.

The bill of the Liberal suffragists would confer the parliamentary franchise on (1) women, whether married or unmarried, who, if they were men, would be entitled to be registered and to vote in respect of a household qualification; namely, as inhabitants or occupiers of dwelling houses; and (2) the wives of such inhabitant occupiers, residing on the same premises as their husbands. The bill would restrict the franchise to women over 25 years of age. This bill would receive the support of those members of the cabinet who support the vote for women.

Of the other suffragists in the house, the Unionists would not go so far as the Liberals and the Laborites would go further. The former support what is known as the conciliation bill, which confers the vote on women property owners or women who occupy houses independently. The Labor party is out for adult suffrage for both men and women. They point out that either of the other bills would shut out thousands of working girls and women who reside with their parents, or at any rate have no independent place of residence.

The Liberals intend to frame their bill so that amendments can be introduced, and the house given an opportunity of deciding which, if any, form of suffrage they wish to extend to women.

Will Asquith Retire?

The report has again been revived that Mr. Asquith is preparing to resign the premiership and that before long he will retire to the house of lords. There is no doubt that he would like to resign and get out of the turmoil of politics, but it is just as certain that he will not give up, unless of course, forced to do so, until the home rule bill finally becomes law, which, except for accidents, it should do in May, 1914. Mr. Asquith has pledged himself to do his best to give Ireland self-government, and besides he is anxious that his name should be identified with the accomplishment of this measure as Mr. Gladstone's was with its advancement. Some of the proposals of the Radical members of his cabinet are not altogether to his liking, and latterly he has found it more and more difficult to curb some of them. So that when home rule becomes an accomplished fact, and the end of the present parliament affords the opportunity, it is expected that he will hand over the reins to some younger man.

LAST ACT IN THE POLAR DRAMA

Capt. Scott's Tragic Death Ends Polar Point Obsession, Says French Geographer---Valuable Work Now to Be Accomplished.

Paris, March 8.—Referring to the tragic end of Capt. Robert F. Scott on his recent voyage to the South Pole, M. Schrader, the eminent French geographer, expresses the opinion that the death of the English explorer is the last act in the drama of the Polar Point obsession, which has caused the loss of so many lives.

The discoveries of Peary, Amundsen and Scott have at last removed the imperative desire of scientists to find the poles. M. Schrader declares, and leave the way clear for a considerable and important task, the results of which will be far reaching. This consists in establising a chain of circumpolar observations, a vast system of scientific "monasteries," international in character.

The atmospheric and marine currents which circulate, winter and summer alike, round the pole perpetually mix water and air. The cold waters descend toward the south, carrying quantities of ice, and are continually replaced by masses of warmer water which come from the Atlantic. Above these ice fields, floating toward the south, hovers a layer of cold air ever falling on to the frozen mass beneath, as a heavy syrup drops and remains at the bottom of a glass of water. In their turn the sea breezes push and stir up this mass of cold air, lift it from it icy bed, and send it to cool America and Europe.

These cold masses of air, as soon as they come in contact with the tepid atmosphere of the Atlantic, condense the moisture, precipitate rain, and brew tempests. Thus, by developing an accurate knowledge of the courses of the ice fields, by following them in their southward course and observing the phenomena of their slow fusion in the middle of the Atlantic, it would be possible to foretell, to a great extent, the force of the winds, the alteration and character of the seasons, and the likelihood of drouth or wet. Warning against atmospheric dangers could be given, and there would be ample time to adopt such precautions as circumstances dictated.

New Theater.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Otto H. Kahn, J. P. Morgan, James H. Hyde and James Stillman are some of the Americans who have joined Monsieur Gabriel Astruc in building the Theater Champs Elysee, the most beautiful playhouse in Paris. These are all shareholders in the enterprise, as are a good many other persons well known in England, France and Germany. The committee of patrons includes the queen of the Belgians, the prince of Monaco, the Grand Duchess Vladimir, the duchess of Genoa, the crown princess of Roumania, Prince Louis Ferdinand of Bavaria, the duchess of Portland and the duchess of Rutland.

The theater, which will be opened April 2, will be devoted to the whole range of musical and dramatic art and classic and modern operas. The building will contain two auditoriums, one seating 2,000 and the other 600 people.

Against Luminous Signs.

That energetic organization known as the "Old Paris committee," whose mission it is to preserve as much as possible of the antiquities of the city and its beauties, has taken up the question of obtrusive illuminated and other advertising devices which disfigure so many buildings in this city. They have concluded that steps should now be taken to prohibit business houses in such centers of interest as the Place Vendome and the Champs Elysees from placing perpendicular signs on their establishments. The committee condemns luminous signs in every form. An effort is also to be made toward abolishing the display of goods outside store premises.

Charges Denied.

The attention of Prince Nicolas of Greece, military governor of Salonika, having been drawn to a passage in a book of Pierre Loti's, in which the author says that officers of the French warship Bruix could testify to having seen Greek and Servian soldiers gouge out the eyes of Turkish prisoners, the prince sent his chief staff officer, Maj. Vlachopoulo, on board the Bruix with a copy of the book to show Capt. Delage.

The captain has now written to Prince Nicolas to say that he submitted the statement in Loti's book to his officers. All were unanimous in characterizing it as gratuitous, and declared emphatically that nothing that they had said or written could possibly be taken as authorizing Loti to cite their testimony for facts of such a nature, which had never come within their experience.

Capt. Delage added that he had drawn the attention of the minister of marine to the way in which his officers' names had been invoked without their consent or knowledge, and asked him to request Loti to suppress the statement in question.

Refuse to Pay Taxes.

From times to which the memory of man runneth not back, the pretty town of Stein on the Rhine has had no taxes. The common lands belonging to the township yielded revenues sufficient to pay all public expenses, and they were let to the people at prices so moderate that not a poor family was to be found in Stein. The local authorities overspent last year, and are now trying to lay a tax of one-half of one per cent on the property holders. They all refuse to pay, and there seems to be no way of making them.

Statue in Tree.

While cutting up a century-old fir tree on the Simplon, foresters found in the heart of the trunk a bronze statue of the Virgin Mary. It was about a foot tall and perfectly preserved. It is supposed that the statuette was placed in a niche carved in the tree and that the wood gradually grew around it.

Foreigners in Switzerland.

Fifteen per cent of the population of Switzerland are foreigners. There were 565,296 enumerated in 1910, and a measure is pending in the Federal dict to require them to become naturalized citizens. The Swiss government finds a good deal of inconvenience in being frequently obliged to discuss with foreign consuls and legations questions in which foreign subjects seek to evade Swiss laws by taking refuge in the fact that they are of alien nationality.

There has been a remarkable increase of motor vehicles in France. In 1900 there were only 2,354 private automobiles in use. By 1907 the number had risen to 31,295, and the return for 1910 gives the figures at 53,669. A great part of this total belongs to the city of Paris, where there are no fewer than 9,995 private automobiles, as compared with only 1,438 eleven years previously. In that city there were last year over 4,600 "auto taxis," 1,225 automobiles for hire, etc.

SUFFRAGIST-BAITING.

One cannot help wondering what has been the sober second thought of the members of the mobs that did their best to break up the women's parade at Washington on the day before inauguration. That their efforts were deliberately planned in advance is difficult to believe. It is far more likely that they yielded to the spirit of mischief that sometimes gets a hold on people during public demonstrations, and that when the bystanders saw that there was no interference by the police, they followed the line of least resistance and took part in the baiting.

Whether deliberate or not, the conduct of the Washington mobs was a disgrace to the country as well as to the capital. There was ground for doubt as to the general character of the affair when the first reports were sent out, but the cumulative testimony given before the congressmen who investigated it has done away with that doubt. Further, it has fastened on the Washington police the charge of helping in the disorder instead of trying to stop it.

If responsibility for the suffrage-baiting can be fixed, the guilty persons should be punished severely. The women were doing no more than men have done time and again in presenting various causes to the public, and the women were entitled to at least as decent treatment as is accorded to men. They were entitled to police protection in any event, and the more so since congress had specifically called attention to that fact by adopting a resolution. The Washington affair was a disgrace, and those responsible for it should be made to feel the weight of public disapproval.

It must be admitted that there is something absolutely primitive in the Mexican method of disposing of second choice candidates.

THE TWINS ARE FLIRTING.

Weird yarns are floating northward from the Twin Cities. Yarns that make one pause and look incredulous. Yarns that tempt one to doubt the evidence even of friends, and that make the student of the Scriptures think of that time when the lion and the lamb shall lie down together.

For the report is that the Twins are flirting!

There have been other similar reports in past ages, but they always proved false. They emanated from the brain of some outsider who had wearied of the age-long strife between the Twins and who sought by some means to unite their interests if not their corporal entities.

But this time the report comes from the Twins themselves, and tells how the police forces of the two cities are to co-operate, even to the extent that patrolmen on the border lines of each city shall carry keys to the patrol boxes on the other side.

Think of it, ye incredulous! A St. Paul policeman with a key to a Minneapolis patrol box, and a Minneapolis policeman with a key to a patrol box in St. Paul! Could anything be more difficult of belief? And there is not even a rumor that those patrol boxes will be chained down or painted different colors.

The Twins are on dangerous ground. Nobody ever can tell to what these seemingly innocent flirtations will lead. We may even be brought face to face with the possibility of losing the Twins through their consolidation as a single civic unit. This may be but the initial step toward a movement that will deprive us of our periodical debate on whether the state fair grounds are in Minneapolis or St. Paul, and all the other amusing discussions incident to the old-time relations of the Twins.

But let's not worry. At least not until they begin to discuss the question of a name. That is where we'll have them safe. Minnepaul, St. Apolis, St. Minne, and all other possible combinations have been weighed on the public tongue and found wanting. An abortive effort has been made to agree on the name "Twin City," but that was during the Roosevelt campaign, so it will not count.

Yes, the name is going to be the difficulty if the present flirtation should develop any serious intentions. Until some name begins to be regarded complacently on both sides of the river, let the Twin City policemen swap keys and beats at will. It will be time enough to get really excited about it when the name question shows signs of settlement.

There is a strong tendency in some quarters to spell a certain congressman's name "Phew-joke."

LABOR SHOULD APPLAUD THIS ACT.

Organized labor should applaud one of the last acts of President Taft—the veto of the sundry civil bill. The veto was applied to the bill for no other reason than that it contained a gratuitous insult to organized labor. This was the provision that no national funds appropriated for the investigation of alleged illegal combinations should be used to inquire into the conduct or operations of labor unions or farmers' organizations.

Imagine the legislature passing a law providing that all thieves and murderers must be punished severely, unless they happen to wear purple hose. Or suppose the city commissioners adopted an ordinance to the effect that the paving of streets should not be paid for until the work had been officially approved, unless that work had been done by John Smith. Does the fact that a man wears purple hose or that his name is John Smith guarantee any such degree of perfection that he should be exempt from the limitations imposed on his fellow citizens? Not at all. And it would be in the last degree insulting to those exempted from liability, as well as to those not so exempted.

In passing the bill in that form congress showed poor judgment of the character of the American workingman. He does not ask for any special privileges. He only asks fair play. He does not propose to break the law, and he does not ask for immunity from investigation. If his acts appear questionable, he wants the doubt cleared up. To propose anything else is to affront American labor. Mr. Taft saw this, and prevented such an affront. And organized labor should applaud his action.

Oh yes—and how about the annual shortage of Easter lilies?

MORE INCENSE FOR MARS.

Year after year the world sees more incense burned on the altar of the war god. Men spend time and treasure seeking either more effective means of destruction or more capable forms of resistance to destructive forces. Only recently our own government has been at work perfecting a 14-inch gun for coast defense purposes that is said to be the last word in destructibility.

Now comes word from England that one William Henry Worrall of Sheffield has invented a new process for making armor plate, by which a comparatively thin shield of metal can be made to resist even the 14-inch projectiles. Final tests are yet to be made of the product of his process, and naval men are frankly skeptical of the soundness of his claims. His idea, it is said, is the welding or bonding of four or six sheets of metal into one plate, instead of molding the plate as a whole in one ingot. If his claims are substantiated, warships can be efficiently protected with much thinner and lighter armor than is used at present.

Of the cost of this process the London Times, which gives an account of the new armor, tells nothing. But its final test must be made with a gun that cost $150,000, and with shells that will cost not less than $600 each. And if the tests prove that the new plates are incapable of withstanding the shells, there will be just that much labor and money gone to waste.

What is the good of it all? Will the nations never learn that there are other means of settling difficulties than by bleeding the people's pockets of their daily earnings and by slaughtering men wholesale? Incense enough has been burned on the altar of the war god. It is time the world woke up to the folly of it all.

It's really too bad that Mexico was too busy to take notice of the way we change presidents on this side the line.

ENGLAND IS ACTING DISGRACEFULLY.

China has made an appeal to the civilized nations of the world that ought to meet with ready and earnest response. She is protesting against having the opium business, which has been thoroughly crushed by the efforts of the Chinese government, thrust upon her again by England.

As described by the Pekin correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, the situation is this: English merchants have secured great quantities of opium in India, and have taken the drug to China to sell. They have found no market there, owing to the effective work of the Chinese government in stamping out the opium evil in that country. In order to prevent these merchants from suffering loss by their vain attempt to override China's laws against opium, the British government is demanding that the Chinese government buy this opium from the merchants and establish an opium monopoly in China.

In this England is acting disgracefully. As is pointed out by the Chinese foreign minister, should China adopt this plan, the Pekin government would be unable to enforce its prohibition against the growing of opium in China, and the nation would inevitably fall back to the drug-slavery from which it has been rescued with such difficulty and expense.

What if the British merchants did lose on their speculation? They knew, when they undertook it, of China's war on the opium traffic, and they simply risked their money on the belief that China was not acting in good faith or would be unable to accomplish the results sought. They were mistaken, and it is no duty of the British government to force China to make up to these men the loss they have sustained through China's adherence to a right principle, especially since such action as England proposes would operate to re-establish the opium curse in a country that has succeeded in rooting it out.

China has appealed to the other civilized powers to protest to England against the compulsion of the buying of this opium by the Chinese government. The powers appealed to should heed the appeal and make vigorous protests to London. Such action as England proposes would disgrace the whole civilized world.

Also it is difficult to realize that Tama Jim Wilson is no longer in the cabinet.

"CAR FULL."

Boston is trying an experiment. Not the kind of experiment naturally looked for in Boston, involving abstract investigation into the psychological phenomena of cerebral evolution, but a plain, everyday experiment as to the best way to humanize the street car service.

Briefly, Boston is having a tryout on one of its lines of the "car full" idea. That is, when a car contains as many persons as can find comfortable space in it, sitting or standing, a sign reading "Car Full" is hung on the outside, and that car does not stop to take on any more passengers until some of those already on board have disembarked.

When the plan was proposed the transportation company declared that any such arrangement would be sure to meet with violent opposition on the part of patrons who were compelled to wait until another car came along. It was pointed out that the company could furnish a few extra cars so that these people would not have so long to wait, but the company said that wouldn't make any difference. That the people would insist on jamming themselves into the first car that arrived, instead of being willing to wait for another.

But the scheme is being tried out, in spite of the objection, and the plan is, unless the protests from those left on the corners become too strong, to adopt the "car full" idea on all lines where it has been the custom to pack human beings in like so many sardines.

If the public will endure the slight delays thereby imposed, the plan will be a real benefit to street car patrons. It will not only insure greater comfort in travel, but it will do away with a serious menace to public health, for street cars are not built for ventilation under crowded conditions, and they become veritable disease-spreaders when they are so crowded. Furthermore, the avoidance of crowding will expedite travel, for there will be no need of long delays at crossings while passengers fight their way to the door.

If the people of Boston find the "car full" idea satisfactory, there will be good reason to try it in other cities. Public sanction of the plan is only a matter of education, and the public should be willing to be educated. It would be distinctly to their own advantage.

Now there is talk of making Roosevelt mayor of New York city. But what will Oyster Bay have to say to such a scheme?

THE HOURS OF VOTING.

Ernest support is given by the Renville Star-Farmer to the bill now before the legislature that provides for opening the polls in precincts outside the larger cities at 9 o'clock a. m. instead of at 6 o'clock. It is urged that in the country districts the earlier hour works positive hardship on the election officials, and that in the villages it is "a useless expenditure of energy to open the polls so early."

There is reason in the Star-Farmer's attitude. Certainly there would seem to be no good reason for having the voting places open so early in localities where the voters do not make use of the early opportunity to cast their ballots, and where they can just as well go at a later hour.

There is another change that might be made advantageously in the hours of keeping the polls open, and that is to provide for earlier closing than now obtains in the cities. Nine o'clock at night is a late time, and it means that the election officials are kept up practically all night to cast up the results. In many parts of the East the polls close at 5 o'clock, and in most of them at 6 o'clock. All men could arrange to vote at some time between 6 or 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., and it would be infinitely more humane to the election officials to close the polls at the earlier hour. That must be an exceptionally interesting issue that will take a man from his home in the evening to vote when he has once arrived there, though probably a majority of them would make it a point to go to the polls before going home if they knew they would lose a chance to cast their ballots if they did not go then.

To adopt the later opening hour outside the larger cities would be a reasonable move. In the cities the opening of the polls at 6 o'clock is more necessary. But there is no reason for keeping them open until 9 at night.

Plenty of time yet for the chartering of the new Ananias club—if there is to be one.

YOUR CHOICE OF PLATFORMS.

Some two-score and more men are at work among the people of Duluth today, each one with arguments as to why the people should support him for mayor or commissioner in the new city government. The election will be held April 1—which will make it a very real April Fools' day for all but seven of the candidates—and the new officers will take hold of municipal affairs on April 14.

Of course personality will count somewhat in determining whom you will vote for, but there will also be the consideration of the platforms. You will want to know what each man stands for in city affairs. You will want to know what he proposes to do about certain matters. And what you find you can expect of him will determine largely whether you decide to hire him to run the city's business.

We are all like that, you know. We depend a good deal, in our judgment of a man, on what we find he stands for. If he favors fraud and deceit and crooked dealing we have mighty little time for him. His platform, if he wants our hearty approval and assistance, must be a declaration for clean business and decent life, both in private and in public.

Everybody is like that. Their estimate of you will not be complete until they find out what you stand for; what your platform is. And by the way, what is it? Are you for clean business, honest living, and fair play for all? Or are you in favor of cheating a little here and there where you think it may not be found out? What is your personal platform for everyday life? Would you vote confidence in another man who took the same stand you do? Are you entitled to the confidence of others? What is your platform, anyway?

President Wilson proposes to have national affairs conducted on publicity lines. But at that it will take some time to make up for the lack of publicity that preceded the announcement of the new cabinet.

Wonder what the former cabinet guessers are turning their attention to now?

Philippine English

Editorial in the Springfield, Mass., Republican.

We have been told extraordinary tales by sanguine officials as to the avidity with which the Filipinos take to the American language and as to the millions of natives who have mastered it. But our admiration is somewhat dulled by some samples of this mastery which have lately been offered. As a part of the propaganda the order was issued some months ago by the acting governor-general that all provincial and municipal officers should wherever possible conduct official business in the English language. The order in due course reached Sorsogen where the town council after solemn thumbing of the dictionary produced this extraordinary measure:

"Resolution—That according to the general budget of expenditures (appear the sum of p186.00 assignment of the circular motion of the municipal cemetery without the said amount has not been expended neither on his part) and the said quantity with appropriates the sum of p100.00 for pay of two carts."

In some respects it is remarkably perfect English, especially for those whose mastery of it has been so sudden. The words are choice, they are spelled with flawless accuracy, the errors in grammar are trivial. The only serious trouble with the passage, in fact, is a certain obscurity in style. It is not difficult to grasp the general drift of the sentiments and desires of the assembled concejales. Confronted with a surplus of 186 pesos, or some $75, from the annual budget, there is a manifest intention on the part of the councilors to appropriate 100 pesos to buy two carts, probably bull carts for work on the roads. But between these two spots of light there is a fascinating field for conjecture. How is one to guess that "the circular motion of the municipal cemetery" is simply a fence about the graveyard of the town? How did "circular motion" ever come to mean a fence even in the imagination of a foreigner? And who is referred to in "neither on his part"? Here the eclipse becomes total.

As a school exercise, this would be highly creditable, and no doubt our schools do worse every day in foreign languages. It is far more correct, if not more lucid, than the law French which used to flourish in England, as for example in 1631, when Chief Justice Richardson "fuit assault per prisoner la condemne pur felony que puis son condemnation ject un brickbat a le dit justice che narrowly mist." But it does not seem obvious that the time is ripe for making English the general medium of official business in the islands. In the present case no great harm is done; the town government has $75 to spend and wants to devote $41 of it to buying two carts; it could reach that decision well enough in Coptic or in sign talk. But whether a notice published in this dialect would be comprehensible to the public at large seems more dubious. If this is what is to pass for English it would be easier for officials and other foreigners to learn Spanish and Tagalog.

Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. SAYS MOVEMENT IS MOST TIMELY

To the Editor of The Herald:

I believe that the movement of the West Duluth Commercial club to have an investigation of the welfare board and Associated Charities is timely. If there is a duplication of expenditures the city should know it, as well as all the facts relative to the expenses, salaries and expenditures. The present council should let all ordinances authorizing the welfare board to hire any kind of an expert, social center or otherwise, go over until they can be handled by the new commission. Why can't or doesn't the secretary of the welfare board start the social center movement without waiting for another expert to be brought from the outside.

Women as Inventors

Woman's World: It is sometimes stated that women lack creative ability, and it will surprise a great many people to learn that feminine skill and ingenuity have played an honorable part in supplying the world with the useful inventions that have contributed so largely to its material progress.

A remarkable versatility in talent is shown in the case of Harriet Hosmer. She is noted as the sculptor of the Sleeping Faun, and also as the inventor of the permanent magnet as a motive power for lifting large masses of metal, and of a novel method of changing lime into marble.

The ice cream freezer was invented by Mrs. Nancy M. Johnson. The science of anatomy is indebted to Mme. De Condray for the manikin, while Jeannette Powers is the author of the aquarium.

Miss Mary Walton of New York has contributed to the comfort of mankind a device for deadening the sound on elevated railroads, and also a successful smoke consumer.

In 1871 Margaret Knight of Boston invented a machine for making paper bags, and a Washington woman has given her name to the Coston light, so valuable in maritime signaling. Frances Dunham is responsible for the comb foundation for beehives.

It should be borne in mind that all these products of woman's skill are eminently practical and successful, and they are only a few random examples of what the sex has accomplished. When we consider that these things have been done in the very beginning of woman's emancipation from the handicaps of tradition, it does not seem very extravagant to imagine that some day the world may be honoring a female Edison.

Lincoln in the "Sweatbox."

Washington Star: On one of President Lincoln's excursions to Fort Monroe on the steamer Hartford in 1863 his attention was directed to a narrow door, bound with iron, the use of which he was anxious to learn.

"What is this?" he asked.

"Oh, that is the 'sweatbox,'" was the reply. "It is used for refractory and insubordinate seamen. A man in there is subjected to steam heat and has very little ventilation. It generally brings him to terms very quickly."

Lincoln's curiosity was aroused. "This," he said to himself, "is treatment to which thousands of American seamen probably are subjected every year. Let me try for myself and see what it really is."

Taking off his hat, for he was several inches more than six feet tall, he entered the inclosure, which he found to be a little more than three feet in length or width. He gave orders that at a signal from himself the door should be immediately opened. It was then closed and the steam turned on.

He had been there hardly three minutes before the signal was given. President Lincoln experienced enough of what was then regarded as necessary punishment for American seamen. There was very little ventilation, and the short exposure to the hot and humid air had almost suffocated him.

Turning to Secretary Welles of the navy department, the president ordered that no such inclosure as the "sweatbox" should ever after that be allowed on any vessel flying the American flag.

It was not an hour after this order had been given before every sailor on every ship in Hampton Roads had heard of it. The effect was most remarkable on the old sailors, many of whom had themselves experienced the punishment of the sweatbox. Some of them wept for joy.

But the good results of this act of President Lincoln were not confined to the American navy. Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries heard that the sweatbox had been abolished in America as inhuman. One and all of these nations in turn fell into line and today the sweatbox is not to be found on any vessel flying the flag of a civilized nation throughout the world.

Men Write the Poetry.

London Chronicle: "It is people who write poetry about us who prevent us women getting the vote." The sentence arrested me in reading Violet Hunt's story of the "Celebrity's Daughter" at a week-end, with the smashing of windows, the cutting up of golf greens, the spoiling of letters and the threats of other horrors in my ears and eyes. For men persist in writing poetry about women, to their amazement, and no women are writing poetry about men.

Man is the poetic sex. He goes about—I may tell you—with snippets from the papers in his pocketbook, and takes them now and again as a sort of stimulant. Morever, the man writes his poetry secretly, sends it to the newspapers, and they publish it. I could give you the address of bald-headed stockholders and bearded business men who write verses. And more who cut the poetry from their newspapers and take it as a stimulant.

The Perils of the Bystander.

Detroit Free Press: Novel legal decisions? Oh, yes, they're still being made—no end to 'em, in fact. Why, just the other day two women appeared before a Chicago judge laying claim to a bulldog. The judge was kind-hearted. He didn't want to give each woman half of the dog, having some consideration, you see, for the feelings of the dog. So he gave the entire animal to a third woman, who was merely an innocent bystander. This instance serves to emphasize the extreme peril in which the innocent bystander always stand. Yet others will persist in playing the I. B. role.

One Reason.

Judge: Knicker—The pen is mightier than the sword.

Bocker—Yes; there isn't any fountain sword.

Precedents That Touch Mexico

(From the Springfield Republican.)

The position taken by the diplomatic body at the Mexican capital in declining social intercourse with the Huerta-Diaz government pending the receipt of more satisfactory explanations of the government's part in the Madero tragedy is certainly commendable. Our government, too, would doubtless adopt a correct attitude, so long as the present Mexican regime failed to exonerate itself from the charge of guilty complicity in the alleged assassinations, if it should postpone full recognition of the Huerta-Diaz government. Yet it must be recognized as a de facto government in order that any business whatever may be transacted in the interest of American and other foreign residents.

In considering the effect of Madero's death upon our own government's policy, it is well to remember what has happened in the recent past in other countries. Only five years ago this month King Carlos and the crown prince of Portugal were assassinated by revolutionists, and the present Portuguese republic, which was really born in that murderous act, became a reality two years later, when King Manuel was driven into exile. There was intense disapproval in the European capitals of the murders of King Carlos and the crown prince, and the republic was formally acknowledged with some reluctance after the revolution of 1910. But Europe allowed the Portuguese to work out their own salvation and diplomatic intercourse was necessarily maintained throughout the trying period of the changing order at Lisbon.

The assassinations of King Alexander and Queen Draga of Servia in their palace in 1903, whereby the present king reached the throne, were so palpably the outcome of political conspiracies in a time of profound peace in the Servian kingdom—a situation vastly different from that in Mexico—that the great powers withdrew their ministers from Belgrade in order to mark their sense of the enormity of the crime. The British government did not resume diplomatic relations with Servia until three years had elapsed. But Servia was so small a state and the diplomatic business was so unimportant in that period that the temporary suspension of diplomatic relations caused no great inconvenience. Nothing of that sort is now possible at Mexico City, so far as our government is concerned.

The memory of the royal murders at Belgrade and Lisbon within the past decade must also force one to grant that the anarchical conditions which had been brought about at the Mexican capital by the desperate and savage street battle of the preceding fortnight furnished, comparatively speaking, some extenuation for the taking off of Madero. We make this point not with the slightest disposition to pardon the grave moral lapse into barbarism which midnight assassination as a political measure implies, but to show that our government, in dealing with a very delicate situation in a practical way, is not now called upon to go to the length England did in expressing disapproval of the murder of the king and queen of Servia.

Indeed, when the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico was shot in 1867, by order of a drumhead court-martial, after the downfall of his government, the United States did nothing to prevent an act which cannot be differentiated very far from the murder of Madero. Our government was directly appealed to by European powers to save, if possible, the doomed brother of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, but it refused to take any action. Our government, in 1867, acted from motives of political expediency; it must act today with at least an equal regard for this country's interests now and in the future without passion, and without hysteria.

The Leaven of Labor

It is an ordinance of heaven that man must be employed or be unhappy. Mental or corporeal labor is the destination of his nature; and when he ceases to be active he ceases to be useful and descends to the level of vegetable life. —DeWitt Clinton.

I Remember, I Remember.

I remember, I remember
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
He never came a wink too soon,
Nor brought too long a day,
But now I often wish the night
Had borne my breath away!

I remember, I remember
The roses, red and white,
The violets, and the lily-cups,
Those flowers made of light!
The lilacs, where the robin built,
And where my brother set
The laburnum on his birthday,—
The tree is living yet!

I remember, I remember
Where I was used to swing,
And thought the air must rush as fresh
To swallows on the wing;
My spirit flew in feathers then,
That is so heavy now,
And summer pools could hardly cool
The fever on my brow.

I remember, I remember
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky;
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.

—Thomas Hood.

Natural Suspicion.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The kindly old man stopped to watch a wee tot who was diligently searching the sidewalk for something and at the same time sobbing loudly.

"What have you lost, little girl?" he finally ventured.

"Boo, hoo!" came the reply between sniffles, "I've lost my nickel."

Touched by the child's grief, the old man extracted a 5-cent piece from his pocket, pressed it in the little tot's palm and said:

"There, there, little girl, here's your nickel. Now stop crying."

To his surprise, the child flashed on him a look of bitter contempt.

"Why, you wicked old man," she said, stamping her tiny foot, "you had my nickel all the time!"

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

What Might Have Been.

Is there a more tragic word in the English tongue than the little word "if"? It is a hinge on which the door of fate swings open or fast closed. It suggests possibilities, but those that may never be realized. It injects the one incalculable element into any situation. It is a tragic little word.

If Columbus had not been mislead by a flight of parrots coming from the Southwest, he would not have changed his westward course and would have had the honor, as it seems, of discovering, not an insignificant island of the West Indies, but the mainland of Virginia.

There were plenty of ships on that Northern sea the night the Titanic sank. If the Trautenfels—but a few miles distant, had been equipped with wireless, if the operator on another liner, possessing a good wireless equipment, had not retired at 10 o'clock on the fateful evening, there might have been no tragedy. As the mind plays with possibilities in the case of such a disaster, it is impossible to stifle the feeling of the poet that

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen
The saddest are these, 'it might have been.'"

Brooding on personal losses, men feel the little word "if" rankling in their hearts like a thorn. In the valley of the shadow of death, we lament, "If I had only called in the doctor sooner!" or, "If I had only consented to some other sort of treatment!" The torturing thought presents itself that some other course might have avoided this grief and loss. Through all the years men have felt with sad-eyed Martha, beside the lifeless body of Lazarus, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

When some opportunity has escaped them, men will often spend years in vain regrets. If they had only sensed the worth of that invention, if they had only realized that the march of trade was to be up that street, how they might have profited. If the lawyer had chosen to be a merchant, if the doctor had chosen to be a journalist, what happiness and success might have come.

Through brooding on the little word if, lives may become overcast with regret or paralyzed with bitterness and remorse. All about us people are swelling the sad chorus of those mourning over what seem irremediable mistakes.

What shall break the spell of such regretful moods and set the mourner free? What shall rob the word "if" of its terror and rouse us from the benumbing speculation as to "what might have been?" Simply the conviction that the plans of men are embraced in a far larger plan of infinite power and love. Simply the faith of the Apostle Paul, than whom no man was ever more thoroughly battered about, that, to the devout soul, "all things work together for good."

The lifting of the veil that hides the invisible world might show us that secret springs of benevolence are behind much that to human view is baffling and cruel. Behind the inscrutable ways of God there lie reason and right, a truth each generation must appropriate anew. With all our boasted modern science there is still much for us to learn in this regard from the simple, child-like piety of the Middle Ages.

Man exhausts his part when he does his best, lives up to the clearest light vouchsafed him, makes full use of every power within his hand. Let him then leave the issue to a higher power.

We come out of our thraldom to needless regrets when we feel that love is over all our concerns and that the God who maketh even the wrath of man to praise him may turn even our mistakes into agencies of power and of blessing.

Alcohol and Tuberculosis.

The bacillus tuberculosis is almost unable to exert any harmful influence over normal individuals. It is only when the vital forces of the body have been lowered by some means or other that the bacillus tuberculosis is able to wage a victorious warfare against us. The causes of lowered vitality are, however, numerous. It is lowered vitality we have to contend with always and everywhere when we are dealing with consumption, either when we attempt to prevent its spread or to bring about a cure in incipient cases.

Since 1882, when Robert Koch discovered the bacillus tuberculosis, there has been a constant warfare against the so-called "white plague." Lectures have been delivered, societies organized and large amounts of money have been granted by states and individuals in the attempt to stop the ravages of the disease.

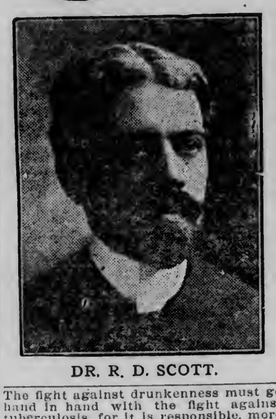
The fighting nowadays is not carried on with drugs, for there is no drug or combination of drugs that will cure tuberculosis. Teaching the people how to live hygienically, in order to preserve and build up their normal resisting power, is the weapon used by every intelligent and faithful soldier in the anti-tuberculosis campaign. It is, therefore, of great importance to know and realize the elements that are most powerful in the destruction of vitality; the elements active in society and the home which are most likely to abolish normal resistance of body tissues, and thereby pave the way for any or all infections.

The imperial board of health of Germany has said: "It is impossible to exaggerate the evil of tuberculosis; therefore, it is indispensable to strengthen and harden the body, so that the absorbed germs cannot take root and grow in it."

All are agreed that the prevention and cure of tuberculosis lies in the increased vitality and resistance of the individual, rather than in the attempt to extirpate the germ. The great authority on tuberculosis, Dr. Koch of New York, says: "By favorable soil for the growth of the bacillus must be understood any condition in which the body is temporarily or permanently enfeebled; such a condition may be inherited from parents or acquired through alcoholism or drunkenness."

It is a well known fact that those who habitually use alcoholic beverages are not only specially predisposed to pneumonia, but with them it is very grave. The very probable reason for this is that alcohol when taken into the body is chiefly eliminated through the lungs. It is also to a large extent burned or oxidized in these organs. The lungs, therefore, suffer the brunt of the process of ridding the system of the poison. All highly specialized cells suffer more in comparison than the lowly ones. The nervous tissue, the lung tissue, the kidneys, the liver, are all injured by alcohol in about the order named. Nervous tissue is pretty well protected from infection except it come to it through the blood stream, but the lungs on the other hand, are constantly open to any infection that may be suspended in the air breathed.

It is therefore little wonder that alcohol plays such an important role in the propagation of tuberculosis; but this individual effect is not by any means all that can be brought against alcohol in the connection. It reduces efficiency capacity, wastes money that should be spent for food, and increases any tendency to indolence and sloth. Even moderate drinkers lack the ambition or normal persons; they become careless, live in unsanitary surroundings, because the finer sensibilities are blunted, and are apt to neglect even the more essential rules of hygiene.



DR. R. D. SCOTT.

The fight against drunkenness must go hand in hand with the fight against tuberculosis, for it is responsible, more than any other single factor, for the propagation and spread of this great "white plague."

Questions and Answers.

Tobacco.

E. R. L. writes: Please answer the following questions through your column:

1. Is tobacco good for any diseased condition?
2. Is tobacco, in health, injurious?

REPLY.

1. There is no diseased condition where tobacco might be used for its narcotic or soothing effect—which could not be treated to better advantage by less poisonous drugs.

2. Tobacco, when introduced into the system, is invariably injurious to some extent. Some grown men, however, are sufficiently strong in body and nerve that when in perfect health they appear to be able to withstand the injury fairly well. Nevertheless, it can hardly be doubted that they would be better had they never acquired the habit. It is truly affirmed that there are two sides to every question, and, although nothing much can be said in favor of the use of tobacco from the purely medical side, it can be fairly well defined from the social point of view, for when used in moderation it is about as harmless an aid to good fellowship as we can command.

The social side of life is just as important to general well-being as the care and nourishment of the body, and should never be neglected by those who wish to make the most of life.

My general advice in regard to the use of tobacco is:

Before the age of 18 or 20, at which age the nervous system is nearly mature, tobacco in any form is particularly injurious, and should never be used, even in the smallest quantities and least obnoxious form. It is a habit-forming drug, and every man, before enslaving himself, should carefully consider whether the injury to be expected is entirely overbalanced by the social advantages.

Tuberculosis of Kidney.

H. R. S. writes: Is tuberculosis of the kidney or of the bowels infectious?

2. Is it possible for a man or woman suffering from either of the above to infect wife or husband?

REPLY.

1. Every form of tuberculosis is, to some extent infectious; but kidney, or what is called bowel tuberculosis, can not be sexually transmitted.

2. No; provided the generative organs are not involved. Tuberculosis of the generative organs is, in rare occasions, transmitted, but the danger is very slight, except in far advanced and very bad cases.

A person suffering with tuberculosis of the kidney should exercise some care in regard to the disposal of the urine; aside from the urine he is of no danger to others, although a constant menace to himself.

THE "CAESARIAN" STATE

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is another big political scandal in West Virginia, where some half a score of millions are in the market to buy a senatorship. Twenty years ago or a dozen years ago, the auction would have been held quietly and with decency, the highest bidder would have made his purchase, and the incident would have been closed without any more ado over it. But a while back the American people discovered that there is a public conscience and it has become somewhat scrupulous, setting Uncle Sam a-walking the floor at inauspicious hours of the early morn. This was shown in the more or less notorious Lorimer case, and it crops out in West Virginia where a big section of the legislature is in arrest charged with bribery and corruption.

Even after the treaty of Utrecht, a convention that our grand old Tom Benton claimed to know more about than all the diplomats who made the thing—even after the concordat that put an end to war even more bloody than it was glorious, it was a saying in the courts of Europe:

"An Austrian prince alone
Is fit to nod on Spanish throne."

And West Virginia is thoroughly convinced that only a rich man is fit to hold her commission as a senator in Congress. William L. Wilson could never reach that dignity.

There is as powerful argument on one side as on the other of the question. Was the story of Charles Martel at Tours a boon or a scourge? Of course I separate the religious element from the political in the equation. But be that as may be, there is no room to doubt that the expulsion of the Moor from Andalusia was a calamity, not only to Spain, but to Europe and the rest of mankind. One of its disastrous results was to establish the house of Austria in that fair land, and Spain withered under bad government, purveyed to her by such lunatic kings as Philip II. If she had been blessed with such a beneficent government as England enjoyed under the Four Georges, she would have remained the leader of civilization.

West Virginia was born in dishonor, though time and circumstances, perhaps, excuse the deed. When Virginia ceded the national territory it was stipulated in solemn covenant entered upon by the Federal establishment and the "Old Dominion" that in the future the geographical limits of Virginia should never be diminished without her consent. That sacred compact was violated when the state of West Virginia was created.

Of course it was a time of revolution and war. The sword had usurped the throne of the law, and it seemed like a military necessity, and therefore the wrong was venial; but the violation of a solemn covenant, no matter what the exigency, is bound to have unpleasant, if not unfortunate consequence. And that is the great defect of the national character. We won't stand hitched. Look at that miserable fix we have got into over tolls of the Panama canal. We are too prone to think everything right that we deem expedient. That is what ruined Napoleon Bonaparte—he had no sense of justice. The most stupendous genius of all profane history, he was a moral leper, who could see no difference between right and wrong.

Well, West Virginia had not shed her baby clothes before she repudiated an honest liability—her part of the Virginia public debt, and I heard the late Steve Elkins say that act had cost West Virginia corporations that sought loans in domestic and foreign money marts millions and millions, enough to have paid the debt twenty times over. The state was for a long time Democratic, after the war, but much of that Democracy was rather shackling. Speaking of the dukes of Lorraine and Bavaria, Prince Eugene said: "Their geography prevents them from being men of honor." And there is something in a coal mine, a sheepfold, a sawmill, a glass works, a blast furnace, that makes puny the Democracy of that community. And so it was in West Virginia that became flagrantly Pennsylvanialized. Except on Manhattan island and in Allegheny county, the distance between rich and poor is nowhere else in America so great as in West Virginia. I don't mean financial or social distance, but I'm talking about that community of pride in our institutions that the rich and the poor should have in equal degree, and without which society is on a volcano.

Henry Gassaway Davis was one of the first Democratic senators from West Virginia, though his Democracy was rather frail, like his cousin Gorman's just over the way. He had been a Baltimore & Ohio railroad official and was emphatically the business man in politics. He immortalized himself his first term. In a remarkable speech that startled the country he declared that the national debt had been augmented arbitrarily by treasury officials and that their manipulations would cost the people many hundreds of millions. It was a thunderclap and the entire country was dismayed. He returned to this charge and made at least one other elaborate speech on the question.

Boutwell was secretary of treasury, and there was an investigation by a committee of the senate. The secretary explained that Davis had fallen into error, being misled by complications arising from a radical change of system of book-keeping, which the department had instituted. But Davis stood to his guns, and the fact that he was an eminent business man gave him standing. Had a Democratic national convention assembled then, there is little doubt that he would have been nominated for president, Senator Beck of Kentucky was one of his stanchest supporters and plunged into the debate neck and crop, and old men remember what a giant he was in the discussion of any question involving statistics.

Beck went to his grave firm in the belief that there was the most solid foundation for Davis' charges.

But to get back—there was always something shackling in West Virginia's Democracy, else why did they not send William L. Wilson to the senate; else why was he taken out of congress and his seat given to a mediocrity?

And isn't it rather hard on a West Virginia Republican legislature to deprive it of the graft arising out of an auction of a senatorship?

These be parlous times!

And by way of P. S. as matter of personal explanation. When "Sunset" Cox came back from Constantinople where he was our minister received to the Sublime Porte, he delivered a lecture on "The Orient and Orientals," in which he cited that it required two Frenchmen to cheat one Scotchman, three Scotchmen to cheat one Jew, four Jews to cheat one Greek, and five Greeks to cheat one Armenian. I referred to that the other day in some of my stuff, and that autocrat, the printer, struck out "Armenian" and inserted "American."

I could tell you a tale pertinent to that sort of thing that would make each particular hair of your head stand on end in paralyzed horror. I one day wrote the word "charity" in an article for a Louisville paper, and the printer—with malice prepense, I make no doubt—set it up "chastity," and it so appeared in the paper. That was a quarter of a century ago, and in the connection the word was used, I am yet astonished that I was not mobbed.

Auction Bridge.

AUCTION OF TODAY. By Milton C. Work. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.25.

Players of auction bridge will find Mr. Work's production an interesting one. Written by an authority on the game who is also the author of the new auction count adopted by all the American and Continental clubs, this book will prove valuable for lovers of the game. Of especial interest are the latest decisions of the card committee of the New York Whist club, of which Mr. Work is chairman, a new and abbreviated system of scoring; a number of hands illustrating questions of declaration; tables of conventional leads; a chapter on doubling; a table of "summarized penalties," and other valuable information.

The author of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has invaded a new field in his latest book, initiating in the form of a novel an assault upon the Mormon church that will tickle Mormon bitters. The picture Mr. Pidgin draws through this terrific arraignment of conditions he alleges exist among the Latter Day Saints is strong enough to make every lover of his country's future pause and wonder whether national laws are violated as the author claims, and if so, why no one is punished. Incidentally the book is an argument in favor of an amendment to the Constitution giving the Federal government authority in divorce matters because of the dissimilarity of divorce laws in the forty-eight states.

Good Nature and Happiness.

Laura E. Richards needs no introduction to the world of fiction readers; she has become known through "Captain January," "The Wooing of Calvin Parks," "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree." Neither does Miss Jimmy, after you have once met her. "She was christened Jemima," and her father's name was Silas Dolly, which two facts give you the setting of the story. But the story itself is hardly more than a series of episodes in which "Miss Jimmy" is the central figure. She is a nurse, who returns from Wisconsin to her girlhood home to find the whole community more or less asleep, and she assumes the duty of not only injecting life into the community, but of taking up and carrying on her own shoulders all the burdens that others have found too discouraging for them to shake off. There is a quaintness, understanding of the eternal verities of human nature, and most effective of all, recognition of the real enjoyment of doing for others, all through the book. It is done with a sense of pleasure and a desire to take up the work Miss Jimmy has been doing and apply it in one's own contact with others. It is one of the most enjoyable and profitable bits of fiction that one could pick up.

Life and Love.

AMOR VITAQUE. By Oliver Opp-Dyke, author of "The Lure of Life," "The Omar Sonnets," etc. Boston: Sherman, French & Co. $1.25 net.

Probably no collection of verse ever was published that contained measures of unvarying merit. Certainly these verses of Mr. Opp-Dyke's vary from fair to excellent. But there is one thing in the book that never wavers, and that is the intensity of the questioning of life and love, their origin, why they were created, and to what purpose men follow their teachings and instincts. Cynicism runs wild through stanza after stanza, but there are several stirring love-poems.

Not the least notable part of the volume's contents is the collection of "Omargrams" that follows the poems. In fact, the spirit of the ancient Persian permeates many of the stanzas, and some of the quatrains are entitled to no higher name than that of parody on the Fitzgerald translation of the Rubaiyat. But the book shows genius in versification, even though the cynicism is at times so extreme as fairly to convict the author of striving for effect at the expense of sincerity.

Among the Smugglers.

There is plenty of material for story-writing in the lives of the Galloway smugglers of the first quarter of the nineteenth century, and the material here gets a distinct addition in the character of Patricia Ferris, daughter of one of the well-born gentlemen of the region. There are stirring scenes, including a future ruler of a continental principality, and the unprincipled Duke of Lyonesse, who is one of the wilder members of British royalty of the day. But Patsy is of Pictish descent, glories in that fact, and prefers to do her own picking and choosing. The story is nothing remarkable, but its telling is a good piece of work, except that there is an extraordinary flow of adjectives. The book will hold the interest, but after it is finished there is only the conviction that one has read another novel.

Farther "Out."

Readers who remember this author's story of "One Way Out," in which he told the experience of a salary-bound bookkeeper who lost his position in New York and "emigrated to America," will find here a sequel to that story, in which the same man tells how he prospered in his American home. He sets up his household in a small suburban community, where he finds the people dead to their opportunities, and content to live in a factitious, hand to mouth fashion, though they have in their ancestral acres the means of better than a competence if they will only make use of the land intelligently. With the help of some of the people who are sleeping less soundly than the rest, he gets the community stirred up to take advantage of its possibilities. The story is evidently intended to make native Americans feel ashamed of themselves for not equalling the recently arrived immigrants who surpass the Americans in land accomplishment. Its moral is that of industry, and its lesson is so plain that even the dullest reader cannot fail to grasp it.

Royalty Incognito.

The diary form of narrative is traditionally and intrinsically dull and unforgivable, unless it chances to be handled in exceptionally neat and attractive language. Princess Mary of Thule, who in this volume is made to tell of a week of life as "just Mary Smith" while visiting a former governess who lives in London, succeeds in getting away from the difficulties of 95 per cent of the heroes and heroines of that kind of story, and gives in a brief and breezy 190 pages a series of girlish feelings that are bound to find an echo in the hearts of all but the most blase of readers. There isn't anything especially remarkable about the story. There is the handsome stranger, who is quickly identified, and there is the intriguing royal personage "who butts into" the affairs of Mary Smith under a complete misapprehension as to Mary's real identity. If the idioms that sometimes find their way into the princess' diary are not such as to pass unquestioned through the censorious hands of the strict critic, who cares? The little volume is thoroughly charming, and will certainly find favor with the young girl set of readers.

Unscrupulous Genius.

CONCERT PITCH. By Frank Danby, author of "The Heart of a Child," "Pigs in Clover," etc. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.35 net.

Put a young woman of artistic taste and unmistakable temperament into surroundings where she is cut off from the sympathy and understanding of any older woman, and it would be a poor writer of fiction who could not lead the girl into some kind of a mistake. Here the author gives her heroine the chance to make a wise choice, but just as it seems certain that she is going to bring about the happy ending in the next chapter, the conventional misunderstanding crops out, accompanied by the other man, and the last half of the story is occupied in showing the seriousness of the girl's mistake and in getting it all set right. The title is as good as any, since music and musicians figure largely in the story. It is to be hoped that the truth would show genius to be very much less unscrupulous than it is here depicted.

Mr. Peterson has an excellent conception of the kind of themes that are appropriate to poetic expression, and he has the diligence to try to give them such expression. What the Immigrant Brings Us.

OLD HOMES OF NEW AMERICANS. By Francis E. Clark, author of "The Continent of Opportunity," "A New Way Round an Old World," "Christian Endeavor in All Lands," etc. New York: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.50 net.

"I have long been impressed," says Dr. Clark in his introduction, "with the crass ignorance that many people exhibit concerning the neighbors who jostle them on every side. People that come from entirely different points of the European compass are surprisingly mixed, and all are often embraced under the one contemptuous title, 'Dago.' The noble history, the patriotic struggles, the famous literature, the great statesmen, posts, and artists of the countries from which these new Americans come are unknown or forgotten, and the organ-grinder of the Bowery is considered the typical descendant of the ancient Roman. The magnificent cities from which some of these immigrants hail, like Budapest and St. Petersburg, the interesting and picturesque mediaeval towns with their wealth of history, the comfortable cottages and cultivated fields, the rugged mountains and peaceful valleys they have left to seek larger opportunities in America, are seldom considered; and we are too apt to think of them only in the squalid East side tenement, or in the sprawling shack, where they are getting their first start in America."

In an effort to make us realize the kind of stuff of which these immigrants are made, particularly those that come from the Austrian and Hungarian countries, Dr. Clark has made a study of these people in their native homes, and here gives us the result of that study. He does not try to hide the less lovely features, but he portrays more generally the political conditions under which they lived and the things these people have given to the world to make it more worth living in. Dr. Clark's book constitutes a valuable contribution to the literature on modern Europe, and nobody can read it without realizing that the immigrants who came to our shores have a valid claim for recognition as men of like clay with ourselves.

A Builder of the South.

Little—perhaps too little—is known in the North about the men whose work and individuality were vital forces in the upbuilding of the Southern states from the chaos left by the Civil war into a rich and important section of our country. So it happens that the name of William Leroy Broun carries no meaning for perhaps 99 per cent of those who hear it. But Dr. Broun was an important figure, not only in the educational work of himself, but in the service done the Confederate cause in the war days. He left a record of some of the events of that time that is here reproduced, and that gives important and interesting information on conditions in the seceding states. After the Confederacy had fallen, Dr. Broun turned his efforts to the educational field, and served in high positions in the University of Georgia, Vanderbilt university, the University of Texas and the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The present volume, less a biography as that term is usually understood than a compilation of his own work and story, was edited by Maj. Thomas L. Broun, his brother; Miss Bessie Lee Broun, his daughter, and Miss Sally F. Ordway, his granddaughter.

LOG CABIN YARNS. By Edmund Deacon Peterson. New York: The Cosmopolitan Press. $1.00 net.

Stroies told about the open fire in a log cabin in the Colorado mountains, where a number of young men who formerly had lived in Philadelphia had gathered for an impromptu reunion. In a preface preceding an introduction that comes before the introductory chapter, the author says that the stories "were first and foremost a labor of love." The labor is apparent to any reader. The love must have been there to inspire so much labor. The stories might hold a reader's attention on a rainy day in the country with nothing else in the house to read.

STUDIES MEXICO AT RISK OF LIFE

At the same time that Herman Whitaker was writing "The Mystery of the Barranca," a novel of modern Mexico which has just been published, he was busied in putting up a house for himself in California. "Built with my own hands," he said, "without the assistance of plumber, architect, or carpenter." Mr. Whitaker seems to have divided his life pretty evenly between mental and manual activities. After his enlistment in the British army he bought his discharge and spent seven years in a Canadian logging camp. Later he went to California, where he now lives. In his previous Mexican novel, "The Planter," Mr. Whitaker disclosed the terrible conditions existing on many of the rubber plantations, with the result that his life was threatened by those whose cruelties he had exposed.

Among the Magazines.

There is a strong personal authority back of the leading articles in Scribner's magazine for March. It is characteristic of them that they are written by men from long experience and observation. Mr. Bishop, who writes of the Panama canal, has been more than five years resident there. Mr. Dwight, who writes of Constantinople, has lived in the East a great part of his life. Capt. Rostron, who describes the rescue of the Titanic survivors, was the commander of the Carpathia. Mr. Collier was a student at several German universities years ago and familiar with the country before he made his recent extended sojourn there to write his articles on Germany. In short, a man writes for Scribner's magazine because he thoroughly knows the subject and, moreover, has power of literary expression. Capt. Rostron's "The Rescue of the Titanic Survivors" is the most authentic document of that great disaster, written in the terse, vigorous language of a sea captain who did exactly the right thing in a great emergency. Joseph B. Bishop, in "A Benevolent Despotism," describes the wonderful rule of Col. Goethals at Panama. This is a complete presentation of what has been called "Government Socialism," made necessary by the unique conditions of building the canal.

In the Engineering magazine for March, the leading place is devoted to a discussion, by Dr. James Douglas, of the latest and greatest labor problem—Syndicalism. This new doctrine threatens to bring the world face to face with the greatest crisis of modern civilization—perhaps of any civilization. Unless its fallacies are seen by those to whom it is preached, it may easily, as Dr. Douglas points out, prevail so far as to complete its first step—universal ruin—before awakening to the fact that its second stage—reoccupation of all industries and seizure of property by the "working class" alone—will mean only the ownership and occupancy of an irreclaimable waste. Every employer of labor and every conscientious friend of labor should give earnest thought to the arguments presented in Dr. Douglas' clearly stated article.

"How the 'Movies' Were Saved," a first-rate news article by Will Irwin on the moving picture censorship, is a feature of the March Metropolitan. Another important article is John L. Mathews' account of how the Japanese have acquired a valuable concession in Mexico. James Huneker writes on the much-discussed Italian Futurist painters, and Job Harriman contributes an article on the direct action movement in Socialism called "Ballots vs. Bullets." There are seven short stories in the March issue by Charles Belmont Davis, Melville D. Post, Compton Mackenzie, P. G. Wodehouse and others, and the art features include the paintings of the late Robert MacCameron and a color reproduction of Romney's portrait of Lady Hamilton.

The March issue of Lippincott's keeps the pace set by recent numbers, which have been getting no end of praise. The complete novelette is by Edgar Jepson, whose "Pollyooly and the Lump" has proved so popular. It is entitled "The Changeable Professor," and in it are adroitly commingled both farce and melodrama, as in one of the big theatrical successes of the present season. The Professor is a scientist whose arduous labors have undermined his health, apparently beyond repair. But he discovers a strange cure for his malady, and lives to confound his brother scientists and to win the girl he loves—and she's well worth the winning. Vivisection—or something akin to it—plays an important part in the narrative, which "gets busy" from the start, and never is permitted to lag. The short stories are a varied lot. "What There Was of It" is by Anne Warwick; "A False Aurora," by Alice MacGowan and Caroline Wood Morrison; "Held Up," by Thomas L. Masson; "The Vacant Forty," by Paul Lee Ellerbe; "The Little House," by Annette Thackwell Johnson; "The Strategy of Hezekiah John," by Clara Odell Lyon; and "Auntie Jane's Reminiscences," by Dr. Charles C. Abbott. The "Short-Story Masterpiece" is "The Snow-Storm," by Alexander Pushkin, the wonderful Russian writer.

Prominent in Harper's Bazar for March is Ralph Waldo Trine's new article, "Our Two Greatest Bugbears, Fear and Worry," dealing with the helpful side of the subject. "The Autobiography of a Divorced Woman," with a painting by Christy, is another of the Bazar's series of personal life experiences. "The Obscure Mrs. Townsend" is a story of fun and club life with three Lucius Hitchcock illustrations. Mrs. Borden Harriman has a straight-from-the-shoulder talk on "Is Society Woman a Useless Person?" and in "The Glory of Opportunity" is revealed another woman's life which is far from useless. "A Journey" is a story to touch the heart and it has two sympathetic illustrations by Amick. Martha Bensley Bruere and Robert Bruere tell in this new number the most interesting phase of "The Revolt of the Farmer's Wife." It is called "The Waste of Old Women."

In Harper's for March, Stefansson, the explorer, tells of his first actual meeting with the blond Eskimos of the Victoria islands and advances an interesting theory as to their origin. "We had been told by our guide that we should find the Victoria islanders of a light complexion, with fair beards, but still we were not prepared for what we saw—we had believed what we had been told, but we had not realized it. Natkusiak kept saying: These are not Eskimos; they merely dress and talk and act like Eskimos.' And so it seemed to me. It is hard, looking back over a gap of years, to call to memory

By PEGGY PEABODY

Mothers' First Duty is to Home and Children.

Talking with a young college man still pursuing his studies, and imbued with the soundness of the Socialistic idea, I was entertained as he unfolded his ideas of the future of civilization. He is an optimistic young enthusiast, and for that I admire him. In fact, much that he talked about sounded sane enough, in theory, and quite as though, if put into practice, it would benefit the greater number. But when he seriously proposed that the world generally devolve into one great family or series of families, with persons especially trained to undertake the various duties, I felt a sort of dismay and disappointment.

He proposed that the proper way to conduct our homes is on the co-operative plan. Let ten or twenty or fifty families form themselves into a group, and let the labors resulting from such an association be turned over to trained and efficient persons in certain lines of endeavor. As a part of the scheme, the mothers were to sally forth to some productive labor, leaving the training of their children to the professional care-takers, and turn their earnings into the common fund.

Naturally, my heart rebelled. I am willing enough, myself, that woman should work if she wants to, or has it to do. And I should be glad to see housekeeping made simpler, if the simplifying does not destroy the home atmosphere. But I think that if a woman has children, her work is cut out for her, and no co-operative plan of living built upon Socialistic ideas of what will revolutionize society, is going to make up for the mother influence in the home and upon her children.

It would be rank pessimism to say that women generally are reaching out for careers outside the home. They are not. Thousands are proceeding in the foot-steps of their mothers before them, trying to be good wives and mothers themselves, and finding their greatest happiness in the realization that they are doing their duty as best they may, in their own sphere of home.

It is a little discomfiting to hear a young man calmly declare for mothers joining the ranks of the wage-earners, turning their earnings into a common fund and giving their children over to trained lackeys to be reared. The idea of rearing children in any other manner than with the mother's love and care is repulsive to most of us. I am just old-fashioned enough to believe a mother or a wife finds her greatest sphere in the home.

GETTING AN EDUCATION IN THE EARLY DAYS OF DULUTH

Two of the Deans of Duluth's Old Teaching Staff Tell of Conditions in City Schools When Business Men of Present Day Attended.

Looking back over the history of Duluth schools, Miss Belle Calverly, now principal of the Jefferson school of this city who has been in the corps of Duluth teachers probably longer than any other teacher now employed in the Duluth public schools, can tell of many interesting events which have occurred and of vast improvements made.

"In those old days," said Miss Calverly in speaking of school work here, "we didn't have any frills on our school buildings and we didn't have any frills in our school course. We taught practically just the 'three R's' and the students studied hard. They, every one of them, worked and that was the time when we could get over ground and cover it well.

"I think the time is coming soon when more attention will be given to the manual and domestic training. We are coming to it now and I think it will be given to even a greater extent and it will be a good thing. I heartily approve of vocational education and the less of the subjects which do no real good to the boy and girl who study them the better.

"More than twenty years ago domestic science was tried in the schools but we were ahead of the times then and there wasn't enough interest in it to keep it going but I am very glad to have it again firmly established in the school course.

"The first year I taught in Duluth I was in a little one room building down below the canal and the next year I taught in a little one-room shack just above the canal. Jay Cooke Howard and David Ericson were both in my classes then and I have taught a lot of the men and women who are in busines here today.

"We used to have a little coal stove to heat the buildings, and many times in winter the temperature used to get no higher than 40, and the children and I used to work with woollen mittens and coats on to keep warm.

"After that I taught in a little two-room building out where the Adams school now stands, and in the old Washington, and the Washington building which was first the old high school and is now unused and then I came out here to the old Jefferson school, which was a frame building, and then this new Jefferson building was built just twenty years ago.

"That was the time when there were no street cars or paving, and we just waded through red clay often nearly to the knees; but they put on the mule cars and then the trolley lines, and have gradually extended them until it seems a hardship to walk even a few blocks where we used to have to walk twenty."

Crossing Old Canal.

Miss Eleanor M. Thomson, principal of the Jackson school has also been a member of the Duluth corps of teachers for twenty-four years and remembers some of the old-time buildings and their equipment.

"One of the biggest improvements in the school system," she said, in talking of her work, "is the giving of the free textbook to the school children. When I first came here the pupils had to buy their own books, and it often proved a hardship; but later the free textbook was given, and of course is generally used today.

"Another improvement in the working of the schools is the use of the daily outline which enables a substitute to step in and take up the work just where the teacher left off without floundering around to find out just what ground has been covered.

"I have always felt proud of the Duluth schools. Mr. Denfeld has always been most progressive, and we have kept up with the new ideas where it was practcal to do so.

"My first school was down on Minnesota Point, just a short distance below the canal, and in those days we used to cross in a little open rowboat, during storm or calm, and in winter we walked across on the ice. They used to stretch a rope across for us to hang on to, in case the ice gave way, and many times we felt it cracking under our feet."

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS CONCERT

THERESA DIEHL.

A large audience was delighted with the concert given last evening at the Lester Park M. E. church under the auspices of the ladies' aid society of that church by Miss Wally Heymar, violinist, Miss Alice Mae Brown, contralto and pianist; Miss Florence Lawson, 'cellist, and Miss Theresa Diehl, reader.

Miss Diehl was heard for the first time at a public entertainment, and her charming interpretation of her numbers were received enthusiastically. She gave "One of Bob's Tramps," and for an encore, Kipling's "Road to Mandalay," and two Canadian readings, "Cirque at Ol' Ste. Anne" and "Montiere."

Miss Brown sang Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day," with violin obligato, by Miss Heymar, and Miss Heymar played the always loved "Humoreske," by Dvorak with her usual temperamental feeling and ability. Trio numbers by the three musicians completed the program.

EVENTS OF WEEK IN CLUBS AND MUSICAL CIRCLES

Officer of Thursday Musicale of Minneapolis Tells How Flour City Club Was Built Up---Matinee Musicale Program for Monday School Entertainment.

THE success of a club depends largely upon the spirit of friendliness and good will which exists among its members," said Mrs. Richard Swain of Minneapolis, formerly of Duluth, who was the guest of Mrs. J. H. Madden for a few days this week, coming up to hear the recital by Josef Lhevinne Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Swain is the chairman of the Associate circle of the Thursday Musicale of Minneapolis, which has a membership of over 1,200 women, 750 of whom are associate members. "Our circle," she said, "is one of the strongest forces in the club and we feel that it is of tremendous importance to the club for the feeling of good fellowship and cordiality which it creates.

"I understand that the Matinee Musicale of Duluth has formed an Associate circle this year and I hope it will prove as valuable as ours has. Members of any club who are not active members want to feel that they are part of the club and should meet other members for a little social intercourse."

In telling of the work of their Associate circle she said: "We plan five regular programs for the year, giving one each month at the Handicraft guild hall on a morning which does not conflict with the regular club programs, and then we have several purely social affairs. We have an opening reception in the fall a little later than the big opening reception of the club itself and then our midwinter reception always proves of interest and is eagerly anticipated. We held this affair last month at the Leamington hotel, at which about 400 members were present. The club orchestra played during the afternoon and instead of arranging a musical program for an innovation we had a group of girls give a program of costume dances which were fine.

"Our last program of the year will be given March 18 and we have arranged an Irish program which will be given in costume.

"Readings, talks on current musical events and important musical topics always form part of our programs, which are made up of the very best things but are quite a little lighter than the regular club programs and every member feels that she has a special part in the club life and work and they all work together for the good of the club."

Houghton, Mich., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Decorated by his emperor with the iron cross of Russia for bravery on the battlefield, John Bakkala, aged 58, who was found in a highway near Hurontown, dead from cold and privation, was a well known character in this section. He was of more than average height, carried himself with soldierly erectness and his military bearing was enhanced by an empty sleeve, pinned to his breast. Bakkala did not lose his arm on a battlefield, but he was a hero none the less, for it was during the height of the Russo-Turkish war in 1877-78 that the czar bestowed upon him the much-prized decoration for gallantry in the face of the enemy. Two decades ago Balckala was pointed to as the finest physical specimen of manhood in the Copper country. He lost his arm when he was run down by a locomotive. Bakkala was born in Finland and came to Upper Michigan twenty-seven years ago. His body has been borne to the grave by his six sons and on his breast, pinned to his coat through the faded ribbon, is the iron cross given to him by his emperor.

Minot, N. D., March 8.—There is great rejoicing here over the action of the legislature in passing the bill appropriating $68,000 for the local state normal improvements.

This appropriation will make it possible to erect the large girls' dormitory which is called for by the latest plans for the school. As originally planned this dormitory was to have cost $50,000, but under the plans as now drawn it will cost approximately $75,000.

The appropriation is entirely separate from the school's share in the mill tax for the support of state schools, which is expected to bring the new normal school about $40,000 per year.

This sum will be used for its maintenance and to pay the general running expenses.

MOORHEAD PUBLIC BUILDING ASSURED.

Moorhead, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the new public building here is expected to begin early this spring. The plans have already been completed. LEACHING PLANTS AT BUTTE ARE SAID TO BE SUCCESSFUL

Butte - Duluth and Bullwhacker's Costs Reported Very Low.

Second Section of Butte & Superior Mill Rapidly Progressing.

Butte, Mont., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the statements of those in charge of the Bullwhacker and Butte-Duluth leaching plants are correct, there is no question as to the success declare that their plants are to be enlarged to several times more than double the present capacity. Both are turning out some fine looking sheets of copper, and while one concern will not give out anything at the present time as to the cost of production, the other company, through one of its officials, has made a statement to the effect that the cost will not be over 5 cents a pound. The old-timers who have spent a lifetime in the copper business are inclined to take the cost statement with a large grain of salt even admitting that the age of wonders will never cease. All the old line companies who have the ore treated at the smelters consider that they are getting the cost price down very fine when they can show a cost of a little over 8 cents a pound. If the leaching plants are prepared to turn out the pure copper direct from the ore at a cost of 5 cents a pound, it is only a question of time, and a very short time at that, when all the larger producing companies will be compelled as a matter of protection to install leaching plants.

Butte & Superior.

The section of the Butte & Superior concentrator which is being rebuilt along lines arranged by D. C. Jackling of Salt Lake, the actual mining and mill manager of the company, will be ready to go into commission in about two months. The section is being reconstructed in a manner similar to the one now in operation and which was rebuilt under the direction of Mr. Jackling. It is running to the satisfaction of the management, and is treating on an average of 600 tons a day. It can be brought up to 750 tons a day and when the two sections are running the company expects to maintain an average treatment of 1,400 tons a day.

Davis-Daly.

The Davis-Daly company claims to be shipping fifty tons of ore a day, which is coming principally from the 1,900-foot level. The cutting of the crosscut from the Gagnon mine to reach the Silver King ground is still proceeding, but as yet there is no word of the objective point being reached, although a distance of some 2,000 feet has been covered. The object in running the crosscut is to get under the rich ore which leasers have opened on the 300-foot level of the Silver King.

Sold His Holdings.

Capt. A. B. Wolvin, who up to about one month ago was president of the Butte & Superior company, when he was superceded by Bruce McKelvie of Hayden, Stone & Co., is generally understood to have practically disposed of his holdings in the company. A mining man who is close to the former president says that he disposed of 30,000 shares of the Butte & Superior stock at $30 a share. Who came into possession of this big block of stock is not known.

The Clark Concentrator.

W. A. Clark, after a short stay in this city during which he practically completed all arrangements for the construction of his zinc concentrator, has returned to New York. Before leaving Mr. Clark said that he expected to return not later than May and would probably spend the greater part of the summer in this city giving personal attention to the erection of the building. The work on the foundation has been commenced and the material is nearly all on the ground for the structure. The machinery has not yet been ordered, but Mr. Clark will so complete his arrangements in the next few weeks that by the time the building is ready the machinery will be on hand. The mill is expected to be ready and put in operation early in the fall.

The Anaconda's Production.

The Anaconda company production for the month just closed will show a decrease as compared with January of over 1,000,000 pounds, due to some of the mines being closed and to the further fact that cold weather interfered with getting the ore to the smelters. Some people are of the opinion that there is a small curtailment in force and this is possibly true as the various mines have not been sending as much ore to the smelters as usual. The Mountain View mine, which has been closed for the past three weeks in consequence of smoke and gases from the fire in the West Colusa getting into the workings, has resumed work, and so has the West Stewart which was also closed on account of fire. It is just possible that during the present month the output will be increased, although at the present time the quantity of ore coming to the surface from the different mines is not up to the average of the past several months.

Corbin Copper.

A letter received in this city is to the effect that the first payment of 50 cents a share ordered by the Corbin Copper company, for the purpose of acquiring the Gambrinus and two other claims in the very heart of the copper zone in this district, has been fully met, and it will only be a short time before the work of opening the rich Gambrinus claim will be commenced. President R. M. Edwards of the Corbin Copper company has been detained in Boston through the R. M. Dow trial, otherwise he would have been in the city before this to arrange for the commencement of work. Just as soon as he is free to leave his business for a short time, Mr. Edwards will come here and personally direct the preliminary work. Experts who have made a very thorough examination of the claims say that there is no question but that the Gambrinus carries the western extension of the Anaconda-Parrot vein, and if this is the case, the stockholders of the Corbin Copper company have got one of the richest copper properties in the district.

Barnes-King.

The net value of the ore treated at the Barnes-King mill from the North Moccasin mine during February will exceed that of January by from $2,000 to $5,000, when the value was $32,000. According to word just received from the property, the ore is increasing in value and there is now sufficient ore blocked out to keep the mill running to its capacity of 200 tons a day. However, until the water commences to flood the streams and thus furnish a sufficient supply, the mill cannot treat more than 100 tons a day owing to the lack of water.

West Colusa's Fire.

The fire in the West Colusa is now under control, the entire area having been bulkheaded. The exact amount of damage has not yet been definitely ascertained, but there is no question that it is more extensive than at first supposed. It will probably be several weeks before the mine is again in a position to resume active mining.

Butte Central.

S. H. Treloar, an old and well known mining man, who is very familiar with mining conditions in this district and for the past few years in charge of mines in Utah, has just completed an examination of the Ophir mine of the Butte Central Copper company for some Eastern capitalists, who desired to become interested in the property but at the same time desired reliable information before investing their money. Mr. Treloar will not make any statement as to the result of his investigation beyond saying that the mine was all right and that there were lots of ore blocked out and in sight. The new concentrator is running along smoothly and is coming up fully to the expectations of the management.

North Butte.

The North Butte company is not making any effort to ship more than the average amount of ore to the smelter, and the production is running along at the rate of about 2,250,000 pounds of copper a month. The rich ore bodies opened up within the past two months on some of the lower levels have been the means of greatly increasing the ore reserves, which are larger today than at any time for several years. The sinking of the shaft of the Granite Mountain is proceeding along at the rate of about 100 feet a month, and a depth of 2,200 feet will be reached in the course of the next week or ten days.

PRODUCTION FELL OFF IN FEBRUARY

Several Reasons Assigned for Lower Output of Butte Mines.

Butte, Mont., March 8.—There were just 4,471,210 pounds less copper produced in Butte last month than during January, the month previous. The production of the Butte mines for February was 21,717,150 pounds.

Two reasons are assigned for the falling off. It is self-apparent that with four less working days in February the output would not be so large, and then, too, the metal market has been unsteady, and for this reason also the operations have been somewhat restricted. Another cause has been the fire in the West Colusa mine, which caused the laying off of a number of miners in adjoining properties.

The output for February was 21,717,130 pounds, compared with 26,188,340 pounds during January and 20,675,610 pounds in February, 1912.

Outputs of the various properties were as follows:

DIVIDEND COMING FOR SNOWSTORM

Butte, Mont., March. 8.—Stockholders in the Snowstorm Mining company have been informed by officials that the second regular quarterly dividend for the year, $45,000, will be declared April 1, and there is prospect of an indefinite continuance of disbursements with a probability of the rate being increased, conditions at the mine having improved considerably since the adoption of new methods of ore treating.

In 1906 and 1907, when the Snowstorm was producing at the heaviest rate in its history, only the high-grade ore was extracted, and the mill feed was stored in the stopes between the No. 2 and No. 3 levels. This low-grade ore is now being milled at a profit, the values running from 2 to 3 per cent copper and several ounces in silver, the concentrator working the material while the mine is being developed in an effort to locate the ore supposed to have been leached out of the upper ground and redeposited at depth.

The visible reserve of the mine has been doubled practically by this method of operation, and geologists and metallurgists associated with the management predict that there is enough yet in storage to keep the mill working at capacity until the shaft being sunk from the lower level is in ore.

WARREN MAY SOON BE AMALGAMATED

Belief That Calumet & Arizona Will Acquire the Property.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 8.—The Bisbee Review says: Firmer demand for Warren has started speculation locally as to whether or not this property is not also to be included before long in acquirements of Calumet & Arizona in the district.

Expectation that Warren would ultimately be taken into the Calumet & Arizona fold has prevailed for as long as the Saginaw report, which came to fruition in the formal announcement that the property would be taken over.

Now rumor is busy with Warren. Apparently the time is opportune for new Calumet & Arizona acquisitions, viewing the situation strictly from the stock market standpoint, for it is when things are low that largest benefits are reaped from new acquirements. Not only are better terms possible on the initial deal, but there is also the ultimate certain uplift in the market to be considered.

Aside from the stock market phase of the matter, however, is the certainty that in getting hold of Saginaw, Calumet & Arizona moved wisely in the acquirement of property of a great deal more value by reason of copper contents than the stock market at this time, or at any time in the last several years, has been agreeable to reflecting. The same may be said of the Warren where the Calumet & Arizona likely has a better lineup on values than it had on the Saginaw, this view being solely upon the proximity of Briggs shaft workings to the Warren property line.

WENDIGO TO REORGANIZE

Draining of Open Pits at Traders Mine Is in Progress.

Formed thirty years ago for the purpose of acquiring and exploring mineral land, the Wendigo Iron company is in process of reorganization. The corporation is the owner of a 22-acre tract on the Michigamme river, Menominee range. An application has been made for an option for a lease of this land, and it is chiefly in this connection that the present action has been instituted. The company has been moribund for years. Daniel H. Ball, attorney, of Merquette, it its president. It is proposed to re-incorporate for a new term of thirty years and reduce the capitalization from $500,000 to $50,000. Of the seven original stockholders, all but two have died. The books and records have been lost and a large part of the shares has become scattered far and wide among the heirs of the deceased organizers. The work of reviving the company is therefore difficult. The Wendigo tract is five miles from the United States Steel corporation's Mansfield mine, and is believed to be on the same iron-bearing formation. The existence of ore was, in fact, proved by early exploratory work conducted by a Cleveland, Ohio, man, who soon afterward suspended operations as a result of financial embarrassment. Some prospecting has been done by another interest within the last year and as an aftermath an option is now desired, the extent of the ore deposit is wholly problematical. The property is, however, considered promising.

The Sherwood Property.

One of the important finds of ore in the Iron River district of the Menominee range the last two or three years is that made at the Sherwood property by the Republic Iron & Steel company. The tract is held under lease and has not yet been underdrawn. The property will be one of the big mines of the region, indicative of which was the action of the Michigan state tax commission in increasing the assessed valuation from $75,000 to $740,000. M. J. Sherwood of Marquette, and M. H. Moriarity of Crystal Falls, both attorneys, are associated in the ownership of the fee. The Sherwood has been tested by diamond drills. Its deposit lies 200 feet beneath the surface. Exploration to which unusual interest is attached is to be conducted at Iron River by the Duluth Drilling company. The Miller and Hammer properties, both within the village limits, are to be tested. It is known already that ore exists in the Miller ground, this having been determined last fall when prospecting of a preliminary nature was done, with the result that the area was at once abandoned as a prospective site for a new station for the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad company. Two drills will be operated, one on each tract. It is expected now that Hanna & Co. will be able to ship ore from their new Carpenter mine at Crystal Falls the coming season, if only a few carloads. Much better progress has been made in sinking the shaft through the overburden than was expected and the big opening is now safely in the rock.

Draining Pits at Traders.

In the Iron Mountain district of the Menominee range, the work of draining the open pits at the Antoine Ore company's Traders mine is in progress. There is an immense volume of water to be removed and considerable preparatory work to be done before this subsidiary of the Republic Iron & Steel company will be ready to produce; nevertheless, shipments by the time navigation opens will be possible. It will not be surprising if the Traders sends out closer to 200,000 tons this year. It is rather expected at Iron Mountain that the Millie mine will be restored to the active list the coming season. The property is owned by the Desseau Mining company, which in turn is controlled by the Algomah Steel company of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a subsidiary of the Lake Superior corporation. The directors have recently had the matter of resumption under advisement. The Millie is the only Iron Mountain mine of the Lake Superior corporation on the American side of the international boundary. It has never been opened extensively and during the various years of its activity it sent out an aggregate of only 370,000 tons of ore. Because of the location of the Millie—it adjoins the United States Steel corporation's big Chapin mine—and because of certain developments in the vicinity, there is a belief that the property has yet to see its best days. The Munro mine, east of Iron Mountain and between that city and Norway, will be operated during the summer, as usually is the case. It is a property of the Rogers-Brown interests, producing a low-grade siliceous ore and wrought on the "milling" system.

"Sand" Shaft in Service.

Because the workings have become too wet in some localities the "sand" shaft near No. 5 shaft at the Steel corporation's Aragon mine at Norway is being put into service again, after having been out of commission for two years. The shaft was sunk for the purpose of catching the seepage above the ledge. The pump installed was afterwards permitted to become idle, since which the shaft has been filled with water. With the shaft drained again, the present steam pump will be removed and will be replaced with an electricity-driven machine. A unique product of the Aragon mine, or rather of its carpenter shop, is ladder rounds. More than 20,000 of these have been manufactured the past year. The rounds are for use in the various mines of the Steel corporation on the different ranges and are shipped in sacks containing 200 each. The largest consignment forwarded latterly consisted of several thousand, which were sent to the Iron River district.

The Pittsburg & Lake Angeline Iron company, operating the Lake Angeline mine at Ishpeming, Marquette range, is preparing to resume work at an old shaft on the shore of Iron Mountain lake, in the southern portion of the city, from which lake the city receives part of its water supply. The shaft was sunk many years ago. Small bunches of ore of good grade were found, as was considerable lean material. It is thought that the shaft can be made to pay and at the same time its development will further test the mineral values of that immediate locality. Power drills will be put in and a hoisting engine installed.

Smith Mine to Resume.

The Smith mine of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company will resume operation shortly. The Smith is in the Gwinn district of the Marquette range and has been idle since December, 1911. It is a new mine, with limited openings. Large electrical pumps ordered last year have arrived and are being installed and with these in commission and the shaft unwatered mining work will proceed. Considerable ore is being forwarded to furnaces from the Marquette range this winter. Several of the Cleveland Cliffs company's properties are shipping to the Newberry, Mich., plant of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company, as are the Breitung company's Hematite and the Republic Iron & Steel company's Hartford mine at Negaunee. Hanna & Co. are shipping from their American mine to the Canadian Soo.

The Isabella property of the Cascade Mining company has been provided with much-needed railroad facilities, the Chicago & Northwestern having built to the tract a 3,000-foot extension from the branch leading to the old Star West mine of Corrigan-McKinney & Co. Heretofore all supplies and equipment have had to be transported by wagon road. The Isabella is in the Cascade district of the Marquette range. The shaft is sinking and good progress is being made. A depth of 150 feet has been attained. Three shifts of men are employed.

The old Kloman mine at Republic, Marquette range, is reported to have been taken over by Chicago and other capital which intends to develop the deposit and install a concentrating plant with which to treat the product, the ore existing in association with jasper. The last work at the Kloman, which has been in various hands at times during the past quarter of a century, was done by the John E. Jones furnace interests.

CABLE WILL SOON RESUME ACTIVITY

Famous Mine Now Being Put in Shape for Operations.

Anaconda, Mont., March 8.—Word has been brought to town that W. B. Todd and a crew of four men have begun work putting the famous Cable mine in shape for operations.

The news caused more than a ripple in local mining circles. The Cable mine has produced between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. It was discovered in 1866, and 9,000 tons of ore yielded $172,000. A single ton a few years later is said to have had a value of $30,000. Salton Cameron, who at that time was the owner of the Cable, exhibited at the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia a nugget from the mine that was worth $375.

J. C. Savory purchased the Cable in 1877 and built a new mill, operating the property until 1891, during which time he cracked $2,000,000. F. W. and H. C. Bacorn control the property, but it is thought Todd has secured a lease and probably an option on the mine. The first work will be to clean the workings in the tunnel, where a slight fall of ground has obstructed the entrance. The ores on the upper level carry free milling gold, but copper values have been found and may indicate that the Cable will yet be known as a producer of copper.

TUOLUMNE POLICY TO KEEP SINKING

Butte, Mont., March 8.—According to Superintendent Sheehan the policy of the Tuolumne now is to keep sinking. A depth of 2,800 feet is the object and it is even possible that a depth of 3,000 feet will be attained. It is said the mine is now shipping an average of 250 tons of ore daily, which runs in the neighborhood of 7 per cent. The bulk of this ore is being mined on the 2,000-foot level. This is a better showing than has been made for some time. Experts back the management up in the opinion that rich ore will be found at depth of 2,200 feet, but even so sinking will continue several hundred feet beyond that.

GIROUX OUTPUT UP TO CONTRACT

Ely, Nev., March 8.—Every day during the past month the output from the Giroux mines has reached the maximum limit of its contract with the Steptoe Smelting company, which is 1,200 tons. This result is being accomplished by two shifts of miners. It is expected that the caving system will soon be introduced.

Two mine cars of ore are now being raised every minute in the Morris shaft, or rather this is done when occasion demands. At this rate the Morris can easily furnish the 1,200 tons daily, which is all the ore that can be treated at present under the existing contract.

The Bunker Hill shaft is equipped for a production of 800 tons of ore per day, so that in case of necessity the property could produce 2,000 tons of ore without pressing the limit.

By crowding these two equipments and running two shifts a production of more than 3,000 tons per day could be made, after the caving system is well under way, which will be within a few months.

A head frame is now being erected on the Brooks shaft, by which all timbers will leave the Morris and Bunker Hill hoist free for ore hoisting at all times. The Morris shaft is being sunk under contract, and the work is progressing rapidly.

GOOD ORE STRIKE IN THE MAY DAY

Shaft to Be Sunk to the 400 or 500-Foot Level.

Butte, Mont., March 8.—An entire new electric plant and equipment is being purchased in Butte for installment upon the property of the May Day Mining company of Radersburg by their general manager, George A. Winslow, who reports a very encouraging body of ore exposed in a crosscut to main ledge at the 200-foot level from their new shaft.

It is the intention of the company, composed of St. Paul business men, to at once sink the shaft to the 400 or 500-foot level before extracting any ores for shipment.

The work as planned should add another important shipper to the Radersburg camp.

CITY BUILT AN ART COLONY.

London Chronicle: The city council of Budapest, in addition to providing houses at low prices for working men, clerks and officials, has built a colony for painters and sculptors in which every house has a good studio Seeing the great boon this has been to the artists, the literary men and journalists of that city have asked that a colony suitable to their needs may also be erected. To the deputation which waited on the lord mayor recently on this subject a very encouraging reply was given.

SHE DIDN'T "GET" HIM.

Indianapolis News: A woman on an East Washington street car handed the conductor $1.

The woman not having had experience in playing craps, was obliged to ask the conductor to elucidate. He explained that he wished to know whether or not she desired one dollar's worth of street car tickets.

SHOWING IS EXCELLENT

Centennial Has Gradually Increased Output to Sixteen Cars Daily.

Production of Wolverine in February Decreased By Unfavorable Weather.

Houghton, Mich., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Centennial Copper Mining company is opening excellent copper ground on several levels in the north shaft, where a number of drifts north have more recently come into what undoubtedly is a continuation of the so-called Wolverine shoot, for which the company has been seeking many years. A most excellent showing is being made in the thirty-third level. The openings in this shaft below the twenty-fifth level generally are in copper ground of commercial grade, though somewhat beow the average of the district, excepting for the improvement referred to. The situation in the south shaft is far different and the ground tributary to this shaft is rather poor from top to bottom, though a slight betterment is noticeable at depth. The north shaft is sinking below the thirty-fifth level. Production has gradually increased to seven cars daily, and the monthly output is now running between 15,000 and 18,000 tons of rock. The average yield now stands at about eighteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock milled.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine in February produced 383 tons of copper mineral, which production is 100 tons short of normal. The small outturn was due to unfavorable climatic conditions, under which it has at times been quite impossible to get the rock trains through on the hill, and in consequence, less than the usual amount of rock was stamped. The situation in the Kearsarge workings is not materially different from that noted in the recent past. A number of drifts, which about a year ago came into poor ground in the era tributary to No. 3 shaft, have more recently passed into richer ground and the general situation about as it has been in the past two or three years. The older workings in the upper levels are being scrammed for copper rock left standing in the earlier operations and this work contributes no inconsiderable tonnage of low grade rock, which cannot but have a diluting tendency on the total output shipped to the mills. The exploratory operations of the company are confined to work on the Osceola lode, in which a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 625 feet in ground quite bare of copper. This formation is being diamond drilled for possible values at depth.

Algomah.

The Algomah is sinking steadily in the exploratory shaft sunk on the Algomah ore body. The shaft is now a little over 250 feet deep. On the 210-foot level a crosscut is driving west with the object of intersecting the southerly extension of the lake lode, and in considerably over 1,000 feet would seem to have passed the point where the extension should have been intersected. Failure to find the continuation of the lake lode strengthens the theory that the lower end of this bed makes into the great eastern sandstone and away from the area in which the crosscut is driving. The south drifts in the adjoining Lake mine point to a well defined swing eastward. The north drifts as has been noted swing to westward. These turns give the Lake lode the shape of an exaggerated letter S, with the upper tail in South Lake territory and the lower tail in Algomah territory. The net results of Algomah's exploratory work in the horizon of the Lake bed is distinctly discouraging without really having disproved anything in particular. It will be interesting to follow developments in the western limits and beyond the horizon of the Lake lode when diamond drilling is resumed in this area, which carries the underlay of the South Lake lodes.

New Arcadian.

The New Arcadian, confining all activity to shaft work, has reached a depth of 420 feet. The shaft which is sinking in an unnamed copper bearing amygdaloid, lying with the approximate horizon of the Lake Royale lode, will be pushed to a depth of 1,500 feet with all possible speed. Sinking will be interrupted only long enough to cut a plat and start crosscuts east and west on the 500 level. These crosscuts will intersect copper bearing formations at distances of 300 feet and 100 feet, respectively, the results obtained in a previous diamond drill campaign indicating that these formations might be worked at a profit. The middle formation in which the shaft is sinking has shown more or less copper, and is held to be the most likely of the three. Surface equipment is adequate for the immediate future, and every dollar realized from assessments within the next year or two can be used exclusively for work underground.

Copper Range.

The Copper Range is obtaining better results in its operations in the Baltic mine, and the situation in this branch is now much better generally than at any time in two or three years past. The No. 2 shaft is developing excellent copper ground in the area on the south, and producing well up to capacity, stands first in point of production. In the No. 3 shaft production is at the moment hampered by repair work in progress below the tenth level, and the output is about 50 per cent of normal. The lower reaches in this shaft are in excellent copper ground, and rock of good grade is again in evidence on the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth levels. This shaft entered poor ground at about the twenty-first level, which continued to a depth of 500 feet, excepting for occasional pockets on the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth levels disclosed in drifting. The shaft case came into better ground at the twenty-seventh, and as noted developed copper rock of excellent grade in the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth level openings. Shafts Nos. 4 and 5 continue in rather poor ground, and no great change for the better is looked for in that quarter. The No. 5 shaft has never been permanently equipped and probably never will be, as the ground tributary thereto can be mined with economy through No. 4 shaft. The mine is producing upwards of 50,000 tons of rock per month with a resultant yield of about 750 to 800 tons copper mineral, indicating a recovery of about 30 pounds mineral per ton of rock stamped.

NAMING THE SON AND HEIR

By FRED C. KELLY.

Unto a young couple whom we'll call the Joneses a son was born. Naturally it was an event that minimized the importance of everything else that had ever happened—especially in the opinion of the young mother's folks, who closed up their house and took up temporary residence with the Joneses so's to be near the new-born, where they could make frequent comment on the rare sagacity he displayed.

After the excitement following the discovery that he had limbs and eyes like a regular baby had subsided a little the family connections all tried to get together on a name.

Now Jones, the father of the prodigy, insisted that he wanted some plain name that could be bolled down into a nickname of the old-fashioned, blown-in-the-bottle sort, such as Jack or Jim. His wife, however, was strong for a name such as Ronald or Marmaduke. She said if he got any ordinary name as all it would have to be one of those double names that are so popular in families where they raise children that grow up and lead cotillions. She would have called the child James Edward, for example, and used the full name whenever she addressed him. But Jones just naturally wouldn't stand for it.

"Wouldn't it sound ridiculous now," he pointed out, "to go out on the front porch to call the boy in from his play and say, 'James Edward, come in here?' and say, 'James Edward, come in here? Call him Jim or Ed if you want to, but none of that double name truck. I but none of that double name truck. I know one man whose friends call him by two names and he always looks to me like the remnant of a discarded hypothesis."

Then the mother's parents had a lot of fool names that they would call the helpless babe. Most of them were names that can only be used when the last name is "St. Clair," like the villain in a show.

Jones, being unable to carry out his own wishes in the selection of a suitable nomination, was content to postpone the christening in the hope that after a time some name might turn up on which all the relatives could agree. But the delay allowed an awful thing to happen. The young one had a funny way of screwing up its face and throwing its arms when it cried that Jones said made him think of a bug. So he playfully got to calling his offspring by the nickname of "Bug." The nurse took it up. Neighbors got hold of the sobriquet and they call him "Bug." Everybody calls him "Bug." By the time the family agreed in a regular name for him, the "Bug" nickname was so irrevocably established that there will be no forgetting it. That child is destined to go through life with everybody addressing him as "Bug," regardless of what may be his title in theh family Bible.

Some day a tall, smooth-faced man in a frock coat may arise in convention hall, mop his brow, and say: "Gentlemen, I wish to place in nomination the name of that sterling young patriot, Mr. Bug Jones."

The deed has been done. That "Bug" is destined to cling.

THE ADVANCE OF THE "MOVIES."

Such has been the popularity of moving picture shows, according to an article in McClure's, that one of the promoters of these enterprises not long ago proposed to lease the Metropolitan opera house in New York city for their production, and offered a rental of $150,000 a year; this being refused, he is now building a moving picture theater in Harlem which will seat even more people than the opera house.

WHEAT BEARS RULE MARKET

World Seems to Have Plenteous Supplies of This Grain.

Flaxseed Market Quiet and Featureless—Prices Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 8.—Wheat was bearish today on the markets of North America, and for the most part on those of other continents. America has wheat to export, but Europe is being supplied largely by Argentina. Moreover, the price of American wheat is such that it can be sold only when very quick delivery is wanted, in competition with the Canadian product.

Today the news was generally bearish. There were large receipts of wheat from the country on the American markets, the receipts of a year ago being far surpassed, as has been almost invariably the case throughout the present crop year. The winter wheat crop reports were favorable in the extreme. The demand for export amounted to very little.

Duluth May wheat today closed ¾c lower than yesterday, today's closing figure being 86¼-86⅜c bid. There were lower closes also at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Duluth cash wheat today closed 2c to 1¾c below the May price. Durum closed ½c off, oats ¼c off and rye and barley unchanged.

Liverpool wheat today closed ¼d lower to ¼d higher. There was a good overnight demand from the continent for Plata steamers.

Flaxseed Is Dull.

The flaxseed market was dull and comparatively featureless today. During the greater part of the day the quotations were under the closing figures of yesterday. The demand was quite slack. Offers were, however, not large. Minneapolis flaxseed today closed ½c under Duluth cash, showing that the Minneapolis crushers were not eager bidders for flaxseed and were not at all anxious to get large quantities of the Northwestern product shipped to that city. Duluth May and July linseed closed unchanged from the closing prices of yesterday. Winnipeg May flax today closed ⅜c off at $1.10¾, being 16½c under Duluth May. Buenos Ayres March flaxseed last night closed 1c off at $1.17¾. London-Calcutta March seed today closed unchanged at $1.57¼.

The Chicago Paint, Oil and Drug News says:

"While crushers are busy on contracts, the decline in flaxseed prices and the uncertainty surrounding that market has depressed prices of linseed oil so that they are now quoted at 44c, and it is believed business can be done at 43c. There is really not very much business being done, those who are in the habit of contracting being content to stand pat on their purchases, while those who do not contract are not ready to buy, either because they do not want oil or because they believe they can ultimately secure better prices. Although the flaxseed market was weak last week, which was reflected in linseed oil, it closed with a good undertone on Saturday, and on Monday of this week opened still stronger. Our cable dispatches indicate an exceptionally strong demand for oil abroad, and everything indicates that linseed oil prices are rather favorable at this writing, with an upward tendency bound to manifest itself when consumers have to put in their orders.

"The market in oil cake during the past week has been very quiet, and the price has ranged from $23.00@$23.50 at Minneapolis. The demand for meal continues quite good, although we quote $27 at Minneapolis which is 50c below the quotation of last week."

Walter Hvale of Chicago, connected with the grain brokerage firm of Knight & McDougall of that city, who was a visitor on the Duluth Board of Trade today, stated that in his opinion the general wheat situation of this country and of the world at large looked very bearish.

"America has plenty of wheat to send away in case Europe should need it," he said. "There are fair stocks of wheat at Chicago, enormous stocks at Minneapolis, large stocks at Duluth and substantial supplies at other places through the country. At the same time the situation is such that Europe buy American wheat only when it is needed in a hurry. When Europe can wait for the Winnipeg grain there is no chance to make a sale of the American product. At present Europe is being well supplied from Argentina, and therefore there is little demand over there for the North American wheat. This is almost invariably the case at this time of the year.

"The exportation of American wheat to fill rush orders is something new. Chicago is doing that and so is Omaha. Rush orders are frequently filled at these places and the wheat hurried across the continent to be shipped to Europe either from New York or Baltimore.

"I do not belibve much wheat is being received now at the gulf ports for export. I think whatever exporting is done by way of the gulf now is almost entirely on old contracts, which are being filled by wheat that was carried to the gulf last fall.

"The wheat with which Chicago now fills its rush export orders is largely No. 1 northern, which was shipped in the fall from Duluth to Chicago by way of the Great Lakes. Chicago dealers shipped several large cargoes from Duluth to Chicago. The large Northwestern crop made this a paying movement."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Export Business Merely Filling Old Contracts Has Depressing Effect.

Chicago, March 8.—Statements that recent export business had been largely to fill old contracts had a depressing effect today on wheat. Mild temperatures and additional moisture in the winter crop belt counted also against the bulls. There was apprehension too that the government report would show farm reserves to be heavy. Opening prices were ¾c lower to ⅞c higher. May started at 91¼@91¾c to 91½@91⅝c, unchanged to ¼c off and fell to 91⅛c.

Commission buying checked the decline. The close was unsettled with May ⅝@½c net lower at 91⅛c.

Corn weakened because buying was only of a scattered sort. May opened the same as last night to a sixteenth down at 52⅜@52⅝c to 52⅞c and sagged to 52⅝@52¾c.

A further setback resulted from increased offerings Southwest. The close, however, was steady at 52⅝@52¾c for May, ⅛@¼c under last night.

Demand for oats proved indifferent. May, which started a shade lower at 34¼c, descended to 34@34⅛c.

In provisions the weaker tone at the yards tended to ease the market. First sales varied from 2½@5c decline to 7½c advance with May at $21.05 for pork, $10.55 for lard, and $10.87½ for ribs.

STOCKS ARE VERY WEAK

Liquidation All Through the List With Large Short Selling.

High Grade Investment Issues Decline With Speculative Favorites.

New York, March 8.—The stock market was under heavy pressure at the opening today and the leading issues gave way rapidly. Union Pacific dropped 1½ to 150¾, below the low point touched last December at the time of the supreme court's decision in the Harriman merger case. American Tobacco fell 4½, Reading 1⅝, Canadian Pacific 1½, Beet Sugar 1¼ and Southern Pacific, Amalgamated and Rubber a point.

Acute weakness in prominent railroad and industrial shares caused liquidation all through the list with short selling on a large scale. Union Pacific sold at the lowest in five years, touching 149¾. Reading and Canadian Pacific fell 2 points, Beet Sugar 3½ and other active issues a point or more. Tobacco slumped 9½ and Liggett & Myers 13 points on fears of renewed antitrust prosecutions.

The market closed weak. In common with the other greater financial markets of the world, the home market showed weakness today owing to the stringent money conditions abroad, especially in Berlin. Efforts to obtain funds here to relieve the pressure abroad, tending toward a reduction of loanable capital in this market, furnished ammunition for the bears, who raided the list sharply.

Uneasiness was felt over the uncertain status of the Harriman dissolution plan, and the possibility of further government suits against large corporations. Prices of stocks gave way abruptly. High grade investment issues went down in almost the same precipitate fashion as speculative favorites.

Bonds were weak.

New York Money.

New York, March 8.—Money on call nominal; on loans, Time loans strong; 60 days and 90 days and six months, 5 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper, 5¼ to 5½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.83.65 for 60 day bills and at $4.87.95 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.82⅝. Bar silver, 58¾c. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds weak.

Cotton Market.

New York, March 8.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 1@5 points under Wall Street selling. The trade seemed to pay little attention to fairly steady cables and the market was fairly active after the call, with prices easing off to a net loss of 8 or 9 points on the old crop positions. There was some March for sale, which created an unfavorable impression as to the situation in Southern spot markets, although there was no change in the general news.

New crop positions were relatively steady, but the general list was nervous and unsettled during the first hour and bears showed increased aggressiveness. Houses with foreign and trade connections at some of the older shorts were considered the best buyers on the decline.

Futures closed barely steady. Closing bids: March, 12.13; April, 11.91; May, 11.81; June, 11.76; July, 11.75; August, 11.66; September, 11.41; October, 11.36; December, 11.37; January 11.32.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 12.50; middling gulf, 12.75; sales, 1,500 bales.

London Stocks.

London, March 8.—American securities opened quiet and a fraction higher. Fears of a poor New York bank statement induced realizing in most of the list and the market closed easy with prices ranging from ⅛ above to ⅜ below yesterday's New York closing. Money was scarce and discount rates were firm and higher.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

CLAIM RANGE HIGH SCHOOL BASKET BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Ely, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ely high school basket ball team were the guests of honor at a party given by the high school students at the Lincoln school gymnasium last evening in recognition of the work that the team has done during the season just closed, during which nine games were played without losing a single game. Four of the games were played under the favorable conditions on a home court, and five were played on strange courts under less favorable conditions. Four were played on two trips away, two games each trip, and on successive nights. Coach W. E. Englund is given much credit for the faithful way that he has drilled and built a team that could go into every encounter and bring back a victory, and the party last evening was but a partial expression of the appreciation of the high school to the team as well as to Mr. Englund. The present team has made the best record of any team in the history of the Ely high school athletics.

BAITED TRAPS WITH VENISON

Game Warden Wood By Detective Work Catches Father and Son.

Virginia, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ben and Henry Christenson, father and son, who are trappers in the Lake Kapetogama country, near the Canadian border, were fined $25 and costs by Judge Carey yesterday afternoon. They were arrested by Game Warden Wood, after doing some clever detective work, on the charge of baiting their traps with venison. He not only arrested the men but got the record of their receipts from the sale of venison not used for trapbait.

Traps Over Many Miles.

Mr. Wood placed a man in a deserted cabin, near Christenson's, for a few days with a lot of traps. This man soon got acquainted with the Christensons, and went with them on their line of traps which extended over many miles and required several days to make the entire circuit. The warden, armed with a search warrant, then went to the shack and seized a complete diary of the illegal operations and daily work since September, showing they had started trapping long before the season and had used several deer for bait, also had killed and disposed of deer indiscriminately. The diary was used as evidence against them and the decoy trapper was also subpoenaed. Both men pleaded guilty.

VIRGINIA CROOK SCORED BY JUDGE

Matt Techich, Who Robbed Fellow Countryman, Is Roasted By Judge.

Hibbing, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matt Techich of Virginia, convicted of grand larceny in the second degree in stealing $240 from Matt Pavn of Buhl, following a night's carousal, after which Techich took an early morning train to Superior, where he was arrested with the money in his possession, felt the bitter scorn of the best type of citizenship on the Mesaba range for that class of foreigners who live by preying upon their countrymen yesterday afternoon, when Judge Martin Hughes in passing sentence administered a scathing rebuke for the defence he had interposed. The judge stated he was convinced that in addition to the crime of which he stood convicted, he was also guilty of perjury. Techich received an indeterminate sentence of not more than five years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater.

When brought into court to be sentenced Techich told the judge that he had been looking for work at Virginia as a miner, but had never had any experience as a miner. He had been in the United States six years, but was not naturalized, had worked some time as a common laborer at Cleveland, Ohio, and for a year had been employed as a bartender in a West Duluth saloon. He said he had gambled only when "some of the boys were playing a game," and alleged he had played but little during the past year. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed upon him he told the court that his attorney had informed him that he was not guilty.

Is Scored by Judge.

"You are one of that type of foreigners," said Judge Hughes, "who considers yourself smarter than the average of your countrymen and who endeavor to make a living without working by preying upon their credulity. The defense set up by you interposed at your trial was so foolish that you could not expect anybody to believe it. You stole this money and immediately left the state and when you were arrested the money was found in your possession. I am convinced of the fact that in addition to the crime of which you stand convicted, you are also guilty of the crime of perjury. You will have ample time at Stillwater to improve yourself, and your stay there will be governed largely by your own conduct. I hope you will be benefited by the lesson which should be brought home to you here today."

SPREADS GOSPEL ALONG FRONTIER

Virginia, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. F. L. Prestige who resigned a Methodist pastorate in Southern Minnesota to spread the gospel among settlers on the frontier in Northern St. Louis county, wearing lumberjack attire and submitting often to the privations of life in the woods is winning many converts. His headquarters are here but he comes here only weekly or bi-weekly.

He is the agent of the American Sunday School union with headquarters in Philadelphia and the office of the Minnesota district in Minneapolis, an organization which does pioneer work only. He passes by every community where there is a church and a pastor, and leaves the field he commences just as soon as the Sunday school organization grows and interest is worked up to the place where the people organize and engage a pastor to hold meetings, perhaps only occasionally. The work is entirely undenominational.

At one place in a new mining district on the range the Sunday school was held in a mine carpenter and blacksmith shop for a year. The school now has better quarters and has an enrollment of fifty-nine pupils. Schools have been established at Gheen and at Bear River. Recently Mr. Prestige and Rev. John O. Farris of Minneapolis held meetings the same day at Alborn, Munger and Five Corners.

At Molde, sixteen miles from Duluth, the superintendent of the Sunday school is Miss Sayers, only 16 years of age who attends the Duluth high school all week and goes into the country at each week end in order that the children may have the Sunday school and church privileges. Here an Easter program is being prepared.

Missionary's Territory.

His territory extends north to Gheen, west to Bear River and south to Palmers on the Duluth & Iron Range and not many miles from Duluth. Mr. Prestige has visited homes in the wilderness where he was the first man from the outside world who had visited the place in a year. He has visited 300 homes, held twenty-nine services, reached 875 people who have no other service privileges and distributed many Bibles, testaments and hymn books. He has since commencing the work a few months ago traveled 800 miles nearly the entire distance on foot.

EMPLOYES' HOMES TO HAVE SEWERS

Virginia, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—An important job of the year will be the building of sewers and making connections with the eighty-two houses owned by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company at the Scanlon location.

The lumber concern built these houses a number of years ago to accommodate their employes when it was next to impossible to get any kind of desirable quarters in Virginia.

The houses were put up long before there were any city sewer lines anywhere near.

The expert advice of the officials of the state board of health that the system is more than amply able to carry off this additional material will accelerate the completion of the work.

Engineers heve already gone over the ground and a complete survey of the work was placed in the hands of the company some time ago.

ECZEMA ON TOP OF BABY'S HEAD

Broke Out In Pimples. Big Sores Behind Ears and on Head. Itched and Burned. Would Cry and Scratch. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 6, Goodhue, Minn.—"When my baby was three weeks old eczema broke out in pimples which were filled with watery matter. In a short time he got big sores especially behind his ears and on top of his head. He lost all his hair. His head was covered with crusts. He was so sore behind his ears we thought they would fall off, and after a little while it broke out on his shoulders and feet. It itched and burned so he would cry and scratch and could not sleep but a few minutes at a time.

"We used many remedies but it got worse and worse all the time with little rest and sleep for either him or me. A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I sent for a sample. I saw at once that they were just the thing, so we bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. I bathed him with warm water and Cuticura Soap twice a day and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. Within four months he was entirely well from all sores and his hair started to grow fine. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured him." (Signed) Mrs. Claus Ceilstrom, Apr. 19, 1912.

LAKE FIREMAN IS GIVEN SENTENCE

Hibbing, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last case on the criminal calendar in district court was completed yesterday afternoon and Judge Hughes adjourned court until Monday when the civil calendar will be taken up. The criminal calendar has been the longest of any term tried here.

Andrew Russell, formerly employed as a fireman on Lake Superior on the Hurontic, convicted of the crime of robbery in the first degree, committed at Virginia, was given an indeterminate sentence of not more than twenty years, in district court. Russell is a Canadian Frenchman, born in the city of Quebec. He told the court that he was married and the father of two little girls, who, with their mother, were living on a farm near the city of Quebec, owned by the woman's father. He had not written to them for four years or contributed money to their support in that time.

Judge Hughes said he thought the evidence justified conviction.

Assistant County Attorney Boyle moved for the dismissal of the indictment against Sam McNeish, charged with being Russell's accomplice in the Silverman robbery, on the grounds of insufficient evidence and the motion was granted. McNeish and Russell were arrested together at the Holland hotel in Virginia. Siverson was unable to identify him as one of the two men who assaulted and robbed him in the Missabe yards. McNeish was a witness for Russell in his attempt to establish an alibi.

Chief Witness Missing.

An indictment against Joe Burich for assault in the first degree, alleged to have been committed on Mila Workavich at Virginia, was also dismissed because Workavich, the chief witness for the state, cannot be located by the authorities of Itasca county and is believed to have fled the country.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty yesterday afternoon on an indictment against Nick Zachovich of the Croxton location, charging indecent assault. The chief witness for the state was Mrs. Mary Burja.

John Butolphi, a plumber who has been employed by Schirmer Bros. at Buhl, convicted of indecent assault on Mrs. Hannah Shold, an employe of the Stratford hotel at Buhl, is still in the Hibbing jail awaiting sentence. He will probably be sentenced Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

WHITE PLAGUE VICTIM.

Two Harbors Young Woman Treated in Vain to Stay Disease.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Anna La Fave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard La Fave, died at the home of her parents here yesterday, after a lingering illness of about two years with tuberculosis. Miss La Fave made an unsuccessful attempt to regain her health last fall when she went to the Walker sanitarium where she spent several months, but the disease was too far advanced and she was brought home a hopeless case and has been on the decline until her death. Miss La Fave was 19 years old and with her parents has made Two Harbors her home since childhood. Previous to her serious illness she acted as operator in the local telephone exchange. The funeral will be held on Monday morning from the Holy Ghost Catholic church. Rev. D. V. Patt will officiate.

FIND ORE ALONG LONGYEAR LAKE

Test Pitting By Euclid Company Adjoining Chisholm Brings Some Results.

Chisholm, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Euclid Iron Mining company have had men test-pitting in the vicinity of the Swan River logging office and the King lumber yard. The crew is at present working on Pit No. 4 and is very close to the Longyear lake shore line on the west side of the lake.

Test Pit No. 1, immediately across from the King lumber yard office and on the Great Northern right-of-way, shows ore and in one place they encountered a narrow seam of fairly good ore. Test Pit No. 2 did not disclose more than No. 1 and a third pit was started directly west of the Finnish opera house. This pit showed traces of ore, but nothing tangible on which to encourage further exploration.

Test Pit No. 4 on the shore of the lake is now down about thirty-two feet and some ore has been found there and the pit will be put down a considerable distance further if the conditions improve. The ore is now being analyzed.

The company was prompted to make these investigations by reason of the ore body, which they have been mining, pointing to traces of the body extending toward the main part of the town.

ON CASH BASIS.

Chisholm Has Risen From Financial and Building Ashes.

Chisholm, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—This village which was wiped out by fire four years ago and rebuilt far better is today practically on a cash basis judging by the report of Recorder Hackett, just published which shows the village saved $60,000 in the past eleven months. FEVER CLAIMS FIFTH VICTIM Chisholm Prevents Children Going to Theaters or Churches.

Chisholm, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifth funeral due to the present epidemic of scarlet fever, was held yesterday afternoon when a child was buried. Over a score of cases are reported nearly all children under 7, and the board of health is exerting every effort to stamp out the disease. Persons under 18 have been barred from theaters, churches and other public places. Three young women have the disease in the Monroe location and the second child in the family of Harry Thompson is dead. The school board fears it will not be able to open the schools next week. The board of health believes the disease was brought here by some family just from Europe. It has been definitely stated that one of the children of a large family died in Duluth while coming here.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Roy Sloat, a woodsman who was killed at Camp 9 on the Alger-Smith line this week, was brought here by Undertaker Brown, and shipped today to relatives at Bay City, Mich. Sloat had been employed at the camp but a short time prior to his death.

Do You Want to Know About Your Business, Marriage, Changes, Occupation, Friends, Enemies or What to Do to Achieve Success?

TEST READINGS FREE TO ALL DULUTH HERALD READERS WHO WRITE AT ONCE.

Attention of the mystically inclined seems to be centered at present upon the work of Mr. Clay Burton Vance, who, although laying claim to no special gift of supernatural powers, attempts to reveal the lives of people through the slender clues of hand-writing and birth-dates. The undeniable accuracy of his delineations leads one to surmise that heretofore palmists, prophets, astrologers, and seers of divers beliefs have failed to apply the true principles of the science of divination.

Asked to explain the method by which he gives his delineations, Mr. Vance replied: "I have simply resurrected an ancient science and moulded it into a key to human nature."

The following letter is published as evidence of Mr. Vance's ability:

Prof. Dixon, M. A., Director Lanka Observatory, member of the "Societe Astronomique de France," member of the "Astronomische Gesellschaft," Germany, writes:

Prof. Clay Burton Vance:

Dear Sir—"I duly received your letter and Complete Life Reading. I am perfectly satisfied with your Reading; it is in nearly all the items as exact as it could possibly be. It seems strange that you as it could possibly be. It seems strange that you should refer to my suffering from throat trouble. I have just had a bad attack and usually have it two or three times per year. I shall certainly recommend you to my friends who desire a Life Reading." Arrangements have been made to give free test Readings to all readers of The Herald but it is especially requested that those who wish to avail themselves of this generous offer make application at once. If you wish a delineation of your own life, if you wish a true description of your characteristics, talents and opportunities, simply send your full name, the date, month and year of your birth (state whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss), and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting:

REAL ESTATE

GOOD YEAR IN BUILDING EXPECTED BY ARCHITECTS

Many Good Prospects Are Now in the Preliminary Stage.

New Hotel for West End Will Cost About $60,000.

Construction work in Duluth and vicinity is running fairly heavy, as indicated by the building permits of the week. Nineteen permits were issued authorizing improvements estimated to cost $26,550.

Architects declare that there are a number of good prospects in the improvement line now hanging fire, and that more sketching has been done in their offices this spring than ever before.

One of the most substantial improvements which has come to the surface recently is the announcement that plans have been prepared for the construction of a six-story hotel costing $60,000, to be built at the northwest corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

The site was purchased three years ago by the Gopher Realty company for a consideration of $23,000. The company is a holding corporation for E. W. Hoch and associates of the Duluth Brewing & Malting company.

It is probable that at first only four of the six stories will be built. The building will front 100 feet on Superior street and will run 140 feet back on Twentieth avenue to the alley. It is understood that S. D. Ives, manager of the Esmond hotel, will manage the new hostelry when it is completed.

Architect J. J. Wangenstein has prepared plans for the new hotel.

New signs of life are being manifested in local realty circles. Those well informed with the situation declare that there is a better feeling, a feeling bred by confidence There is apparent an increasing demand for all kinds of property and the indications are that the spring months will be busy ones.

Good residence properties in favored locations are in active demand and those of the real estate men who are best posted are anticipating an active season in that class of property. Farm and timer lands are also receiving attention.

A good sized mining land deal was pulled off during the week on the Cuyuna range by W. H. Locker and E. J. B. Donahue and associates, who purchased 7,780 acres in Crow Wing and Cass counties. The consideration is understood to be in the neighborhood of $10 an acre. The land will be explored for mineral and later put on the market for colonization purposes. To this end, a development company has been organized among the purchasers. It is known as the Cuyuna Ore Lands company. It has a capital stock of $100,000.

D. M. Cole of the land department of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad reports an unusually good demand for farm lands in St. Louis county during the past winter and declares that every indication points to a brisk spring business. He recently sold property in this county to six Wisconsin dairymen, who contemplate moving on the land in the spring. One of them, he states, mentioned ten others who were seriously considering following suit.

The next state land sale will be held in Duluth April 8 and will be conducted at the courthouse by State Auditor Samuel G. Iverson. A good selection of descriptions including about 50,000 acres of state land which were appraised last fall, will be put up for sale. Some of the lands are advantageously located as to railroads and settlements and others hold out inducements owing to the fact that they are on lakes near Ely and Tower in the northern end of the county. Maps showing just where the property offered lies may be secured from the state auditor free.

The Whitney Wall company advise a strong tone to the inquiry for all sorts of city property and report that there seems to be quite a demand for building lots in the more desirable sections and for the better class of houses. During the past week this firm closed up on a sale of a house at 1022 East Ninth street from John Goodman to Anna Hill. The consideration was $1,575. The lot fronts twenty-five feet on East Ninth street.

A good sized deal in East end residence property was consummated this week when the home of George R. Laybourn at 1432 East Fourth street was sold to Lundmark & Franson, a local real estate firm. The price paid was $11,500. The property is situated on the southwest corner of Fifteenth avenue east and Fourth street and has a frontage of fifty feet on the street and 140 feet on the avenue.

Ebert, Walker & McKnight report that they have a number of good sized deals in prospect in St. Louis and Aitkin county farm lands. They have succeeded in interesting a number of outside people and have arranged to take out a party to see a large tract of farming land near the Cuyuna range next week. If the deal is closed it will mean a new colonization project. The prospects for a good spring business in farm lands is excellent, they say.

HOLLOW TILE RESIDENCES ARE BECOMING POPULAR

Hollow tile for residence construction is becoming quite popular. Not only is it economical in cost, but it is also economical in construction. Building men say that the upkeep of a house built of this material is very reasonable. It is fireproof, vermin-proof, and will keep a house cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

A house built of terra-cotta blocks would cost from 10 to 15 per cent more than if built of wood, and the same cost as of wire lath and stucco, and at least 15 per cent cheaper than brick. This mode of construction is becoming more and more popular, and the demand for the material is more than the present factory output. In its progress toward fireproofing modern building construction has lost some of the virtues of older methods, the most marked loss being, in domestic work, that of sound-proofness. The old flooring of heavy joists, with boards above them and plaster ceiling below is abandoned, even in country work, in favor of terra-cotta blocks and reinforced concrete. No one will deny that these mean superior construction; but concrete conducts rather than deafens sound. This is specially true when, for economy's sake, concrete flooring is of a minimum thickness. This minimum thickness, always specified in smaller work, is secured by laying board flooring on sleepers that are already partly imbedded in concrete, to whose underside the plaster ceiling is applied directly.

In making a design for a fireproof house you must not merely take a plan for a frame house and try to adapt it to the requirements of a fireproof design. Lumber may be sawed any length or planed or trimmed to fit. The materials for a fireproof house, however, are not so elastic. To build it economically one must know what the economical plans are for the hollow tile floor panels. This does not mean that hollow tile construction is not easy to use. On the contrary, it requires no more skill than frame construction.

The interior partitions can be of 4-inch tile, and the plaster is applied directly on them without laths or furring strips. The joy of having solid sound-proof, vermin-proof partitions of hollow tile is certainly worth their slightly increased cost over wooden ones. The fireproof floors are laid on a temporary foundation, which is removed when the floor is "set." The finished wood floor is then furred up above the masonry with 2-inch strips. All pipes and electric wires extend up through slots left in the tile partition, exactly as in an ordinary brick house. The pipes which extend horizontally across floors are laid directly on top of the floor tile and are covered by the finished wood floor. For the window jambs special tiles, which are made by all tile manufacturers, are used. These are cast with a space to receive the window frame, in order to secure a weather-proof joint at this point. Then, too, special tiles are used for the corners of the rooms and where the fireproof floor comes on the wall.

OYSTER SHELLS USED IN PLACE OF GRAVEL

Galveston people have put up a five-story concrete building, the concrete being made of oyster shells from the reefs of Galveston bay. This material is asserted to be better and cheaper than concrete made with gravel. Shell concrete built in a wall three feet high and 336 feet long, in 1822, withstood the severe test of fire and water, and is today as sound as when built. It is estimated that the shells of 5,896,000 oysters are imbedded in the walls of this building.

LOCATING THE NEW DULUTH FIRE HALL

The location of the new fire hall which will replace the old New Duluth hall is a question which is now occupying the attention of Gary and New Duluth residents.

The general opinion among the up-river suburbanites seems to favor locating the new hall at Grand and Commonwealth, the present center of population there.

The site of the present hall, it is said, is about seven blocks away from the two big lumber yards at Gary and the proposed site brings the hall within two blocks of these industries.

The French government is planning to grant a bounty to each fishing vessel equipped with a wireless apparatus and an annual allowance for maintenance.

Contractors Make Good Showing on Contracts in Cold Weather.

Contractors are making good progress on projects which they have had under way during the present season. Labor has been plentiful and materials have been easily assembled. Construction work has been halted but little by the cold weather.

Richard Hanson, who has the contract for the $50,000 apartment house, the Granville, which is being built for Harry E. Jones, an Eastern capitalist, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue east and Second street, has started the brick work on the building. The foundation is already in. It is expected to have the building ready for occupancy late in the spring.

The F. W. Wahl building at Second avenue west and Second street, lower side, is now practically completed. Jacobson Bros., who have the contract say that the finishing touches are now being put on. The building has cost $45,000. It fronts 100 feet on Second street. It will be occupied at once, it is understood.

MacLeod & Smith are making splendid headway on their Kitchi Gammi club contract. The handsome new clubhouse which is being put up at Ninth avenue east and Superior street is rapidly assuming shape.

At the West end, Contractor George Lounsberry is making a good showing with the new $100,000 factory building which is being erected for F. A. Patrick & Co. The factory will be ready for use during the early part of the summer.

Architect Clyde W. Kelly of Kelly & Williams reports that the finishing touches are now being put on the new $20,000 city hall building at Cloquet, the plans for which were prepared in his office. The job is being handled by Contractor Redfield.

The Duluth Telephone company this week moved into its handsome new office building and exchange which was built this winter on the lower side of First street between Third and Fourth avenues west.

ARCHITECTS PLAN SERIES OF TALKS

April 3—Social evening.

April 10—"Decorative Tile Products," M. A. Thompson; "Glazing, Medieval and Modern," P. J. St. Germain.

April 17—"Plumbing Fixtures," D. G. McLeod.

April 24—"Business Lighting," C. E. Melby; president's remarks by C. W. Kelly.

The present officers of the club are: C. W. Kelly, president; William J. Sullivan, vice president; E. C. Gilliuson, treasurer, and John M. Carson, secretary. The officers and the following constitute the board of directors: Henry Holmboe, A. N. Starin and Abraham Holstead, A. R. I. B. A.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Elsie Smith and H. A. Miller have been traveling about the country together as man and wife, according to the police.

Yesterday they were arrested in a downtown hotel, taken to police court and arraigned on a disorderly charge. Both pleaded not guilty and their trial was set for Monday afternoon.

The interruption to their sojourn was caused by Miller's wife, whom he left behind at their home at Watertown, S. D., with two small children. Under the Dakota statutes no charge, it is claimed, can be brought against Miller on which he can be extradited. Wherefore it appears that all that can be done is to handle the case here as a misdemeanor.

Miller and the young woman who was with him, became acquainted in Watertown, where both lived, and became infatuated with one another. Miller told the police that he found her companionship pleasant in contrast to that of his wife, while the young woman apparently found Miller a desirable companion.

Miller asserted that Miss Smith was barred from her home by her parents, possibly on account of her affection for him. When she was taken sick he said that she followed him to a Minnesota town in which he was following his occupation of a scale salesman. Having no one to whom she could turn, he explained that he took care of her, planning to send her to a Minneapolis hospital for treatment. He denied that their relations had been improper at any time.

Asked about his wife and babies he stated that he had no intention of deserting them and was figuring on sending them money with which to pay the household expenses.

When Mrs. Miller learned that her husband was in Duluth with Elsie Smith she took the matter up with the local police. She gave them all the information in her possession and the arrest yesterday was the result. Both were found in the same hotel. Their bail was fixed at $100 each.

Axel McGinnen has been hanging about the Bowery for the past several weeks eking out an existence in a decidedly precarious and uncertain manner, said the police this morning. Axel was arrested on a charge of vagrancy, to which he pleaded guilty. The officers also remarked that it had been reported to them that Axel appeared to have a liking for the company of convivial spirits with money and that after he had separated himself from their presence it was noticed that part of their cash was missing. Axel went over the hill for thirty days, being unable to meet an assessment of $40 and costs.

Gilbert Nyman got thirty days in the county jail without the option of a fine when he was convicted in police court yesterday afternoon of having assaulted his mother.

The testimony was that he came to his mother's home in the West end under the influence of liquor. She was in bed, being still weak from a recent operation. She requested him to leave, whereupon it seems that he seized her hands and frightened her so badly that a physician had to be called at once.

It was stated that Nyman has done so little towards the support of his mother that it has been necessary for the county to help her out during the winter.

Walter Gravelle was convicted in police court this morning of having threatened his wife with bodily violence. He was placed on parole for three months.

Sam Peterson, a section hand, was knocked down by a switch engine in the N. P. yards near Sixth avenue west this morning, sustaining a broken leg. His clothes caught in a projection and he was dragged some distance before the locomotive was brought to a stop. It appears that Peterson was a second too slow in getting out of the way of the box cars which were being shunted down the track. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital by the police. Peterson is about 50 years old and boards at the Swea hotel at Nineteenth avenue west and Superior street.

Oswald Ellison, a Bowery wallflower, pleaded with tears in his eyes for a chance to get out of town when he was jugged several days ago. The court gave him the opportunity he so earnestly craved. But all Oswald evidently wanted was a chance to get out so that he could soak up another batch of booze. Last night he was arrested with a bigger package than he could carry in one load. He admitted in police court this morning that he was drunk and went over the hill for five days.

John W. Cochran may have thought the judge was joking when he allowed him a day in which to get out of town after he said that he wanted to go to work. John tarried. Yesterday he was pinched again. The police didn't take the trouble to bring him to court but sent him to the county jail for thirty days, the sentence having been left hanging over his head when he was released.

Fire caused by an improperly protected chimney running through a floor, caused a loss of about $500 to the residence of C. A. St. Jacque at 3822 Lake avenue south yesterday. The interior was quite badly scorched before the firemen reached the scene.

Although the March grand jury in district court failed to indict Anna Peslar and John Korda, who were bound over on a charge of adultery, they will not go free. Following the return of a no true bill yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Meining received word from the Superior authorities that they are wanted there for the same offense.

This afternoon an officer from the Superior police force will call at the county jail for them. On Feb. 26 last the Peslar woman and Korda were apprehended on a statutory charge preferred by the husband of the woman. He claimed to the police that he had been out of the city for nine months and that when he returned he found Korda living with his wife.

It is claimed at Superior that Korda and Mrs. Peslar lived as man and wife at Superior for a short time prior to coming to Duluth about three months ago.

WILL CONTINUE THEATER MEETINGS

Rice, pastor of the First Methodist church, who has been holding a series of noon meetings at the Lyceum theater, handling a topic of general interest at each, will hold week night meetings at the same place from March 10 to March 20 inclusive, each service beginning at 8 o'clock. Men, women and children are invited to attend these sessions. Dr. Rice will hold a meeting for men and older boys at the same place on Sunday afternoon, March 16, opening at 3:30 o'clock.

LEGISLATURE HAS BUSY TIMES IN PROSPECT TO CLOSE OF THE SESSION

Not Quarter of Bills Introduced Yet Finally Acted Upon.

Large Mass Will Be Left Unfinished When Adjournment Comes.

County Division to Be Voted Upon Wednesday or Thursday.

(By a Staff Correspondent).

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—With both houses buried in uncompleted business, and with the session nearly two-thirds past, the outlook is for very busy times in the legislature from now on to the close of the session April 24.

There have been introduced about 1,600 bills, not a quarter of which have been finally acted upon.

The house particularly is loading up its general orders and calendar and not getting on very rapidly, though it is well up with the senate in disposing of the more important measures. This is always the case, however, for the senate is a smaller and more compact body, and though it has a number of members who dearly love to talk, when it gets down to business it can dispatch its affairs with a speed that makes the house look on in open-eyed amazement.

Bills are still coming in, but under the house rules no bill can come into that body after next Wednesday un-

SUFFRAGETTES BURN STATION

Structure at Saunderton, Near London, Set on Fire.

London, March 10.—Militant suffragettes today set fire to the Saunderton station of the Great Western railroad and burned it to the ground. Saunderton is about thirty-one miles from London.

Two placards were found in the vicinity on which were painted the words:

"Burning to get the vote," and "Votes for Women."

Suffragettes burned the wooden pavilion of the Bowling club at Heaton, park, Newcastle, Sunday morning. They left a card inscribed:

"No peace until votes for women."

The suffragettes held meetings again Sunday in Hyde park and Wimbledon. They would have met the fate of last Sunday's meetings at the same place, when it required a strong body of police to escort them to safety, but that yesterday the authorities took precautions and had large bodies of police in attendance.

Even at that, wild scenes ensued. Five thousand persons assembled in the park and swarmed about the speakers' platform and by a deafening din prevented any word of "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond's speech from being heard. The pressure of the surging crowds to storm the platform at length became so great that reinforcements were hastily summoned. Mrs. Drummond and her colleagues were rescued from their perilous positions with some difficulty.

At Wimbledon similar scenes were enacted. Scarcely a word uttered by the speakers was audible, and they, too, had to be protected.

Another meeting at Hempstead heath was still more disorderly. Miss Bracken announced her intention to speak for an hour. This she succeeded in doing by the help of a large force of police, but her discourse was inaudible. The din of comic songs and the shouts and laughter of the disturbers could be heard half a mile distant. Eggs were thrown at the speakers and the meeting finally broke up in the greatest confusion. Many suggestions were made to duck the speakers in a pond.

DRAKE GIVEN REPRIMAND

Attorney for Equity Exchange Clashes With Chairman Works.

Warned That He Must Cease Abuse of Witnesses.

(By a Staff Correspondent).

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only one temporary absence from the room of James H. Ege, sergeat-at-arms of the senate, saved Benjamin Drake, Jr., attorney for the Equity Co-operative exchange, from being forcibly assisted to his seat at the session of the senate grain probe committee today. Mr. Drake at the opening of the session insisted on making a lengthy explanation of some point to which he objected in the inquiry. Chairman S. D. Works told the attorney to be seated. Mr. Drake kept right on talking.

"The sergeant-at-arms!" called the chairman, "Mr. Ege!" But the sergeant was not within hearing and the chairman had to content himself with again ordering the attorney to sit down. This time the latter complied.

Another Clash.

Senator Works and Mr. Drake clashed again later when the latter accused J. O. Hageback, manager of the Farmers' Elevator company at Madison, Minn., of being as evasive and "slippery as an eel." Judge Simpson, one of the chamber of commerce attorneys, objected, saying that while Mr. Hageback was not his witness, he would interfere in the interest of fair play.

Senator Works reprimanded Mr.

ALL READY FOR THE OPERATION.

STATE REVOLUTIONISTS OF MEXICO VICTORIOUS IN FIGHT WITH FEDERALS

After Battle Lasting Since Saturday Morning Troops Hold Nacozari.

Huerta Soldiers Who Defended Town Are Retreating to Agua Prieta.

Rebels Far Outnumber the Government Troops in the North.

Douglas, Ariz., March 10.—After a battle lasting from Saturday morning until yesterday afternoon, 800 state troops today hold Nacozari. The 250 Huerta soldiers defending the town are retreating to Agua Prieta. This news was received here today when communication was restored below this point.

The capture of Nacozari opens the road, it is believed, to Agua Prieta and if the latter town is taken, the insurgent troops can march westward along the border, encountering only small garrisons at Nogales, Naco and other small towns.

Few Federal Soldiers.

At none of the ports on the Sonora-Arizona border there are more than 300 Federal troops. All the Huerta soldiers in Northern Sonora do not exceed 1,000 men, it was said today on good authority, while the state government in its revolt against the provisional president within a few days has raised an army of nearly 10,000 men, according to carefully compiled figures made up from the reports of the various state troop leaders.

At Nacozari are the 100 men under Prefect Bracamente of Moctezuma. There were only 250 Federal troops defending Nacozari when the attack was made Saturday.

Similarly small garrisons defend Agua Prieta, Nogales and Naco, while another strong rebel group from Magdalena, below Nogales, is reported as moving to the border to assist in attacking the ports of entry.

Communication Cut.

Communication remains cut with Hermosillo, the state capital held by the insurgents, and even with American mining settlements near the border. There is much anxiety felt for the American mining men at Nacozari and at Cananeo on a part of the Southern Pacific of Mexico, which road also has been cut by state troops.

Lampazos Threatened.

A force of 500 followers of Venustiano Carranza, the rebel governor of the state of Coahuila, today threatened the town of Lampazos in the state of Nuevo Leon. Lampazos, located seventy-five miles southwest of Laredo, Tex., is one of the most important towns in the state.

As soon as the news reached here, Gen. Jose Maria Mier was ordered to take 600 Federal troops from Monterey, (100 miles away), and make an effort to prevent the rebels from entering the town.

No reports have reached the Federal capital during the past twelve hours as to Carranza's whereabouts, but he is believed still to be near Bajan, where he retired after his defeat near Reata.

KING OPENS PARLIAMENT

Called Together After Prorogation of Only Two Days.

Opening Preceded By Usual Procession From Buckingham Palace.

London, March 10.—King George today opened the third session of the present parliament after a prorogation of only two days, the briefest recess on record.

The king and queen took their places on the throne in the presence of a great gathering.

The opening was preceded by the usual procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall, the center of the brilliant picture being the great gilded glass coach drawn by the famous Hanoverian cream-colored horses.

Drizzling Rain Falls.

A drizzling rain fell throughout the day but this had no effect on the tens of thousands of sightseers. The king's speech from the throne was chiefly devoted to the Balkan war, expressing the earnest desire of the European powers to hasten the conclusion of peace.

His majesty opened with a reference to the jubilee of the marriage of his parents, King Edward VII, and Queen Alexandra. He expressed gratitude for the affection shown by the nation to the widowed queen mother, Alexandra.

Referring to the Balkan war, the king said:

"I am hopeful that the consultations between the powers will enable them not only to bring about a complete understanding among themselves, but to exercise a beneficent influence in hastening the conclusion of the war."

Refers To Dominion.

His majesty referred to the action of the British dominions which have contributed war vessels to the British navy, and also to the visits of Robert L. Borden, the Canadian premier. These things, he said, were calculated to promote the solidarity of the empire.

"The discussions now proceeding in the Canadian parliament on matters of defense," he added, "testify to the desire for the maintenance of the common safety."

The forthcoming estimates were the subject of merely passing mention.

The forecast of legislation to be in-

AGED CROOKSTON MAN CREMATED

Ole Sandloe, Aged 89, Is Burned to Death When Bed Clothes Catch Fire.

Crookston, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Sandloe, aged 89, was cremated in his room this morning at 9:30 at the home of his son-in-law, Ole W. Sivertson. The old man had been bedridden for sixteen years and was totally blind. He was smoking and the bed clothing caught fire from his pipe.

Oscar Sivertson, his grandson, smelled smoke and went upstairs to the old man's room, but the flames drove him back. The old man begged to be saved, but could not be reached. When the fire department arrived and extinguished the flames the flesh was burned from the bones. The fire was confined to one room.

INDISPOSITION OF POPE IS NOT AT ALL SERIOUS.

Rome, March 10.—The indisposition of Pope Pius X is pursuing a normal course and there is every promise of speedy recovery, according to Mr. Amici, the physician in attendance. He visited the pope at an early hour this morning. When asked about the truth of rumors of an aggravation in the condition of his patient, he declared there was no ground for such reports.

Although the condition of Cardinal Respighi, the vicar general, has not been made known to the pope, the latter, as though he had an intuition of the cardinal's grave state of health, today sent him the apostolic benediction.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION WRECKS TOWN OF IRVINE, SCOTLAND

Glasgow, Scotland, March 10.—A terrific dynamite explosion today wrecked the town of Irvine in Ayrshire.

The number of dead is not yet known. It is said that the injured number hundreds.

The explosion occurred at Nobel's explosive works at Arder, twenty miles from Glasgow. For a radius of several miles it had the force of a destructive earthquake.

The town of Irvine was shaken to its foundations. Many houses, churches, schools and public institutions were destroyed. Ceilings fell everywhere, partitions collapsed and scarcely a window in the town was left intact.

People walking on the streets were thrown to the ground and many were seriously injured. All the inhabitants rushed from their houses in consternation. The water front and the harbor were masses of wreckage.

There were three distinct explosions, followed by an immense column of smoke two miles high.

PRUSSIANS ARE CELEBRATING

Berlin, March 10.—Emperor William and the Prussian people started today the celebration of the centenary of the rising against the Emperor Napoleon which culminated in the battle of Leipsic in October, 1813. In this battle the conbined Prussian, Russian, Austrian and Swedish army defeated Napoleon's troops with great loss and opened the way for the liberation of Germany from Napoleonic control.

Today also was the centenary of the establishment of the Iron Cross, a decoration given to German soldiers for acts of courage on the field of battle.

In spite of a drizzling rain, enormous crowds gathered to cheer the emperor as he placed wreaths on a number of Berlin statues, including those of King William and Queen Luise.

The emperor later in the day attended a service in the Cathedral and reviewed a parade of the Berlin garrison.

Elections in Spain.

Madrid, Spain, March 10.—Returns from the elections held throughout Spain yesterday for the chamber of deputies at noon today showed the return of 95 Liberals, 55 Conservatives, 8 Republicans and 20 Catholics.

"FIREBUG" MAKES FULL CONFESSION

Story of Benjamin Fink Said to Implicate Thirty-Five Others.

Chicago, March 10.—Benjamin Fink, alleged "firebug," made a complete and detailed confession to First Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston in South Bend, Ind., yesterday, implicating thirty-five members of the alleged arson trust.

Announcement of the confession was made today by Assistant State's Attorney Johnston after his return from the Indiana city.

Fink is known under the aliases of Franklin and Finkelberg. He has been under arrest in South Bend for two months, but until Sunday steadfastly denied any complicity in incendiary fires. Yesterday he sent word to Prosecutor Johnston that he wanted to see him. The prosecutor went to South Bend on the first train and the confession was obtained.

The statement implicates several fire insurance adjusters who are said to be members of the combination which has mulcted insurance companies out of large sums.

Fink is said to have disclosed the inside working of the combine. He told how a place would be fitted up with cheap furniture, heavy insurance taken out, and then set on fire. Fink was known as a "traveling firebug."

Among the fires which Fink is said to have confessed complicity in was the store of Benjamin Kahn, who was recently convicted of arson by a jury in South Bend. It is said that the conviction of Kahn led to the confession.

FIRST HOURS IN MORNING FOR IMPORTANT BUSINESS

President Wilson Will Make No Appointments Before 11 o'Clock.

Washington, March 10.—After four strenuous days in which his conferences with Democratic leaders frequently were interrupted by handshakers, President Wilson today decided that hereafter he will make appointments only after 11 o'clock in the morning, or for the East room in the afternoon.

He plans to come to the executive office about 9 a. m. and first devote two full uninterrupted hours to correspondence and other important business each day. Members of his cabinet and persons for whom he sends, will not be subject to the new rule, but all others will. On cabinet days the president will see his visitors before 11 o'clock, the hour of meeting. The president's list today was long enough to keep him busy.

Postmaster General Burleson reached the executive offices today just a few minutes after the president walked over from the White House. Several Democratic national committeemen from the West had engagements today. Senator Stone, Speaker Clark and Representative Alexander of Missouri, who were next on the list, came to dis-

Voters Will Have Opportunity to Get Names on Books Tuesday.

List of Polling Places—Polls Open From 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The second and last registration day will be next Saturday, March 15.

The registration at the time of the charter election counts for nothing and there will be an entire new registration for the coming election. Voters who fail to register tomorrow or Saturday will be put to great inconvenience if they want to vote on election day. A MAN FROM THE HOME TOWN

I favor Municipal Ownership. I stand on my platform as previously published, and upon my reputation as a citizen.

WANT THEM ON RECORD

Municipal Ownership League Will Question Candidates on Lighting Issue.

League Is Reorganized With Frank Crassweller as President.

The Municipal Ownership league will demand that candidates for the city commission declare unequivocally for the immediate acquisition of the system of the Duluth-Edison Electric company.

Though no formal action was taken, that was the sentiment expressed at the meeting held in Kalamazoo hall Saturday night. E. M. Morgan, now of Minneapolis, was at the meeting personally to resign the presidency. He declared that the league must demand unqualified pledges from candidates who receive its indorsement, and that there must be no play on words to leave loopholes. M. B. Cullum, W. B. Getchell and D. H. Day, candidates for mayor, declared themselves at the meeting, as did John Hogan, C. E. Roe, W. A. Hicken and James Preston, candidates for the commission. R. W. Bowden, T. T. Hudson and A. G. McNight also spoke.

The following officers were elected: Frank Crassweller, president; F. J. McNally, vice president; J. H. Brigham, secretary; Charles Mork, treasurer; T. T. Hudson, chairman of finance committee; R. W. Bowden, chairman of membership committee; R. M. Weaver, chairman of publicity committee.

E. M. Morgan, in opening the meeting, said: "We have got to be on the job all the time. You all know that there is a bunch of candidates who are dodging the one and only real issue of this campaign. They tell us that they favor municipal ownership in some shape. One says he favors municipal ownership 'as the public necessity may require.' Now this is a fine loophole through which to slip. Others are strong on announcing their intention of serving the citizens to the best of their ability and that they will favor ownership of the corporation if the people so desire.

Must Be Right.

"Now, gentlemen, it is up to the municipal ownership league to find out just how they stand on the acquisition of the Duluth-Edison Electric Light company. The candidates have to be right on that question, and quit trying to raise the dust with other issues. I admit that there are other issues, but I don't want to see the voters sidetracked by them.

"If the candidates are right on the ownership proposition we will make them right on the others by the aid of the initiative, referendum and recall. It's time the people refused to be fooled. We want to know in black and white how the aspirants for office stand, and not have them say, 'I believe in it, if this is true.' It is up to us to pin them down.

"We don't want any excuses or hedging—we want that plant and we want it right away. We hope it won't take seven years as it did to acquire the water and gas plant, but if it takes seven or seventeen years, we'll be on the job to the last."

Dr. M. B. Cullum declared himself in favor of the immediate acquisition of the electric lighting system, but objected to the raising of issues.

"I have always favored municipal ownership, and I was elected on a platform that opposed the old company," he said. "Last year I announced that I favored the bond issue for the taking over of the old plant. But I don't propose to make this an issue. I do insist on a clean municipal form of government. I advocated the commission plan because of the efficiency that can be developed.

"You say that the most important thing in this election is the electric light question. I contend that the establishment of a municipal rescue home is of just as great importance. You say that every man who is right on this subject will be right on everything else, but is that so?"

"Yes, but we can make him right on the other issues," said Mr. Morgan.

"I proposed the commission plan and believe in its efficiency, but I decline to make any special issues in this campaign," said Dr. Cullum.

"Do you believe in the immediate acquisition of the electric light system?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"Yes, I will carry out the will of the people in that respect," said Dr. Cullum, and his questioner was satisfied.

Dr. D. H. Day made a short talk, in which he advocated the immediate acquisition of the electric lighting system.

"The only issue in this campaign is the question of good city government," he said. "We must get rid of the special interests."

A. G. McKnight contended that the electric lighting issue should be the main one, because the company has money to spend and has laid its plans for the defeat of candidates who stand for municipal ownership. He said no money is being spent in opposition to rescue homes or public docks.

Another meeting of the league will be held in the same hall next Saturday night, and all candidates will be invited to attend and express their views.

ORDINANCE MAY BE VOTED DOWN

Council Not Disposed to Authorize Engaging of Social Center Expert.

The ordinance which proposes to authorize the welfare board to hire a social center and playgrounds expert is scheduled to come before the city council tonight for final passage.

It is understood that the salary it is intended to pay the expert would be $2,000 per year, and that he would work under the direction of the welfare board.

Considerable opposition to the ordinance seems to have materialized and it was reported at the city hall today that the council would not act upon it favorably. The opinion seems to be that the hiring of the expert should be continued for the consideration of the commission which will be elected April 1. The claim is made that under the new charter the commissioner who will have charge of that branch of municipal activity will have ample power to hire such a man if he deems it necessary.

Bids will be opened tonight for the bonds of the new commissioners. Each of them will be placed under bonds of $25,000, the cost of which will be paid by the city. Bids will also be opened for an automobile patrol and emergency ambulance for the police department.

WEATHER HAS INFLUENCE

Political Talk Increases With Improvement of Outdoor Conditions.

Candidates for Mayor Will Devote Much Time to Speaking.

There is more political talk on the street today than on any day since the campaign opened. The weather is responsible. Heretofore the candidates have had considerable trouble getting around, and political talk has been under cover, but the people are on the street today, and every spare moment of the voter abroad is given to political talk.

The campaign has been quiet thus far, but candidates and friends of candidates are promising heat before long. The election is three weeks from tomorrow, so there is plenty of time in which to stir things up.

P. E. Dowling, candidate for mayor, has two meetings scheduled for this week. He will speak tomorrow evening at the Woodmen's hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, and Thursday evening at the Auditorium.

M. B. Cullum is expected to have one or more meetings this week, but he has not yet arranged the dates. Marcus L. Fay also expects to speak one or more times this week.

W. I. Prince's campaign committee is busy arranging preliminaries. The headquarters in the Torrey building will be opened tomorrow or Wednesday and a campaign program will then be announced.

W. E. McEwen has not yet entered upon a speaking campaign, but he says he expects to make several speeches before the campaign has progressed very much farther. B. Silberstein expects to have his platform completed in a day or two and then he will enter upon a more active campaign. Dr. D. H. Day held the first of a series of street meetings at Fourth avenue west and Superior street Saturday evening.

Socialists Are Busy.

The Socialists continue to shade everybody in campaign activity. They have arranged a meeting night, and are carrying out their program with fidelity. Max Holder, campaign manager, has announced that he was unable to induce Dr. Lunn, mayor of Schenectady, to come to Duluth, but arrangements are being made for an address by Rev. Lewis J. Duncan, the Socialist mayor of Butte.

The Socialist meetings arranged for this week are: Monday, New Duluth hall; Tuesday, Bricklayers' hall, Nineteenth avenue west and First street; Wednesday, Interstate Social club, 600 Garfield avenue; Thursday, Lakeside town hall; Friday, People's hall, 248 Lake avenue south; Sunday afternoon, Finnish college, Smithville.

The Socialist weekly paper, issued to spread the propaganda during the campaign, has appeared. The principal article in the current issue is an attack on the Ministerial association for failing to invite Morris Kaplan, candidate for mayor, to discuss the campaign at the same time other candidates were invited.

Wednesday is the last day for the filing of acceptances. Only eight candidates have failed to file acceptances. They are M. B. Cullum, C. S. Wilson, W. B. Getchell and P. E. Dowling for mayor; Chan Smith for long-term commissioner, and C. E. Evens, W. E. Kern and D. E. Stevens for short-term commissioner. The only acceptance filed this morning was that of W. I. Prince, candidate for mayor.

BONDS WILL GO TO UPHAM COMPANY

The city council tonight will award a contract for the $100,000 of water and light bonds for which bids were opened last Monday night.

The contract will be awarded to the N. J. Upham company by an arrangement which has been agreed upon between that firm and the city officials. The award will be at par with accrued interest. The Upham company will then make an assignment in blank to the city.

This is done in order that the validity of the issue shall not be destroyed and at the same time enable the city to hold the bonds until they can be disposed of on a more favorable market. Each of the bidders last Monday night asked a substantial commission for placing the bonds. The market is unsettled at present and it is not believed that more favorable results can be secured for some weeks at least. In substance, the arrangement which will be made will enable the city practically to sell the bonds over the counter, as was done with the certificates of indebtedness. The bonds run for thirty years and bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent.

These bonds are the balance of the $300,000 issue authorized at the city election in February, 1910, $200,000 of them having been sold shortly after they were approved by the voters, bringing a good premium. The proceeds of the bonds are for improvements and extensions of the water system. They have no connection whatever with the issue of $700,000 of bonds authorized a year ago for the acquistion of an electric lighting plant by the city.

Plan Dickinson-Mott Line.

Dickinson, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—An electric line from Dickinson to Mott is the latest matter to be agitated by the Commercial club. W. L. Richards, F. C. Heffron and Alfred White have been named as a committee to investigate the matter and report on its feasibility at the next regular meeting of the club. The primary object is to seek to regain some of the trade from points south of here.

Minot School Enrollment.

Minot, N. D., March 10.—There were exactly 199 more pupils enrolled in the public schools of Minot for the month of February, 1913, than for the corresponding month in 1912, according to the monthly report of S. H. Wolfe, superintendent of schools.

The enrollment for the month was 1,159, of these, two were received during the month by transfer from other schools, and two other pupils were lost in the same manner.

Mason of Harmony, Fillmore county, was elected superintendent of schools to succeed Superintendent George E. Butler who declined to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Mason brings first class recommendations.

WORK OF REMOVING WRECKAGE BEGINS

Believed Much Dynamite Is in Cars Still Unexploded.

Baltimore, Md., March 10.—Supervised by United States army engineers the work of removing the wreckage of the dynamite steamship Alum Chine, which blew up in the lower harbor last Friday with heavy loss of life, was commenced today. The hulk of the wrecked vessel lies about twelve feet below the surface and slightly southward of the main channel opposite quarantine station.

More menacing than the wrecked ship is the unexploded dynamite, several hundred cases of which are believed to have gone down, packed aboard the freight cars on the attendant barge. Whether the cars were shattered is problematical, but the engineers are inclined to believe that the greater part of the 600 cases of the explosive on the barge lie intact at the bottom of the harbor.

Every precaution is being taken to safeguard the lives of those engaged in the dangerous task of recovering the explosive. The work of removing the wreckage and dynamite may take a week, according to Lieut.-Col. L. H. Beach, in charge of operations.

FIRST JURIES HAVE BEEN DRAWN

Hearing of Civil Cases on March Term Is Begun.

The first juries of the March term of district court were drawn from the petit panel this morning to try civil cases which have been called for trial before two of the judges.

Before Judge Dibell a jury was drawn to try one of the White Iron Lake fire cases. John Makidla is suing the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company for $1,600 damages for a fire which swept his farm near Hinsdale during the dry season of the summer of 1910. He claims that the fire started on the right-of-way of the defendant company and claims that the company was negligent in not taking precautions. J. W. Reynolds is attorney for plaintiff and Baldwin & Baldwin are defending.

In Judge Ensign's room a jury has been drawn to try a personal action brought by Anna M. Benson, special administrator against the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

BRIEF INTERVIEWS WITH ZENITH CITY VISITORS

Minneapolis Is Growing.

A. M. Fenton, formerly district freight and passenger agent of the Omaha here, but at the present time district general freight agent, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Fenton has his headquarters at Minneapolis.

"As a city Minneapolis is going ahead at a really remarkable rate," said Mr. Fenton at the Spalding. "Maybe you have noticed that the contract has just been let for the construction of a $1,275,000 hotel. This building will be constructed with Eastern capital, one of the best indications in the world of the opinion held of Minneapolis by outsiders.

"Really the Mill City is one of the most progressive in the West, if not the most progressive, and the spirit of the business men there has counted wonderfully in the success of Minneapolis."

Good Road to Floodwood.

John Stokke, former mayor of Floodwood, who has just recovered from a very serious operation for appendicitis, and who is at the St. Louis for a brief rest before starting home, is a firm believer in the future development of this section of Minnesota.

"If we get the new state highway, which is practically assured at the present time, Floodwood will feel the immediate benefits. It will be easily possible to drive from Duluth to Floodwood in a few hours, while now the present condition of the roads make it anything but a pleasant journey. There is nothing like good roads for the development of the country and the towns, and I am of the opinion that with the completion of this road there will be not only an increase in the population of Floodwood, but also an improvement in the communities touching on the highway.

"One of the greatest means of development of this section of the state is the building of good roads, and the sooner this matter is realized and its accomplishment set about in a practical method, just that much sooner will the people up here be benefited."

Has a Motto.

J. T. Percival of Port Huron, secretary of the Retail Grocers and General Merchants' association of Michigan, is of the opinion that Duluth will like the commission form of government. It was adopted in Port Huron some two years ago and has proved very satisfactory. Mr. Percival is known as the original hustler in his country. His slogan is: "Don't sit down in the meadow and wait for the cow to back up and be milked. Go after the cow." Duluth looks good to Mr. Percival and he sees a great future for the Zenith City.

METHOD OF HELPING BABY

Infant Welfare Exhibit Will Be Shown in Duluth in May.

Miss Elizabeth Heikkila, Scottish Rite Nurse, to Be in Charge.

A traveling exhibit of the American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality will come to Duluth some time in May. It will be held under the auspices of those in this city who have had charge of the infant welfare work during the past three years. Miss Elizabeth Heikkila, "consistory nurse," who has been conducting infant welfare work undertaken by the Scottish Rite Masons of the city, will have direction of the exhibit while it is in Duluth.

The affair will consist of a number of cases arranged to show plainly important features of infant welfare work. Statistics of general application as well as those of a local nature will be shown in a graphic manner. Some of the things which will be featured are a tuberculosis exhibit milk exhibit, weighing of babies, etc. It is also planned to have a number of talks on infant welfare work given by some of the prominent physicians of the city.

Although the date has not as yet been determined, the place has been selected. The auditorium of the Masonic temple, Lake avenue and Second street, will be used. The exhibit will be open to the general public and will be of an educational nature. No admission whatever will be charged.

Supt. R. E. Denfeld of the city schools is very much interested in the exhibit and has delegated one of the principals to represent the public schools in arranging for the local features at the show.

The infant welfare work as conducted by Miss Elizabeth Heikkila under the direction of the Masonic bodies of the city, has met with considerable success and it is expected that the exhibit will bring out a large attendance.

Visitors will be given plenty of opportunity to study the subject of each exhibit. Any suggestions sent in to "The Director," Infant Welfare, Masonic temple, will also be given attention at the meetings. The exhibit will probably remain here for a week. It will come here from Little Rock, Ark.

PUBLIC WILL PAY ANY WAGE INCREASE

So Manager of Marshall Field & Co. Tells Senate Committee.

Chicago, March 10.—James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., was recalled to the witness chair before the state vice commission today. The majority of the spectators were women.

Simpson again was asked as to the profits of his firm and again he asked to be excused from answering. He assured the commission that Marshall Field & Co., could subscribe to any minimum wage scale law for women which might be adopted.

"It is inevitable," he said, "that any increase would be paid by the public."

Senator Tosey asked if Marshall Field & Co., could raise the minimum wage of women $2 a day without raising prices of goods to the consumer.

It could be done, Simpson said and without materially affecting the profits of the firm.

George Lytton, vice president of the "Hub," said it was the practice of the "Hub" to give annual presents to its employes, independent of the profits of the year. He asked to be excused from answering a question as to what percentage of the net profits of the firm the gifts formed. The "Hub" employs 150 women, none of whom receive less than $6.50 a week.

"Do you charge more for clothing than others because of higher wages?" asker Chairman O'Hara.

"Oh, no."

"Do you believe it is good policy to pay good wages?"

"Certainly."

The witness said he had devoted much time to the wage question as it affects woman and that a woman can live on $8 a week. He promised to give the commission a schedule of the expenses of a working girl.

"What we want," said Senator Juul, "is what she must spend. Never mind the pleasures. I suppose when we make a law, we'll have to add a dollar or two for recreation and the like."

The "Hub" besides its gifts, has a pension fund and sick benefits.

ARBITRATORS GET DOWN TO WORK

To Settle Differences With Firemen Under Erdman Act.

New York, March 10.—Arbitration of the differences between fifty-four Eastern railroads and their 35,000 firemen was begun here today before the board of arbitration chosen under the Erdman act. The board, which consists of William L. Chambers of Washington, chairman, and neutral member, W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania lines, east, representing the railroads, and Albert Phillips, third vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, has until April 2 to take testimony and reach a decision.

Chairman Chambers in opening the proceedings, announced that he was "ignorant of every fact and every question concerning this case."

"I don't own a share of railroad stock," he said. "I have friends among the managers and among the employes. I feel that as presiding officer of the board I represent the public."

W. S. Carter, president of the firemen's organization, opened the case with the statement, "We have whittled our demands to a minimum. We are presenting our claims not for the purpose of obtaining a compromise, but in order to establish their justice."

MRS. MORGAN READ.

Duluth Woman Appears Before the Cloquet Friday Club.

Cloquet, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. George Morgan, prominent club woman of Duluth and member of the dramatic league committee, and Miss Williams have been guests of Mrs. W. K. McNair several days. Mrs. Morgan was a guest of the Friday club at Mrs. J. T. Sheehan's home and entertained the club members with the reading of the Irish play, "Rides to the Sea." The club presented her with four dozen pink rosebuds. Mrs. Fred D. Vibert read a paper on "Irish Players in America," and Mrs. Wm. Heasley a paper on "American Folk Songs."

The Otterbein Concert company and bell ringers who gave the last number of the high school lyceum course Saturday night, gave a free concert to adults Sunday afternoon in the Nelson opera house. The music was for the most part sacred, with a few old favorite songs and the house was filled for the occasion.

RAILROADS

AITKIN TO HAVE $30,000 DEPOT

Aitkin, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been definitely decided that a new Northern Pacific station will be built here just as soon as the weather will permit building operations. A special train brought General Superintendent C. L. Nichols of St. Paul, A. V. Brown of Duluth, division superintendent, and Lewis Yeager of St. Paul, division engineer, here to confer as to the location of the new passenger depot, and changes in the track arrangement. The plan adopted places the new depot south of the main track instead of its present location and about 100 feet west. The plans for the building itself call for a building 93 feet by 28 feet. The material will be either dark red brick or white brick with dark used from the ground up several feet. It will contain one large office for the agent and his subordinate, including the ticket office and telegraph. There will be a large general waiting room, ladies' waiting room, ladies' retiring room, smoking room, toilets, spacious baggage room and janitor's room. There will be a basement under the building which will be heated with steam or hot water. The interior finishing will be attractive. The wainscoting will be white glazed brick and probably a tile floor will be laid throughout the building.

General Superintendent Nichols congratulated the people of Aitkin upon securing such a fine structure and assured them that the company will have the material on the ground and start the work with the first signs of spring.

The depot as planned is a duplicate of the Northern Pacific's attractive station in St. Cloud and the probable cost will be approximately $30,000. The company also plans to raise the grade eastward which will necessitate the raising of the Knox street bridge by the village council about two feet when the tracks are raised in the regrading scheme.

New Train to Coast.

On All Fools' day, but without the slightest intention to participate in the frivolities of the day, the North Western road will put on a limited train between Chicago and the Pacific coast, which will be "some train" as the saying is. A preliminary notice has been sent out and is in part as follows:

"Effective Tuesday, April 1, we will inaugurate into service an extra fare, new, all steel overland limited train, exclusively for first class sleeping car passengers, leaving Chicago daily at 7 p. m., arriving at Omaha at 7:30 a. m., the following morning, and San Francisco 9:30 a. m., the third day; actual running time being sixty-four hours and thirty minutes, thus saving a full business day en route."

Railroad Personals.

C. A. Clark, treasurer of the Northern Pacific, is at the Head of the Lakes today and is visiting the various terminals in company with J. L. Thomas, general agent of the road.

George H. Shaw, general traffic manager of the Canadian Northern, accompanied by George Stephen, general freight agent of the road, are in the city on business today.

HARVARD TO HUNT GHOSTS

Chair in "Psychic Phenomena" Is Really Popular in Character.

Some Interesting Fields Open to University Research Work.

Julius Chambers in the Brooklyn Eagle: Harvard university has seriously contracted to enter upon an investigation of what is technically described as "psychic phenomena," but which our parents (ever since the days of the Fox sisters) called "Spiritualism." This, to my thinking, is one of the most startling innovations in pedagogy that several centuries have furnished. Indeed, it is an event that could only have followed the coming of the wonderful era of telephones, airships, radium, wireless messages and phonograprs. It will not do to treat this incident lightly or to cover it with ridicule.

Such is far from my thought when I frankly declare that the acceptance of a $10,000 endowment fund for psychic research by the time-honored university at Cambridge encourages the hope that Francis L. Wellman's fond wish to found a school of draw poker at Harvard may be ultimately realized.

Gives the Subject Importance.

Seriously, however, comparatively few as are the believers in spiritualism, the acceptance of this bequest by so conservative a body as the trustees of Harvard brings the study of psychic phenomena to a stage never previously attained in this country.

The language employed by the benefactor is quite explicit. He gives the money—which can be regarded as only the nucleus of a much larger fund—for "investigation and study of mental or psychological phenomena, the origin or expression of which appears to be independent of the ordinary sensory channels."

While this leaves the range as wide open as spookland, it also confines it within scientific scope.

Plenty of persons have seen ghosts—or believe they have, which, for practical purposes of "research" is the same thing. For example, although a complete disbeliever in so-called spirit phenomenal, I have seen with my own eyes ghostly shapes — not resultant from welsh rabbits and disordered liver, but the fabric of an apparently sound mentality.

There are houses known to me that have supernatural occupants, as well as human beings! Again, there are houses that harbor quaint, queer, inexplicable noises, by night and by day.

Personally, I doubt not, rational and natural explanations can be found for all such noises. I am not sufficiently interested — curious were a better word—to seek the solution of such problems of the natural world.

There Is Telepathy.

There are phases of mental science that are accepted. There is probably something in telepathy—as everyone must concede if he or she have sufficient mental power to compel another person seated in church or theater to turn and bow.

No more interesting mental test can be made than to sit at distance from two persons well known and to attempt to learn, by telepathy, what they are talking about. You will be amazed how often it can be done. Try.

You may fail utterly; but some people are able to do this very thing!

Some kind of intangible, inexplicable intercommunication is at times established between intimate friends far distant.

Most men of the world — especially active mental workers or travelers—believe in premonitions. When one reaches that stage, why not have confidence in dreams?

An intimate friend always has a serious illness whenever he dreams of snakes—I am not joking, the man always has been a total abstainer. The dream may be responsible for the sickness, you will say. Possibly so. But the same person never dreams of seeing washing hung upon a line without finding therein a premonition that he is to move his habitation. He has been a man of family for thirty years and assures me the forewarning never has failed of verification.

I do not know what to think about such superstitions. That is hardly the word, but I use it for want of a better one.

By all means, let the Harvard researches be conducted with utmost rigidness and sincerity.

LITTLE GIRL A WITNESS

Chisago County Farmer Says His Wife Kidnaped the Child.

Father Sobs as He Tells Story to the Court.

Five-year-old Ruth Shaleen, a pretty and attractive little girl, was brought into district court today on habeas corpus proceedings as the coveted object of a bitter struggle for her possession in which her father, Ernest H. Shaleen, formerly of Duluth, now a Chisago county farmer and mother, Rose T. W. Shaleen, are engaged.

The airing of the domestic troubles took place this morning in Judge Dancer's court room, where the proceeding is being heard. The writ of habeas corpus was applied for by Shaleen, who claims that last Thursday, his wife left the farm without his knowledge and consent and taking Ruth, their child, with her came to Duluth and visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jennie Cone, St. Regis apartments.

Mrs. Cone and her husband, David A. Cone, are made joint respondents in the proceedings with Mrs. Shaleen. The hearing was started this morning but an adjournment was taken at noon. It was resumed again this afternoon.

Shaleen is a big strong man along in the forties but he cried like a child nevertheless when he left the witness stand after telling his story. His voice quivered with emotion and he fairly shouted when he declared that his child had never been afraid of its father before today.

"She is afraid of me today," he said pounding his fist, "but it is for the first time I have ever seen her so." He then told his version of how he had been denied the rights of a father when his wife had taken the girl away from the farm.

Mother and father both wanted to take the girl to the witness stand when Attorney McCoy asked the court for permission to question her. At Mr. McCoy's request, the girl went to the witness chair with her father.

When asked if she knew what would happen to her if she would tell a lie, Ruth replied:

"God wouldn't love me any more."

"Do you like your papa?" she was asked.

The little witness nodded her head and turning to her father, said, "Papa, you can come back to us."

Shaleen put his head in his arms and sobbed softly. Attorney McCoy then withdrew the witness.

Mrs. Shaleen told her story. She came to Duluth, she said, for the purpose of securing medical treatment for the child.

The Shaleens were married on June 6, 1907. Shaleen was formerly employed as a traveling salesman for a tobacco firm out of Duluth. Later he moved to the farm, one and one-half mile from Chisago city.

About a year ago, Mrs. Shaleen started an action for divorce but she was persuaded to drop it by her husband.

"FIRST ROBIN" SEEN IN DULUTH

"Harbinger of Spring" Is Heard Singing His "Cheer-up" Song.

"Cheer up, the worst is not yet to come," said Robin Red Breast this morning.

Miss E. Catherine Neff, deputy clerk of United States court, is responsible for the story, and in view of the fact that Miss Neff is accustomed to tell the actual facts in court cases at least, and that the weather is conducive to the appearance of his majesty, the robin, there seems no question but that one of the red-breasted beauties appeared near Miss Neff's home, 610 Fifth avenue west, this morning.

As an after-thought, Miss Neff was asked as to whether the bird was slinging his "cheer-up" or his "rain" song. Miss Neff avers that it was the former. Now, to the uninitiated, this is a very important factor, for when the robin sings the cheery thing it means fine weather for six weeks—that is, as long as the weather man can stand it during that time; but it he sings his drizzly overture on his first appearance, it is the signal to get out one's raincoats and umbrellas.

So the gentle spring is here and the bock is on the beer, and the robin is singing his matinal song devout, and other things like that.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Three months in the county jail is the penalty which Harry A. Miller must pay for deserting his wife and two babies in Watertown, S. D., to gratify his illicit love for pretty Elsie Smith.

Miller starts serving his sentence today while his attractive affinity boards the train for home with her mother, who reached the city yesterday in response to a telegram informing her of her daughter's plight.

The case against Miss Smith was dismissed after Miller pleaded guilty to a disorderly charge which was preferred when the two were arrested in the downtown hotel in which they had been living as man and wife.

Correspondence between the two in possession of the police shows that they were deeply infatuated with one another. Love letters were exchanged daily when they were not together and these were supplemented by frequent telephone messages. The epistles teemed with honeyed phrases and saccharine endearments.

Miller and his sweetheart have been together since Jan. 4, last, when the girl left the home of her wealthy parents in Watertown on the pretext that she was going to visit with a relative in Minnesota. Part of that time was spent in the hospital in Minneapolis. There she underwent a serious operation, during all of which time her parents were kept in ignorance of her condition and whereabouts.

The young woman left on her birthday. A present of $100 was made to her by her father before she boarded the train which carried her to her married lover while the parents thought that she was going to visit with her cousin. They consented to her leaving in the hope that it would distract her attention from Miller, with whom they had known she had been enamoured for at least several months. Part of the money went to defray her hospital bill and the balance went for joint traveling and hotel expenses.

While Miller was lavishing flowers and costly dinners upon Elsie Smith, riding with her in Pullmans and sharing costly hotel suites with her, Mrs. Miller and their two babies were living in poverty in a small cottage in Watertown. The police said that only the kindness of neighbors and charitable organizations saved them from dire suffering and want.

While in Duluth Miller was employed as a scale salesman. While in Duluth he pawned one of the scales which he had in his possession for demonstration purposes. His employer learned of it and threatened him with arrest. The affection of the young woman is shown by her conduct when he told her that he would be arrested unless he could at once redeem the scale. To raise the money she took her rings from her fingers and pawned them in order that the proceeds might be available for the use of her lover. But before the scale could be redeemed the two were arrested. Since then this phase of the situation has been adjusted.

When Miller changed his plea of not guilty to guilty the court asked him why he had not sent the young woman back to her folks when she came to him from her home. He explained that she declared to him that she would never leave him but would cling to him forever and that he couldn't send her away.

In imposing the sentence of three months in the county jail the court explained that in view of all the circumstances Miller was getting off with a light punishment, although it was the maximum which could be imposed under the charge preferred against him. The judge asserted that his conduct in deserting his wife and infant children, leaving them penniless, was indefensible, as was his subsequent action in keeping the girl with him. Miller is 32 years old and Miss Smith is 21 years of age.

Three "dudes with high white collars, dainty wearing apparel and smooth-shaven faces went to a show last night.

After the show they concluded that they would be like other "sports" and have a "feed."

But apparently the price must have bothered them, for they passed a dozen or more cafes before they entered one which looked as though it would meet the needs of their purses. When they did make their selection it was a beanery on the Bowery.

At the counter they settled their bill, coming to the magnificent total of some 35 cents. Yes sir, it costs money to be a "sport." When they got their change the "blood" who settled the score claimed to be 25 cents shy. "Nobody could put anything like that over on him,' and he gave the girl who was cashier a piece of his mind.

The language he used could not have been very polite. It was, in fact, so much the contrary that it jarred two lumber jacks who were getting a bite before rolling into the feathers. One of them advised the "high flier" who was doing the talking to "shut his gab."

"Go to blazes," retorted the "sport." Those weren't the exact words, but the place named is credited with having blazes. Then he waded into the woodsman.

But he stopped quick. The lumberjack and his companion did some "wading in" themselves, but not verbally. The two of them cleaned up the "dudes" in record time and tossed them out onto the sidewalk.

A policeman saw them wiping the scarlet stains from their faces in an effort to make themselves sufficiently presentable to continue their way homewards. He asked them what was the matter. They told him. The policeman brought the cashier to the station to answer the short-changing charge. But the three "sports" were so afraid of the possibilities of their names becoming known that they "crawfished" and refused to prosecute. Whereupon the case was dismissed.

John Miller was arrested late Saturday night as being one of two men who held up and robbed Gust Johnson of $37, a watch and pocket knife on West Michigan street, near the Union station.

Miller and his pal were seen going through Johnson's clothes by a pedestrian, who followed them. When he caught sight of Patrolman Callahan, near Lake avenue, he pointed out the two men to him, stating that he had seen them rob a man. Callahan placed the pair under arrest and started to walk them to the station.

Near First avenue east they both made a break for liberty. Callahan fired several shots over Miller's head as he ran eastwards and gave chase to the other, who turned into the railroad yards, making good his escape among the strings of box cars.

Lieut. Fritz and Jailer Hunter were attracted by the shots and saw Miller seeking safety in flight. They saw him turn into the alley above the police station. Tracking him through the snow they found him huddled in a drygoods box in the rear of one of the stores across the street from headquarters. A search revealed a $20 bill similar to that which Johnson said he had lost and the pocketknife.

Miller asked for an examination when he was arraigned in police court this morning and his hearing was set for this morning. He is charged with first degree robbery.

Fifty dollars and costs was the package handed to John McLaughlin when he pleaded guilty in police court this morning to having been drunk and disorderly.

The police state that McLaughlin is an undesirable character. They assert that his wife has left him because he tried to force her to lead a life of shame on the streets in order to make a living for both of them.

Saturday night they aver that he went to the Commercial hotel on the Bowery in hopes of finding his wife. He is claimed to have entered the room of another woman and to have heaped a tirade of abuse on her to vent his disappointment at not locating Mrs. McLaughlin.

His lurid language attracted Patrolman Oscar Olson and he was placed under arrest.

At the police station he broke away as he was being led to the lodgers' room, where prisoners are being kept pending the completion of the remodeling of the bull pen. He dashed through the door and westwards on Superior street. The police were hard on his heels but before they could collar him a pedestrian whose name was not learned intercepted him at Lake avenue.

John L. Nelson, East Superior street saloonkeeper, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to having had his bar open on Sunday. He paid a fine of $100.

When Sergeant John Roberg and Patrolman Danielson went into the store next to the saloon at 411½ west Michigan street yesterday afternoon, they heard sounds coming from the booze joint. They immediately investigated. The sergeant boosted the policeman up the wall where he could look into the gin mill through a transom. He saw a dozen men quenching their Sunday thirsts. He rapped on the glass and the police say that the bartender very accommodatingly popped the door. John Brown was arrested on a charge of keeping the place open on Sunday. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for tomorrow afternoon.

When Brown was arrested Patrolman Danielson pinched John Gray on a charge of being drunk. He denied the allegation this morning but was convicted after a trial. Sentence was suspended. The bluecoat said that Gray informed him yesterday that a dozen men were hidden in the ice box of the saloon. The officer declared that Gray had such a bundle that he could neither talk nor walk straight and invited him to strike him in order that he (Gray) might show the officer that he could fight.

JOHN ERICSSON LEAGUE BANQUET

Duluth People Attend Annual Event Held at Minneapolis.

William A. Anderson of this city has returned from Minneapolis, where Saturday evening he attended the fourth annual reunion and banquet of the John Ericsson Republican League of Minnesota, of which he was president. About 450 members were in attendance and the affair was a very successful one. It was held at the West hotel.

Capt. Ericsson, whose memory was revered by speakers, was the inventor and builder of the Monitor, which ended the career of the ironclad Merrimac on March 9, 1862. The league has two objects, the first to commemorate and perpetuate his memory and the second to promote the interests of the Republican party among Swedish people of the state.

At the banquet this year, however, a number of prominent Democrats were present and among the speakers. Among them were Former Governor John Lind and Attorneys Harry Lund and Harry Swenson of Minneapolis.

Other speakers were J. A. A. Burnquist, lieutenant governor and Dr. A. F. Elmquist of Minneapolis.

The officers elected were: H. G. Johnson, editor Swenska Folkets Tidning, Minneapolis, president; P. F. Quist, secretary; C. J Larson, St. Paul, secretary, E. L. Erickson, deputy state treasurer, first vice president, and Fred B. Rossom of Duluth, second vice president.

Mr. Anderson was named as a chairman of the executive committee. Duluth was chosen for the next reunion. Mr. Anderson stated this morning that the executive committee would consider a proposition to make the organization non-partisan. It is possible that Democrats may be admitted as honorary members.

The new officers of the lodge are: Edgar G. Ingalls, W. M.; Robert E. Lundholm, S. W.; S. L. Brunelle, J. W.; R. J. Sewall, S. D.; Albert Humble, J. D.; G. P. Ellingson, S. S.; R. L. Striegel, J. To Try Chiropractics.

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the failure to secure the passage of the chiropractic bill by the legislature, Drs. Newsat, Neson and Hoard of Fargo must stand trial for practicing without a license. They were arrested some weeks ago on complaint of a detective employed by the state medical association. The trial was put over till after the adjournment of the legislature.

Negro Attorney Resigns.

Washington, March 10.—William H. Lewis, the negro lawyer of Boston, whose appointment by Mr. Taft as an assistant attorney general raised a row in official circles, which was followed by a sensational contest over Lewis' membership in the American Bar association, resigned today.

Phillips Held for Murder.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—Samuel Phillips was arraigned in municipal court Saturday on the charge of murder in the first degree, one week after the shooting of his wife, Marie Phillips, at her grocery store. He waived examination, was bound over to the grand jury and taken to the county jail.

COMMISSION LEGISLATION

Governor of Kansas Would Have Permanent Legislators.

Should Devote Their Entire Time to State Business.

Topeka, Kan., March 10.—Governor George H. Hodges today sent a message to the legislature urging commission form of legislation government. He proposes to replace present legislative representation with two members from each congressional district who should devote their entire time to state business.

"In common with a large and growing number of thoughtful people," said the message, "I am persuaded that the instrumentalities for legislation provided for in our state Constitution, have become antiquated and inefficient. Our system is fashioned after the English parliament, with its two houses based upon the distinction between the nobility and the common people, each house representing the diverse interests of these classes. No such reason exists in this state for a dual legislative system.

Many Defects.

"You senators and representatives cannot but have observed the defects in our present system. In a short session of fifty days you are required to study and pass hundreds of measures and the hurry with which this must be done, must, of necessity, result in a number of more or less crude and ill-digested laws, which often puzzle learned jurists to interpret.

After a brief session the legislature adjourns and the business of one coordinate branch of the state government absolutely is abandoned for a whole biennium. It is as if the head if an important department of some other big business should give only fifty days every two years to its management.

Aware of Veneration.

"I am aware of the veneration with which ancient institutions are regarded, but I see no reason why we should cling to these institutions in carrying on the all-important affairs of the state, when in almost every other activity of life we are discarding old traditions for newer and progressive ideas and more efficient and economic methods."

Catch Alleged St. Louis Slayer.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10.—Wanted by the police of St. Louis on a charge of assault to kill a fellow cigarmaker in a quarrel growing out of jealousy over a mutual sweetheart, Earl Shearer, 34 years old, was arrested here.

Stringent Anti-Cocaine Law.

Madison, Wis., March 10.—Any person, not a registered pharmacist, who shall hereafter sell or give away cocaine shall be guilty of a felony and punishable by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for from one to five years, according to the terms of a bill introduced in the senate by the committee on judiciary.

SAYS CROWD YELLED "NOTHING BUT HENS"

Member of Suffragette Parade Appears as Witness.

Washington, March 10.—With a long list of witnesses still to be called, the senate sub-committee today resumed its investigation of the disorder that attended the parade of woman suffragists here last Monday. The large committee room was again crowded to the doors with spectators, principally women.

Miss Janet E. Richards, who marched in the first section of the parade, declared "most of the policemen were standing idly around in the crowd, and seemed in sympathy with the mob's spirit."

"How was this mob's spirit evidenced?" asked Senator Chamberlain.

"By the hooting and jeering and yelling of the crowd," replied Miss Richards, "all along the line men in the crowd shouted 'These are nothing but hens; we came out to see chickens!'"

Miss Richards gave the numbers of two of a group of four policemen who, she said, were doing nothing to control the crowd and whom she urged to help her open up the line.

Police Chief Sylvester furnished a statement to show he had 575 officers on duty for the suffrage parade and 367 for the inaugural parade the day following. There were no disorders on March 4.

SOME BLOODED STOCK HAD TO BE KILLED.

Beach, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The danger of purchasing cattle without proper inspection was clearly demonstrated by M. D. Sarver of this place, who bought fifty-one head of Holstein cows in Illinois, for sale to farmers in this part of the state as a boost to the dairying industry. He was given a certificate as to the healthfulness of the cows, but an inspection here showed that eight of them had to be killed because of tubercular infection and the entire herd is under quarantine for reinspection.

UNFILLED TONNAGE OF U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

New York, March 10.—The unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation on Feb. 28 totals 7,656,714 tons, a decrease of 170,654 tons from Jan. 31 and marks the second declining tendency since March of last year.

BETHLEHEM STEEL CO. DECLARES DIVIDEND.

TEARS OUT OF STYLE

Emotion Must Now Be Expressed in a More Subtle Way.

E. Clephan Palmer in the London News and Leader: One of the most conspicuous features of modern life is the change in the expression of emotion. There seems to be no doubt that the time will come when all the crude methods—the tears, the downcast eyes, the outbursts of passionate anger, the broken voice—will disappear entirely.

Though women are still inclined to cling to the old methods, men have already learned to express feeling more subtly. Something of the progress can be judged from a comparison between the present day and, say, the Sixteenth century.

We know, for example, that Henry VIII constantly burst into tears; that when the Duke of Anjou was being pressed to marry Elizabeth he "retired to his cabinet and bestowed half a day in shedding tears;" that when the funeral sermon was being preached on the Regent Murray of Scotland "there was not a man in all that iron crowd but was in tears," and that when James I was angry he "wept like a fresh beaten babe." If kings and princes could show their feelings so crudely, it is quite certain that the people had no more subtlety.

What a change today. Emotion must be subtle now or nothing. Women may still weep a little, but men must do nothing more obvious than light a cigarette or go out for a game of golf. In the old days a man in tears was an ordinary thing, but now he is looked at askance, and blamed, as an actor is blamed for forgetting his part.

Watch a man at a theater when a woman on the stage bursts into tears. He is uncomfortable, and looks away—not because he resents so clumsy an expression of feeling. He wants to have his emotions touched, but these tears and these sobs do nothing for him. Even the gallery feels more inclined to laugh than to weep in sympathy. But everyone knows how a subtle suggestion of grief by a clever actress will give the whole audience a lump in the throat.

Novels, too, are no longer wet with the tears of their heroines. Authors recognize that the old symptoms of emotion are no use. Their heroine must be dry-eyed and bewildering. She must not show her feelings in the old obvious, elementary way. She must not blush. She must not swoon. Above all, she must not burst into tears.

FROM COFFIN TO FRYING PAN.

Youth's Companion: At the Cluny museum in Paris is a very interesting relic of which this is the history: It appears that one day, a year or so ago, the curator of the museum happened to visit a small restaurant in the suburb of Saint Denis, in which the same room served for dining room and kitchen.

While waiting to be served, the curator's eye was caught by a frying pan of most unusual appearance that hung upon the wall. He took it down, carefully removed some of the soot with which it was covered, and made out part of an inscription. What he found interested him so much that he bought the old pan.

When it was properly cleaned it was found to bear the arms of France and Navarre, surrounded by the chains of St. Louis and the cord of the Order of St. Esprit, and this inscription as well:

It was the plate that had been fastened to the coffin of Louis XIX. When the burial vaults of the royal family in the cathedral at St. Denis were rifled by the populace in 1793 it had been wrenched from the coffin, fitted with a handle, and turned into a frying pan.

The relic may now be seen in the Cluny museum. The handle has been removed, but three holes show where it was attached.

Do you imagine that any worthwhile buyer of real estate is going to overlook your ad in this paper? Not unless he is sick abed.

BEING A TRUE ATHLETE

A Message to Boys From Gen. George W. Wingate, President of the Public Schools Athletic League of New York.

St. Nicholas: No wiser thing can be done by you to insure your happiness and success in life than to take an active interest in athletic events as well as in your general physical development. Brains and scholarship are most important, but unless accompanied by health and a strong body, they do not produce the results which they should. Life under modern conditions is a hard struggle, and to succeed in it requires not only education and intelligence, but the ability to work strenuously. The only way to obtain the physical ability which will enable you to do this continuously, as you will have to do, is by developing your body and securing a good healthy constitution while you are young.

The mere daily enjoyment of life which one receives who is healthy and strong, as compared with those who are frequently ill and whose lives are seldom free from pain, is indescribable. In addition, athletic exercises develop beyond any other known method those qualities of courage, promptness of action, keenness of perception, perseverance against obstacles, and force of character which constitute true manhood and are indispensable to success.

As in everything else, interest in athletics may be carried too far. It is a great help, but is not to be made an aim in life. While it should be followed, and followed strenuously, this should not be done to such an extent as to interfere with the work of your school, or whatever occupation you many hereafter follow. It is also much better to seek a general development than to specialize exclusively. It is a mistake for those who are strong in their arms and weak in their legs to cultivate the arm and chest muscles, which do not need it, to the neglect of those other muscles which require to be strengthened.

But whatever branches of athletics you may take up, I trust that in all of them you will always bear in mind that to be a true athlete means to be manly and honorable, to play the game for all it is worth, but strictly according to the rules; to despise everything that is mean or underhand, and to discourage among your associates all such conduct; to fight a good fight, but to fight it in the open. When you are beaten, do not hesitate to "own up" and when you are victorious, do not be unduly boastful. Always remember that an umpire has a very difficult task to perform, and can only do his best. If he should make a mistake, it is almost always caused by the inability of a spectator to see everything which is going on in respect to a game, and cannot be helped. Always keep in mind that athletic events are won by those who make the best records, and not by those who are constantly finding fault with the officials. try to keep yourself out of the latter class.

St. Nicholas: The tissues of the body have more salts than are usually found in fresh water. When you have more salt on one side of an animal membrane than on the other, nature tries to equalize the amount on both sides. Salts, leaving the tissues of the hands to go into the water, leave the cells partly emptied of their contents. They do not hold together well, and "cracks" result.

less it is a committee bill, is requested by the governor, or is received by a two-thirds vote of the house. The senate will continue to receive new bills in the regular course of business until March 31. Under the Constitution neither body can receive new bills during the last twenty days of the session unless their introduction is requested by the governor.

This is not particularly important, however, because with the large accumulation of business on hand, it is practically certain that bills introduced during the last thirty days of the session will not complete the routine of both branches before adjournment, and the only thing that can save them is a suspension of the rules, a privilege hard to get and reserved, as a rule, for local emergency measures.

After today there are thirty-seven more working days out of the ninety allotted by the Constitution; but that counts tomorrow, when there will be no session in either branch because of the village elections throughout the state.

As usual, a large mass of bills will be left unfinished when final adjournment comes late in April.

Measures Uncompleted.

Legislative reapportionment — Has passed the house, and will be voted on in the senate Friday according to the present program. The house bill comes before the senate committee Wednesday afternoon with an agreement that final action will be taken upon it then. There will be a fight over proposed amendments cutting down the large cities, especially Minneapolis; but when this fight is out of the way, no matter how it goes, the bill will be passed—providing, of course, the amendments adopted do not mutilate the bill so that its friends are unable to vote for it.

Congressional reapportionment — Still in committee in both houses. The house reapportionment committee has appointed a sub-committee which is working out a reapportionment bill that soon comes before the main committee. St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties will form the nucleus of one district, and to them will be added either Carlton, Itasca or Koochiching county.

Initiative and refendum—Has passed the house, and is now before the senate as a special order for Wednesday. The senate elections committee adopted a number of material amendments which have the effect on the whole of making the bill more conservative and at the same time more workable than it was as it passed the house. The differences between the two bodies may make it necessary to appoint a conference committee to reach an agreement. That an agreement will be reached and the bill passed is beyond doubt.

Recall—Has passed the senate and is now in the house elections committee in the hands of a sub-committee. The senate bill is decidedly conservative, and the house may change is materially.

Workingmen's compensation—Before both branches for early action. The pending bill, which was prepared by a special senate committee headed by Senator A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota, has been gone over carefully by committees in both branches, has been amended in a number of places to make it more favorable to the worker's side, and is generally considered to be a much better basis for legislative action than it was supposed to be possible to arrange at this session. Its passage is expected.

Regulating Utilities.

Public utilities—Measures providing for the state regulation of public utilities are in committee in both houses, and will come before both for action very soon. Several measures are pending in each branch, and in all probability the result will be committee bills modelled on one or more of the pending bills. While sentiment has not crystalized on any one of these bills, it is extremely probable that a bill providing for state regulation of street railway companies, gas and electric light companies, etc., will be adopted. It will be more or less of a compromise. Objection has been raised to the state regulation of municipally owned utilities, and this objection will be met. In all probability the bill to be adopted will go no further in the state regulation of such utilities than to empower the state commission to provide uniform systems of accounting and the like. Some measure of local regulation, such as power over wires and poles and perhaps meter inspection and the like, will be retained.

Distance tariff—Has passed the senate, and is a special order in the house for next Tuesday morning.

Non-partisan county officers — Has passed the senate with an amendment putting senators and representatives in the legislature on a non-partisan basis. This amendment was offered in a spirit of hostility to the whole proposition and somewhat unexpectedly adopted. While it would be a huge joke on the proponents of the amendment if the house should concur in it, it is not likely that it will do so. The senate bill is in the house elections committee.

"Blue sky" law—Still in the committee stage in both houses. Very little interest in it has been manifested by members of the legislature, but it will come to a vote and may pass.

Creation of a public domain department to absorb the functions of a number of state departments and bureaus—Just introduced in both branches. Curiously enough, there is a bitter fight in prospect on this measure, and, still more oddly, the fight will be led by some of the Northern Minnesota members like R. C. Dunn and C. H. Warner, who led the fight that killed the proposed constitutional amendment taking the state's land business out of the state auditor's office. The pending measure, introduced in the house by the committee on public domain and in the senate by Senators Boyle, Putnam, Murden and Clague, is intended to serve until the Constitution can be amended to allow the full control of state lands to be turned over to the public domain department.

State regulation of telephones—Has passed the house and is now before committee in the senate.

The county division bill, backed by Senator Boyle in the senate and Representatives Knapp and Healy in the house, is on the calendar in the senate, and will come to a vote Wednesday or Thursday.

Both houses will resume their labors Wednesday morning, and there will be no more vacations—except on Good Friday, a legal holiday—until the close. STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

WILL BE CRIPPLE IF HE SURVIVES

Victim of Recent Shooting Still in a Critical Condition.

No trace has yet been obtained of Joe Strafaccia, who shot Frank Rossi three times in the Strafaccio home, 227 Eleventh avenue west, a week ago last night following a quarrel over a card game.

Strafaccia has now been gone over a week. Many rumors have reached the police of men who have been seen answering his description, but thus far the reports have proved to be without foundation. Circulars with the photograph and description of the fugitive have been scattered broadcast and close watch has been kept for him without success.

Rossi is still hovering between life and death at St. Mary's hospital, where he was taken by the police after the shooting. He has a small chance of recovery, but as he has held out so long the physicians are beginning to entertain hopes that he will survive. Should he live it is feared that he will be hopelessly crippled for life. The lower part of his body is paralyzed, the result of a bullet through the spinal column between the shoulder blades.

BETTER DEATH THAN POVERTY

Was Despondent Because He Had Become a County Charge.

Overcome by the cold and despondent because he could not support himself, John Reichard, about 65 years old, is believed to have committed suicide about a week ago rather than return to the poor farm.

His frozen body was found yesterday by Iver Olson of Arnold, suspended from a tree in Ingleside park by a small piece of clothes line which he had knotted about his neck. He had evidently been dead six or eight days.

Reichard had been about this part of the country for some years, making his living by doing odd jobs. Papers in his pocket showed that last winter he had obtained permission to go into the camps of a large lumber company to make a collection. An order was found in his pocket giving him permission to sell notions in the streets. It was signed by Chief Troyer of the police department.

Reichard is said to have been at the poor farm for some months this winter. Dissatisfied at being a county charge he came into the city in search of a job. Unable to find anything within his means the indications are that he started back for the poor farm. Getting off the road he probably wandered hopelessly about, trying to find his way. His body was found some distance off the road leading to the county institution.

Reichard made careful preparations to end his life. He selected a tree next to a stump. After fixing the noose about his neck he climbed to the top of the stump and tied the other end to a limb of the tree. He then threw himself forward off the stump, strangling to death.

The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan, where it is being held pending funeral arrangements. Efforts will be made to learn whether or not he has any relatives.

PECULIAR CLAIM ON THE COUNTY

Gut Maki of Tower presented a rather rather peculiar claim for services at the office of the county auditor this morning.

Maki wanted $10 for "delivering one frozen lumberjack to Soudan hospital." The charge is for assistant, livery and time.

The bill was accompanied by a sworn statement from the superintendent of the hospital that Gust Maki and Gust Saarinen brought in a "frozen lumberjack" on Feb. 24.

The name of the "frozen lumberjack" was not disclosed. It was stated, however, that he was found in the woods and that he had lost himself while making his way to the camps of the Trout Lake Lumber company.

The bill was audited and a warrant was drawn on the county treasurer. It was found that the case came under the work of the poor commission, and the bill was charged against the poor fund.

troduced was restricted to narrow limits. Apart from the introduction again of the home rule and the Welsh disestablishment bills, the only important measures will be bills to facilitate land purchase in Ireland, the guarantee of a Soudan loan for the development of cotton growing, to prevent plural voting at elections, and for the development of a national system of education.

Searched for Suffragettes.

London, March 10.—In connection with the opening of the new session of the British parliament by King George this afternoon, elaborate precautions were taken to prevent any interference by militant suffragettes or their male supporters.

The time-honored ceremony known as "searching the vaults" beneath the house of commons and the house of lords, which has been carried out since the attempt by Guy Fawkes, in 1605, to blow up the king and parliament, but which in later years has been performed in a most perfunctory manner, was again undertaken seriously this morning.

A party of Yeomen of the Guard from the Tower of London, better known as the "beef eaters," went carefully through the buildings, accompanied by one of the chief officials of parliament and by inspectors of police and other high functionaries. All of these made a thorough search for any lurking suffragettes.

Threat Made.

The greatest care was taken in issuing tickets to ladies for the actual ceremony of the opening. Threats had been made to create a scene when the king arrived to read his speech from the throne.

The lord high chamberlain, who issued the invitations, sent with each a note stating that it was to be distinctly understood that the recipient of the ticket of admission accepted the fullest responsibility for the lady or gentleman presenting it and that the name must be written on it.

Along the line of parade down which King George and Queen Mary drove in a gilded state carriage drawn by the famous cream colored horses, strong forces of mounted and foot police and men in plain clothes were stationed to prevent the occurrence of any outrage.

First Sign.

The first sign of suffragette activity during the royal procession was seen when two women rushed from St. James' park, opposite Marlborough house, while the royal coach was passing and vigorously waved papers. They were promptly surrounded by police and hustled from the spot.

Another party of five women, who tried to present a petition to the king as he passed along Whitehall, were arrested.

Drake for his remarks, saying that this line of abusing witnesses by the attorney for the Equity exchange has been a feature of the investigation from the beginning, and that the attorney has been repeatedly warned, but without effect.

Russell With Equity Attorneys.

The close connection between the house investigating committee and the Equity exchange was further revealed today when C. A. Russell, who succeeded Congressman James A. Manahan as attorney for the house committee, sat near the Equity attorneys during the cross-examination of Mr. Hageback and conferred and suggested questions.

Little new was brought out in the cross-examination of the witness, who told his story on direct examination last Saturday. He testified that he sent three samples from the same bin of barley to Minneapolis, one to the Equity concern and the other two to chamber of commerce commission men. The Equity responded first with a bid of 55 cents, which was accepted. Later the chamber of commerce men offered 56 and 59 cents. When the car was shipped and sold, according to Mr. Hageback, the Equity concern reported that it was able to get only 54 cents a bushel for the barley.

Mr. Hageback insisted on cross-examination that on the 120 cars he had shipped to other commission firms during the last season the prices were always satisfactory, considering the grade and the market. Out of this number of cars, he said, he had had trouble over grade on only about six cars.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

cuss Missouri's claims to several important positions.

Late today in the East room, the men of the diplomatic corps were to be presented formally to the president and on Wednesday the diplomats and their wives will meet Mrs. Wilson. Tonight at 9 o'clock the president will press a button in the White House which will open a stock breeders' convention at Fort Worth, Tex.

Not to Congressmen.

President Wilson's rule about discussing patronage with his visitors does not apply to members of congress. It was pointed out at the White House today that the president intended his announcement that office seekers should address themselves to heads of departments should not be interpreted as including senators and representatives to whom the president hopes to be accessible at all times and on all subjects.

Mr. Wilson intends to consult with cabinet members about the recommendation of members of congress and vice versa. The whole purpose is to divert the stream of applicants and their friends from the White House to the government departments so that the field of choice may be gradually reduced before he takes up the question of appointments.

When the president was governor of New Jersey he always gave precedence to members of the legislature and when that body was in session he would always keep his door open to the legislators to come and go unannounced. Mr. Wilson hoped in that way to encourage frequent consultations about legislative matters.

Will Pursue Same Course.

It is quite probable that when congress is in session he will pursue the same course and it has been suggested that when critical moments arrive in dealing with legislation, Mr. Wilson may go to the president's room at the capitol to be in close physical touch with members of both houses.

President Wilson expects to send to the senate today the nomination of James I. Blakeslee, secretary of the Pennsylvania Democratic state committee, to be fourth assistant postmaster general. Mr. Blakeslee was reported last week as slated for third assistant, but a definite announcement was made today at the White House that he will have the fourth place in the postoffice department.

It was expected that the nomination of State Senator F. D. Roosevelt of New York to be assistant secretary of the navy, to succeed Beekman Winthrop, would be sent to the senate today or tomorrow.

Secretary Garrison, after a talk with the president, said Mr. Wilson agreed with him that the personnel of the department ought not to be disturbed for several weeks at least.

Appointment of Relations.

The president had before him today the question of whether he should consent to the appointment of a relative to public office. On Saturday, when Capt. Alfred Wilson of Portland, Or., a second cousin of the president, was suggested to the secretary of war for a member of the Philippine commission, Mr. Garrison consulted the president and found him disinclined to appoint any relative to office. A delegation of Westerners, however, talked again today to Secretary Garrison in the interest of Capt. Wilson and the secretary told them he would have no objection to the appointment if the president were willing.

Later the delegation called on the president on behalf of Capt. Wilson. It consisted of National Committeeman John Patterson of Washington, John H. Wilson of Hawaii and Z. R. Cheney of Alaska; H. C. Todd, chairman of the Democratic state committee of Washington; Charles G. Hilefner of Seattle, Judge James Ross of the Philippines, Charles Drury, William Blackman and W. N. Cockran, Democrats of the state of Washington. The president promised to consider their recommendations.

WANT PAVEMENT ON PARK POINT

Residents Call Mass Meeting to Consider Improvement Project.

Minnesota avenue on Park Point will be paved this coming summer if the residents of that suburb have their way.

For years, the residents claim, Park Point has been held back on account of the lack of modern conveniences in the way of sewers and pavements, but they are determined to have all these improvements before another year passes.

A meeting of all residents of the Point has been called for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Park Point Mission, Twenty-eighth street, when John Wilson, the city engineer, will give a talk on paving, and the residents of the Point will take the steps necessary to have work begun early this spring.

WEAKNESS OF MODERN CHURCH

Must Adapt Itself to Present Day Conditions, Says Pastor.

The Revival meetings at the First Christian church, Twelfth avenue East and Fourth street, began yesterday with large attendance and interest.

Evangelist Robert Whiston of Lincoln, Neb., is conducting the series, which will continue indefinitely. The singing evangelist was assisted by a large chorus, and the music was attractive and original.

These meetings will begin at 8 o'clock, closing at 9, every night except Saturday.

The sermon by the evangelist in the morning was of striking character, involving a discussion of the weaknesses of the church of today. "A dead church is the deadest, most lifeless and useless thing on earth," he said. "God has no use for it, the devil has no use for it and neither has man. The church that lives satisfies every nature of man. Too long the church has said to her young members, you can't dance, play cards or go to the theater, but what provision has the church made for the development of the social nature? The world will put the church out of commission unless the church becomes a social center. The picture show, the theater and kindred amusements have come to stay and the church must adapt herself to twentieth century conditions."

The evangelist reported conversations he had had with Mr. Bryan recently, concerning the future of the church, and quoted Mr. Bryan as saying "There has never been a time in the history of Christianity, when the church has had her place in human affairs as today."

Tonight he will speak on "How to Prosper."

SOLDIER-PRIEST.

North Dakota Man of Cloth Was Once French Cavalryman.

Bottineau, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Both a soldier and a priest, Rev. Fr. Andrieux of this place is probably the only minister in the state who carries a scar received in actual warfare. Earlier in life he was a cavalryman in the French army. He served in the campaign in Morocco and in one battle had a hand to hand conflict with a Moorish fanatic and was wounded across the face with a similar. The scar is the only evidence of the warlike pursuits in which the father was formerly engaged.

LAST STAND OF WINTER---MAYBE

Real Blizzard Is Followed By Mild Springlike Weather.

Winter made a final stand Saturday night, a blizzard following the warm springlike day. Yesterday morning Duluth people awoke to find the earth covered with fresh soft snow, and the air warm enough to wipe away most of the new covering during the day.

The blizzard Saturday night was more uncomfortable than serious. The snow was light and soft, but the wind attained a good velocity and made walking against the storm difficult. Four or five inches of snow fell during the night and conditions underfoot yesterday were almost intolerable.

The storm Saturday night was evidently merely an interruption of the spring weather, for today is fair and mild.

The storm Saturday night recalled the fact that yesterday was the twenty-first anniversary of the worst March storm in the history of Duluth. March 9, 1892, saw a snowfall of thirteen inches and a wind velocity varying from fifty to sixty miles an hour. Drifts of snow five and six feet deep blocked the walks and traffic was tied up. The snow, like that of Saturday night, disappeared quickly.

MORE PROTEST AGAINST WASHINGTON POLICE.

Washington, March 10.—Several hundred men and women gathered yesterday in a mass meeting in protest against the disturbance of the suffrage parade on Pennsylvania avenue last week and the conduct of the police along the line of march.

Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police, and his force were criticized for "mismanagement and incompetency" and those who interfered with the procession were called "brutal loafers." The speakers were Senators Clapp of Minnesota, Shafroth and Thomas of Colorado and Works of California, Louis D. Brandeis, "Corporal" James Tanner and Charles Edward Russell.

Presque Isle, Me., Scorched.

Presque Isle, Me., March 10.—Thirteen business places were destroyed when Green's block and Freidmann's block on West aMin street burned today. The combined losses are upward of $100,000.

This evening a volunteer committee of ten men will be in charge of the meeting. The members of the committee will speak during the evening. They will be assisted by the choir and several of the church soloists.

Last evening Rev. Mr. Silloway preached on "The Conversion of the Philippian Jailor," in which the pastor declared that Paul was one of the greatest optimists in the world's history. He said in part:

"A genuine Christian is always an optimist. There is no possible situation in which he is not more than a conqueror on account of his Christian faith. Pessimism and christianity are mutually exclusive. What a pessimist needs most is not a new environment, but a new heart, a Christian conversion. That will brighten up every experience in life.

"Paul was taken by the authorities on account of a healing ministry he had performed on an afflicted girl. He was cruelly beaten with rods, thrown bleeding into the dark dungeon of the jail and his hands and feet riveted in stocks. A more terrible situation in life cannot be conceived. If Paul could rejoice then, any of us can always rejoice. At midnight the prisoners heard Paul singing praises to God. No wonder the gates of the prison swung open at a faith like that.

"The optimist has power with God and man; the pessimist is left alone. Any optimist not rooted in Christian faith is superficial and cannot stand the test of time. But a genuine faith is always rejoicing."

GERMAN ROYAL WEDDING IS SAID TO BE LOVE MATCH ALSO

PRINCESS VICTORIA LOUISE AND FIANCE.

This is a snapshot of Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia and her fiance, Prince Ernst of Cumberland. The princess was reported, not long ago, to be breaking her heart over a German baron. She looks as though it had been thoroughly mended. In fact the German government gives out the official statement that the match is a love match as well as a political arrangement. By this marriage the house of Cumberland (the ancient house of Hanover) becomes reconciled to the Hohenzollern family, which absorbed Hanover into Prussia.

Are We Not To Much Inclined to Let Others Think for Us?

Probably only one person out of ten uses his thinking power to anywhere near its capacity. The other nine depend largely upon the thinking done by others. This may be observed in small things, as well as in great, although the small matters better prove the dearth of original thought among us. We do not expect all persons to achieve great things, but, having brains, certainly every individual should use hers or his to the extent, at least, of promoting personal comfort and improving personal conditions.

I received a letter recently from a man who put an old, old grievance of the masculine sex before me in a new light. It set me to thinking and investigating for myself, and as a result I am bound to declare that our every day acts show an amazing lack of thought. This man described the practice of himself and two women as regards their means of reaching home after the day's work. He knew the women only from seeing them going to and from work each day, as they apparently reside in the same neighborhood.

All three work in the same business locality in a certain city, and have been in the habit of proceeding to a certain place to take the home-bound car. The man explains that he has heard the women complain of the crowds that board the car at this point, and yet he has observed that they invariably go to this corner to board the car, just as he had always done until recently. The thought occurred to him one day that, by walking the same distance from his work in another direction and boarding the same car there, he would avoid the big crowd and insure himself a seat, and he has since followed that practice.

"Why should I," he asks me, "give up my seat to a woman who has the same chance to obtain one that I have, and still refuses to think for herself enough to walk a short distance north, instead of south, when she can do one as well as the other."

I laughed at this man's letter. It struck me at first as being a perfectly original excuse for hiding behind an evening paper and letting the women hang onto the straps. But, on second thought, I decided that the man was partly right. Most of us are too much inclined to shift the burden of doing our thinking upon others—to follow some leader, in short, in many small things, as well as in great. The case I have cited is but one small illustration of the myriad ways in which we do this.

To cultivate habits of thoughtfulness would be a boon not only to ourselves, but to others, as well.

HAS THE HERO PASSED FOREVER?

Collier's Weekly: What is one's notion of a hero? It is the patient and kindly Maj. Dobbin and Col. Newcome? These are men, like their author, Thackeray, who have suffered so much that they have learned to be merciful, to forego harsh judgments, to deal out friendliness to all comers. Perhaps their supreme desire is to go through life causing as little pain as may be. More vivid to the eye are the big fellows of human impulse, who sin and laugh and breathe vitality, of the Tom Jones sort. In certain moods their very blunders seem more heartening, because of their love of life, than the saddened plodding of the meek and lowly. To many readers the gay blades of romance are surely heroes—D'Artagnan and his group, fighters and lovers, too. Dickens's ideal of a hero is revealed in the Cheeryble Brothers—men of round, rosy face, who go about doing good to everyone they meet. What has been done to the hero in the best of modern fiction? In this country no short story of recent years has had such consummate beauty as "Ethan Frome." But in that sad world wherein the three characters lived out their tortured lives no glimpse emerges of anyone victorious. Victory is of several kinds. It may be the gaining of a bank account, a reputation for smugness and respectability. It may be winning the lady by bravery. It may be winning peace through failure and loss surmounted. But our most gifted and appealing novelists of today are no longer permitting a victory of any sort to any one of their troubled actors. Has the hero passed forever?

HAS THE HERO PASSED FOREVER?

Collier's Weekly: What is one's notion of a hero? It is the patient and kindly Maj. Dobbin and Col. Newcome? These are men, like their author, Thackeray, who have suffered so much that they have learned to be merciful, to forego harsh judgments, to deal out friendliness to all comers. Perhaps their supreme desire is to go through life causing as little pain as may be. More vivid to the eye are the big fellows of human impulse, who sin and laugh and breathe vitality, of the Tom Jones sort. In certain moods their very blunders seem more heartening, because of their love of life, than the saddened plodding of the meek and lowly. To many readers the gay blades of romance are surely heroes—D'Artagnan and his group, fighters and lovers, too. Dickens's ideal of a hero is revealed in the Cheeryble Brothers—men of round, rosy face, who go about doing good to everyone they meet. What has been done to the hero in the best of modern fiction? In this country no short story of recent years has had such consummate beauty as "Ethan Frome." But in that sad world wherein the three characters lived out their tortured lives no glimpse emerges of anyone victorious. Victory is of several kinds. It may be the gaining of a bank account, a reputation for smugness and respectability. It may be winning the lady by bravery. It may be winning peace through failure and loss surmounted. But our most gifted and appealing novelists of today are no longer permitting a victory of any sort to any one of their troubled actors. Has the hero passed forever?

REGISTER TUESDAY.

Tomorrow is the first day of registration for the city election to be held April 1. Register tomorrow. Don't put it off. You may be unable to get to the registration place when the last opportunity comes. So register tomorrow, at the first opportunity.

We have the commission form of government in Duluth. It is expected to be a great thing for the city, as it has been for other cities. But the only thing that makes it a success is for the people to take an interest in their city government, and the only way you can show an effective interest in city government is to vote. And you can't vote if you aren't registered. So register tomorrow.

Don't forget.

It is important.

Register tomorrow and make sure that you can tell your grandchildren that you voted in the first election under the commission form of government ever held in Duluth.

North Dakota's legislature has adjourned, but Minnesota still has hers in her midst. We'll have to go for awhile without poking fun at North Dakota.

LEGISLATIVE CONTRASTS.

Last Saturday morning the North Dakota legislature finished its work and adjourned. Tomorrow the Minnesota legislature will begin the tenth week of its session—and the end is not in sight.

Such a contrast as this is the more interesting on account of the effort being made by some members of the Minnesota legislature to have the constitutional limitation of ninety days of actual session removed. It is proposed to allow the legislature to remain in session as long as it sees fit, instead of setting a time limit for the accomplishment of state business.

That no-limit plan is in force in Wisconsin, and the experience there is not such as to make Minnesota hanker to follow suit. There have been years when the Wisconsin legislature has been in session clear up to the fall months, and even then has accomplished nothing that should not have been easy of accomplishment in much less time. Every day of the session means an added burden of expense to the state, and also means that much more opportunity for manipulation of proposed measures. The shorter the session the better. In the extra session held in Minnesota last summer more progressive legislation was enacted, though the session lasted but a scant two weeks, than was turned out in the four months of work the year before.

North Dakota has set us an example of expedition. Minnesota ought to be thankful for the lesson, and perhaps even see in it basis for shortening our own legislative term to sixty days. Certainly the North Dakota work emphasizes the folly of lengthening the time of the lawmakers at the state capital.

Huerta says Madero tried to incite anti-American feeling in Mexico. Now Huerta has succeeded in inciting anti-Mexican feeling in the United States. So they are about even again.

THAT $2,000 SALARY.

At the meeting Friday night of the West Duluth Commercial club a petition to the city council was adopted asking that an investigation be had of the board of public welfare and the Associated Charities, before any more money shall be appropriated for the use of the former organization. The action, it appears, was taken in view of the proposal coming before the council tonight relative to the use of $2,000 intended as a salary for a civic center manager.

Though the action of the West Duluth club was undoubtedly taken in all good faith, it evidently was done under some misapprehension as to the $2,000 ordinance. That ordinance is not a provision for an addition of $2,000 to the appropriations already made for the work of the board of public welfare, but is an ordinance to modify the conditions governing the expenditure of the $2,000 appropriated by the council some two months ago, and already covered in the city reports. City Attorney Carmichael, since that appropriation was made, has given an opinion to the effect that the employing of the civic center manager would be beyond the powers of the welfare board, without specific granting of authority by the council, and it is to remedy that difficulty that the proposed ordinance was drafted.

Another misapprehension that appears in the petition is that the proposed civic centers would be organized for work along the same lines as the humane society and other similar bodies. The civic center, in fact, is intended to put into practice the principle already approved by the voters of Duluth of making use of the public school buildings as places for neighborhood gatherings, and the duty of the manager of these centers would be to direct that work, so that it might be of the highest possible benefit to the people of the city instead of being in danger of becoming merely perfunctory or valueless in its operation.

If there is any basis for a demand for an investigation of the work of the Associated Charities, board of public welfare or any other city body, that investigation should be made, by all means, and it is certain that the men and women working in and with the organizations would welcome any fair and impartial inquiry into what they have done and are doing.

But it should be borne in mind that the welfare board, in particular, is a comparatively new organization; that it has hardly had time to do more than outline its work and begin to put its plans into operation; and that its task thus far has been one of construction instead of the continuance of work already begun. Before drastic criticism of such an organization is made, fair opportunity should be given to its members to put their plans on an operative basis, and there is nothing to indicate that that is not just what is being accomplished.

PUBLICITY AND THE CABINET.

It was to be expected that President Wilson would take the stand he has taken that the discussions of the cabinet should be made public "as far as possible." He has declared himself the president of all the people, and that his administration is to be in the interests of all the people. He proposes to conceal nothing of the government's plans and purposes; to see that the public affairs are conducted in such a manner that there can be no chicanery or attempt to defeat the common good under cover of secrecy.

How far this policy of publicity can be carried as regards cabinet affairs remains to be seen. There are many matters that come before an executive body that demand temporary concealment. Questions of foreign policy at times involve points the general knowledge of which would defeat the just interests of the nation. At times, also, questions of domestic policy arise that must be viewed in the light of particular information before they can be fully understood, and this information is not always available or in suitable form for presentation to the public.

These are conditions that will confront President Wilson and his advisers, and there is no question that the publicity policy will have to be modified to some extent. President Wilson foresaw that when he added the qualification "as far as possible" to the announcement he made. But as long as the government at Washington keeps faith with the people in matters the public understands, there will be no hesitation in trusting that same government in matters not so readily understood. At least President Wilson's declaration is an evidence of good faith, and will be received as such.

Why doesn't England buy another cup, if she wants one, instead of trying to get the old one back? That's easy. Experience has taught her that if she did some bloomin' Yankees would go over there and take that one away too.

GARDEN CONTESTS.

Announcement has been made that the West End Commercial club is to hold another garden contest for the children of that part of the city. The contest last year was a huge success, and the club proposes this year to distribute $75 in prizes among the youngsters making the best showing in garden work. Special efforts are to be made this year to instruct the children in their gardening, and both flowers and vegetables will be considered in awarding prizes.

The gardening contest, almost unheard of a few years ago, is taking on bigger proportions every year all over the country, as the value of the plan is becoming more apparent. It is the best means yet found to interest children in learning how to make the soil produce good things to eat, and it is in the broadening of instruction along this line that the lowering of the cost of food in years to come must be found. It is not at all too much to hope that some of the youngsters who enter these contests will find themselves so interested in the work that they will take up agriculture as their life work. And every one of them who does so will be the better prepared to till the soil intelligently and profitably.

The West End Commercial club has taken up a good work. It should be given every encouragement to continue and extend it.

We'll try to stand for most anything just so long as Sir Thomas doesn't insist on calling his new challenger the "Jim Thorpe."

KNOCKER AND BOOSTER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Mr. Knocker of Duluth is a great man. He has lived in Duluth from five to twenty-five years, could never see how Duluth would become a big city—everything is wrong here. It reminds me of the days of long ago when I first came to this country. Germany was the only country, till one day I met my Waterloo. I was asked if anyone had asked me to come to this country? I said no. And I was told politely: "Why don't you go back where you came from?" Do I need to say any more to Mr. Knocker? I lived in Seattle when a population of about 40,000, jumped to about 100,000 in a year. We had there some knockers. Who were they? The fellows that could not make the money. Look around you at the big wholesale houses we have in Duluth. We ought to be proud of them, and every one of them has started, as far as I am told, in a very obscure way. We have all the same chances, Mr. Knocker. And now for Mr. Booster. I want you to understand that I am no knocker. Whenever I don't like Duluth I will leave it the same as I left New York, Chicago, Portland, San Francisco, etc., but there is one thing I don't like in Duluth and that is the phrase "Do it for Duluth." I found people in Duluth are the same as you'll find them all over the world. Do it for yourself. If you can show me a merchant in Duluth who has bought a bill of merchandise of a Duluth house, to do it for Duluth, I'll have his picture taken. That phrase has made a lot of ill-feeling among Duluthians. There were a few who wanted to live up to it, but were disappointed when it came to the many that always used "Do it for Duluth," for he is the man that wants the other man to "Do it for Duluth." In conclusion I want to say you can knock or boost all you please, and in spite of all Duluth will become the city of the Northwest. L. L.

Duluth, March 10.

LAW ENFORCEMENT AND THE MAYOR'S JOB.

Some of the candidates for mayor are very free in making promises of law enforcement if they are elected. These promises are not made in good faith or those making them are not familiar with the new charter. The mayor will have nothing whatever to do with that question unless he should be assigned to the department of public safety, which is not at all probable. The natural place for the mayor is the division of public affairs. The question of law enforcement rests wholly with the commissioner of public safety. The charter makes him supreme, as it does each other commissioner, in his particular division. The commission acting together can remove him from that division, if it so desires, but while he is there he and he only is responsible for law enforcement or the lack of it.

In deciding who to vote for the voters should look to the past history of all candidates, leave friendship and all partisan feeling out of it and vote only as one's judgment and conscience dictates and Duluth will make the same success of the commission form of government as has been made wherever it has been adopted. If I am elected commissioner I want it done on the opinion of the voters that I am able to measure up to the job. I don't want anyone to vote for me because he is a friend of mine. I want his vote, if I get it at all, only on his opinion as to my fitness for the place.

SOCIALISTS AND THE COMMISSION PLAN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I thought the Socialists were opposed to the commission form of government, but I see there are a few of them running for office. I guess they are not so opposed to it but what they would like to become mayor or one of the commissioners. Thinketh thou so? LIONEL C. DE BROWN.

Education and Good Roads

Louisville Courier-Journal: It is estimated that there are 25,000,000 children of school age in the United States but only about 18,000,000 of these children attend school.

Doubtless there are many reasons why 7,000,000 of the children of the United States do not go to school. A writer in the Farm and Fireside believes the great majority of them are out of school because of bad roads. Some figures are presented by this writer which bear out the contention.

In the five good roads states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Ohio and Indiana, where there is an average improved highway mileage of nearly 35 per cent, more than 77 per cent of the children are in school.

In the five bad road states of Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, South Dakota and Georgia, with an average improved highway mileage of 1.5 per cent, less than 60 per cent of the children are attending school.

In the four bad roads states of Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi and North Carolina, with a total population of nearly 8,000,000, there are about 375,000 illiterate men and women, native-born white.

In the four good roads states of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, with a total population upward of 6,000,000, there are but 20,500 illiterate men and women, native-born, white. "In other words," says the writer in Farm and Fireside, "education goes hand in hand with the hard road—as roads improve, illiteracy decreases." Many children, he continues, have no schools to attend because "the roads are so bad there is no profit in farming, no money for schools, no progress, no growth, no ambition."

This is an argument that is worth thinking about in communities where bad roads are retarding progress.

Work of British Labor Exchanges

Consul General John I. Griffiths, London, England, in the Consular Reports.

No more efficient instrument than the government labor exchange perhaps has ever been devised in the United Kingdom to relieve the congestion of labor by securing its more even distribution. The exchange provides a medium of communication between employers and employed; it puts out the incompetent working man and furnishes to factory and shop both men and women both anxious and able to work.

The hostility which was manifested toward the government labor exchanges in their early history has almost entirely disappeared. They are approved where they were at first condemned, because their function was misunderstood, and are now fully established in the public confidence and, what is much more important, in the confidence of the employers and the working people.

On Feb. 1, 1910, which marked the inauguration of the government labor exchanges, some eighty were established in London and throughout the country. In three years they have increased to 400, with more than 1,100 local agents. The applications for employment received at the exchanges in 1912 aggregated 2,324,762, while the number of vacancies notified was 978,437 and the number filled 745,529.

In addition to the work primarily designed for the labor exchanges, further duties have devolved upon them since the passage of the insurance act. Through the labor exchanges and the local agents unemployment benefits are claimed and paid. The unemployment benefits began to accrue upon Jan. 15, 1913, and the first payment was made on Jan. 24, when 13,000 people were paid at the labor exchanges in the London division. On Jan. 8, the first day when applications for benefits might be filed, 62,000 claims were presented at the labor exchanges; in the following week nearly 45,000 presentations took place, and in the succeeding week claims in excess of 30,000. Up to and including Jan. 25, the total number of claims under the recent insurance act for unemployment benefit was 138,222, and they are coming in, it is stated, at the rate of 20,000 to 30,000 a week.

Under the insurance act the unemployed workmen receive payment beginning with the second week, and even after their claims are filed many secure employment. The great majority of those in receipt of unemployment benefit in London, it is stated in the London Times, are engaged in the building trade, painters being specially numerous. A great advantage attaching to payment of benefit through the labor exchanges is that when the unemployed men go to the labor exchanges to get benefit, the exchanges are often in a position to offer them work instead; and benefit is not paid if a man refuses a suitable job.

In addition to the benefit paid out by the exchanges and local agents, benefits are also paid through associations of workmen which make arrangements for the purpose. The Board of Trade has made arrangements with about 100 associations and 5,000 branches. The state benefit is $1.70 a week for a maximum of fifteen weeks in any twelve months, subject to the further rule that no man can have more than one week of benefit for every five contributions paid by him or allowed him.

The right of a man to receive benefit is determined, in the first instance, by the insurance officer. If the claimant is dissatisfied with the decision of this officer, he can appeal to a court of referees, consisting of an employer, workman, and an impartial chairman. There are about eighty of these courts of referees in the country. The representatives of employers and workmen on these courts are drawn from panels. In each district there are about twenty names on the panel. The court meets week by week, a different employer and a different workman sitting each week.

Bad Grammer in Constitution.

Washington Star: An error, so patent as to be termed glaring, has existed in the very first sentence of the Constitution of the United States since its adoption, undetected, as far as can be ascertained, by lawyers or rhetoricians. Strange to say, the error was only exposed by a foreigner applying for citizenship, whose ability to understand this foundation stone of our government was being called into judicial question.

A young German, who, five years ago had taken out his "first papers"—that is, declared his intention to become an American citizen—was recently taking out his "final papers" in a court of the District. One of the essential steps in this procedure is the examination of the applicant by the judge as to his knowledge of the Constitution. The form of the question is, by immemorial custom, as follows: "Have you read the Constitution of the United States, and, if so, do you understand it?"

In this instance the young German, to the astonishment of the examining judge, replied:

"Yes, your honor, and I think the men who wrote it did not know how to write correct English. The very first sentence is defective."

"What do you mean?" queried the judge, bewildered by this foreign attack upon the bulwark of our liberties.

"Why," replied the German, "the first sentence says: 'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union.' Now, according to the best, or indeed, any authority, the word 'perfect' means something that is by its very nature superlative; it cannot be improved upon. How then could the people of the United States form a more perfect Union? If it was perfect before, they could add nothing to increase its perfection. It might be made more effective or more binding, but certainly not more perfect!"

An English View of Bryan.

London Chronicle: Mr. Bryan as an orator was vividly described by George Steevens, who saw him address 10,000 election contest, and was greatly impressed by his dramatic gifts.

"For a moment the square, black figure stood absolutely still," says Mr. Steevens." Then slowly he reached forth the hand, like St. Paul in the Bible. The din went on unabated. Still very slowly he raised an arm above the head and made passes—one, two, three—in each direction of the crowd. Gradually silence crept over the mass of heads, and then the orator opened his lips. In a voice low but plain, hoarse but very rich, he began. Rain came on and an umbrella held over his head was blown inside out. But the orator crammed a broad felt hat onto his head, turned up his coat collar with a sturdy gesture, and then spread out his arms to his hearers. Once more they cracked their throats with applause."

The First Word Spoken.

Charleston News and Courier: Nobody knows what was the first thing Adam said to Eve, but the chances are she spoke first.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator John W. Kern relates in Addisonian English the sad tale of the young man out in Indiana who married for money.

The young man did not feel it much of a hardship to marry for money, because the woman in the case impressed him as being good looking. He was destined to have a rude awakening, because her good looks all came from a department store in another city by parcel post. After they had been married a day or so she grew careless about her personal appearance and he saw that scarcely anything about her was real. Her face, that had seemed winsome enough when gayly decorated in color and surmounted with $40 worth of purchased pompadour, looked hollow and parchment-like, with nothing to set it off but the few discouraged strings of hair that went with her. He could scarcely glance at her without wincing. As she sat at her dressing table, taking off things, and looking caved-in and abandoned, she reminded him of nothing so much as an old ruin. He recalled pictures he had seen of gray, deserted, spooky looking buildings.

With these thoughts running through his head, he fell into gloomy reverie, and she flitted into the picture as the nearest human approach to an old, crumbling abbey. Just then she moved one of her arms and—

Newspaper men heard a report one afternoon that Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia had got into a hand-to-hand mix-up with another senator in the cloakroom, and that the thing had been hushed up.

"Just one way to find out the truth," suggested one enterprising young journalist. "I'll go and ask Hoke Smith himself. I don't believe he would tell a lie."

"No; the story is entirely untrue," said the Georgia senator when he had heard the report. "If it had been true, there would have been one more detail to be added. And that is that somebody would have been hurt."

Representative Webb of North Carolina, joint author of the Kenyon-Webb bill to keep liquor out of "dry" states, is the first representative to indorse the Wilson administration by buying a bicycle.

He is an enthusiast over all forms of outdoor sports, and likes to take a bat and ball to a vacant lot and "knock up flies."

As one might infer from his work on the Webb bill, Webb does not drink. He smokes cigars, but has always kept away from cigarettes, chewing tobacco and the rum demon. He won't even buy a drink during a campaign.

Senator John K. Shields of Tennessee practices law in Knoxville, but his home is on a big ancestral place, near Bean station, in an adjoining county. The Bean is after one William Bean, who built the first log house in Tennessee, and Shields is proud to write his name on hotel registers with "Bean Sta., Tenn.," after it. He is expected to give "Bean" as his home in the congressional directory.

But there was one trip not long ago on which he lost his nerve and registered Knoxville after his name, day after day. It was his wedding trip. He had not the heart to write down his wife's name, and say to the world, via the hotel register, that she lived in "Bean." Besides, he was afraid she might seriously object to it, and he was loath to have the honeymoon journey spoiled by a mere technicality.

On the day they reached Knoxville, at the close of the trip, they went to a hotel, and Mrs. Shields was standing right beside her husband when he started to register. He threw his courage into the high, and wrote down, "Bean Station," watching her out of the tail of his eye.

She just laughed.

The senate was in session one night toward the end of the last congress until the early hours of the morning, and statesmen's wives were calling up to find out if they were really in session or merely making an excuse to stay out late.

About 3 o'clock Senator O'Gorman made a motion to adjourn, but it was lost, notwithstanding that scarcely any of the members could talk for yawning.

At 3:30 Senator Stone arose solemnly and observed:

"One may note from the first premonitory rays of light from the east that ere long 'twill be sunup—another day has dawned. I therefore make a parliamentary inquiry whether it will not now be proper to take up the usual morning business?"

Old Doc Akin was the only man in Washington who purposely missed seeing each and every feature of the inauguration exercises. Doc was a member of congress until noon of March 4. The moment the house adjourned, Doc simply went over to his office in the office building to pack up his effects, and he took the subway lest he might see what was going on outside. While the parade was passing up Pennsylvania avenue he went to the station and caught a train for his home in York state.

"I wouldn't even look at such a lot of silly goings-on," said Doc. "It's all foolishness. If I were made president I would go to the nearest justice of the peace, take my oath and then say: 'Boys, I'm ready for business.'"

The "Suicide Symphony."

Indianapolis News: Frederick Nietzsche agreed with those who found no inspiration in music. Indeed, he regarded music as a nerve poison, and declared that some music—particularly that of Wagner and Tschaikowsky—deranged the minds of many who heard it. Tschaikowsky killed himself after completing his famous "Sixth Symphony," which, as several others have died by their own hands after playing it, has come to be known as the "Suicide Symphony."

Brahma.

If the red slayer think he slays;
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.

Far or forgot to me is near;
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.

They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings;
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn the Brahmin sings.

The strong gods pine for my abode.
And pine in vain the sacred Seven;
But thou, meek lover of the good!
Find me, and turn thy back on heaven.

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats from the State Press.

Doing It for Duluth.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: Has Duluth any wholesale houses? This is a question we presume a great many men throughout the state, especially Northern Minnesota, ask themselves.

You may scan the pages of the Duluth Herald or the Duluth News Tribune daily, if you wish, and you cannot find a directory of Duluth wholesale business. The Minneapolis Journal continually carries a complete directory of the city's wholesale business. The Journal circulates throughout the entire country the same as the Duluth papers, and brings the fact forcibly to the attention of every one of its readers that Minneapolis is a large wholesale center, and invites the country merchant to deal with Minneapolis wholesalers.

Duluth should have and is entitled to the larger portion of the wholesale business throughout Northern Minnesota. In order to get and retain it, the Duluth wholesalers must let the country merchant know that Duluth has as large and well equipped a line of wholesale houses as any other city.

Who Wants to Come?

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: "What about the 'good road' from St. Paul to Duluth," asks the Pine County Pioneer. Brother, who wants to go to either town, no matter how good the road? —Apache, in the Prison Mirror.

Especially when there is a good town, such as Hibbing, to visit.

Warm One Wanted.

Cass Lake Times: Oh, yes, and what about that aged friend about whom our fathers used to hear—the Honorable Vernal Equinox?—Duluth Herald.

The Honorable Vernal isn't due until the twenty-first of March. Curb your patience, and hope the "aged friend" will hand out a warm one. Goodness knows we need it.

St. Cloud Is Friendly.

St. Cloud Times: An article from The Duluth Herald, which refers to an advertisement that appeared recently in the Times, is commended to the serious consideration of our business men and citizens generally. Duluth is St. Cloud's friend—St. Cloud should be the friend of Duluth.

Slightly Exaggerated.

Menahga Journal: A report is current here that Duluth is advertising for qualified judges to conduct their approaching election under the commission form of government, it being feared that all local material will file for an office.

Everybody's In It.

Hill City News: The first city campaign under the commission charter is now on in Duluth and is a hot one. About every politician in the city is out after a job and the way most of the candidates are promising to clean up the city and put the skids under the electric light company makes one think of a bunch of New Year resolutions. The same old city hall crowd is out after the offices, also some others. Must be some kind of a woodchuck in that new charter.

No Chance for St. Paul.

Nymore Independent: St. Paul wants to make a second-class port of Duluth, and would include Superior if possible.

Duluth will be a man-size port when St. Paul will be a village compared with the former's size in every respect.

Prefers The Herald.

Cannon Falls Beacon: In many respects Duluth is strictly on the map. She has money, men, energy and brains; she has some splendid business enterprises and above all she has two great dailies. The Beacon's preference of the two is The Herald, which we regard as one of the ablest papers published in the West and has most of them beaten a long way.

Will It Stand Up?

Cass Lake Times: Sometimes even the less skeptical among us get to wondering if there is anything more than alliteration in that stuff about in-like-a-lion-and-out-like-a-lamb. — Duluth Herald.

If there is anything more than alliteration the late "in-like-a-lion" should be an "out-like-a-lamb" so gentle a June zephyr would be a cyclone in comparison.

Punctilious Authors

Tit-Bits: It is surprising how punctilious some authors have been with respect to the smallest detail of their manuscripts. Dickens was a perfect terror of punctuation to drive a poor "comp" out of his wits.

Tennyson, too, was most particular that not a comma should be omitted or misplaced, while his revisions were never finished. Perhaps the greatest terror of the compositor was Thomas Carlyle, for he would cover every square inch of vacant space both in the margin and between the lines with minute additions and emendations—and not once, but a dozen times.

Victor Hugo was equally difficult to please and satisfy. Of one of his famous works he made the printers supply no fewer than eleven successive revised proofs, and the last half dozen were furnished in order to make quite sure that the commas were in their right places.

Lut perhaps Thomas Campbell, the famous poet who wrote such stirring masterpieces as "Hohenlinden," "The Battle of the Baltic," and "Ye Mariners of England," takes the cake in this respect. He was fastidious to a degree, which fact probably accounts for the small quantity and perfect quality of his literary output. It is said that he once walked six miles to his printers, and six miles back, in order to have a comma changed into a semicolon!

But an equally careful and fastidious literary workman owed a great improvement in the opening line of his most famous poem to a printer. This was Thomas Gray, whose "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard" is probably the best-known poem in the English language.

Its first line reads:

but when Gray sent it to the press his manuscript read:

The thoughtful compositor did not understand the word "tolls" as an intransitive verb, so dropped the comma, thinking the poet had put it in by mistake, and when Gray read the line his sensitive ear at once caught its new, sustained melody, and he adopted the compositor's correction.

Probably the most fastidious living writer is the poet William Watson. His work bears the impress of extreme care, and, like Tennyson, his revision seems never to be done.

Easily Pleased.

A Child's Imagination.

London Chronicle: A novel feature of a concert at Bechstein hall recently was a musical recital of a little child's description of a number of new animals invented by herself.

The author of these quaint beasts—hibberboo, fat-tack, the blue gueeze, the Gott Family, the jonket, the hitchy-penny, and the joe-jag—is Miss Joan Maude, who, we are told, began to people her nursery with them when 3 years old, and still does so at the age of 5. We were introduced to them a few months ago in a book called "Behind the Nightlight," but we met them again at the concert, set to music by Mme. Liza Lehmann, and recited by the child's mother, Miss Nancy Price (Mrs. Charles Maude).

The little girl has a fantastic and humorous imagination. She wishes she had not invented the Gott Family because they were unpleasant and kept on collecting relations. They lived under the earth, which was the reason why the nice things, like the flowers and the trees shot out of it.

The jonket was a conceited animal, always trying to draw attention to itself by pretending to have a very trouble-some cough. It collected coughs in paper bags. The blue gueeze had one eye on the end of its tail, so that it could see what was going on a long way behind; and fat-tack was not a nicely fat animal, because he was "only fat on his face and his tummy."

Both Miss Price and Mme. Lehmann managed, in their respective ways, to interpret the child's ideas successfully, and at the close of the performance little Joan herself came in for applause, flowers and toy animals.

A Yankee and a Royal Kiss.

Tid-Bits: But, truth to tell, kissing has always had its thorns mingled with its roses. Even a royal prince has been known to be sorry for himself after kissing "not wisely but too well;" as when the Duke of Clarence (later, our fourth William), while traveling in America, stole a kiss from the pretty wife of the barber who had shaved him.

"There, now," he said boastfully, "tell your countrywomen that the son of the king of England has given a royal kiss to a Yankee barber's wife." Scarcely had the words left his lips when the knight of the razor lifted a vigorous foot and kicked him out of the door, with the remark: 'There, now, go and tell your countrymen that a Yankee barber has given a royal kick to the son of the king of England.'

We have the commission form of government in Duluth. It is expected to be a great thing for the city, as it has been for other cities. But the only thing that makes it a success is for the people to take an interest in their city government, and the only way you can show an effective interest in city government is to vote. And you can't vote if you aren't registered. So register tomorrow.

Don't forget.

It is important.

Register tomorrow and make sure that you can tell your grandchildren that you voted in the first election under the commission form of government ever held in Duluth.

North Dakota's legislature has adjourned, but Minnesota still has hers in her midst. We'll have to go for awhile without poking fun at North Dakota.

LEGISLATIVE CONTRASTS.

Last Saturday morning the North Dakota legislature finished its work and adjourned. Tomorrow the Minnesota legislature will begin the tenth week of its session—and the end is not in sight.

Such a contrast as this is the more interesting on account of the effort being made by some members of the Minnesota legislature to have the constitutional limitation of ninety days of actual session removed. It is proposed to allow the legislature to remain in session as long as it sees fit, instead of setting a time limit for the accomplishment of state business.

That no-limit plan is in force in Wisconsin, and the experience there is not such as to make Minnesota hanker to follow suit. There have been years when the Wisconsin legislature has been in session clear up to the fall months, and even then has accomplished nothing that should not have been easy of accomplishment in much less time. Every day of the session means an added burden of expense to the state, and also means that much more opportunity for manipulation of proposed measures. The shorter the session the better. In the extra session held in Minnesota last summer more progressive legislation was enacted, though the session lasted but a scant ten weeks, than was turned out in the four months of work the year before.

North Dakota has set to us an example of expedition. Minnesota ought to be thankful for the lesson, and perhaps even see in it a basis for shortening our own legislative term to sixty days. Certainly the North Dakota work emphasizes the folly of lengthening the time of the lawmakers at the state capital.

Huerta says Madero tried to incite anti-American feeling in Mexico. Now Huerta has succeeded in uniting anti-Mexican feeling in the United States. So they are about even again.

THAT $2,000 SALARY.

At the meeting Friday night of the West Duluth Commercial club a petition to the city council was adopted asking that an investigation be had of the board of public welfare and the Associated Charities, before any more money shall be appropriated for the use of the former organization. The action, it appears, was taken in view of the proposal coming before the council tonight relative to the use of $2,000 intended as a salary for a civic center manager.

Though the action of the West Duluth club was undoubtedly taken in all good faith, it evidently was done under some misapprehension as to the $2,000 ordinance. That ordinance is not a provision for an addition of $2,000 to the appropriations already made for the work of the board of public welfare, but is an ordinance to modify the conditions governing the expenditure of the $2,000 appropriated by the council some two months ago, and already covered in the city reports. City Attorney Carmichael, since that appropriation was made, has given an opinion to the effect that the employing of the civic center manager would be beyond the powers of the welfare board, without specific granting of authority by the council, and it is to remedy that difficulty that the proposed ordinance was drafted.

Another misapprehension that appears in the petition is that the proposed civic centers would be organized for work along the same lines as the humane society and other similar bodies. The civic center, in fact, is intended to put into practice the principle already approved by the voters of Duluth of making use of the public school buildings as places for neighborhood gatherings, and the duty of the manager of these centers would be to direct that work, so that it might be of the highest possible benefit to the people of the city instead of being in danger of becoming merely perfunctory or valueless in its operation.

If there is any basis for a demand for an investigation of the work of the Associated Charities, board of public welfare or any other city body, that investigation should be made, by all means, and it is certain that the men and women working in and with the organizations would welcome any fair and impartial inquiry into what they have done and are doing.

But it should be borne in mind that the welfare board, in particular, is a comparatively new organization; that it has hardly had time to do more than outline its work and begin to put its plans into operation; and that its task thus far has been one of construction instead of the continuance of work already begun. Before drastic criticism of such an organization is made, fair opportunity should be given to its members to put their plans on an operative basis, and there is nothing to indicate that that is not just what is being accomplished.

PUBLICITY AND THE CABINET.

It was to be expected that President Wilson would take the stand he has taken that the discussions of the cabinet should be made public "as far as possible." He has declared himself the president of all the people, and that his administration is to be in the interests of all the people. He proposes to conceal nothing of the government's plans and purposes; to see that the public affairs are conducted in such a manner that there can be no chicanery or attempt to defeat the common good under cover of secrecy.

How far this policy of publicity can be carried as regards cabinet affairs remains to be seen. There are many matters that come before an executive body that demand temporary concealment. Questions of foreign policy at times involve points the general knowledge of which would defeat the just interests of the nation. At times, also, questions of domestic policy arise that must be viewed in the light of particular information before they can be fully understood, and this information is not always available or in suitable form for presentation to the public.

These are conditions that will confront President Wilson and his advisers, and there is no question that the publicity policy will have to be modified to some extent. President Wilson foresaw that when he added the qualification "as far as possible" to the announcement he made. But as long as the government at Washington keeps faith with the people in matters the public understands, there will be no hesitation in trusting that some governments in matters not so readily understood. At least President Wilson's declaration is an evidence of good faith, and will be received as such.

GARDEN CONTESTS.

Announcement has been made that the West End Commercial club is to hold another garden contest for the children of that part of the city. The contest last year was a huge success, and the club proposes this year to distribute $75 in prizes among the youngsters making the best showing in garden work. Special efforts are to be made this year to instruct the children in their gardening, and both flowers and vegetables will be considered in awarding prizes.

The gardening contest, almost unheard of a few years ago, is taking on bigger proportions every year all over the country, as the value of the plan is becoming more apparent. It is the best means yet found to interest children in learning how to make the soil produce good things to eat, and it is in the broadening of instruction along this line that the lowering of the cost of food in years to come must be found. It is not at all too much to hope that some of the youngsters who enter these contests will find themselves so interested in the work that they will take up agriculture as their life work. And every one of them who does so will be the better prepared to till the soil intelligently and profitably.

The West End Commercial club has taken up a good work. It should be given every encouragement to continue and extend it.

We'll try to stand for most anything just so long as Sir Thomas doesn't insist on calling his new challenger the "Jim Thorpe."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Mr. Knocker of Duluth is a great man. He has lived in Duluth from five to twenty-five years, could never see how Duluth would become a big city—everything is wrong here. It reminds me of the days of long ago when I first came to this country. Germany was the only country, till one day I met my Waterloo. I was asked if anyone had asked me to come to this country? I said no. And I was told politely: "Why don't you go back where you came from?" Do I need to say any more to Mr. Knocker? I lived in Seattle when a population of about 10,000, jumped to about 100,000 in a year. We had there some knockers. Who were they? The fellows that could not make the money. Look around you at the big wholesale houses we have in Duluth. We ought to be proud of them, and every one of them has started, as far as I am told, in a very obscure way. We have all the same chances, Mr. Knocker. And now for Mr. Booster. I want you to understand that I am no knocker. Whenever I don't like Duluth I will leave it the same as I left New York, Chicago, Portland, San Francisco, etc., but there is one thing I don't like in Duluth and that is the phrase "Do it for Duluth." I found people in Duluth are the same as you'll find them all over the world. Do it for yourself. If you can show me a merchant in Duluth who has bought a bill of merchandise of a Duluth house, to do it for Duluth, I'll have his picture taken. That phrase has made a lot of ill-feeling among Duluthians. There were a few who wanted to live up to it, but were disappointed when it came to the many that always used "Do it for Duluth," for he is the man that wants the other man to "Do it for Duluth." In conclusion I want to say you can knock or boost all you please, and in spite of all Duluth will become the city of the Northwest. L. L.

Duluth, March 10.

LAW ENFORCEMENT AND THE MAYOR'S JOB.

Some of the candidates for mayor are very free in making promises of law enforcement if they are elected. These promises are not made in good faith or those making them are not familiar with the new charter. The mayor will have nothing whatever to do with that question unless he should be assigned to the department of public safety, which is not at all probable. The natural place for the mayor is the division of public affairs. The question of law enforcement rests wholly with the commissioner of public safety. The charter makes a court of appeals, as it does each other commissioner, in his particular division. The commission acting together can remove him from that division, if it so desires, but while he is there he and he only is responsible for law enforcement or the lack of it.

In deciding who to vote for the voters should look to the past history of all candidates, leave friendship and all partisan feeling out of it and vote only as one's judgment and conscience dictates and Duluth will make the same success of the commission form of government as has been made wherever it has been adopted. If I am elected commissioner I want it done on the opinion of the voters that I am able to measure up to the job. I don't want anyone to vote for me because he is a friend of mine. I want his vote, if I get it at all, only on his opinion as to my fitness for the place.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I thought the Socialists were opposed to the commission form of government, but I see there are a few of them running for office. I guess they are not so opposed to it but what they would like to become mayor or one of the commissioners. Thinketh I so?" LIONEL C. DE BROWN.

Louisville Courier-Journal: It is estimated that there are 25,000,000 children of school age in the United States but only about 18,000,000 of these children attend school.

Doubtless there are many reasons why 7,000,000 of the children of the United States do not go to school. The writer in the Farm and Fireside believes the great majority of them are out of school because of bad roads. Some figures are presented by this writer which bear out the contention.

In the five good roads states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Ohio and Indiana, where there is an average improved highway mileage of nearly 35 per cent, more than 77 per cent of the children are in school.

In the five bad road states of Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, South Dakota and Georgia, with an average improved highway mileage of 1.5 per cent, less than 60 per cent of the children are attending school.

In the four bad roads states of Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi and North Carolina, with a total population of nearly 8,000,000, there are about 375,000 illiterate men and women, native-born white.

In the four good roads states of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, with a total population upward of 6,000,000, there are but 20,500 illiterate men and women, native-born, white. "In other words," says the writer in Farm and Fireside, "education goes hand in hand with the hard road—as roads improve, illiteracy decreases." Many children, he continues, have no schools to attend because "the roads are so bad there is no profit in farming, no money for schools, no progress, no growth, no ambition."

This is an argument that is worth thinking about in communities where bad roads are retarding progress.

Work of British Labor Exchanges

Consul General John L. Griffiths, London, England, in the Consular Reports.

No more efficient instrument than the government labor exchange perhaps has ever been devised in the United Kingdom to relieve the congestion of labor by securing its more even distribution. The exchange provides a medium of communication between employers and employes, points out the incompetent workingmen, and furnishes to factory and shop men and women both anxious and able to work.

The hostility which was manifested toward the government labor exchanges in their early history has almost entirely disappeared. They are approved where they were at first condemned, because their function was misunderstood, and are now fully established in the public confidence and, what is much more important, in the confidence of the employers and the working people.

On Feb. 1, 1910, which marked the inauguration of the government labor exchanges, some eighty were established in London and throughout the country. In three years they have increased to 400, with more than 1,100 local agents. The applications for employment received at the exchanges in 1912 aggregated 2,324,762, while the number of vacancies notified was 978,437 and the number filled 745,539.

In addition to the work primarily designed for the labor exchanges, further duties have devolved upon them since the passage of the insurance act. Through the labor exchanges and the local agents unemployment benefits are claimed and paid. The unemployment benefits began to accrue upon Jan. 15, 1913, and the first payment was made on Jan. 24, when 12,000 people were paid at the labor exchanges in the London division. On Jan. 8, the first day when applications for benefits might be filed, 62,000 claims were presented at the labor exchanges; in the following week nearly 45,000 presentations took place, and in the succeeding week claims in excess of 30,000. Up to and including Jan. 25, the total number of claims under the recent insurance act for unemployment benefit was 138,222, and they are coming in, it is stated, at the rate of 20,000 to 30,000 a week.

Under the insurance act the unemployed workmen receive payment beginning with the second week, and even after their claims are filed many secure employment. The great majority of those in receipt of unemployment benefit in London, it is stated in the London Times, are engaged in the building trade, painters being specially numerous. A great advantage attaching to payment of benefit through the labor exchanges is that when the unemployed men go to the labor exchanges to get benefit, the exchanges are often in a position to offer them work instead; and benefit is not paid if a man refuses a suitable job.

In addition to the benefit paid out by the exchanges and local agents, benefits are also paid through associations of workmen which make arrangements for the purpose. The Board of Trade has made arrangements with about 100 associations and 5,000 branches. The state benefit is $1.70 a week for a maximum of fifteen weeks in any twelve months, subject to the further rule that no man can have more than one week of benefit for every five contributions paid by him or allowed him.

The right of a man to receive benefit is determined, in the first instance, by the insurance officer. If the claimant is dissatisfied with the decision of this officer, he can appeal to a court of referees, consisting of an employer, workman, and an impartial chairman. There are about eighty of these courts of referees in the country. The representatives of employers and workmen on these courts are drawn from panels. In each district there are about twenty names on the panel. The court meets week by week, a different employer and a different workman sitting each week.

Bad Grammar In Constitution.

Washington Star: An error, so patent as to be termed glaring, has existed in the very first sentence of the Constitution of the United States since its adoption, undetected, as far as can be ascertained, by lawyers or rhetoricians. Strange to say, the error was only exposed by a foreigner applying for citizenship, whose ability to understand this foundation stone of our government was being called into judicial question.

A young German, who, five years ago had taken out his "first papers"—that is, declared his intention to become an American citizen—was recently taking out his "final papers" in a court of the District. One of the essential steps in this procedure is the examination of the applicant by the judge as to his knowledge of the Constitution. The form of the question is, by immemorial custom, as follows:

"Have you read the Constitution of the United States, and, if so, do you understand it?"

In this instance the young German, to the astonishment of the examining judge, replied:

"Yes, your honor, and I think the men who wrote it did not know how to write correct English. The very first sentence is defective."

"What do you mean?" queried the judge, bewildered by this foreign attack upon the bulwark of our liberties.

"Why," replied the German, "the first sentence says: 'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union.' Now, according to the best, or indeed, any authority, the word 'perfect' means something that is by its very nature superlative; it cannot be improved upon. How then could the people of the United States form a more perfect Union? If it was perfect before, they could add nothing to increase its perfection. It might be made more effective or more binding, but certainly not more perfect."

An English View of Bryan.

London Chronicle: Mr. Bryan as an orator was vividly described by George Steevens, who saw him address 10,000 election contest, and was greatly impressed by his dramatic gifts.

"For a moment the square, black figure stood absolutely still," says Mr. Steevens. "Then slowly he reached forth the hand, like St. Paul in the Bible. The din went on unabated. Still very slowly he raised an arm above the head and made passes—one, two, three—in each direction of the crowd. Gradually silence crept over the mass of heads, and then the orator opened his lips. In a voice low but plain, hoarse but very rich, he began. Rain came on and an umbrella held over his head was blown inside out. But the orator crammed a broad felt hat onto his head, turned up his coat collar with a sturdy gesture, and then spread out his arms to his hearers. Once more they cracked their throats with applause."

The First Word Spoken.

Charleston News and Courier: Nobody knows what was the first thing Adam said to Eve, but the chances are she spoke first.

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator John W. Kern relates in Addisonian English the sad tale of the young man out in Indiana who married for money.

The young man did not feel it much of a hardship to marry for money, because the woman in the case impressed him as being good looking. He was destined to have a rude awakening, because her good looks all came from a department store in another city by parcel post. After they had been married a day or so she grew careless about her personal appearance and he saw that scarcely anything about her was real. Her face, that had seemed winsome enough when gayly decorated in color and surmounted with $40 worth of purchased pompadour, looked hollow and parchment-like, with nothing to set it off but the few discouraged strings of hair that went with her. He could scarcely glance at her without wincing. As she sat at her dressing table, taking off things, and looking caved-in and abandoned, she reminded him of nothing so much as an old ruin. He recalled pictures he had seen of gray, deserted, spooky looking buildings.

With these thoughts running through his head, he fell into gloomy reverie, and she flitted into the picture as the nearest human approach to an old, crumbling abbey. Just then she moved one of her arms and—

A bat flew out!

Newspaper men heard a report one afternoon that Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia had got into a hand-to-hand mix-up with another senator in the cloakroom, and that the thing had been hushed up.

"Just one way to find out the truth," suggested one enterprising young journalist. "I'll go and ask Hoke Smith himself. I don't believe he would tell a lie."

"No; the story is entirely untrue," said the Georgia senator when he had heard the report. "If it had been true, there would have been one more detail to be added. And that is that somebody would have been hurt."

Representative Webb of North Carolina, joint author of the Kenyon-Webb bill to keep liquor out of "dry" states, is the first representative to indorse the Wilson administration by buying a bicycle.

He is an enthusiast over all forms of outdoor sports, and likes to take a bat and ball to a vacant lot and "knock up flies."

As one might infer from his work on the Webb bill, Webb does not drink. He smokes cigars, but has always kept away from cigarettes, chewing tobacco and the rum demon. He won't even buy a drink during a campaign.

Senator John K. Shields of Tennessee practices law in Knoxville, but his home is on a big ancestral place, near Bean station, in an adjoining county. The Bean is after one William Bean, who built the first log house in Tennessee, and Shields is proud to write his name on hotel registers with "Bean Sta., Tenn.," after it. He is expected to give "Bean" as his home in the congressional directory.

But there was one trip not long ago on which he lost his nerve and registered Knoxville after his name, day after day. It was his wedding trip. He had not the heart to write down his wife's name, and say to the world, via the hotel register, that she lived in "Bean." Besides, he was afraid she might seriously object to it, and he was loath to have the honeymoon journey spelled by a mere technicality.

On the day they reached Knoxville, at the close of the trip, they went to a hotel, and Mrs. Shields was standing right beside her husband when he started to register. He threw his courage into the high, and wrote down, "Bean Station," watching her out of the tail of his eye.

She just laughed.

The senate was in session one night toward the end of the last congress until the early hours of the morning, and statesmen's wives were calling up to find out if they were really in session or merely making an excuse to stay out late.

About 2 o'clock Senator O'Gorman made a motion to adjourn, but it was lost, notwithstanding that scarcely any of the members could talk for yawning.

At 2:30 Senator Stone arose solemnly and observed:

"One may note from the first premonitory rays of light from the east that ere long 'twill be sunup—another day has dawned. I therefore make a parliamentary inquiry whether it will not now be proper to take up the usual morning business?"

Old Doc Akin was the only man in Washington who purposely missed seeing each and every feature of the inauguration exercises. Doc was a member of congress until noon of March 4. The moment the house adjourned, Doc simply went over to his office in the office building to pack up his effects, and he took the subway lest he might see what was going on outside. While the parade was passing up Pennsylvania avenue he went to the station and caught a train for his home in York state.

"I wouldn't even look at such a lot of silly goings-on," said Doc. "It's all foolishness. If I were made president I would go to the nearest justice of the peace, take my oath and then say: 'Boys, I'm ready for business.'"

The "Suicide Symphony."

Indianapolis News: Frederick Nietzsche agreed with those who found no inspiration in music. Indeed, he regarded music as a nerve poison, and declared that some music—particularly that of Wagner and Tschaikowsky—deranged the minds of many who heard it. Tschaikowsky killed himself after completing his famous "Sixth Symphony," which, as several others have died by their own hands after playing it, has come to be known as the "Suicide Symphony."

Brahma.

If the red slayer think he slays;
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.

Far or forgot to me is near;
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.

They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings;
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn the Brahmin sings.

The strong gods pine for my abode,
And pine in vain the sacred Seven;
But thou, meek lover of the good!
Find me, and turn thy back on heaven.

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats from the State Press.

Doing It for Duluth.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: Has Duluth any wholesale houses? This is a question we presume a great many men throughout the state, especially Northern Minnesota, ask themselves.

You may scan the pages of the Duluth Herald or the Duluth News Tribune daily, if you wish, and you cannot find a directory of Duluth wholesale business. The Minneapolis Journal continually carries a complete directory of the city's wholesale business. The Journal circulates throughout the entire country the same as the Duluth papers, and brings the fact forcibly to the attention of every one of its readers that Minneapolis is a large wholesale center, and invites the country merchant to deal with Minneapolis wholesalers.

Duluth should have and is entitled to the larger portion of the wholesale business throughout Northern Minnesota. In order to get and retain it, the Duluth wholesalers must let the country merchant know that Duluth has as large and well equipped a line of wholesale houses as any other city.

Who Wants to Come?

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: "What about the 'good road' from St. Paul to Duluth," asks the Pine County Pioneer. Brother, who wants to go to either town, no matter how good the road? —Apache, in the Prison Mirror.

Especially when there is a good town, such as Hibbing, to visit.

Warm One Wanted.

Cass Lake Times: Oh, yes, and what about that aged friend about whom our fathers used to hear—the Honorable Vernal Equinox?—Duluth Herald.

The Honorable Vernal isn't due until the twenty-first of March. Curb your patience, and hope the "aged friend" will hand out a warm one. Goodness knows we need it.

St. Cloud Is Friendly.

St. Cloud Times: An article from The Duluth Herald, which refers to an advertisement that appeared recently in the Times, is commended to the serious consideration of our business men and citizens generally. Duluth is St. Cloud's friend—St. Cloud should be the friend of Duluth.

Slightly Exaggerated.

Menahga Journal: A report is current here that Duluth is advertising for qualified judges to conduct their approaching election under the commission form of government. It being feared that all local material will file for an office.

Everybody's in It.

Hill City News: The first city campaign under the commission charter is now on in Duluth and is a hot one. About every politician in the city is out after a job and the way most of the candidates are promising to clean up the city and put the skids under the electric light company makes one think of a bunch of New Year resolutions. The same old city hall crowd is out after the offices, also some others. Must be some kind of a woodchuck in that new charter.

No Chance for St. Paul.

Nymore Independent: St Paul wants to make a second-class port of Duluth, and would include Superior if possible.

Duluth will be a man-size port when St. Paul will be a village compared with the former's size in every respect.

Prefers The Herald.

Cannon Falls Beacon: In many respects Duluth is strictly on the map. She has money, men, energy and brains; she has some splendid business enterprises and above all she has two great dailies. The Beacon's preference of the two is The Herald, which we regard as one of the ablest papers published in the West and has most of them beaten a long way.

Will It Stand Up?

Cass Lake Times: Sometimes even the less skeptical among us get to wondering if there is anything more than alliteration in that stuff about in-like-a-lion-and-out-like-a-lamb. — Duluth Herald.

If there is anything more than alliteration the late "in-like-a-lion" should be an "out-like-a-lamb" so gentle a June zephyr would be a cyclone in comparison.

Punctilious Authors

Tit-Bits: It is surprising how punctilious some authors have been with respect to the smallest detail of their manuscripts. Dickens was a perfect terror of punctuation to drive a poor "comp" out of his wits.

Tennyson, too, was most particular that not a comma should be omitted or misplaced, while his revisions were never finished. Perhaps the greatest terror of the compositor was Thomas Carlyle, for he would cover every square inch of vacant space both in the margin and between the lines with minute additions and emendations—and not once, but a dozen times.

Victor Hugo was equally difficult to please and satisfy. Of one of his famous works he made the printers supply no fewer than eleven successive revised proofs, and the last half dozen were furnished in order to make quite sure that the commas were in their right places.

But perhaps Thomas Campbell, the famous poet who wrote such stirring masterpieces as "Hohenlinden," "The Battle of the Baltic," and "Ye Mariners of England," takes the cake in this respect. He was fastidious to a degree, which fact probably accounts for the small quantity and perfect quality of his literary output. It is said that he once walked six miles to his printers, and six miles back, in order to have a comma changed into a semicolon!

But an equally careful and fastidious literary workman owed a great improvement in the opening line of his most famous poem to a printer. This was Thomas Gray, whose "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard" is probably the best-known poem in the English language.

Its first line reads:

but when Gray sent it to the press his manuscript read:

The thoughtful compositor did not understand the word "tolls" as an intransitive verb, so dropped the comma, thinking the poet had put it in by mistake, and when Gray read the line his sensitive ear at once caught its new, sustained melody, and he adopted the compositor's correction.

Probably the most fastidious living writer is the poet William Watson. His work bears the impress of extreme care, and, like Tennyson, his revision seems never to be done.

Easily Pleased.

A Child's Imagination.

London Chronicle: A novel feature of a concert at Beckstein hall recently was a musical recital of a little child's description of a number of new animals invented by herself.

The author of these quaint beasts—bibberboo, fat-tack, the blue gweeze, the Gott Family, the junket, the lichy-penny, and the jee-jag—is Miss Joan Maude, who, we are told, began to people her nursery with them when a years old, and still does so at the age of 5. We were introduced to them a few months ago in a book called "Behind the Nightlight," but we met them again at the concert, set to music by Mme. Liza Lehmann, and recited by the child's mother, Miss Nancy Price (Mrs. Charles Maude).

The little girl has a fantastic and humorous imagination. She wishes she had not invented the Gott Family because they were unpleasant and kept on collecting relations. They lived under the earth, which was the reason why the nice things, like the flowers and the trees shot out of it.

The junket was a conceited animal, always trying to draw attention to itself by pretending to have a very trouble-some cough. It collected coughs in paper bags. The blue gweeze had one eye on the end of its tail, so that it could see what was going on a long way behind; and fat-tack was not a nicely fat animal, because he was "only fat on his face and his tummy."

But Miss Price and Mme. Lehmann managed, in their respective ways, to interpret the child's fancies successfully, and at the close of the performance little Joan herself came in for applause, flowers and toy animals.

A Yankee and a Royal Kiss.

Tid-Bits: But, truth to tell, kissing has always had its thorns mingled with its roses. Even a royal prince has been known to be sorry for himself after kissing "not wisely but too well," as when the Duke of Florence (later, our fourth William), while traveling in America, stole a kiss from the pretty wife of the barber who had shaved him.

"There, now," he said boastfully, "tell your countrywomen that the son of the King of England has given a royal kiss to a Yankee barber's wife." Scarcely had the words left his lips when the knight of the razor lifted a vigorous foot and kicked him out of the door, with the remark: "There, now, go and tell your countrymen that a Yankee barber has given a royal kick to the son of the King of England."

Use and Abuse of Calomel.

Calomel, or mild chloride of mercury, is one of the most useful drugs the physician has at his command; at the same time, it is a powerful drug, and, when improperly or carelessly administered, is capable of doing much harm.

Fifty years ago, a dose of calomel less than ten grains was thought to be almost ridiculous, and the results from its abuse were widespread. Poisoning by calomel is first manifested in a softening of the gums, often followed by the loss of teeth; and the loosening or the loss of the front teeth in these old days was a common complaint, while death from mercurial poison was by no means uncommon. At the present day the medical profession is pretty well informed as to the dangers, as well as the advantages, of calomel medication, and few cases of poisoning arise from this source. But there is a widespread tendency for people to attempt self-medication, either with or without the assistance of the neighborhood druggist, and calomel is unfortunately looked upon by many as a safe and harmless drug, because it is sold with no poison or caution label attached. For these reasons, cases of poisoning by calomel are by no means uncommon in the practice of the average physician.

Calomel is a purgative and its action is two-fold; the first and principal effect is a thorough clearing of the entire intestinal tract, produced by its irritating effect on the mucous membrane lining of the gut; but, during this process there is a variable amount absorbed, either as the corrosive chloride or other soluble salt or mercury. The part absorbed is carried to the liver in the portal circulation, only to be promptly thrown out with the bile by that organ, and thus it again enters the intestine. There is little or no direct action on the liver itself by calomel, but the increased activity of the upper intestine favors the flow of bile, and in this way relieves the liver of any clogging, which may have been present from an accumulation of waste products. It will be noticed that a small amount of the poisonous salts of mercury may continue to pass from intestine to liver, and back again to the intestine for some time before they are finally eliminated in the feces; and a still smaller amount is sure to enter the general circulation, where it affects all body tissue in different degree. It is to prevent their entrance into the general circulation, as far as possible, that a simple cathartic is usually prescribed to follow calomel medication. The point which I wish to make clear is that calomel is a powerful and dangerous drug, although of the utmost value and service when used only by those who thoroughly understand both the conditions to be met and its action on the various bodily organs. It is not by any means a safe drug for any one to use without minute directions from a competent physician, who is acquainted with the condition which it is to be employed to relieve.

From the old common dosage of 10 or 15 grains, which was frequently given fifty years ago, the average dose prescribed by physicians today has been reduced to one or two grains, and many prefer to give it in one-tenth or one-twentieth grain doses, repeated at frequent intervals, until the desired effect is produced. In this way there are few cases of poisoning from the drug, when administered by the direction of a physician; and the occasional case, due to some unknown susceptibility of the patient, is usually mild in character, and so readily controlled, that no permanent damage is done.

Don't attempt to dose yourself with calomel; for there are many simple purgatives, equally good in the majority of instances, from which there is little or no danger to be guarded against.

I have only spoken of the common use of calomel; that is, its use as a purgative. It is also used in specific treatment at times, and then it is necessary to have it absorbed and enter the general circulation. When used in this way the physician carefully supervises its administering watching for the first symptoms of poisoning, and then reducing the dose. It is also of use in many skin diseases, made up into salves or dusting powders, but these are specially prescribed by the attending physician, and are never likely to do any harm.

Remember that calomel is a powerful drug, but it pays to have it administered by one who understands all about it, as well as the condition for which it is to be used.

Questions and Answers.

Chronic Constipation.

"Reader" writes: Through a long excitement about a year ago I got chronic constipation and am using a tea (Rocky Mountain). But since two weeks am using a drug ordered from a local doctor, with much result, using always less and less. What diet would you prescribe now, without using any medicine? In the morning I take milk (pasteurized) with a teaspoonful of honey.

REPLY.

A full diet of the coarser foods, particularly the coarse vegetables. Meat once a day is sufficient for anyone not doing very hard manual labor. Eat fruit of some sort for breakfast every morning. Brown bread or Marian Harlan's health bread eaten instead of baker's bread for one meal each day will help. Take outdoor exercise of a kind which will bring into play the abdominal and back muscles. Horseback riding is the very best of these, but there are many other pastimes which exercise the muscles mentioned. Sawing wood might be mentioned, but would not prove popular with many people. You are on the right track. Drugs will not cure constipation so that it will stay cured.

Hives.

Mrs. W. G. F. asks: Will you kindly tell me the cause of hives during cold weather? Also the cause of little fine pimples around the mouth and chin all the time? Would you give any general directions for the removal of both?

REPLY.

The most frequent cause is auto-intoxication or food intoxication. You are probably eating more strong foods than you are able to thoroughly "burn up." At the same time, it is possible that there is more constipation. The remedy is to eat less of the stronger foods, more coarse vegetables and fruit; correct constipation through the diet but take one or two initial doses of some good saline cathartic such as Rochelle salts.

Sick Headache.

T. C. B. asks: Please tell me the cause and a remedy for a sick headache and for pimples.

REPLY.

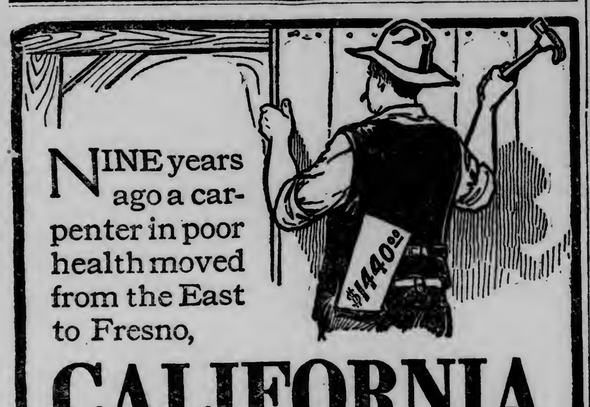
Both conditions frequently arise from food poisoning or constiation. To put it plainly, you are eating more strong food than you are able to thoroughly utilize. Correct any constipation which may be present through diet, not by drugs. Eat more coarse vegetables and lots of fruit; take hearty outdoor exercise and keep the skin clean and healthy by daily warm baths. Should you be troubled with "blackheads," squeeze them out every night after steaming the face in hot water.

Preventing Contagion.

Mrs. C. S. asks: Is there any medicine that could be given to small children to prevent them from taking contagious diseases and do you think asafetida put in small bags and hung around their necks is of any value?

REPLY.

No medicine is required. Keep the children from contact with others suffering from colds or recovering from contagious diseases. Build up their general resisting powers by seeing they have lots of fresh air, sleeping in rooms with an open window, and being outside every day that weather permits. Watch the bowel movements and don't permit even approach to constipation; and see that they have all the plain food they will eat, but avoid pastries and rich puddings. It is almost needless to say there is nothing but ancient superstition, based on disagreeable odor, in favor of the wearing of asafetida bags around the neck. At one time all sorts of amulets were thought to have merit, but educated people have long since "passed up" such superstitions.



NINE years ago a carpenter in poor health moved from the East to Fresno,

CALIFORNIA

He had $1,440 cash, a wife and a child. He bought five acres close to the city, contracting to pay $1,500. He set out 240 peach trees and planted vegetables; the next year he added 120 trees. The first year the garden truck returned $300, the next year $600, and the third year his land gave him $973. In three years he had built a good house and barn and added fowls, cow, pig, etc. He has refused cash offers of $5,500 for his place.

Why not break away, if you are discontented? You can do just as well as the carpenter. Go now!

Many Are Willing to "Save Duluth for $4,000 a Year."

"The Wisdom of Life," was the subject of a sermon by Rev. George R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday, in which he touched on the present municipal campaign. He said in part:

"Today we are on the threshold of a most important municipal campaign. As matters are going, few feel especially elated over the prospects. Again, as in former elections, the office has but rarely sought the man, but three or four score of men are eager for the office. It is somewhat bewildering to see that there are so many men who have the call of God to save Duluth at $4,000 a year. I have the notion that these men are essentially well-meaning and earnest. Every one sincerely believes that he could fill the place. Yet I am not so certain that among the seventy are really five who are properly fitted for their task. It is no easy thing that is required of them. But when we listen to these men or read their platforms we find a self-assurance which is almost pathetic. Most of them do not seem to see any great difficulties to handle the various delicate problems. One of these is the treatment of the social evil. Effective laws are advocated by these aspirants for office, laws which will act 'automatically.' I am much in favor of such laws which will act 'automatically,' but except more positive work be done, the evil we are after may 'disappear, pass in that splendid document there is not at all the note of cock-sureness; there is the large wisdom of one who realizes his own limitations and is ready to accept counsel. President Wilson may fail, will fail to satisfy some of his followers who demand the kingdom of heaven under Democratic rule, but there can be no doubt that, if properly upheld, not by a faction merely but by the whole people, he will make things better, more just and in the interest of all. He stands not for government by party, for a part of the nation, but for government of all, who believe in justice and right in politics."

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed conterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

PRESIDENT AVOIDS GAZE OF CURIOUS

Washington, March 10. — President Wilson made a quick shift in his plans for church-going yesterday, much to the disappointment of hundreds of Washingtonians, but greatly to his own satisfaction and that of Mrs. Wilson.

Instead of being the center of interest for a thousand curious eyes and the focus for a clicking camera battery, they worshiped in a half-filled church in a quiet part of the city, while the crowd, which expected to see them come and go a mile away, wondered how it had all happened.

Announcements in local newspapers that the president would occupy the Lincoln pew in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday brought out a crowd of curious persons who filled that broad thoroughfare from curb to curb for a block and a half, put a damper on traffic and caused the prompt dispatch of ten policemen to keep a pathway clear for the expected guests.

Long before 11 o'clock, the hour set for the beginning of the service, the ushers announced that all seats had been taken and the more persistent who wished to enter, had to be content with standing room on the sidewalk. Many of them waited until noon before they were convinced that the president was not coming.

The few faithful who remained after the services had an opportunity to see the vice president and Mrs. Marshall returning from the New York avenue church to their hotel.

The president, Mrs. Wilson and Miss Eleanor worshiped at the Central Presbyterian church, Third and I streets northwest, fully a mile away from the New York avenue edifice. They started shortly before 11 o'clock in a White House car for New York avenue, but one glimpse of the crowd made the president change his mind. A word to the chauffeur, a quick turn of the past and also conserve all the good that the present offers. It will not reject things simply because they are old and will not accept others simply because they are new. It will not try to upset existing conditions but gradually endeavor to improve them. It will do nothing in blind haste; it will not become sentimental in matters of economics. And happily street and on their way to another church.

A rumor that swept through those waiting at New York avenue sent the photographers flying far out in the northwest section to another Presbyterian church, so that there were only a few persons at the door when the presidential party came out. They immediately were driven back to the White House through streets nearly deserted.

The absence of the familiar aide in full dress and the chugging motorcycles of the two policemen who followed President Taft everywhere on his motor rides, left the White House car unmarked except for the coat of arms of the nation on the door panels.

Vice President Marshall and Mrs. Marshall were recognized by only a few persons on their way to church, but after they were seated before the services began, the word spread that they were present and there was a polite craning of necks to see them.

CAUSE OF DRINK HABIT NOT UNDERSTOOD

The terms "alcoholism" and "drink habit" mean that the drinker of alcoholic liquors is poisoned with an insidious cumulative poison—alcohol—which dominates his whole being and will do so just as long as a trace of alcohol remains in the system. This poison can be easily and quickly eliminated and its effect neutralized by the modern "Neal" Three-Day Treatment, which is a harmless, vegetable remedy, administered internally — no hypodermic injections.

For full particulars regarding the Neal Liquor and Drug Habit Treatment call at the Neal Institute, corner Belknap and West Seventh street, Superior, Wis.; St. Paul Institute, 676 Dayton avenue; Minneapolis Institute, 403 South Seventh street.

BIG AUDIENCE AT FREE CONCERT

Irish Music Will Be Featured at Last of the Series.

By actual count there were 993 persons present at the free concert at the Masonic temple yesterday afternoon, taxing the auditorium to its capacity.

The program was devoted to descriptive and humorous music. Of the organ numbers Grieg's "March of the Dwarfs" and Sinding's "Marche Grotesque" were effective and "Kwang Hsu," an occidentalized arrangement of a Chinese melody was much enjoyed.

The best of the organ numbers was Saint-Saens' descriptive tone-poem, the "Danse Macabre" or "Dance of Death," in which one heard Death tuning up his unearthly fiddle, and tapping on the tombstones at the striking of the midnight hour, the rush and rattle of the skeletons hastening to enjoy the weird frolic, the realistic cock-crow at dawn, and the immediate scurry of the ghastly revellers to return to their graves. All these details were admirably brought out by the organist.

The vocal portion of the program was given by about sixty members of the high school chorus, who gave in excellent style a number of five selections, including Schubert's "Erl King," the sextet from "Lucia," in which numbers they were assisted by A. R. Eurquist and Don G. Gearhart. They also gave "Glory to Isis" from "Aida," a selection from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" and an effective and original "Nonsense Cycle," by A. F. M. Custance, a burlesque on the song-cycle style. The chorus wound up the concert with a vigorous rendition of "Dixie," to the evident delight of the audience. The soloist, Miss Loretto O'Gorman, is one of Duluth's coming artists. She has a rich and powerful mezzo soprano voice under good control; she has temperament, a good stage presence and pleasing manner, and with further training and experience she will doubtless follow in the steps of Rena Smith, Alice Sjoselius and other artists who had their start in the Duluth Central high school under Mr. Custance. She gave an artistic rendition of an English ballad, "Te Be Near You" and as an encore Cadman's pretty song "I Love You," of which the audience insisted upon a repetition. Next Sunday's concert will be the last of the season. Being so near St. Patrick's day, Irish music will be featured, and the soloists will be Mrs. Leo Ball and Charles O. Applehagen.

Likes Northern Minnesota.

Bemidji, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Wagner, formerly of Summitt, S. D., recently purchased the Misner farm, containing eighty acres of land less than a mile north of Farley, and has moved with his family to his new home. Mr. Wagner is an enthusiast about Northern Minnesota.

Cass Lake Class Play.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senior class of the high school will present their class play at the Lyric theater on Thursday evening, March 13, the title of the play being "The Elopement of Ellen." The cast of characters includes the Misses Erma Jondahl, Adeline Tandberg, Pearl Williams, and the Messrs. Paul McGinnis, Ferdinand Christensen, Eugene Hart and Hjalmar Christensen. Between acts several specialties will be introduced, J. H. Nason being on the program for a vocal solo; Miss Christensen for an instrumental solo, and Master Leo Roy will give several recitations.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever. Max Wirth.

SAYS PROHIBITION FACTIONS ARE PULLING AT COW FROM DIFFERENT ENDS WHILE BREWERS MILK HER

"Does not this look like a God-forsaken country when you look the liquor traffic situation squarely in the face?" asked Dr. Antranig Ishkanian, the Armenian temperance lecturer, in an address at the regular Sunday afternoon meeting at the Young Men's Christian association yesterday.

"You are right," said one. "You can't hit them too hard," said another. The auditorium was well filled with an audience of both men and women.

At the close of his address the doctor wanted to know how many believed he had told the truth, and then said that as far as he could see every person in the audience had ra'sed a hand in approval.

Dr. Ishkanian is lecturing under the auspices of the Crookston Ministerial association. He has been organizing local committees in different cities he has visited, the object being to form a state temperance union, which will bring the various anti-liquor forces of the state into harmonious and united action. He intends to make Duluth the headquarters for this body.

The first definite object is to unite the activities of the Minnesota State Prohibition committee and the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league. He declared in his lecture yesterday that these two bodies were counteracting each other's efforts. The Prohibition party had a ticket of its own and the league was working for various candidates of other parties, usually on the Republican ticket.

DR. ANTRANIG ISHKANIAN.

Forces Divided.

"These two forces," said the doctor, "are pulling in opposite directions. One is pulling the cow by the horns and the other is pulling her by the tail, while the liquor interests milk her."

The speaker said that many good men would not vote the Prohibition ticket because they believed that it had no chance of winning and they did not wish to "throw their votes away."

"Pilate did not want to throw his vote away," said the doctor, "so he sacrificed Christ because he did not want to lose his office as governor of Palestine. We have modern Pilates who are afraid to throw their votes away when they feel that their candidate is going to be sacrificed on election day and who reject Lincoln's principle, 'I am not bound to win but I am bound to be true.' I think Governor Eberhart has taken the part of Pilate.

"Many good men, elected on corrupt party tickets, have been corrupted. Many good men have been elected to the state legislature on the ticket of brewery-controlled parties, and voted with the brewery interests, because they were on the council of the ungodly political party tickets; hence they were consistent with their parties.

"The vote-for-a-good-man-never-mind-his-party method has been worked by various organizations for seventy years and has been a failure. Twenty-one states have had prohibition by that method. Today we have only eight left. New Hampshire Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Alabama, Ohio and others to the number of sixteen states all lost prohibition, because the people had voted for a dry law and gone home singing the doxology but had placed a wet party in power, which soaked the dry law, and they lost more dry territory than they had gained.

"The speaker said this country had 5,000,000 church votes that could quickly wipe out the liquor traffic if they but stood together.

He declared that against every missionary that this country was sending to Turkey there was a shipment to Turkey of 12,000 barrels of American beer and whisky.

TAX COMMISSION MEASURES THE COST OF GOVERNMENT

Publishes Detailed Statement of the Investigation It Conducted.

Denser the Population, the Greater the Burden on Taxpayers.

Because, it is declared, an investigation of the cost of government in Minnesota is especially relevant to current political and social events, in view of the high cost of living and the disposition to seek explanation in excessive taxation rather than in the domain of private industry, a detailed statement has been prepared by the state tax commission.

The prospectus issued by the commission which follows is the result of the continuation, on a more extended scale, of the investigation begun in 1910 and committed to the direction of Dr. E. V. Robinson, profesor ecomics at the university.

The prospectus in part says:

"In order to get at the facts, schedules were sent to all counties and all incorporated places in the state; also to all school districts and independent boards in the 143 municipalities which had more than 1,000 population in 1910. There were thus about 1,000 governmental units and offices from which returns are secured.

"The tables give both receipts and expenditures. The cost of government, however, is measured by the receipts from taxes, licenses, fees and fines, which are collected by compulsion rather than by the total expenditures, which contain money received for rentals, sales and other purely commercial transactions. Only in the case of counties which have trifling commercial receipts aside from special assessments are expenditures accepted as measuring the cost of government to taxpayers.

Cost of Local Government.

"The townships in 1911 cost $2,749,-978.16. All school districts cost the local taxpayers, in addition to state and county grants, $10,355,688.64; and all municipalities, exclusive of the schools, cost the local taxpayers $13,-624,635.94. The total cost of local government to local taxpayers, exclusive of sums contributed by the state and the counties, was thus $26,760,505.14. Such contributions by the state and the counties amounted to $4,342,148.39 additional. Cities and villages also had commercial revenues, including receipts from municipal industries such as water and light plants, amounting approximately to $6,200,000, while their receipts from loans were $9,300,000. The total receipts of local units of government from all sources were substantially $47,500,000.

"Measured by the total true valuation and the total population of the cost of local government to local taxpayers was as follows:

"First—For each $10,000 of true valuation, $7.37 for townships, $27.83 for schools, $36.51 for cities and villages, making a total of $71.71.

"Second—For each person in Minnesota, $1.30 for townships, $4.93 for schools, $6.47 for cities and villages, or $12.70 for all local units.

Cost of County Government.

"The eighty-six counties in Minnesota spent, aside from payments to other civil units, $9,200,000. Deducting payments for ditches and other special assessment work amounting to $2,100,-000, for which the county acts merely as agent of the land owners, the disbursements for county purposes appear as $7,200,000. Of this sum, $300,000 came from commercial receipts and $1,100,000 from loans, leaving $5,800,000 to be raised by taxation.

"This sum, representing the cost of county government to county taxpayers, was equivalent, on the average, to $15.69 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $2,78 per capita. The cost for current expenses and interest, exclusive of permanent improvements, was $14.11 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $2.50 per capita. The cost for maintenance and interest by counties ranged from $7.75 in Faribault county to $49.03 in Mahnomen county on each $10,000 of true valuation in the county. In general, the higher costs are found in the newer northern counties.

Cost of State Government.

"The general property tax for state purposes yielded in 1911, $3,381,995.66; corporation and other special taxes, $5,285,810.30; licenses, fees and fines, $64,544.31, the total burden on the taxpayers being thus $9,315,350.29. This sum amounts to $24.96 on each $10,000 of true valuation in the state, or $4.42 per capita. In addition, Minnesota received approximately $6,500,000 from other sources, chiefly United States grants, commercial income from state lands, forests, minerals, the twine plant at the prison, and invested funds. These sums were in no sense taken from the taxpayers and therefore should not be included in the cost of government borne by the public.

"The total expenditures of the state in 1911 aggregated $16,600,000, including $752,740.42 taken from cash on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year. This total, however, includes the $6,500,000 received from sources other than taxation, and therefore cannot be used to measure the cost of state government to the taxpayers, as has been done in various sensational statements. The expenditures at cost of taxpayers, after offsetting commercial receipts against corresponding payments, comprised approximately $318,000 for the legislature, $276,000 for the courts, $1,523,000 for all branches of administration, $4,109,039.29 (after deducting surplus receipts from commercial sources) for education, $690,000 for penal institutions, $1,052,000 for care of the insane, and various sums for other purposes, bringing the total payments at public expense up to $10,068,-080.71. Of this sum, it will be noted that $1,522,940.24, or a trifle over 15 per cent, was spent for all branches of administration.

Cost of Federal Government.

"The total Federal receipts from taxes, licenses, fees, fines and penalties in 1911 were $654,807,717.72. The shares of this attributable to Minnesota, according to the 1910 census (2.257 per cent) amounted to $14,800,000. Using the estimated population of Minnesota in 1911 (2,107,042), the cost of the Federal government to the people of Minnesota is found to be $7.01 per capita. This is exclusive of whatever amounts were paid by consumers directly to domestic producers of protected commodities.

Cost of All Grades of Government.

"The average per capita cost of government in 1911 was thus $12.70 for local government, $2.78 for county government, $4.42 for state government and $7.01 for the Federal government, making a total for all grades of $26.91.

"If, however, taxes paid by corporations to the state board be excluded, in order to ascertain the burden borne by the average citizen who merely owns real and personal property, the result is quite different. A family of five, whose head owned real property worth $2,000 and personal property worth $1,000, assessed and taxed at the average rates prevailing in the state in 1911, paid taxes as follows: For local government, $24.41; for county government, $6.08; for state government, $4.59; for Federal government, $35.05; making a total for all grades of government of $70.13.

"The $4.59 paid for the state government was distributed to various funds as follows: State school tax, $1.18; road and bridge, 30 cents, university, 27 cents; university campus, 18 cents; prison building fund, 30 cents; soldiers' relief, 12 cents, and state revenue fund, $2.24.

"The $35.05 paid to the Federal government was spent as follows: For army, navy and foreign affairs, $12.91; pensions, $8.87; public works, $1.14; congress, president and administration in general, $3.19; debt and interest, $2.04; other purposes, $3.90.

"The cost of city government, including schools, to the local taxpayers, as measured by receipts from taxes, licenses, fees and fines, was $101.02 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $17.21 per capita, in Minneapolis; $10.16 per $10,-000 of true valuation, or $14.90 per capita, in St. Paul, and $112.68 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $19.30 per capita in Duluth. On the side of payments, maintenance charges and interest, which constitute the expenditures for current government, varied inversely with size, being $107.49 in Minneapolis, $123.57 in St. Paul and $124.12 in Duluth, on each $10,000 of true valuation. Maintenance charges for health and sanitation, on the other hand, varied directly with the size of the city, being $9.62 for Minneapolis, $8.86 for St. Paul and $4.63 for Duluth, on each $10,000 of true valuation. This fact testifies to the effect of urban congestion on health problems.

"The true tax rate for municipal and school purposes (based on true in place of assesesd valuations) were 9.62 mills in Minneapolis, 9.02 mills in St. Paul and 9.11 mills in Duluth. These are exclusive of special assessments.

"In order to compare cities in Minnesota with others of similar size, it is necessary to use the per capita basis. According to the recent census bulletin on cities the cost of government in 1910, measured by receipts from local taxes, licenses, fees and fines, was $18.13 per capita in Minneapolis against an average of $23.85 for all cities over 300,000 population. The corresponding figure in St. Paul was $14.84, against an average of $14.70 for all cities between 100,000 and 300,000 population; and in Duluth it was $18.16, against an average of $13 for all cities between 50,000 and 100,000 population. Duluth considerably exceeds the average of the group and perhaps in part for this reason has a higher per capita cost.

"Cost of government increases as the city grows larger, when measured by the population, being on the average in 1911, $11.27 per capita in class 4, $11.43 in class 3, $12.01 in class 2, and $16.65 in class 1. The result is in harmony with the general tendency revealed by the census figures for all cities over 30,000 population. The same thing is true of the per cent of assessed to true valuation, which averaged in 1911, $20.17 in class 4, $20.92 in class 3, $32.79 in class 2, and $38.77 in class 1.

"On the other hand, the average true valuation per capita shows a much more rapid increase, rising from $529.79 in class 4 and $853.50 in class 3, to $945.26 in class 2 and $1,553.99 in class 1. As a result, the true tax rate for municipal and school purposes tends to fall as the city grows, the average being 10.40 mills in class 4, 9.66 mills in class 3, 10.38 mills in class 2, and 9.36 mills in class 1.

"These facts suggest that the relatively decreasing burden of government with increase of size constitutes an economic advantage which tends constantly to make the great city greater still. At all events, there is no reason to assume that increasing cost of government will set up a barrier to the continued congestion of population in urban centers.

"On the average, in 1911, the receipts from public service enterprises carried on by municipalities did not meet more than half the payments on their account; the deficit being paid out of taxes and loans. The average per cent of public service receipts to payments varied directly with size, being least in class 4 and largest in class 1.

"The public debt of all municipalities created during the year 1911 was $9-300,000, while the local taxpayers contributed $26,700,000. In some cases receipts from loans exceeded receipts from taxes. Indeed, not a few municipalities are going every year deeper into debt by issuing bonds to pay current expenses, or by piling up constantly larger masses of unpaid warrants, without the public having any means of learning the true situation. This is clearly the road to financial disaster.

Conclusion.

"The advance of civilization means the multiplication of wants, collective as well as individual. As a result, modern states and cities are assuming more and more extended functions. In these circumstances, it has become a vital matter to know what the people get for their money. Efficiency in public business presupposes an active and intelligent public opinion; and such an opinion must rest upon a simple, scientific and uniform system of public accounts, which alone can enable the public to compare and to measure the efficiency with which public business is conducted. The most indispensable thing in every democracy is that the facts as to public affairs shall be known to all the people.

"As a possible means toward a system of uniform public accounts, the appointment of a committee is suggested to consider the subject and report to the next legislature."

ARRESTED FOR ROBBING WIDOW

Joseph J. Whealer, 32 years old, a laborer, was arrested Saturday afternoon as he was walking into Duluth on the D. & I. R. tracks for having robbed Mrs. Ida Barton of $11.25 and a watch.

Mrs. Barton is a widow who supports herself and four small children by taking in washing and the money represented savings gathered by self-denial and hard work.

At headquarters Wheeler admitted that he had prowled about the home of Mrs. Barton at Knife River during the temporary absence of the family. He obtained the money from a satchel which he stole and removed the watch from a trunk which he opened. He started out for Duluth on foot. Shortly after he left the money and watch were missed and a description of the man was telephoned to this city. Mounted Patrolman Nels Setterquist was detailed to watch for him and he met him on the railroad coming into the city.

Sheriff Nelson of Two Harbors reached Duluth yesterday and returned with the prisoner, who will be arraigned there on the larceny charge, the theft having been committed in Lake county.

IMMIGRANTS TAKEN FROM WRECKED SHIP

The Steamer Lugano Goes Ashore on Reef Off Florida Coast.

Key West, Fla., March 10.—One hundred and sixteen passengers, all immigrants bound from Spain to Cuba with the exception of two first-class passengers, were taken off the British steamer Lugano, ashore on the Ajax reef off the Florida coast, by the tug Rescue yesterday afternoon.

Transfer of the passengers from the ill-fated Lugano was effected in two hours, small boats being used. Of the passengers rescued, 12 were women, 15 children and the remaining 89 men.

It was 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning when the Lugano suddenly struck the reef. Capt. Penwill realized that the position of the vessel was serious, but distress rockets and wireless calls remained unanswered for hours.

Finally the message was picked up by the United States wireless station here. At the same time it was intercepted by the tug Rescue, bound for this port. The latter vessel immediately set out for the Lugano and had succeeded in taking off her passengers before additional tugs sent from here arrived at the scene.

Capt. Penwill wired officials of the Lloyd line, to which the Lugano belonged, notifying them of the accident, and asking that aid be sent at once in an effort to save the ship. When the tug Rescue left the ship she had eighteen feet of water in her first hold. Complete explanation of the accident to the British steamer is not given.

Remarkable Catarrh Cure

"Nine-tenths of humanity suffer with catarrh but do not know what catarrh is," said an expert doctor, a specialist in blood analysis. It is treated locally because nature tries to drive it out of the system. But nature must have help. Nasal catarrh is merely an outlet, and it is folly to expect a cure by inhalants or local applications. If a stream is polluted at its source it is ridiculous to waste time in purification at its mouth.

By a long series of elaborate experiments at the Swift Laboratory it is definitely known that catarrh can be cured by the simple process of inoculating the blood with antidotal remedies that stop inflammatory conditions throughout the mucous linings of all the organs of the body. This is done with the famous Swift's Sure Specific, or as it is widely known, S. S. S. It is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infests the entire system. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 per bottle. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils and all scrofulous conditions. For special advice on any blod disease write in confidence to The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not delay to get a bottle of S. S. S. at your druggists.

BIG AUDIENCE AT FREE CONCERT

Irish Music Will Be Featured at Last of the Series.

By actual count there were 553 persons present at the free concert at the Masonic temple yesterday afternoon, taxing the auditorium to its capacity.

The program was devoted to descriptive and humorous music. Of the organ numbers Grieg's "March of the Dwarfs" and Shelling's "Marche Grotesque" were effective and "Kwang Beh," an orchestral arrangement of a Chinese melody was much enjoyed.

The best of the organ numbers was Saint-Saens' descriptive tone-poem, the "Danse Macabre" or "Dance of Death," in which one heard death tuning up his unearthly fiddle, and tapping on the tombstones at the striking of the midnight hour, the rush and rattle of the skeletons hastening to enjoy the weird frolic, the realistic cock-crow at dawn, and the immediate scurry of the ghastly revellers to return to their graves. All these details were admirably brought out by the organist.

The vocal portion of the program was given by about sixty members of the high school chorus, who gave in excellent style a number of five selections, including Schubert's "Erl King," the sextet from "Lucia," in which numbers they were assisted by A. R. Burbers and Don G. Gearhart. They also gave "Glory to Isis" from "Aida," a selection from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" and an effective and original "Nonsense Cycle," by A. F. M. Custance, a burlesque on the song-cycle style. The chorus wound up the concert with a vigorous rendition of "Lixie," to the evident delight of the audience. The soloist, Miss Loretto O'Gorman, is one of Duluth's coming artists. She has a rich and powerful mezzo soprano voice under good control; she has temperament, a good stage presence and pleasing manner, and with further training and experience she will doubtless follow in the steps of Rena Smith, Alice Sjoselius and other artists who had their start in the Duluth Central high school under Mr. Custance. She gave an artistic rendition of an English ballad, "To Be Near You," and as an encore Cadman's pretty song "I Love You," of which the audience insisted upon a repetition. Next Sunday's concert will be the last of the season. Being so near St. Patrick's day, Irish music will be featured, and the soloists will be Mrs. Leo Ball and Charles O. Applehagen.

Likes Northern Minnesota.

Bemidji, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Wagner, formerly of Sumnitt, S. D., recently purchased the Misner farm, containing eighty acres of land less than a mile north of Farley, and has moved with his family to his new home. Mr. Wagner is an enthusiast about Northern Minnesota.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever. SAYS PROHIBITION FACTIONS ARE PULLING AT COW FROM DIFFERENT ENDS WHILE BREWERS MILK HER

"Does not this look like a God-forsaken country when you look the liquor traffic situation squarely in the face?" asked Dr. Antranig Ishkanian, the Armenian temperance lecturer, in an address at the regular Sunday afternoon meeting at the Young Men's Christian association yesterday.

"You are right," said one. "You can't hit them too hard," said another. The auditorium was well filled with an audience of both men and women.

At the close of his address the doctor wanted to know how many believed he had told the truth, and then said that as far as he could see every person in the audience had raised a hand in approval.

Dr. Ishkanian is lecturing under the auspices of the Crookston Ministerial association. He has been organizing local committees in different cities he has visited, the object being to form a state temperance union, which will bring the various anti-liquor forces of the state into harmonious and united action. He intends to make Duluth the headquarters for this body.

The first definite object is to unite the activities of the Minnesota State Prohibition committee and the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league. He declared in his lecture yesterday that these two bodies were counteracting each other's efforts. The Prohibition party had a ticket of its own and the league was working for various candidates of other parties, usually on the Republican ticket.

Forces Divided.

The speaker said that many good men would not vote the Prohibition ticket because they believed that it had no chance of winning and they did not wish to "throw their votes away."

"Pilate did not want to throw his vote away," said the doctor, "so he sacrificed Christ because he did not want to lose his office as governor of Palestine. We have modern Pilates who are afraid to throw their votes away when they feel that their candidate is going to be sacrificed on election day and who reject Lincoln's principle, 'I am not bound to win but I am bound to be true.' I think Governor Eberhart has taken the part of Pilate.

"Many good men, elected on corrupt party tickets, have been corrupted. Many good men have been elected to the state legislature on the ticket of brewery-controlled parties, and voted with the brewery interests, because they were on the control of the unholly political party tickets; hence they were consistent with their parties.

"The vote-for-a-good-man-never-mind-his-party method has been worked by various organizations for seventy years and has been a failure. Twenty-one states have had prohibition by that method. Today we have only eight left. New Hampshire Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Alabama, Ohio and others to the number of sixteen states all lost prohibition, because the people had voted for a dry law and gone home singing the doxology but had placed a wet party in power, which soaked the dry law, and they lost more dry territory than they had gained."

The speaker said this country had 5,000,000 church votes that could quickly wipe out the liquor traffic if they but stood together.

He declared that against every missionary that this country was sending to Turkey there was a shipment to Turkey of 12,000 barrels of American beer and whisky.

TAX COMMISSION MEASURES THE COST OF GOVERNMENT

Publishes Detailed Statement of the Investigation It Conducted.

Denser the Population, the Greater the Burden on Taxpayers.

Because, it is declared, an investigation of the cost of government in Minnesota is especially relevant to current political and social events, in view of the high cost of living and the disposition to seek explanation in excessive taxation rather than in the domain of private industry, a detailed statement has been prepared by the state tax commission.

The prospectus issued by the commission which follows is the result of the continuation, on a more extended scale, of the investigation begun in 1910 and committed to the direction of Dr. E. V. Robinson, professor economics at the university.

The prospectus in part says:

"In order to get at the facts, schedules were sent to all counties and all incorporated places in the state; also boards in the 143 municipalities which had more than 1,000 population in 1910. There were thus about 1,000 governmental units and offices from which returns are secured.

"The tables give both receipts and expenditures. The cost of government, however, is measured by the receipts from taxes, licenses, fees and fines, which are collected by compulsion rather than by the total expenditures, which contain money received for rentals, sales and other purely commercial transactions. Only in the case of counties which have trifling commercial receipts aside from special assessments are expenditures accepted as measuring the cost of government to taxpayers.

"The townships in 1911 cost $2,749,-978.16. All school districts cost the local taxpayers, in addition to state and county grants, $10,285,688.64; and all municipalities, exclusive of the schools, cost the local taxpayers $13,-654,658.64. The total cost of local government to local taxpayers, exclusive of sums contributed by the state and the counties, was thus $26,760,805.14. Such contributions by the state and the counties amounted to $4,342,148.39 additional. Cities and villages also had commercial revenues, including receipts from municipal industries such as water and light plants, amounting approximately to $6,200,000, while their receipts from loans were $9,300,000. The total receipts of local units of government from all sources were substantially $47,500,000.

"Measured by the total true valuation and the total population of the cost of local government to local taxpayers was as follows:

"First—For each $10,000 of true valuation, $7.37 for townships, $27.82 for schools, $26.51 for cities and villages, making a total of $71.71.

"Second—For each person in Minnesota, $1.30 for townships, $4.82 for schools, $6.47 for cities and villages, or $12.70 for all local units.

Cost of County Government.

"The eighty-six counties in Minnesota spent, aside from payments to other civil units, $8,200,000. Deducting payments for ditches and other special assessment work amounting to $2,100,-000, for which the county acts merely as agent of the land owners, the disbursements for county purposes appear as $7,200,000. Of this sum, $300,000 came from commercial receipts and $1,100,000 from loans, leaving $5,800,000 to be raised by taxation.

"This sum, representing the cost of county government to county taxpayers, was equivalent, on the average, to $15.69 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $2.78 per capita. The cost for current expenses and interest, exclusive of permanent improvements, was $14.11 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $2.50 per capita. The cost for maintenance and interest by counties ranged from $7.75 in Faribault county to $19.03 in Mahnomen county on each $10,000 of true valuation in the county. In general, the higher costs are found in the newer northern counties.

Cost of State Government.

"The general property tax for state purposes yielded in 1911, $2,381,995.66; corporation and other special taxes, $5,285,810.20; licenses, fees and fines, $64,544.31, the total burden on the taxpayers being thus $9,315,350.22. This sum amounts to $24.96 on each $10,000 of true valuation in the state, or $4.42 per capita. In addition, Minnesota received approximately $6,500,000 from other sources, chiefly United States grants, commercial income from state lands, forests, minerals, the twine plant at the prison, and invested funds. These sums were in no sense taken from the taxpayers and therefore should not be included in the cost of government borne by the public.

"The total expenditures of the state in 1911 aggregated $16,800,000, including $7,52,740.42 taken from cash on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year. This total, however, includes the $6,500,000 received from sources other than taxation, and therefore cannot be used to measure the cost of state government to the taxpayers, as has been done in various sensational statements. The expenditures at cost of taxpayers, after offsetting commercial receipts against corresponding payments, comprised approximately $218,000 for the legislature, $276,000 for the courts, $1,523,000 for all branches of administration, $4,109,039.29 (after deducting surplus receipts from commercial sources) for education, $620,000 for penal institutions, $1,052,000 for care of the insane, and various sums for other purposes, bringing the total payments at public expense up to $10,068,-090.71. Of this sum, it will be noted that $1,522,840.24, or a trifle over 15 per cent, was spent for all branches of administration.

Cost of Federal Government.

"The total Federal receipts from taxes, licenses, fees, fines and penalties in 1911 were $654,997,717.72. The shares of this attributable to Minnesota, according to the 1910 census (2.257 per cent) amounted to $14,800,000. Using the estimated population of Minnesota in 1911 (2,107,042), the cost of the Federal government to the people of Minnesota is found to be $7.01 per capita. This is exclusive of whatever amounts were paid by consumers directly to domestic producers of protected commodities.

Cost of All Grades of Government.

"The average per capita cost of government in 1911 was thus $12.70 for local government, $2.78 for county government, $4.42 for state government and $7.01 for the Federal government, making a total for all grades of $26.91.

"If, however, taxes paid by corporations to the state board be excluded, in order to ascertain the burden borne by the average citizen who merely owns real and personal property, the result is quite different. A family of five, whose head owned real property worth $3,000 and personal property worth $1,000, assessed and taxed at the average rates prevailing in the state in 1911, paid taxes as follows: For local government, $24.41; for county government, $6.05; for state government, $4.56; for Federal government, $35.05; making a total for all grades of government of $70.13.

"The $4.56 paid for the state government was distributed to various funds as follows: State school tax, $1.18; road and bridge, 30 cents, university, 27 cents; university, campus, 18 cents; prison building fund, 20 cents; soldiers' relief, 12 cents, and state revenue fund, $2.24.

"The $35.05 paid to the Federal government was spent as follows: For army, navy and foreign affairs, $12.91; pensions, $8.87; public works, $4.14; congress, president and administration in general, $3.19; debt and interest, $2.04; other purposes, $3.90.

"The cost of city government, including schools, to the local taxpayers, as measured by receipts from taxes, licenses, fees and fines, was $101.02 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $17.21 per capita, in Minneapolis; $10.16 per $10,-000 of true valuation, or $14.90 per capita, in St. Paul, and $112.68 per $10,000 of true valuation, or $19.30 per capita in Duluth. On the side of payments, maintenance charges and interest, which constitute the expenditures for current government, varied inversely with size, being $107.49 in Minneapolis, $123.57 in St. Paul and $124.12 in Duluth, on each $10,000 of true valuation. Maintenance charges for health and sanitation, on the other hand, varied directly with the size of the city, being $9.62 for Minneapolis, $8.56 for St. Paul and $4.63 for Duluth, on each $10,000 of true valuation. This fact testifies to the effect of urban congestion on health problems.

"The true tax rate for municipal and school purposes (based on true in place of assessed valuations) were 9.62 mills in Minneapolis, 9.02 mills in St. Paul and 9.11 mills in Duluth. These are exclusive of special assessments.

"In order to compare cities in Minnesota with others of similar size, it is necessary to use the per capita basis. According to the recent census bulletin on cities the cost of government in 1910, measured by receipts from local taxes, licenses, fees and fines, was $18.13 per capita in Minneapolis against an average of $23.85 for all cities over 300,000 population. The corresponding figure in St. Paul was $14.84, against an average of $14.70 for all cities between 100,000 and 300,000 population; and in Duluth it was $18.16, against an average of $13 for all cities between 50,000 and 100,000 population. Duluth considerably exceeds the average of the group and perhaps in part for this reason has a higher per capita cost.

"Cost of government increases as the city grows larger, when measured by the population, being on the average in 1911, $11.27 per capita in class 4, $11.42 in class 3, $12.61 in class 2, and $16.53 in class 1. The result is in harmony with the general tendency revealed by the census figures for all cities over 30,000 population. The same thing is true of the per cent of assessed to true valuation, which averaged in 1911, $56.17 in class 4, $30.92 in class 3, $32.79 in class 2, and $38.77 in class 1.

"On the other hand, the average true valuation per capita shows a much more rapid increase, rising from $329.79 in class 4 and $553.50 in class 3, to $945.26 in class 2 and $1,553.99 in class 1. As a result, the true tax rate for municipal and school purposes tends to fall as the city grows, the average being 10.40 mills in class 4, 9.66 mills in class 3, 10.38 mills in class 2, and 9.26 mills in class 1.

"These facts suggest that the relatively decreasing burden of government with increase of size constitutes an economic advantage which tends constantly to make the great city greater still. At all events, there is no reason to assume that increasing cost of government will set up a barrier to the continued congestion of population in urban centers.

"On the average, in 1911, the receipts from public service enterprises carried on by municipalities did not meet more than half the payments on their account; the deficit being paid out of taxes and loans. The average per cent of public service receipts to payments varied directly with size, being least in class 4 and largest in class 1.

"The public debt of all municipalities created during the year 1911 was $9,-200,000, while the local taxpayers contributed $26,700,000. In some cases receipts from loans exceeded receipts from taxes. Indeed, not a few municipalities are going every year deeper into debt by issuing bonds to pay current expenses, or by piling up constantly larger masses of unpaid warrants, without the public having any means of learning the true situation. This is clearly the road to financial disaster.

Conclusion.

"The advance of civilization means the multiplication of wants, collective as well as individual. As a result, modern states and cities are assuming more and more extended functions. In these circumstances, it has become a vital matter to know what the people get for their money. Efficiency in public business presupposes an active and intelligent public opinion; and such an opinion must rest upon a simple, scientific and uniform system of public accounts, which alone can enable the public to compare and to measure the efficiency with which public business is conducted. The most indispensable thing in every democracy is that the facts as to public affairs shall be known to all the people.

"As a possible means toward a system of uniform public accounts, the appointment of a committee is suggested to consider the subject and report to the next legislature."

ARRESTED FOR ROBBING WIDOW

Joseph J. Whealer, 32 years old, a laborer, was arrested Saturday afternoon as he was walking into Duluth on the D. & I. R. tracks for having robbed Mrs. Ida Barton of $21.25 and a watch.

Mrs. Barton is a widow who supports herself and four small children by taking in washing and the money represented savings gathered by self-denial and hard work.

At headquarters Wheeler admitted that he had prowled about the home of Mrs. Barton at Knife River during the temporary absence of the family. He obtained the money from a satchel which he stole and removed the watch from a trunk which he opened. He started out for Duluth on foot. Shortly after he left the money and watch were missed and a description of the man was telephoned to this city. Mounted Patrolman Nels Setterquist was detailed to watch for him and he met him on the railroad coming into the city.

Sheriff Nelson of Two Harbors reached Duluth yesterday and returned with the prisoner, who will be arraigned there on the larceny charge, the theft having been committed in Lake county.

IMMIGRANTS TAKEN FROM WRECKED SHIP

The Steamer Lugano Goes Ashore on Reef Off Florida Coast.

Key West, Fla., March 10.—One hundred and sixteen passengers, all immigrants bound from Spain to Cuba with the exception of two first-class passengers, were taken off the British steamer Lugano, ashore on the Ajax reef off the Florida coast, by the tug Rescue yesterday afternoon.

Transfer of the passengers from the ill-fated Lugano was effected in two hours, small boats being used. Of the passengers rescued, 12 were women, 15 children and the remaining 89 men.

It was 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning when the Lugano suddenly struck the reef. Capt. Penwill realized that the position of the vessel was serious, but distress rocks and wireless calls remained unanswered for hours.

Finally the message was picked up by the United States wireless station here. At the same time it was intercepted by the tug Rescue, bound for this port. The latter vessel immediately set out for the Lugano and had succeeded in taking off her passengers before additional tugs sent from here arrived at the scene.

Capt. Penwill wired officials of the Lloyd line, to which the Lugano belonged, notifying them of the accident, and asking that aid be sent at once in an effort to save the ship. When the tug Rescue left the ship she had eighteen feet of water in her first hold. Complete explanation of the accident to the British steamer is not given.

Remarkable Catarrh Cure

"Nine-tenths of humanity suffer with catarrh but do not know what catarrh is," said an expert doctor, a specialist in blood analysis. It is treated locally because nature tries to drive it out of the system. But nature must have help. Nasal catarrh is merely an outlet, and it is folly to expect a cure by inhalants or local applications. If a stream is polluted at its source it is ridiculous to waste time in purification at its mouth.

By a long series of elaborate experiments at the Swift Laboratory it is definitely known that catarrh can be cured by the simple process of inoculating the blood with antidotal remedies that stop inflammatory conditions throughout the mucous linings of all the organs of the body. This is done with the famous Swift's Sure Specific, or as it is widely known, S. S. S. It is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, comes through all the veins and arteries, enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completly catarrh often infests the entire system. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 per bottle. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils and all scrofulous conditions. For special advice on any blod disease write in confidence to The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not delay to get a bottle of S. S. S. at your druggists.

PUTS BILLS INTO STOVE

"No Use of Having Any Money," She Tells the Detectives.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—When Claude Parlo, 16-year-old delivery boy, delivered a $3 bill of groceries at the residence of John Patros, 315 River road, Mrs. Patros, who received the groceries, handed him $71 in $1 bills and insisted that he keep them.

When three detectives, to whom Claude Parlo had told the story of the strange gift, went to the Patros residence to investigate they found Mrs. Patros sitting in front of a coal stove calmly feeding $1 bills into the fire. Her husband sat beside her and stolically watched the money go up in smoke.

"The world is coming to an end March 19," said Mrs. Patros as she peeled off the greenbacks and put them on the coals. "There is no use in having any money."

The case is one of the most unusual in the history of the police department, according to Night Captain James Merrick, who sent the detectives to the Patros home and who decided that there was nothing the police could do to prevent the woman from burning the money. Last night the $71 given the delivery boy reposed in the safe at police headquarters and the night captain said he would report the case to the humane society today.

It was 6 p. m. when Claude Parlo delivered the groceries and received the $71. He at first refused to take the money and he says that Mrs. Patros then shoved the bills in his pocket and told him to leave the house. He reported to his employer and they went to the police department and told the story of the woman who was giving away small fortunes.

Detectives Visit House.

Capt. Merrick sent Detectives Frank Regan, Fritz Ohman and Thomas P. Gleason to the Patros home. When they arrived they were cordially greeted, but Mrs. Patros, who was busy at the stove, did not rise. They say that she was placing one bill after another on the fire. The detectives say they tried to convince her that she should keep the money, but that she insisted that the world would end March 19 and that she and her husband would have no use for the currency.

"It was a terrible sight," said Gleason last night. "I never hope to see good money burned up like that again."

CITES FEDERAL STATUTE.

It Has Important Bearing on Wisconsin Damage Suit.

Green Bay, Wis., March 10.—Charles Thompson begun suit against the Kewaunee, Green Bay & Western railway for damages on account of an injury to his foot. Judge Hastings ruled that Thompson was engaged in interstate commerce and that the Federal employer's liability act governs his case. Suit should have been started within two years after Thompson was injured, but was not started until three years afterwards. The railroad company has offered him $2,000 compromise. This is the first time the Federal act has been cited in circuit court and if it had been called up within the past five years the result of probably 100 cases in this state would have been changed.

FEAR FREE SUGAR.

Is Opinion of Senator Stephenson, Back From Washington.

Marinette, Wis., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Isaac Stephenson, who has just returned from the national capital, said it was too early to express any opinion of the new Democratic administration's program, but was inclined to think that it was to be cautious at first. Shredded Wheat Biscuits for the health and happiness of her family, simplifying her housekeeping problems and relieving her of worry and care. In making Shredded Wheat Biscuit we steam-cook the grains of whole wheat, draw them out into delicate, filmy shreds, form them into little loaves or Biscuit and bake them a crisp, golden brown. Because of its biscuit form you can do so many things with Shredded Wheat which you cannot do with other breakfast cereals.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in the oven a few moments to restore crispness; then pour hot milk over it, adding a little cream; salt or sweeten to suit the taste. It is deliciously nourishing and wholesome for any meal with stewed prunes, baked apples, sliced bananas, preserved peaches, pineapple or other fruits. At your grocer's.

Made only by The Shredded Wheat Company at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

WHY FAMOUS PASTRY COOKS USE KC BAKING POWDER

The patrons of our first class hotels and restaurants are exacting—they demand the best. Women go where the pastry and cakes are noted for their excellence. Men are attracted by hot bread and biscuits—when fresh and moist and light.

The pastry cook with a reputation uses K C Baking Powder because he knows that results are certain; every time everything is as good as his best.

Then, too, with K C Baking Powder he can mix the various kinds of batter before the rush of the meal begins and bake as needed so that every order goes to the table fresh and hot, yet the last he bakes are just as good as the first.

The reasons behind these reasons is that K C is really a blend of two baking powders. One commences to give off leavening gas as soon as moistened. The other requires both moisture and heat to make it active. Dough or batter will remain in a partially leavened condition for hours, and when put in the oven, will come up as light as if mixed a moment before.

For cookies, pancakes, doughnuts and the like, which cannot all be baked at once, K C is indispensable. For all baking the double raise makes doubly certain.

Follow the example of the professional cook and your baking will be equal to his.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING HAS HOT ELECTION

Fight Over Mayor and Treasurer Lively in Range Village.

Chisholm's Campaign Also Warms Up in the Closing Hours.

Hibbing, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing is in the hottest eleventh hour election campaign in its history. The climax will come tonight, when V. L. Power, progressive candidate for mayor, will address a mass meeting at the armory, which, from indications, will break all local records for attendance. The Socialists, the candidates of the present administration headed by Dr. Welrick, who for the eighth time is a candidate for election; several independents and the progressive citizens are straining every nerve to gain a victory at the polls tomorrow. The campaign will be over with the opening of the polls at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, as the corrupt practices act is held to apply to the village election. The polls close at 4 o'clock and by 5:30 tomorrow afternoon the results should be known.

Victor L. Power, who heads the progressive ticket made up of B. L. Burrows, John Curran and Robert Geiselman for trustees, D. D. Haley for recorder and John Messner for treasurer, was induced to announce his candidacy at the last minute. Up to that time there was little interest in the campaign and the re-election of Mayor Welpaign and the re-election of Mayor Welrick and Trustees Barrett, McHardy and Messner and Recorder Kleffman by snug majorities seemed certain. At present both sides and the Socialists as well are claiming a victory.

Treasurer's Election Warm.

One of the hottest fights of tomorrow's election will be for the office of village treasurer. The candidates are D. D. McEachin, Frank Fisher, Alfred Newberg, Mike Gleason, Oscar Bihlaja, T. E. Corcoran and John Messner. With the exception of Mr. Messner who was placed on the progressive ticket Saturday, all the candidates have been campaigning for some time. All profess to be well pleased with their chances for election. D. D. McEachin is probably making the most aggressive campaign.

There is also quite a fight on for the village recordership between D. D. Haley and A. H. Kleffman, the present recorder. The indications seem to point to Mr. Kleffman's election, while it is not denied that Mr. Haley will get a big vote.

Several Township Fights.

There are several fights on in the township of Stuntz, but the recent turn taken in the village campaign has concentrated interest on village affairs and the outcome of all are in doubt. V. J. Benoe, appointed town clerk, to succeed Charles Calligan, when the latter became register of deeds, is seeking election. Mr. Benoe has many friends over the township. J. P. Murphy, George Healy, Oscar Wildstrand and Joe Boyer are also candidates. Mr. Murphy is an old resident of Hibbing, well qualified for the place, as is Mr. Healy.

For the supervisorship there are three candidates: Al Dixon, who served on the board before, a pronounced good roads enthusiast; Edward Aura, engineer at the city electric light plant, and J. A. Robertson.

For treasurer for the township there are four candidates, besides the Socialist nominee. They are E. S. Woolfan, Mike Cox, O. J. Tucker and Joseph Collyard, and the present treasurer, John Munter. Mr. Woolfan is an enterprising man. Mike Cox is new to the political game, but is making a vigorous campaign. O. J. Tucker has served the township as treasurer before, and was the first candidate to announce himself. Joseph Collyard is a Hibbing pioneer. He was formerly a mining captain, but is now engaged in business. Mr. Munter is making a vigorous campaign and has a large personal following.

Buhl Has Two Tickets.

The caucus ticket is running on the working man's platform and promises an eight hour day service for laborers for the village if the ticket wins, the establishment of a public market, a white way, free band concerts, and improvements in roads, streets and alleys as well as a free rest room and reading room.

Virginia, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last ski tournament of the season was held Sunday before a large crowd. No remarkable work was done by any rider, as the hill was slow on account of thawing and a fairly strong wind. The long distances were made by Barney Riley, but he lost on account of a fall. The winners among the professionals were: First, Ole Feiring, Virginia, 242 1-3; second, Inar Lund, Chippewa Falls, 237 1-3; third, Axel Hendrickson, Virginia, 234; fourth, John Evenson, unattached, 230 2-3; fifth, August Nordby, Superior, 230 1-3. A competent engineer will probably be secured to establish a grade for the walks, so that all walks will be made to conform to the grade established. The improvement will mark an advanced step for Tower.

FIGHTING DISEASE.

Chisholm Health Board Trying to Check Scarlet Fever.

Chisholm, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The scarlet fever situation continues desperate. All public meetings must put a ban on children attending, while the schools will be closed till after Easter.

The little son of F. W. Anderson died Saturday, making the sixth to succumb to the terrible ravages the disease is making in this vicinity. Several women left town for their old homes, taking their children with them and will not return until the conditions here become more favorable.

Harry Hurtebes, a youg man employed at the Monroe office was stricken yesterday and immediately taken to the pesthouse. There are now two cases of grown people at the pesthouse.

Twenty-five policemen were put on Sunday to enforce the quarantine orders of houses affected and to see that children are not allowed to go on to the street. City Physician Dr. W. R. Schmidt is being besieged with requests to permit children to do errands etc., but he is holding them to the restriction order closely. The postoffice, the churches, theaters, etc., are all placarded with notices barring children of 18 years and under from entering. A special officer was stationed at the postoffice to enforce the order.

There are about thirty cases reported and under quarantine, although reports of the streets range from that number to as high as 400. The locations are receiving the same attention that the village proper is and the fever should be under control now.

The most distressing feature of the malady is that the patients succumb to such a remarkably short time that the doctors have little chance to assist. Antitoxin and every other known remedy is being applied but the cases that have resulted in death have occurred in a very short time after the physician had been called.

QUIT CALOMEL!

Thousands Are Turning From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil colored tablet.

The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They oil the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

DEER RIVER POSTAL BANK IS POPULAR.

Deer River, Minn., March 10.—The postal savings at the local office are unusually large for an office of this size and the patronage is still increasing. Postmaster Scott says that for the year ending March 1st the total deposits in the saving amount to $1,649.

The postal department at Washington has evidently rejected all bids for the carrying of mail to Inger from Deer River as notices are now calling for bids on a new route to be established from Mack to Inger via Bowstring.

EVELETH BOYS HIKE.

Go Out Into Woods and Are Entertained By Mine Inspector.

Eveleth, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the Boys' Study and Recreation club of the First Presbyterian church went into the woods for a hike on Saturday with Rev. Philip A. Schwarz, Jr., their leader. At the invitation of Mine Inspector W. H. Harvey they visited his lumber camps on the other side of Ely lake, and were his guests at a bounteous "spread" especially prepared for them and which all enjoyed very much. To visit such well ordered camps and observe the logging operations and then have dinner out in the woods was a rare treat and a most enjoyable event for the boys, and they unanimously declared Mr. Harvey a "good fellow" and gave him a vote of thanks for his kind invitation. They also did ample justice to the excellent dinner prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Dolan, the camp cooks.

The members of the club are: Reid Rutty, William Uren, Roy Hogan, John Elliason, Edward Biornaas, Ralph Pfremmer, Ernest Hogan, Atree Elliason, Alden Morrell, Burton Davey, Howard Goard, Hugh Morrell, Clarence Sholund, Henry Johnson, James Culbert. The club is planning other hikes in the near future and camping out as soon as the weather permits.

PLAN ANOTHER SMOKER.

Virginia Commercial Club Will Repeat Successful Affair.

Virginia, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent Commercial club get-together banquet and smoker was such a success that the club will give another in the near future.

It is believed the plan recently adopted of having the club managed by a board of directors of which the officers of the club are ex-officio members will prove most satisfactory. The board has gone on record as being in favor of fostering the industries and lines of business that are here rather than inducing new concerns to come, particularly if the newcomer is engaged in a line that is already represented. They have also agreed that what Virginia and the farming districts all about need are good roads and more farmers. Ways and means to obtain these will be considered by the club.

TWO HARBORS WIN.

Defeats Tower Basket Ball Quint and Claims Championship.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Y. M. C. A. basket ball team claims to have won the range championship here Saturday night when it defeated the Tower basket ball team, 41 to 25. The game was fast and interesting and was featured by some pretty basket throwing by either teams. Woodward for the locals and Brown for the visitors were the particular stars of the evening. Woodward scored 19 points while Brown scored 14. One of the largest crowds that has ever turned out to witness such sport cheered the locals to victory and brought the range championship to this city.

The following was the line-up:

Two Harbors—		Tower—

WINDS UP SPREE BY TAKING LIFE

Two Harbors Man Blows Off Top of Head With Rifle.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Vickberg, single, aged about 35, having a brother here named Oscar, committed suicide Sunday near Mile Post 39 on the Iron Range railroad, presumably as the climax to a protracted spree. He blew off the top of his head with a 30-40 rifle. The body was brought here by Undertaker Brown pending an inquest.

The suicide was well known about this city, having worked here off and on for several years. Recently he had been in the employ of Scotty McLeod at Highland, Minn., putting up ice, and it was while he was engaged there that his spree started. The funeral has not been arranged yet, but it is thought that he will be buried tomorrow from the morgue.

VIRGINIA'S MILL HAS SUNDAY FIRE.

Virginia, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sunday, about 5:30 p. m., the siren fire alarm whistle at the mill of the Virginia & Rainy Lake company's big mill blew. The firemen from the central station with the four-ton auto truck responded and found a stubborn fire under the floor of the dock in the planing mill building. It took a half hour's work with five streams of water before it was extinguished. The damage was only to the flooring of the dock and will not exceed $100.

BLIND PIG ROW AT KITZVILLE

Hibbing, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The refusal of Tom Kochedari said to be running a blind pig in Kittzville Sunday to sell Bed Seberinski twenty bottles of beer on credit as an offering to his sweetheart started a row that came near resulting disastrously for the latter. He was struck over the head with a beer bottle and badly cut. A general free fight resulted. Appeals were sent to the Hibbing police for aid to capture Kochedari who was reported barricaded in his place and defying arrest, but these were ignored. Later armed with a bludgeon he ran amuck through Kitzville. He was finally arrested and brought here. There were about twenty in the blind pig it is said when the police swooped down on the place.

WHITE SLAVER IS GIVEN FIVE YEARS.

Carrington, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another blow to white slavery in this state was administered by Judge Coffey, who sentenced Andrew Jackson to from one to five years in the state penitentiary. Jackson and William Johnson, both of Fargo, took two girls over this section of the state. Johnson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four years. Jackson escaped conviction on one charge at Jamestown. One of their victims was a 15-year-old orphan girl from Minnesota.

ARE THESE FIVE ALL ACCIDENTS

A. M. Kendall, shoe dealer of Colorado City, Colo., seventy years of age, was in what appeared to be the final clutches of Bright's. The treatment was changed and in three months he wrote that he considered himself well.

He has a neighbor, a grocer, J. J. Abensham, sixty-eight years of age, who had Bright's Disease. "The best doctors he could get told him there was no help for him and advised him to settle up his accounts." Kendall told him about his own case and Abensham too recovered. In giving us these facts Kendall closes: "There are three others here who have been cured since I was."

One of the above recoveries might have been an accident, but how about all five? These people are not in league with Fulton's Renal Compound and the curability of Bright's Disease is a fact if one-tenth of the letters we have received are true.

With failure admitted by the books under the old treatment in chronic Bright's Disease and with reports like the above from many patients on this treatment how can any one be undecided. If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. You can get it at druggists supplied by Leithhead Drug Co.

For pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

IT LOOKS as if the Lakeside Athletic club is going to become the leader in the athletic affairs of the city, judging by the enthusiasm that has been injected into the early efforts of that organization. With one athletic association dominating the local field, it is good that this worthy rival has sprung into being; indeed, a rival that promises to eclipse the record of the older club and usurp the place that has long been occupied by the West end organization.

The enthusiasm of the members of the new athletic organization is great and the plans are high. Already two crack athletes, Walter Miller and Jimmy Brady have been engaged as wrestling and boxing instructors of the club, and with the growth of the organization it is planned to place both baseball and football teams in the field.

PAUL HOGAN, the genial captain of the Portage Lake hockey team, believes that there is such a thing as too much team work in the thrilling puck chasing game, and yet at the same time admitting that team play is the only secret of success.

When the last season's Port Arthur seven played the Portage Lake aggregation it enjoyed the reputation of being one of the greatest hockey teams in the dominion.

This Canadian team was beaten in two games at Houghton, and Hogan says that the Canadians had so much team work that they actually passed the puck too much; in other words that when they got down in the vicinity of the net that one of the visitors instead of rushing at the proper time would hesitate the least fraction of a second and then probably make the pass to one of his team members.

IN SECURING the all-star athletic combination, the biggest show by far that has ever taken to the road, Duluth is again placed on the trail of an attraction that but few of the other cities in the United States have had the fortune to secure.

Duluth is known throughout the country as one of the best of all sport centers. This applies to amateur and the more cleanly conducted professional sports. Wrestling has been built up here simply because the game has been kept upon the high plane of squareness, and the liberal patronage of these contests has given this city the reputation of being one of the great wrestling centers of the United States.

It is this fondness for sports upon the part of the people here that enabled the promoters here to secure the big athletic combination consisting of Luther McCarty, Eddie McGoorty, Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Packey McFarland, all of them classed as the greatest pugilists of the country.

In the old days one champion toured the country. The greatest athletic combination of the old days was the Muldoon-Whistler show, which headed by the two greatest wrestlers of their day, toured the country and staged athletic competitions in the different cities of the United States.

It was thought all high water marks in the way of athletic combinations was reached when the Jeffries-Goteh troupe was organized. But the gathering into one company of five of the greatest fighters of all time is the greatest achievement by far, and the launching of this big show has been the work of months.

MANAGER Guy Warren of the Curling club hockey team is not certain as yet whether the season is over. One more game may be played during the year. Negotiations are on with Virginia, the seven that held Duluth to a 2 to 1 score earlier in the year, and if the negotiations go through this team will be brought here to play the final contest of the present season.

THOSE who love the best—the beautiful and artistic—in the skating line are going to be gratified when Miss Mabel Butler and Norval Baptie give their remarkable exhibitions of figure and fancy skating here.

These two performers stand at the head of all the skaters in this country and Europe. Miss Butler staged one of the greatest skating acts known in vaudeville, giving exhibitions daily upon perhaps what was the smallest ice rink in the world. Naturally the ice was artificial, being manufactured before the afternoon and evening performances.

Norval Baptie has not been fancy skating as long as Miss Butler, speed racing being the forte of this great athlete before he took to cutting Dutch rolls and doing other complicated figures. After beating all the skaters hovering around the top of the professional ranks and trying to chase Morris Wood into a match, Baptie tried the fancy skating game and he has become as proficient in this style of ice skating as he was in racing, and the Bathgate, N. D., man enjoys the distinction of being the fastest man in the world, even today.

For several months the officials of the curling club have been negotiating with this famous pair of performers. Finally they have been secured and the appearance of Miss Butler and Mr. Baptie should be one of the distinctive events of the club's skating season.

DUNNE FAVORS BOXING.

Illinois Governor Would Have Law Governing It.

Chicago, March 10.—Governor Dunne declared here yesterday that he is in favor of a good law regulating boxing contests.

"The chief thing is to have a statute that will eliminate fake contests and do away with brutality," he said. "There is nothing wrong in boxing. I believe it is possible to have a law that will make it feasible to resume boxing in Illinois, with the proper safeguards to prevent fraud. I would willingly favor a bill of that sort."

DOWN TO THE FINALS IN TROPHY CURLING GAMES

It is expected that the final game in the regular trophy events of the curling play will be completed during the present week. With play in the Gruesen completed, it is expected that the Bagley will also go into the list of completed events by tomorrow evening.

Bradley and Cleveland are scheduled to meet in the semi-finals and the winner of this contest will meet Stocking for the trophy.

The winner of the Bradley-Dinham contest will meet Jones in the final of The Herald event, the completion of the Bagley and Herald leaving most of the week for the playing off of the remaining two events.

Ralph Bradley is in all four of the remaining draws, this being a very good record. Billy Dinham is in two of the draws and is being picked as one of the likely rinks for a trophy. Friends of "Steve" Jones are plugging for him to cop in The Herald, and the final contest in this event is sure to bring out one of the largest galleries of the year.

While the present week is expected to bring about the finals in all of the events, it is not believed that curling will come to an abrupt close with the ceasing of play in the trophy events—that is, in the event of the weather making curling possible.

This has been by far the most successful season in the history of the Duluth Curling club and has been a fitting observance of the initial year of the new home.

There is talk of holding a banquet during the present month, but whether this will be held here to take the place of the annual dinner of the Northwestern bonspiel, which had become a sort of home event up here, cannot be stated at the present time.

MANY HIGH SCORES.

Toledo, Ohio, March 10.—With the completion of the rolling in the individual event in the American Bowling congress tournament last night 115 scores of 600 or better had been turned in. This equals the former A. B. C. record for the event which officials now declare will be greatly exceeded before the tournament closes next Thursday night.

In the two-man events yesterday several high scores were rolled, but they failed to get into the list of leaders.

E. Dankert and E. Bach of Milwaukee led the two-man event with 1,214.

The Hardly Ables of Canton, Ohio, went into eighth place in the five-man events last night with a score of 2,888. The Union Sodas of St. Louis rolled 2,860, but failed to get a place among the leaders, although it gave them eleventh place. Five-man leaders—Overlands, Toledo, 2,992; Hudson Stars, Newark, N. J., 2,946; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,943; Gambrinus, Columbus, Ohio, 2,903; Colemas, Chicago, 2,900; Ducators, Chicago, 2,896; Lexington No. 1, Lexington, Ky., 2,890; Hardly Ables, Canton, Ohio, 2,888; Brunswicks, Hamilton, Ont., 2,883; Indiana Democratic club, Indianapolis, 2,876.

NEW ORGANIZATION.

"Federal League" Takes Place of United States League.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—The Federal League of Professional Baseball clubs filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state here Saturday. The capital stock was placed at $8,000. The incorporators met to organize a league to take the place of the United States league, which failed to finish the season last year.

The circuit, it is understood, will include St. Louis, Detroit, Pittsburg, Chicago, Cleveland and Indianapolis. Cincinnati also seeks a berth in the new organization and may get the one now offered to Pittsburg. If Cincinnati is successful, the park probably will be located in Covington, Ky.

Will See Scrap.

Kenosha, Wis., March 10.—Officials of Illinois and Wisconsin and members of the legislatures of both states investigating pending bills for boxing commissions have been invited to be at the ringside here tonight when Pal Moore of Philadelphia and Charley White of Chicago meet. A number of the legislators have accepted.

WILL FIGHT ANY OF THEM

Billy McCarney Writes That Luther McCarty Is Willing to Meet Willard.

World's Champions Will Be Seen in Duluth Before Important Battles.

Followers of athletics here are greatly interested over the announcement that five champions of the world are to visit Duluth within a short time. Counting Packey McFarland as the welterweight champion of the world, which title he virtually won through the defeat of Ray Bronson, this city is to see five legitimate champions of the ring in Luther McCarty, Eddie McGoorty, Packey McFarland, Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Coulon.

News has been sent out regarding the matching of Coulon with Charles Ledoux, the sensational little Frenchman, for the bantam championship of the world. Therefore the tour of the little blonde Chicago boy may be his last appearance in this country for some time, as the battle with Ledoux is booked for Paris.

Luther McCarty, it is practically assured, is to fight Bombardier Wells at Los Angeles in July. Shortly after the completion of the road tour of the big combination, which is scheduled but for a few weeks, the white heavyweight champion will hike to the coast according to the present plans, and begin immediate training for the battle with the British invader.

Tom McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club has been promised the battle between McCarty and Wells, this promise being made after the victories big Lute established over Jim Flynn and Al Palzer.

Eddie McGoorty is to fight Bob Moha, the Cave man, in Milwaukee on March 17, and will be seen here following this contest.

Packey McFarland is practically matched at the present time for the welterweight title, this great boxer finally giving up the idea of getting down to the lightweight poundage. McFarland bested Britton at a weight somewhat above that required by the most liberal interpretation of the lightweight division, which clearly proves that the stockyards idol properly belongs with the welters.

Johnny Kilbane is to fight Dundee for the title in May, if the present reports are correct, so it will be seen that every one of the touring camps is scheduled for a title contest within the next few weeks.

Billy McCarney, manager of McCarty, is in charge of the troupe. According to a letter sent out by this shrewd person before the assembling of the fighters, McCarty will fight Wells before Willard is given consideration.

In this communication to the sporting editor, McCarney says in part:

"Admitting Willard is a likely looking fellow there is nothing in his record to place him before Wells. Granting that he went ten rounds in a no decision contest with McCarty, the most fair minded of the critics will admit that McCarty was only a novice at the time. Since then Luther has gone ahead and beaten Flynn and Palzer, two of the toughest white fighters in the country, and he has really done more fighting in a short time than any champion in the history of the ring. Look this up and see whether I am right.

"Luther will fight them all. Wells will be the best drawing card, and he is considered one of the greatest boxers in the world. After Wells will come Wilard. McCarty is only 20 years of age, so it will be seen that he has plenty of time to grow even better than he is at the present time. Don't make any mistake about it—McCarty will fight any man in the world."

AGGIES CLAIM TITLE.

North Dakota A. C. Quint Champions of the Flickertail State.

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Agricultural college quint holds the undisputed basket ball championship of the state, as the Aggies twice trounced each the Wahpeton Science school, Fargo college and the state university quints. Under the intercollegiate rules of this state two games must be played with each other by all the teams. This is to give each aggregation the advantage of a game on the home floor.

Coach Reuber, who is serving his last year as athletic director at the A. C., is greatly gratified with the results. At the end of the baseball season he will retire to enter the banking business. He is a graduate of the Northwestern university and his home is at Rochester, Minn.

FOSSTON WINS OVER EAST GRAND FORKS.

Fosston, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a fast and clean game of basket ball Fosston won the championship of Northwestern Minnesota by defeating East Grand Forks, 30 to 19, here Friday evening. Fosston has played nine games with the surrounding high schools and won them all. The teams they have met have lost three or more games each, so Fosston has an undisputed claim to the championship.

Hauge Throws Mattsson.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Hauge of North Dakota threw Carl Mattsson of Minneapolis in two out of three falls Saturday night. The match was the best ever promoted in Cass Lake, the wrestlers being of equal weight and gave a good exhibition. Hauge secured the first fall in seven minutes, while Mattsson secured the second in nine minutes. In the final Hauge got the best of Mattsson in nine minutes, winning the match. In the preliminaries "Sailor Jack" of Duluth threw James Phelps, a local man, in nineteen minutes.

Great Runner Breaks Down.

New York, March 10.—Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish Olympic champion runner, has temporarily broken down, according to reports in athletic circles. Constant pounding on board floors at indoor meets has brought about "shin splints," it is understood, and he will not be able to run again for several months, it is feared.

Track and Field Contests.

Boston, Mass., March 10.—A proposal to have the national track and field championships next summer held at the Harvard stadium, under the auspices of the Boston Athletic association, is being considered by officials of that club. The probability that the English athletes of Oxford and Cambridge universities will be here for their meeting with Harvard and Yale about the time the championship meet would be held, has been mentioned as likely to give an international flavor to the competitions this year.

Young Pitcher Dead.

New York, March 10.—Word was received here last night from Marlin, Tex., that Thomas Hanley, one of the young pitchers taken South by the New York Nationals for practice, died there yesterday. Hanley had been ill for ten days with intestinal trouble. His condition became worse and a surgeon was called from Waco, Tex., and an operation performed, which revealed a broken appendix. Hanley played in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league last summer.

PORTAGE LAKERS TAKE FINAL GAME OF SERIES

Duluth Beaten in Fast and Rough Contest By Score of 4 to 3---Visitors Outplay Locals at Most Points of Game.

Portage Lake won the final contest of the present season with Duluth Saturday evening, the score being 4 to 3. With Arnie Olson back in the game the local team played a faster and more scientific exhibition, but the visitors have the better team and they won the game purely on the merits of the playing.

Outskating Duluth and for the most part possessing combination plays that were more effective, it must be said in credit to the visitors that they played the better hockey. On the defense the Houghtonites were well nigh impregnable. Carl Haug was a wonder at stopping the shots of the local players, while big Paul Hogan at cover point was ever a troublesome rock of opposition.

Granting the famous Portage Lakers should be classier performers than the locals, from the fact that this team has been together since the high school days of its players, it must be admitted that it will require an awfully good team to bring about the defeat of this smoothly working bunch.

In following the puck the superiority of the visitors was clearly manifested. From this it should not be inferred that Duluth was wholly outclassed, as the score shows the closeness of the play; but in all details of play the Portage Lakers had an edge, always, it can be said, slight as it might have been at times.

Here credit should be given for the great play of Joe Linder and Doc Tamblyn. Many people perhaps do not appreciate the great playing of Linder. He is a marvel at point, saving shot after shot at the net by the alertness and effectiveness of his play in meeting the puck.

This same goes for old Doc Tamblyn. Seldom checking with his body this cool and scientific player took the puck away from the onrushing Portage Lakers again and again in the closing game, or prevented the oncoming player from shooting until he has passed an angle where a shot would be impossible.

The question might be asked, and it would be a fair one—"Why didn't Portage Lake register a greater victory over us?"

The Duluth defense is the answer. On offense the visitors completely outplayed us. But in Linder and Tamblyn and Fenton the invaders found a rock of puck Gibraltar, and this accounts for the fact, that though Portage Lake shaded us in most of the points of the game, the battle was close all the way.

With the return of Olson to the game the original lineup was resumed, Grenner going back to wing and Barkell to center. The change seemed to accomplish the desired effect, for Duluth played a faster and closer combination game than was true of the efforts of the previous evening.

Olson scored the first goal of the game and this after two minutes of play, the West end boy receiving the pass from Mahan and flipping it in. This brought a roar from the stands and sort of vindicated the belief that Olson should have been kept in the game on the previous evening.

For the greater part of the half we held the invaders scoreless. They kept pumping the old puck in and some great stops at the brink of the net brought applause from the audience. Then finally Sicotte, the speed marvel, took the rubber down the ice, passing it to Pryor and receiving it just before the net, shot the tying goal.

Reynolds scored through a short pass from Sicotte from the rear and side of the net, and the half ended with the visitors leading 2 to 1.

The second half was fast and at times rough. Tamblyn, Reynolds, Grenner and Mahan were laid out, while Sicotte was put against the boards and shaken up.

Duluth's defense was impregnable and the rushes of the visitors were broken up or turned aside—either this, or Ray Fenton would stop a hard drive at the net.

After seventeen minutes of play Sicotte took the puck down in one of the pretty combination plays and shot a goal. Grenner came back with a pretty shot from a difficult angle and hope once more grew in the breasts of the local rooters.

Pryor and Reynolds started a fast play down the ice, a pretty pass being made to Reynolds who shot the net that put the contest on the ice. Just beating the bell to it, Grenner made another pretty shot just as the game was called, thus bringing to a close the series of eight great games that have been played against the greatest amateur hockey team in the country.

The lineup:

WINONA MAY REPLACE PORT ARTHUR IN SEE-EYE

Winona, Minn., March 10.—Either George A. Barton, president of the new See-Eye league, or Mike Cantillon, baseball boss at Minneapolis, will be in Winona this evening to explain to the fans at a public mass-meeting the proposition of organizing a See-Eye league club in Winona. Assurance to that effect was given by Barton to the local fans.

According to a statement of the See-Eye executive, the clubs in the proposed circuit are plugging for Winona and are eager to have this city take the eighth franchise in what will be one of the most compact leagues ever organized in the Northwest. The directors of the league believe that despite the experiences of Winona and other Minny league towns in other years, the enterprise can be made a paying proposition in the new organization.

President Max A. Conrad, who headed the local Minny club during the last two years of its existence, said yesterday that if at the meeting here tonight fans decided to get back of the plan, the old association would readily lend its support to the project.

Port Arthur has so far failed to show any serious intention of depositing the $800 guarantee money with the president of the league, and Winona is being urged to take the place of the dilatory Canadian Head of the Lakes town.

It is probable that there will be a meeting of the officials of the league set for next Sunday, if the matter of getting Winona in the new organization is settled.

The new league officials mean business, and any of the clubs that do not make good on the deposit of $800 insuring their remaining in the organization throughout the playing season, will be dropped before the schedule is made up.

While illness is given as the excuse for the failure of Frank Taylor of Port Arthur to attend the meeting of a week ago, it is argued that if he meant business he would have forwarded a check for the deposit guarantee.

As Mr. Taylor has made no explanation of his failure to forward the check, efforts will be made to have Winona in the league.

BASEBALL NOTES

Pitcher Ducky Swan purchased his own release from the New Orleans Class A club so that he could join the Beaumont Class B club.

Elijah Yooley, formerly an outfielder with the Kansas City team, has signed with the Canton team of the Interstate league for 1913.

Runt Walsh announced that he hoped to be made a regular catcher with the Phillies this year and the next day Killifer signed his contract.

Dummy Fremer, veteran infielder, is back in the Central league, which he left three years ago. Jimmy Burke has signed him for his Fort Wayne team.

Casey Hagerman, the pitcher released back by the Boston Red Sox to Denver last season, but who refused to report, has reconsidered and signed with the Grizzlies.

Danville of the Three-I league has signed Pitcher Ukanavich and Catcher Bossaloughni. Can you imagine an umpire announcing that battery so anybody can understand it?

According to a report from Victoria, Harry Meek, swatsmith of the Northwestern league, will be traded to Portland. Meek is too slow to suit the Victorian demands for speed.

Newark of the International league has released Outfielder Curtis Bernard, since he has again declared his intention of quitting the game and resuming his practice as an osteopath.

Dode Criss, famous pinch hitter of the St. Louis Browns, who wound up last season in the Texas league, says he has two offers from Southern league teams and that as he is a free agent he will accept one of them.

Manager Hogan of the Venice team of the Coast league has sold Third Baseman Lennie Burrell to Victoria of the Northwestern league. Burrell was out most of last season with injuries. Hogan plans to use Litschi as his regular third baseman.

If You Are a School Boy

Get out your map of the world, find Cuba, then look just south of the west end of Cuba and you will see the Isle of Pines, then learn all you can of the Isle of Pines, then go to your father and tell him you want ten acres of land there, that he can buy it on five years' time, that when you are out of school you want to go there and raise grapefruit, oranges and lemons—start right into business for yourself and become independent. A boy in Chicago did this very thing, eight years ago; he is now 24 years old. He made from ten acres of grapefruit this year over $5,000. I can give you his name. I know him well.

Send your father to me, I will sell him the land.

NO APPEAL TO BE TAKEN

Town of Buyck Accepts Liability, Fixed By Decision of Judge Cant.

Judgement Will Be Entered in Action on Bond Issue.

The quo warranto proceedings to test the validity of the organization of the town of Buyck, St. Louis county, an issue on which hangs the town's liability for a $22,000 bond issue, will not be carried to the supreme court over the decision handed down in district court several weeks ago.

Judge Cant held that the town of Buyck was a duly organized and existing township and that as such was liable in the matter of a bonded debt. Today a stipulation for judgment was entered into, which closes the incident.

At noon today judgment was filed decreeing that the town was legal and liable. Several months ago at the trial of an action brought by Charles H. Strawbridge, holder of a $22,000 bond issue, against the town to enforce collection, it was stipulated that in case the validity of the township organization should be established in the quo warranto proceedings, that judgment could be taken in the bond suit.

In the bond suit, judgment will be filed against the town of Buyck in favor of Charles H. Strawbridge for $8,497.55, the amount past due on two of the bonds and eighty-eight interest coupons. Since the litigation two more of the bonds have matured and twenty-two of the coupons have become due, making the town debtor to the bondholder in the additional sum of $3,500.

Buyck officials have agreed that judgment be entered against them and have stated that they will pay up in full to date. The entering of the judgments today closes a rather interesting fight in the courts, which has attracted more or less attention locally.

John Heltmann is attorney for the town of Buyck and Charles E. Adams has represented the bondholder, Charles H. Strawbridge, as plaintiff in the suit to collect bonds and as an intervenor in the quo warranto action. John H. Norton and Warren E. Greene were connected with the case in the quo warranto proceedings, being associated with Mr. Heltmann.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

BARRY FAMILY AT THE ORPHEUM

Members of Famous Irish Clan Feature Vaudeville Program.

The Barry clan from Tipperary, or Cork, or Ulster, pervades the new vaudeville bill at the Orpheum.

It is true a pair of French clowns manage to hold their own in the closing position, and a German woman presents some trained cats, while a colored boy does a dancing turn, but the clan of Barry rules triumphant in the headline position and the one next to it, and they carry off the honors of the new bill.

Lydia Barry is the headliner and stars in this carrying off of honors line. She has Irish eyes, and Irish features, and Irish personality and she makes you like her songs, although there is nothing Irish about them. She actually forgets home rule long enough to sing one English song and two or three others that might belong to any nation, but the audience seems to like all of them.

Then there are the little Barry girls—two of them—and Lydia's husband, George Felix, who has been captured by the younger sisters for vaudeville purposes. The three of them are guilty of a crazy hodge-podge of songs and dances and nonsense that nearly broke up the show last night. The Sunday night audience stamped and applauded the crazy antics of Felix. It was a great night for the Irish, and the Barry clan in particular.

The two French clowns, the Arnaut brothers, also got away nicely. They play fiddles and do tumbling stunts all at the same time, and the act is a very lively and entertaining number. The brothers have also some knowledge of the art of pantomime and their comedy is good—a rather rare occurence with acrobats. The Arnaut brothers, however, should not be called acrobats. They are more properly "dancing violinists" or "tumbling clowns."

The German contribution to the bill was a most interesting exhibition by a troupe of trained cats owned by Mme. Teschow. The cats jump through blazing hoops, walk along picket fences, and engage in a genuine back alley scrap. It is a real novelty in the line of trained animal acts, for cats are generally avoided by animal trainers, and it is entertaining as well.

The Harvey De Vora Trio, offering an excellent dancing act, is back. The trio is composed of a man, a woman, and a little colored boy. The woman is a toe dancer and a good one. The man is a first-class hard shoe dancer and the colored boy is also agile and light-footed. The three performers intersperse a little fair comedy in the act, but the dancing is ample to make it one of the hits of the bill.

Ruby Raymond and Bobbie Heath offer about fifteen minutes of popular and syncopated melodies held together with some conversation. One of the songs is a new song of the "Casey Jones" type which takes well.

The Youngers in artistic poses and balancing feats open the bill, and the usual interesting motion pitcures close it. The "Mutt and Jeff" cartoon has become a regular feature of the pictures. The bill as a whole is a most entertaining one, and will continue all week with a daily matinee.

VAUDEVILLE BILL AT THE EMPRESS

Trained Goats Are Novel Feature on an Entertaining Program.

Reversing the regular order, the Empress management yesterday afternoon began a vaudeville bill for the first half of the week. The numbers were all well received by the three large audiences yesterday.

The bill opened with a double reel of motion pictures, showing "Why Johnny's Horse Would Not Stay Hitched Up" and "When Mary Grew Up." The pictures are good comedy and they created considerable amusement for the audiences yesterday.

The regular vaudeville bill is opened by Gorman and Gaffery, who present a very good acrobatic act. Their antics are nearly all of a comedy nature and, together with the excellent tumbling features, the act is a meritorious one.

One of the best song-and-dance acts seen here for a long time is the Wellington trio, the members of which introduce the latest ragtime numbers in an inimitable style of their own. The trio are capable singers and know equally well how to get their songs across. Among the hits sung this week are "Row, Row, Row," "Good-Bye, Boys" and "At the Devils' Ball."

Vance & Vance introduce a novel dancing act, which readily pleased the audiences yesterday. The dances are eccentric and entirely different from the ordinary dancing acts seen in vaudeville today. The couple also introduce a number of new jokes during the act. "Ireland, I Love You," sung by the two at the close of the act, scored a hit.

The headliner of the bill this week, and well deserving of its position, is the Bulger animal act. Several goats are introduced, and they seem to accomplish the most difficult feats with the greatest ease. This is the first time a trained goat act has ever appeared at the Empress, and the animals proved popular with the patrons yesterday. The goats walk a tightrope and over necks of bottles at the close of the act.

The bill, which will continue until Wednesday evening, closes with another reel of motion pictures.

Begining Thursday afternoon the management will present the musical comedy, "A Broken Idol," for the remainder of the week.

MRS. MARTHA PALMER DIES OF OLD AGE

Mrs. Martha M. Palmer

Mrs. Martha M. Palmer, 82 years of age, died at 12:12 o'clock this morning at her home, 119 East First street, after a long illness. Death was due to complications caused by advanced age. Mrs. Palmer was one of the pioneer residents of Duluth and Minnesota, having lived in the state forty-four years.

She is survived by six sons, George, Frank, Charles John and Ernest of Duluth; Leander of Seattle, Wash.; three sisters, Phoebe Hall of Rochester, N. Y., Hannah P. Gerard of Kansas and Emily Miller, and one brother, Hollis Seeley, of Ohio.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced later.

"LIFE FAILURES"

"Life Failures" was the subject of Dr. A. W. Ryan's sermon yesterday morning at St. Paul's Episcopal church. He pictured life as a "discouragingly, disquietingly incomplete thing," but said it was but a preparation for a better life to come.

Drink, he stated, was one of the foremost factors in life failures.

PRISONERS ARRAIGNED

Four Admit Their Guilt and Four Will Stand Trial.

Pyykko Murder Case Will Be Heard at This Term.

Eight prisoners against whom indictments were returned by the March grand jury were arraigned before Judge Cant in district court this morning. Four entered pleas of not guilty and four deferred pleading until tomorrow.

Those who professed their innocence today were August Klar, charged with burglary, and John Aalto, Ed Alanen and Severt Often, each charged with larceny. The others who will be brought before the court again tomorrow are Fred Trombley and Lawrence Lafferty, accused of larceny; Harry Dale, charged with forgery and Albert J. Mason, indicted for indecent assault.

The trial of criminal cases will start a week from today, Monday, March 17. The first case will be one which has been continued from the last term of court. William Osborne will be brought before the court to answer to a charge of taking improper liberties with a young girl.

The most important case to be tried at this term of court will be the Hugo Pyykko murder case. Pyykko is under indictment for the murder of Matt Kemp, Midway farmer, last October. The November grand jury returned a true bill against him, but his trial was postponed until this term of court by mutual consent.

ALLEGED WIRE TAPPER CAUGHT

Member of Gang Said to Have Swindled Dr. Kirby.

Chicago, March 10.—News was received by the Chicago police today that John Strosnider, alias John Shea, and also known as William Strosnider, is under arrest in Montreal, Can., as an alleged member of the wire-tapping gang said to have swindled Dr. William T. Kirby, formerly head of the insolvent Kirby Savings bank, out of $20,000. Detectives have gone to Montreal to bring the prisoner to Chicago.

The wire-tapping story was revealed in Federal Judge Landis' court when Dr. Kirby and his wife, Margaret L. Kirby, were charged with concealing $20,000 of the defunct bank's funds.

Judge Landis refused to believe the story and sent both Dr. Kirby and his wife to jail for contempt of court. Later they were released on bonds when the case was appealed.

The swindle is said to have occurred in a rooming house at 1710 South Michigan avenue on Oct. 29, when Dr. Kirby was prevailed upon to bet upon a horse known as "Lucky George."

The police are searching for three alleged accomplices of Strosnider.

GIRLS MIXED IN HOSPITAL

Philadelphia Has a Tragic Case of Mistaken Identity.

Beatrice Kaufman Buried as Mollie Engleman---Sorrow and Joy Change Homes.

Philadelphia Papers: One afternoon a week ago Isadore Kaufman entered the reception room of the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases.

"I've come for my little girl, Beatrice," he told the hospital authorities.

Suffering from scarlet fever, little Beatrice Kaufman had been taken to the hospital Dec. 26, and now at last the glad news had come to Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman that Beatrice was convalescent and might be taken home again. It had been almost two months since they had seen their child, but they had telephoned the hospital almost every day and had been told that "Beatrice was doing well."

So here was Mr. Kaufman to take Beatrice joyfully in his arms and carry her home to waiting mamma. The hospital authorities brought in a little girl about the age of his own child.

"Why, this does not look like my Beatrice," said Mr. Kaufman, hugging the pale convalescent to his breast.

"Oh, yes, it's your little girl," the hospital officials assured Mr. Kaufman. "Only her illness has changed her and you don't recognize her."

It Wasn't Their Child.

Still doubtful, but afraid lest his little girl's long absence from home and the effects of her illness were paying tricks with his memory, Mr. Kaufman took the child, securely wrapped, and went home.

"That's not my Beatrice," she sobbed.

The little girl did not recognize Mrs. Kaufman as mother. A terrible mistake had been made. So they hurried back to the hospital, carrying with them the little girl, who was yet too much of a baby to tell the name that had been given her.

In another home in Philadelphia live Mr. and Mrs. David Engleman. Dec. 26 their little girl, Mollie, just past 3 years old, became ill and was taken to the same hospital. Almost every day, too, Mr. and Mrs. Engleman either went to the hospital or telephoned to ask how Mollie was getting along. They could not see the little girl because of the danger of spreading contagious diseases, but each time they called the hospital authorities told them Mollie was "doing nicely." But one day a change came. Word was sent to Mrs. Engleman to come to the hospital at once, that Mollie was very ill and might not live. Mrs. Engleman went quickly to the hospital and in a few minutes they brought her word that her little girl had just died.

Buried Child of Another.

The grief stricken parents had the little body prepared for burial. They did not see it except ing through the glass of the coffin just before the funeral. It was difficult to recognize the body as that of their bright faced child who had left their home only a few weeks previously. So, sorrowfully, they buried the child's body, believing it their Mollie.

But when the Kaufmans returned a little girl to the hospital with the assertion that it was not their Beatrice, the hospital authorities figured out the child must be Mollie Engleman. They took her to the Engleman home. It was Mollie Engleman! To the grief stricken parents it was like getting their little girl back from the dead. They had paid for the funeral of a little child they had been told was their own. So when Mollie came back to home of sorrow was turned into one of joy. Relatives and friends by the score came in to congratulate the Englemans on getting their little girl back.

"When I arrived at the hospital," said Mrs. Engelman in telling about the mistake. "I was told that Mollie was dead. They refused to let me see the body, but I said I would not go until they did. My husband came in then and they took us to a room and showed us the body of a little girl in a small coffin covered with glass. I saw only a part of the face. They asked me if that was Mollie. I said I didn't know. They said it certainly was my little girl. When I arrived home with my husband I said I did not believe it was Mollie and he said the same thing. Now I know that I am right and I am happy."

Viewed the Body.

It was thus that a tragic case of mistaken identity came to light in Philadelphia recently. Now the mother of Beatrice Kaufman wants to know under the delusion that she is in possession of her own child. While acknowledging that a terrible mistake has been made, the hospital authorities had the child buried under the name of Mollie Engleman exhumed. Mrs. Kaufman and her mother-in-law were asked by the health department to write out descriptions of Beatrice. They did so, and these were placed in the hands of an agent of the health department before the body was exhumed. Then the body was brought from the cemetery to the hospital.

"That is not the body of my daughter."

"No; that is not our Beatrice," sobbed the mother.

With a backward glance at the little coffin the mother, leaning on the arm of her husband, walked away.

The grandmother of the child then looked at the fever tortured face.

"I think that it is Beatrice," she said. She tried to explain to her distracted son and daughter-in-law that the illness of the child could have changed her appearance, but they were not convinced.

"It is not my Beatrice; it is not my Beatrice," cried the mother.

Hospital Says It's Beatrice.

Kaufman supported his wife as they left the hospital and all three were almost overcome with grief. "That is not my child," said Mr. Kaufman later. "I refused to accept the body and it will be buried again."

Soblingly, Mrs. Kaufman confirmed the statement made by her husband. But it is still the opinion of the agent of the health department authorities that Mr. Kaufman may be mistaken.

"In the written descriptions of Beatrice given to me before they viewed the body, they said that Beatrice had arched eyebrows and small ears fit close against the head and a rounded nose," said the special agent. "So had the child they saw in the hospital. Every feature stood out clearly and possibly the father was mistaken."

Reasons advanced by the hospital authorities for the confusion in identification was the transfer of pasteboard cards on which the histories of patients' illness are recorded. The name of Miss Edna Morrison, a nurse who for a time had charge of the ward in which Beatrice Kaufman and Mollie Engleman were treated has figured in the mystery. The nurse has left the hospital but denies that she made the mistake which led to the confusion of little patients. Her denial is supported by the hospital director who inclines to the belief that the two little girls became mixed in the receiving ward.

How the Mistake Occurred.

"If the investigation is carried far enough," said Miss Morrison, "I believe it will be shown that the mistake occurred in the receiving ward. Often six or eight children are brought to the hospital in one ambulance. I am not surprised that a mistake did occur, because the hospital is so overcrowded that sometimes two children occupy the same bed. It is very improbable that a nurse trained to hospital work would mix the charts of two patients. These charts always hang at the head of the bed, and we are warned to be especially careful about that. At no time did I see the charts lying on the window sills or any place excepting where they belong."

Dr. Joseph S. Neff, head of the health department, is positive the children could not have been mixed in the ambulance going to the hospital because the nurse tags and identifies the children before they are taken from their homes. To avoid such tragic cases of mistaken identity in the future, Dr. Neff is preparing to change the identifi cation system in use at the hospital. He is preparing to take thumb prints of all children admitted, to label them with an adhesive plaster tag or to hang about their necks a chain and aluminum medal with the name and street address of the patient inscribed.

While the parents say the body is not that of Beatrice, Dr. Neff and the authorities at the hospital say they feel sure of her identity. The description given by the parents corresponded in every particular, they say, with the body of the child.

It may be, friends of the Kaufmans say, that in their grief they were unwilling to admit, even to themselves, the identity of the body. Their failure to make identification, however, has confronted the hospital authorities with a serious problem.

Mr. Kaufman probably will bring a suit for damages against the city of Philadelphia for the suffering and mental anguish caused by the loss of his daughter.

NO WHITE HOUSE CATS.

Mrs. Wilson Requests That All Felines Be Removed.

Washington Dispatch in the Columbus (O.) State Journal: There will be no cats in or around the White House during the Wilson administration.

President and Mrs. Taft and President-elect and Mrs. Wilson were in correspondence for some days relative to White House plans and arrangements. In several details, as to service, etc., the Wilsons let it be known that they would make no change, but Mrs. Wilson, in a letter to Mrs. Taft, made one stipulation. She hoped there would be no cats in the executive mansion when she and her husband moved in.

Result—Mrs. Taft sent for a woman who had done some little domestic service around the White House and bargained with her to take all the White House cats away and dispose of them. It is stated that the felines were either chloroformed or drowned.

MACAULEY EXPLAINS WELFARE RESOLUTIONS

Admits He Made Error in Saying the Club Adopted Them.

Desirous that the action of the West Duluth Commercial club, in regard to hiring a social center expert, be properly understood with regard to the resolution submitted at the meeting Friday evening, A. G. Macauley, president of the organization, this morning sent a communication to The Herald, in which he explains the situation. He admits making a mistake in saying the resolution was adopted.

The letter follows in full:

"Much criticism is being made of the West Duluth Commercial club for its communication addressed to the common council of the city of Duluth, setting forth certain charges against the welfare board, and certain persons and organizations, which communication appeared in last Saturday evening's edition of The Duluth Evening Herald.

"We wish to make the club's position clear in this matter. The communication was not a resolution of the West Duluth Commercial club. The matter came up in this way: A letter was mailed to the club without any signature; this letter appeared in quotation marks in The Duluth Herald; it did not originate with the club, nor does the club indorse the charges therein contained. After the letter was read a motion was offered to have the letter laid on the table and a substituted motion was adopted requesting the president and secretary to send the letter to the common council with a communication asking the council to investigate the matter before final disposition of a certain ordinance that is pending before the council empowering the welfare board to employ a social center expert at a salary of $2,000 per year.

"The last paragraph reading: 'These resolutions were unanimously adopted by the West Duluth Commercial club and the president and secretary were instructed to forward them to your honorable body to have the same investigated' is an error. The president appended this to the letter and in doing so got the wording of the resolution wrong.

"The president takes all the blame in this matter and is sorry that this mistake has happened, and hereby makes personal apology for any injustice that may have been done to any person or organization by this mistake.

"A. G. MACAULEY, President."

DIPLOMATS CALL ON SECRETARY BRYAN

Representatives of Foreign Countries Are Formally Received.

Washington, March 10.—Secretary Bryan by appointment today formally received most of the diplomatic corps in Washington. The secretary made a felicitious speech, telling the corps in the name of President Wilson of the earnest desire of the administration to strengthen the relations between the United States and members of the great family of nations, and spoke in an optimistic way of the possibility of an international court of arbitration. In addition to the monogram, it bore the letters "2B," indicating the wearer was a member of the Second battalion. Mr. Miller is a veteran of the Civil war and values the find very highly.

SHERBROOKE VOTES CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL.

Sherbrooke, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sherbrooke is to have a consolidated school. The voters of the district almost unanimously indorsed the proposition. The village school building was selected as the location and this will be enlarged to accommodate the increased attendance.

Grace City to Vote.

Grace City, N. D., March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters of a part of District No. 16 and of the Larrabee district are to have a special election to determine whether a consolidated school will be established in this district. The plan seems to be favored by a large majority of the patrons of the schools, as they are confident of securing an improved service.

If you are "easily satisfied" with your boarding place, it will not be long before nothing else will matter much, either.

THIN MILK SELLER TO THE WORKHOUSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—With a record of a dozen convictions for selling milk and cream against the Gill Edge Dairy company of St. Louis Park, Judge E. A. Montgomery sentenced George Johnson, son of J. A. Johnson the proprietor, to fifteen days in the workhouse.

Three tests of the milk by the city chemist all showed the milk to be thin, one showing 1.95 per cent butter fat when the ordinance requires 3.50 per cent. Johnson pleaded guilty and John Lyle, milk inspector, told the court that fines had been imposed more than a dozen times and that the warnings had not been heeded.

Sale of School and Other State Lands

State of Minnesota, State Auditor's Office.
St. Paul, February 24, 1913.

Notice is hereby given that on April 16, 1913, at 10 o'clock A. M., in the office of the County Auditor at Duluth, St. Louis County, in the state of Minnesota, I will offer for sale certain unsold state lands and also those state lands which have reverted to the state by reason of the non-payment of interest.

Terms: Fifteen per cent of the purchase price and interest on the unpaid balance from date of sale to June 1st, 1914, must be paid at the time of sale. The balance of purchase money is payable in whole or in part on or before forty years from date of sale; the rate of interest on the unpaid balance is four per cent per annum, payable in advance on June 1st of each year; provided, the principal remains unpaid for ten years; but if the principal is paid within ten years from date of sale, the rate of interest will be computed at five per cent per annum.

Appraised value of timber, if any, must also be paid at time of sale.

Lands on which the interest is delinquent may be redeemed at any time up to the hour of sale, or before resale to an actual purchaser.

All mineral rights are reserved by the laws of the state

REBOUNDS TO HIGHER MARK

Reaction Carries Wheat to Where It Was Three Days Ago.

Flaxseed Trade Is Dull—Boosted By News From Winnipeg.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 10.—Wheat on the Duluth market had a rebound today that almost exactly wiped out the sagging that took place on Saturday. Duluth May closed ¼c to ⅛c higher. Cash wheat closed 1½c to 2c under May. Durum closed ¼c higher, oats ⅞c off to ⅛c up, and rye and barley unchanged. Duluth May flaxseed closed 1¾c up and July 1¼c up.

Very little business took place on the grain exchange this morning as the dealers were anxiously speculating on what the government report would have to say about the reserves of wheat in the hands of the American farmers. There was a slight upward trend, due to a reactionary feeling after the decline of Saturday, but most of the news was such as to favor the bears. The weather was excellent for the winter wheat crop. Receipts from the country were very large in comparison with those of a year ago. The American visible supply showed a very slight decrease. There was some export demand for durum. For northern wheat there was very little home demand and scarcely any foreign demand.

Duluth May wheat, which closed Saturday at 86⅛@86⅝c bid, opened today at 86⅝c and at noon was quoted at 86⅝c bid. Wheat was a little higher at noon today at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Liverpool wheat at the close today was ⅛ to ½d higher. The market was bullish on reports of lighter American shipments to Liverpool, a fair inquiry for Plata steamers, less favorable political news, a better continental demand and smaller world shipments.

Flaxseed is Dull.

Little trading took place this morning on the Duluth flaxseed market. Offers were light and so was the demand. Minneapolis crushers were bidding 2c below Duluth May for cash seed. The Winnipeg market was bullish, however, and this helped to boost the Duluth price. Duluth May at noon today was 2c higher and July was ¼c higher. Winnipeg May at noon today was a cent up at $1.11⅛ bid, being 15⅜c off at $1.17⅜c. London-Calcutta March today closed unchanged at $1.57½.

FLAXSEED.

During the past week there has been a downward movement of flaxseed on the markets of North America, notwithstanding the fact that the receipts of the seed from the country have been falling off. The main factor producing the downward movement has been the slackness of the demand on the part of the crushers. Last Saturday at the close the Minneapolis crushers were bidding half a cent under the Duluth cash price for cash seed, whereas a week before they were bidding a half to a quarter of a cent over the Duluth cash price.

During the week closing last Saturday Duluth received 90 cars of domestic seed against 108 cars the week before and 30 cars the week ending the corresponding week last Saturday. At Minneapolis the figures were 178 last Saturday, 216 a week ago, and 105 a year ago. and at Winnipeg the figures were 178 last Saturday, 423 a week ago, and 178 last Saturday, 423 a week ago, and 134 a year ago; total of the three markets for week ending Saturday, 728; week before, 747, and a year ago, 270.

Duluth May and cash seed last Saturday closed 3¼c lower than on Saturday of the week before. Minneapolis May during the same week went 2¾c May during the same week went 2¾c. Buenos Ayres March declined 1⅞c. London-Calcutta March advanced ⅞c.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Advances in Sympathy With Firmness in Foreign Markets.

Chicago, March 10.—Wheat advanced today in sympathy with firmness at Liverpool and a decline in British consols. There was also doubt as to whether the Washington crop report would confirm bearish estimates on farm reserves. Fair sales here late Saturday to foreigners tended further to help the bulls. The opening was unchanged to ¼c higher, May started at 91¼c to 91⅜c, a gain of ⅛c to ¼c and rose to 91½c.

A reaction followed because the majority of European markets, other than Liverpool, did not reflect any uneasiness. The close, however, was firm with May ¼@⅜c net higher at 91⅜@91½c.

Absence of selling pressures aided an upturn in corn. May opened a shade off to a like amount up at 52⅝c to 52⅜c, touched 52½c and rallied to 52⅞@53c.

Prices later eased off with wheat. The close was easy at 52⅜c for May, a net loss of a shade.

Oats were firm on account of buying on the part of local speculators. May, which started a sixteenth higher at 34½c, sold at 34c and then climbed to 34⅞c.

Hogs in plentiful supply carried provisions downward. First sales ranged from 5c to 22½c lower, with May at $20.70 to $20.75 for pork, $10.72½ to $10.75 for lard and $10.77½ to $10.80 for ribs.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Financial Strain Abroad, Particularly in Germany, Causes Liquidation.

Fitful Rallies Toward the Close Attributed to Short Covering.

New York, March 10.—Financial strain abroad, particularly in Germany, led to heavy liquidation by the continent on the London exchange and the weakness of Americans there was transferred to this market at the opening of business. Declines here did not measure up to the drop in London in some cases, but the quotations registered new low records for the present movement for Union Pacific, Reading and Steel, around which centered speculation. The severity of the decline led to a natural rebound and the market worked up gradually to a parity with last week's close or above. The list maintained its advantage in the face of a 4½ per cent renewal rate for call loans.

Bonds were heavy.

Pronounced weakness developed among the favorite speculative stocks at the opening today. International issues, which were depressed in London before the opening here, were most affected. Steel opened with a block of 3,400 shares at 59¾, compared with Saturday's close of 59⅞. Union Pacific touched a new low point at 148½, a loss of 1⅝. Canadian Pacific declined four points, Jersey Central 3, Reading 1¼ and Amalgamated, American Car and Mexican Petroleum 1.

Sharp recoveries followed the initial dip in prices. St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, Reading, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania and Can sold slightly above Saturday's close. In most cases declines were reduced to fractions. Trading grew dull on the rally.

Prices wavered around midday and there was some reaction, amounting to a point, before energetic support put the general level higher than in the forenoon. Union Pacific mounted to 150 and Copper shares were purchased on reports that producers were obtaining better prices. Reduction in steel tonnage figures about met expectations. Bethlehem Steel gained 1½ and preferred 3 points on the restoration of the latter to a 5 per cent dividend basis. Speculation was dull and easier again at 1 o'clock.

Spasmodic selling for both accounts enlivened the market at intervals during the afternoon. Many stocks went to lower prices, Steel touching 58⅞, Union Pacific 147⅞ and Canadian Pacific 220⅞. Inactive stocks also slumped badly, Adams Express breaking 10 points.

The market closed unsettled. Reports from Berlin that 10 per cent was being paid for money there, together with estimated sales of 1,000 shares of Canadian Pacific for German account in this market, caused wholesale liquidation of all classes of stock during the last hour. Canadian Pacific dropped 7¾ to 218½ and Union Pacific 3¼ to 146¾. Low figures were also established for Steel, Reading, Southern Pacific and other standard stocks. Fitful rallies toward the close were attributed to short covering and did not relieve the unsettled state of the market.

Duluth, Minn., March 7, 1913.

The Herald, Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs—The granite ware sale advertised in Thursday night's Herald for Friday and Saturday is like a "Mustard Plaster," too strong to last.

At noon today the entire stock of sixty cases bids fair to be cleaned out by tonight. In any event there will not be enough left to take care of the response we get from a "Herald Ad."

Therefore, kindly kill the repeated granite ware ad for the Market Basket and insert the copy sent you herewith, and greatly oblige, Yours very truly,

GEORGE A. GRAY CO.,

RESTRAINING ORDER ASKED FOR BURLESON

Would Prevent Him From Enforcing "Newspaper Publicity Law."

Counsel Claims Agreement Had Been Made With Postoffice Department.

Law Not to Be Enforced Until Supreme Court Had Made Ruling.

Washington, March 11.—Counsel for the New York Journal of Commerce today applied to the supreme court to restrain Postmaster General Burleson from immediately enforcing the "newspaper publicity law." Former Postmaster General Hitchcock had agreed not to attempt to enforce the law pending a prompt appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the Federal courts in New York.

The request was based upon an agreement between counsel, the department of justice and the postoffice department last October that no action would be taken by the latter to compel newspaper publishers to comply with the law or enforce any of its penalties, until the supreme court had passed upon its validity.

Enforcement Threatened.

Robert G. Morris, counsel for the Journal of Commerce, in a statement to the supreme court, declared that on March 4 the postmaster of New York had notified the paper that unless the statements required by the law were filed at once, he would proceed to enforce its penalties. Similar letters, the attorney charged, had been sent to other newspapers throughout the country. Since March 4, Attorney Morris declared, Postmaster General Burleson had informed him verbally that unless the required returns were made on or before March 11, he would enforce the penalties, which include disbarment from the mails.

Requirements of Law.

The law requires newspapers to file with the government and publish twice a year a sworn statement showing the names of their bondholders, security holders, stockholders, the amount of the daily circulation of and to designate all paid for articles as "advertisements."

The supreme court has had the law under consideration for several months, but has announced no decision.

The court took the motion of Mr. Morris under advisement.

Solicitor General Bullitt stated verbally that the government took cognizance of the motion but did not agree to all the statements set forth as facts in the statement Mr. Morris filed with the court.

Later Mr. Bullitt stated that his recollection was that the postoffice department had informally agreed not to enforce the law for a reasonable time but that it did not specifically agree not to enforce the law until the supreme court had passed upon it.

HEAR NOTHING FROM OLNEY

No Word Received By President or Secretary of State.

Washington, March 11.—Neither President Wilson nor Secretary Bryan had received word today from Richard Olney of Massachusetts, who has been offered the post of ambassador to Great Britain. The president expressed himself to close friends today as hopeful that Mr. Olney would accept.

Both senators from Tennessee and the entire Tennessee congressional delegation have indorsed Former Governor Benton McMillin for a diplomatic post.

EXAMINATION IS A HARDSHIP

Hearing on Demands of 35,000 Eastern Firemen Continues.

New York, March 11.—John W. Locke, formerly a fireman, now an engineer on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, resumed the witness stand today at the hearings before the board which is arbitrating the demands of 35,000 firemen of Eastern roads.

Locke said that counting terminal delays a fireman's roundtrip on the Lake Shore consumed 46 hours, of which 36 hours was spent away from home. During this time away, the fireman was obliged to pay for four meals. It took sixteen years, asserted the witness before a fireman could become a regular freight engineer on the Lake Shore.

It was a hardship, said the witness, to take examinations for an engineer's position.

"A fireman is obliged to lay off for from two to four weeks to prepare for the examination," he explained, "and when you pass, it may be years before you are promoted."

The witness thought firemen should be given leave of absence on pay to take the examination as "it is, for the protection of the railroad that examinations are given so long before a man is promoted."

ALLEGED THAT EQUITY PEOPLE MADE SHIPPERS PAY TWO COMMISSIONS

HEAD OF WASHINGTON POLICE UNDER FIRE

who is the major of police of Washington, is now under investigation because of the faulty policing of the line of the suffrage parade. He claims that he did all that he could with the force at his command.

EVIDENCE IS CONTINUED

Witness Tells of Profane Reply Made to Him By Officer.

Washington, March 11.—Investigation of the responsibility of the police for the disorders which attended the women suffrage pageant on Monday, March 3, was continued today by the senate committee of inquiry with witnesses representing the sufffragists and the police, ready to continue testimony.

It was the intent of the police witnesses to show that their efforts to preserve order were sincere but they were handicapped by the immense crowd and lack of patrolmen. Witnesses for the suffragists intended to prove that the police were opposed to the parade and did not attempt to protect the marchers against insult and danger.

First Witness.

Edward S. Droop, president of the Washington board of trade, was today's first witness. He declared that half an hour before the parade began he believed Pennsylvania avenue was clear.

Dr. James Mythen, a clergyman of Baltimore, who marched in the Maryland division, said that the marchers were forced to walk in single file and that they were greeted all along the line by jeers and shouts and obscene remarks from the bystanders. He gave the numbers of several police officers who, he said, neglected to keep the crowds back. One officer to whom he complained, told him to "Go to hell."

Became Part of Crowd.

Dr. Mythen said that the police generally had become a part of the crowd and did nothing to restrain those who insulted the paraders. He testified that he had been told that Mary Melvin, a blind girl, who marched in the parade ,had been pulled out of line by rowdies and that her guide had difficulty in rescuing her.

John A. Johnston, commissioner of the district of Columbia, who has charge of the police department, was the next witness. He placed in the record all of the correspondence between his office and the suffrage leaders, relating to the issuance of the parade permits and the protection of the parade.

WILL BE ASKED TO INDORSE WATERWAY

Lake to Gulf Project to Be Put Before Wisconsin Legislature.

Madison, Wis., March 11.—The Wisconsin legislature will be asked to indorse a project for connecting Lake Superior and the Gulf of Mexico for steamboat traffic. More particularly it proposes to canalize the waterways from Lake Superior to the Mississippi river at Prescott, Wis., making it navigable for boats of heavy draft.

Assemblyman John Chinnock of Hudson estimates that the realization of the plan will by reducing cost of power for manufacturing, make Wisconsin one of the greatest industrial states in the Union, as well as providing a revenue to the Federal government for power sold amounting to $3,300,000 annually.

A joint resolution is in course of preparation memorializing congress to provide funds for carrying out the project.

President Has Not Fled.

Washington, March 11.—The Dominican minister today received a cablegram stating that Archbishop Nouel, provisional president of Santo Domingo, had not fled to Europe.

Attorney Drake Finally Agrees to Produce the Equity Records.

Statement By Another Equity Attorney Declared to Be False.

Probe By Senate Committee May Be Concluded This Week.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate grain investigation committee spent most of its time at the forenoon session listening to wrangles between the attorneys relative to the reception of testimony. Attorney Drake, for the Equity concern, was resisting stoutly attempts to get him to produce the records of the Equity relating to transactions with B. F. Benson, a chamber of commerce commission man, in which it has been charged that the Equity made the shippers pay a double commission. Finally, after the Equity people had tried to couple their agreement to produce this evidence with other matters, and to induce the committee to compel the chamber to produce information about disciplined members as a consideration for the production of this evidence, Mr. Drake agreed to submit the records, though without fixing a time.

Benson Again on Stand.

Mr. Benson was on the stand for cross-examination, and he testified that when grain is shipped on commission and two commissions are charged, the shipper is certainly paying too much to have his grain handled. Mr. Benson produced complete records of the transactions of his firm with the Loftus-Hubbard company and the Equity for three years and Drake was asked for

LAST BUCKETSHOP OPERATORS FINED

Washington, March 11.—Joseph Gatins of New York, and Virgil P. Randolph of Keene, Pa., were fined $9,000 each; William B. Price of Baltimore, was fined $1,000; Edward Everett Taylor of Washington, was fined $500, and Edward Weldon and James A. Anderson were fined $250 each in the district supreme court here today after pleading guilty to indictments charging conspiracy against the United States in the operation of bucketshops.

This was the last chapter in the government's nation-wide bucketshop crusade begun in 1908 which has resulted in the imposition of fines upon various defendants, aggregating $78,100.

Indictments against Henry M. Randolph, Charles T. Moorehead, Thomas H. Kemble and John P. Altberger for the same offense, were nolle prossed.

NEW TRIAL IS REFUSED FORMER OHIO SENATOR

GEORGE CETONE.

Columbus, Ohio, March 11.—The supreme court today refused a new trial to Former State Senator George Cetone of Dayton, under sentence to serve three years in the penitentiary in connection with the legislative bribery cases.

RETICENT AS TO MEETING

Members of Cabinet Have Little to Say About Session of Advisers.

President Declares That 'Merely Routine' Business Had Been Discussed.

Washington, March 11.—President Wilson held a two-hour meeting with his cabinet today, in which general policies governing the organization of the various departments were outlined and a few minor appointments discussed.

The president declared after the meeting that "merely routine" had been taken up. He added that he regarded cabinet meetings as a "clearing house" for the handling of details.

Members of the cabinet were reticent as to what had taken place, intimating that a general statement covering the business of the meeting might be prepared later. One of the cabinet officials stated that the president had not taken up with them the question of what legislation he should recommend to congress.

Busy Two Hours.

Washington, March 11.— President Wilson had a busy two hours today before his meeting with the cabinet. Secretary Garrison of the war department was on hand as soon as the president stepped into his private office at 9 o'clock. From 10 o'clock on, the president had a series of short conferences.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma was first on the list of callers. Senators Stone, Lodge and Smoot, the latter being the first Republican leader to call, had an

AUSTRIA PRACTICALLY FORBIDS SERVIA FROM HELPING MONTENEGRINS

King Peter's Troops Were to Assist in Capturing Scutari Fortress.

Servia Replies She Is Compelled to Aid Allies Under Treaty.

Feeling at High Pitch and Situation Is Extremely Delicate.

Belgrade, Servia, March 11.—The Austrian government today took a step regarded as equivalent to forbidding Servia to send troops to assist the Montenegrins in capturing the Turkish fortress of Scutari.

The Austrian minister to Servia, Baron Von Ugron von Abranfalva, informed Premier Pasitch that his government objected to Servian troops assisting in the siege of Scutari, which was to become the capital of Albania. He requested the immediate recall of any Servian troops which had been dispatched there.

The Servian premier in reply pointed out that under treaty arrangements Servia was compelled to assist her allies without regard to the future of Scutari.

The situation is regarded as extremely delicate. Feeling here is at a high pitch over the attitude taken by Austria.

The fortress of Scutari near the Montenegrin frontier, has been besieged by the Montenegrins without material success since the beginning of the Balkan war. Its capture and inclusion in the kingdom of Montenegro were the chief reasons for King Nicholas joining the hostilities.

When the European powers decided in principle on an autonomous Albania, in which Scutari was to be included, the king of Montenegro declared he would enter the fortress at the head of his troops, otherwise the reign of his family was doomed.

In the meantime the Servian troops had completed their campaign in Macedonia and Albania and advanced to the Adriatic coast at Durazzo, whence on March 7 they dispatched on board transports 5,000 Servian troops, including artillery to assist in the siege of Scutari.

It was this activity of Servia which called forth the Austrian protest today.

TRIAL AT BISMARCK.

Of Two Publishers Indicted for Misuse of the Mails.

Bismarck, N. D., March 11.—Sam Clark and Clarence Crockard, publishers of a monthly magazine issued here, today were placed on trial in Federal court here charged with sending obscene matter by interstate commerce in the using of express service. Hundreds of dealers throughout the Middle West and Northwest will be affected by the court's finding as they have been arrested for selling the publication, but their cases held up pending the outcome of the hearing here.

Gen. Parker Assigned.

OPPOSITION TO DR. NEILL

Southern Democrats May Oppose His Confirmation By Senate.

Threatens to Be First Serious Obstacle Encountered By President.

Washington, March 11.—Another short session of the senate today to receive and act on appointments made by President Wilson brought a lull in the activity of Democratic and Republican "steering" committees, which had resumed work on the preparation of the new senate committees. Republicans practically had completed their committee assignments but the Democratic managers were far from through with their task.

Opposition Develops.

Opposition to the confirmation of Dr. C. P. Neill, reappointed by President Wilson as commissioner of labor statistics, has developed among Southern Democratic senators and threatened today to be the first serious obstacle encountered by the new president in his dealings with the senate. Senators Tillman of South Carolina and Overman of North Carolina opposed Dr. Neill's reappointment because of a report he had made in 1911 upon conditions of labor and the character of women and child laborers in the Southern cotton manufacturing states.

The senate's session today began at 2 o'clock and no business was in sight but the consideration of appointments.

Committee to Consider.

A meeting of the committee on education and labor to consider the appointment of Dr. Neill has been called for Thursday by Chairman Borah. Several Democratic senators have asked that no action be taken until the senate has been reorganized and the new committee named.

Senator Borah said today that he would not take the responsibility for such action, but would submit Dr. O'Neill's appointment to the committee as it now exists.

SUFFRAGETTES SENT TO PRISON

Five Who Tried to Present Petition to King Are Arrested.

London, March 11.—The five suffragettes who yesterday attempted to reach the king with petitions while he was on his way to parliament were today sent to prison for periods ranging from twenty-one days to a month. The five young women gave their names as Lilian Wilcox, Dorothy Smith, Kathleen Paget, Gertrude Vaughan and Grace Stuart.

The Bow street magistrate before whom they were arraigned gave them an opportunity of escaping prison sentences by filing sureties for their future good behavior. The young women indignantly rejected this alternative.

They were formally charged with obstructing the police. The evidence showed that the police had received specific orders to prevent anyone from throwing a letter or a petition to the king while he was on the way to parliament.

The accused argued that their action was perfectly legal and was based on the right of every British subject to present a petition to the king. The magistrate explained that the right to present a petition to his majesty must be exercised through a minister.

Seven Hurt in Explosion.

Cherbourg, France, March 11.—Seven of the crew of the French submarine Foucault were injured, two fatally, by the explosion of a motor today.

NEW REVOLT FINANCED BY AMERICANS

Charge Formally Made in Chamber of Deputies in Mexico City.

Syndicate Said to Be Back of Former Governor of State of Sonora.

Federal Troops in Agua Prieta Find Themselves in Peculiar Position.

Mexico City, March 11.—Charges that an American syndicate is financially supporting the revolt of Former Governor Jose M. Mahtorena, in the state of Sonora created a sensation here today. The charges were formally made in the chamber of deputies last night by Deputy Querido Mohena.

Menaced in all Directions.

Douglas, Ariz., March 11.—Although ordered to evacuate Agua Prieta to prevent the possibility of international complications in the event of a battle, General Ojeda and his five hundred Federal troops today found themselves menaced in all directions by a horde of state troops. Ojeda feared that should he attempt to leave the town he might precipitate a battle that would endanger residents on the American side.

Situation Serious.

Washington, March 11.—Dispatches to the war department indicate a serious situation at Piedras Negras, Mex., where the forces under Governor Carranza appear to be in full control. General Aubert with Federal cavalry is reported near Monclave.

The railroad near Piedras Negras has been abandoned by the central government and Carranza is trying to operate the line by impressing discharged employes. Inhabitants of Piedras Negras fear the town may be destroyed.

Question of Recognition.

Inquiry from the Mexican foreign office as to the acceptability to this government of Emilio Rabasa as Mexican ambassador to Washington to succeed Senor Calero, retired, has brought the state department face to face with the question of formal recognition of the new provisional government of Mexico.

Up to this time Ambassador Wilson has been treating with the Huerta administration a de facto basis, and it now becomes necessary to decide whether formal recognition shall be extended, such as would be involved in the reception by President Wilson of the new ambassador.

PRISONER SHOT WHILE TRYING TO MAKE ESCAPE

Racine, Wis., March 11.—Sam Perry, aged 22 years, arrested by Detective Charles Christianson on a white slavery charge, made a break for liberty while on the way to jail and was shot and critically wounded by the officer. Christianson fired three shots, one shot entering the prisoner's back and penetrating the body. The other two shots entered the man's legs. He was hurried to a hospital and is in a serious condition.

BURGLARIZED MANY HOMES

Captured Crook Admits He Has Committed More Than Eighty Robberies.

Says He Has Stolen Jewelry Worth More Than $100,000.

San Francisco, Cal., March 11.—Hermann Conn, alias Frank Dale, the burglar wounded and captured in Golden Gate park last Saturday after a running fight in which an innocent spectator was mortally wounded, confessed in the city and county hospital last night that in the role of "gentleman burglar" he had committed more than eighty robberies in Chicago and various cities of the Pacific coast. Police then searched Conn's room in one of the principal downtown hotels and recovered jewelry and other loot valued at $50,000.

Conn had registered three times lately at this hotel, the last time on Jan. 28, when he signed the name "O. D. Conn, Kansas City." He maintained quarters at other hotels, however, and the police are conducting a search for more plunder.

According to Conn's confession he committed three robberies in Pasadena, Cal., between 6 and 10 in Los Angeles, 50 in San Francisco, 4 in San Jose, 15 in Chicago, and from 6 to 10 in Oakland and Berkeley, the suburban towns across the bay from that city.

According to his confession, Conn has stolen jewelry worth $100,000 in the last two years. Numerous pawn tickets were found in his suit case.

Conn had goods of which he had not disposed arranged neatly in cases, classified as a jeweler might have done.

Conn came from Chicago, where his mother and sister live, and up to two years ago, he says, he worked as a bookkeeper. He said he had been tempted to steal first by the wife of a Chicago clergyman. He refused to do the work she had outlined for him, and she engaged a young fellow to commit the robberies and then ran away with him for the West, according to his story.

It was this, Conn said, that had influenced him to become a burglar. Conn is 36 years of age.

A MOBILE WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE SHOULD BENEFIT OTHERS

Fourteen years ago I was quite sick, that is, most of the time found it almost impossible to be up and attend to my daily duties as a wife and mother. At times I thought I could not endure the suffering much longer, so naturally consulted our family physician who told me at once that I had a severe case of kidney trouble. I consulted another physician at Denver, Col., who told me that I had kidney trouble and needed careful treatment and a long rest. After doctoring with the physician for several months and receiving no benefit, I decided to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which had been recomended by my husband's partner. To be honest, I really did not have any faith in Swamp-Root but thought I would experiment on at least one bottle.

After taking one fifty-cent bottle I felt so much better that I bought a dollar bottle and continued its use for a few months, after which I felt so well and free from my former suffering that I pronounced myself cured.

I feel safe in saying that your Swamp-Root prevented my having Bright's Disease and therefore, saved my life.

To prove my gratitude I will allow you to publish this testimonial any time you wish. I also tell my friends what Swamp-Root done for me and know of several cases where cures have been accomplished. I believe almost every one living in the South should use Swamp-Root at least one or two months in the Spring as it rids the system of all impurities.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. W. L. BEMIS,
811 S. Cedar St., Mobile, Ala.

CHANGE IN COMPANIES

Interesting Question Raised in Action Before Judge Ensign.

Defendant Company Not Operating Dock Where Accident Occurred.

An interesting legal question has arisen in a personal injury suit which was brought to trial in district court before Judge Ensign yesterday afternoon in which Anna Matilda Benson, special administratrix, is suing the Lehigh Valley Coal company of Superior for $10,000 compensation for her husband's death.

Henry Benson, husband of the plaintiff, was killed on the Lehigh Valley coal dock at Superior on March 13, 1912. Suit was brought against the Lehigh Valley Coal company for damages for his wife and eight children. It developed yesterday when the case was called for trial, that a few days before the fatal accident, the operation of the dock passed from the control of the Lehigh Valley Coal company to the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales company, which is not a defendant to this action.

The change in the operating management of the dock took place on March 1, 1912. S. A. Anderson of St. Paul, who with Warner E. Whipple of this city, represents the plaintiff, yesterday argued against a motion to throw the case out. He claimed that Benson had never been notified of any change in the companies operating the dock and that he had never received any money from the new company for his services.

Luse, Powell & Luse of Superior, attorneys for the Lehigh Valley Coal company, asked for the dismissal of the action on the grounds that the wrong company had been named as defendant. In the answer, this issue was evaded by the Superior attorneys. It was first "sprung" when the case came to trial. Judge Ensign denied the motion to dismiss and allowed the trial to proceed.

Benson was killed while engaged in cleaning out a coal pocket. A heavy steel chute loaded with coal broke from its moorings and fell on his head and shoulders, causing injuries which resulted in his death. The case was started in the United States court but was remanded to the state court for trial.

The damages asked are in accordance with the Wisconsin statutes.

Mr. Shaw is very much impressed with the city. "Every time I visit here," he said, "it seems as it the city had grown in size."

The northern part of the state is dealt with in a manner that is said to be the most satisfactory that has yet been accorded this section.

To Locate in Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. H. I. Bedell, a pioneer real estate man of International Falls, will remove to Brainerd and open an office.

"I came to Duluth in 1891.

"I worked in the woods in the winters and on the docks in the summers.

"I made good money and the dollars looked small to me. I was a good fellow.

"I used to come to town after months in the camps with my pockets filled with money. I spent my money. I was everybody's friend.

"Seventeen months ago I got rheumatism. Then I fell down and broke my leg.

"Then I found out who my friends were. I found that I had no friends. Those I thought were my friends were not my friends when I was down and out and had no money to toss like a fool over the saloon bar."

So reads the substance of an entry scrawled in German script in a notebook in the pocket of John Reichard, the old man whose frozen body was found suspended from a tree by a piece of clothes line in Inglewood park Sunday.

Rather than return to the poor farm to continue a county charge, the gray-haired cripple had strangled himself to death a short distance from the Calvary road. The indications were that the man had been dead a week before the body was discovered by accident. The writing seemed to have been done but a short time before he ended his life.

Reichard's memory has been spared the ignominy of being buried as a county charge. A man who had known him years before came to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan yesterday afternoon to identify the body which had been found beside the isolated highway. When he saw that it was the man he had known he took charge of the remains. Today the funeral services took place after which the body was removed to Park Hill cemetery for interment.

"WHAT IS BOCK BEER?"

Duluth Brewmaster Explains That It Differs From Ordinary Beer Only in Being More "Highly Tried."

Many have asked, as each spring arrives, "What is bock beer?" This spring The Herald has received a communication demanding an answer. People face the "booze clerk" casually, look at a sign with a goat's head on it, and say: "Bock?"

"Hello, Harry, is this 'bock' on?"

"Yep—have one on the house. Believe me, the bock this spring is the best I ever tasted."

And so it goes. The same conversation every spring.

But as to bock beer. The Herald inquired of Mr. Bierhalter, brewmaster of the Fitger Brewing company. Here is his explanation, and he talks as though he knows his business:

"Bock beer is a much heavier beer than the ordinary lager. You often hear that it is a sort of spring tonic. That is the truth, for hops are a tonic anyway, taken in the raw or brewed in some form or other—like senna tea, for instance. Well, bock beer is simply stronger than the ordinary beer in the way of hops. It is what we call in the business 'highly tried' beer. That means that it is heavier in hops and and more strongly brewed. Men who take beer judiciously—and they should take any kind of beer that way—will find that it is good for his insides in general. As to its strength in alcohol, it must be conceded that it is stronger in alcohol than the general run of beer. This, however, is purely on account of the stronger brewing of the hops, which contain alcohol in ample quantities. The ordinary beer ranges in alcohol power from 3 to 4 per cent. Well, bock beer is about three-tenths of 1 per cent higher in alcohol."

How the custom of brewing bock beer in the spring only originated, is not known, but Mr. Bierhalter says it is an old one and has existed in Germany for as long as he can remember.

Brilliant New Color Scheme for Spring and Summer

From the New York Herald, March 2.

Mr. J. M. Gidding of J. M. Gidding & Co., who returned Friday on board the Mauretania from Paris, is quoted as follows:

"Everywhere I saw the reign of brilliant color. Women will blazon forth this coming season in all the tints of the rainbow. Even the more conservative who will be inclined to wear garments subdued in tone will have their wraps and gowns lined with these bright hues. While I was at Poiret's in Paris, I noticed many of these color combinations being produced. The artist had before him a great canvas on which he was flinging the color and brushing it about until he obtained the effect which suited him and this was used as the pattern from which many of these parti-colored fabrics were produced.

"The various art movements at the French capital undoubtedly have some influence. There is a tendency everywhere to get away from the conventional colors. A woman who is up to the last minute in style will wear combinations which are daring. The linings are in the most vivid colors. I should divide the styles into the Grecian, the Pompadour and the Elizabethan. The ruffs and the cuffs of the Elizabethan age are coming back, and a very charming combination they make with the 'modern styles. The crepons, which were in vogue 15 years ago or so, have returned in combination with the linings of remarkable colorings."

Mr. J. M. Gidding said that Paquin had introduced some strikingly attractive styles which suggested the Elizabethan era.

At the establishment of Doucet he had seen a crepe the color of the cordial Chartreuse. China yellows were in evidence in several places. The bright colors, especially in yellow, were employed sparingly in trimming.

Among the new things, Mr. Gidding observed a Grecian brocade of gold and silver with pompadour linings and trimmings.

"Medleys of Grecian hues are to be seen in every direction," said Mr. Gidding, "and they are ingeniously combined with plainer fabrics to give an effect which will be suddenly revealed. Here, for instance, is a peony red wrap with a lining which runs the entire gamut of color. There may be seen plain serges, checks and stripes and very few mixtures, so far as the outside of garments is concerned; but in collars, cuffs and linings there are combinations which will make all observers realize that there is something new and charming."

The lower courts have held that oral betting is not a crime, and while in the absence of a final ruling there will be no general reopening of tracks, it is understood that a plan is on foot to have the association pool issues and hold short meetings this season at Belmont Park, Saratoga, and perhaps two other courses.

COURT ENJOINS ELECTRICAL MEN

Restrains Them From Interfering With Postal Company's Property.

Chicago, March 11.—An injunction restraining locals No. 9 and No. 134, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, from interfering with the property of the Postal Telegraph & Cable company, was granted here today by Judge Carpenter in the United States district court.

The restraining order, which is temporary, is the result of a bill filed by the government charging that the electrical workers, to retaliate against the inauguration of an "open shop" policy by the Postal company, entered into a campaign of depredations during which wires and cables belonging to the company were destroyed.

Officers and members of the two locals are warned in the restraining order that a violation of the decree will mean contempt of court.

THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

Los Angeles Times: Cosmo Hamilton, the English playwright and novelist, was attacking women at a studio tea in Washington Square.

"Woman is barbarous," he said. "She clothes herself in the skins of cruelly slaughtered beasts and in the feathers of cruelly slaughtered birds. She decorates herself with bits of bright stone dug out of the earth. She paints her face red and white. She marries for money rather than for love. All this is barbaric."

"But," objected a woman, "but, Mr. Hamilton, you must admit that woman is honest. When did you ever hear of a woman stenographer or cashier running off with her employer's money?"

"Never," Mr. Hamilton answered promptly. "When a woman stenographer or cashier runs off with her employer's money, she always keeps the record straight by taking her employer along with her."

WOMAN SUED PRIEST.

Rebuke From the Pulpit About Dress Caused Fine in Germany.

Berlin Dispatch in the New York Times: Berlin—A priest of the hamlet of Schnittweiler has just been punished for rebuking from the pulpit the daughter of a teacher because her manner of dressing displeased him.

He prefaced his remarks by a denunciation of the modern woman's fashions, named the young woman and ordered her to leave the church, saying, "This is no comedy theater."

The young woman left the church and the priest warned the other women present to take the example to heart.

The young woman brought suit for insult. The priest was fined fifty marks ($11.90) and compelled to make a public apology.

SHE HAD ONLY TWO FEET.

Louisville Times: A young cowboy who recently stopped in Louisville a few days with two or three companions, was given the opportunity to meet several Kentucky girls, as he had expressed a wish to do. He was credited with being the owner of a small ranch and he had stated frankly that he was looking for a young woman to make his wife.

The hostess at party where the young Westerner was noticed how there seemed to be only one girl there, so far as the cowboy was concerned. After the girl had left, the hostess noticed she had gone away without her rubbers, and told the young Lochinvar to take them to her. He was delighted.

The next day he appeared at the girl's home on his mission.

"But you have brought only one," she told him.

"Oh, I know that. I'll bring the other one tomorrow. My, but I wish you was a centipede!"

"I cannot say enough in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Before I took this medicine I was all run down and only weighed 99 pounds; now I balance the scale at 170 pounds. My husband was also very thin and delicate looking, weighed often much less and never over 150 pounds, and now he weighs as much as I do—170 pounds.

"I would not keep house or go on a trip without a bottle of Duffy's. If I get sick on a train it is the first thing I look to, and when I take a lake trip, I am sure it is with me."—Mrs. John McGehean, 986 Paradrome, Mt. Adams, Cincinnati, Ohio.

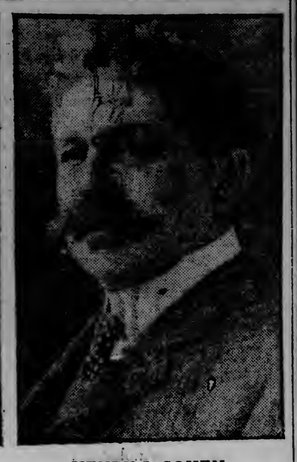
ARE WORKING STEADILY ON BRAINERD'S NEW CHARTER

A. J. HALSTAD.



HENRY I. COHEN.

Brainerd, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brainerd's new charter commission of fifteen is busily engaged in discussing amendments to the present charter and studying the various forms of commission government. A petition for commission government providing for three commissioners has been presented to the charter commission.

A. J. Halsted is the president of the charter commission. He has been a resident of Brainerd thirty years, mayor four terms, president of the Brainerd Commercial club, president of the Minnesota State Editorial association, vice president of the last charter commission, and is a member of the Republican state central committee and editor of the Brainerd Tribune.

Henry I. Cohen, secretary of the charter commission, has been a Brainerd resident for thirty years and is prominent in the business and fraternal life of the city. He served on the former charter commission, has been a member of the city council and was deeply interested in the inception of the Carnegie public library in Brainerd.

THE POET OF THE CHILDREN WAS BORN 106 YEARS AGO

Some Gentle Lights on the Life of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Kansas City Times: Picture for yourself—for your own mind's pictures are often quite as satisfactory as any that the artist can draw—a cozy library study in an old New England house, and in the room a man writing at a table. A white-haired man he is, with bright blue eyes and a mouth whose kindly smile cannot be hidden by a thick, white beard. The man is writing letters to children—children whom he has never seen, nor is ever likely to see. But all the same these small folks call him friend—for the man at the table is Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the children's poet.

Of course, he was a grown folks' poet, too, and plenty of men and women all over the world have read the things he wrote and have been happier because he wrote them. But most of all he is the children's poet, and the chances are, you grownup, that most of the things of Longfellow's you ever read were in school. The one about the spreading chestnut tree, for instance—remember how it begins:

"Under the spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith, a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands."

Such a Lot of Old Friends.

And there are plenty more that you remember from that same time—"The Wreck of the Hesperus," and "Hiawatha," and "Evangeline," and "The Courtship of Miles Standish"—how they come flocking back.

Feb. 27 is the anniversary of the day when Longfellow was born, and when we remember him, perhaps—who knows—in some far-off land of flowers he will sit up and rub his dear old eyes, just like the grandfather and grandmother in "The Blue Bird," and smile because we have taken time in our hurry and bustle to stop and think about him.

When you come to read about the children's poet you cannot help thinking how much you would have liked to know the man. For his life, like the poems he wrote, was bright and warm with friendliness. He lived in a big, old-fashioned house in Cambridge, where old elms kept it from being too cold in winter or too warm in summer, yet did not keep the sunshine out in any season. Craigie House, the poet's home, was a place that was always open to his many friends, children as well as grownups. And before we go any farther, listen to a story about "the spreading chestnut tree."

The Chestnut Tree.

There really was such a tree, you know, and it stood before a real smithy on Brattle street, in Cambridge. Longfellow often used to stop there and watch the brawny smith at his work. But one day the Cambridge city fathers decided that Brattle street ought to be widened—and doubtless they were right—and widening it meant cutting down the chestnut tree. Longfellow protested, but the tree came down all the same.

And then some city official proposed that the school children of the city should contribute their pennies and their nickels so as to make a big arm chair out of the wood of the chestnut tree, and the chair was given to Longfellow. Of course, he couldn't help being pleased after that, and he gave orders that any child who wanted to might come to Craigie house at any time to see the chair. And Thomas Wentworth Higginson, who has written a very interesting little book about the Cambridge poet, says it used to annoy the housemaids at Longfellow's house considerably because they were eternally having to wipe up after small and muddy feet.

There were other children nearer to the poet; at first his own two daughters and afterward, when they were grown up and married their husbands built homes near Craigie house and the Longfellow grandchildren were often with him. The fields that lay between were often filled with the Longfellow children and their playmates.

Longfellow married twice, first when he was 24 years old, and again in 1843, seven years after the death of his first wife. And these two marriages, though they brought him his greatest happiness, brought his also his heaviest griefs.

Longfellow's first wife was Mary Storer Potter. She was only 19 when the poet married her, and of a rare beauty. She had dark hair and dark blue eyes and the fresh, wild rose coloring that sometimes comes to those who live close to the ocean, for her father's home was Portland, Me. Longfellow was a professor at Bowdoin college at this time, living on a salary of $900 a year, and their home was the proverbial cottage of "love's young dream." We get a little glimpse of it in an old diary of Longfellow's, under the date of June 23, 1831:

"I can almost fancy myself in Spain, the morning is so soft and beautiful. The tessellated shadow of the honeysuckle lies motionless upon my study floor, as if it were a figure in the carpet; and through the open window comes the fragrance of the wild brier and the mock orange. The birds are carolling in the trees and their shadows flit across the window as they dart to and fro in the sunshine, while the murmur of the bee, the cooing of the doves from the eaves and the whirring of a little humming bird that has its nest in the honeysuckle send up a sound of joy to meet the rising sun."

From this little nest Longfellow and his bride flitted four years later. He had received a call to come to Harvard as professor of foreign languages.

His Wife Died in Europe.

First he was to spend some time abroad in study. There he and Mrs. Longfellow went after leaving Bowdoin, and he was to return from this trip alone. Mrs. Longfellow died in Rotterdam, after an illness of some weeks, in which she remained alert and cheerful, but growing gradually weaker. Poor Longfellow's grief was pathetic enough. In a letter to his wife's sister he said simply:

"I was so happy with my dear Mary that it is very hard to be alone. The sympathies of friendship are doubtless something—but after all how little, how unsatisfying they are to one who has been so loved as I have been."

Seven years later Longfellow married Miss Elizabeth Appleton, with whom he lived most happily in Craigie house for eighteen years. The story of her tragic death from injuries received by fire is familiar; and it was after this that Longfellow is said to have written his famous poem beginning:

"I stood on the bridge at midnight."

The poem goes on:

"For my heart was hot and restless,
And my life was full of care,
And the burden laid upon me
Seemed greater than I could bear.

"But now it has fallen from me,
It is buried in the sea;
And only the sorrow of others
Throws its shadow over me."

Longfellow's meeting of his tragedies was characteristically brave. Great though they were, he would not allow them to embitter him nor wholly wreck his life. And so it came to pass that Longfellow found much of peace and quiet happiness in the twenty years of life that were left him after his wife's death. He died in 1882, 75 years old, and Prof. W. J. Rolfe has suggested that there might well be carved upon the poet's tomb a verse from one of his less widely known poems, "The Golden Legend," which runs:

"His gracious presence upon earth
Was as a fire upon a hearth;
As pleasant songs, at morning sung,
The words that dropped from his sweet tongue
Strengthened our hearts; or, heard at night,
Made all our slumbers soft and light."

For continuous service on one job, Councilman Henry Glace of Mauch Chunk, Pa., thinks he is entitled to first place. Mr. Glace entered the service of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company at the Packerton car shops, in September, 1874, more than thirty-eight years ago. He was then put to work on the bolt machine and he has been at that particular work ever since.

WHISKY DRINKERS ARE IRRATIONAL

Man Under the Influence of Whisky, Mentally Irresponsible.

"He was drunk at the time, and of course didn't know what he was doing." But he did it, that's the point. The possibility of a man doing some horrible or strange act, while under the influence of liquor, does not disturb many drinkers. But it should. The possibility of a wrecked life and the happiness of others, destroyed by a few glasses of whisky, should make all drinkers ask themselves if it is not time to stop.

The easiest, quickest and most positive method to be rid of the terrible drink habit is through the "Neal" Three-Day Treatment. Here a man may have all appetite, craving or desire for liquor destroyed in three days and he will leave the Institute at the end of the third day mentally and bodily refreshed. There are no hypodermic injections used, as the treatment is composed entirely of harmless vegetable medicines. Address Neal Institute, cor. THE DIVINING ROD.

In "The Revolt of the Farmer's Wife," told in the February number of Harper's Bazar, occurs this:

"Why, only this year—September, 1912—we saw a woman, intelligent, educated, and well thought of in the community in one of our Northern states, using a divining rod! It sounds incredible, but the thing is true. The old well at a farmhouse had gone dry, and the housewife induced a large, comfortable country woman, reputed to be able to find water, to come over and walk about with a forked stick in spots where a new well was wanted. We watched curiously, and at a place where the ground dipped down the forked stick turned in the diviner's hands. Thrilling moment! 'That will be right handy to the kitchen, won't it?' said the gratified housewife. We watched anxiously when the men came up from the village and began to gore. And as they worked on and on for two days witout finding water our spirits rose, for that divining rod had tipped just fifteen feet below an old open-pit cesspool."

The march of progress, according to this Bazar article by Martha Bensley Bruere and Robert Bruere, has been led by the women of the rural districts, and the divining rod is the exception that proves the rule of general betterment.

HOW TO CHOOSE A SPOUSE.

Leslie's Weekly: Mrs. Charles Ellinwood, a social worker, proposes the commission plan. She would have couples go before a commission, the young girl to testify as to her ability to cook, and the young man to answer the following questions:

1—How long have you known this young woman?
2—Where did you meet her?
3—Why do you think you love her?
4—How much money have you in the bank?
5—What is your business?
6—How much do you earn weekly?
7—Is your disposition good?

Now the object of all agitation of the marriage problem is not so much to decrease the number of marriages as to see that people are better mated. So that the tie will not be broken. But if only those of good dispositions are to be permitted to marry, the number of those taking the step will necessarily be greatly decreased. An extended acquaintance on the part of the principals, the publication of banns or the necessity of securing a license a certain number of days before it could be used (except in certain cases where an immediate ceremony is demanded), would be a check on the hasty marriages which so largely feed the divorce mill.

Unlocked Mill City Safe Blown.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 11.—"This safe is unlocked; don't blow it," were the warning words left on a safe in the office of a sash and door factory when John A. Johnson, proprietor, left for his home Saturday night. When he entered the place Monday he found that his warning had been disregarded. The safe had been reduced to a pile of debris by a charge of nitro-glycerin.

FIRST DAY OF REGISTRATION

Polls Will Remain Open Until 9 o'Clock at Night.

Today is the first registration day for the municipal election April 1.

The boards of registration opened their session at 6 o'clock this morning at the polling places, and they will have the books open for registration until 9 o'clock this evening.

Next Saturday, March 15, will be the second and last registration day.

There is an opinion prevalent that the registration on the day the new charter was voted upon will serve for the coming election. That registration was for the city election set for Feb. 4 under the old charter if the new charter failed of adoption. The adoption of the new charter annuled the registration, as it eliminated the February election.

A new registration is necessary for the election April 1 and all voters must register today or Saturday if they wish to vote April 1 without further formality. A voter who fails to register today or Saturday may vote April 1 only by filing an affidavit of residence corroborated by the affidavits of two freeholders of the election district in which he lives.

The president arranged to receive this afternoon the judges of the United States court of customs appeals, the United States commerce court and the court of appeals of the district of Columbia.

Discusses Philippines.

Secretary Garrison's conference with President Wilson was to discuss many questions, affecting the Philippine Islands. Although the secretary did not wish to state the president's position in regard to Philippine independence, the impression about the White House today was that the subject would not be taken up at this special session of congress but would be held over until December.

National Committeeman H. W. Dooley of Porto Rico, called to ask about the administration's policy for Porto Rico.

"We are after a larger measure of home rule for Porto Rico," said he, and he intimated that he would have further conference with the president and Secretary Garrison. The president recently favored the idea of granting citizenship to Porto Ricans.

P. A. Stovall of Savannah, Ga., is being urged for a diplomatic post. It has been considered likely that he would go to Switzerland.

Justice J. W. Gerard of New York continues to be prominently mentioned for an ambassadorship.

ALLEGED THAT EQUITY PEOPLE MADE SHIPPERS PAY TWO COMMISSIONS

their records of these transactions, so that the story of each car could be made complete. Mr. Drake said he would produce the records if the chamber of commerce were compelled to produce a list of disciplined members, with the reasons for disciplining them.

Chairman Works said: "The issue is whether or not you will produce these records. Will you or will you not?"

"I will not," said Mr. Drake, "unless we get the list of disciplined members."

"Then that settles that question," said Chairman Works.

Senator Lende of the committee was not satisfied with this however, and insisted that the records be produced. Then Mr. Drake fought against producing anything touching business of the Equity Co-operative exchange prior to Aug. 1, 1912, when Loftus took hold of it, on the ground that the present Equity concern is a different affair. C. R. Fowler, one of the attorneys for the chamber of commerce, said that the Equity concern had been in business two years at least before that date.

Statement Is Desired.

Edward Hofstedt, one of the attorneys for the Equity, who represents one Cooper, manager for the Equity before Loftus took hold, said that before Aug. 1, 1912, the concern was in business only by a special arrangement with the railroad and warehouse commission.

Representative Fowler declared that in five minutes he could produce state records proving that statement to be false and he immediately left the senate chamber, returning later with a bundle of records which will be considered by the committee later.

Mr. Drake was about to resume his cross-examination of Mr. Benson, but Senator Lende said he was not satisfied with the situation so far as the production of the Equity's records was concerned, and he insisted that they should be produced. Mr. Drake finally consented to produce them later.

Chairman Works said this morning that the investigation might be concluded this week. James A. Manahan, attorney for the house grain investigating committee, has returned from Washington, and sat for a while this morning with the Equity representatives.

The house committee will resume its work tomorrow.

Buckshopping Insinuated.

Insinuations that Minneapolis grain dealers are engaged in a bucketshop business were thrown back and forth at the close of yesterday's hearing before the senate grain investigating committee. B. F. Benson of the Benson-Newhouse-Stabeck Grain Commission company and George S. Loftus of the Equity exchange promised to have their records before the committee when it met today so it might see if there is any evidence of bucketshop business.

Benjamin Drake, Jr., asked Mr. Benson when on the stand yesterday if he had not told C. B. Cheney, a newspaper man, after the hearing last week, at which Fred Schmidt and H. G. Bundy, elevator men from Voltaire, N. D., testified that the Equity exchange charged them storage on grain that had not been stored, if he had not told Mr. Cheney that the deal showed that the exchange was a bucketshop.

H. V. Mercer, attorney for the chamber of commerce, and C. R. Fowler objected and Chairman S. D. Works sustained them, but the committee overruled him. Mr. Benson declared that he had not made such a statement but that he did say that the deal was of a character under which bucketshopping was possible, because confirmation of sales or storage receipts had not been sent.

Mr. Drake, in pressing his question, said his reason for doing so was that he had a suspicion that the Benson-Newhouse-Stabeck company had been doing some bucket shopping itself. He asked that all its records of option transactions with the Equity exchange and the Loftus-Hubbard company for three years back be brought in. The attorneys objected, but Mr. Benson agreed with the understanding that the Equity exchange bring its records of the same transactions.

Laugh at Drake's Expense.

The committee had a laugh at the expense of Mr. Drake when Mr. Benson first came on the stand. Mr. Drake first asked the name of his "hyphenated concern" and, when told, asked if its members had not been in gold mining business. Mr. Benson said he knew of no such transactions and Drake wanted to know about the Stabeck Gold Mining company. B. F. Simpson, attorney for the commission men, remarked that H. N. Stabeck and F. O. Gold were associated in the Gold-Stabeck Land & Credit company.

Nels Olson, of Johnson & Olson, and S. J. Skewis, of the Skewis Grain company, were called to testify regarding a car of barley which J. E. Hagebeck, manager of the Farmers' Mercantile Elevator company at Madison, Minn., testified had been shipped to the Equity exchange, the return on which showed that Nels Olson, for the Osceola Mill company, had refused the car because it was not up to sample. Mr. Olson testified that he had no recollection of any such transaction. Mr. Skewis testified he bought the car from the Loftus-Hubbard company, and that the car was delivered to the Exchange Elevator company, which is on the Minneapolis & St. Louis track. As the car came in on this road there should be no switching charge, he said, although the return showed a switching charge. Mr. Simpson said that a representative of the Osceola Mill company will be called to show that they had no knowledge of any such transaction.

Inspecting Normal Schools.

Members of the legislative committees on normal schools were in Mankato yesterday afternoon inspecting the school there and ascertaining its needs. Those in the party were: Senators M. J. McGrath and Ole Sageng, Representatives Martin Swartz, W. A. Just and Julius Thorsen. They were met by John C. Wise, resident director of the state normal school board and they had dinner together at the Saulpaugh. After the inspection of the school buildings the committee left for Winona, where they will inspect the Winona normal school this morning and then return to St. Paul.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

BODY OF WOMAN TAKEN FROM THE MISSISSIPPI.

Boggess of the United States marine hospital service, has been taken from the Mississippi river at St. Genevieve, Mo. Mrs. Boggess disappeared from Kansas City, Mo., last August. Detectives traced her to St. Louis, where it was found she had taken a rowboat and gone down the Mississippi. A boat, half filled with water, was found at Fort Gage, Ill., a few days later, and from this it was concluded that Mrs. Boggess was drowned.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

RUBBER BOOTS ARE NEEDED

Duluth's Streets Are in Worst Condition in History.

Slush Is Everywhere and Citizens Complain of Neglect.

Slush, slush and then more slush. Slush is everywhere.

The streets of Duluth are reeking with filth and the sun is bringing more heaps of it to the surface every day.

The snow water is running down from the hillsides, overflowing the streets and flooding the crossings. Even in the downtown sections the conditions are so bad that at many crossings it is difficult to get from one side to another without getting wet feet. A few more days of warm weather and Duluthians will be driven to equip themselves with rubber boots as a matter of self-defense.

The board of public works yesterday started out a crew of men to open up the gutters on the avenues and the streets to get them in shape to handle the water from the melting snow. Ditches are being dug to guide the water into the sewers.

The sentiment in the business section of the city is that the city officials should attack Superior street first. The prevalent opinion is that the municipality should not wait for the sun to do the bulk of the work, but that the winter's accumulation of snow, ice and dirt should be loaded into wagons and carted away at once.

A business man said this morning that the streets of Duluth are worse this spring than he has ever seen them before and that he had thought in the past that he had seen them as bad as they could possibly be allowed to become. The condition is aggravated because the streets were sadly neglected last fall. The works board was out of cash and the filth was allowed to lie untouched until it had been covered by the snow. It's still there, with a lot more added to it.

If immediate steps are not taken to remove the accumulation the condition will be frightful when it dries and is blown about in blinding clouds. The menace to the health of the community is another important factor which makes it imperative that the streets be cleaned without delay.

CLEVELAND CHIEF IS TO PRESENT ALIBIS

Kohler Says He Can Refute Statements Made By Prosecution.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—With resumption of the trial of Chief of Police Fred Kohler on charges of immorality and misconduct in office set for this afternoon, counsel for the prosecution stated its expectation of concluding by nightfall. The defense will begin the presentation of its evidence tomorrow.

In refutation of the charges that he "surreptitiously visited the home of Mrs. May Shearer while her husband was absent," it is said that Kohler will present alibis for two of the dates alleged and a complete defense for the visit to the Shearer home on June 5.

Friends of Samuel D. Shearer yesterday described to the civil service commission the conversation which followed when Shearer found Chief of Police Fred Kohler in company with Mrs. Shearer in her home on June 5, 1912. This and other visits, Mayor Baker and City Solicitor Wilcox claim, constitute conduct subversive to good order in the police department, gross immorality and conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman.

Charles Bull, a friend of Shearer, said that from where he stood outside the rear door of the Shearer home on that night, he heard a voice say to Shearer: "You know I've got as much right in this house as you have," and "Sam you wouldn't put this little girl out of the house at night, would you?"

Neighbors testified that Chief Kohler entered the Shearer home that night an hour before Mr. Shearer broke in a window to gain entrance.

A neighbor of the Shearers, Levis Essig, said he heard some one trying to get out the rear door just after Shearer broke through a front window.

"GOOD" EYE GONE; "BAD" EYE GOOD

Wisconsin Man Has Remarkable Experience Due to Accident.

Marinette, Wis., March 11.—Blind in one eye since birth, losing the other by accident, and then discovering that the sight of the blind one had returned, is the strange experience of Severin S. Hermanson, 49.

In a recent sleigh ride tipover, a sliver penetrated the eyeball of the "good" eye and also the brain. Doctors said that he would never see again for the sight of the "good" eye was gone. Today, however, when bandages were removed Hermanson picked up a newspaper and began to read.

To his own and the doctors' amazement it was found that the sight of the "bad" eye was excellent but that of the "good" was gone. It is believed that the sliver struck a nerve when it pertruded the brain and performed an operation on the "bad" eye.

HATCH IS NOT YET MANAGER

Council Fails to Act on Appointment By Water and Light Board.

No resolution or ordinance was introduced at the council meeting last night to aprove the action of the board of water and light commissioners making S. R. Hatch manager of that department at a salary of $3,000 per year.

Notice of the promotion of Mr. Hatch from acting manager to manager was filed with the council a week ago, being part of the proceedings of a meeting of the board which were forwarded to the aldermen.

This could have been done by the water and light board without any action on the part of the council prior to Jan. 3, on which date the new charter became effective. Under the new charter none of the city boards can transact such business and have it become operative unless approved by the council, which takes the place of the commissioners until they take office April 14.

The city attorney has made several rulings which cover that situation and others of like nature. At its next meeting the council may be asked to ratify the action of the water and light board making Mr. Hatch manager of the department.

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF—GROWS HAIR

Don't Pay 50 Cents for Worthless Hair Tonics—Use Old, Reliable, Harmless "Danderine"—Get Results.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM.

Four Local Musicians Heard Before Matinee Musicale.

Members of the Matinee Musicale yesterday heard a program that was well balanced and full of merit.

Mrs. Leo Ball, who has not been heard before the club for some time sang Massenet's "Air of Salome," from "Herodiade," which was charming and artistic, and in response to a hearty applause she gave as an encore, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," with effective appeal.

Miss Winifred Hicks opened the program with an interesting group of piano numbers by Max Reger, which were played for the first time before the club, each one of the numbers being interpreted with musicianly understanding and artistic ability.

Miss Marjorie May Harrison played Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brilliant in B Minor," with Mrs. D. H. Day at the second piano playing the orchestral accompaniment with an artist's effacement of herself in her work. Miss Harrison played with a fine warm tone and effective touch and was warmly received by her audience.

Miss Alma Hopkins of Superior sang for the first time before the club and she gave genuine pleasure in her group of songs, her full rich contralto voice of good range and sweet clearness being well handled. Mrs. Fred Bradbury played her accompaniments with her usual completeness.

The program was arranged by Miss Theresa Lynn.

Request Program.

A request program will be arranged for the next meeting of the club by Mrs. Stephen H. Jones and Mrs. D. H. Day. Members who particularly enjoyed special numbers during the year which they would like to hear repeated may send them to Mrs. Jones or Mrs. Day on signed slips and a selection will be made by the board of directors from these requests for the program.

The directors of the club planned at a meeting held yesterday to hold this program in one of the large churches in the evening and to invite non-members and men who are interested. It is also hoped to make it a free program.

Mrs. G. Herbert Jones and Mrs. Millie Bunnell have charge of the arrangements for the affair.

Miss Mary Bradbury arranged a most interesting program which was given last Friday at the Nettleton school under the auspices of the philanthropic committee of the club.

BETTER FARMING WORK DISCUSSED

Officers of North Dakota Association Are Conferring at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. R. Rogers and P. L. Howe of Minneapolis and all the North Dakota directors of the Better Farming movement of this state are in session here today with President E. J. Weiser and Secretary Cooper of Fargo. The appropriation for the work this season will be definitely determined and plans for the year's work agreed upon. A great deal of enthusiasm is felt over the prospects for the second year.

Entries in Hog Contest.

The proposed hog contest, for which the First National bank of Fargo offered a large cash prize, has caught on with a great deal of popular favor in North Dakota. Secretary Cooper of the Better Farming movement, under the auspices of which the awards are to be made, announced that the entries closed last night and that there were 200 contestants from all parts of the state. Two years ago the First National put up $1,000 in cash prizes for corn and a large sum again last year. This year the officials decided that having gotten the people to raising corn it was necessary to have something to eat the cereal and the pork contests were initiated. They close Nov. 20.

Hugh J. People of New Rockford has offered a $300 cash prize for the best acre of alfalfa grown from new seed in Eddy county in 1913 and the Better Farming association has also been asked to make the award for that prize.

The Silk Show Is Free.

No attempt is made to sell goods at the display on the third floor. Come to Gray's tomorrow and look at the pretty things to your heart's content.

TERRIBLE GALE IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Sydney, N. S. W., March 11.—A 60-mile gale swept this city today causing several fatalities and doing great damage ashore and afloat. Sixty street cars were derailed by the wind, several yachts were wrecked at their moorings and chimneys toppled over throughout the city. A deluge of rain accompanied the gale. One man was electrocuted, three men were drowned in the harbor and ten horses were killed by a falling electric wire.

Suburban traffic was brought to a standstill until the storm abated. A number of buildings were wrecked and trees uprooted. Many accidents were reported in which people were injured and in one case death may result.

A full record of fatalities has not yet been compiled. Several of the finest yachts in the harbor felt the full force of the gale.

WOODMEN IN CONVENTION

Over 100 Delegates From States of the Northwest.

Over 100 delegates to the ninth annual convention of the Minnesota district of the Woodmen of the World, are in the city, swarming through the various hotels and making things interesting for hotel clerks and ticket agents. The convention of the two bodies concerned opened this morning at 10 o'clock in a general meeting at Foresters' hall, corner of Fourth avenue west and First street. The two bodies are the Woodmen of the World and the Woodmen circle, which consists of the women relatives of the members of the order proper.

The Minnesota district comprises Minnesota and North and South Dakota. The session will conclude tomorrow night with a social evening and dance and the election of officers will take place tomorrow afternoon.

Addresses of Welcome.

At this morning's session, which was an open meeting, the usual speeches of welcome and the responses were given. The invocation was given by Rev. W. E. Harmann, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church at the West end. The address of welcome for the city was given by President Hoar of the city council and the address of welcome in behalf of local mmebers of the order was given by J. A. Le Moignan. For the women of the order, Dr. Mary McCoy spoke in welcoming address; and the responses were made by John W. Geiger, head consul of Iowa and manager for the district; and by Mrs. Emma B. Manchester of Omaha, supreme guardian of the Woodmen circle; and also by Dr. A. D. Cloyd, sovereign physician of the order, whose home is in Omaha.

This afternoon the Woodmen of the World are meeting at the old Masonic temple and the Circle is meeting at Foresters' hall. At 2 o'clock the members of the Circle had their pictures taken at Courthouse Square and at 5 o'clock the delegates to the Woodmen convention were also "flashed." W. are especially invited; but at the same time the members of the latter order will be conducting an initiation at the old Masonic temple. OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

On the Passing of Puffs, Waves, Rats and Other Fads.

Puffs and curls and rats, the Marcelle wave and all the elaborateness of coiffure which long held sway and ruined more heads of hair than can be imagined, have had their day, and it is ended. The trend now is directly opposite to the top-heavy, over-dressed, fashions that have been grotesque in the extreme lengths to which they have been carried. Simplicity is now the key-note, and it is considered in poor taste to wear the false articles of the hairdresser in the extreme manner that prevailed for so long.

The change comes none too soon, for the padding and extra weight that women have carried about on their heads in some form or another for five or six years has pretty nearly done for what natural hair the average woman possessed. If it hadn't been that many have given special attention to the hair and scalp while severely taxing both, there surely would have been a race of baldheaded women, who would find a return to simpler methods of dressing the hair impossible, because they hadn't any hair to dress. As it is, the Grecian fashion of hair dressing is not taken to kindly by many women. Simplicity is welcome enough, perhaps, but when one hasn't any more than two wisps of hair to dress that one can call one's own, the simple life from the hair-dressing standpoint becomes something of a tragedy.

Women attained the mode previously by pinning puffs and curls in profusion to what hair they possessed. Now these must be removed. Parting the hair on the side or down the middle, as per fashion's dictum, isn't going to be a bit more becoming to a host of women than the pompadoured style has been. However, this is now the proper thing, as is also the bun, which is the proper term for the coil, worn either low at the back of the neck, or higher up, so that it reaches even with the top of the head. The part, the bun, the barrette, jeweled or otherwise, and the velvet ribbon, are to be seen upon every head whose owner makes an attempt to be properly coiffured.

But if it is strange to some of us—this drastic change—and positively ugly on some of us, the change is going to give the hair a breathing space and a chance to grow, and our scalps, weakened from overheating and the extra pounds of hair borne by them, will be exceedingly grateful. So away with puffs and rats and waves and curls, and out with the bottle of crude petroleum in a mad effort to grow luxuriant hair of our own.

CIVIC "POOR RELATIONS."

Most cities, and small towns as well, have their neglected neighborhoods. The latest article in a series which The Survey is publishing on "satellite cities," by Graham Romeyn Taylor, points out that the towns across the Mississippi from St. Louis are "out in the cold" so far as sharing the civic life of the larger city is concerned. But even one of these "east side" towns has, in turn, its own forlorn and outcast community—"Hungary Hollow."

Isolated from the main part of Granite City, this neighborhood is one of the largest settlements of Bulgarians and Macedonians to be found in the United States, according to the investigations of the Federal immigration commission. At one time there were several thousand, but the number diminished, and when 600 went back to the Balkan war last fall scarcely 1,000 were left.

With only two paved streets, practically no sanitary supervision and excessive overcrowding—as many as 200 living in one time in forty-five rooms—the conditions of these immigrants are peculiarly wretched and jarring in the advantages America is supposed to afford. Furthermore they are exploited by their own countrymen who, through "Macedonian Mercantile Companies" sell them everything from a glass of beer to a newspaper in their own language. Yet they live in the cheapest way and save a large proportion of their wages. From one bank no less than $50,000 was drawn in six weeks during the Balkan war.

An American almost thinks himself in a foreign country when he goes over into Hungary Hollow. In the latter part of May you will find every doorway and window framed in green boughs brought in from the nearest woodland. On all sides you will hear singing and the music of the concertina, while every saloon and coffee house overflows with all sorts of festivity. You will be astonished to learn the occasion of it all; these comparatively uneducated foreigners are having a most hilarious time—and some of them are getting uproariously drunk—in honor of the origin of the Bulgarian alphabet and the two monks, St. Methodius and St. Cyril, to whose credit that literary labor stands. During the Balkan war all such festivity as dancing and gaiety was abandoned; national hymns and ballads descriptive of soldier life and bravery in death were mainly to be heard.

WEDDING RICE.

New York Times: In a grocery of many signs the most conspicuous sign of all reads "Wedding rice, 3 cents a pound." When questioned as to the particular quality of wedding rice the grocer replied, "It's speckly." Then he uncovered a box half filled with rice that showed a multitude of little black specks mixed with the white grains.

"It would be too big a job to clean that for cooking," he said, "but it's all right for weddings, and goes cheap. This is a parish of marriages. That church across the street is the scene of more weddings than any other two churches in town, and two-thirds of the bridal rice is bought here."

Health and Beauty Aids

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

A. J. B.: You can have beautiful, long, glossy and fluffy hair of rich, even color if you shampoo carefully at least once every month with any wash that does not contain "free" alkali. Do not use soap. The best, most dependable and really delightful mixture is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. This is enough to cleanse both hair and scalp thoroughly of dandruff, dirt and excess oil and the hair dries quickly and evenly with a wonderful gloss and delightful soft fluffiness.

Mrs. M.: Clogging skin with powder is likely to ruin the finest complexion, enlarge pores and produce pimples and blackheads. An economical, home-made spurmax lotion is fine for complexion faults and frequently used instead of powder, as it is invisible when on and imparts a delightful, velvety smoothness and healthy hue to the skin. Get four ounces of spurmax from your druggist and dissolve in a half-pint hot water, to which add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. The spurmax lotion prevents chaps and overcomes oiliness and that lifeless look to the complexion.

Florence: Your pimply skin and run-down feeling is doubtless due to impurities in the blood, which cause most skin eruptions. The best and most effective remedy is this home-made and very inexpensive one: Dissolve one ounce kardene in a half-pint alcohol (not whiskey) then add a half cup sugar and enough water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and it will expel poisons from the system, clear and tone skin and build up and strengthen entire body.

Blanche B.: Yes, you can reduce your superfluous flesh without dieting or exercise. Relief may be found in this harmless remedy: Dissolve four ounces parnotis in 1½ pints of hot water and take a tablespoonful before meals. It removes fat rapidly and leaves the skin free from wrinkles or flabbiness. It has helped many who have tried for years to find relief.

Mrs. F. P.: It is humiliating to have a fuzzy growth on your chin, but if you will follow these simple directions it will soon vanish: With a little delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface. Apply and let remain two or three minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and all trace of hair will have vanished. This is a harmless way to banish hair or fuzz and does not mar the skin.

Mrs. X.: For your thin eyebrows, I would suggest applying pyroxin with forefinger. This induces them to grow thick and glossy. Short eyelashes will grow long and silken, with a beautiful curl, if you apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Care should be used not to get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

Brae F.: There is only one dandruff cure I recommend and it not only rids the head of dandruff but aids the growth and appearance of the hair. It is, in fact, a perfect quinine tonic which you can make at home. Get an ounce of quinzoin from your druggist. Dissolve in a half-pint of alcohol (not whiskey) to which solution add one-half pint of cold water. Rub into scalp once or twice a week with tips of fingers. It is effective and helps the growth by stimulating scalp to perfectly natural action.

Ruth: I always cure dull, listless, tired, aching eyes by the use of this simple, inexpensive, home-made tonic, which can be prepared very easily by just dissolving an ounce of crystos in a pint of water. Two or three drops placed in each eye, quickly relieves that smarting, burning sensation, reduces inflammation and gives beauty, sparkle and brilliancy to the eyes.

VIENNA HOMES ARE JAIL-LIKE

Janitor in the Austrian Flats Is Not Only Autocratic But Despotic in His Rule.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: An American's home is his castle. So long as he does nothing to the annoyance of his neighbors, repairs it to the satisfaction of the landlord and the sanitary inspector, pays his water and other taxes, doesn't allow his chimney to catch on fire, shuts his windows at night and does not otherwise get into trouble with the police, he is master in his own house.

Vienna is the city of flats, and the hausbesorger (caretaker) is chief warder. Out of doors you may do nearly everything you shouldn't. Revelers, overcome by the iced wine and hot air of the night places of entertainment (nearly all of which are underground and unventilated) may safely hail a passing policeman and give him their pocketbook and address and drop off into slumber with the comforting certainty that they will wake up the next morning in their own beds.

Despite the awesome sword which he carries in lieu of a truncheon, the Viennese policeman is a genial soul. He is the good fairy of the city. The hausbesorger, however, is its evil spirit. He lives in a gloomy cavern at the foot of the stairs, and pounces on you every time you pass and tells you you mustn't.

Though I have lived for several years in Vienna, I have never really mastered the house regulations. After 10 o'clock a chill air as of the tomb envelops the house. Later than that you may not sing, dance or play any musical instrument.

I was once at a party when one of the guests, not observing the lateness of the hour, volunteered to sing "Ora Pro Nobis." She had not gone much beyond the first bar when she noticed that it only wanted one minute to 10. The speed with which she finished the song, put on her hat and coat, shook hands all around and was out in the street before the hour had finished striking was a lesson from which I have not yet recovered.

At no time may one shake one's rugs out of the front window, but between the hours of 6 and 8 in the morning one may beat them in the courtyard. A visitor, waking up with a start a little after 6, and wondering whether the thunder will give him a headache, fails to appreciate the privilege. For about an hour the city is as if wrapped in a sandstorm; everybody is in the courtyard hanging rugs. The Viennese hausfrau invests all her spare cash in rugs. It is the proudest day of her life when she has so many that she is the first to start and the last to finish.

If one keeps a dog, on wet days one must carry him up to one's apartments, so that his muddy feet do not soil the staircase. Particularly well do I know this last regulation, for at one time I was the proud possessor of a mastiff. In the first month of my stay it rained on seventeen days, and I lost nearly a stone in weight. My medical attendant said I was not physically strong enough to own so large a dog, so, as my rooms were on the fifth floor, I exchanged him for a toy terrier.

Dustbins, which are generally kept in the kitchen, next to the gas stove, have to be carried downstairs by the tenant and deposited on the pavement for the convenience of the dustman. An official makes his appearance a few minutes ahead of the dustcart, and clangs a huge bell at the foot of the stairs in warning. At the sound doors fly open as if by magic and the next moment the stairs are crowded with women—young, old, strong and frail—each with an unsightly dustbin strained to her bosom. If you are wearing new clothes, you want to see that the dustcart isn't in the street before you start mounting the stairs.

It is against the law for barrel-organs to play in the streets, but they may, with the consent of the hausbesorger, play in the courtyards. It is advisable, therefore, before taking up your residence, to make sure that your idea of music coincides with that of the hausbesorger.

But of all regulations tending to vex the soul of a free-born American is the one that directs that the house door shall be closed every night at 10 o'clock. For opening after this hour the hausbesorger extorts the sum of 20 heller (4 cents). The Viennese is a thrifty individual; so that he either goes to bed at 10 or else stays out all night.

All theatrical performances are over between 9:30 and 9:45, to enable the audience to get home before the autocratic hausbesorger slams the outer gate. It is no uncommon spectacle in a theater to see stout citizens, whose time for a quarter mile is well over fifteen minutes, nervously nursing their 4 cents in white, knuckly fists. To see a corpulent, panting figure beating frantically upon the iron gate, bewailing the loss of his 4 cents, is a sight to melt the heart of all but a Viennese hausbesorger. It takes 4 cents to melt his heart.

Did that regulation only affect the laggard reveler, I should have nothing to say. The man who wastes his time at picture palaces or at an open-air cafe listening to the band till past 10 o'clock gets no sympathy from me. But there are others. It is possible even for a citizen to go to bed at 9:30 and yet suffer from this regulation. It happened to me.

I had been in bed for about an hour, when my landlady tapped on my door and informed me that her husband was ill. I said I was sorry, and turned on my other side. Ten minutes later she tapped again and asked me if I had gone for the doctor yet. I said yes, I had just gone.

Then I dressed and went downstairs. I woke the hausbesorger and gave him 4 cents to let me out. Half-way down the street I suddenly remembered I had forgotten to ask the name of the doctor I was going for. So I went back and gave the man another 4 cents to let me in again.

I climbed six weary flights of stairs and learned that the doctor's name was Sauerkraut, and that he lived just around the corner. I gave the hausbesorger another 4 cents, and was in the street again.

It takes a mathematician to follow this story. It cost 4 cents to get into Dr. Sauerkraut's house, 4 cents to get out again and 4 cents to obtain readmittance to my own place, which comes to a quarter of a dollar.

To play the Good Samaritan in Vienna at 25 cents a time is too expensive for a poor man. For the remainder of my stay I went to bed every night with cotton wool in my ears.

BOYS' CORN CLUB CONTESTS.

Springfield Republican: Boys' corn club contests, started a few years ago by Secretary Wilson through the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture, have become so successful and popular in the South that the movement has become national in character. A recent circular of the bureau of plant industry is an interesting contribution to the subject.

"The National Corn club is an important factor," says the circular, "in directing rural boys to the business of farming as a profitable and noble profession. The boys are needed for the efficiency of the farm and their work and leadership must be had if American agriculture is to keep step with the march of civilization."

In connection with organizing and directing clubs, the circular says: "Every premium offered for contests and corn-club work should have for its main interest the promotion and encouragement of the regular club work. The premium should represent the greatest need and interest of the corn-club membership; it must teach the broad viewpoint of the club work and encourage both members and leaders to be progressive and constructive in their work, and it should serve to increase the club members' interest and respect for farm life. Club leaders, county superintendents, teachers and others interested in promoting agricultural and rural home interests should lose no opportunity to have club exhibits and interests recognized effectively at county, district and state fairs. County farmers' institutes, short courses and teachers' associations are excellent mediums for promoting the club work, and an exhibit of club products, special contests, essays and general discussions on phases of the work should occupy some place and time during the regular session."

REGISTER.

Register.

Do it today.

The registration books will be open until 9 o'clock tonight, but not after that time. To make sure of being able to vote in the city election on April 1, register today. You can't tell where you will be or how busy you may be when the last registration day comes around. Today you can take the time to register, so you had better do it before 9 o'clock tonight.

Maybe you'd better not figure on waiting till 9 o'clock to do it. Make your time limit 8:30. Then you will be more likely to get around to it.

Or better yet, make up your mind to register before 6 o'clock. Then you won't have to break into your evening to attend to it.

But anyway, register today.

Even the small boy failed to weep copiously over the rapid disappearance of the snow Sunday and Monday. And it's ten to one he was thinking of marbles.

TARIFF ONLY.

President Wilson and the Democratic leaders in congress have acted wisely in determining that the tariff is to be the only big measure to be brought before the special session that is to begin in April. Currency reform and some other matters must come up for action eventually, but there is no need of hurrying into them in the extra session. It will be better to let the change in our national government become better established before taking up the new line of work.

With the tariff it is different. The country demanded a lower tariff when it elected a Democratic house of representatives two years ago. It has not yet been given what it then demanded and was entitled to. If the tariff question were allowed to go until the next regular session of congress for settlement there would be a third year added to the two already lost.

Furthermore, the house committee on ways and means is ready to present a tariff bill to the house as soon as that body begins its sessions. The holdover members of the committee have been at work for two months on the schedules, and there is practically another month left in which they can be gone over with the new members, so there will be at least some of the new plans ready for consideration and action just as soon as the house can get together.

Tariff framing is a full task, and it will be distinctly to the interests of the country at large if the building of the new schedules can be accomplished at a session of congress at which there will be no other issues for the members to consider. It will operate to insure a tariff that is founded on its merits rather than on what the members from any section may be able to hold out as trading possibilities for the determination of certain schedules, and thus there will be less of the logrolling that has helped to make former tariff bills rankly unjust.

"Tariff only" is a good motto for the extra session. If any need for immediate action on other lines should arise through our foreign relations or other channels, congress will then be freer to take up the new question than if its time were being filled with the miscellaneous hodge-podge that demands attention at regular sessions.

At least the suffrage hunters in England are putting up a fiery campaign.

THE OUTLOOK IS GOOD.

Though neither house has as yet acted on the workmen's compensation bill, and though two measures of that character that were introduced in the legislature have been discarded entirely, the prospects are that the present session will see the enactment of a law of that character, and that the law will be far more just than it was expected would be found possible of enactment.

Serious and earnest work has been devoted to this bill during the session. Conferences have been held by the legislators both with employers and labor representatives, and the result has been the whipping into very good shape of the Rockne special committee bill, which soon is to come to an issue before both houses.

Labor interests have succeeded in gaining some important concessions in the terms of the bill, though not by any means all the concessions for which they were seeking. This was only to be expected. To frame such a law according to all the demands of either laborers or employers would be to include provisions that would be certain to legislate seriously against the interests of the other class, for no measure of such a character can justly be drawn entirely according to the demands of either party. The efforts of the legislators have been directed toward reaching an equitable compromise, and this they seem to have done.

Of course the full value of the law cannot be accurately known until it shall have been tried out in practice. But the main thing now is to get the principle established in our statutes. Later amendments can be made if serious flaws are discovered in the measure as first enacted.

Dr. Gomez has announced his candidacy for president of Mexico. It would go hard with the doctor if he ever had to go through a lunacy examination with a record like that.

EXPRESS BY PARCEL POST.

Something like a fortnight after the inauguration of the parcel post service, a Duluth man reported that he had received by parcel post a package that had been shipped to him by express, and that the postal charge on it had been less than the amount paid to the express company.

Now comes another case, from Milwaukee, in which the receiver of the package says he shipped the article to his Milwaukee address while on a visit to Detroit, Mich. He paid an express company 40 cents to take the package to Milwaukee, and when he got it it came by parcel post and bore only 22 cents worth of stamps. In other words he paid the express company 18 cents for mailing his package for him.

This Milwaukee man is mad about it, and wants to know if something can't be done to stop that kind of thing. Sure there can—use the mails yourself instead of the express companies. It would be foolish extravagance for the express companies to go to the expense and bother of carrying packages between cities when they can have Uncle Sam do it for them and at the same time get about half what is paid to them as net profits. And the express companies never have been in the habit of doing things of that kind that were foolish.

As long as the express companies continue to do business, and as long as the people continue to send by that agency packages that can be sent more cheaply by parcel post, the express companies will use the postal service as an adjunct to their own business. And nobody can blame them. If there is any fault anywhere, it is with those foolish people who do not know enough to take advantage of the postal service themselves. They will neither deserve nor get any particular sympathy for their laziness or ignorance.

Another strike in New York. Well, well! The old town has to do something desperate to keep its prominence with so many state legislatures in session.

GOOD FOR THE SENATORS!

A radical change in the interests of direct legislation has been made by the senate committee in charge of the bill for the initiative and referendum. This is the elimination of the provision that signers of petitions for the initiative must be residents of a given number of counties. As the bill is to come before the senate on Wednesday, it contains no such provision. So long as the requisite percentage of voters shall have signed the petition, that is all that is required.

When the bill was first taken up in the committee, it was proposed that 50 per cent of the counties of the state be required to be represented in the petitions. This was finally changed to twenty counties, less than half of 50 per cent, and then to ten, and now the county restriction has been done away with altogether.

This is entirely proper. It shows that the progressiveness that has led to the consideration of the bill in the legislature will not stop with such consideration, but that the members are seeking to give the state some really progressive and practical legislation. The change in the initiative and referendum bill is in fact the removal of an obstacle to the operation of the plan. It was a good move on the part of the senators.

The English parliament had a vacation of two days. Probably some of the members had got behind on their tea schedule and wanted time to catch up.

THE GRAND JURY REPORT.

The poor old county jail came in for another scoring in the report made last week by the grand jury. That the present jail is a poor place to send any man or woman is generally conceded. Sheriff Meining, than whom nobody is in a position to know more about conditions there, agrees with the grand jury in all it says as to what the jail needs—which, in substance, is a new outside to cover a new inside.

As far as the proposal to build a new jail is concerned, the grand jury's report amounts to little except to emphasize the need of early action on the work farm proposal. That the farm plan would supersede the present jail system in St. Louis county has been certain for some months. It is only a question of completing the preparations for the change.

But another suggestion made by the grand jury is worth heeding, and in fact ought to be carried out. That is that a matron be kept there to look after the women prisoners. If there has been no such provision in the past, it is a serious oversight on the part of the county. Not all women who are taken to the jail are of the lower type. But whether they are or not, there should be somebody of their own sex to look after them, or at least to whom they can appeal for special attentions such as they may require.

In this respect the grand jury's suggestion is not only for an act of humanity, but of simple justice. If the jury is correct in saying that no provision is now made for the work of a matron, the wrong should be corrected as soon as possible.

THE WELFARE BOARD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The attack on the welfare board regarding the expert for social center work doesn't ring true. The writer is informed the creditable information, so many times mentioned, was in the form of an anonymous letter.

Social center work has been much discussed and generally believed to be valuable for the uplift of mankind. Many organizations have discussed the subject, including the Woman's Council.

Men who were the originators of the social center movement in the United States have been brought here to Duluth and told us of its workings for good. The person who gave this reliable information to the Commercial club evidently did not hear these men and is decidedly ignorant of the duties of a social center director. The motive underlying this attack seems like ignorance and malice, or ignorance and jealousy.

The fact that would cause such a conclusion is that other organizations and other workers' names are included in this attack, which have nothing to do with engaging a man for the special work of a social center director. The welfare board is only carrying out the recommendations of other societies in this matter. The only thing for the common council to decide is allowing our welfare board to expend money for the salary of a social center director. That work needs a person specially qualified as anyone knows who has heard specialists talk on the subject.

Superior has had a social center director all the past year, while Duluth is quibbling and behind its sister city in this movement. This movement is constructive and has nothing to do with the Associated Charities only by tending to better conditions so that in time there will not be so much work for the many philanthropic and charitable institutions in our city. The common council should consider only the advisability of this kind of work being done in Duluth, and after such a decision they can investigate the various organizations, and to do that thoroughly they should not pass by the older ones which feel they are being encroached upon.

The social center work, if results are obtained, will encroach on all philanthropic work for the intention is to make people better with less waywardness.

EAST ENDER.

Duluth, March 10.

TWO CAUSES OF IMMORALITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A great deal of publicity is now being given to the investigation now on in Chicago by the state authorities as to some of the real causes for immorality among girls in Chicago, as well as elsewhere. It appears that one of the attributed causes is what is commonly called as "mashers," while another important factor is the insufficient wage that is paid to the shop girl. Our police could and should regulate the "masher" while the question of wage is one that only society can regulate.

At this time I recall the sad experience of a widow here in Duluth trying to support a family, who is compelled to do any kind of work to secure a meager existence for herself and little ones.

Early in December last she got a position at the sum of $6 per week. From her own lips I learned that her actual expenses while at work were as follows:

Street car fare—six days	$ .10	$ .60
Six noon day lunches	.15	.90
Six suppers	.15	.90
Total		$2.40
Amount earned	$6.00
Total expenses	2.40
Balance		$3.60

With this enormous (?) sum this widow had to support her family, provide the necessary clothing, fuel, rent, etc. In the event of any illness coming to her family, either the doctor, druggist or some one was not paid, and this honest, hard-working woman was branded as a dead-beat, etc.

From the above, is it any wonder that the girls or women try to barter their honor?

Now, Mr. Editor, what is the condition of our institutions here in Duluth? Are they making criminals of our girls so that they can pay big dividends, or are they according their help any degree of human consideration?

I am of the opinion that society can regulate this by investigation and publicity. No business can thrive when it antagonizes the people, and the people, the supporters of the institutions, have a right to know the real conditions.

Ladies, gentlemen, society, wake up (unless you are driving girls), do your duty. Respectfully submitted,

SUBSCRIBER.

From House to Senate—No. 4

By Sarovard.

Washington, March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Boy Taylor was a lovable man. In a rather small way he he was a genius. He stood for good-fellowship. He had two qualities—sentiment in copious degree, humor in admirable degree. He was a man of peace. He was a negative character, though, in a fashion, endowed with marked individuality. As Junius said of Wedderburn, he never led a forlorn hope, never threw away the scabbard. He was wax always, marble never. He did not impress you as a man of strong convictions. He was the vine, not the oak.

In the house of representatives, had he held a seat in that body, a dozen years, Taylor would have been a valuable public servant; in the senate he was nil—the round peg in the square hole.

Temperamentally there is all the difference between the two houses of the American congress that there is between Holland and Italy. The house is turbulent; the senate sedate. The house is free and easy; the senate is dignified. The house loves a man who entertains it; the senate defers to a man who instructs it. In one respect they are identical—neither will submit to be bored, and in another respect they are alike—each always estimates a member at his true value, and each forces him to take the place he is assigned. In that behalf the American congress—both branches—is inexorable as Rhodamanthus—as despotic as the spoiled child Edgar Allan Poe speaks of. I may add the senate is an owl, the house a magpie.

Then, you ask, why do I say Proctor Knott, a humorist, would have been in the front rank in the senate, when Taylor, another humorist, failed there? The answer is as obvious as it is conclusive to one who knew the two men. Sentiment and humor were the entire capital of Taylor's sprightly mind, whereas these were only negligible by-products of Knott's gigantic intellect. And in fancy Taylor never approached the pathetic apostrophe to France in the Duluth speech, or the rhythmic description of the agricultural grounds in the Pennsylvania avenue speech, and for rollicking drollery the passages in the Pennsylvania spee on the public functionary is way out of sight of Taylor's finest fun. When Knott's mind was dealing with humor, it was play. On the other hand, Taylor's mind, so engaged, was at labor.

Taylor made one humorous speech in the senate and it was a capital production in that line. But the senate did not take to it. The senate, commenting, said about this: "It was nice, but not senatorial." Had Taylor made that speech in the house, "the pit would have risen to him," as it did in Drury Lane to Edmund Kean. He would have received an ovation. When "the hammer fell" as Proctor Knott was delivering the Duluth speech, an enthusiastic member petulantly ordered, "O, d—n it, stop the clock." A tribute like that might have come to Taylor had he bestowed his humor there instead of in the senate.

But, you say, Carmack made the senate laugh. So he did; but it was more than humor, greater than humor, he employed—it was wit. And he had a purpose—the defeat of a vicious piece of grafting legislation, and he succeeded. For twenty years the senate yawned for Tom Reed, another wit; but the senate abominates buffoonery. So far as I now recall the distinctive humorists of the senate—Hale of New Hampshire, Nesmith of Oregon, Nye of Nevada, Billy Mason of Illinois and Taylor of Tennessee—no one ever emerged in that body from the hopeless dead level of helpless mediocrity. All would have been conspicuous in the house of representatives.

During the first regular session of the Forty-sixth congress the legislature of Tennessee was trying to choose a senator, and the labor was long and arduous, resulting, I believe, in the election of Gen. Howell E. Jackson. One day it was reported that Bob Taylor, then a member of the house—unfortunately his only term—was elected, and members crowded round him on the floor, during the sitting, to congratulate him. It would have been happier for Taylor had he gone to the senate then, for in those days the Democratic side of the senate, led by Thurman, Lamar, Beck, Vest and Ben Hill, was Democratic, and Taylor would have found a Democrat to lean on, for he had to have somebody to lean on, his temperament being what it was.

But by 1907 the Democratic side of the senate was only Democratic in spots. Joseph W. Bailey is no ordinary man. He is a powerful personality. Intellectually a bully, he was gifted with a mental capacity surpassing that of any of his Democratic fellow-senators when Taylor made his advent. His very force of character was what ruined him, for it impelled him to leave the Democratic big road that the fathers trod and strike out new paths beset with pitfalls. Instead of drinking at the wells greater men had dug he went a-digging wells on his own account, and the waters were brackish.

Now, Bob Taylor, the helpless vine, had to have a tree to climb. Unfortunately he clung to Bailey. It had been better for him and the party had he attached himself to Stone of Missouri, or Shively of Indiana, or Rayner of Maryland. But the instinct of self-preservation was stronger in his nature than it was in Paynter's, and he refused to vote for Lorimer, though he followed Lorimer in voting for "protection" to that opulent beggar and insatiate monopoly, the Lumber trust. O, had Carmack been there!

When the news reached this town that Taylor had defeated Carmack in the primary, joy danced in the eyes of every Republican in Washington. Certainly—it was a signal Republican victory. The lion of Democracy had been supplanted by a hare.

Dentistry Not Modern.

Chicago Tribune: A medical authority has just stated a number of newly acquired bits of information that would seem to refute the proposition that modern dentistry is modern. Achievements of unknown dentists of ancient Egypt and Rome prove the contrary. Just who the dentists were the historians do not always relate, but the results of their work have proved beyond a doubt that bridge work—on which we moderns specially pride ourselves—of the most skillful kind was done as long ago as six or seven centuries before Christ. In the tomb of Sidon were found four incisors and two canine teeth in the jaw of a woman that were held together by gold wire, two of the former being transplanted teeth—what might be called crowns in this day—fastened in by gold wire. In the museum at Corneto, the ancient capital of the Etruscan Federation, are to be seen several specimens of bridge work done by riveted bands of metal.

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—For years the Sterling brothers had a great scheme afoot. They were going to have themselves represented in both branches of congress—John in the house and Thomas in the senate.

John got into the house from Illinois, and has been here ten years. And now Thomas will be senator from South Dakota. But John completely gummed up the arrangements by failing to get himself re-elected last fall. The brothers failed to synchronize their elections—if one may use a word entirely out of keeping with the present movement for simplicity—and the one came in just in time to look through the glass in the revolving door and see the other passing out.

The new senator, Thomas A. Sterling, is just six years older than the ex-representative, and they have gone through life doing almost the same things—six years apart.

If Thomas taught school, studied law, or entered politics, John was reasonably certain to do the same thing as soon as he had reached the same age. In the matter of reaching congress, however, John was the more precocious of the two. When he entered the house ten years ago, he wired his brother to get into the senate. Thomas had just become dean of the law school at the South Dakota state university, and did not wish to enter the senate just then. He sent word to John to stick around here a while and he would be along a little later. So John waited. He stayed on for ten years, and finally, becoming completely exasperated with his brother for delaying so long, he made him agree to resign his place at the law school and make the campaign for senator.

The latter carried out his part of the exercises, but John drove into a bunker and lost out. He will now busy himself trying to get back two years hence to serve a term with his brother.

Senator Sterling's first bid for fame was when he was a youngster about 12 years old, attending country school out in Illinois. He and the teacher disagreed over a question of grammar. The teacher reprimanded him sharply, and remarked that it was pretty fresh, not to say impudent, for a mere boy to set himself up as knowing as much as the teacher. Young Sterling admitted that it was a little irregular, but justified himself on the ground that his view of the question of grammar corresponded with the rules laid down by the man who wrote the book.

The teacher in great wrath called a meeting of the school directors. They held a session lasting far into the night and tried to determine whether Sterling or the teacher was right about that point of grammar. But—and here was the funny part of it—none of the directors had the remotest idea which was right.

They called in a local highbrow, who decided in favor of young Sterling. And then the directors fired the teacher. They said he was heinously ignorant.

James Francis Burke, the Pittsburg congressman, whose winning smile and faultless though highly ornate, neckties make him a marked man, called a cab in New York the other day to ride a short block and a half, because it was raining. The man charged him half a dollar. Burke thought that was too much.

"I'll pay you," said the congressman, handing him a coin, "but I think you're an infernal pirate. You ought to be in jail."

The cabman looked at the coin and laughed.

"You're all right!" he exclaimed, with more cordiality than Burke thought the occasion warranted.

It was an hour later before Burke discovered he had handed the man a $10 gold piece instead of a half dollar.

When Burke told the pathetic tale in Washington it reminded Philander C. Knox of the time a friend of his rode in a cab in London. When he got to his destination he man fumbled in his pockets to get the money for the driver and then asked him for a match. While the cabby was feeling to see if he had a match, the man explained:

"I dropped a sovereign on the floor of your cab and—"

Before he could finish the sentence, the cabby slashed his horse and was gone.

While Jim Mann, the minority leader, was talking away on one of the closing days of the recent session of congress, one might have noticed young A. W. Lafferty of Oregon seated at his desk all intent on a bunch of figures he was putting on paper.

"Trying to figure out what your income tax will be?" inquired Billy Kent, whose seat adjoined Lafferty's.

"No," replied Lafferty, "I've been working here for an hour trying to determine what would happen if every member talked as much as Jim Mann does. As near as I can tell—and I've just gone over all my figures carefully—if everybody equaled his talking record the Congressional Record for an average session of congress, instead of filling merely from ten to fifteen volumes, would amount to 642 volumes and a half."

Oxymandias of Egypt.

I met a traveler from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand
Half sunk, a shatter'd visage lies, whose frown
And wrinkled lip and sneer of cold command
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamp'd on these lifeless things,
The hand that mock'd them and the heart that fed;
And on the pedestal these words appear:
"My name is Ozymandias, king of kings;
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!"
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Good Business.

Fairmont Sentinel: The state indorses non-partisan county officers and members of the legislature. Good enough! Destroy the party labels and give us the best men the country affords to do our public business.

Will Be Praised.

Gheen Record: If the legislature finishes up the session in as business-like and energetic a way as it has done so far, it will receive as much praise as its predecessor did blame when closing.

Northern Minnesota Prospects.

Crookston Times: Looks as though the Minnesota legislature really intended doing something for the timber section of Northern Minnesota, where good roads are essential before development can proceed very rapidly.

Senate Is Congratulated.

Albert Lea Tribune: The state senate voted to retain the second choice in the primary election bill. The senate is to be congratulated in the stand which it took upon this matter. The second choice provision only needs time for familiarity on the part of the voters to become one of the best features of the measure and a protection for the masses of the voters.

Popular Movement.

Brainerd Dispatch: The eliminating of political parties in the selection of members of the legislature is sought by a bill introduced in the legislature and is intended to go hand in hand with the same regulation applied to county officers. The non-partisan movement in the selection of public officials seems to be the popular thing.

Progressive—Or Something.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: From the way they are doing things down in St. Paul it must be admitted that the legislature now in session is progressive—or something.

Something to Remember.

St. Peter Free Press: There seems to be a good deal of log-rolling going on at the state capitol to so arrange the various senatorial districts as best suits the future ambitions of the present senators. Would it not be far better first to consider the interest of the voters affected? Gerrymandering for the benefit of sitting members is an expediency of doubtful effect and most always resented by the voters at the very time when the parties responsible expect to reap the benefit. This they should bear in mind and govern themselves accordingly.

Triumph for Bob Dunn.

Preston Times: The Dunn good roads bill passed the house with a whoop and a hurrah, and the senate should make haste to follow the example "of the other branch." On the whole this bill is the most comprehensive piece of legislation ever proposed, and it is the first real step towards good roads in the history of the state. Bob Dunn will go thundering down the ages (of Minnesota) as the father of good roads—as the man who showed us the way (road).

The Impossible War

David Starr Jordan, M. D., Ph. D., LL. D., in the New York Independent:

What shall we say of the great war of Europe, ever threatening, ever impending and which never comes? We shall say that it will never come. Humanly speaking, it is impossible.

Not in the physical sense, of course, for with weak, reckless and godless men nothing evil is impossible. It may be, of course, that some half-crazed archduke or some harassed minister of state will, half unknowingly, give the signal for Europe's conflagration. In fact, the agreed signal has been given more than once within the last few months. The tinder is well dried and laid in such a way as to make the worst of this catastrophe. All Europe cherishes is ready for the burning. Yet Europe recoils and will recoil, even in the dread stress of spoil division of the Balkan war.

Behind the sturdy forms of the Bulgarian farmers lurks the sinister figure of Russian intrigue. Russia and Austria, careless of their neighbors, careless of obligations, find in this their opportunity. And the nations of Europe in their degree are bound to one or the other of these malcontents. Neither Russia nor Austria can be trusted to keep the peace even in its own interest, for both, through debt abroad and discontent at home, are in a condition of perpetual crisis.

But accident aside, with the triple entente lined up against the triple alliance, we shall expect no war. Some glimpses of the reasons why appear daily in the press. We read that German and that Austrian banks try in vain to obtain short loans in New York, even at 8 per cent. We learn that great bankers refuse absolutely to lend on any terms for war. We learn that on day of Montenegro's declaration of war the nominal value of stocks and bonds in Europe fell to the extent of nearly $7,000,000,000. The loss of France alone, the creditor of Europe, is given at $800,000,000.

At the same time the house of Krupp, greatest builders of war tools, reports a surplus for the year of $12,500,000. A 12 per cent dividend was declared, besides the setting part of $4,000,000 for welfare work and capital reserves.

The gains of war and war talk go to the vultures. The cost falls on the people. Whatever else happens the common man stands to lose in war. In such a war as this they all lose mightily.

To Law Over a Gooseberry Bush.

Tit-Bits: Among the curiosities of litigation may be cited the following case: On the boundary line of two farms in an Austrian village there grew a large gooseberry bush, from which the two farmers for years gathered the product. "What grows on my side is mine and you may have the rest," was the agreement.

Some time ago the neighbors had a misunderstanding, and this came to a climax when the gooseberries became ripe. A lawsuit followed, and appeals were made to higher judicial bodies. The final decision was lately recorded in the Austrian courts.

Each party is to have the right to pick the berries which grow on his side of the line, just as it was originally, but neither may destroy the bush. The costs are charged half to each litigant. Each farmer had to pay 25 krone. The yearly yield of the bush is worth about one-half krone, and the judge told the fighting farmers: "With good luck, it will take you only 800 years to make the bush pay. Take good care of it."

Always Prepared.

Sydney Bulletin: The Common Man—Why is it you actors wear heavily furred coats in all seasons?

Great Actor—The fact is, my dear fellow, my profession is the only one liable to frosts in all seasons!

Books the Best Society

Gladstone on the use of books: And now I commend you again to your books. Books are delightful society. If you go into a room and find it full of books—even without taking them from their shelves, they seem to speak to you, to bid you welcome. They seem to tell you that they have something inside their covers that it will be good for you, and that they are willing and desirous to impart to you. Value them much. Endeavor to turn them to good account and pray recollect this, that the education of the mind is not merely a storage of goods in the mind. The mind of man, some people seem to think, is a storehouse which should be filled with a quantity of useful commodities which may be taken out like packets from a shop and delivered and distributed according to the occasions of life. I will not say that this is not true as far as it goes, but it goes a very little way; for commodities may be taken in, and commodities may be taken out, but the warehouse remains just the same as it was before, or probably a little worse. That ought not to be the case with a man's mind. No doubt you are able to cull knowledge that is useful for the temporal purposes of life, but never forget that the purpose for which a man lives is the improvement of the man himself, so that he may go out of the world having, in his great sphere or his small one, done some little good to his fellow creatures, and labored a little to diminish the sin and the sorrow that are in the world.

Mother Before Queen.

New York Evening World: Queen Wilhelmina has further endeared herself to the people by showing that with all her luxury and wealth and power she is still a real "old-fashioned mother."

She proved it at the railway station at The Hague when she and the baby Princess Juliana were ready to start to join the prince consort, who was ill in the Tannus mountains.

There was considerable anxiety over the illness of the prince, and a large crowd was on hand to see the queen and the princess depart.

They were scheduled to leave at 7:30 at night, but the princess was fretful and the queen would not allow the train to start until she had got the baby asleep. That took two hours.

The crowd was patient, and when the train started there were cheers.

Men Have Higher Regard for Poetry.

London Chronicle: A public librarian recently gave me evidence that man's regard for poetry is greater than woman's. Many pupil-teachers and other students frequent his library, and come in quest of books to help them in the study of literature. He finds that when set to study a poet, the man student usually borrows that poet's works to read for himself, but the woman says: "Oh, I don't want to wade through all that; give me a book that will summarize his ideas and tell me what I ought to think about him."

And the usual way is to give the girl a book that tells her what a man thinks she ought to think about poetry.

Medical School Inspection.

Both progressive medical men and modern educators have, for some years, strongly advocated systematic medical school inspection for all cities, and today it is being advocated even for rural communities.

In many of the most progressive states laws have been added to the statute books empowering boards of education to make this addition to the school system and it is evidence of the growing interest taken by the state in the making of citizens.

Healthy children and young people are likely to grow into vigorous, healthy adults, and the state is justified in supervising to some extent the physical well being, as well as the mental training of her future citizens.

In a recent paper read by Dr. Robert W. Hastings of Brookline, Mass., before the Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health, he very ably discussed this subject. Among other things he said: "Undoubtedly the primary object of medical inspection of schools was to lessen the incidence and to prevent the epidemics of so-called contagious diseases. In more recent years, however, hygienists, having given much attention to the health of factories, stores, mines and various other places of adult occupation, have come to appreciate the importance of school buildings. Typhoid fever, tuberculosis and malaria are found to be preventable, and so, too, may be many of the deformities and defects of development of early life. There has, therefore, appeared a much wider field of medical inspection which must nowadays include not only the consideration of contagious diseases, but also a study of the children from the point of view of health and physical perfection."

This is not a "new fad," just born in the United States; for England, Canada, Germany, France, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Portugal and Japan, as well as these United States, have all entered upon this broader field of medical inspection, in a measure at least.

In New York, Boston and Chicago, as well as a few smaller cities, efficient medical school inspection has been part of the school machinery for a number of years past, and it has proved itself to be well worth the necessary outlay, even when considered only from the educational point of view.

There have been fewer epidemics necessitating the closing of schools, there have been fewer breaks in the school work of the individual child, brought about through sickness or indisposition; the general health of the children has at least been conserved. The causes which have led to backwardness in learning have often been unearthed and found to be a remediable physical defect. The correction of these has allowed the backward child frequently to become one of the brightest in the class. In this way useful, capable citizens have been made out of those who, through lack of proper chance, would have developed into poorly educated, half sick adults, often with criminal tendencies.

The efficient medical inspector must in the first place be a well educated and broadly trained physician. He must be interested in hygiene, in education and in school children, and the chief inspector should have a perfectly free hand in the choice of his assistants, for it is well that one man should carry the entire responsibility for efficient inspection, and this can only be done by giving him complete control in the engaging or discharging of his assistants.

The chief inspector should be a broad, public-spirited man, who will co-operate with the city board of health on the one hand and the board of education on the other.

True, such men are not easily found, but it will pay any city to search for such a person to place at the head of a medical school inspection, when this addition is made to the school machinery.

And when found it will also pay the city to provide a sufficient salary to induce him to retain the position, and put forward his best effort to make and keep medical inspection at a high level of efficiency.

Eye-Strain Caused By "Movies."

Constant attendance at moving picture shows may cause eye troubles similar to those of eye-strain. This statement is made by Dr. George M. Gould in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical association. Dr. Gould says that he has recently made a practice of asking his patients, "What were you doing the evening or afternoon previous to your headache or giddiness or upset stomach?" "Nothing at all," is the usual reply, "that is, nothing out of the ordinary. I was at the 'movies' for a couple of hours and went to bed as soon as I got home, as I was feeling badly." Dr. Gould warns physicians, oculists and nerve specialists to be on the watchout for such symptoms, and when found that attendance at moving picture shows be considered as a cause. The symptoms, he says, do not differ greatly from those caused by strain or abuse of the eyes of any kind. The most common are those of sick headache, such as intense weariness of the eyes and brain, a dazed, "good for nothing" feeling, "lack of energy and appetite," "upset stomach," vomiting, sleepiness and other effects. If the patient is wearing glasses, he may think "my glasses need changing." But on consultation with his oculist it may be found that the glasses are all right, and that the cinematograph is to blame. But if the "movies" are not to blame, properly fitted glasses will enable the patient to attend moving picture shows without discomfort. Without proper glasses, however, the cinematograph will more certainly cause nervous symptoms in the patient than when good glasses are worn, as there is no doubt that moving picture shows put a terrific strain on even the least defective eyes, while the strain is increased by poor glasses or lack of glasses when they are needed. Dr. Gould says that the principal fault of moving picture shows is that the "fixation point," chosen by the eye (that is the point on which the eye rests) is unstable and perky and the eye is tired and strained in following this point. The swiftly passing series of pictures tires the eye and the brain, and the illumination is generally poor. To correct these faults he suggests that better illumination be required. The enormous growth of moving picture shows in the last ten years and the adoption of the cinematograph for teaching and for various commercial uses, as well as its probable growth in the future, makes it important that the effect of moving pictures on the eyes should be carefully observed.

Questions and Answers.

Pink Eye.

F. W. writes: What is pink eye and is it infectious?

REPLY.

"Pink eye" is a popular name given to an inflammation of the conjunctiva, the delicate covering of the eyeball, as well as the inside of the lids. Its appearance is more frequent in the spring, when dust is flying about, than at other times; but during an open winter such as this, the conditions are all present for an epidemic.

2. Yes, it is infectious to a limited extent; but the exciting cause, injury to the conjunctive by dust particles, is the important thing, and is probably entirely responsible for its appearance in epidemic form.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, painful, scaldy, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the cure of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly cure the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Amusement Notes.

Old time theater goers will remember Bobby Barry.

Barry was one of the most famous of the old time Irish comedians and was one of the unquestioned leaders in the theatrical world a score of years ago. He ranked with such men as Crane and Joseph Jefferson.

Three of Mr. Barry's children are at the Orpheum this week. Lydia Barry is appearing in the headline act, presenting a number of clever songs and an amusing monologue. Two of his younger daughters are appearing with George Felix, their brother-in-law and the husband of the headliner, in another act which is the comedy hit of the bill. On the whole the Barry family dominates this week's bill. Another member of the family, a brother, was here last week in a singing and dancing turn. On the whole the Barry family is a famous one in the vaudeville world, and the three members here this week do much to make this week's bill one of the most entertaining of the season.

ONE OF THE "BARRY GIRLS" At the Orpheum This Week.

Fred Vance of Vance & Vance, now at the Empress theater, is something of a baseball player. In fact young Fred is good enough at the diamond trick to pick up extra money during the summer months. His home is in Taunton, Mass., and he has been on the Tounton team for three years during which time it was considered the best amateur nine in Massachusetts.

Vance is both a twirler and a second baseman, shining more particularly in the latter position. He played last summer in the Eastern Carolina league. His work attracted the attention of the big league managers. Vance's fielding average was .945 and his batting over .300.

This first half of the week's new bill is good. There is not a serious moment in any of the acts, which include a few minutes of clever tumbling by Conrad Gormley and Patrick Gaffrey, a great deal of clever singing by the Wellington trio, some more good songs with jokes interspersed by Vance and Vance and the clever feats of Bulger's trained goats.

Miss Alice Clark will appear as prima donna in the big musical comedy, "A Broken Idol," for three days commencing Thursday, March 13.

NEW CLOTHING STORE FOR DULUTH

Business Will Be Run on the "One Price" Plan.

Tomorrow there will open in Duluth a business unique in this part of the country. It will be a "one-price" clothing store; that is, every suit, overcoat, raincoat, or whatever the garment is in the stock will be just one price and that price is always $10.

The Duluth store will be one of a long chain of them, the chain extending from coast to coast and constantly being added to. A long-time lease has been taken in Duluth and the store will be one of the permanent institutions of the city. The firm is known as the Richman Bros.' company and they are makers and sellers of United Clothes. The Duluth store will be at 20 West Superior street and the place is being arranged into a most attractive salesroom. J. V. Scanlan, an experienced clothing man, is here in the position of resident manager, and as has been expressed by several of those who have met him, will be an important addition to the commercial ranks of the city.

This company has been attracted to Duluth for a long time, but more especially since the steel plant began its course of construction. The company is accustomed to dealing with the steel workers of the East and others who work for institutions which follow the establishment of such an industry, and wishes to establish itself here so that it may be here from the beginning of the influx of these people, who are accustomed to trading with the one-price firm. Already among those of the city who have lived in other cities where these stores are, there is considerable interest aroused, by the advertisement of the company, and inquiry is being made as to when the store will open for business.

Other cities in the Northwest having these stores are St. Paul and Minneapolis, where they have been for five years. The firm has been in existence thirty-four years.

MUCH INTEREST IN REVIVAL SERVICES

Among the many revival meetings now being held in the city, none is attracting greater interest than those conducted by Robert Whiston at the First Christian church.

He delivered one of his most scathing messages last night on "How to Prosper." It was a striking arraignment of modern sin, with the polish and veneer off. He said "the only prosperity that counts is that which comes at the end. I don't want the prosperity of a Napoleon, one of the world's greatest generals, but who died an exile on the Isle of St. Helena, with the jeers and jibes of the British soldiers ringing in his ears. I don't want the prosperity of a Lord Byron, a stellar light in the horizon of literature, but who died the victim of his lusts and passions and appetites. I don't want the prosperity of a Gould who cut his coupons dripping with the blood of the oppressed. Better to go to heaven a beggar than to hell a millionaire."

"Hell," he said further, "is a logical necessity of spiritual law as the penitentiary is a logical necessity of civil law. Every man is the property of the law he breaks. God did not invent hell nor punishment for sin. That man is the monumental fool of the century who denies hell, in that he denies law and its penalty for violation."

Evangelist Whiston is a very rapid speaker. Words tumble over themselves for utterance.

Every night from 8 to 9 he will speak and sing in the First Christian church, Twelfth avenue east and Fourth street. Mrs. Whiston and a large chorus assist.

"Spring is not here yet," said the weather man this morning, "but this mild weather is likely to continue for twenty-four or thirty-six hours at least.

The wind is likely to get into the northeast tonight, and we may have some more snow. The warmest temperature yesterday was 41 deg. It is likely to go below freezing tonight, and warm up again tomorrow."

GOD'S MERCY HIS THEME

Rev. M. S. Rice Delivers First of Evening Sermons at Lyceum.

Says God Has Not Dealt With Men "After Their Sins."

Rev. M. S. Rice delivered the first of his evening sermons at the Lyceum last evening, before a large audience.

He chose for his text "The Mercy of God," and spoke in part as follows:

"He hath not dealt with us after our sins.

"Thank God for that fact, and the hope it plants in my life. I can raise my head. I can feel an assurance, not in myself, but in His mercy, and I have a message big enough to preach to a world that knows the sorrow of sin. He is a dull observer of men who cannot observe across every field of human experience the evidences of men's sins, and the Bible enforces the natural feeling these sins generate within us, by clear declaration of their fatal results.

"The heart-breaking fact of the fatality of sin is driven to conviction by the eloquent story of man, and seems accepted everywhere, but it is not the fact we are to preach. It is merely the present evidence of the world as it would be were it bereft of the Gospel of Christ. It furnishes the setting for the coming of the mercy of our God. It is the condition to which I love to preach and is the only reason I arise here to preach, because I am sure I have a message that meets the situation. We must never get away from the fact that there is in the world and over the world a great tender heart of love and mercy, and that fact justified us in culling up all these dark and serious facts which so doggedly follow our steps. The Psalmist was presuming on the great message when he wrote the text, and looking on down the world to the day when every willing soul should rejoice in mercy he declared, 'He hath not dealt with us after our sins.'

"Oh, what if He had? It is slight comfort for a world like this to be assured of justice. Yonder on our streets every day we see enacted the pitiful tragedy of the man whose life has been ruined by the practice of dissipation. He has come to physical wreck. Every stumbling failure of today he lays upon the sin of his youth. He says he has sown his wild oats and now must reap them. He is cheered in his sad harvest by some one who says his sin has found him out. All of which information is doubtless a fact and many the man today sitting with heavy heart and staring so convinced of that fact that he has ceased to expect any relief. But I am rejoiced to declare a message to that situation, and to say on the authority of God's word that somehow all that can be changed. Go read 'Twice Born Men' and see the marvelous stories of how the limitless mercy of God did reach and transform lives that from every point of human reason had long dwelt in the region of hopelessness. Page after page of that marvelous book bring to us the careful testimony of men who by every law of the harvest must reap death, but who under the ministry of mercy become men of God and service. I have just read the story of the regeneration of Charles Bayard Stewart, picked up by the mercy of God at a mission house on the Bowery in New York a few years ago. His story will stir your heart to its depths. When I read of the life he once lived, and then look upon the face of the newborn man, today a splendid character in our land and a man of usefulness, with a home and a family and a good business, I do thank God for the fact that 'He hath not dealt with us after our sins.' He delights to have mercy. 'He redeemeth thy life from destruction. He crowneth thee with loving-kindness and tender mercies.' I cannot begin a day of life without first thanking God for the confidence I have in His mercy over us all.

"You need not wait on God. The moment you turn your face in penitence toward Him, He meets you. God never trifles with penitence, and he who would make you think that you must wade heavily through long waitings at such a moment hath not measured aright the most sacred moment of any sinner's life. I saw in the famous old church at Warwick, where Beauchamp worshiped, the narrow slit cut through the thick stone walls where poor offenders repentant could peek toward the altar but could not see it, and for months the best they could do was to stand outside. All this human arrangement is shameful, unlike the attitude of God and contrary to the cordial gospel of Jesus Christ. One earnest desire for forgiveness and God is at your side. 'Come now and let us reason together, though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as wool; though they be red like crimson they shall be white as snow.' That's God. This night thou shalt be made whole. Even now as I speak. Believe Him and thou art accepted of Him."

SCOTCH PROGRAM IS BURLESQUE

Council No. 4, Modern Samaritans, held a novel entertainment last evening in Knights of Pythias hall. The affair was a burlesque on the Scotch. The participants were announced on the program under Scotch names, but when they appeared, they proved to be of nearly every other nationality than the one their stage names indicated.

Miss Henderson as "Madame Jessie Esterhood MacLaughlin" rendered a burlesque Scottish folk song. Miss Leila Sparks gave a French dance, being announced as "Lulu MacDougal." Elmer Oss, George Fairley, V. E. Gauthier, M. C. Gibbons and M. C. Heindel presented the "Gallant Dancing Gallies," who were listed as "Dougall Alexander Oss," "George Sandy MacFairylane," "Victor Alex Cattherie," "Milton Christie MacGibbons" and "Samuel MacHeinie."

Richard Jones was successfully disguised as "Little Miss Phitt, the famous toe dancer." The orchestra consisted of four negro musicians who were announced as a "selected few from the Forty-second Highlanders' (Black Watch) Regiment band."

IS OPPOSED BY BREWERY

Employment of Social Center Expert Left to Commissioners.

Charges were freely made at the city council meeting last night that for selfish reasons the Duluth Brewing & Malting company is opposed to transferring the saloon license at 15 North Fourth avenue west to W. E. O'Donnell at 423 West Superior street.

The transfer was denied for the third successive time by a vote of 8 to 8.

Alderman Gibson hotly denied that he has been influenced by any brewing company or that any brewer had spoken to him.

"I will vote to revoke every license owned or controlled by a brewery in Duluth," he declared. "That is more than all the aldermen who are voting for the transfer will do." He said that he is opposed to the transfer because the block already has enough saloons, and that he is opposed to seeing the Bowery moved any further east than it is at present.

Alderman Hogan asserted that the most common objection which he had heard to the transfer was that it would hurt the Duluth Brewing & Malting company and that the brewery was opposed to it. He did not think that that was any argument against it.

Alderman Phillips stated that he was going to change his vote, as he had been informed since he voted against the transfer when it last came up that a brewing company was interested in having the transfer denied. He expressed the opinion that the square deal warranted him in voting for the transfer.

Alderman Curren said that he did not see why the transfer should not be granted, as it is in the patrol limits and in a block in which saloons are already located.

Aldermen Hector and Scott opposed the granting of a license in a theater building. They did not think that it was for the best interests of the community, and pointed out that women and children frequently congregate in front of places of amusement.

C. F. Adams, an attorney, announced that he appeared for C. A. Marshall & Co., owners of the building, and that they were anxious to have the transfer granted. He stated that the company needs the revenue, which would approximate $250 per month in rent. Attorney Adams said that a first-class buffet would be installed in the rear of the store building, the front of which is now occupied by a cigar store, adding that the only entrance would be from Superior street.

The vote on the transfer was: Ayes—Curren, Hogan, MacDonell, Makovski, Miller, Neff, Phillips and Jordan; noes—Gibson, Hector, Bernard, Hicken, Krueger, Sandberg, Scott and Hoar.

The committee on ordinances, to which was referred the employment of a social center expert, reported adversely last night. The committee stated that it deemed it inadvisable at present to create any new offices or hire new employes, as the time before the new commission takes charge is very short. It was stated that the commissioner in charge of the welfare work will have ample authority to hire any employes he may deem necessary. When the ordinance came up for consideration it was laid over for a week.

The residents of Woodland petitioned the council for a fire hall in their suburb, equipped with a combination chemical and hose wagon. They pointed out that Woodland is now the largest district in Duluth without fire protection. Reference was also made to the large buildings and handsome residences in that section. The contract for the $100,000 of water and light bonds was awarded to N. J. Upham company at par and accrued interest. The company and the city will enter into an agreement which will practically enable the city to sell the bonds over the counter. The contract is awarded to the one bidding the most favorable to make the issue valid, but the bonds will be assigned in blank to the city. The city did not wish to pay the high commissions asked for placing the bonds when the bids were opened a week ago.

The bids for bonds of the commissioners were also turned down, the committee feeling that the price asked was too high, all of the regular bids being approximately $1,850, and all the same. Two others were lower, but were not in regular form, and the clerk was directed to readvertise. Each commissioner will be under bonds of $25,000.

An ordinance appropriating $4,000 from the public safety fund for an automobile patrol and emergency ambulance for the police department was given its first and second hearings. The need of a machine is so pressing that after adjournment the council reconvened and gave the ordinance its second reading. This will enable the council to pass it at the meeting next week. Bids were received on half a dozen different cars, the prices ranging from $2,600 to $5,500. During the week the aldermen will have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the various machines offered.

COLD STORAGE REDUCES HIGH COST OF LIVING.

St. Louis, Mo., March 11.—The relation of cold storage to the high cost of living was the subject of an inquiry that opened before a committee of the St. Louis Municipal assembly.

John Ritter, city meat inspector, testified that the usual period of storage for meat was six to eight months. In that time, he said, good meat would not be damaged, but poor meat or meat exposed too long before being placed storage, would spoil quickly after being taken out. He said that to limit the period of storage by ordinance to sixty days, or ninety days, would increase the price of meat, possibly double it as the goods would not be on the market to meet demand.

PRESIDENT MEETS FOREIGN DIPLOMATS

Formal Ceremony of Introduction Occurs in East Room.

Washington, March 11.—While President Wilson already has dispensed with some of the formalities which heretofore have been adhered to at the White House, he demonstrated yesterday that he would observe to the letter the international rules of his office.

The most formal ceremony in which Mr. Wilson ever has participated was his presentation to the diplomatic corps accredited to Washington by the civilized nations of the globe. In a semi-circle of brilliant color, their uniforms gilded profusely with the insignia of their rank, 146 foreign representatives stood in impressive silence while the new president of the United States and Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan entered through the big doors of the East room. The president and Secretary Bryan wore the conventional frock suits of formal occasion in America. The president was accompanied by his chief aide, Col. Spencer Cosby, and his personal aide, Major Thomas E. Rhoades, both of them in the full dress uniform of the American army. On each side of the entrance six White House aides, three from the army and three from the navy, stood at attention.

In groups of six the diplomats and their staffs were arranged. Chandler Hale, third assistant secretary of state, presented the president, first to Ambassador Jusserand of France, dean of the diplomatic corps. Secretary Bryan was presented with similar ceremony. To each diplomat the president spoke a word of greeting, but the ceremony throughout was quietly formal.

After the president had met individually the circle of diplomats, he addressed them briefly, expressing the hope for the continuance of amicable relations between this nation and their respective countries and indulging the wish that their service in Washington might be personally enjoyable.

On Wednesday afternoon the diplomatic corps will be entertained at tea at the White House with the members of their families, when Mrs. Wilson and the three Wilson daughters will be presented.

TRUCE DECLARED IN FIGHT FOR CHILD

The Differences of Shaleen Family Will Be Adjusted in Divorce Court.

Habeaus corpus proceedings brought in district court by Ernest H. Shaleen against Rose T. W. Shaleen, his wife, and David A. Cone and wife, in an attempt to secure the custody of his 6-year-old daughter, were continued yesterday by Judge Dancer for one week.

It developed yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Shaleen has renewed her divorce action. The custody of the child, Ruth, will be one of the main issues and it is possible that the habeas corpus proceedings brought by the father may be dismissed and the court called upon to fix the relations and rights of father, mother and child in the divorce decree, if one is granted to either party to the action.

Why do Brewers of Germany and England use only Brown Bottles?

Sunlight grows the hops, but spoils the brew.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives best protection against light.

In England and Germany the brewers won't use light glass bottles.

"Beer should not be exposed to the light, especially direct sunlight, as it will thereby be detrimentally affected, the light having an influence upon the albuminoids in the beer, causing the latter to become hazy," says no less a person than Philip Dreesbach, the eminent German expert and scientist in the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.

We have adopted every idea, every invention that could make for the purity of Schlitz beer.

Our beer was first brewed in a hut. Now our agencies dot the earth. Our output exceeds a million barrels a year.

SEND POWER SIXTY MILES

White River Power System Will Supply Gogebic Range Towns.

Test Made Shows That System Is Fully Equal to Task.

Ironwood, Mich., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of connecting the transmission lines from the Bad river plant near Mellen and the Montreal river plant near Saxon to connect the Gogebic range towns with the White river plant and Ashland has been completed.

The transmission line which connects this city and Ashland has been completed through Mellen, where the Appleyard interests have developed a water power.

System Is Given Test.

The entire electric and street railway plants of this city were operated last week for a time with current from the power plant at White river and after this was done successfully for some time the current was reversed and the Ashland electric light and street railway plants were propelled entirely by electric power from the Ironwood plant. From White river to Ironwood is a distance of sixty miles. The current from White river to Ashland was sent at 15,000 volts and in the Ashland plant it was raised to 33,000 volts and sent to Ironwood.

This experiment proves that with the water power developed at White river, Mellen and Saxon, a surplus current can be sent back and forth at any time to be used at Ashland, Mellen or Ironwood, as desired.

ISHPEMING MAN DIES.

John F. Gylling Is Called at Iron River, Mich.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of John F. Gylling, a former liquor dealer and pioneer citizen, who died Saturday at Iron River, Mich., where he had lived eighteen months with a son-in-law, was held here today.

Mr. Gylling was a native of Sweden, where he was born seventy-three years ago. He came to this country more than forty-five years ago, taking up his residence in Ishpeming. He constructed the block now owned by William Leininger on South Main street, where for a number of years Ishpeming's only playhouse was located, on the second floor.

Mr. Gylling was among the early liquor dealers in the city, and in the early days was one of the owners of a root beer works, which was conducted in a one-story structure on the lot now occupied by the Leffler block, corner Division and Lake streets.

Mr. Gylling's wife died in Ishpeming about three years ago. Mrs. Ericson is his only child.

IMPLICATED BY BOY.

Youth Claims to Have Written Black Hand Letters for Accused.

St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—Sam Ferrazo, held by the Federal authorities under $1,000 bail for sending alleged Black Hand letters through the mails, flew into a rage Monday when confronted by Labor Sitilina, the boy who said he wrote the letters for the accused. The boy was brought from Minneapolis to identify Ferrazo and when he saw Ferrazo, he said: "Yes, you're the guy I wrote the letters for all right."

At this Ferrazo started to curse wildly in Italian, according to countrymen who heard him. His frame shook with rage and a detective had to use force to quiet him.

In his testimony young Sitilina did not implicate his mother.

Ferrazo was unable to supply bail and he is being confined in the Ramsey county jail.

Mandan, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The press agent for Madam Luella Chilson-Chrman, a Chicago soprano, who recently sang here, was over modest.

In his performance it developed that the singer was born and grew to young womanhood in Mandan. She was the daughter of Northern Pacific Conductor Chilson. Had the facts been known prior to the concert standing room would have been at a premium.

MASQUERADES AS MAN.

Southern Minnesota Girl Fools People Around Bisbee, N. D.

Bisbee, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Masquerading for three years as a male farmhand, the daughter of a former county treasurer in Southern Minnesota, spent the greater part of three years in this locality, and her identity was not suspected by more than two or three people. The woman was an expert stenographer and typewriter, but rebelled at the conventional woman's dress, so she adopted male attire and did a man's work in the harvest fields and during the threshing season. She would visit the towns like the other "hired men," swagger around, smoke cigarettes, play pool and use snuff, but she drank very moderately. While here she went under the assumed name of Johnson. When recently she left Bisbee she was accompanied by a little child belonging to her former employers, who had discovered her identity. The child was sent to relatives in Southern Minnesota for a visit.

VOTING ON LICENSE.

Georgetown and Dilworth, Clay County, in Liquor Fight.

Moorhead, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Efforts to sell liquor in Georgetown and Dilworth are attracting considerable attention at the elections being held in those adjoining towns today. Georgetown generally alternates on the liquor question, the "ins" usually losing. Dilworth is the Northern Pacific railroad town three miles east of here and has never had a license. In fact, many of the deeds to a lot hear clauses that liquor must not be sold on the land or the property reverts to the original owner. The Northern Pacific officials are also opposing the plan, as they do not wish their employes to be tempted. The town is exclusively a railroad point.

BANK EXAMINERS QUIT TO BECOME BANKERS.

Alexander, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Both E. S. Tyler and F. B. Chapman, national bank examiners for North Dakota, have resigned and the latter has located here. Reid & Co., and is supposed to have had its origin in some defect in the heating system.

FEEDING TUBERS TO THEIR STOCK

North Dakota Farmers Cannot Get Anything for Their Potatoes.

Berthold, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Triumph new potatoes have been selling as high as 70 cents per bushel, Kansas City buyers here recently offered only 25 cents for Early Ohios and would not take mixed tubers at any price. As a result many farmers are feeeding their potatoes that they have cared for all winter to the hogs, figuring they are worth more than 25 cents a bushel for that purpose.

Will Be Permitted at Minnesota State Fair in Future.

St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—Anything in the way of agricultural fruit or land exhibits from outside the state of Minnesota will be barred from the next state fair, according to a resolution adopted by the state fair board. This resolution, however, will not place the ban on exhibits of seed from Canada or states other than Minnesota.

For several years past many Minnesota exhibitors, especially those from the northern part of the state, have protested vigorously against the land exhibits from Canada, Texas and other states, contending that these exhibits have had a tendency to attract settlers to these places to the detriment of Northern Minnesota.

NO POSITION FOR LAWYER BRANDEIS

Will Not Be Officially Connected With Wilson Administration.

Washington, March 11.—Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, who was frequently mentioned for a post in the Wilson cabinet, conferred with the president at the White House last night.

Mr. Brandeis declined to discuss his visit. It was definitely learned, however, that he will not be associated in any official connection with the administration but will be frequently consulted when anti-trust reform is undertaken. It is known that the president entertains high regard for Mr. Brandeis' views on the question of strengthening the Sherman anti-trust law, the regulation of competition and the curbing of monopoly practices.

President Wilson touched a button at the White House at 9 o'clock last night that opened the breeders and feeders convention and horse show at Fort Worth, Tex. The only persons present were the telegraph operators and several attaches of the White House. Later the president accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, attended a theater.

FOR KILLING MARIN.

Bemidji, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—August Johnson, the 34-year-old Dane who shot and killed Sam Marin, a local saloon keeper, Feb. 1, is on trial in district court on the charge of manslaughter in the first degree. A jury of farmers is trying the case. Johnson claimed Marin would not give back money loaned while drunk and shot Marin as he came down the front stairs. Johnson was captured the following day, having spent a night in the open in sub-zero weather.

OLSON IS INDICTED.

Slayer of St. Paul Driver May Be Released on Bonds.

St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—An indictment charging murder in the first degree was returned yesterday by the Ramsey county grand jury against Prof. Oscar N. Olson of the University of Minnesota, for the shooting of Clyde N. Darling, a laundry wagon driver, at the Olson home here last Thursday. No date was set for the opening of the trial.

Prof. Olson received the news of his indictment with the same indifference which he has shown since the murder. Arrangements for his release on bail, the amount of which has not been announced, probably will be made by his attorneys today. Prof. Olson's indisposition due to his confinement in the county jail, is not alarming, his physician states.

Attorneys representing Prof. Olson have declined to state positively whether the so-called "unwritten law" will be the basis of the defense.

BAY STATE WOMEN MUST COVER HATPINS.

Boston, March 11.—Those women of Massachusetts who do not cover the points of their hatpins with some device that will protect the public from injury will hereafter be liable to a fine of $100. An act to this effect was signed by Governor Foss yesterday. The manner in which the pins are to be rendered harmless is left to the discretion of the wearer.

Two Generations Now Using It

Nation's Most Popular Laxative Keeping Millions of American Families in Good Health.

There must be genuine merit to an article that has stood the test of two generations of users.

In the field of medicine none has had greater success, nor retained that success to a greater degree, than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is now being used by two generations of people. Its use in families is constantly becoming more general. The reason, primarily, is that it has merit. It is what it represents itself to be, a laxative-tonic; it does not make exaggerated claims nor use coarse language to set forth its virtues.

It is a medicine, but so mild and gentle a medicine that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet, in a slightly larger dose, it is equally effective for grown-ups. It is for any disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels, for constipation no matter how chronic, for dyspepsia no matter how severe, for biliousness, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, headaches, drowsiness after eating, and similar complaints arising from a clogged-up condition of the bowels. It is pleasant to the taste and does not gripe. It can be used with safety and good results by anyone at any age or in any condition of health, and that person's health will improve. Every druggist sells it and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Thousands of families throughout the country are never without it in the house, among them Mrs. Clara Lewis, Becks' Store, Ky., who gave it to her baby, Elsie, while teething, and says: "It is the best medicine in the world for the stomach and bowels." She writes that she keeps it in the house for every member of the family, takes it herself and that her mother recovered her health and gained in flesh by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

COMPLETE PROVISIONS OF THE PARCEL POST C. O. D. ORDER

The Herald has already announced that the parcel post service after July 1 will include C. O. D. privileges, and has also published some of the data in connection with it. The provisions of the order recently issued by the postmaster general establishing the time for the parcel post's new feature to go into effect have just become available and are as follows:

"The sender of a mailable parcel on which the postage is fully prepaid may have the price of the article and the charges thereon collected from the addressee on payment of a fee of 10 cents in parcel post stamps affixed, provided the amount to be collected does not exceed $100. Such a parcel will be insured against loss, without additional charge, in an amount equivalent to its actual value but not to exceed $50.

"The sender of a collect on delivery parcel will be given a receipt showing the office and date of mailing, the number of the parcel, and the amount due him.

"C. O. D. parcel will be accepted for mailing only at a money-order office and when addressed to a money-order office. Money-order offices are designated in the parcel post guide by an asterisk (*) or a dagger (†). The postmaster at the mailing office will be held responsible for the postage required for the return of a parcel addressed to a nonmoney-order office.

"If a C. O. D. parcel is received at a nonmoney-order office, the postmaster will notify the office of mailing of the amount of postage required for its return. The postmaster at the office of mailing will ascertain from the sender whether he desires the parcel returned or delivered without collection of the charges. If the sender notifies him, in writing, that the parcel may be delivered without collecting the charges, he will attach the order to the office coupon and notify the postmaster at the office of address to that effect. If no reply is received from the mailing office, the parcel will be treated as provided in sections 49, 50 and 52.

"The C. O. O. tag must show the amount due the sender, the money order fee necessary to make the remittance, and the amount to be collected. It should be securely attached to the parcel, which should be numbered to correspond with the tag, stamped C. O. D., and the charges to be collected plainly written thereon. The parcel will be treated as ordinary mail until it reaches the office of address where, on payment of all charges, it will be delivered to the addressee or, unless otherwise directed by the addressee, to the person, firm, or corporation in whose care it is addressed, or to any responsible person to whom the addressee's ordinary mail is customarily delivered. A receipt for the parcel must be obtained on the tag attached thereto.

"A receipt signed by a person other than the adressee must show the name of the addressee as well as that of the person signing it. A signature made by mark (x) must be attested by a reputable witness.

"When a C. O. D. parcel is received without the tag attached, the charges shown on the parcel must be collected and the prescribed receipt obtained from the addressee.

"An employe must receipt for the total number of parcels given him for delivery. This receipt will be surrendered to him either on the return of the parcel or the receipted tags and the total amount to be collected.

"The receipted tag will be considered as the addressee's application for a money order for the amount due the sender. A money order will then be issued, stamped C. O. D., and mailed to the sender in a penalty envelope by the postmaster, who will enter on the tag the number of the money order, the amount and date of issue, and file it with other money-order applications. No return receipt will be furnished the sender, as the money order serves that purpose.

"The addressee will not be permitted to examine the contents of a C. O. D. parcel until it has been receipted for and all charges paid. A parcel may be refused when it is tendered for delivery, but after delivery has been effected it can not be returned on account of dissatisfaction with the contents or the amount collected.

"A parcel may be forwarded in accordance with section 46 without the payment of an additional C. O. D. fee. When so forwarded a duplicate receipt tag should be filed showing the office to which it is forwarded.

"The department will not be responsible for errors made by senders in stating the collection charges or for any misunderstanding between senders and addressees regarding the character or contents of parcels."

WEST END

HERALD BRANCH:
Herman Olson, Manager, 1823 West Superior Street.

NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE MAY BE LOCATED IN BRYANT SCHOOL

Permanent clubrooms for the Neighborhood House may be established at the Bryant school, with Miss Katherine King principal of the school, in charge.

Since the Twentieth Century club, which organization is at the head of the work among the boys and girls in this end of the city, abandoned the Neighborhood House club rooms last suring, the members have been looking about the West end for suitable rooms. They have been unable to find rooms large enough for this social center work.

Recently the members of the club suggested to Miss King that a large vacant basement room be remodeled and improved into a large clubroom. The suggestion was followed out and the room is now ready for occupancy. Yesterday afternoon Mesdames J. H. Crowley and N. F. Hugo of the Twentieth Century club inspected the room and took the measurements for tables, decorations and shelves. The club proposes to furnish the room at its own expense.

Social Center Work.

For the present Miss King plans to utilize this room for social center work. Sewing, reading and study clubs will be organized among the pupils, who will meet in this room. Members of the Twentieth Century club plan to assist Miss King in this work.

Should the proposed plans prove popular the establishment of the Neighborhood House, with the consent of the school board, will then be considered. It is the belief that such an institution could easily be housed in the school and with much better effect than if it were located in some other building. Miss King said yesterday afternoon that the Neighborhood House, in her opinion, could be handled at the school and that very good work would be accomplished within a very short time. This last plan will be taken up at an early meeting of the Twentieth Century club.

For the present arrangements are being made to hold a reception when the new clubroom is completely finished. Residents throughout the city will be invited to the house-warming and a program of music and recitations rendered during the evening. Refreshments will be served by the older pupils.

The new clubroom will be in charge of a commission to be appointed by the officials of the Junior Republic government of the school. The members of this commission will supervise and direct every feature of this room. A meeting of the government officers will be held within a short time.

The old clubroom at 2432 West Superior street were given up last spring by the Twentieth Century club and since then the various clubs have been meeting occasionally in the local schools. Among these societies are the Twentieth Century boys, Lincoln Literary club, the Sewing society and the Daniel Boone boys.

On Thursday afternoon and evening an entertainment will be given by the pupils for the benefit of the school gymnasium. The proceeds of the concert will go to purchase several gymnasium mats.

The program for the evening will be in charge of Miss King and will include several selections by the school orchestra, songs by the upper grade pupils, folk dancing and floor and parallel bar work by a gymnasium class. It is planned to have similar social center evenings between now and the close of the school year.

Hovde, vice president; Rev. J. H. Sienberg, secretary; Anton Ringsrud, financial secretary, and E. A. Dahl, treasurer. Richard Hanson was appointed guardian.

A meeting of the board of directors will be held in April, when the building plans will be taken up. It is planned to award the contract at that time.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

General interest has been worked up over the revival meetings being held at the Central Baptist church every afternoon and evening this week. Rev. VOTE FOR EVERYBODY.

Six Blank Ballots Used in Crystal Falls, Mich., Primary.

Crystal Falls, Mich., March 11.—Anyone who did not get a vote in the primary held last week was a curiosity or evidently did not vote, for he could have had a vote if he wanted it.

Due to the failure of candidates for city offices to file their petitions in time, the electorate on primary day was confronted with six blank ballots for the Republican, Progressive, Socialist, Socialist Labor and Prohibitionist parties.

It is said that nearly every resident of the city received at least one vote for some office.

SPLINTER REMOVED

Pipestone, Minn., March 11.—A splinter of wood pressing against the brain, is believed by surgeons to have been responsible for the recent shooting of Mrs. A. M. Muller by her son, Paul Muller. Muller, who fired at other members of his family and committed other acts indicating that he was mentally deranged, has been operated upon and the splinter removed. He now is normal mentally and is reported to be recovering. The operation was performed at the insane hospital at Yankton.

Mrs. Muller, who was struck by five bullets, also will recover.

DEARTH OF LABOR.

Annual Spring Exodus to Railroad Construction Camps Is On.

St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—The annual exodus of labor to the railroad construction camps throughout the Northwest is on and St. Paul is on the verge of a labor famine. The cause for this anticipated dearth in labor is generally assigned to the Balkan war. Men here, familiar with the labor situation, say more than 70,000 Greeks, Bulgarians and others left the United States last fall when the call for help was sent out by their native governments.

John Dale of a local firm, said he probably would need more than 500 men within the next few days to complete double track work in Wisconsin.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Gossip, Comment and Sporting Editorial Review as Written By Bruce.

VIEWING in due appreciation the things that have been accomplished during the first season of the existence of the new curling club—meaning house and the increased enthusiasm that came with the larger membership—it becomes a matter of pleasure to express in some small degree the gratitude the general public feels toward the club and its officials.

With the curling season nearly at an end, and with hockey practically through for this year, the time could not be more propitious for some slight token of appreciation.

Long before this the Duluth Curling club honestly earned the name of being an organization that stood for accomplishment. But this year has added immeasurably to this record. Not only has Duluth witnessed the completion of one of the finest curling and skating homes in the world, but to make this consonant with its 1912-13 banner record, the officials went ahead and gave us the greatest curling and hockey games we have had in the history of these games during their life at the Head of the Lakes.

Perhaps it isn't precisely fair to give credit to any one man, or even several men, for the eminent success that the new club has enjoyed. The officers have done their part in a manner deserving of appreciation; and yet were it not for the enthusiasm that has been displayed by the members, there could have been nothing like the splendid success that has been achieved.

We did not stage the annual Northwestern bonspiel, and yet the curling play here has been far ahead of the play of other years. Increased rinks have enabled the games committee to utilize to the full its ability to hustle play through, and for the first time in a number of years the end of the season approaches with all of the trophy events near the end—and this, too, with the hardest schedule of games in the history of the club.

As for hockey—well Duluth has been given in its first year of the real puck sport some of the best and biggest contests that have been decided in the West.

Curling, hockey and skating, three of the great winter sports, have been encouraged and placed on a solid footing by the energy and able business management of the greatest club in the country, and it is safe to say that Duluth and the citizens of Duluth fully appreciate the long felt want this thoroughly representative organization, the Duluth Curling club, has filled since it became able to fully cater to the very best of our winter pastimes.

DULUTH athletes for the past number of years have been making names for themselves at the various schools and colleges of the country. James P. Kelly is one of the sturdy sons of old Duluth to bring credit upon the city of his birth. Captain of the Exeter football team, this boy has come into new honors through the election to the presidency of the New England Interscholastic Athletic association.

Young Kelly was a member of the Duluth Central high school football and baseball teams. He went from here to the famous Eastern preparatory school, famous for its great athletic teams, this being especially true of football. "Jimmy" made good from the start and has been one of the stars of the famous Harvard prep school since the first day he pulled on his athletic togs.

The election of the Duluth boy to the important office mentioned indicates plainly that his standing is more than that which comes from prowess on the football and baseball fields. Boys are generally quick to recognize and reward ability and merit of character, so that the election of James P. Kelly is one that his friends are justly proud of.

NEWS notes originated at Chisholm tell of the future plans of Pal Brown. The boy has received offers from several of the Southern cities where boxing is permitted and will leave within the next few days to fill some of the lucrative engagements that were opened to him close upon the victory over Ketchel.

Memphis, Tenn., Kansas City, Mo., and St. Joe, Mo., are three of the cities where dates have been accepted. It is also probable that Pal will box in Canada during the coming jaunt. Whether he will then hit out for the coast and endeavor to get on with some of the leaders in the lightweight division, is something that has not been given out as yet.

Bud Anderson, ranked as one of the comers in the 133 pound brigade, is the ideal boy to try the little range fighter out with. Anderson made good by licking Sammy Trott in six rounds. Before this fight the state of Washington fighter was practically unheard of. Here is the great chance for Pal Brown, for if he could beat this boy, thus getting the Anderson Augora, right under the invading gun he would force the promoters on the coast to match him with some of the rival real ones.

GEORGE Stovall has issued the ukase; in the fuming future all of the ball players on the St. Louis American team—though some have been so unkind as to intimate the absence of such—will be obliged to wear boiled collars around the hotels. This will be working absolute torture upon some of those raw recruits with the stamp of the verdant bush still with them; but stubborn Stovall is firm, obdurate even, and even if some of the sinewy-necked athletes do fret and threaten seriously to go back to the meadows, there promises to be no weakening upon the part of the new leader of the Browns.

RITCHIE OFFERS; PACKEY REFUSES

Chicago, March 11.—Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, announced yesterday that he will give Packey McFarland the first chance at the title, provided he will agree to weigh 133 pounds six hours before the bout.

"You can't blame me for wanting to drag Packey down somewhere near my size," said Ritchie. "I think he is the greatest exponent of scientific boxing in the world today if any one will allow him to come in at 136 pounds at least six hours before time. However, as I hold the lightweight title, I feel it is purely a business deal to have something to say about the weight. As far as the money is concerned, I am not claiming the lion's share."

New York, March 11.—Packey McFarland declared last night that he would not meet Willie Ritchie for the lightweight title if he had to make 133 pounds six hours before the fight.

"One hundred and thirty-five pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon is easy for me and it is a legitimate lightweight limit in view of ring precedent," said Packey. "Joe Gans won the lightweight title from Frank Erne at 136 pounds, scaling at 6 o'clock, yet nobody called Gans a welterweight. If Ritchie is a real lightweight champion, he should not split hairs with me over a weight he himself actually prefers."

Player Reinstated.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 11.—Player Thomas P. Sheehan of the Brooklyn club of the National league, who was promulgated as an ineligible player some time ago, because he refused to report to his club, was yesterday reinstated by the national commission without fine. Sheehan said that he intended retiring from baseball and that the Brooklyn club had agreed to give him his unconditional release.

Manager Wants His Divvy.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 11.—A temporary injunction taken out by the manager of Tony Ross, the Newcastle, Pa., heavyweight last night, prevented the scheduled ten-round contest between Ross and Frank Jeffries of Philadelphia. James Dime, Ross' manager, claimed that he had a ten-year contract with Ross and that the bout was made without his consent.

Regulars in Lineup.

San Antonio, Tex., March 11.—With all the regulars in the lineup, the Philadelphia American league team yesterday defeated the San Antonio team of the Texas league, 17 to 12. Bender, Pennock and Brown pitched three innings each for Philadelphia.

NEW YORK DENTIST PROVES A SURPRISE

LEACH CROSS.

Through his decisive and cleancut victory over Joe Mandot, Leach Cross must be accredited a place with the leading lightweights of the world. It is probable that the New York East side dentist will go to Los Angeles and importune Uncle Tom McCarey to put him on in a 20-round battle with Joe Rivers. The great showing of Cross came as a great surprise to the followers of fighting throughout the country.

RACING BILL FOR INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., March 11.—In the closing hours of the Indiana legislature, which adjourned sine die early today, a racing commission bill was passed by the senate and went to the governor.

The bill provides for a commission which is empowered to grant licenses to race tracks and state and county fairs, where horse racing is to be held. The bill fixes the time of holding race meets from April 1 to Nov. 15 and also the number of days which each meet may continue. It also provides for a license fee of from $1 to $25 a day, according to local conditions and patronage.

The promoters of a race meet must satisfy the commission of their "good moral character" before a license is granted, but in case of a refusal of a license the promoters may ask a court hearing. The commission also may revoke a license if dissatisfied with the conduct of the meet.

The bill empowers the licensee to collect entrance fees, fines and forfeitures.

The bill probably will be signed by the governor.

FAMOUS SKATERS IN EXHIBITION

Miss Isabel Butler and Norval Baptie, two of the most famous fancy skaters in the world, will give their remarkable exhibition at the curling club rink this evening. Both individually and in team work these two famous performers rank above all those engaged in figure and fancy skating.

Both Miss Butler and Baptie were here two years ago, giving an exhibition at the old curling rink. Those who witnessed the exhibition agreed that it was by far the most remarkable ever given here. Since that time the skaters have invented many new figures and have had further opportunity of skating together, as on their previous visit the combination had been together for only a short time.

As announced by those in charge of the entertainment of this evening, the program will be a very attractive one.

GRADE SCHOOL LEAGUE PLANNED

A Duluth Grade School Baseball league is to be organized by Dave Larsen of the Northern Hardware company. The principals of all of the public schools of Duluth will be asked to assist in the promotion of the league. Plans are already being made for the first meeting, when officers will be elected and the work started on the schedule.

It is hoped to have nearly every school in the city represented in the kid organization. The present idea is to divide the league into an Eastern and Western division, thus facilitating the play and permitting the winners of the two divisions to meet for the championship of the entire league.

"JIM" HALL DYING.

Neenah, Wis., March 11.—"Jim" Hall, a former well-known pugilist, was found dying of tuberculosis yesterday in a hovel. He is penniless and his once great physique has wasted away until he is hardly recognizable.

Just twenty years ago Saturday Hall was knocked out in the fourth round by Robert Fitzsimmons at New Orleans, for a purse of $40,000.

The state anti-tuberculosis society is now caring for Hall.

Women's Tennis Tourney.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 11.—Misses Helen Barnett of New Haven; Dorothy Vallentine of Detroit, Harriet Norman of Lancaster, Pa., and Jeanne Pushee of Boston, advanced yesterday in the opening play of the women's single seventh annual Pinehurst tennis tournament.

BRADLEY IS BEATEN TWICE

Crack Skip Put Out of Two Trophy Events in One Evening.

Dinham in Herald Finals and Cleveland in Last Stage of Bagley.

After making a consistently excellent showing through all of the present season Ralph Bradley was last evening put out of two of the trophy events. Sam Cleveland, when not otherwise engaged skipping his own little rink, plays with Bradley. But it so happened that last evening Samuel was skipping said little rink, and it also happened that he played against his old ice boss and defeated him.

Cleveland's win places him in the finals of the Bagley. The final and deciding game in this event will be that between Stocking and Samuel. In the event of Cleveland winning it will mark his second trophy event of the year.

Billy Dinham was the second skip to cause the downfall of Bradley, William beating Ralph by the score of 12 to 10, thus going out to the finals to play with Steve Jones for the prize in this event.

Pregeau moved into the fours of the Universal through the defeat of West, and Bierhalter went into the fours of the Manley through the defeat of McDonald.

According to the schedule two of the finals will be played off tomorrow evening, the regular draw being postponed because of the fancy skating exhibition at the club this evening. Steve Jones and Billy Dinham are to meet in the finals of The Herald event and Stocking and Cleveland will play the final game in the Bagley.

This will leave but two more events to be completed, the Universal and Manley.

In the latter event Walsh and Harris will play to determine which comes out into the fours, the winner of that game sharing with Schiller. Pregeau and Bradley that position. It is believed that this event will be played off during the present week.

Dinham, Bierhalter and Jacobi are in the fours of the Manley. This event, too, will most likely be completed this week, thus bringing the regular draw for the present season to a seasonable end.

Many of the friends of Steven Jones are rooting hard for a victory. The game in this event between Dinham and the club president promises to be one of the most interesting of the year, and there is little doubt but a large gallery will be out to witness it.

The scores of last evening:

In the 6 o'clock draw, Manley event, Jacobi defeated Jones, 15 to 8. In the Bagley, Cleveland won from Bradley, 13 to 7.

The results in the 8 o'clock draw follow: Universal—Fregeau, 17; West, 6; Manley-Schiller, 9; Bierhalter, 16. Herald—Bradley, 10; Dinham, 12.

WHITE OUTPOINTS PAL MOORE EASILY

Kenosha, Wis., March 11. — Charlie White, the Chicago featherweight, outpointed Pal Moore of Philadelphia by a big margin in a ten-round fight here last night.

Six times White floored his opponent with right and left swings to the jaw. Moore took the count of nine four times, and the bell saved him on the other two occasions. Four knockdowns came during the third round, despite the fact that White had broken a bone in his right hand during the second round. The other knockdowns occurred in the fifth and eighth rounds. The result was never in doubt after the third round, Moore remaining on his feet only by sheer pluck.

Moore made his best showing in the first round when he rushed White across the ring and knocked him over the ropes with right and left swings. Moore also fell out of the ring.

Freddie Daniels of St. Joseph, Mo., and Jimmy Murphy of Chicago boxed eight rounds to a draw in the semi-windup, and Matty McCue of Racine dropped George Horton of Denver for the count in the third round and Bobbie Williams of Kenosha stopped Chick Smith of Chicago in two minutes.

Delegations which were expected to arrive from the Wisconsin and Illinois legislatures failed to appear.

Ferns Beats Kelly.

Kansas City, Mo., March 11.—"Wildcat" Ferns was given the decision over "Spike" Kelly, Chicago, in a ten-round bout last night.

ANCIENT TOM M'CUNE IS A WHITE HOPE NOW

Remember old Tom McCune?

Think a minute—he used to be around these parts. Remember the large evening he fought Eddie McGoorty right in our midst? Almost hit Eddie once. Then again he met Walter White head up on the range. He'd fight any one, Tom would, he would.

No, Tom wasn't any youngster when he was around these diggings. Once he gave up the fight game in disgust; went to tinning roofs. Hit his hand with the hammer and then went back to fighting again.

Well, get this, he is whitehoping, down Pennsylvania way. Yes, sir; wants to fight Luther McCarty or any of the rest of the heavies of the ring. Let's see, why Tom must be around the 40 something mark by this time. Wonder if he still has the old wallop thing.

Once he went up Port Arthur way to fight Jack Parres. Parres was one royal roughneck; tough and all that sort of thing. He bragged of what he was going to do to old Tom McCune. Came right out in the open and told a bunch of people what he was going to do to Tom. Said people repeated said things.

When old Tom climbed through the ropes he walked over to the corner where this Parres sat. Then he spake: "Who in ——— ever told you you could fight?" asked old Tom, and the accompanying sneer was immense.

Then Tom strolled back to his corner.

With the ringing of the bell Tom started to show Parres that he had made a serious mistake by adopting the fighting game as his only means of getting regular meals. What McCune did to Parres cannot be graphically described. It was enough, be sure of that. Parres took the count along in the fourth or fifth or some similarly early round.

Yes; that was precisely it; who ever did tell Parres he could fight.

So old Tom is still fighting, eh? Well, well. Probably he dislikes tinning roofs just as cordially as in the days of yore.

SOUTH WITH THE MAJORS

Tampa, Fla., March 11.—Tampa merchants, who want President Murphy to make this his permanent training quarters, today sent signals of distress to bush leaguers all over the state. They want some real opposition that will give the Cubs a workout.

The Tampa club having failed to stand up for more than three innings, the Cubs boarded ship Sunday and played Uncle Sam's soldiers at Fort Dade. The soldiers fell under Cub fire by the score of 10 to 0, and the outcome was disappointing. This morning Evers had the regulars and Yannigans go at it for five innings.

Pirates Sign Up.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 11.—Bobby Byrne, third sacker, and Max Carey, left fielder, were members of the Pirate squad when the West Baden and Pittsburg divisions arrived today. Manager Clarke satisfied the hold-outs in a conference held in St. Louis last night. Pitcher Hendrix is still out. George Eastman, a half-breed Sioux Indian from South Dakota, a recent acquisition, was among today's arrivals.

Rain Halts Fray.

Gulfport, Miss., March 11.—The Tigers began their third and hardest week of practice today. Jennings planned to keep the squad at Gulfport during the entire week, three games being held on the home lot. On Tuesday the Tigers play Tulane university, on Friday Mobile, and on Saturday, New Orleans.

With the expected arrival today of the veteran twirler Willett, the Tiger squad will number thirty. Cobb and Crawford have given no indication of any change in their hold-out plans.

A downpour of rain in the first inning put a sudden stop to the Detroit-Cincinnati game at Mobile yesterday.

Sox Take Two Games.

San Francisco, March 11.—Having observed the Sabbath by trimming Oakland in the morning and the 'Frisco Seals in the afternoon, the Sox prepared for a real tourist's program today. Oakland enthusiasts whizzed the players about on a sight-seeing trip early today, and the White Sox are scheduled to trim the St. Ignatius college team here this afternoon, and to be guests at a dinner tonight.

Mud Hens With Naps.

Pensacola, Fla., March 11.—Because rain caused the postponement of the first Nap-Yannigan game scheduled for Sunday, the five-inning contest will be staged today. The Toledo Mudhens of the American association have arrived, and will use the same park as the Naps to train in. It is planned to have several practice games between the two teams, starting the latter part of the week.

New Giant Does.

Marlin, Texas, March 11.—Although they had seen little of him since he joined their camp, the Giants were downcast today over the death of young Thomas Hanley, following an operation for appendicitis. The young man was 24 years old, and played last year in the Ohio State league. Little work was done by the squad today, McGraw contenting himself with a short workout of the younger men.

SMASHES ALL BOWLING RECORDS

Toledo, Ohio, March 11.—All records for an individual game in an American bowling tournament were smashed last night by William J. Knox of Philadelphia, when he rolled 300, a perfect score. Knox's total count in his individuals was 672, which placed him second in the list of leaders. The work of Knox created the biggest sensation of the tournament. He totaled only 173 in his first game, but improved his second game to 199, getting a succession of strikes to the end after the seventh frame.

When he began his third game little attention was paid to him until he reached the third frame. It was seen that he was continuing his strikes. On his last ball one of the pins wavered. The bowlers on the alleys, the scorers, the pin boys and the crowd watched patiently. The pin made a few vibrations and fell into the pit, completing the perfect run of 300.

Two score boys on the top tier fell off their stands because of their excitement. Cheers greeted Knox, who was the coolest man in the hall. The score made is the sixth Knox has made thus far this year, the remainder having been made in league games in Philadelphia.

Bipen of St. Louis was the only other bowler who rolled a score high enough yesterday to get in the individual leaders. He rolled 655 and took sixth place.

In the two-men event two changes were made, Michael Mauser and Michael Welsh of Youngstown, Ohio, rolled 1,266 and went into third place. Ed Canfield and Hugh Duckett of Chicago went into ninth place with a score of 1,232. Scores:

Individuals — Peterson, Columbus, Ohio, 693; Knox, Philadelphia, 672; Huebner, Chicago, 662.

The Flor de Knispel five of St. Paul, Minn., went into first place when they made another new record for the A. B. C. with 3,006 pins. The lead of the Overlands of Toledo of 2,992, made one week ago, was shattered on the third game, when the new leaders ran a score of 1,003. Their count in the first game resulted in 166. The Schmidts, also of St. Paul, totaled 1,772 pins in this event.

Five-men leaders—Flor De Knispels, St. Paul, 3,006; Overlands, Toledo, 2,993; Hudson Stars, Newark, N. J., 2,946; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,943; Gambrinus, Columbus, 2,903; Colonnas, Chicago, 2,900; Educators, Chicago, 2,896; Morgenroths, Milwaukee, 2,894; Lexington No. 1, Lexington, Ky., 2,890; Hardly Ables, Canton, Ohio, 2,888.

ATHLETICS MUST BE PURIFIED

New York, March 10.—President Le Baron R. Briggs of the National Collegiate Athletic association has sent out notices to the 108 colleges and universities of the organization that the most important task the body has before it at present is the question of college students playing baseball for money. Dean Briggs' circular in part is as follows:

Too Much Professionalism.

"It would appear that the next important duty of the association is to exert its influence in the direction of improving the game of baseball as played by college men. In the judgment of many college baseball is attended by certain sharp practices and deviations from true sportsmanship which have been borrowed, along with the finer technical points of the game, from professional players."

A committee of three college professors has been appointed to investigate the problem, and it is expected that at the next meeting of the body some radical action will be taken to prevent college students playing with semi-professional teams during the summer vacation.

Carlisle Bars Baseball.

The activity of the association against college students playing for money during the summer vacation has been prompted by the case of Jim Thorpe of Carlisle. The Indian school is an associate member of the organization, and a few seasons ago baseball was abolished by Coach Warner because of the professional baseball ambition it aroused among the students. All the Indian pitchers aspired to get into the major league like Chief Bender did after he left Carlisle.

The object of the committee will be to have the organization either take drastic measures to prevent students from playing for money or permit them to do so. No matter which policy is adopted, there is sure to be much opposition. Many of the colleges connected with the association permit students to play for money during the summer.

JIMMY BRADY IS AFTER CONLEY

Jimmy Brady, the clever little featherweight who has called this city his home for the past six months, announced yesterday that he is seeking a battle with Frankie Conley, and that in the event of a victory over the little Italian he will go after the best in the featherweight division.

Brady is a freak in the fighting line. Standing almost six feet in height this boy can easily make the prescribed weight of his division, 122 pounds. His reach is so phenomenal for a featherweight and his height so far above the average fighter of his poundage, that Brady possesses an advantage that has been a wonderful asset in all of his fights.

The progress of this tall and lean boxer has been steady during the past year. He has not lost a decision during the past two years. Brady believes that he has faithfully served his apprenticeship and is ready for some of the larger game among the featherweights.

FRANK BRYANT BEATEN BY CLARENCE HAMILTON

Telegraphic reports from Milwaukee state that Frank Bryant was defeated in his race with Clarence Hamilton, advertised for the roller skating championship of the world. The time of Hamilton was 3:04 and Bryant's time was 3:07. The race was close throughout, the little Duluth flyer giving the great Eastern speed merchant one of the greatest races of his career. Bryant is matched to race Fred Martin, the Pacific coast star, the contest being scheduled for one of the Milwaukee rinks. The Duluth boy is confident of defeating Martin and will then ask for a return contest with Hamilton.

Johnson Cases Soon.

Chicago, March 11.—After three weeks' illness Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, appeared at the Federal court building yesterday to urge that his trial on a charge of smuggling a diamond necklace valued at $50,000 into this country from England, be set for an early date. The case will be set for trial in a few weeks. After this case is disposed of the cases charging the pugilist with violations of the Mann white slave act will be heard.

CROSS GETS JOE MANDOT

New Orleans, La., March 11.—Joe Mandot, the French baker boy, finished flat on his back in his scheduled 10-round fight with Leach Cross, the New York lightweight, here last night. Mandot was completely knocked out, the second time in his career.

The finish came in the tenth round after Mandot had been floored five times in the ninth. Mandot responded to the bell in the tenth round, hardly able to keep his feet. Cross, noting his condition met him with a savage onslaught of punches. Right and left swings to the jaw sent Mandot to the floor. As he fell, his manager hurled a towel into the ring.

Mandot seemed to be outclassed after the third round when Cross began clever infighting. At long range work the New Orleans man showed to better advantage, but Cross kept close in and at the infighting was superior. Mandot was a 5 to 3 favorite.

Joe Rivers challenged the winner.

PAL BROWN HAS FIGHTS DATED

Chisholm's neat boxer, Pal Brown, has been negotiating the past few days by telegraph arranging dates for a series of bouts throughout the Southern states and will leave about March 15 for Memphis, Tenn., where his first bout is to be staged. Brown will meet Joe Shannon in that city around March 18, the exact date not having been definitely decided upon. From Memphis he will go to Kansas City, where a match with Jerry Murphy is being staged and then to St. Joseph, Mo., to meet Eddie Denny. The latter dates have not been arranged, but will follow closely on his Memphis date. Brown has gone into steady training again and will be in perfect condition. In fact the day after he returned from Milwaukee, after his bout with Steve Ketchel, he took his usual five-mile run and reported at training quarters in the afternoon, going through some light boxing and gymnasium work.

SCHEDULES ARE NEARLY READY

New York, March 11.—Schedule-making of the nearly two score of recognized professional baseball leagues in the country is practically complete for the 1913 season, with only a few departures from the general program which was followed last year.

The first pennant race is to be started, as usual, by the Pacific Coast league, whose season opens the first of April, and which is also the last to close—on Oct. 26. April 10 is the big opening day of the year, marking not only the commencement of two major league seasons, but those of the American association, the Texas league and the Southern league. The Western league, whose season opens April 18 and closes Oct. 5, has voted to retain the 168-game schedule, which makes three minor leagues now playing longer schedules than the major leagues, namely, the Pacific Coast league, the American association and the Western league.

Among the changes this year in the various circuits there is the probable shift of the Fall River, Mass., franchise to Portland, Me., in the New England league; the return of Waterbury, Conn., to the old Connecticut league, which will be called the Eastern association this year, and the addition of New London and Pittsfield, with the loss of New Britain, makes an eight-club circuit. Last year there were but six teams.

The Central league is considerably changed, being reduced from a twelve-club circuit to one of six cities—Fort Wayne, Terre Haute and Evansville, Ind., Dayton and Springfield, Ohio, and Grand Rapids, Mich. The Ohio State league is reduced to a six-club circuit of Ironton, Lima, Mansfield, Chillicothe, Portsmouth and Newark, Ohio.

The opening and closing dates of most of the leagues whose schedules are available are given below:

April 1—Pacific Coast league, Oct. 26.
April 10—American league, Oct. 5.
April 10—National league, Oct. 5.
April 10—American association, Sept. 29.
April 10—Texas league, Sept. 7.

Saved in Ninth.

San Francisco, Cal., March 11.—The Chicago White Sox saved themselves in the ninth inning yesterday from defeat at the hands of the boys of St. Ignatius college. Up to the last period of play, the collegians led 2 to 1, Reuther having allowed the Sox but one hit. But then the big leaguers took a brace, the youngsters broke down, and three Chicago men crossed the plate.

RANGE WARDENS CATCH TWO MEN

Start for Court With One and Take the Other.

Grand Marais, Minn., March 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Wardens Tabor of Two Harbors, Bede of Tower and James and Choer of Ely brought two law violators here before Judge Durfee and both pleaded guilty. The wardens first arrested George Wartner at Gunflint after breaking into his home during his absence and finding beaver fur in violation of law. They later arrested him and started for Grand Marais with him when he asked to be allowed to notify Alec Smart, a neighbor of his whereabouts. At Smart's place the wardens found moose meat so they took him into custody and [illegible] along. The party arrived in Grand Marais in the face of a severe blizzard. The next morning Wartner was arraigned before Justice Durfee charged with killing of beaver and Smart was called on to answer to the charge of having moose meat in his possession. Both men pleaded guilty and were fined $50 and costs each, which they paid.

Guns Are Confiscated.

The game wardens also confiscated a gun and some other articles found in Wartner's cabin upon the grounds that fire arms are not permitted to be kept on the game preserve. Wartner's homestead, where he has lived continuously for a quarter of a century, is on the preserve.

Smart's arrest was as much a surprise to Warner as to Smart himself knowing that he was well supplied with bacon, ham and other unforbidden meats. Wartner had no thought of getting his neighbor into trouble by making him a call.

CHISHOLM NOT IN QUARANTINE

Reports Sent Out About Scarlet Fever Doing Range Village Damage.

Chisholm, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sensational reports sent out about Chisholm being quarantined to other range towns because of the epidemic of scarlet fever are unfounded and working much injury. While it is admitted the disease is making inroads wherever it appears, six deaths having occured, a canvass of the town is said to reveal only twenty-seven cases to date and the health authorities believe the disease will be stamped out without resorting to the extreme of quarantining the village.

The disease wherever fatal has claimed its victims with a remarkable speed that has baffled the physicians. A little child of Gust Anderson is reported near to death and little hope is held out.

The reports of 250 cases and numerous deaths are entirely without foundation and come only from wild stories. All grown persons are permitted to move about as usual and no restrictions have been placed on business methods.

M'GUIRE TELLS OF FARM'S WORK

Head of Grand Rapids Experiment Farm on Last Year's Doings.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. A. J. McGuire of the North Central experiment station here has issued a report of the work for 1912 in the course of which he says:

"The eight field crops grown were oats, wheat, barley, potatoes, fodder corn and clover. The oats yielded 60 bushels per acre, the wheat 22, barley 26, potatoes (early) 240, potatoes (late) 394, fodder corn 15 tons (green weight) per acre, clover hay 5 tons (two cuttings) per acre.

"These were the largest yields that have been obtained on the experiment farm, but are the result of a normal increase from year to year due to the increased number of dairy stock kept on the farm.

"Forty cows and seventeen heifers were milked. The average production of the 40 cows was 5,629 pounds of milk, and 247 pounds of butter fat. The heifers milked less than half the year, most of them coming in in September and October. The total sales from the dairy in 1912 were $5,267.09, of which $4,726.58 was for milk and cream. The total sales from the experiment farm in 1912 (110 acres under cultivation) were $7,144.47.

The Poultry Department.

"The poultry house was built according to the most modern plans, but not expensively. It is 216 feet long and 16 feet wide and diveded into ten pens with a feed room in the center. There is a concrete foundation under the entire building but earth floors are used. The cost of the building complete was $1,100. It has a capacity of from 500 to 700 hens.

"At the beginning of the year 1912 the flock consisted of 488 hens, 302 of which were pullets. They were not especially selected, a number of the hens being old and a number of the pullets late hatched. During the year they were culled down to 248. The total number of eggs laid was 2,454 dozen. The total receipts for the year was $807.34 and with the addition of 127 more fowls than at the beginning of the year. The cost of feed at market price was $387.29 for the year. Estimating the surplus fowls at 60 cents each the total receipts would be $482.55 above the cost of feed. This is not a large profit, but sufficient for the first year to indicate very favorable possibilities for the poultry industry in Northeastern Minnesota."

HIBBING VOTES COMING SLOWLY

Up to Noon Comparatively Small Vote Had Been Cast.

Hibbing, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although there has been more or less keen interest displayed in the village election winding up with the rousing meeting last night addressed by Victor Power, Progressive candidate for president or mayor, the voters did not turn out very numerously to vote this morning. Up to noon a remarkably light vote has been cast, but it is predicted voters will take more interest as the day advances.

This is the first village election held here under the corrupt practice act which, perhaps, explains the apathy shown.

Weirick Goes to Duluth.

Dr. Weirick, who is running for mayor for the seventh time, is so unconcerned about the outcome that he left for Duluth today en route to Chicago. He is understood to have expressed belief he would be re-elected. The general sentiment among the politically wise is that he will be re-elected, but that his majority may be reduced.

RAPIDS ELECTION TAME.

With Only One Contest, Little Interest Is Displayed.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—With only one contest for a village office, Lester Lofberg and T. H. Shoaf for treasurer, today's election is a tame affair. There are two tickets, the caucus and the Socialist, but it is claimed that the latter will not poll a very heavy vote.

The village and township candidates are:

Caucus ticket — George Riddell, president; George Arscott, Dr. Thomas Russell and Fred King, trustees; Lester Lofberg, treasurer; Frank Sherman, recorder; Charles Kearney, justice; G. O. Johnson, constable.

Socialist ticket — John Longhurst, president; R. W Cook, recorder; William Wheaton, treasurer; H. A. Wardall, justice; Charles Hammer, Al Roecker and E. T. Cassidy, trustees.

BUILDING NEW DEPOT.

Progress Being Made on Virginia Structure Despite Weather.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Canadian Northern depot here will soon be ready for use. Chief Engineer J. L. Pickles inspected it yesterday afternoon and expressed satisfaction at the progress made considering the delay occasioned by the weather.

The foundations are in and the first course of the brick and stone work is up. The engineers had considerable difficulty in getting a good bottom for the foundations owing to the proximity of Silver lake and this somewhat delayed the earlier work of construction.

The old library building is now being used for a passenger depot until the new building is complete.

BURIED AT BESSEMER.

Last Rites in Michigan Town for Aurora, Minn., Woman.

Bessemer, Mich., March 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral services of Mrs. Esther Richards, wife of Thomas Richards, former residents of Wakefield, who died at the family home at Aurora, Minn., were conducted by the Rev. W. S. Smith at the M. E. church and were largely attended. Interment was made in the family lot in the Bessemer cemetery. Asthma, from which the deceased suffered for three years, was the cause of death. Mrs. Richards was 39 years of age and is survived by her husband and three children, John Thomas, Marion and Edward, two brothers, William and Marshall Fulford of Aurora, and her parents and three sisters in England.

The deceased was a member of the Degree of Honor and the lodge of this city attended the funeral in a body.

Those from out of town attending were John Richards, Charles Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. John Osborne of Wakefield and William Uren of the Anvil.

COHASSET VOTING ON LICENSE QUESTION.

Cohasset, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of license or no license for this village is being fought out at the polls today with both sides predicting victory.

The question of license does not figure in the choice of offices. The village and township candidates are:

Village ticket — President, J. H. Grady; trustees, H. Ranfranz, W. W. Fletcher, Joe Violette; recorder, G. H. O'Brien; treasurer, R. K. Stokes; justice, William Wols; constable, M. Stapleton.

Town of Bass Brook — Supervisor, John Lane; clerk, G. H. O'Brien; treasurer, R. K. Stokes; assessor, S. Jeffers; justice, A. J. Cushman; constable, M. Stapleton; town superintendent, F. Schumacker; road overseer, District No. 1, Peter Warberg.

Allen Mine to Ship.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The name of the Matopedia Mining company, operators of the Allen mine recently discovered by B. F. Smith, H. O. Johnson, Harry Osterberg and W. J. Markham, has been changed to the Morris Mining company, but the name of the mine remains the same. A crew of twenty men is working at the new property and the shaft is now down in the ore. The mine will ship this season.

Tower Couple in Ishpeming.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 11.—Patrick Welch and wife of Tower, Minn., are in the city on a visit with his brother, J. G. Welch, and sisters, the Misses Margaret and Bridget Welch.

WILL MOVE INTO NEW P. O. BUILDING

Virginia's New Federal Structure About Ready for Use.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new postoffice is about ready for use and the work of moving the equipment will begin Saturday so that patrons will use the postoffice next Monday. It is expected the entire building will be in use by April 1.

OFFICES IN DEMAND.

New Virginia Bank Building Will Be Rented in Advance.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—So great is the demand for office accommodation that applications have been made for almost the entire capacity of the new $40,000 office building being erected by the First National bank.

The architects are busy on the plans and it is expected bids will be asked early next month.

The actual work of construction will be commenced as soon as the frost is sufficiently out of the ground and owing to the size and height of the building will occupy most of the summer to complete.

POWER ADDRESSES BIG HIBBING CROWD.

Hibbing, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Victor L. Power, speaking in behalf of the candidates for village office of the progressive citizens and his own candidacy for mayor of Hibbing last night at the armory addressed probably the largest public meeting ever held here. The crowd taxed the capacity of the hall, the largest on the Mesaba range. It overflowed the galleries and the main part of the auditorium; it stood on the stairways outside and it gave to Mr. Power a respectful hearing. Mr. Power talked for fifty-five minutes. He was introduced by W. J. Ryder. He was frequently applauded and in the attendance and interest manifested was held sufficient by the advocates of the progressive citizens' ticket to warrant predictions that all would be elected today by safe majorities. He severely criticized the present administration.

DRUNK TAKEN TO JAIL IN SLEIGH.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ike McTavish was very drunk when arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Adolph Nelson in a grocery store and could not even stand on his own legs, let alone walk, so the big officer carried him to a nearby delivery sleigh and took him to jail, where McTavish has since been seeing things.

Bury Marquette Woman.

Marquette, Mich., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Clara Peterson, a native of Sweden, aged 85, for a quarter of a century a resident of Marquette, who died Saturday, was held here today.

Her husband, a well-known carpenter, died seven years ago this month. Mrs. Peterson is survived by four sons and two daughters. The former are Adolph of Seattle, Wash.; Charles of Ishpeming, and John and Axel of Marquette. The daughters are Mrs. Peter Wilson of Crystal Falls and Mrs. Johnson of Marquette.

Hibbing Has Some Cases Too.

Hibbing, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local police are seeking to prevent children going to Chisholm on account of the scarlet fever epidemic there and to prevent Chisholm children coming here. All cars on the interurban are closely watched. There are a few cases of scarlet fever here, but these are well isolated and serious results are not anticipated, although the health authorities are taking no chances.

Is Visiting in Virginia.

Negaunee, Mich., March 11.—Mrs. James McNeil has gone to Virginia, Minn., where she will spend the next several weeks at the home of her son, Emerson McNeil, while he and his wife are visiting P. C. Peterson and family, formerly of Negaunee, in West Newport, Or. Mr. and Mrs. McNeil departed on their journey Saturday night.

Thaw Hits Loggers.

Virginia, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The warm weather of the last few days has played havoc with the loggers who had been anticipating two or three weeks more of sleighing. Owing to the snowfall of the winter being light, it has taken only a day or two for the snow to disappear and work from now on in the woods will be greatly curtailed.

Called to Appleton.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Leo Burrows, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has resigned to accept a call from the Presbyterian congregation at Appleton, Wis.

His resignation has been received here with regret, as he is one of the most popular clergymen that has ever filled a Grand Rapids pulpit. He will leave here April 1.

Fargo to Greet Lumber Men.

Fargo, N. D., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo will again entertain the independent lumber dealers of the state who were here last year. The organization has over 200 members and George Leutz is president. The meeting will be held March 18 and 19 and the program includes leading dealers of the state.

Men Welcome Mother's Friend

A Duty that Every Man Owes to Those who Perpetuate the Race.

It is just as important that men should know of progressive methods in advance of motherhood. The suffering, pain and distress incident to child-bearing can be easily avoided by having at hand a bottle of Mother's Friend.

This is a wonderful, penetrating, external application that relieves all tension upon the muscles and enables them to expand without the painful strain upon the ligaments. Thus there is avoided all those nervous spells; the tendency to nausea or morning sickness is counteracted, and a bright, sunny, happy disposition is preserved that reflects wonderfully upon the character and temperament of the little one soon to open its eyes in bewilderment at the joy of his arrival. You can obtain a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store at $1.00, and it will be the best dollar's worth you ever obtained. It preserves the mother's health, enables her to make a quick and complete recovery, and thus with renewed strength she will eagerly devote herself to the care and attention which mean so much to the welfare of the child. Write to the Bradfield Regulator Co., 129 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their valuable and instructive book of guidance for expectant mothers. Get a bottle of Mother's Friend to-day.

RAY M. HUGHES WILL BE ORATOR

St. Patrick's Day to Be Celebrated in Advance of Date.

On account of St. Patrick's day falling in holy week this year, the celebration in Duluth will be held this week.

The annual entertainment at the Cathedral hall will be held Friday evening of this week with Ray M. Hughes as the speaker. Mr. Hughes has proved a splendid orator on his frequent appearances in Duluth and RAY M. HUGHES.

Duluth people of Irish birth and descent are looking forward with pleasure to his address Friday evening.

The program includes two Irish sketches to be given by the Cathedral Dramatic club. The sketches will be "Between Two Fires" and "That Rascal Pat." The casts will be made up of members of the club, which has scored a number of dramatic successes since its organization.

WILL NOT REPLY TO ANONYMOUS LETTER

Courtney Dinwiddie, secretary of the welfare board, this morning stated that he had nothing to say with regard to the anonymous communication attacking the welfare board and Associated Charities which was received by the West Duluth Commercial club at its meeting last Friday evening.

"The board took no action in the matter at its meeting Monday afternoon," he said, "and I do not see that there is anything to say. The mistaken impression that the anonymous communication sent to the club was adopted as its own seems to have been corrected. Apologies have been made and I understand that the council ignored the unsigned article.

"No one with any standing would send an anonymous communication to the West Duluth club. The article was fairly teeming with personal venom—nothing else."

Brainerd, Minn., March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A would-be funny traveling salesman placed a paper snake provided with a spring contrivance under the plate of a waiter at a local hotel and when the girl sat down at the evening meal and raised the plate, the toy snake flew up and struck her head. The girl fainted and after a half hour revived and then fainted again. The girl has not been able to work since.

STRAW VOTES BEING TAKEN

Sample Ballots Making Their Appearance in Cigar Stores.

Stirrup Club and the Municipal Ownership League Join Hands.

Although election is three weeks away, the straw ballot has put in its appearance. Several cigar stores along Superior street have supplies of sample ballots and have placed ballot boxes on the counters. The cigar store is a good place in which to obtain an indication of the down-town sentiment, and the sample ballots have been used plentifully.

One cigar store counted its vote yesterday and showed a wide scattering of votes among the candidates. On account of the use of the second and third choice votes, the results of straw ballots are deserving of less than ordinary attention, but they are taken as an indication of sentiment.

The most interesting feature of the vote counted yesterday is the extent to which the second and third choice columns were used. Out of ninety-two ballots cast, the second choice column was marked on fifty-four and the third choice on twenty. Politicians along the street say that the percentage of second and third choice votes at the election will not be so high, but the ballot indicates that the voters do not intend to ignore their opportunity to extend the influence of their ballots.

P. E. Dowling will open his campaign for mayor with an assault on corporation influence at the Woodmen's hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, tonight. The Municipal Ownership league and the Stirrup club are working together to get the candidates on record on the electric light question. The question as to whether the candidates favor the immediate acquisition of the electric lighting system by the city has been included in the list submitted to candidates by the Stirrup club and the answers will be taken by the Municipal Ownership league as the basis for its position as to candidates.

The Municipal Ownership league will get together again at Room A, Kalamazoo hall, next Saturday night and discuss candidates. The league is planning an aggressive campaign on behalf of candidates favorable to the immediate acquisition of the lighting system by the city.

The following executive committee of the Municipal Ownership league has been chosen: Frank Crasgweller, president; Frank T. McNally, vice president; John H. Brigham, secretary; Charles Mork, treasurer; T. T. Hudson, chairman of finance committee; R. W. Bowden, chairman of membership committee; R. M. Weaver, chairman of publicity committee; members at large, Watson S. Moore, E. J. Kenny, Dr. F. C. Bowman, H. H. Phelps, W. L. Smithies, Bert Fesler; First ward, chairman, G. W. C. Ross; Second ward, A. A. Fider; Third ward, John Burnett; Fourth ward, Richard Jones; Fifth ward, Oscar Christenson; Sixth ward, Erick Carlson; Seventh ward, J. B. Gibson; Eighth ward, Thomas Olafson.

This morning the Stirrup club had received answers from twenty-three of the fifty-nine candidates to whom its list of questions had been submitted.

Tomorrow is the last day for the filing of acceptances. Any candidates who do not file acceptances by tomorrow evening will not have their names on the ballot. P. E. MRS. WILSON GIVES TEA IN WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, March 11.—Mrs. Wilson gave her first tea in the White House yesterday with Mrs. Marshall, the wife of the vice president, and the wives of the cabinet members as her guests. The first lady in the land presided and practically every woman in the cabinet circle dropped in during the afternoon. Tea was served in the president's study on the second floor of the White House instead of in the Red room where Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Roosevelt held similar functions. Miss Belle Hagner, social secretary to Mrs. Wilson, was the only woman outside the cabinet circle invited, and according to gossip in Washington last night, the social program of the new administration was discussed at length over the tea cups.

"A Beautiful Face and Not a Wrinkle"

Marvelous New Discovery Makes Wrinkles Disappear in a Night in Many Instances and Wonderfully Enhances the Beauty.

To See How Wrinkles Add to a Woman's Age, Place a White Card Over Half of This Photo and Compare With the Other Half.

Apply this wonderful treatment for two minutes at 11 P. M., then go to bed. Get up at 7 A. M. Lo! the Magic Transformation. "It has completely removed that multitude of lines and wrinkles which I carried for nearly 20 years and I am 60 years of age," writes Mrs. J. H. Boylan.

No face massage, masks, straps, cold creams or steaming pots, but a marvelous new discovery that raises the wrinkle and puts it on a level with the surrounding skin. It also raises the flesh underneath the wrinkle and treats the flesh so that it quickly becomes hard and firm. Smooths out trouble wrinkles, wrinkles of care, wrinkles of age, wrinkles caused by frowning and squinting, wrinkles of almost any kind anywhere. Many say it has made them look 10 to 25 years younger. Women of 50 and even 60 years of age say it has most astonishingly restored them to youth so far as appearances go. I fooled them all and took my own wrinkles out with this wonderful discovery after beauty specialists had failed to do me any good, and today my friends say I have a beautiful face and not a wrinkle. In any event I have no wrinkles, notwithstanding the fact that I am a hard working business woman with great responsibilities.

Accounts of my wonderful discovery have appeared in so many newspapers throughout the country that I have been fairly deluged with letters from women asking for information in regard to the treatment. My time is so occupied that I cannot answer all with a personally written letter. I have therefore had a small folder printed which I shall be pleased to send absolutely free to any one interested. Please do not send money, as I am glad to give this information to you without charge. Address Harriet Meta, Suite 813L, Syracuse, N. Y., and free information will be sent you in sealed envelope.

Terrible Picture of Suffering

Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy, in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without suffering great pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself? Sold by all druggists.

ELEVATORS ARE FILLING

Grain May Have to Be Turned Away Before Season Opens.

Process of Moving Boats Under Spouts an Expensive One.

Certain members of the Duluth Board of Trade, in a position to be well informed, say that there is little doubt that the grain elevators at the American Head of the Lakes will be practically full after about two weeks, notwithstanding the relief that has been and is being obtained by loading grain into boats that are wintering in the harbor.

Last Saturday night the total amount of grain in store in the elevators and boats at Duluth and Superior was about 26,000,000 bushels. Of this the eelvators had about 21,500,000 bushels and the boats about 4,500,000 bushels.

The elevators will take about 4,500,000 bushels more. What the boats can be used for is a question. Storage rates here are abnormally high; yet it may be very hard to induce some of the owners who want their boats for ore to allow them to be used for grain.

Of late the grain in store at Duluth and Superior, bonded and domestic together, has been increasing at the rate of about 1,000,000 bushels in three days.

For some days many of the elevators have been relieving themselves by shooting grain into such boats as were handy and could be used for that purpose. A great deal of ice sawing had to be done to bring the boats under the elevator spouts. This is an expensive process, even when the boats have but a small distance to be moved. The ice on the bay is about three feeet thick.

At present the Consolidated company is relieving the elevator capacity on the Duluth side by shooting grain into the Wolf and the Dunham. On the Superior side the Cargill company is using the Corrigan and the Itasca company the Hemlock.

There is not much shipment of grain out of Duluth and Superior by rail just now, because the opening of navigation is so near. No dealer wishes to ship by rail if he can possibly avoid it, as that is so much more expensive.

The situation plainly means that much grain that would come to Duluth and Superior for storage late this winter and during the early spring, if there were room for it, will have to go to Minneapolis or some other place to be stored.

If navigation opens uncommonly early this year, it will do much to relieve the situation, but no one expects it to open in time to prevent the elevators at the American Head of the Lakes from losing a great deal of business on account of their lack of capacity to meet the demands of the situation.

RATES WILL TAKE EFFECT MARCH 20

The Western Transit company has just announced that the lake and rail rates will be put into force on March 20 between here and the East.

Manager Douglas of the company, expects the first ships of the Western fleet to leave each end of the lakes about April 19.

Shipmasters Will Meet.

The local shipmasters' lodge will have another social session next Saturday evening at Foresters' hall. This will be the last one until next winter unless the opening of navigation is later than usual. The wives and sweethearts of the members will be special guests, and there will be refreshments and dancing.

TOO MUCH ICE FOR THE EASTON

There has been much inquiry about the city as to when the staunch little steamer Easton of the Booth line, will start out for the season and Manager Hogstan of the line informs The Herald that she will not begin until about the middle of April. The ice conditions in the harbor and the vast quantities of floating ice in the lake, make earlier attempts perilous, he says.

RUBBERS AND RUBBERERS

These and Other Familiar Signs Indicate That Spring Has Surely Sprang.

"Rubbers? Yes, walk this way, please; yes, it is sloppy, pardon, lady, I mean damp, today. We have something of the latest style in your size. Yes, we're selling lots of rubbers these days."

This is the headline monologue that is being put on at most of the Duluth shoe stores. This monologue is getting the money and filling the house. However, let it be said that in the argot of vaudeville, it is not "standing 'em on their heads." Mercy no!

Starting Saturday the rush began. Ladies, children, men, boys, youths and callow ones; ladies with children, father and the boys, little sister with littler little sisters—all these trekked through the water and over the mountainous snow piled in the middle of our streets, to the shoe stores. All roads lead to Rome, according to Herodotus and others; likewise one might state that various streets and avenues lead to the shoe stores of Duluth—are leading to said emporium of the Trilby trust.

Other Signs of Spring.

The signs of spring are numerous. There is the blithesome robin, he of the little red breast. Then there is the little patch of green grass showing through a hole in the snow. There is the intimation of wife, or her insinuation, of the need of a new hat, spring fiction of amorous nature, or the measles, or the bored girl quitting, or the revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "East Lynne," or perhaps the notification that Grandma, who hates children, is coming to spend the summer. There are innumerable signs of spring, but perhaps the most solid and irrefutable indication is the little splash of mud.

We had that Saturday and since. When children and father and the milk man, or the chauffeur—trailing eastward—come into the house with muddy feet, there will speedily be increased business for the shoe stores. This was what happened, tracing the thing back to the beginning.

And therefore while spring styles in men's and ladies' shoes are standing in the wings and trying to break in and incidentally flashy socks—and stockings—break out—the rubber has the center of the stage. Be it low, flat, high or medium, this is the time of the rubber, and the rubber—inanimate and masculine — together with muddy streets make up one of the sure signs of approaching spring.

The Man With the Pick.

One might say that the sight of a single man with a pickax and a leisurely manner is another indication of the approach of the time when poets are fit to bother editors and torture the people of the rural communities. The man with the pickax and the deliberate manner is employed by the city, and the city seldom employs men or a man on her streets unless the occasion is a provoking one. Spring taken in connection with the Duluth streets is dreadfully provoking.

Of course, the elevation—but let us pass that up.

One might notice signs advising girls to save money and learn the millinery trade. This is one of the signs of spring, though cold blooded husband will say that it is quite impossible to save money in this game.

The spring shirt leers in vagrant and violent colors from out the window. The spring hat arrived with the first robin. A saucy thing, this spring hat, colored like a crocodile in some instances, with a bow that nods southward as you progress northward. This change of style, by the way, is one of the infallible signs of spring. When styles change behold the seasons follow, humbly and with a cringling mein.

Boys with marbles are to be seen on the streets, or on the sidewalks, to be more proper, for no drownings have been reported as yet.

Marbles and spring down through the course of the years have been as closely identified as Damon and Pythias, "The Two Orphans," or Col. Roosevelt and some public place.

Let the action of the story halt for the moment. Bock beer is with us.

Yes, truly ye, it doth seem as if the gentle spring tide has descended upon us. Rubbers, to return to the beginning or the foot, and topcoats, that beautiful winter overcoat that you looked at last fall and gently sighed, going for a mere song—surely, you can't doubt the fragrant existence of that quarter of the year that has generally been recognized and usurped by florists, milliners, poets and dressmakers; verily no, spring by all these multifarious signs must be with us, this, too, despite the fact that the weather man, materialist, cold, unfeeling and inconsiderate being that he is, has held aloft the cold and clammy hand of warning, and shouted drearily in the midst of this all—"Stop, look and listen; tomorrow it may blizzard."

For Eczema on Scalp or Body

(From American Family Doctor)

"New methods are supplanting the old. Not long ago eczema on the scalp or body was given complicated and costly treatment. Today the simple quintone treatment is used in every city of the union for eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and itching eruptions of the skin or scalp.

"Any person can apply this treatment. Get from your druggist two ounces of quintone, disolve it in one-half pint hot water and apply a little to the affected part. That is all there is to it. Two or three applications usually accomplish the desired result.

"A recent record of 98 cases treated showed 95 completely cured and the treatment was beneficial for the other three."

PAST FIFTY? YOU NEED "CASCARETS"

What Glasses Are to Weak Eyes—Cascarets Are to Weak Bowels.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

ELEVATORS ARE FILLING

Grain May Have to Be Turned Away Before Season Opens.

Process of Moving Boats Under Spouts an Expensive One.

Certain members of the Duluth Board of Trade, in a position to be well informed, say that there is little doubt that the grain elevators at the American Head of the Lakes will be practically full after about two weeks, notwithstanding the relief that has been and is being obtained by loading grain into boats that are wintering in the harbor.

Last Saturday night the total amount of grain in store in the elevators and boats at Duluth and Superior was about 26,000,000 bushels. Of this the elevators had about 21,500,000 bushels and the boats about 4,500,000 bushels.

The elevators will take about 4,500,000 bushels more. What the boats can be used for is a question. Storage rates here are abnormally high; yet it may be very hard to induce some of the owners who want their boats for ore to allow them to be used for grain.

Of late the grain in store at Duluth and Superior, bonded and domestic together, has been increasing at the rate of about 1,000,000 bushels in three days.

For some days many of the elevators have been relieving themselves by shooting grain into such boats as were handy and could be used for that purpose. A great deal of ice sawing had to be done to bring the boats under ice elevator spouts. This is an expensive process even when the boats have but a small distance to be moved. The ice on the bay is about three feet thick.

At present the Consolidated company is relieving the elevator capacity on the Duluth side by shooting grain into the Wolf and the Dunham. On the Superior side the Cargill company is using the Corrigan and the Itasca company the Hemlock.

There is not much shipment of grain out of Duluth and Superior by rail just now, because the opening of navigation is so near. No dealer wishes to ship by rail if he can possibly avoid it, as that is so much more expensive.

The situation plainly means that much grain that would come to Duluth and Superior for storage late this winter and during the early spring, if there were room for it, will have to go to Minneapolis or some other place to be stored.

If navigation opens uncommonly early this year, it will do much to relieve the situation, but no one expects it to open in time to prevent the elevators at the American Head of the Lakes from losing a great deal of business on account of their lack of capacity to meet the demands of the situation.

RATES WILL TAKE EFFECT MARCH 20

The Western Transit company has just announced that the lake and rail rates will be put into force on March 20 between here and the East.

Manager Douglas of the company, expects the first ships of the Western fleet to leave each end of the lakes about April 19.

Shipmasters Will Meet.

The local shipmasters' lodge will have another social session next Saturday evening at Foresters' hall. This will be the last one until next winter unless the opening of navigation is later than usual. The wives and sweethearts of the members will be special guests, and there will be refreshments and dancing.

TOO MUCH ICE FOR THE EASTON

There has been much inquiry about the city as to when the staunch little steamer Easton of the Booth line, will start out for the season and Manager Hogstan of the line informs The Herald that she will not begin until about the middle of April. The ice conditions in the harbor and the vast quantities of floating ice in the lake, make earlier attempts perilous, he says.

RUBBERS AND RUBBERERS

These and Other Familiar Signs Indicate That Spring Has Surely Sprang.

"Rubbers? Yes, walk this way, please; yes, it is sloppy, pardon, lady, I mean damp, today. We have something of the latest style in your size. Yes, we're selling lots of rubbers these days."

This is the headline monologue that is being put on at most of the Duluth shoe stores. This monologue is getting the money and filling the house. However, let it be said that in the argot of vaudeville, it is not "standing 'em on their heads." Mercy no!

Starting Saturday the rush began. Ladies, children, men, boys, youths and callow ones; ladies with children, father and the boys, little sister with father and the boys, little sister with little sisters—all these trekked through the water and over the mountainous snow piled in the middle of our streets, to the shoe stores. All roads lead to Rome, according to Herodotus and others; likewise one might state that various streets and avenues lead to the shoe stores of Duluth—are leading to said emporium of the Trilby trust.

Other Signs of Spring.

The signs of spring are numerous. There is the blithesome robin, he of the little red breast. Then there is the little patch of green grass showing through a hole in the snow. There is the intimation of wife, or her insinuation, of the need of a new hat, spring fiction of amorous nature, or the measles, or the bird dog quitting, or the revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "East Lynne," or perhaps the notification that Grandma, who hates children, is coming to spend the summer. There are innumerable signs of spring, but perhaps the most solid and irrefutable indication is the little splash of mud.

We had that Saturday and since. When children and father and the milk man, or the chauffeur—trailing eastward—come into the house with muddy feet, there will speedily be increased business for the shoe stores. This was what happened, tracing the thing back to the beginning.

And therefore while spring styles in men's and ladies' shoes are standing in the wings and trying to break in and incidentally dashy socks—and stockings—break out—the rubber has the center of the stage. Be it low, flat, high or medium, this is the time of the rubber, and the rubber—inanimate and masculine — together with muddy streets make up one of the sure signs of approaching spring.

The Man With the Pick.

One might say that the sight of a single man with a pickax and a leisurely manner is another indication of the approach of the time when pests see fit to bother editors and torture the people of the rural communities. The man with the pickax and the deliberate manner is employed by the city, and the city seldom employs men or a man on her streets unless the occasion is a provoking one. Spring taken in connection with the Duluth streets is dreadfully provoking.

Of course, the elevation—but let us pass that up.

One might notice signs advising girls to save money and learn the millinery trade. This is one of the signs of spring, though cold blooded husband will say that it is quite impossible to save money in this game.

The spring shirt leers in vagrant and violent colors from out the window. The spring hat arrived with the first robin. A saucy thing, this spring hat, colored like a crocodile in some instances, with a bow that nods southward as you progress northward. This change of style, by the way, is one of the infallible signs of spring. When styles change behold the seasons follow, humbly and with a cringling mein.

Boys with marbles are to be seen on the streets, or on the sidewalks, to be more proper, for no drownings have been reported as yet.

Marbles and spring down through the course of the years have been as closely identified as Damon and Pythias, "The Two Orphans," or Col. Roosevelt and some public place.

Let the action of the story halt for the moment. Bock beer is with us.

Yes, truly ye, it doth seem as if the gentle spring tide has descended upon us. Rubbers, to return to the beginning or the foot, and topcoats, that beautiful winter overcoat that you looked at last fall and gently sighed, going for a mere song—surely, you can't doubt the fragrant existence of that quarter of the year that has generally been recognized and usurped by florists, milliners, poets and dressmakers; verily no, spring by all these multifarious signs must be with us, this, too, despite the fact that the weather man, materialist, cold, unfeeling and inconsiderate being that he is, has held aloft the cold and clammy hand of warning, and shouted drearily in the midst of this all—"Stop, look and listen; tomorrow it may blizzard."

For Eczema on Scalp or Body

(From American Family Doctor)

"New methods are supplanting the old. Not long ago eczema on the scalp or body was given complicated and costly treatment. Today the simple quintone treatment is used in every city of the union for eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and itching eruptions of the skin or scalp.

"Any person can apply this treatment. Get from your druggist two ounces of quintone, disolve it in one-half pint hot water and apply a little to the affected part. That is all there is to it. Two or three applications usually accomplish the desired result. "A recent record of 98 cases treated showed 95 completely cured and the treatment was beneficial for the other three."

What Glasses Are to Weak Eyes—Cascarets Are to Weak Bowels.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

WHEAT TAKES HEAVY DROP

Government Grain Report Proves Exceedingly Bearish Factor.

Flaxseed Works Lower Owing to Influence of Foreign Figures.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 11.—Wheat took a sensational drop on the markets of North America today on account of the government grain report, showing a large quantity still in the hands of the farmers. Duluth May wheat closed 1½c to 2c under May. Durum at the close was ½c off, oats 1¾c off, rye 1c up and barley unchanged. Duluth May and July flax today closed ⅝c up.

The bottom dropped out of the wheat markets of North America this morning. This seemed to be mainly due to the bearish government report of yesterday, which estimated that the wheat in the farmers' hands was far larger than it was a year ago, and that they held a larger percentage of the crop than they did a year ago, notwithstanding the vast quantities that had been marketed. The primary receipts were very large today, being, as usual, away in excess of those of a year ago. The weather reports from the winter wheat region were very favorable. There seemed to be nothing to sustain the market, and after the down-turn began it dropped it a hurry.

Duluth May wheat, which closed yesterday at 86⅝c bid, opened today at 86½c bid, and at noon today was selling at 85½c. There were lower quotations also at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Liverpool wheat today closed ¼d to ⅝d lower. That market was beared by reports of less inquiry from Plata cargoes, larger Indian offers, more favorable weather for the winter wheat of Russia and the expectation of a large increase in the Russian visible supply this week.

Flax Is Higher.

A strong export situation in flax at Winnipeg, due to higher foreign quotations, forced that market higher this morning and boosted the market at Duluth in sympathy, though the American crushers were not good buyers. Duluth May and July flax at noon today were ½c higher. Winnipeg May flax at noon was at $1.12⅝ being 1¾c under Duluth May. The Minneapolis cash price at noon was 2¼c under Duluth May, showing very poor demand on the part of Minneapolis crushers. London Calcutta March seed was ⅞c off at $1.56⅞ at the close today.

Rycroft wired from Chicago: "All the grain markets look very heavy to me and I believe they are going to work considerably lower. We have an abundance of everything in the country and tight money the world over will certainly check any bull speculation; in fact, it will bring about liquidation."

Bartlett-Frazier wired from Chicago: "The winter conditions over the winter wheat belt continue of a most favorable character. The cash demand keeps very quiet while the primary receipts are enormous. Yesterday's government figures show reserves amply sufficient for all apparent requirements both at home and abroad. We continue to view the situation as a bearish one."

The Minneapolis Commercial West says: "The principal feature of the linseed oil situation is a very dull demand, with buyers making occasional offers at prices below actual cost of production. There is, of course, a little oil being sold all the time, but the amount is considerably less than a few weeks ago. Apparently oil that is being taken now is to meet some pressing demand. Jobbers as a rule have fair stocks on hand and they confine themselves to filling the immediate wants. While it is difficult to say just what the market on linseed oil is, it may be said that some oil has been sold this week at 41c for raw, in car lots, f. o. b. Minneapolis. Yet crushers say this is below cost of production, based on the price of flaxseed at the present time. There seems to be no fear on the part of any one that supplies of flaxseed will not be ample throughout the remainder of the season. Some of the local crushers continue to bring seed to this market from Canada and it is probable that they will continue to do so. It is estimated that one company has so far brought sixty cars of Canadian seed to Minneapolis.

"Local crushers have as yet given no consideration to the probability of the Democratic administration bringing about any change in the tariff on flaxseed or linseed oil. It seems to be taken for granted that nothing will be done in this direction, or that if there is a general revision of the tariff, flaxseed and seed will be among the last articles to be affected."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Weather in Russia and Dear Money Gives Wheat Setback.

Chicago, March 11.—Liverpool reports that prices were influenced by expected dear money tended to give the wheat market today a setback. Favorable weather in Russia also helped the bears. Attention, too, was given to the liberal increase in the European visible supply. Opening figures were ¼@⅜c lower to a shade up. May started at 91¼c to 91½c, varying from ⅛@¼c decline to a sixteenth advance, and then fell to 90½c.

Rumors that the demobilization of the Russian and Austrian armies would be announced tomorrow had a further bearish effect. The close was steady with May 1⅛@1¾c net lower, at 89¾c.

Although corn showed firmness at the outset, owing to the government report being less bearish than had been looked for the market soon weakened with wheat. May opened ¼c to ⅜c higher at 52⅞c to 53c, but reacted to 52½c.

Commission buying failed to check the decline. The close was weak, ½c lower for May, at 52¼c.

Record-breaking farm reserves pulled oats downward from the beginning. May, which started ¼c to ⅜c off at 33¾c to 33⅞c, dropped to 33⅜.

Smaller receipts of hogs brought about an upturn in provisions. First sales ranged from last night's level to 25c higher with May $21.00 to $21.05 for pork, $10.82½ for lard and $10.85 for ribs.

STRENGTH IS EXHIBITED

Stocks Respond to the Advance of Americans in London.

Union Pacific Is Attacked By Bears But Recovers Briskly.

New York, March 11.—Having passed through several days of severe liquidation, the stock market was in a position to respond today to the exhibition of strength of Americans in London and indications that the political situation abroad was clearing. Many traders took the view that the market again had been oversold and pointed to the celerity with which prices improved when bears attempted to cover. Yesterday's losses were more than retrieved in short order. Reading, Steel, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Erie, Amalgamated Copper and Smelting sold above Saturday's close. Bonds were irregular.

Stocks rebounded smartly at the opening today from the slump of yesterday. Almost all of the active stocks shared in the advance. On the first transactions Erie, Reading, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Can. Rubber, Amalgamated and Westinghouse rose 1 to 2 points.

Having recovered their confidence to some extent, the bulls carried the market to a still higher level before the demand waned. Reading gained 2 points and the list in general 1 to 1½.

Slight concessions were made from the best figures of the forenoon and business became small. Foreign interest took back much of the stock unloaded here lately, London and the continent buying 30,000 shares.

Bear operators attacked Union Pacific on the failure of the directors at their meeting today to give out definite information regarding the prospects for the dissolution plan. Union Pacific reacted 2 points and sold slightly below yesterday's final price. Canadian Pacific gave way 3 points and others a point or so.

The market closed firm. Some high-priced coal stocks turned weak and there was active selling of Pennsylvania, despite an improving tendency elsewhere. Covering of shorts in Union Pacific carried up that stock briskly again and Amalgamated and Steel returned to their high figures.

London Stocks.

London, March 11.—American securities opened steady and a fraction higher. Berlin buying advanced Canadian Pacific 3½ points and the rest of the list gained from ¾ to 1¼ on covering during the forenoon. Later New York supported stocks and the market continued to improve and closed firm. Carry-over rates for American shares ranged from 5½ to 6½ per cent.

Cotton Market.

New York, March 11.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and foreign buying orders. The demand was supplied around the opening figures by local or Southern sellers and after a fairly active start the market became comparatively quiet, with prices easing off 2 to 3 points from the best. Reports of better weather in the South and predictions that the buying movement would slacken after the close of the English market probably inspired part of the selling on the advance but offerings were not aggressive enough to cause any important weakness.

Spot quiet; middling uplands, 12.40; middling gulf, 12.65; sales, 59 bales. Futures closed very steady. Closing bids: March, 11.29; April, 12.01; May, 11.91; June, 11.85; July, 11.84; August, 11.75; September, 11.45; October, 11.44; December, 11.46; January, 11.42.

South St. Paul Livestock.

South St. Paul, Minn., March 11.—Cattle receipts, 2,600; killers, steady; steers, $5.75@8.75; cows and heifers, $4.50@7.00; calves, 50c higher, $4.25@10.00; feeders, steady; $4.50@7.35. Hogs—Receipts, 4,900; steady to 5c higher; range, $8.35@8.50; bulk, $8.40@8.45.

New York Money.

Nec York, March 11.—Money on call firm, 3¾@4½ per cent; ruling rate, 4; closing bid, 4; offered at 4½. Time loans, strong; 60 days and 90 days and six months, 5½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4½ per cent; sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.83.60 for 60-day bills, and at $4.87.90 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83¼. Bar silver, 58¾c; Mexican dollars, 46c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

MANAHAN RETAINED BY HOUSE GRAIN PROBERS AFTER WORDY BATTLE

The attorneys for the chamber of commerce pointed out that the public would suspect the fairness of the committee if it persisted, and showed that the Equity people are circulating an editorial from a Dawson paper picturing Manahan as the big thing in the committee and Loftus as the power behind it.

Challenges Manahan's Fairness.

Judge Simpson challenged Mr. Mana-

J. M. BAILEY, foreman.
ALMER BAILEY.

J. J. BAILEY.

Several others had a narrow escape and are in a serious condition.

The men were in the building at the time and were not discovered until several hours after they were dead, when the superintendent of the plant entered the building to ascertain when the gas would be turned on.

SMALL ARMY OF POLICE OFFICERS

Senate Committee Expects to Hear Testimony of Many of Them.

Washington, March 12.—When the senate committee inquiring into the failure of the police to afford proper protection to the suffragist parade March 3, prepared to resume hearings today, it had before it a small army of police officers and patrolmen.

Mayor Sylvester has defended his preparations for protecting the women marchers and has laid the blame for any failure of the plan squarely on the shoulders of his subordinates.

Two members of the Citizens' committee on public orders, Walter A. Brown and T. Percy Meyers, insisted that the police, so far as they could observe, did their full duty. Mr. Brown declared the crowd was so dense it would have been physically impossible to confine it behind the ropes stretched along the curb.

On the list of witnesses were Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the speaker of the house of representatives and her sister, Mrs. Pitzer. They were unable to attend today's hearing, but probably will appear later.

"JACK" CUDAHY GETS $1,500,000

Son of Late Pork Packer Settles With Other Heirs of Estate.

Chicago, March 12.—"Jack" Cudahy, of knife-wielding fame, has reached a settlement with others heirs of the late Michael Cudahy, multi-millionaire packer, it became known today.

Cudahy, who was cut off with $10,000 when his father died two years ago, has had $1,590,000 turned over to a trust company by the terms of the settlement. The money is held in trust for Cudahy, his wife, and two children. Attorneys for other heirs said Cudahy had threatened a lawsuit.

BJORGE AGAIN TO THE FRONT

Two New Bills to Extract Special Taxes From Mining Interests.

New Plan Decided Upon By Opponents of Reapportionment Bill.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fight to extract special taxes from the mining interests of the state took new form this morning in two new bills. One, by Representatives Bjorge, Frankson, Minette, A. J. Peterson and H. H. Dunn, proposes a franchise tax on all mining corporations of 1 cent a ton, the proceeds to go into the general revenue fund of the state. Where a mining corporation has a contract to sell ore at a fixed price, the purchaser is to pay the tax.

The other bill proposes a constitutional amendment legalizing tonnage tax under the name of a "production" tax. This measure also proposes to legalize a horde of other special taxes, hitting nearly every imaginable interest, including the following forms of taxation: License, franchise, gross revenue, excise, occupation, income, collateral and direct inheritance, also graduated income tax, graduated inheritance tax, stamp, registration, production "and other" specific taxes. Not much has been omitted.

Investigate State Expenses.

The house committee on public accounts and expenditures is considering a bill providing for a commission of three business men, not members of the legislature, to investigate state expenses and to suggest to the next legislature a plan for the reorganization of the state government.

The house passed the Moonan senate bill providing for the appointment by

JUDGE OFFERS TO CALL MORGAN

May Become Witness in Alaska Coal Land Fraud Cases.

Chicago, March 12.—J. Pierpont Morgan may be called as a witness in the Alaska coal land fraud cases which are on trial here before Judge Landis in the United States district court. The possibility of the issuance of a subpoena for the financier arose in court today when John E. Ballaine of Seattle, Wash., former president of the Alaska Central Railway company, was questioned by Attorney Rlbert Fink of counsel for Albert C. Frost, one of the five defendants, regarding Morgan's relation to a bank which figured in the promotion of the Alaska Central and his alleged control of a railroad which competes with the Alaska Central.

Although Morgan now is abroad Judge Landis offered to have a subpoena issued for him at once if the defense believed his testimony would be material.

"Not at this time," replied Attorney Fink, "unless the government desires to call Mr. Morgan."

It is said that the defendants, Frost, Pierre G. Beach, Frank Watson, George A. Ball and George M. Seward will base a portion of their defense on the allegation that Frost's railroad failures were due to the crushing power of the Morgan interests, particularly as shown in the competition of the gan road in Alaska. If this line of defense develops it is not unlikely that the government may desire Morgan's testimony.

NEIGHBORS IN SOUTH MUST BE PEACEFUL

Foreign Policy Toward Central and South American Republics Outlined.

President Wilson Issues Formal Statement to People of South.

United States Friendly But Has No Sympathy With Disturbers.

Washington, March 12.—President Wilson today issued this formal statement of his policy toward the Central and South American republics: "In view of questions which are naturally uppermost in the public mind just now, the president issued the following statement: One of the chief objects of my administration will be to cultivate the friendship and deserve the confidence of our sister republics of Central and South America, and to promote in every proper and honorable way the interests which are common to the peoples of the two continents. I earnestly desire the most cordial understanding and co-operation between the peoples and leaders of America, and therefore deem it my duty to make this brief statement.

Law Must Be Basis.

"Co-operation is possible only when supported at every turn by the orderly processes of just government, based upon law, not upon arbitrary or irregular force. We hold, as I am sure all thoughtful leaders of republican government everywhere hold, that just government rests always on the consent of the governed, and that there can be no freedom without order based upon law and upon the public conscience and approval. We shall look to make these principles the basis of mutual intercourse, respect and helpfulness between our sister republics and ourselves.

"We shall lend our influence of every kind to the realization of these principles in fact and practice, knowing

MORE WOMEN ARE NEEDED IN ALASKA

Legislature Passes Equal Suffrage Law to Attract Them to Territory.

Seattle, Wash., March 12. — Alaska needs more women. In order to stimulate the desire of the fair sex to move to Alaska the first legislature, now sitting at Juneau, unanimously passed a liberal equal suffrage law.

The Northerners can get along without coal and timber. They don't mind 60 below zero without a fire, but Christmas without woman is a dreary affair.

At Ruby last fall there were 2,000 men, 35 women and 12 children. The miners planned a Christmas tree and the few children were loaded with presents of gold and money.

Not one of the sixteen representatives and eight senators in the first legislature is married.

TARIFF BILLS WILL NOT BE READY FOR SPECIAL SESSION CALLED APRIL 1

Democratic Leader Underwood Asks President to Postpone Date.

Wants Opening Fixed for One Week Later at Least.

Expected President Will Do as House Leaders Desire.

Washington, March 12. — President Wilson was urged by Representative Oscar Underwood the Democratic leader, today to postpone the date of the extra session of congress at least one week. As a result of Mr. Underwood's suggestion recently the president had fixed upon April 1. Mr. Underwood today advised the president that the ways and means committee would require more time in preparing the new tariff bills.

Will Probably Change Date.

Inasmuch as Mr. Wilson has said that he would be guided by the counsel of house leaders, it was regarded as practically certain today that the new congress would not convene before April 7 or 8. It was expected the proclamation calling the new congress would be submitted to the cabinet today.

The president's proclamation is expected to point out that the extra session is called for the purpose of revising the tariff alone. Mr. Underwood assured him today that house leaders would be able to confine the attention of congress to that subject, although several Democrats interested in other legislative matters still are anxious to have them considered before the regular session in December.

Mr. Underwood said as he left the White House that the Democratic caucus would decide whether the tariff was to be revised in one bill or each schedule taken up separately.

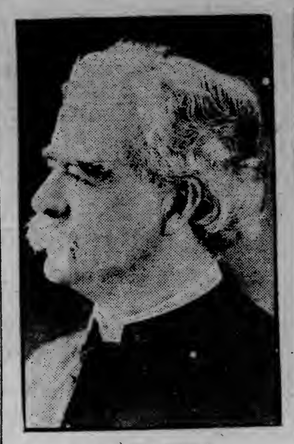
NORTH DAKOTA U PROFESSOR PASSES.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. Henry Le Daum, a prominent member of the faculty of the University of North Dakota, formerly identified with the faculties of Northwestern university and the University of Iowa, died here last night. He was professor in romance languages, and had gained prominence among students of Italian literature both in this country and abroad, by reason of several works on Italian subjects.

ONE THOUSAND PERSONS ARE TO BE VACCINATED

Washington, March 12.—Secretary Garrison was the first to bare his arm for vaccination today under a general order for the inoculation of all employes in his department in the state, war and navy building, because of two cases of smallpox among war department employes. About 1,000 persons were affected by today's order.

BISHOP PAYS WOMAN $1 FOR LIBEL



BISHOP MOORE.

MRS. CARRIE COPE.

Kansas City, Kan., March 12.—Methodist Bishop David P. Moore of Cincinnati has paid the damages of $1 awarded by a jury in the Federal court in Kansas City, Kan., to Mrs. Carrie E. Cope, Topeka, Kan., who sued him for $50,000 for alleged libel, the bishop's attorney announced here. A letter written by Bishop Moore, in which, it was charged, he criticized Mrs. Cope, was the basis for the suit.

WANAMAKER PAYS TREASURY $100,000

Government Defrauded Out of Big Sum in Customs Duties.

Washington, March 11.—John Wanamaker, the Philadelphia and New York merchant, has paid to the government $100,000 to settle sums of which the treasury has been defrauded during the last fifteen years through irregular practices in the importation of samples of merchandise.

Treasury agents working up the investigation were confronted with the difficulty of finding records for the entire time involved, but upon the records of five years the government's losses were approximated and a settlement voluntarily offered by Mr. Wanamaker was accepted as covering the entire period over which the practices were extended.

It was found that it had been the practice of the customs examiner at Philadelphia to pass samples at little or no value. While the amount in each case was negligible compared to the volume of importations, in a period of years it amounted to a considerable sum.

At the treasury department it was said that no intent to defraud the customs collector had been shown and that Mr. Wanamaker co-operated in every way with the treasury officials to reach an estimate of the government's loss.

"CAN HOLD OUT ONLY A WEEK"

Despairing Cry Comes From Commander of Adrianople.

Wants Peace Hurried or Assistance Sent From Tchatalja.

Constantinople, March 12.—A despairing cry of "I can hold out only a week longer" was sent in cipher by wireless today from Shukri Pasha, the Turkish commander of Adrianople, to his superior officers here, according to unofficial reports today.

Shukri, who has held out for many months against the hundreds of siege guns of the Bulgarians and Servians, is said to have informed the porte in his message that Adrianople is practically at the end of its supplies of food and ammunition, while there is much sickness, especially scurvy and intestinal disorders, which are ravaging the ranks of the defenders.

The commander who has offered such a long and gallant defense urges either that peace negotiations be hastened or that an immediate attempt to relieve the city be undertaken from the Tchatalja lines.

The Turkish ministry is divided in opinion and will have difficulty in reaching any solution of the problem raised by the commander of the besieged fortress.

The ferment aroused by the murder of the late Nazim Pasha continues to threaten internal trouble in Turkey. At a service held here today in memory of Nazim, the officiating Mussulman priest pronounced a malediction on his assassins and on "those who have deceived the sultan of Turkey, the head of the Mussulman faith."

NAMES SEVERAL MEN "HIGHER UP"

Chief of Arson Trust Has Made Complete Confession.

Chicago, March 12.—The report that John Danies, alleged to have been the chief of the so-called arson trust, had made a confession was confirmed today by First Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston, according to whom Danies named forty members of the "ring" including the names of several men "higher up." Danies admitted that he had set more than twenty fires in Chicago.

The confession is said to be even more startling than that recently made by Benjamin Fink, who confessed complicity in 100 incendiary fires. An aggregate of $500,000 in insurance was collected from the Danies fires.

At least forty warrants for business men, public fire insurance adjusters and actual incendiaries named by Danies will be sworn out late today or tomorrow.

The confession was made after a 7-hour inquisition.

In confessing to Johnston, Danies, said:

"I tried to get out of the business, but people would not let me alone. They kept sending me to do jobs for them and I kept on going on in the same old way for fifteen years. My first experience with fires happened in my own home and when I settled for the insurance an adjuster told me that I could make lots of money by setting incendiary fires. That's how I got mixed up in this rotten stuff."

FEDERAL ARMY EXPECTS DECISIVE BATTLE WITH REBELS IN A FEW HOURS

Two Thousand Followers of Gen. Carranza Are Surrounded.

Government Sending Soldiers to Disturbed Districts With All Speed.

State of Sinaloa Said to Have Revolted Against President Huerta.

Mexico City, March 12.—Two thousand followers of Venustiano Carranza, rebel governor of Coahuila, are surrounded in the vicinity of Lampazos, Nuevo Leon, by 4,000 Federal troops, according to a statement from the war department today. A decisive engagement is expected within a few hours.

Gens. Aubert, Blazquez, Anaya and Davila, in command of the Federal forces, arrived in the outskirts of Lampazos early today. They are not certain that Carranza is with his followers.

A dozen troop trains left Mexico City for the north this morning. Most of the troops went in the direction of Sonora. They included many detachments of the auxiliary branches of the service, besides a full battalion of the Seventeenth infantry, a machine gun company and a battery of artillery with heavy siege guns. An additional force of 3,000 regular troops is to leave this evening for Sonora and by Sunday the government hopes to concentrate a total of 10,000 men against the constitutionalists there.

First Heavy Movement.

Simultaneously with the departure of this army for the north the first heavy movement of troops took place into the country hitherto overrun by followers of Zapata.

The detachments thus sent into the state of Morelos included troops under Col. Manuel Passo from Santiago, 500 soldiers under Gen. Javier from Puebla and 300 men under Gen. Higino Aguilar from the Federal capital. The three columns will undertake combined action and the operations are to be carried out with the greatest energy.

The cutting of communication between Hermosillo, the capital of the state of Sonora, and the seaport of Guayamas on the gulf of California,

FIND GRANDSON OF NAPOLEON

Search of Crittenden Memorial Society Ends in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, March 12.—Search by the Crittenden Memorial society of San Francisco for a reputed grandson of Napoleon Bonaparte, ended yesterday in a Los Angeles lumber yard. William Gordon, a working man, is the person sought.

William Gordon was a son of the late John Gordon, a San Francisco jeweler, who, according to the Crittenden society, was unquestionably a son of the "little corporal." The remains of John Gordon rest in a cemetery near the Golden Gate.

William Gordon is 65 years of age. He says his father was not born on the island of St. Helena, as has been asserted, but near Edinburgh, Scotland, Nov. 11, 1818. John Gordon's mother was a Scotch woman—matron of the hospital at St. Helena when Napoleon arrived there on the Bellerophon—and he was given his mother's family name.

John Gordon married Amelia Jones, a Welsh woman, in London in 1845 and they came to America, settling in New London, Conn., where William was born in 1847.

"Having the blood of the great emperor in my veins has never excited me," said William Gordon, as he turned to his task of piling lumber.

WILL NOT GIVE UP HIS CITIZENSHIP

Captain of Stefansson Expedition Will Quit His Position First.

San Francisco, Cal., March 12.—The steam whaling barge Karluk is moored at her pier, ready to sail for Esquimault, B. C., on the voyage of Arctic exploration to be undertaken under the auspices of the Canadian government by Dr. Vilhjalmar Stefansson, discoverer of the blonde Esquimos.

On board will be Capt. C. Theodore Pedersen, a naturalized American citizen, in command as navigator, and Dr. R. M. Andersen at the head of a party of ten scientists. Dr. Stefansson will join the expedition, Capt. Pedersen said today, at Esquimault with a wireless outfit and a motion picture equipment.

Under the terms the crew and navigators of the Karluk must be Canadians. Capt. Pedersen still was hoping today that he could come to an agreement by which he will not be required to forfeit his American allegiance.

"This expedition," he said, "means the hopes of twenty years to me. I was with Stefansson when he discovered the blonde Eskimos and I feel sure there are more of them to be found even more remote from known territory. I believe, too, that there are rich copper deposits in the country for which we are headed but if the Canadian government is rigorous I shall turn back. I won't give up my American citizenship."

The expedition expects to be gone three years. It probably will touch at Banks land, but more particularly is pointed for the unknown stretches of Prince Patrick's land and Prince Albert land. There is hope that it may find relics of the lost McClure expedition of 1851-3, and the abandoned bark Investigator.

LET CONTRACT FOR NEW BLOCK

Building Will Contain Two Stores and a Theater.

A contract was let this morning to the Jacobson Brothers for the erection of a one-story brick building at 321, 323 and 325 Central avenue. The structure will cost $30,000.

P. Johnson, owner of the property, will erect the building and lease one of the stores to the Colonial Theater company for use as a vaudeville and motion picture theater. The other two stores will be rented to business concerns. Raymond Brothers will operate the theater, with C. F. Beier, manager of the present theater at 230 Central avenue, in charge of the new institution.

Construction work is expected to start within a week and the building will be finished by June 1, according to the contract. J. J. Wangenstein, architect, drew the plans for the structure.

It was originally planned early this winter to erect a large vaudeville theater at a cost of $45,000. The building was to have had a frontage of 60 feet, and be three stories high, with a regulation balcony for the auditorium. Recently Mr. Johnson secured an additional 15 feet adjacent to his property and the present plans were adopted. The structure will have a frontage of 75 feet and will extend 125 feet to the alley.

TRIES TO END LIFE WITH RAZOR

Unconscious Man Found Near the Missabe Railroad Tracks.

Unidentified, a man is lying at the Graham hospital in a serious condition as the result of an attempt at suicide this morning.

The man, who appears to be an Austrian and about 35 years of age, was found lying by the Missabe tracks shortly after 11 o'clock this morning by workmen employed nearby. The West Duluth police headquarters were notified and Patrolman Anderson answered the call. He brought the man to the hospital.

An investigation at the hospital by Dr. David Graham disclosed the fact that the man had attempted to cut his throat with a razor. He became unconscious immediately after the suicide attempt and up to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon was still in the coma. The man is in a serious condition, but is expected to live.

A careful search through the man's clothing revealed nothing and the police and hospital authorities are at a loss as to who he is. It is hoped that he will regain consciousness before night so that his identity may be learned.

The New Duluth Commercial club at its regular semi-monthly meeting last evening started a campaign for the establishment of a public park at New Duluth.

The members of the club are all in favor of a public recreation ground, provision for which has never been made by the park board. The following committee was appointed to bring the matter before the board and to campaign for a public park site in this end of the city: U. C. Tower, Noble Sampson, Otto Krueger, E. E. Martell and Frank Brand.

Alderman Krueger was requested to campaign for the completion of Grand avenue this spring, so that the street railway company will build its extension this summer. The members claim that no provision has been made for graveling the road and that if action is not taken at once, New Duluth will be compelled to get along without the street car extension for another year. Alderman Krueger will bring the matter before the council and the board of public works.

FRICTION EXISTS.

Government Surgeons Not Getting Along Well With Friedmann Vaccine.

Washington, March 12.—Government tests of Dr. Friedmann's tuberculosis vaccine in the public health service hygiene laboratory here are proceeding under difficulties because the Berlin physician has not imparted to the official investigators the method of making his vaccine from the culture, nor has he divulged the dose, in spite of the fact that public health officials repeatedly have asked him to do so.

Surgeon General Blue announced today that under no circumstances would the public health service administer the vaccine to human beings at this time, if at all.

YEGGS GET BUT $20 FROM LUMBER CO.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Expert yeggmen blew the safe of the Shevlin-Carpenter Lumber company, Marion street and University avenue, early today.

Altough the door of the small strongbox, about 18 by 36 inches in size, was blown from its hinges by black powder, the job was clean and nothing else in the office was disturbed.

Only $20 in cash was taken in spite of the fact that the safe contained a number of checks and postage stamps.

Entrance to the building was gained through a rear window, which was broken open. To gain access to the rear lot the yeggmen climbed an eight-foot fence, surmounted by sharp pickets and barbed wire.

TURNING THE SPOTLIGHT ON THE COMMISSIONERSHIP CAMPAIGN

SILBERSTEIN HAS PLATFORM

Candidate for Mayor Declares for Good Business Administration.

Says Tax Rate Is Too High and Economy Is Demanded.

Declaring for a business administration, the immediate acquisition of a municipal electric lighting plant, municipal docks, public markets, and humanitarian work by the city, Bernard Silberstein, candidate for mayor, announced his program this morning.

Mr. Silberstein calls attention to his forty-three years' residence in Duluth and his twenty years of service on the park board and library board, and promises his continued interest in the development of the city.

His statement of principles follows:

"I have been a resident business man of this city, closely identified with its commercial and civic development, for the past forty-three years. For twenty years I have served the city as a member of the park board, and for the last two years as a member of the library board.

BERNARD SILBERSTEIN.

"During all that period I have been a large employer of labor and have always believed in and practiced the principle of fair compensation for labor performed, reasonable hours of work and pleasant and sanitary environments for employes. I am in favor of an eight-hour day for all municipal work done for or by the city.

Tax Rate Too High.

"The records show that our rate of taxation is too high. I believe that we should lift the heavy burden of taxation so that we can invite capital and labor to our city, which I will strive to do by instilling in the business affairs of the city strict economy, keeping in view at all times the principle of efficiency.

"I am in favor of the municipal ownership of public utilities. The people having spoken so recently through the ballot in favor of the purchase or erection of a municipal electric lighting plant I shall use my best endeavor to carry out their expressed wish in a business like manner at the earliest possible moment.

"I strongly favor the acquisition of municipal docks for the city in the earliest possible time, believing that such ownership is essential to the city's future prosperity. Our water front should be held as free from monopolistic control as possible.

"I believe the mayor of the city can do much toward relieving the high cost of living through the establishment of public markets, obtaining better transportation facilities for our farmers, lowering of the tax rate through economy in the operation of the city's affairs, and other agencies.

"I am in hearty accord with the humanitarian spirit and progressive thought which has given rise to and fostered movements looking toward the amelioration of the condition of the poor, the establishment of social centers and gymnasiums, remedial loan agencies and work farms, and shall give my support to all organizations engaged in this work.

For Law Enforcement.

"I shall endeavor to exact obedience to the law along all lines—without fear or favor, and if elected mayor, I shall serve neither party nor organization; neither machine nor clique; I will serve the people, all the people, all the time.

"I believe in the abatement of the social evil, and we should meet this problem, keeping in mind the principle of social justice and permanent and lasting results.

"I stand for a Greater and Better Duluth. Whatever measure may redound to the advancement of the city's greatness and to the furtherance of its people's moral and financial progress will find in me an aggressive champion and ardent supporter.

"I have the pardonable ambition of becoming one of the agencies through which this city might come to its own. Duluth is a city of Destiny. The realization of its greatness is conditioned on the loyalty and enthusiasm of its citizens. To become the official stimulator and spokesman of such loyalty and enthusiasm is my aspiration."

BIG MEDICS MEETING.

American Medical Association to Meet at Minneapolis in June.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 12.—The American Medical association will hold its annual convention at the University of Minnesota June 17, 18, 19 and 20. Five thousand members are expected to attend from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Because of the large number expected other medical organizations will hold meetings prior to and contemporaneous with the main convention. Notable among these will be the "Conference of the State and Provincial Boards of Health," and the "American Academy of Medicine."

British Ship Sinks.

Hamburg, Germany, March 12.—The sinking of the British sailing vessel Glenalvon off the mouth of the Elbe was reported by the lightship there early today. She left Mejillones, Chile, on Nov. 11, with a cargo of nitrate. She carried a crew of thirty-six men, who were rescued.

WILSON HAS NOT FILED

Nothing Heard From Duluth Attorney Now in Panama.

Evens and Smith Have Also Not Formally Accepted.

The chances are that the field of eleven candidates for mayor will be narrowed to ten by the non-acceptance by Coryate S. Wilson of the nomination for mayor.

Mr. Wilson is now in the Panama district, his acceptance has not been filed, and none of his friends approached today knew of any acceptance having been signed. Mr. Wilson left New Orleans for Panama March 1, and the petition was filed for him that day, so he did not have an opportunity to sign an acceptance after the filing of the petition. Today is the last day for filing and unless somebody produces the acceptance before evening, Mr. Wilson's name will not appear on the ballot.

C. E. Evens' acceptance of nomination for the short term has not yet been filed. Mr. Evens is in California and presumably those responsible for the petition filed for him are awaiting his mailed acceptance. If the acceptance does not arrive, there will be thirty-seven candidates for the short term.

The only other candidate who has not yet filed an acceptance is Chan Smith, candidate for the long term. Mr. Smith's acceptance is expected to be filed before the clerk's office closes this evening.

P. E. Dowling, candidate for mayor, will give his answer to the question "Is Municipal Ownership of the Electric Lighting Plant an Issue in This Campaign?" at his meeting at the Auditorium tomorrow evening. Mr. Dowling will ask and answer other questions, such as "What Is the Remedy for the Social Evil?" and "What are the Influences that Have Been Holding Duluth Back?" Mr. Dowling had a good crowd at the West end last evening and he expects another large crowd at the Auditorium tomorrow evening.

The extent of interest in the campaign is indicated by the heavy vote in the straw ballots being taken in the cigar stores. In most places, one box was not sufficient to hold the vote taken in two or three days. Those who are taking the straw votes are none too communicative as to results, and it is probable that the betting odds when they are posted will take the straw ballots into consideration.

Betting has begun, though there are no general odds announced. Some bets have been made as to the relative standing of candidates. Few bets will be made on the chances of any one man against the field, but there will be bets on the size of the vote and on the chances of one man against another or several others. The non-partisan features and the multiplicity of candidates leaves a wide field for freak bets and many will be laid before the votes are counted.

NEXT MEETING PLACE CHOSEN

Parade Will Precede Joint Installation of Head Camp and Grove Officers.

Breckenridge, Minn., was selected as the meeting place for the next biennial district convention of the Woodmen of the World at the meeting this morning at the old Masonic temple and it is expected that the circle will take similar action today some time, when it has been officially notified of the decision of the men's section of the meeting. The next meeting will be held in March, 1915, on the second Tuesday of that month.

This morning at the meeting of the Woodmen of the World and of the Woodmen's circle only routine business was transacted. At this afternoon's session officers will be elected in both bodies. These include the head consuls for Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota and also the national delegates. Louis H. Peter of St. Paul is expected to be elected head consul of this state. Other candidates are being groomed in the meantime.

Yesterday afternoon there was a parade down Superior street, headed by the St. Paul drill corps and the degree team of Duluth. This evening again there will be another parade, starting from the Lenox hotel at 7:30 o'clock. Heading it will be a squad of patrolmen with delegate Holmes as marshal of the first division and followed by the drill team and drum corps from St. Paul. Then will come the delegates and visitors.

In the second division, Joseph La Fortune will be marshal. Plaaten's band will follow and then will come the degree teams of the Woodmen's circle from St. Paul. At 8 o'clock there will be a joint installation of the head camp and grove officers, conducted by representatives of the sovereign camp of both sides.

SOCIALISTS ARE DIVIDED

Split Between Two Wings of the Party in Duluth.

The Conservatives Do Not Favor the I. W. W. Propaganda.

All is not serene in the Socialist camp. While the five candidates are out on the stump spreading the propaganda there is dissension among the members of the party.

The extreme stand taken by the candidates on the platform has nettled some of the Socialists who are not extremists. The fact that the weekly organ being issued during the campaign is boosting the cause of the Industrial Workers of the World has alienated many of the A. F. of L. Socialists and the feud that broke out some weeks ago will show in the election results.

Socialists who are not in the extremist class and who oppose the ultra-radical position of Morris Kaplan and W. E. Towne, particularly, say that Kaplan will not poll more than a part of the party vote and will fall short of Johnson's vote last year.

In the meantime, the Socialist candidates are going gaily forward with a campaign that is unceasing in time and unlimited in extent. A meeting a night is the program and Morris Kaplan is speaking every night with vigor and heat. At the West end last night he denounced W. I. Prince and B. Silberstein as members of the "Committee of 100" that operated during the open shop movement and declared P. E. Dowling advocated the hanging of the leaders in the mine strike on the range in 1907. He advocated a municipal hotel and municipal coal, ice and food sales. He declared for the immediate acquisition of the electric light plant.

W. E. Towne made a talk for industrial unionism and said that if the Socialists were elected all public work would be done by union labor. He asked his hearers to vote first choice and ignore the second and third choice opportunities.

Another campaign meeting will be held tonight at 600 Garfield avenue with Morris Kaplan and Edward Blackwood as the speakers. Thursday night a meeting will be held in the Lakeside town hall and Friday night at 1627 London road, it being the meeting originally scheduled for the People's hall.

REGISTRATION NOT HEAVY

Only 5,000 Voters Get Their Names on the Lists.

Yesterday's registration approximated 5,000, less than half of the full registration.

With three precincts missing the total at 1 o'clock today was 4,702 as shown by the returns at the office of City Clerk C. S. Palmer.

The missing precincts were the fourth of the Fourth ward and the second and fifth precincts of the Fifth ward. Still unreported they were hours behind the outlying precincts and most of the others in the down-town section.

Saturday is the last day of registration. Unless the voter has his name on the books he will be unable to help elect Duluth's first commission. The officials as well as the candidates believe that the registration Saturday will be the heavier by 1,000 or more than it was yesterday. If the voter is not registered the only way he can vote is to go to considerable extra trouble on election day.

The registration by precincts as far as received up to 1 o'clock was as follows:

Mr. Ward is sending out a program to the farmers and urging them to attend the short courses, at which the subjects of dairying, soil fertility and potato growing will be taught. The instructors will spend about two weeks in the county, holding a series of one-day institutes following the short courses.

"MASHER" IS BEATEN

Thrashed, Thrown Off Street Car and Then Thrashed Again.

Still Persisted in Following Girl and Gets $50 Fine.

Ernest Feiro was thrashed and thrown off a street car at Eighteenth avenue east and Fourth street last night. Nobody felt sorry for him.

He ran after the car, and at Twenty-fourth avenue east and Fourth street he was knocked down and licked some more. And nobody felt sorry for him.

Patrolman John Connor ran to the scene of the trouble and sent Feiro to the police station, where he stayed all night. And nobody felt sorry for him.

In police court this morning he was nursing a bruised countenance, with a black eye as the principal decoration, when the judge handed him another package in the form of $50 and costs or sixty days in the county jail. And still nobody felt sorry for him—except himself.

Feiro pleaded that the sentence be suspended so that he could leave the city. He promised to depart at once and to keep away. But no sympathy was forthcoming. It wasn't the first time Feiro had been in the police court, and his past performances did not recommend leniency.

Grace Elliott testified that Feiro had persisted in following her about, and that last night he not only pursued her, but struck her more than once. In her desperation she tried to get away from him by jumping aboard a street car, but was unable to shake him.

The young woman stated that she and her sister were walking on First street on their way to their room when they met Feiro about 10 o'clock. She asserted that they walked and walked in an effort to lose him and also told him that they would enjoy his room much more than his company, but without avil.

At Second street she took an eastbound East Fourth street car. At Eighteenth avenue east she said that he walked up to her and without a word struck her in the face. A man and his wife were on the car and saw the blow. The man jumped out of his overcoat, used Feiro for a punching bag for a few minutes and then bundled him into the street.

But Feiro wasn't satisfied. He ran after the car to Twenty-fourth avenue, the end of the run. The man and his wife were waiting for the car to start on its return trip in order that they might take Miss Elliott home. Feiro again appeared. Again the man shed his overcoat and exercised himself at Feiro's expense. Feiro was still present when the policeman reached the scene. He arrested both Feiro and Miss Elliott on charges of disorderly conduct. In police court this morning Feiro entered a plea of guilty and unless he can meet the assessment of fifty-two cartwheels he will be obliged to sojourn at the Hotel de Meining for a couple of months. The case against Miss Elliott was dismissed.

Police Searching for Monument Salesman With Several Aliases.

The Duluth Automobile company was given a forged check for an automobile Saturday, but thanks to the vigilance of the firm's employes, it still has the car.

Richard Norman Bradley, who is said to have several aliases, and who was employed as a salesman by the Northwestern Monument company, walked into the office of the company Saturday afternoon and said that he wanted to look at some machines. The manager showed him several in the stock room. He looked them over and picked out one which he said looked good to him.

"I'll have to go over to the company to get the check," he said. Whereupon he made his way to the office of the Northwestern Monument company and returned with a check purporting to have been issued by an officer of the concern. The manager accepted the check and congratulated himself upon having made one of the quickest and easiest sales of automobiles in his experience.

Bradley started out with the car, accompanied by one of the firm's men. He returned to the garage and left the car. The manager supposed that he wished to leave it there over night as he had probably not acquired a place in which to keep it.

Bradley didn't come back for it next day or the day after. It's still in the garage. When the manager turned in the check he was informed that the check was a forgery. Then he guessed no longer at Bradley's failure to return for the automobile which he had purchased in such record time.

Other checks which were forged by Bradley have turned up. It appears that he cashed one for $15 at the Schiller cigar store and that another for approximately $30 was cashed by Frank Sneck. The police say that they would not be surprised if others are found which have been passed by the same man.

Bradley is an ex-convict and is now on parole from the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun. He has been arrested several times for forgery the police say.

J. G. Moran of the Duluth Automobile company stated today that the police were misinformed as to the facts in the case of the auto.

He explained that they were taking scarcely any chances of allowing Bradley to get away with the machine. Saturday he was accompanied by an employe of the company and Sunday a member of the firm was watching him constantly. He said that Bradley drove the car a short time alone on Sunday, but that he returned it within a short time. Had he not done so he stated that a search would have been started for Bradley and the car without delay.

The company did not allow the machine to leave its possession for more than an hour, and the check was presented for payment at the bank on which it was drawn promptly at 10 o'clock, as soon as the institution was open for business. The check was pronounced a forgery at once and the transaction taken up with the police by Mr. Moran.

NEW BAGGAGE CHECK.

Trade and Transportation: A new baggage check that is expected to lessen the number of errors and complaints has been placed into the service of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The duplicate portion of the new check is provided with spaces, in which are printed a number of the principal "bad order" condition in which the baggage is frequently received for checking. A check, on being delivered to the passenger, will be perforated to show whether the piece of baggage is a trunk, suitcase or valise, fiber case or tool chest. Another perforation will show the condition in which the baggage was received at the office. In this way the duplicate check will contain a full description of the baggage when it was brought to the company for shipment.

The number of the tag portion on the check is placed at the bottom, while on the duplicate portion it is printed at the top, so that the two can be easily matched when the baggage is delivered.

It is expected that the new check will minimize the matching of numbers wrongly and will greatly reduce the number of claims.

INTEREST IN SOCIAL WORK

Classes of University Extension Department Are Well Attended.

Dr. Phelan Tells of Occupational Disease in Cotton Mills.

Interest is growing in the university extension work in social economics, which was recently started in Duluth under the direction of Dr. Raymond W. Phelan of the university of Minnesota. The two classes which are conducted by Dr. Phelan every Tuesday morning and evening at the public library and at the Y. M. C. A. now have an enrollment of about twenty-five members. Dr. Phelan who was here in the interest of the work yesterday, expressed considerable satisfaction with the interest which seems to have been taken in the course locally.

The classes are composed of teachers, librarians, social workers, lawyers, state labor department officials and others interested in social economics and allied topics. In speaking of the general nature of the course given under his direction here, Dr. Phelan yesterday stated:

"The purpose of the university of extension work is primarily to increase the university's usefulness. Its purpose is two-fold. First, every citizen capable of profiting by it is entitled to education along three lines: education to create and develop vocational capacity, education to inculcate a knowledge and appreciation of art, literature and science, and education for active citizenship, social uplift and justice. Second, to afford a liberal education along certain lines to those who have had no opportunity to go to a university. It also enables those who have graduated to keep in touch with progress in their particular vocational or avocational fields of work.

"The course will also do the admirable service of drawing into university training excellent young men and women who might otherwise never take work for a university degree. I expect that several courses in university extension work will be given in Duluth next year and that as interest grows the field will be enlarged."

The Cotton Mill Worker.

In one of his lectures yesterday, Dr. Phelan discussed the work of the cotton mill toiler. Some interesting facts were presented. Among other things he said:

"The 1,100 cotton mills in this country employ an army of over 300,000 workers, of whom 125,000 are women and 40,000 are children. The number of women and children, however, has fallen off proportionally in the last thirty years. The cotton mill women are usually married, 30 per cent of them in New England and 28 per cent in the South. Seventy per cent of these 35,000 or 40,000 married women have husbands at work.

"The peculiarly ostracized social status of most of the mill people of the South, and the obstacles, chiefly of ignorance, fraternalistic feeling or opposition to legislative interference, to labor unionism, were clearly set forth. Some of the cotton mill owners are favorable to unions, but most of them opposed, chiefly it seems on the ground that unions invite, encourage and scare state regulation of employment conditions. In the South, even the workers, as a rule, are opposed to regulation by law, for the most part because they do not understand the purpose and meaning of protective legislation. Unionism appears to be made weak by the foreign element in the North, the individualistic element in the South, and the youthful element in both regions.

"Catarrh, bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis may be said to be trade diseases in the production of cotton cloth. But few of the mills have mechanical ventilation. The tendency of the cotton mills to these diseases is traceable to a lack of fully adequate arrangements for ventilation and for regulation of humidity and temperature. Lack of baths and of proper dressing rooms undoubtedly plays an important part in contributing to the high tuberculosis rate among cotton mill workers. The great heat and humidity, the lint and the dust in a cotton mill, as in laundries, make imperative shower baths and well ventilated dressing rooms. The health of the cotton mill worker, and as well his or her sense of self-respect, as in many other lines of mill and shop work, demand at the close of the day's work a bath and a complete change of clothing."

FORT WILLIAM WANTS BERTH

Message Says Winona Can't Compare With Ontario Port.

Despite the fact that Port Arthur is considered out of the consideration of the See-Eye magnates through the peculiar actions of Frank Taylor, Fort William has come to the front with a substantial cash offer to back a club in the league.

Judging from the tenor of the dispatch the leading business men of the city are allied in the movement to give Fort William organized baseball. In the event of Winona turning down the offer of a berth in the enlarged league, it may be that the request of Fort William will be given serious consideration.

Those behind the project to give the Canadian Head of the Lakes baseball do not in the least lack in confidence. The dispatch cites the large population the team will have to draw from, and winds up with the statement that Fort William from the standpoint of baseball will be able to make Winona look foolish.

Here is the dispatch that was received late today by The Herald:

"The Herald, Duluth—Fort William has organized a baseball association with capital of $10,000 under promise of securing a team in the Northern league. Understand you are favoring Winona in preference to Fort William. If so, you're in wrong. Sixty thousand people at the Canadian Head of the Lakes and we can make Winona look like a two spot when it comes to supporting a ball team. Better hook up with us and give us your support. We've got the goods.

THE GREAT FLUTE MYSTERY

Chorus of Snores Ascending Nightly From Y. M. C. A. Court, Sounds Like Anthem of Thanksgiving.

The Great Flute Mystery has stirred the Y. M. C. A. to its depths.

The secretary has been appealed to and he is helpless.

The police have been called in and have found "clews," but the mystery is unsolved.

Detectives have puzzled over the case and given it up as hopeless.

Here are the facts as the police have heard them.

A few weeks ago a young man appeared at the Y. M. C. A. and made application for a room. He was dressed quietly and looked like an ordinary young man. He wore no whiskers or other disguise. But the secretaries noticed a long black case under his arm. It was a flute case. One of the secretaries who once played the cornet in his village band recognized the case. It was undoubtedly a flute case.

That evening the sounds of a flute were heard ascending in the inner court. Windows were opened and maledictions descended on the head of the player who persisted for two hours in running the scales.

The next morning the scales were resumed. That afternoon they were continued. That evening there was a big after concert when all the scales in the flutist's repertoire were tried. Maledictions availed nothing and hair brushes and old shoes seemed to have no effect.

Began Again.

The next day the concert began again and continued. It began to dawn on the other roomers in the building that it was to be a continuous performance, as the flutist appeared to have no other occupation but to learn to play the flute. A pall of gloom settled down over the big building, broken only by the liquid "do-ray-me," etc., of the flute.

One evening the flute was missed.

A wild-eyed youth presented himself at the secretary's desk. The flute had been stolen, case and all.

The next morning the case was returned to the youth's room. That afternoon one piece of the flute followed. It came in sections. One after another the parts were returned, some by mail and some by messenger. Only the mouthpiece was missing. The mouthpiece is still missing, and the combined efforts of the secretaries and the police have failed to uncover it. Meanwhile the silence still hangs like a pall over the Y. M. C. A. and is punctured only by the sounds of the sleepers which ascend in the court like an anthem of thanksgiving, when night settles down over the big pile of masonry and the twinkling lights are extinguished.

The Great Flute Mystery may stay unsolved.

For Selling Spoiled Eggs.

New England, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A South Dakota egg buyer who secured a supply here was arrested for selling spoiled eggs. He reported the case to local dealers, some of whom have refunded the money paid by the transient purchaser and are now seeking reimbursement from the farmers who originally sold the spoiled product. The law of this state is strongly against such practices and there may be some prosecutions.

BURLESON WILL ENFORCE THE LAW

Postmaster General to Go Ahead Unless Restrained By Court.

Washington, March 12.—Unless the supreme court restrains Postmaster General Burleson from enforcing the newspaper publicity law, as it was asked to do yesterday, he will immediately do so regardless of an agreement by Former Postmaster General Hitchcock to withold action pending a determination of its constitutionality. Mr. Burleson so announced today.

Final notices have been sent to a number of publishers that if they do not furnish the information required by the law within ten days their publications will be denied admission to the mails.

Approximately 91 per cent of the publications affected have filed their reports with the postmaster general, and otherwise have complied with the law. The delinquents constitute about 9 per cent, and generally include the larger daily newspapers in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. The number of publishers who have not filed their reports, due last October, is about 180.

It was pointed out today, however, that Postmaster General Hitchcock, before leaving office on Feb. 28, decided to terminate the agreement and had ordered postmasters to call upon publishers to submit their reports.

Fake Auto Trail Blazers.

Fargo, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commercial clubs and the automobile organizations of this state have been warned against fake auto trail blazers who are said to be planning to invade this territory. Their methods of securing contracts for the erection of guide posts and other things are so generally understood they are not likely to accomplish much. That work is generally done locally and at much cheaper rate than the transient charge.

Conscience Stricken Hay Thief.

New England, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Conscience stricken because he took some hay four or five years ago to feed his horses while camping near here, W. E. Sherman, wrote from East End, Sask., begging the forgiveness of William McKenzie. He had taken the hay without permission and had worried over the matter till he wished to relieve his mind. The hay was never missed by Mr. McKenzie.

"Not many years ago," says a writer in Office Appliances, "American business propositions in the West Indies were considered more as objects of distrust and ridicule than as means of commercial success. Today one can go throughout the British West Indies and find American business methods and American office appliances displacing the long-established European systems of doing business."

If I Were a School Teacher

in Duluth I would go on a strike for more pay. I would insist on being paid not only a good living salary, but I would insist on being paid enough so I could save a little every month to invest in something that would take care of me in my old age. I would make every member of the school board think the equator ran up and down Lake avenue, until my demands were met. Then I would take my savings and invest in Isle of Pines land.

INTEREST IN SOCIAL WORK

Classes of University Extension Department Are Well Attended.

Dr. Phelan Tells of Occupational Disease in Cotton Mills.

Interest is growing in the university extension work in social economics, which was recently started in Duluth under the direction of Dr. Raymond W. Phelan of the university of Minnesota. The two classes which are conducted by Dr. Phelan every Tuesday morning and evening at the public library and at the Y. M. C. A. now have an enrollment of about twenty-five members. Dr. Phelan who was here in the interest of the work yesterday, expressed considerable satisfaction with the interest which seems to have been taken in the course locally.

The classes are composed of teachers, librarians, social workers, lawyers, state labor department officials and others interested in social economics and allied topics. In speaking of the general nature of the course given under his direction here, Dr. Phelan yesterday stated:

"The purpose of the university of extension work is primarily to increase the university's usefulness. Its purpose is two-fold. First, every citizen capable of profiting by it is entitled to education along these lines offered that it create and develop vocational capacity, education to mobility, a knowledge and appreciation of art, literature and science, and education for active citizenship, social spirit and justice. Second, to afford a special education and culture also to those who have had no opportunity to go to a university. It also enables those who have graduated to keep in touch with progress in their particular vocational capacity, education to mobility, a knowledge and appreciation of art, literature and science, and education for active citizenship, social spirit and justice. Second, to afford a special education and culture also to those who have had no opportunity to go to a university. It also enables those who have graduated to keep in touch with progress in their particular vocational capacity.

"The course will also do the valuable service of drawing into university training excellent young men and women who might otherwise never take work for a university degree. I expect that several courses in university extension work will be given in Duluth next year and that as interest grows the field will be enlarged."

The Cotton Mill Worker.

In one of his lectures yesterday, Dr. Phelan discussed the work of the cotton mill toiler. Some interesting facts were presented. Among other things he said:

"The 1,160 cotton mills in this country employ an army of over 350,000 workers, of whom 125,000 are women and 40,000 are children. The number of women and children, however, has fallen off proportionally in the last thirty years. The cotton mill women are usually married, 36 per cent of them in New England and 25 per cent in the South. Seventy per cent of these 35,000 or 40,000 married women have husbands at work.

"The peculiarly ostracized social status of most of the mill people of the South, and the obstacles, chiefly of ignorance, fratricidal feeling of opposition to legislative interference, to labor unionism were clearly set forth. Some of the cotton mill owners are favorable to unions, but most of them opposed, chiefly it seems on the ground that unions invite, encourage and scare state regulation of employment conditions. In the South, even the workers, as a rule, are opposed to regulation by law, for the most part because they do not understand the purpose and meaning of protective legislation. Unionism appears to be made weak by the foreign element in the North the individualistic element in the South and the youthful element in both regions.

"Catarrh bronchitis pneumonia and tuberculosis may be said to be trade diseases in the production of cotton cloth. But few of the mills have mechanical ventilation. The tendency of the cotton mills to these diseases is traceable to a lack of fully adequate arrangements for ventilation and for regulation of humidity and temperature. Lack of baths and of proper dressing rooms undoubtedly plays an important part in contributing to the high tuberculosis rate among cotton mill workers. The great heat and humidity, the lint and the dust in a cotton mill, as in laundries, make imperative shower baths and well ventilated dressing rooms. The health of the cotton mill worker, and as well his or her sense of self-respect, as in many other lines of mill and shop work, demand at the close of the day's work a bath and a complete change of clothing."

FORT WILLIAM WANTS BERTH

Despite the fact that Fort Arthur is considered out of the consideration of the See-Eye magnates through the peculiar actions of Frank Tayler, Fort William has come to the front with a substantial cash offer to back a club in the league.

Judging from the tone of the dispatch the leading business men of the city are allied in the movement to give Fort William organized baseball. In the event of Winona turning down the offer of a berth in the enlarged league, it may be that the request of Fort William will be given serious consideration.

Those behind the project to give the Canadian Head of the Lakes baseball do not in the least lack in confidence. The dispatch cites the large population the team will have to draw from, and winds up with the statement that Fort William from the standpoint of baseball will be able to make Winona look foolish.

Here is the dispatch that was received late today by The Herald:

"The Herald, Duluth—Fort William has organized a baseball association with capital of $10,000 under promise of securing a team in the Northern league. Understand you are favoring Winona in preference to Fort William. If so, you're in wrong. Sixty thousand people at the Canadian Head of the Lakes and we can make Winona look like a two spot when it comes to supporting a ball team. Better hook up with us and give us your support. We've got the goods.

THE GREAT FLUTE MYSTERY

Chorus of Snores Ascending Nightly From Y. M. C. A. Court, Sounds Like Anthem of Thanksgiving.

The Great Flute Mystery has stirred the Y. M. C. A. to its depths.

The secretary has been appealed to and he is helpless.

The police have been called in and have found "clews," but the mystery is unsolved.

Detectives have puzzled over the case and given it up as hopeless.

Here are the facts as the police have heard them.

A few weeks ago a young man appeared at the Y. M. C. A. and made application for a room. He was dressed quietly and looked like an ordinary young man. He wore no whiskers or other disguise. But the secretaries noticed a long black case under his arm. It was a flute case. One of the secretaries who once played the cornet in his village band recognized the case. It was undoubtedly a flute case.

That evening the sounds of a flute were heard ascending in the inner court. Windows were opened and maledictions descended on the head of the player who persisted for two hours in running the scales.

The next morning the scales were resumed. That afternoon they were continued. That evening there was a big after concert when all the scales in the flutist's repertoire were tried. Maledictions availed nothing and hair brushes and old shoes seemed to have no effect.

Began Again.

The next day the concert began again and continued. It began to dawn on the other roomers in the building that it was to be a continuous performance, as the flutist appeared to have no other occupation but to learn to play the flute. A pall of gloom settled down over the big building, broken only by the liquid "do-ray-me," etc., of the flute.

One evening the flute was missed.

A wild-eyed youth presented himself at the secretary's desk. The flute had been stolen, case and all.

The next morning the case was returned to the youth's room. That afternoon one piece of the flute followed. It came in sections. One after another the parts were returned, some by mail and some by messenger. Only the mouthpiece was missing. The mouthpiece is still missing, and the combined efforts of the secretaries and the police have failed to uncover it. Meanwhile the silence still hangs like a pall over the Y. M. C. A. and is punctured only by the sounds of the sleepers which ascend in the court like an anthem of thanksgiving, when night settles down over the big pile of masonry and the twinkling lights are extinguished.

The Great Flute Mystery may stay unsolved.

For Selling Spoiled Eggs.

New England, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A South Dakota egg buyer who secured a supply here was arrested for selling spoiled eggs. He reported the case to local dealers, some of whom have refunded the money paid by the transient purchaser and are now seeking reimbursement from the farmers who originally sold the spoiled product. The law of this state is strongly against such practices and there may be some prosecutions.

BURLESON WILL ENFORCE THE LAW

Postmaster General to Go Ahead Unless Restrained By Court.

Washington, March 12.—Unless the supreme court restrains Postmaster General Burleson from enforcing the newspaper publicity law, as it was asked to do yesterday, he will immediately do so regardless of an agreement by Former Postmaster General Hitchcock to withold action pending a determination of its constitutionality. Mr. Burleson so announced today.

Final notices have been sent to a number of publishers that if they do not furnish the information required by the law within ten days their publications will be denied admission to the mails.

Approximately 91 per cent of the publications affected have filed their reports with the postmaster general, and otherwise have complied with the law. The delinquents constitute about 9 per cent, and generally include the larger daily newspapers in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. The number of publishers who have not filed their reports, due last October, is about 160.

It was pointed out today, however, that Postmaster General Hitchcock, before leaving office on Feb. 28, decided to terminate the agreement and had ordered postmasters to call upon publishers to submit their reports.

Fake Auto Trail Blazers.

Fargo, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commercial clubs and the automobile organizations of this state have been warned against fake auto trail blazers who are said to be planning to invade this territory. Their methods of securing contracts for the erection of guide posts and other things are so generally understood they are not likely to accomplish much. That work is generally done locally and at much cheaper rate than the transient charge.

Conscience Stricken Hay Thief.

New England, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Conscience stricken because he took some hay four or five years ago to feed his horses while camping near here, W. E. Sherman, wrote from East End, Sask., begging the forgiveness of William McKenzie. He had taken the hay without permission and had worried over the matter till he wished to relieve his mind. The hay was never missed by Mr. McKenzie.

"Not many years ago," says a writer in Office Appliances, "American business propositions in the West Indies were considered more as objects of distrust and ridicule than as means of commercial success. Today one can go throughout the British West Indies and find American business methods and American office appliances displacing the long-established European systems of doing business."

FEDERAL ARMY EXPECTS DECISIVE BATTLE WITH REBELS IN FEW HOURS

has given rise to much anxiety in Guayamas, according to dispatches received here.

Reports indicate that rebels numbering 1,600 are fortified in the neighborhood. They are said to be in possession of four rapid fire field guns. Guayamas has a garrison of 400 Federal troops. The Mexican gunboats Tampico and General Guerrero are stationed there, as well as the American armored cruiser Colorado.

A bill has been prepared for the chamber of deputies providing for the holding of a presidential election in July. Provisional President Huerta is said to have agreed to this date.

Bridges Burned.

El Paso, Tex., March 12.—Advices received here today said rebels had burned sixteen railroad bridges south of Chihuahua City, and cut all rail and wire communication from that point south.

Sinaloa Revolts.

Nogales, Ariz., March 12.—The state of Sinaloa, south of Sonora, has revolted officially against Huerta's national government and named a provisional governor, according to reports of persons arriving here today from Hermosillo. They also report that the Yaqui Indians of Sonora have volunteered to assist the insurgents.

Agua Prieta Evacuated.

Douglas, Ariz., March 12.—Gen. Ojedo and 450 men evacuated Agua Prieta at 9 o'clock today and began an overland march west to Nogales, where Col. Kosteritzky's rural police are threatened with attack. Each man carried the arms and ammunition possible. The rest of the garrison equipment, surplus arms and ammunition, was left packed on box cars.

Hard to Get in Troops.

El Paso, Tex., March 12.—If the provisional government at Mexico City intends to rush troops to subdue the anti-Huerta uprising in Sonora, the Western border state, it must be done either by landing Federal forces at some California gulf port or moving them from Chihuahua. But the recent declaration of Inex Salazar, ex-rebel general, that he will not accept Huerta, espousing instead the revolutionary program of Vasquez Gomez, the conditions about Parral and other threatening circumstances in Chihuahua make it appear that Gen. Rabago's force of from 2,000 to 3,000 Federals cannot move far from the vicinity of Chihuahua City.

While Chihuahua, the state which promoted Madero's revolution, remains comparatively quiet, this is credited by many as resulting largely from revolutionary fatigue. Wearied by the protracted insurrection which continued in Chihuahua even after Madero's victory, the ex-rebels themselves appear unwilling to continue their habit of contesting the national government.

Disregard Huerta Regime.

Yet the old Maderista element is strong in the state and in many ways has disregarded the Huerta regime.

Travelers arriving here today from the West coast reported there was no Federal force in Sonora or Sinaloa fit to move against Hermosillo. The Sonora state capital is held by more than 2,000 Constitutionalists backing up the stand of the state officials. They have fortified the town and possess five machine guns. Americans just returned from Guayamas and points to the south state that at the Sonora gulf port there are not more than 200 Huerta soldiers, while Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, and Mazatlan, the Pacific coast port in the same state, hold only about 300 Federals each. At the interior towns are still smaller garrisons, all of which combined could not make a force, the tourists estimate, to enter Northern Sonora. Nearly every province of Sonora has risen to the call of "states' rights" to oust the Huerta soldiery.

ASHLAND "BAD" MAN IS LANDED IN JAIL.

Ashland, Wis., March 12.—W. G. French, carrying a big revolver fully loaded, went gunning for James Dukes, but could not find his man. Instead he ran into the arms of Chief Blair and was taken to the city lockup and charged with carrying concealed weapons.

He put up quite a fight at the city jail when he was searched and it required two men to take away his gun without severely hurting him.

that disorder, personal intrigue and defiance of constitutional rights weaken and discredit government and injure none so much as the people who are unfortunate enough to have their common life and common affairs tainted and disturbed.

No Sympathy With Disturbers.

"We can have no sympathy with those who seek to seize the power of government to advance their own personal interests or ambition. We are the friends of peace, but we know that there can be no lasting or stable peace in such circumstances. As friends therefore, we shall prefer those who act in the interest of peace and honor, who protect private rights and respect the restraints of constitutional provision. Mutual respect seems to us the indispensable foundation of friendship between states as between individuals.

"The United States has nothing to seek in Central and South America, except the lasting interests of the peoples of the two continents, the security of governments intended for the people and for no special group or interest, and the development of personal and trade relationships between the two continents which shall redound to the profit and advantage of both and interfere with the rights and liberties of neither.

Pledges Government.

"From these principles may be read so much of the future policy of this government as it is necessary now to forecast; and in the spirit of these principles I may, I hope, be permitted with as much confidence as earnestness to extend to the governments of all the republics of America the hand of genuine, disinterested friendship, and to pledge my own honor and the honor of my colleagues to every enterprise of peace and amity that a fortunate future may disclose."

No Particular Country.

At the White House it was disclaimed that the statement was aimed at any particular country. It was declared that it would be sent to the diplomatic representatives of the United States in all Central and South American countries alike.

While most of the countries in the Western hemisphere are enjoying domestic as well as international peace, state department officials have exercised a close watch on events in Mexico, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Honduras, San Domingo, Cuba and Salvador.

While the Mexican situation was becoming more and more acute in the closing days of the last administration, reports were received at the department from its various agencies in Central America that gave much concern to the officials, indicating, as they did, the existence of a general spirit of unrest and of embryonic revolutionary activity in many quarters.

May Be Revolution.

In Salvador, where a long period of peace had prevailed, the assassination of President Araujo by a band of conspirators, believed to have been the preliminary movement in a revolution, started the whole of Central America. Charges were made that this revolution had been fomented from outside in Guatemala. In that same country there were hints of trouble. Then came reports from New Orleans that a combination was being effected between the Zelayistas and discontented elements in Honduras, looking to double revolutions, first in Honduras and later in Nicaragua. Costa Rica appeared to be the only peaceful spot on the Central American map.

Based on Personal Ambition.

The general tenor of the official reports was to the effect that the threatened disorders had no foundation in abuses of power on the part of the existing governments of the republics, but were based almost entirely upon the personal ambitions of various would-be leaders and soldiers of fortune, who designed to overturn the established governments and maintain themselves in power by force of arms and without reference to the will of the majority of the people.

Conditions became so acute just before the close of the Taft administration as to cause the dispatch of the big armored cruiser Colorado first and later the gunboat Denver down the West coast as far as Acajutla, in Salvador.

The Wilson administration is now considering whether there shall be a change in the plans for the spring practice of the Atlantic fleet, due to sail from Guantanamo, Cuba, next Monday for Hampton roads. It has been suggested that the ships should be kept at Guantanamo until conditions in Central America are more settled. It is possible the four battleships, now at Vera Cruz and Tampico, will remain there for the present while the rest of the fleet proceeds northward.

Received in Friendly Spirit.

Washington, March 12.—President Wilson's statement of the attitude of the present administration toward Latin-American affairs was received by Central and South American diplomatists here in the friendly spirit which was voiced in the declaration. The consensus of opinion among them was one of approval that the policy of his administration would be to discountenance lawless revolutions, and at the same time to encourage the growth of friendly relations.

The majority of members of the senate and house committees on foreign affairs also expressed general approval of the president's attitude.

The senate this afternoon took up the initiative and referendum bill as a special order.

Reapportionment.

After this afternoon's session, the senate reapportionment committee will take up the reapportionment bill for final action. The opposition is said to have settled on a plan of taking only two senators from Southern Minnesota, adding four to Northern Minnesota, and leaving the large cities as they are. It is somewhat along the lines of the H. H. Dunn scheme which the house defeated, and it is not expected that the attempt will get very far.

The house temperance committee killed the bill requiring wholesale liquor dealers to take out local licenses, and the bill making it a misdemeanor for a minor to misrepresent his age in order to get liquor. RAILROADS MUST SHOW VESSEL CONNECTIONS.

Washington, March 12.—In a general order to all railroads, the interstate commerce commission today required them to disclose, under oath, before April 15, what connection each may have in the transportation of freight or passengers by water.

The information will be used by the commission in the administration of the provision of the Panama canal law, which would make it unlawful, after July 1, 1914, for any railroad company to own, control or have any interest in any common carrier by water operated through the Panama canal or elsewhere, with which the railroad may be a competitor.

ADMIRAL'S SUDDEN DEATH INVESTIGATED.

Norwell, Mass., March 12.—It became known today that an investigation was begun hours after the sudden death last Saturday of Rear-Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, U. S. N., retired.

An autopsy was followed by the announcement today that death was due to inflammation of the stomach. The sheriff added: "I have nothing to say at this time except that an investigation is being made."

Admiral Eaton was taken ill last Friday and died the next day. He was 65 years old and had lived on a farm here since his retirement.

(From Beauty's Mirror.)

No face is really beautiful that lacks expression. Do you realize that continual use of powders and creams tends to spoil pliancy of skin and elasticity of expression? Why not quit cosmetics and use something better, which won't clog the pores or make the skin either dry or pasty? Ordinary mercolized wax acts quite differently from any cosmetic. It wonderfully improves any complexion, giving it life and expression. By gradually, harmlessly peeling off the thin veil of outer surface skin, it brings to view a pure, soft, spotless complexion, delicately beautiful and youthful. Every druggist has this wax; it is seldom more than one ounce is needed. It is spread on nightly like cold cream and washed off mornings. In a week or two the transformation is complete.

Wrinkles do not of course enhance the expression. Neither do the pasty things many use to eradicate them. A treatment free from all objection is made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½-pt. witch hazel; use as a wash lotion. This soon removes even the most obstinate wrinkles.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFUL

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy.

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de composee), and a little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. Get from your druggist 2 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ dr. Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on a soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease. In ten days you will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its result. Adv.

FLOODED BY SPRINKLER

Heavy Loss Is Sustained By the F. A. Patrick Company.

Automatic Fire Extinguisher Saves Building From Being Gutted.

The releasing of the automatic sprinkling system caused heavy water damage, but undoubtedly saved the F. A. Patrick wholesale house at Fifth avenue west and Railroad street from being gutted by fire about 7 o'clock last evening.

The blaze broke out on the sixth floor in the overall factory room in the southwest corner. The origin is unknown. The heat caused the sprinkling system to operate which in turn automatically returned an alarm to fire headquarters.

All the down-town companies responded to the alarm and despite the snow and wind a large crowd collected as soon as the apparatus was on the ground. The fire had been squelched by the sprinkling system before it acquired dangerous proportions.

Thousands of gallons of water poured from the sprinklers, flooding that floor and down upon the floors below. Large quantities of stock were seriously damaged. It was stated this morning that it has been impossible to arrive at any accurate approximation of the damage which was done, but that the loss was a great deal more than had at first been supposed. It will run into thousands of dollars.

han's fairness, and said that he had not been an investigator but a prosecutor, and that this attitude had been grossly unfair to everybody who did not represent his side.

Mr. Mercer said that it was proposed to show that the Equity concern has misrepresented its facilities, that it has charged double commissions, and that it has been guilty of other abuses, and he asked how it would look to have the counsel for this concern conduct the examination and help draw the report.

Mr. Manahan demanded that the committee then and there decide on whether he was to be retained.

Mr. Fowler attempted to enter his formal protest at this time, and there was a sharp exchange of verbal brickbats between Mr. Fowler, Mr. Teigen and Mr. Manahan. Representative Hopkins of the committee thought there should be no vote until Representative O'Neill was present. Mr. Manahan demanded a vote then and there, and threatened to quit. A vote was taken and Manahan was sustained, whereupon the investigation proceeded in a more orderly manner.

Drake's Objections Futile.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Against the strenuous objections of Benjamin Drake, attorney for the Equity concern, and his protestations that the committee ought not to go back of the time when George S. Loftus of the Loftus-Hubbard company became its manager, C. R. Fowler, attorney for chamber of commerce interests, presented before the senate grain investigation committee records showing that the Equity concern began business in Minnesota in 1909.

The purpose of this evidence, evidently, was to make it possible to submit testimony regarding its transactions for several years back.

The records showed that the Equity Co-operative exchange was first a voluntary association, and a selling agency for the American Society of Equity, represented in Minneapolis by Pliny E. Cooper, who had a license as its agent from 1909 on; that the exchange was incorporated in Northern Dakota about March, 1911; and that about Aug. 1, 1912, George S. Loftus became its manager in Minneapolis, succeeding Cooper.

When Mr. Fowler offered the records showing this, Mr. Drake objected that they ought not to be received until Mr. Cooper's attorney, Edward Hofstedt, was present.

"Mr. Cooper's attorney," said Mr. Fowler, "looked over these records and then took his hat and left."

After consulting with his associates, Mr. Drake said he had learned that Mr. Hofstedt had gone to Anoka.

"That's a good place for him," said Mr. Fowler.

Mr. Drake then entered into a lengthy argument against the reception of the records, claiming that there was no connection between the Equity concern of today and the Equity conern under Cooper.

"In twenty years of practice before all kinds of courts and committees," said Mr. Fowler when Mr. Drake had done, "I must say I never heard such a tissue of palpable falsehoods as counsel has just perpetrated."

The committee decided to take the records rather than the statements of the attorneys, and they were received in evidence.

Before this episode, B. F. Benson, a Minneapolis commission man, had been on the stand all the afternoon. Under cross-examination by Mr. Drake as to the so-called "receivers' association," an organization of grain commission men on the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, Mr. Benson said that this organization is maintained as a sort of credit association, in order to get a line on farmers' elevator managers and guard against bad credit risks. The association, Mr. Benson said, also works in the common interests of the commission men and the shippers. For instance, it has been engaged in stirring up opposition to the switching charge, because it is a hardship on the Minneapolis market because Duluth and other markets do not have it. The association has written to shippers in Minnesota and North and South Dakota asking them to protest against this charge.

Mr. Drake wanted to know if there was a good deal of "illegitimate" speculation, or "gambling," among elevator managers. Mr. Benson refused to pass on what is legitimate or illegitimate, saying that all he was concerned in was that if the manager of a country elevator was carrying too much future stuff it made the credit hazardous.

Expect to Bring Business.

Mr. Drake tried to get the witness to admit that commission men, in loaning money to country elevators to finance their grain-buying, used this privilege as a club to compel shipments to the borrowers, but this Mr. Benson refused to admit; though he did admit that naturally this favor was expected to bring business. The interest charge on such loans is about 7 per cent, but he denied that this was by an agreement. It was an understanding, he said, that 7 per cent was a reasonable charge. No money was made by these loans, and no commission man would make them for the loans alone. The commission man had to get his money in round lots and pay interest on it whether it is in use or not, and often he had to carry considerable sums when there was no demand for them in the country. He had known of loans being made at 6½ or 6 per cent, as testified to by agents of the Van Dusen-Harrington company.

John Lind, attorney for the commission men, had Mr. Benson explain at length the ordinary course of business by which a commission man transacts the business of his shippers. Mr. Benson said that the commission business is rightly competitive, and that if a commission man did not get the best possible results for his shippers, he could not expect to hold their business.

"Our best advertisement is a satisfied shipper," he said.

The committee will resume its sessions this afternoon.

MANY HEAR FESLER.

Duluthian Talks to Cloquet Commercial Club on Commission Form.

Cloquet, Minn., March 12. — A large audience listened to the address of Bert Fesler of Duluth before the Commercial club Monday night. Mr. Fesler's talk was on the commission form of government and proved both interesting and instructive. C. E. Brown, instructor in the state agricultural college, also addressed the club on farm topics. In the afternoon Mr. Brown held an impromptu but very enthusiastic farmers' meeting in the club rooms.

The matter of a city hospital, which is in charge of the executive committee was laid over until the next meeting, and the project of starting a cigar factory is also to be reported upon definitely at that time. R. F. Cochrane, Fred Vilbert and Max Markowitz are looking after the factory. Ladies' night date was not decided upon, but the committee reported that they thought it best to secure the opera house for the occasion.

Peter Olesen, as head of the executive committee, reported the appointment of committees for the year, including public affairs, traffic, industries, publicity, civic improvement, legislature, members, house, conventions, entertainment, agriculture and state fair, good roads, and the appointments were all confirmed by the club.

Woman's Realm

Members of the local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution are interested in a new phase in the pre-election campaign for president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to be held in the annual congress in Washington in April, which threatens to develop in a movement on the part of friends of Mrs. William Cumming Story and Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, so-called anti-administration candidates, to question the eligibility of at least five members of the credentials committee because of alleged partisanship for Mrs. John Miller Horton, the administration choice for successor to Mrs. Matthew T. Scott.

This move was precipitated by a circular recently issued asking for support for Mrs. Horton, a circular alleged to have been an attack upon Mrs. Story and which was signed by thirteen acknowledged supporters of Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Horton.

GIRLS HAVE RECESS.

Rest Period Twice Each Day at Duluth Factory.

A fifteen-minute recess morning and afternoon is given the employes in the P. A. Patrick factory and during that period every window is opened and the rooms thoroughly ventilated.

"We just started this recess last week," said William McMullen, superintendent of the factory, in speaking of the plan, "but we feel that it will be most satisfactory. The work is stopped and the girls can rest themselves, doing whatever they please during the time given and after a little change and with absolutely fresh air in the work rooms they feel twice as well and can really more than make up for the time lost in the amount of work they can accomplish with renewed vigor.

"We shall probably continue the plan when we get into our new factory building, where conditions will be made as fine for the employes as they can possibly be made."

The girls themselves are very much pleased with the little time for rest and change during the working hours, the recess being given at 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. daily.

PRAISES FACTORIES.

Miss Anders Claims Duluth Conditions Better Than Ordinary.

In speaking of the extension work of the Y. W. C. A. at a meeting of the Lester Park Literary society held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Miles, 3333 Wyoming street, Miss Mae C. Anders, extension secretary of that organization claimed that the factories and laundries here have a higher moral tone than in most cities and that temptations are made as few as possible, the factories are more sanitary than any she has seen in other cities and that the girls showed a decided preference for factory work over domestic service.

"The work of the Y. W. C. A. is preventive, and practically no rescue work is attempted," she said. "Some study has been made of the immigration problem and the fact that 15,000 foreign girls are lost between New York and Chicago each year. However, we find that in general the problem of the girl in industry is an individual one."

Mrs. V. Y. Harris explained points in the Duluth housing ordinance and spoke of the necessity for its enforcement by the new administration and Mrs. R. P. Boyington spoke on the suburban home.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Some Remarks on Shutting the Car Door in Winter.

To get away from the subject of bachelor men and maids, and others of that sort, for a day, and dilate upon one that is perhaps of more import, because most of us meet with it every day, let me ask the married and the unmarried, the old and the young, to take pains henceforth to close the doors of cars after them on entering or leaving. My, but it's exasperating to have people sail majestically into a car, on a cold day, and leave the door wide open as though there was a lackey in attendance to close it after them, particularly when you have to close it yourself to save yourself from discomfort and a case of influenza.

A man of my family and myself were talking about it yesterday. Manlike, he proceeded to lay the brunt of the blame on the women. While there is no use denying that women are grave offenders in such matters, they are not alone. A woman who enters and leaves a car without shutting the door annoys me, but a man who does it fills me with a sort of fighting indignation. If you will take the trouble to observe, you will find that the woman who fails to close the car door is usually the domestic type of woman, or the woman who is unaccustomed to traveling about and rubbing elbows with the world. The business woman is much more considerate, as a rule. But this cannot be said of men, for if they are not all workers, they are all more versed in worldly ways than women.

When a man struts through a door and leaves it wide open, his carelessness appeals to you in the light of plain, unvarnished hoggishness. Every man of maturity surely has experienced annoyance from this sort of thing more times than he can count, and should know better. He has called others names for doing what he does himself.

The thick and indifferent person who sits near the door and refuses to bend a neck or stretch a hand to shut the door, is next, in my estimation, to the person who leaves the door ajar. I have seen hundreds of persons, men as frequently as women, sit stolidly in their seats near the door and refused to cater to the comfort of perhaps a score of others by so gracious an act as closing it. Such a person becomes, at least, an accessory after the fact of the original offender.

So, if we would save ourselves the contempt of others, we should be more careful about closing the car door, and be good enough to close it, if seated near, when another neglects it.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

One of the Superior street shops has on display in a window silks and chiffons in the new Bulgarian designs and colorings which are especially attractive. Bulgarian jewelry, too, is shown, bar pins of filigree silver set with colored stones, in reds, blues and yellows; silver and gold necklaces with pendants of the colored gems, unusual rings and bracelets which will match the gown or waist of the new materials.

Little nosegays which will also harmonize with the Bulgarian colorings are small bunches of silk apples on a background of green foliage. They are new and make a pretty little touch for the costume.

New Waists.

Another shop is displaying a window full of new silk waists which have been admired. Wash silk blouses in tailored lines are shown, one of white with pink and gray stripings being particularly attractive. Another waist was of crimson silk made plain with turn-back collar and cuffs.

Dolly Madison voiles in delicate colorings are especially popular this season and are marked at 59 cents a yard, and other popular summer goods shown in the shops this season are Irish dimities in dainty designs, imported crepes, plain and fancy; voiles, tissues, poplins, pique and of course the linens in all the new colors.

HOW to select furniture.

If you were buying a gold ring you would look for the stamp inside. If you did not find there the mark "18K" or "14K" you would be likely to doubt that the ring was solid gold.

So it is with furniture. When you buy a piece that bears the Berkey & Gay shop mark you may be perfectly sure you are getting your money's worth.

The analogy may be carried further. Like solid gold, Berkey & Gay furniture has a standard value everywhere. The price you pay for a piece of Berkey & Gay furniture here is exactly the price you would have to pay for it in New York or Chicago.

In another sense the purchaser of this furniture may feel absolutely secure. The piece of Berkey & Gay furniture that you buy today will not look ridiculous in ten or twenty years from now. Berkey & Gay do not make "fad" furniture. Every piece they turn out has an established artistic value.

If you understand what is artistic in furniture you will insist on having Berkey & Gay furniture. If you have never made a study of this form of art you may feel sure that you are getting the correct thing when you select a Berkey & Gay piece or set.

We are fortunate in having the exclusive sale of Berkey & Gay furniture here.

DIGGING FOR WOODCHUCKS.

"Digging for woodchucks" is about as accurate a description as one could give of the work being done in the legislature at present on the bill for a public utilities commission. And the probabilities are that by the time the various measures submitted have been analyzed by the committees in the house and senate and committee bills drafted to embody the best features of these earlier measures, there will not be a woodchuck left in the final provisions.

One serious objection made to the proposals at first advanced for a public utilities commission was that they provided for rather strict state regulation of municipally owned properties. It was claimed that city rights were being made to suffer, and that city interests would not be adequately protected if such provisions were made.

That objection has been removed by the limitation of the proposed commission's authority over municipally owned business to the enforcement of uniform systems of accounting and similar matters. The questions of actual operation, financing and the like are left to the cities to determine.

One thing is certain: The principle of state power over public service corporations is gaining force and friends every day. The state not only has greater funds and resources to be used in securing information and enforcing orders than can be commanded by cities or counties, but it can maintain a corps of well-informed men who understand the problems of public service and have at their command a vast amount of data and incidents and records for comparative and constructive purposes. In the states where the utilities commission plan has been put into operation it has brought splendid results.

No state in the Union has more need of corporate regulation than has Minnesota. The legislators are working hard to frame a bill that will protect municipal rights, and at the same time give the state body sufficient power to make it effective. There is every reason to believe that a practical and satisfactory bill will yet be brought to light and passed.

Aha! The horrible truth is out at last! President Wilson abhors both ice water and wine, therefore he must be in the pay and employment of the Buttermilk trust.

FOR NON-PARTISANSHIP.

Reports from St. Paul indicate that the senate's joke on the opponents of the bill providing for non-partisan election of county officers is not to be indorsed in the house. When the bill was in the senate some of the opposition tacked onto it an amendment extending its terms to the members of the legislature. On the vote in the senate the bill was passed with that amendment, to the surprise and chagrin of the opponents of the measure.

There really is no reason why the members of the state legislature should not be elected on no-party lines, but such a step is a little in advance of the general thought at present, and perhaps it is asking too much of the house to indorse such a proposition now. It will come in time, undoubtedly, and it would be a matter for congratulation if Minnesota could take the lead in making its legislature popular instead of partisan. But at present the idea has taken the legislators by surprise, and it is only natural that they should be hesitant about adopting it.

A suggestion by the Northfield News, however, is thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of the non-partisan bill, and the house would do well to consider it in its deliberations. It is that the election of the members of the state railroad and warehouse commission be placed on a non-partisan basis. The News argues that the character of this commission is so closely allied to that of the judiciary that the members should be freed from political affiliations as far as possible.

The idea is worth serious consideration, at least, and perhaps the house would do well to amend the senate bill so as to make it cover the members of that commission. Aside from the elimination of party influence in their election, the removal of that part of the state government from the partisan field would operate to cut down railroad influence in party politics, because no party could demand financial help on the strength of its platform declarations regarding transportation affairs, since it would have no means of carrying out those declarations if it won at the polls.

To put the non-partisan stamp on the railroad and warehouse commission would be to make every member of that commission stand on his own feet, and bear individually the responsibility for his official acts. But most of all, it would help materially to clear the political atmosphere of the state by making ability and merit instead of party regularity the basis of public service.

Every time there is found to be something in the air, the Britons jump at the conclusion that it must be a German airship.

NO JOB FOR BRANDEIS.

Once more the political prognosticators are wrong, and Louis D. Brandeis is left out of the list of Federal office holders. From attorney general to no job at all is quite a change, but that is the gamut Mr. Brandeis has run in the prophetic mind in the last few weeks, with brief stopovers at the solicitor generalship and a diplomatic post.

Fiendish glee is being exhibited by the carping class of critics in the failure of President Wilson to land something for Brandeis. They charge that corporation influence kept him out of the cabinet and likewise out of the department of justice in general. They claim that corporation influence kept him out of any job at all under the Wilson administration. And they are doing their best to convince themselves and everybody else that the elimination of Brandeis is but a step in a Wilson program to turn the whole country over to the capitalistic class to do with as it wishes.

Now as a matter of fact, the probabilities are that there is just one man who is responsible for Brandeis' failure to land in the cabinet or near it, and that one man is Brandeis himself. And the reason for his absence from the councils of the nation is more than likely due to the intention of the president to insure harmony in his official family. Brandeis is a radical of the radicals. He is an able lawyer. He is an exceptionally able lawyer. But he is not the type of man with whom it is easy to work. He has done much for those whom he found it in his power to assist. But he is not fitted for team work.

That, we believe, is the secret of Brandeis' being left out of official positions by President Wilson. The president has left the way open for the employment of Brandeis' services as counsel, and there can be no question that his services in that capacity will be invaluable. But there can equally be no question that as a teammate of Bryan, McReynolds, McAdoo, Daniels and others in the cabinet, Brandeis would have been out of place.

But maybe that Washington police department was just jealous of the attention the New York outfit has been getting.

GEN. WOOD'S RETENTION.

By the retention of Gen. Leonard Wood as chief of staff of the army, the Wilson administration has once more served notice on the country that politics as such is to have as little as possible to do with the determination of matters of public interest and well being.

Gen. Wood's career as head of the army has been more or less stormy, owing to the efforts of politicians to discredit the general and have him ousted from office, either by executive action or through legislative operation. There was first the very bitter criticism of the means by which Wood was raised to his position. President Roosevelt's course in this was bitterly assailed, and President Taft was attacked for not nullifying Roosevelt's action as soon as opportunity offered.

But whatever may be said of the way in which the position was given to him, Gen. Wood has distinctly made good as chief of staff. He has reorganized the service in some particulars, and every change he has made has been in the direction of economy and efficiency. At least there can be no denying that he has justified confidence in his administration of army affairs.

In the ordinary course of events, the chief of staff holds office for four years. It would have been easy for President Wilson, through his secretary of war, to have brought about a change with the incoming administration. And indeed that was expected and demanded in some quarters. But the president seems to have been convinced that Wood's record entitled him to the completion of his natural term in office, and he is to have that privilege. Meanwhile there is no reason to doubt that his able army administration will continue, if the politicians can be kept from bringing about legislation that will oust him.

Somehow it seem as if there's always just a little more snow.

Austria is getting positively foolhardy, if she really is daring to interfere in that Balkan-Turkish war.

Mexicans are charging that the latest revolution was financed by Americans. Now who would have thought there was money enough in it for anybody to justify that idea?

WHY NOT WAIT FOR A NEW PAVILION?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice the city engineer, after stating the timbers of the rustic bridge over Lester river were in a good state of preservation, recommends the removal of the pavilion top of the bridge. I wonder why? With the pavilion removed there is, since the recent burning of the large hall, not a place for the pleasure seekers to go for shelter in case of a storm coming up, and while this is not by any means stormproof it is much better than no shelter, and, if safe, it seems to me it should be allowed to remain until there was something to take its place.

In view of this and some other developments it looks to a casual observer as though some busybody was prodding the park board.

LESTER PARKER.

Duluth, March 11.

Duluth and the Northwest

Editorial in the Crookston Times.

Duluth has started a publicity campaign that indicates a healthy, progressive spirit, and it will result in a great deal of good to that city and to the great Northwest, because every portion of a territory is benefited to a certain extent by the prosperity of any section of it.

Duluth is a more important center than has been generally realized. It is a great inland port, and has the advantage of water rates. It not only has that advantage but has provided facilities which make the advantages available to the entire Northwest. It is a great wheat market because of the water route, and the water route forces the coal rates down, another direct benefit to the entire Northwest.

Duluth has had a great struggle in gaining the prestige she now enjoys, and, indicating the spirit of progress with which her people are impregnated, not content with resting on laurels won, has started out on a vigorous campaign to diffuse important facts about Duluth.

There is an object lesson in the spirit manifested by Duluth, one which is worthy of emulation by citizens of every city and village in the great Northwest. Duluth is striving to get acquainted, and in co-operative spirit interesting herself in the Northwest becoming more interested in Duluth. Her advertising campaign will help Duluth and it will help the section she is trying to reach, because a better mutual understanding, a more thorough conception of the fact that closer relations are mutually beneficial will result in working together all along the line, and eliminating cross purpose efforts.

Duluth is especially important to the Northwest in providing a market for Northwestern farm products. A city of 100,000 people, and the big interests centered there, if friendly, means a powerful friend, and Duluth is making every effort to show her friendship.

The spirit displayed in this new move is commendable. It will bring splendid returns to Duluth, and it will also benefit the territory that is being stirred up. Everyone admires the city that goes after things, and goes after them, not in a greedy way to reap all the benefits, impelled by selfishness, but that frankly endeavors to cultivate a wider acquaintance for the purpose of serving as well as being served.

In a city, as in an individual, the exhibition of worthy ambition is admired. There is a fascination about it that attracts people, makes them stop and think, and irresistibly draws them.

Everyone in the Northwest will feel more or less of a personal interest in Duluth's ambitions, and will wish to see the efforts made for a closer relationship with the vast territory realized beyond the expectations of the public-spirited prime movers—the live membership of the Duluth Commercial club.

The Good Citizen.

The Outlook: Many a man plumes himself on being a good citizen today who is in reality a hopelessly bad one—hopelessly so because he thinks himself in no need of change. To be a good citizen requires two essential qualities—knowledge and action. An ignorant citizen is one of the dangers of a republic. An inert citizen is an equal peril to democracy. To know and to act are not always simple and easy duties. But they are fundamental and a free country demands them from its people, as the very conditions of its liberty and its existence.

The United States is suffering today because its so-called good citizens have been content to be ignorant and inert for years. They have been too busy with their own individual gains and schemes either to know about public affairs or to take any action beyond that of dropping a vote in a box once or twice a year. Consequently, when a crisis comes, they understand little or nothing of the persons behind it. They blame Socialism as the promoter of all strife, and do not study out what has promoted Socialism itself. They object to having their politics disturbed, and do not see that undisturbed politics must inevitably end in an earthquake.

Each mistake, realized and corrected, takes the citizen just that much further ahead in value as a member of a self-governing community. The Yankee genius for experiment has resulted always in many unsuccessful experiments before the successful result has been reached in any line. But no one can deny that Yankee methods work out surprising progress in invention and in business. The idea of removing Yankee politics from the sphere of experiment and making them secure and sacred is not the idea of the really good, the actively good, citizen. There is, indeed, nothing sacred from the good citizen, in the way of government, because he ought to make the government and work it. That is his business as a citizen—just as much as looking after his home and family is his business as a man.

New Tag to an Old Fable.

Boston Transcript: Young Tony of the Italian quarter had been greatly interested in the teacher's story of the fox and the grapes. Arriving home from school he repeated it in his excited, broken English to the family, following the teacher's version closely until he reached the climax. Tony's conclusion was this:

"De olda fox he say, 'Da grape no good, anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta de banan.'"

Getting Rid of Cigarette Habit

The American Magazine has been offering prizes for the best letters on "Overcoming Bad Habits." The following letter from a man who cured himself of the cigarette habit won third prize.

It was at the age of 6 that I first began to smoke cigarettes.

At the age of 15 they sent me away to school. At 18 I went to college. Freed of all home ties and restraint, I smoked to my heart's content. At 25 I was a nervous wreck. The doctors thumped me over the heart and shook their heads gravely. I had tobacco heart, they told me, and my only hope of evading a premature grave was to stop smoking absolutely.

I had figured that I smoked from fifty to sixty a day. I resolved to cut this number down. I did manage to get along with about half that number, but below that I could not go.

Then one day I took stock of myself. Life was sweet and I had no desire to die. I resolved to master the cigarette habit or die in the attempt. If I didn't, I was going to die anyway. Once more I threw away my tobacco and papers. And this time I did not retrieve them. Time after time I returned to the place where I knew they lay just over the hedge fence, but each time I managed to control myself and walk away from the spot. That first night was one crescendo of horror. I tossed restlessly upon my bed. I thought of the pleasure which one puff would give me. Again and again I sat upon the edge of my couch, fighting against the desire to get up and search my pockets for 'scrapings' enough to roll just one cigarette. How I kept from doing so is more than I know. Morning found me gaunt and hollow-eyed. The craving had me in its grip. Breakfast sickened me because I hadn't braced my stomach to receive it with my morning cigarette. I ate no dinner and no supper. Water alone would stay down.

This is only a portion of the torment that I suffered for weeks. They seemed like ages to me. The smell of a cigarette would drive me frantic. Cigars and pipe had never appealed to me before. Now, I would have almost parted with life itself to have dared to smoke one. My nights were one long series of tossings and tumblings upon my bed, dropping off into dozings only to awaken because of the nightmares which pursued me. And in each of them the central figure was a cigarette. By daytime I was grouchy and irritable. Harsh words came more readily to my lips than kind. I almost hated myself. What my friends and relatives must have endured then only the love for one of your own blood could have borne.

And then one day the habit left me—not gradually, for the night before, I can recall, I had one of my hardest battles against getting up, casting all the ground that I had won behind me, and making and smoking a cigarette, even though my life should pay forfeit. The next morning I was surprised to find that I had slept well and that I was undergoing a craving which I had not experienced in years. To my astonishment I discovered that I wanted breakfast. And after the meal I did not crave a cigarette. I have never craved one since. I can sit by and watch others smoke them without the least desire to indulge myself. My taste for cigarettes has been broken, but not for worlds would I go again through the purgatory into which my battle with the little thin paper rolls of tobacco cast me.

The Meat Supply

In the recently published year book of a leading meat packing concern in Chicago is a sensible suggestion for increasing the meat supply that should arrest the attention of lawmakers in all of the states. It is not a new suggestion, but is now put forward at an opportune time.

By far too many meat animals in this country are slaughtered when calves in order to supply the demand for veal. The United States is now the greatest veal consuming country in the world. In 1911, there were slaughtered 8,000,000 calves which averaged in weight 70 pounds each, Says the year book:

"If they had been allowed to live one year they would have averaged 600 pounds of good beef and would have given to the country 4,800,000,000 pounds of beef instead of only 560,000,000 pounds of meat. According to a conservative estimate, this four billion odd pounds would furnish a city of 350,000 people with its total meat supply for over fifty years. This gives some idea of the country's immediate loss of beef supply by the slaughter of calves."

Is there any real need for this waste of beef, amounting to over four billion pounds a year? Must people eat baby beef, even if they cause thereby an enormous shrinkage in the possible meat supply of the country? If the market remains free to the operation of the law of supply and demand, there may be no help for it. Americans are extravagant in their expenditure, and their standard of living, so far as meat is concerned, has always been high owing to the comparative cheapness of American beef in the older days of the free public lands. The only substantial check that can now be given to the consumption of veal, evidently, is to prohibit by law the slaughter of the animals before they have reached a certain age. Protect calves by law just as the law safeguards animals and game in the wild state.

Argentina long ago saw the danger of destroying the basis of her great meat export trade, and laws were enacted in that country making it a criminal offense to slaughter female calves or heifers or cows under six years of age. It is stated that "The results have been altogether beneficial. Veal and baby beef are still found on the menus in South America. In fact, there is a greater abundance of those meats because the law has now been in effect long enough to produce two or three times as many calves as there were formerly."

Laws of a similar character could be enacted by our states which would meet any constitutional objection; and once the present excessive slaughter of calves was checked, the country's meat supply would increase and prices would fall to a more reasonable level. The great political obstacle, of course, would be the cattle owners in the chief beef-producing states. They find profit in veal.

A Scotch Proposal.

New York Evening Post: Andrew Carnegie tells this story of a unique proposal of marriage. A Scotch beadle was very much in love, and was also extremely bashful. He could not make up his mind to ask the woman for her heart and hand in the ordinary manner. He made several attempts, but always failed. One day he asked her to go for a walk, and led the way to the churchyard. There, finding the lot where his ancestors lay, he pointed to the headstone and said: "All my folks are buried here, Jean. Wadn't you like to be laid away here wi' 'em some day?"

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Key Pittman, the new junior senator from Nevada and grandnephew of Francis Scott Key, the song writer, has lived more Alaskan adventures than one would find in a couple of Rex Beach novels. In fact, he was the leading legal counsel for the miners in their fight against a big political conspiracy to rob them, as set forth in "The Spoilers." And practicing law in the gold country in those days required the hardihood of a dozen Pilgrim Fathers, combined with the resourcefulness of a William J. Burns.

But before he set up to practice his profession at Nome, Pittman hit the Skagway trail for the Klondike and worked as a common miner for two years. He reached the Klondike with nothing but a slightly worn dime in his pocket.

Imagine yourself a young man from a fine old Southern family with only 10 cents in your pocket in a country where drinks sold for a dollar each!

A man offered him $30 a cord for wood. All he had to do was to go up on the hillside with an ax, cut the wood and tote it in. The man would pay him cash.

Pittman had never before gone in for manual labor, but it was the only way he saw to prevent himself from being a drug on the market. He and his partner, one Charles Greene, now of Pittsburg, took the contract. They got the use of a couple of axes and a large, roomy sledge and went out into the hills.

Greene said he would handle the first load. He mounted the sledge and Pittman shoved him off. For the first second or two he got along nicely. Then he approached a curve in the trail, a mile or so from his starting point. The next half second found him buried, along with the sledge full of wood, in a ten-foot bank of snow. He managed to dig his way out barely in time to avoid suffocation, and went on to their rude cabin. When Pittman got there he found his partner in the midst of cooking dinner, but in such bad humor that he didn't dare to laugh or even show so much as a twinkle in his eye over the incident of the sledge in the snowbank.

"Dinner is ready," announced Greene savagely, after he had finished cooking the pork and beans.

They ate in silence. When they were through they lighted their pipes and smoked for a long time, still without either saying a word. Pittman would have pawned his soul for a good laugh, but he was afraid his partner would kill him in cold blood.

At last Greene broke the silence. He said:

"You can bring down the next load."

When he struck Nome, Pittman noticed a valuable strip of vacant land abutting the main street and running back to the beach. United States soldiers, who were the only visible evidence of law, guarded that land, on the theory that it was all beach. Even at night, a sentinel paced back and forth to prevent anybody from settling on it. Pittman found that after allowing sixty feet for the beach at high tide, as required by law, there was still a strip forty feet deep, abutting the street. He asked for permission to take squatter's rights to some of this, but was refused. Then he got the use of a room in the rear of a saloon near by and built himself a little cabin. When the sentinel was at the other end of the strip, Pittman and some of his friends moved his cabin onto the lot he wanted. On the front of the cabin was a sign which read: "Key Pittman, Attorney at Law." It was his office.

The sentinel had taken a drink or two, as it happened, and when he came along and saw Pittman's cabin where none had been only a few minutes previous, he wondered if he really saw it or just thought he did. He inquired of several bystanders and they assured him that there was really a cabin there, just as he suspected. The sentinel said he had authority only to prevent anybody from building there, but not to chase buildings off.

The next day the lieuteranant in command of the United States soldiers sent for Pittman. Pittman sent word back that he would be in his office all day and would be glad to see him there. The affair was adjusted amicably after a time and Pittman held his lot.

In a short time all the rest of that side of the street was completely "built up."

Then there was the case of the big mining company which claimed to have rights to certain lands near the beach where hundreds of miners had found there was gold to be had only three or four feet beneath the surface. These miners came to Pittman to see what could be done. He told them that legally the mining company had it on them, but for them to follow his directions and he would show them something funny.

All refused to keep off the beach and were arrested—some 500 of them—and taken to the army headquarters. Now, 500 prisoners, eating three meals a day, can make themselves an expensive luxury in a country where a sandwich brings as high as $3.50. After they had had three meals, the lieutenant in command told them he would let them out if they would promise to keep off the beach. They refused to promise. Then he tried to let them escape, but they neglected to escape; instead, Pittman hustled around and got about 100 more to go and "give themselves up." At the end of three days the prisoners were all discharged, and Key Pittman's law practice was established.

Senator Pittman is 40 years old, tall, slender, with a springy step, smooth face and a romantic backward sweep to his hair. He was born in Vicksburg, Miss., attended college in Tennessee, and was practicing law in the state of Washington when he set out for the Klondike.

When a youngster, Pittman did not attend school, but had a private tutor, which circumstance is mentioned simply to show that not all the boys raised in that exclusive fashion turn out the way they do in the comic pictures.

Cannon Bored in Solid Rock.

Harper's Weekly: When the island of Malta was under the rule of the Knights of St. John they defended their fortifications with cannon bored in the living rock. Each one of these strange weapons contained an entire barrel of powder, and as it was not possible to vary the aim of these cannon, fifty were made ready, facing various directions from which the enemy might approach.

When the fame of these arms of defense became known to the world the idea was taken up of transporting rocks to summits to serve the same purpose; but it was soon recognized to be impracticable, and the cannon of Malta, bored in solid rock, has passed into history as the sole weapons of the kind ever known.

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Would Extend Non-Partisanship.

Northfield News: The senate, in making amendments to the primary law, has apparently overlooked the fact that the office of railroad and warehouse commissioner is essentially one in which the question of politics should not enter. It would seem to follow, therefore, if we are to have non-partisan nominations at all, that it is just as desirable that railroad and warehouse commissioners should be nominated that way as the judges of our courts. It would be in the public interest were the house to so amend the bill which has been sent to them that in the future it would not be possible for undesirable candidates to be insinuated into vacant positions on this board solely through party influence and under the cloak of a party name.

Political Funerals Coming.

Red Wing Republican: The Washington legislature made plans to attend the funeral of a member who was not dead. By the time the present session is over it will be in good form for the members of the Minnesota legislature to get ready to attend the political funeral of some of their number. It will be held at the next election.

Likes the Idea.

Hutchinson Leader: If the house concurs in the senate amendments to the non-partisan county officers' bill all members of the legislature, as well as all county officers, will in the future be chosen on a non-partisan basis. And, after all, why shouldn't they? As a matter of fact the work of the legislature would be greatly facilitated if partisan politics were removed. Measures would be considered on their merits more, and less with regard to their political effect. It will complete the work done by the primary law of killing off all local political organization and make it necessary for the national political parties to keep up their organization in some new way.

Go the Limit!

Fairmont Sentinel: The legislature cannot carry its campaign for non-partisanizing public officers any too far to please the people. Go to it!

Should Pass House.

Park Rapids Enterprise: The state senate has passed a measure putting members of the legislature among the non-partisan offices of the state together with the county offices. The measure will be fought hard in the house, and may not pass, but it is difficult to find a good reason why it should not. Contests for party supremacy rather than for issues that are of real merit have been too numerous in the past.

Material Progress.

Albert Lea Tribune: With the feature of Bob Dunn's new road bill, which does away with the working out of road taxes, a law, Minnesota will have made material progress in the way of securing good roads. Under the proposed bill the road tax could be materially lessened and the cash judiciously expended, would do more for permanent good roads than under the old system.

Timely Move.

St. Peter Free Press: Bob Dunn's county assessor bill, now pending before the legislature, is a timely move and deserves the support of every member. Under our present system of getting at the value of taxable property the principal aim of the local assessors seems to be, how to keep their own district below that of any other district, and in this rivalry for low taxes the figures put down often are not only out of all proportion to the value of the property assessed, but not infrequently valuable property is left off the tax list altogether. This would be entirely different should the Dunn bill become law.

Pure Politics.

Willow River Farmer: The state senate's new election measure if it becomes a law will be one of the greatest advances in the matter of purifying politics that has happened in this state since the adoption of the Australian ballot system some twenty years ago. It provides for non-partisanship with a big N, county officers and members of the legislature being specifically exempted from the partisan ballot. The house should pass the bill without delay.

England's View of Income Tax.

London News: The fact that all obstacles have been overcome, and the American constitution has been amended to legalize a Federal income tax, is double evidence of the new spirit in the United States. An income tax is clearly an equitable mode of raising money. It is also an instrument for hitting at the tariff. So long as the Federal government was debarred from raising an income tax it had to fall back upon indirect taxation for revenue. The tariff was a revenue necessity, and the trusts saw that it was converted into the trust magnate's luxury. Now that the Federal government has the power to impose an income tax its hands will be free to make a corresponding reduction in the tariff. There can be no doubt that it was the recognition of this double bearing of the income tax which made possible an amendment of the Constitution. The new spirit which is working in the United States has a strength which must be reckoned with.

The Champion Optimist.

Boston Globe: We award the championship for optimism to a resident of one of the rural districts of Scotland.

As the story goes, an old man was sitting on the roof of his house during a flood, watching the waters flow past, when a neighbor, who possessed a boat, rowed across to him.

"Hello, Bill," he said.

"Hello, Sam," replied the other, pleasantly.

"All your fowls washed away this mornin', Bill?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim."

"Apple trees gone, too, eh?"

"Well, they said the crop would be a failure, anyhow."

"I see the river's reached above your windows."

"That's all right, Sam! Them winders needed washin'!"

Getting Even With Justice.

Judge: The prisoner at the bar of the police court was sore over his treatment and could not conceal it wholly.

"If I should express my opinion of this court, your honor," he said, rising from his chair, "would you fine me for contempt?"

"I certainly should!" responded the judge decisively.

"Thank you," bowed the prisoner. "I wish to extend my congratulations to your honor and all those connected with the court for the very fair and impartial trial I have received at your hands."

Then the prisoner sat down and the judge was flabbergasted.

Twenty Years Ago.

From The Herald of this date, 1893.

Simon Clark and George T. Hughes have been selected as representatives from Duluth to Minneapolis at the meeting of the state council of the Royal Arcanum on March 28.

E. R. Johnstone, formerly city editor of the Pioneer Press and lately private secretary to Mayor Wright of St. Paul, has been elected county assessor for Ramsey county.

Henry H. Bell's beautiful home at the corner of Second street and Sixth avenue east was practically destroyed by fire about 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire is supposed to have started from a defective furnace flue or from electric wires. Mr. and Mrs. Bell were in St. Paul with two of the younger children. William Peterson, Gussie Urban and Arthur and Percy Bell were sleeping in the house. Peterson was awakened by the smoke and after getting out the other occupants of the house sent in an alarm to the fire department. The house was then a mass of flames and was completely gutted. The contents are a total loss. Mr. Bell carried insurance of $20,000 on the house and $15,000 on the furniture.

The school teachers met at the high school yesterday bringing contributions of school work from which selections will be made for the display at the world's fair. A very noticeable piece of work was by Adolph Wirth. This is a map of the United States, each state being cut from a piece of wood characteristic of that particular state. The pieces were collected by the teachers and pupils by correspondence and other means. The states are cut out with the saw and neatly fitted together.

The Mesaba Chief Iron company held a meeting yesterday and elected J. C. Mishler, Clinton Markell, A. T. Crossley, John Mallman and S. H. Moer as directors.

H. L. Holden has been appointed dock agent for the Duluth and Iron Range road at Two Harbors.

Mrs. Lizzie Lambert of Bathe, Me., who has been visiting Capt. and Mrs. J. W. Miller, has returned home.

Where the Old Cans Go.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Goodness gracious!" exclaims the housewife, "I wonder what becomes of all the tin cans that are thrown away." Never fear, dear madam, they are not lost, nor does one of them go to waste.

A friend of mine who is a well-known business man is thoroughly acquainted with the tin can from its infancy to the day of its doom. "Well, what does become of all these cans?" I asked the authority.

"They are," he replied, "reincarnated, so to speak, and become, in fact, a new tin can, but mostly a window weight." Then he explained how all the old tin cans are gathered up and hurled into a furnace, and how the thin veneer of tin, which is merely the outer covering, is separated as a melted product from the steel which forms the real basis for the can. The tin is far more valuable than the steel, and it is used over and over again for covering cans. The steel part, when melted, becomes a solid chunk; in fact, the solidest chunk in the whole steel family. Window weights must be small, but hefty; hence the use of steel from tin cans.

If you don't believe the tin can industry is big and thriving, drop a note to Daniel G. Reid or Judge Moore. They are the stepfathers of the tin can of commerce, having adopted most of the plants for making them. Their foster child is a healthy infant, but not quite so fat as the common shareholder would like.

"Chew Upon This."

Walter Prichard Eaton in the American Magazine: A good deal is said from time to time about an actor living his part.

Once a great actor as Brutus in "Julius Caesar" cried to a second great actor, as Cassius:

"Still then, my noble friend, chew upon this,"

and pressed a plug of tobacco into his palm. Sarah Bernhardt, on a wager, once played a tearful and stirring scene in an American theater, reciting instead of the words of the play an impromptu tirade against American hotels, and the audience—all save a few who could understand her rapid-fire French—were duly carried away. It is even recorded that many women wept. Sarah was most assuredly not "living the life" of her stage character then, yet her acting remained effective, and no one has yet denied that she knows how to act.

Feeling "Fudgy," Thank You.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Boston has turned loose a new word.

It is "fudgy."

Fudgy means that everything is as it should be. It means good team work. When a motor car is working harmoniously it is fudgy.

It seems to be a silly word with a good meaning.

So don't be surprised when you ask your friend how he is feeling and he replies:

"Fine and fudgy."

DIGGING FOR WOODCHUCKS.

"Digging for woodchucks" is about as accurate a description as one could give of the work being done in the legislature at present on the bill for a public utilities commission. And the probabilities are that by the time the various measures submitted have been analyzed by the committees in the house and senate and committee bills drafted to embody the best features of these earlier measures, there will not be a woodchuck left in the final provisions.

One serious objection made to the proposals at first advanced for a public utilities commission was that they provided for rather strict state regulation of municipally owned properties. It was claimed that city rights were being made to suffer, and that city interests would not be adequately protected if such provisions were made.

That objection has been removed by the limitation of the proposed commission's authority over municipally owned business to the enforcement of uniform systems of accounting and similar matters. The questions of actual operation, financing and the like are left to the cities to determine.

One thing is certain: The principle of state power over public service corporations is gaining force and friends every day. The state not only has greater funds and resources to be used in securing information and enforcing orders than can be commanded by cities or counties, but it can maintain a corps of well-informed men who understand the problems of public service and have at their command a vast amount of data and incidents and records for comparative and constructive purposes. In the states where the utilities commission plan has been put into operation it has brought splendid results.

No state in the Union has more need of corporate regulation than has Minnesota. The legislators are working hard to frame a bill that will protect municipal rights, and at the same time give the state body sufficient power to make it effective. There is every reason to believe that a practical and satisfactory bill will yet be brought to light and passed.

Aha! The horrible truth is out at last! President Wilson abhors both ice water and wine, therefore he must be in the pay and employment of the Buttermilk trust.

FOR NON-PARTISANSHIP.

Reports from St. Paul indicate that the senate's joke on the opponents of the bill providing for non-partisan election of county officers is not to be indorsed in the house. When the bill was in the senate some of the opposition tacked onto it an amendment extending its terms to the members of the legislature. On the vote in the senate the bill was passed with that amendment, to the surprise and chagrin of the opponents of the measure.

There really is no reason why the members of the state legislature should not be elected on no-party lines, but such a step is a little in advance of the general thought at present, and perhaps it is asking too much of the house to indorse such a proposition now. It will come in time, undoubtedly, and it would be a matter for congratulation if Minnesota could take the lead in making its legislature popular instead of partisan. But at present the idea has taken the legislators by surprise, and it is only natural that they should be hesitant about adopting it.

A suggestion by the Northfield News, however, is thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of the non-partisan bill, and the house would do well to consider it in its deliberations. It is that the election of the members of the state railroad and warehouse commission be placed on a non-partisan basis. The News argues that the character of this commission is so closely allied to that of the judiciary that the members should be freed from political affiliations as far as possible.

The idea is worth serious consideration, at least, and perhaps the house would do well to amend the senate bill so as to make it cover the members of that commission. Aside from the elimination of party influence in their election, the removal of that part of the state government from the partisan field would operate to cut down railroad influence in party politics, because no party could demand financial help on the strength of its platform declarations regarding transportation affairs, since it would have no means of carrying out those declarations if it won at the polls.

To put the non-partisan stamp on the railroad and warehouse commission would be to make every member of that commission stand on his own feet, and bear individually the responsibility for his official acts. But most of all, it would help materially to clear the political atmosphere of the state by making ability and merit instead of party regularity the basis of public service.

Every time there is found to be something in the air, the Britons jump at the conclusion that it must be a German airship.

NO JOB FOR BRANDEIS.

Once more the political prognosticators are wrong, and Louis D. Brandeis is left out of the list of Federal office holders. From attorney general to no job at all is quite a change, but that is the gamut Mr. Brandeis has run in the prophetic mind in the last few weeks, with brief stopovers at the solicitor generalship and a diplomatic post.

Fiendish glee is being exhibited by the carping class of critics in the failure of President Wilson to land something for Brandeis. They charge that corporation influence kept him out of the cabinet and likewise out of the department of justice in general. They claim that corporation influence kept him out of any job at all under the Wilson administration. And they are doing their best to convince themselves and everybody else that the elimination of Brandeis is but a step in a Wilson program to turn the whole country over to the capitalistic class to do with as it wishes.

Now as a matter of fact, the probabilities are that there is just one man who is responsible for Brandeis' failure to land in the cabinet or near it, and that one man is Brandeis himself. And the reason for his absence from the councils of the nation is more than likely due to the intention of the president to insure harmony in his official family. Brandeis is a radical of the radicals. He is an able lawyer. He is an exceptionally able lawyer. But he is not the type of man with whom it is easy to work. He has done much for those whom he found it in his power to assist. But he is not fitted for team work.

That, we believe, is the secret of Brandeis' being left out of official positions by President Wilson. The president has left the way open for the employment of Brandeis' services as counsel, and there can be no question that his services in that capacity will be invaluable. But there can equally be no question that as a teammate of Bryan, McReynolds, McAdoo, Daniels and others in the cabinet, Brandeis would have been out of place.

But maybe that Washington police department was just jealous of the attention the New York outfit has been getting.

GEN. WOOD'S RETENTION.

By the retention of Gen. Leonard Wood as chief of staff of the army, the Wilson administration has once more served notice on the country that politics as such is to have as little as possible to do with the determination of matters of public interest and well being.

Gen. Wood's career as head of the army has been more or less stormy, owing to the efforts of politicians to discredit the general and have him ousted from office, either by executive action or through legislative operation. There was first the very bitter criticism of the means by which Wood was raised to his position. President Roosevelt's course in this was bitterly assailed, and President Taft was attacked for not nullifying Roosevelt's action as soon as opportunity offered.

But whatever may be said of the way in which the position was given to him, Gen. Wood has distinctly made good as chief of staff. He has reorganized the service in some particulars, and every change he has made has been in the direction of economy and efficiency. At least there can be no denying that he has justified confidence in his administration of army affairs.

In the ordinary course of events, the chief of staff holds office for four years. It would have been easy for President Wilson, through his secretary of war, to have brought about a change with the incoming administration. And indeed that was expected and demanded in some quarters. But the president seems to have been convinced that Wood's record entitled him to the completion of his natural term in office, and he is to have that privilege. Meanwhile there is no reason to doubt that his able army administration will continue, if the politicians can be kept from bringing about legislation that will oust him.

Somehow it seem as if there's always just a little more snow.

Austria is getting positively foolhardy, if she really is daring to interfere in that Balkan-Turkish war.

Mexicans are charging that the latest revolution was financed by Americans. Now who would have thought there was money enough in it for anybody to justify that idea?

WHY NOT WAIT FOR A NEW PAVILION?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice the city engineer, after stating the timbers of the rustic bridge over Lester river were in a good state of preservation, recommends the removal of the pavilion top of the bridge. I wonder why? With the pavilion removed there is, since the recent burning of the large hall, not a place for the pleasure seekers to go for shelter in case of a storm coming up, and while this is not by any means stormproof it is much better than no shelter, and, if safe, it seems to me it should be allowed to remain until there was something to take its place.

In view of this and some other developments it looks to a casual observer as though some busybody was prodding the park board.

LESTER PARKER.

Duluth, March 11.

Duluth and the Northwest

Editorial in the Crookston Times.

Duluth has started a publicity campaign that indicates a healthy, progressive spirit, and it will result in a great deal of good to that city and to the great Northwest, because every portion of a territory is benefited to a certain extent by the prosperity of any section of it.

Duluth is a more important center than has been generally realized. It is a great inland port, and has the advantage of water rates. It not only has that advantage but has provided facilities which make the advantages available to the entire Northwest. It is a great wheat market because of the water route, and the water route forces the coal rates down, another direct benefit to the entire Northwest.

Duluth has had a great struggle in gaining the prestige she now enjoys, and, indicating the spirit of progress with which her people are impregnated, not content with resting on laurels won, has started out on a vigorous campaign to diffuse important facts about Duluth.

There is an object lesson in the spirit manifested by Duluth, one which is worthy of emulation by citizens of every city and village in the great Northwest. Duluth is striving to get acquainted, and in co-operative spirit interesting herself in the Northwest becoming more interested in Duluth. Her advertising campaign will help Duluth and it will help the section she is trying to reach, because a better mutual understanding, a more thorough conception of the fact that closer relations are mutually beneficial will result in working together all along the line, and eliminating cross purpose efforts.

Duluth is especially important to the Northwest in providing a market for Northwestern farm products. A city of 100,000 people, and the big interests centered there, if friendly, means a powerful friend, and Duluth is making every effort to show her friendship.

The spirit displayed in this new move is commendable. It will bring splendid returns to Duluth, and it will also benefit the territory that is being stirred up. Everyone admires the city that goes after things, and goes after them, not in a greedy way to reap all the benefits, impelled by selfishness, but that frankly endeavors to cultivate a wider acquaintance for the purpose of serving as well as being served.

In a city, as in an individual, the exhibition of worthy ambition is admired. There is a fascination about it that attracts people, makes them stop and think, and irresistibly draws them.

Everyone in the Northwest will feel more or less of a personal interest in Duluth's ambitions, and will wish to see the efforts made for a closer relationship with the vast territory realized beyond the expectations of the public-spirited prime movers—the live membership of the Duluth Commercial club.

The Good Citizen.

The Outlook: Many a man plumes himself on being a good citizen today who is in reality a hopelessly bad one—hopelessly so because he thinks himself in no need of change. To be a good citizen requires two essential qualities—knowledge and action. An ignorant citizen is one of the dangers of a republic. An inert citizen is an equal peril to democracy. To know and to act are not always simple and easy duties. But they are fundamental and a free country demands them from its people, as the very conditions of its liberty and its existence.

The United States is suffering today because its so-called good citizens have been content to be ignorant and inert for years. They have been too busy with their own individual gains and schemes either to know about public affairs or to take any action beyond that of dropping a vote in a box once or twice a year. Consequently, when a crisis comes, they understand little or nothing of the persons behind it. They blame Socialism as the promoter of all strife, and do not study out what has promoted Socialism itself. They object to having their politics disturbed, and do not see that undisturbed politics must inevitably end in an earthquake.

Each mistake, realized and corrected, takes the citizen just that much further ahead in value as a member of a self-governing community. The Yankee genius for experiment has resulted always in many unsuccessful experiments before the successful result has been reached in any line. But no one can deny that Yankee methods work out surprising progress in invention and in business. The idea of removing Yankee politics from the sphere of experiment and making them secure and sacred is not the idea of the really good, the actively good, citizen. There is, indeed, nothing sacred from the good citizen, in the way of government, because he ought to make the government and work it. That is his business as a citizen—just as much as looking after his home and family is his business as a man.

New Tag to an Old Fable.

Boston Transcript: Young Tony of the Italian quarter had been greatly interested in the teacher's story of the fox and the grapes. Arriving home from school he repeated it in his excited, broken English to the family, following the teacher's version closely until he reached the climax. Tony's conclusion was this:

"De olda fox he say, 'Da grape no good, anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta da banan.'"

Getting Rid of Cigarette Habit

The American Magazine has been offering prizes for the best letters on "Overcoming Bad Habits." The following letter from a man who cured himself of the cigarette habit won third prize.

It was at the age of 6 that I first began to smoke cigarettes.

At the age of 15 they sent me away to school. At 18 I went to college. Freed of all home ties and restraint, I smoked to my heart's content. At 25 I was a nervous wreck. The doctors thumped me over the heart and shook their heads gravely. I had tobacco heart, they told me, and my only hope of evading a premature grave was to stop smoking absolutely.

I had figured that I smoked from fifty to sixty a day. I resolved to cut this number down. I did manage to get along with about half that number, but below that I could not go.

Then one day I took stock of myself. Life was sweet and I had no desire to die. I resolved to master the cigarette habit or die in the attempt. If I didn't, I was going to die anyway. Once more I threw away my tobacco and papers. And this time I did not retrieve them. Time after time I returned to the place where I knew they lay just over the hedge fence, but each time I managed to control myself and walk away from the spot. That first night was one crescendo of horror. I tossed restlessly upon my bed. I thought of the pleasure which one puff would give me. Again and again I sat upon the edge of my couch, fighting against the desire to get up and search my pockets for 'scrapings' enough to roll just one cigarette. How I kept from doing so is more than I know. Morning found me gaunt and hollow-eyed. The craving had me in its grip. Breakfast sickened me because I hadn't braced my stomach to receive it with my morning cigarette. I ate no dinner and no supper. Water alone would stay down.

This is only a portion of the torment that I suffered for weeks. They seemed like ages to me. The smell of a cigarette would drive me frantic. Cigars and pipe had never appealed to me before. Now, I would have almost parted with life itself to have dared to smoke one. My nights were one long series of tossings and tumblings upon my bed, dropping off into dozings only to awaken because of the nightmares which pursued me. And in each of them the central figure was a cigarette. By daytime I was grouchy and irritable. Harsh words came more readily to my lips than kind. I almost hated myself. What my friends and relatives must have endured then only the love for one of your own blood could have borne.

And then one day the habit left me—not gradually, for the night before, I can recall, I had one of my hardest battles against getting up, casting all the ground that I had won behind me, and making and smoking a cigarette, even though my life should pay forfeit. The next morning I was surprised to find that I had slept well and that I was undergoing a craving which I had not experienced in years. To my astonishment I discovered that I wanted breakfast. And after the meal I did not crave a cigarette. I have never craved one since. I can sit by and watch others smoke them without the least desire to indulge myself. My taste for cigarettes has been broken, but not for worlds would I go again through the purgatory into which my battle with the little thin paper rolls of tobacco cast me.

The Meat Supply

In the recently published year book of a leading meat packing concern in Chicago is a sensible suggestion for increasing the meat supply that should arrest the attention of lawmakers in all of the states. It is not a new suggestion, but is now put forward as an opportune time.

By far too many meat animals in this country are slaughtered when calves in order to supply the demand for veal. The United States is now the greatest veal consuming country in the world. In 1911, there were slaughtered 8,000,000 calves which averaged in weight 70 pounds each. Says the year book:

"If they had been allowed to live one year they would have averaged 600 pounds of good beef and would have given to the country 4,800,000,000 pounds of beef instead of only 560,000,000 pounds of meat. According to a conservative estimate, this four billion odd pounds would furnish a city of 350,000 people with its total meat supply for over fifty years. This gives some idea of the country's immediate loss of beef supply by the slaughter of calves."

Is there any real need for this waste of beef, amounting to over four billion pounds a year? Must people eat baby beef, even if they cause thereby an enormous shrinkage in the possible meat supply of the country? If the market remains free to the operation of the law of supply and demand, there may be no help for it. Americans are extravagant in their expenditure, and their standard of living, so far as meat is concerned, has always been high owing to the comparative cheapness of American beef in the older days of the free public lands. The only substantial check that can now be given to the consumption of veal, evidently, is to prohibit by law the slaughter of the animals before they have reached a certain age. Protect calves by law just as the law safeguards animals and game in the wild state.

Argentina long ago saw the danger of destroying the basis of her great meat export trade, and laws were enacted in that country making it a criminal offense to slaughter female calves or heifers or cows under six years of age. It is stated that "The results have been altogether beneficial. Veal and baby beef are still found on the menus in South America. In fact, there is a greater abundance of those meats because the law has now been in effect long enough to produce two or three times as many calves as there were formerly."

Laws of a similar character could be enacted by our states which would meet any constitutional objection; and once the present excessive slaughter of calves was checked, the country's meat supply would increase and prices would fall to a more reasonable level. The great political obstacle, of course, would be the cattle owners in the chief beef-producing states. They find profit in veal.

A Scotch Proposal.

New York Evening Post: Andrew Carnegie tells this story of a unique proposal of marriage. A Scotch beadle was very much in love, and was also extremely bashful. He could not make up his mind to ask the woman for her heart and hand in the ordinary manner. He made several attempts, but always failed. One day he asked her to go for a walk, and led the way to the churchyard. There, finding the lot where his ancestors lay, he pointed to the headstone and said: "All my folks are buried here, Jean. Wadn't you like to be laid away here wi' 'em some day?"

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Key Pittman, the new junior senator from Nevada and grandnephew of Francis Scott Key, the song writer, has lived more Alaskan adventures than one would find in a couple of Rex Beach novels. In fact, he was the leading legal counsel for the miners in their fight against a big political conspiracy to rob them, as set forth in "The Spoilers." And practicing law in the gold country in those days required the hardihood of a dozen Pilgrim Fathers, combined with the resourcefulness of a William J. Burns.

But before he set up to practice his profession at Nome, Pittman hit the Skagway trail for the Klondike and worked as a common miner for two years. He reached the Klondike with nothing but a slightly worn dime in his pocket.

Imagine yourself a young man from a fine old Southern family with only 10 cents in your pocket in a country where drinks sold for a dollar each!

A man offered him $20 a cord for wood. All he had to do was to go up on the hillside with an ax, cut the wood and tote it in. The man would pay him cash.

Pittman had never before gone in for manual labor, but it was the only way he saw to prevent himself from being a drug on the market. He and his partner, one Charles Greene, now of Pittsburg, took the contract. They got the use of a couple of axes and a large, roomy sledge and went out into the hills.

Greene said he would handle the first load. He mounted the sledge and Pittman shoved him off. For the first second or two he got along nicely. Then he approached a curve in the trail, a mile or so from his starting point. The next half second found him buried, along with the sledge full of wood, in a ten-foot bank of snow. He managed to dig his way out barely in time to avoid suffocation, and went on to their rude cabin. When Pittman got there he found his partner in the midst of cooking dinner, but in such bad humor that he didn't dare to laugh or even show so much as a twinkle in his eye over the incident of the sledge in the snowbank.

"Dinner is ready," announced Greene savagely, after he had finished cooking the pork and beans.

They ate in silence. When they were through they lighted their pipes and smoked for a long time, still without either saying a word. Pittman would have pawned his soul for a good laugh, but he was afraid his partner would kill him in cold blood.

At last Greene broke the silence. He said:

"You can bring down the next load."

When he struck Nome, Pittman noticed a valuable strip of vacant land abutting the main street and running back to the beach. United States soldiers, who were the only visible evidence of law, guarded that land, on the theory that it was all beach. Even at night, a sentinel paced back and forth to prevent anybody from settling on it. Pittman found that after allowing sixty feet for the beach at high tide, as required by law, there was still a strip forty feet deep, abutting the street. He asked for permission to take squatter's rights to some of this, but was refused. Then he got the use of a room in the rear of a saloon near by and built himself a little cabin. When the sentinel was at the other end of the strip, Pittman and some of his friends moved his cabin onto the lot he wanted. On the front of the cabin was a sign which read: "Key Pittman, Attorney at Law." It was his office.

The sentinel had taken a drink or two, as it happened, and when he came along and saw Pittman's cabin where none had been only a few minutes previous, he wondered if he really saw it or just thought he did. He inquired of several bystanders and they assured him that there was really a cabin there, just as he suspected. The sentinel said he had authority only to prevent anybody from building there, but not to chase buildings off.

The next day the lieutenant in command of the United States soldiers sent for Pittman. Pittman sent word back that he would be in his office all day and would be glad to see him there. The affair was adjusted amicably after a time and Pittman held his lot.

In a short time all the rest of that side of the street was completely "built up."

Then there was the case of the big mining company which claimed to have rights to certain lands near the beach where hundreds of miners had found there was gold to be had only three or four feet beneath the surface. These miners came to Pittman to see what could be done. He told them that legally the mining company had it on them, but for them to follow his directions and he would show them something funny.

All refused to keep off the beach and were arrested—some 500 of them—and taken to the army headquarters. Now, 500 prisoners, eating three meals a day, can make themselves an expensive luxury in a country where a sandwich brings as high as $2.50. After they had had three meals, the lieutenant in command told them he would let them out if they would promise to keep off the beach. They refused to promise. Then he tried to let them escape, but they neglected to escape; instead, Pittman hustled around and got about 100 more to go and "give themselves up." At the end of three days the prisoners were all discharged, and Key Pittman's law practice was established.

Senator Pittman is 40 years old, tall, slender, with a springy step, smooth face and a romantic backward sweep to his hair. He was born in Vicksburg, Miss., attended college in Tennessee, and was practicing law in the state of Washington when he set out for the Klondike.

When a youngster, Pittman did not attend school, but had a private tutor, which circumstance is mentioned simply to show that not all the boys raised in that exclusive fashion turn out the way they do in the comic pictures.

Cannon Bored in Solid Rock.

Harper's Weekly: When the island of Malta was under the rule of the Knights of St. John they defended their fortifications with cannon bored in the living rock. Each one of these strange weapons contained an entire barrel of powder, and as it was not possible to vary the aim of these cannon, fifty were made ready, facing various directions from which the enemy might approach.

When the fame of these arms of defense became known to the world the idea was taken up of transporting rocks to summits to serve the same purpose; but it was soon recognized to be impracticable, and the cannon of Malta, bored in solid rock, has passed into history as the solo weapons of the kind ever known.

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Would Extend Non-Partisanship.

Northfield News: The senate, in making amendments to the primary law, has apparently overlooked the fact that the office of railroad and warehouse commissioner is essentially one in which the question of politics should not enter. It would seem to follow, therefore, if we are to have non-partisan nominations at all, that it is just as desirable that railroad and warehouse commissioners should be nominated that way as the judges of our courts. It would be in the public interest were the house to so amend the bill which has been sent to them that in the future it would not be possible for undesirable candidates to be insinuated into vacant positions on this board solely through party influence and under the cloak of a party name.

Political Funerals Coming.

Red Wing Republican: The Washington legislature made plans to attend the funeral of a member who was not dead. By the time the present session is over it will be in good form for the members of the Minnesota legislature to get ready to attend the political funeral of some of their number. It will be held at the next election.

Likes the Idea.

Hutchinson Leader: If the house concurs in the senate amendments to the non-partisan county officers' bill all members of the legislature, as well as all county officers, will in the future be chosen on a non-partisan basis. And, after all, why shouldn't they? As a matter of fact the work of the legislature would be greatly facilitated if partisan politics were removed. Measures would be considered on their merits more, and less with regard to their political effect. It will complete the work done by the primary law of killing off all local political organization and make it necessary for the national political parties to keep up their organization in some new way.

Go the Limit!

Fairmont Sentinel: The legislature cannot carry its campaign for non-partisanizing public officers any too far to please the people. Go to it!

Should Pass House.

Park Rapids Enterprise. The state senate has passed a measure putting members of the legislature among the non-partisan offices of the state together with the county offices. The measure will be fought hard in the house, and may not pass, but it is difficult to find a good reason why it should not. Contests for party supremacy rather than for issues that are of real merit have been too numerous in the past.

Material Progress.

Albert Lea Tribune: With the feature of Bob Dunn's new road bill, which does away with the working out of road taxes, a law, Minnesota will have made material progress in the way of securing good roads. Under the proposed bill the road tax could be materially lessened and the cash judiciously expended, would do more for permanent good roads than under the old system.

Timely Move.

St. Peter Free Press: Bob Dunn's county assessor bill, now pending before the legislature, is a timely move and deserves the support of every member. Under our present system of getting at the value of taxable property the principal aim of the local assessors seems to be, how to keep their own district below that of any other district, and in this rivalry for low taxes the figures put down often are not only out of all proportion to the value of the property assessed, but not infrequently valuable property is left off the tax list altogether. This would be entirely different should the Dunn bill become law.

Pure Politics.

Willow River Farmer: The state senate's new election measure if it becomes a law will be one of the greatest advances in the matter of purifying politics that has happened in this state since the adoption of the Australian ballot system some twenty years ago. It provides for non-partisanship with a big N, county officers and members of the legislature being specifically exempted from the partisan ballot. The house should pass the bill without delay.

England's View of Income Tax.

London News: The fact that all obstacles have been overcome, and the American constitution has been amended to legalize a Federal income tax, is double evidence of the new spirit in the United States. An income tax is clearly an equitable mode of raising money. It is also an instrument for hitting at the tariff. So long as the Federal government was debarred from raising an income tax it had to fall back upon indirect taxation for revenue. The tariff was a revenue necessity, and the trusts saw that it was converted into the trust magnate's luxury. Now that the Federal government has the power to impose an income tax its hands will be free to make a corresponding reduction in the tariff. There can be no doubt that it was the recognition of this double bearing of the income tax which made possible an amendment of the Constitution. The new spirit which is working in the United States has a strength which must be reckoned with.

The Champion Optimist.

Boston Globe: We award the championship for optimism to a resident of one of the rural districts of Scotland.

As the story goes, an old man was sitting on the roof of his house during a flood, watching the waters flow past, when a neighbor, who possessed a boat, rowed across to him.

"Hello, Bill," he said.

"Hello, Sam," replied the other, pleasantly.

"All your fowls washed away this mornin', Bill?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim."

"Apple trees gone, too, eh?"

"Well, they said the crop would be a failure, anyhow."

"I see the river's reached above your windows."

"That's all right, Sam! Them winders needed washin'!"

Getting Even With Justice.

Judge: The prisoner at the bar of the police court was sore over his treatment and could not conceal it wholly.

"If I should express my opinion of this court, your honor," he said, rising from his chair, "would you fine me for contempt?"

"I certainly should!" responded the judge decisively.

"Thank you," bowed the prisoner. "I wish to extend my congratulations to your honor and all those connected with the court for the very fair and impartial trial I have received at your hands."

Then the prisoner sat down and the judge was flabbergasted.

Twenty Years Ago

From The Herald of this date, 1893.

Simon Clark and George T. Hughes have been selected as representatives from Duluth to Minneapolis at the meeting of the state council of the Royal Arcanum on March 28.

E. R. Johnstone, formerly city editor of the Pioneer Press and lately private secretary to Mayor Wright of St. Paul, has been elected county assessor for Ramsey county.

Henry H. Bell's beautiful home at the corner of Second street and Sixth avenue east was practically destroyed by fire about 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire is supposed to have started from a defective furnace flue or from electric wires. Mr. and Mrs. Bell were in St. Paul with two of the younger children. William Peterson, Gussie Urban and Arthur and Percy Bell were sleeping in the house. Peterson was awakened by the smoke and after getting out the other occupants of the house sent in an alarm to the fire department. The house was then a mass of flames and was completely gutted. The contents are a total loss. Mr. Bell carried insurance of $20,000 on the house and $15,000 on the furniture.

The school teachers met at the high school yesterday bringing contributions of school work from which selections will be made for the display at the world's fair. A very noticeable piece of work was by Adolph Wirth. This is a map of the United States, each state being cut from a piece of wood characteristic of that particular state. The pieces were collected by the teachers and pupils by correspondence and other means. The states are cut out with the saw and neatly fitted together.

The Mesaba Chief Iron company held a meeting yesterday and elected J. C. Mishler, Clinton Markell, A. T. Crossley, John Mallman and S. H. Moer as directors.

H. L. Holden has been appointed dock agent for the Duluth and Iron Range road at Two Harbors.

Mrs. Lizzie Lambert of Bathe, Me., who has been visiting Capt. and Mrs. J. W. Miller, has returned home.

Mrs. McCartney of Chicago, formerly Miss Kittie L. Robinson of Duluth, is in the city calling on old friends.

Where the Old Cans Go.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Goodness gracious!" exclaims the housewife, "I wonder what becomes of all the tin cans that are thrown away." Never fear, dear madam, they are not lost, nor does one of them go to waste.

A friend of mine who is a well-known business man is thoroughly acquainted with the tin can from its infancy to the day of its doom. "Well, what does become of all these cans?" I asked the authority.

"They are," he replied, "reincarnated, so to speak, and become, in fact, a new tin can, but mostly a window weight." Then he explained how all the old tin cans are gathered up and hurled into a furnace, and how the thin veneer of tin, which is merely the outer covering, is separated as a melted product from the steel which forms the real basis for the can. The tin is far more valuable than the steel, and it is used over and over again for covering cans. The steel part, when melted, becomes a solid chunk; in fact, the soldest chunk in the whole steel family. Window weights must be small, but hefty; hence the use of steel from tin cans.

If you don't believe the tin can industry is big and thriving, drop a note to Daniel G. Reid or Judge Moore. They are the stepfathers of the tin can of commerce, having adopted most of the plants for making them. Their foster child is a healthy infant, but not quite so fat as the common shareholder would like.

"Chew Upon This."

Walter Prichard Eaton in the American Magazine: A good deal is said from time to time about an actor living his part.

Once a great actor as Brutus in "Julius Caesar" cried to a second great actor, as Cassius:

"Till then, my noble friend, chew upon this."

and pressed a plug of tobacco into his palm. Sarah Bernhardt, on a wager, once played a tearful and stirring scene in an American theater, reciting instead of the words of the play an impromptu tirade against American hotels, and the audience—all save a few who could understand her rapid-fire French—were duly carried away. It is even recorded that many women wept. Sarah was most assuredly not "living the life" of her stage character then, yet her acting remained effective, and no one has yet denied that she knows how to act.

Feeling "Fudgy," Thank You.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Boston has turned loose a new word.

It is "fudgy."

Fudgy means that everything is as it should be. It means good team work. When a motor car is working harmoniously it is fudgy.

It seems to be a silly word with a good meaning.

So don't be surprised when you ask your friend how he is feeling and he replies:

"Fine and fudgy."

TO ASSIST IN SOCIAL SURVEYS

Former Minnesotan Engaged By the Russell Sage Foundation.

New York, March 12.—Zenas L. Potter, formerly of Minneapolis, has just been engaged to take up work with the department of surveys and exhibits of the Russell Sage foundation. The work of this department, which was organized last October, is to assist cities throughout the United States in conducting studies of social and living conditions within their border.

These social surveys as they are called, are made for the purpose of planning, with knowledge aforehand, for the improvement of conditions and for general community advance.

Mr. Potter is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, where he specialized in government problems, followed by a year's graduate work at Columbia in economics and social economy, where he received the Toppen prize for the best work in constitutional law. For two years after leaving Columbia he was field secretary of the New York child labor committee, investigating work conditions of children in the state, and in 1912 he directed the cannery investigation for the New York state factory investigating commission. The findings of this investigation have been used during the winter and are still being used in the campaign for better laws regulating child labor conditions in New York state. Mr. Potter assisted also in the Syracuse preliminary survey and in the exhibit held in connection with the Syracuse know-your-city-week.

Dr. Judd Not Recommended.

Judd of Rochester, Minn., had been recommended for his position as reported. Dr. Westbrook has resigned that he might accept the presidency of the University of British Columbia, Vancouver.

Prolongation of Life.

Nearly everybody is interested in prolonging his own life, and an increasing number each year are taking the rational and more advanced view of the matter, which discloses the fact that any great increase in life tenure is not a matter which can be brought about within one or even two generations. I have frequently said in this column, that the day of successful individualism is past; and, although it is perfectly right and justifiable for every one to work toward the end of prolonging his individual life, the preservation of health and the development of full efficiency is of much greater importance.

The general increase of longevity is a matter in which all should be interested, and it is, first of all, a question of eugenics; the new science which deals with the proper mating of the sexes, and permits only the fit to become parents. After this, it becomes largely a question of hygiene; for if all babies born were healthy and possessed of a sound mental as well as physical heredity, strict observance of the rules of hygiene would insure a full tenure of life to all. The time is not yet ripe for the strict application of the science of eugenics to the human race, but the practice of hygiene is available to all, and the road is made easy by the thousands of willing helpers who are constantly pointing the way, by word of mouth, by writing, and by illustration.

So, until public thought and sentiment advances to the point where the practice of eugenics is practicable, let us bend all our energies to the spread of the gospel and practice of hygiene. In the first place let us see that mothers are properly cared for during the entire year of each birth at least; and in this way we will give the new arrival the best possible chance to be well nourished at birth, and for its first very important six months of life. The mother should have instruction in the simple requirements of hygiene; but teaching of hygiene to parents is often extremely difficult where the foundation has not been laid in youth. The ordinary word of mouth instruction has been found to be more often than otherwise, a waste of breath.

A practical method of instruction has, however, been found in the establishment of social centers, and the employment of free dispensary clinics with visiting nurses. Besides these activities each school might well be made a social center in the evenings, where lectures, with "movies" for illustration and to hold interest could be given once or twice each week. The medical profession would gladly give its time and energy to any project but it is too much to expect them to look after details and fight for the reform. The above plan has been tried in some places, and has been productive of much good; but the influence on the home, exerted by children of school age who are properly instructed in hygiene, and the influence on the whole community of systematic medical school inspection, especially when reinforced with a school nurse, have been found to be of much greater value in the spread of hygiene than all the lectures, writing or picture shows which have ever been devised. When the child arrives at school age, the state supervises the corresponding physical development for the six or seven years. At the age of 14, a very critical age, the supervision of the state ceases; and it is only where the instruction and supervision have been thorough, and the parental influence of the best, that such a child has a chance to develop into a useful citizen. For the pitfalls are many which constantly yawn for the unexperienced child between the ages of 14 and 20.

The teaching to children of sex hygiene and eugenics, before they arrive at the age of puberty is an important question, so far as the health and longevity of the race is concerned; and this part of the subject will be discussed in tomorrow's paper. For today, I would only add that a child well grounded in hygiene can hardly help but develop into an adult who will value prevention rather than cure in all cases where disease is concerned; and it is safe to predict that the time is not far distant when physicians will spend most of their time and energy in instructing their patients how to keep well. It will then be looked upon as a disgrace, instead of a misfortune, to be sick, and the responsibility will rest on the shoulders of the patient first, and then his physician. Then will also come the days of increased longevity, and the centenarian will not be a curiosity, but a person to be respected and sought after, because of his wisdom and long experience.

The general practice of hygiene in our own generation will also tend to lengthen the lives of those who are already adults, and will certainly make life more happy and more efficient.

Questions and Answers.

Obstinate Constipation.

R. C. H. writes: In obstinate constipation what is generally the fundamental trouble? Is it a torpid liver, or is it a weak stomach? I eat lots of fruit, coarse vegetables, and drink large quantities of water; but all to little or no avail. Would be thankful for any suggestion you may give me.

REPLY.

The fundamental causes of the majority of cases of constipation are: first, the continuous eating of a too concentrated diet; and, second, careless habits of life, both in regard to regularity and in the taking of too little exercise. Torpid liver is produced from constipation rather than constipation from torpid liver. If you mean by "weak stomach" one with poor innervation, the same condition no doubt is operative in the intestine, and will be a factor in the production of constipation; otherwise weak stomach has little to do with the condition. Try eating bran bread or Marion Harland's bread, the receipt for making which has been published in this column at least twice. Exercise every day in the fresh air, at something which will give play to the abdominal and back muscles. Adopt regular habits in every respect, and it may be necessary, in the establishment of these habits to take a dose of some laxative or cathartic, but these should be dispensed with as soon as possible; for when continued, they only tend to make matters worse. Three or four grains of phenolphthalein, taken at bedtime, will serve as a good cathartic, usually operating before bedtime the following day, and once daily for three or four succeeding days.

Main reliance must, however, be placed on the diet, and one dose of cathartic should be all that is used.

Winter Itch.

K. L. writes: What is winter itch? Is it easily curable and what is the remedy?

REPLY.

Winter itch, so called, is a condition where the skin is becoming dried out, on account of the dryness of the atmosphere in the house. This is becoming a common complaint during the winter months by those who live in steam heated apartments, or those heated with hot air furnaces. It is caused from a lack of humidity in the air; therefore, the remedy is to increase the humidity by the evaporation of water. The proper degree of humidity for living apartments is about 65 per cent, and should never run below 50.

PAVEMENT FOR POINT

Property Owners Decide to Improve Minnesota Avenue This Year.

Sewer in By June 1—Concrete Pavement Is Favored.

At a meeting of the Park Point Improvement club last evening at the Park Point mission on Twenty-eighth street, the proposition to pave Minnesota avenue on Park Point this summer was given favorable consideration. It was the sense of the property owners who turned out in good numbers that the improvement should not be delayed any longer than possible and that it should be started this summer.

It was decided that as soon as the necessary preliminaries could be attended to petitions would be prepared and presented to the council. The contract for the laying of sewers along this thoroughfare will be finished by June 1, it is expected, and the Park Pointers hope to have arrangements ready for the paving of the street at that time.

A concrete pavement, such as now in use on Vista street at the East end, was favored by the property owners. John Wilson, city engineer, who was present at the meeting, stated that the cost for a 40-ft. pavement would be about $134 for every 40-ft. lot benefited. Mr. Wilson favored the concrete for a material.

The Park Pointers are expected to press their demands upon the council at an early date. Residents and property owners there claim that the Point has been neglected by the city in the way of public improvements and that it has no decently paved streets or sewers. With Minnesota avenue paved, it is believed that it will not only enhance the values of property there more than the cost of the improvement but will also make the Point even more popular than it is as a summer resort.

PROSPERITY IN THE SOUTHWEST

Duluth Mining Men Return From Trip With Message of Optimism.

That the Southwest is not at all worried about the business outlook was a declaration made today by Henry B. Hovland, a well known Duluth mining man, who is just back from a tour through that part of the country.

Mr. Hovland said the mining industry in New Mexico and Arizona showed every sign of being at a high level. California is prosperous, though its fruit growers suffered severely from the January frosts. He had been informed by the head of one large fruit concern that the available fruit ripening this season would not be more than 25 per cent of the normal quantity. An average fruit crop in California is sold at about $40,000,000. Oranges suffered greatly. There was also quite a loss in lemons, though that crop was not quite so greatly damaged.

Mr. Hovland returned from the Southwest with David L. Fairchild, whom he met at El Paso. Both are interested in the Savanna Copper company, whose property is situated in the Burro mountain district of New Mexico. Shaft B on this property, now reaching a depth of 300 feet, will be extended to 670 feet. A large tonnage will thus be opened. Arrangements are being made to have the company treat its ores in a plant of its own. Next summer a railroad extension will be made to the Savanna property.

E. H. EDEN DIES IN MINNEAPOLIS

Former Duluthian Passes Away After a Long Illness.

Edward H. Eden, former Duluth railroad man, died last evening at 5 o'clock at Minneapolis, according to word which has been received by Duluth friends. Death, while unexpected, followed a several weeks' illness.

Mr. Eden was well known in Duluth. He was agent for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad in this city for ten years. In 1903 he went to Minneapolis to accept a position of commercial agent for the same road, in which capacity he was employed up to the time of his death.

Besides his wife he is survived by one brother and two sisters. They are John C. Eden, former traffic manager of the Great Northern railroad, and who is now engaged in the cement business at Seattle; Mrs. John Colthurst of Bellingham, Wash., and another sister residing in Vancouver, B. C.

W. A. Eden, former Duluth agent of the Great Northern road, who died a few years ago, was a brother.

He had a number of close friends in Duluth, among them Frank O. Davidson, traffic manager of the Kelley-How-Thomson company.

How Men Now Restore LOST STRENGTH

Here is a new method by which you (like thousands of men all over the world are doing today) may secretly treat yourself without drugs or medicines with a view to quickly restoring your feelings of youth that you may get back your complete, vigorous vital health and strength. Everything is explained in my illustrated booklet for men, which I will gladly send to you free, sealed, by mail, just as soon as you write for it. Please use the free coupon below.

As to your own present physical condition, let me say from a close personal observation of hundreds of thousands of cases of lost vitality in young, middle-aged and elderly men, covering an experience of over 30 years, I honestly believe that "Lost Vitality," as we term it, is actually no real disease in itself at all, and that under certain favorable circumstances, any man anywhere, can easily and permanently restore his own full strength and nerve force if he but make an honest, conscientious effort along certain commonsense lines, which I am able to suggest, and which include absolutely no medicines or drugs of any kind. You simply use a vitalizing appliance of my invention called the Sanden Health Belt, which you wear comfortably around your waist during sleep for 60 to 90 days. That is absolutely all there is to the whole treatment excepting, of course, you are expected to lead a decent, manly life, free from debilitating excesses and dissipations. This Health Belt in itself is a marvel of power, and sends a great, soft, even flow of vitality into your blood, organs and nerves. Wearers the world over say it takes all pain and weakness out of the back, often from one application, and builds up the strength, thus giving back the full vigor of youth so you soon find yourself answering: "Never felt better in my life" to your friends' greetings; while they secretly marvel at the great change for the better which has come over you. With special attachments the Health Belt is also a wonderful treatment for rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders, etc.

TALKS ON NEED OF BEING A CHRISTIAN

"A man may conform to every obligation of the Christian life and still not be a Christian," said Evangelist Robert Whiston at the First Christian church, last night.

"Christ came, not only to give the world a system of morals, but of redemption. This was the fundamental purpose of His passion, to save us from our sins. To believe and live up to the principles of Christianity, is good, but to become a Christian by conformity to the requirements of the New Testament, is essential as well. No man has any standing with God unless he is a Christian. One may have standing at the bank, in society, in business and be lost to God forever. You can't hide your sin from God any more than an ostrich can hide from the lion, by sticking his head in the sand. Oh foolish bird, oh foolish man."

Tonight Evangelist Whiston will speak for half an hour on the "New Man." There will be a duet, solo and large chorus. The service will last from 8 to 9 o'clock, at the First Christian church, Twelfth avenue east and Fourth street.

Re-elected Third Time.

Cambridge, Mass., March 12.—Mayor Barry, Democrat, was re-elected for a third time yesterday, defeating Arthur F. Blanchard, the Young Men's Progressive candidate.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD--USE A LITTLE SAGE TEA

Says Sage and Sulphur Darkens Hair Beautifully and Ends Dandruff.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of the ready to use preparation, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally; so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The last named two have not yet elected their delegations, but will do so before the special meeting. The delegates from the other four lodges are:

Order of Vasa, No. 170, Swedish United Sons—C. E. Johnson, O. W. Olson, B. Wellberg, Otto Gafvert and Peter Olson.

DOWLING TALKS IN WEST END

Says Real Issue Is Relief From Railroad Discrimination.

P. E. Dowling, candidate for mayor, last evening opened his campaign at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. Mr. Dowling declared that the real issues are for relief from the present railroad discrimination and secession from the special interests.

He said in part:

"The much mooted saloon question can no longer be an issue under the commission form of government, because there is not a divided responsibility. Under the commission form it will rest with one man. The closing question will not be bothersome. If a saloon violates the law once, a warning will be given. There will be no second warning, because the owner will lose his license and no saloon will be allowed on the premises for another year. Co-operation between the saloon keepers, breweries and the city will stop the sale of liquor by the 'blind-piggers.' One conviction of a man selling liquor without a license will be sufficient warning to the brewery or the dealer who supplied the culprit with the liquor to stop. Any brewery that is found guilty of selling liquor to these women or men who in turn sell the beer without proper license will be given but one warning and the second offense will mean that steps will be taken to discontinue its license.

"The real issues of the campaign are, in a nutshell, getting relief from railroad discrimination, and the secession from the special interest which has been using the Duluth Commercial club as its real instrument. This may not have been plain to many people, but it has held Duluth shackled and hobbled and stunted its growth."

ALL WELCOME TO CHRISTIANITY

No Special Examiner Employed to Investigate Applicants, Says Preacher.

That Christianity does not employ an examiner to take note of applicants before receiving them into the fold was a thought emphasized by Rev. M. S. Rice in the second of his weeknight sermons at the Lyceum theater last evening. The pastor said in part:

"Christianity does not retain the services of a special examiner to pronounce preliminary examination upon submitted cases before it will take the risk. I have never been called to preach a limited invitation. 'Whosoever believeth in the name of the Lord shall be saved,' means you and, thank God, means me. And as a simple preacher of the gospel I declare that to be my encouragement everywhere.

"In the midst of a strangely interested generation on all questions social and when more books are being written and more discussion is being held over constructive social work, I utter the confidence of my heart in the sure social philosophy of Christianity and declare that the foundation of human society can rest nowhere else than on the regenerated individual. The deepest and most significant facts about every man can only be approached in personal manner. You can't fasten any really great conviction on my life except by personal application. None of the great facts of human life are ever appreciated till experienced.

The Meaning of Death.

"You don't appreciate what death means till it has been driven into your hearts in personal terms. You can go in sympathy to those who mourn, but one day you will, even in your best effort to sympathize, be startled to the sense of your inability as recently I was, endeavoring to comfort a broken-hearted mother over the death of her first-born, and she turned sadly and eloquently in her sorrow and said: 'Oh, Dr. Rice, you have never passed through this sorrow.' I stood choked by the consciousness of her utterance, and thankful that not yet have I had to have the dagger of death struck keenly into my heart in personal terms.

"In the midst of this seething life of today I want clearly to discern just where I come in. And I am sure I speak a great affection of our religion today in the fact that its message is that Christ died not only for every man, but that He died for you, and for me. We never tire of such a fact. That has always been a mighty grip of Christianity in that it has forever personalized its promises and individualized its experiences. The difficulty of the preacher is that he cannot make that clearer, but is compelled to stand before it and simply call, 'Come and see.'"

EASTER HERALDED BY SHOP WINDOWS

Shop windows these days are being decked out in novelties appropriate to Eastertide.

Bunnies of all descriptions, large and small, some dressed in overalls, others in the usual garb of white fur, are to be seen in the windows of the big retail stores.

Of course, there are the usual colored eggs with an occasional rooster and a brood of white fluffy chicks. Tiny coops for the chicks are among the new novelties.

Anti-Tobacco Law Upheld.

Zion City, Ill., March 12.—The anti-tobacco ordinance of Zion City was upheld in the circuit court at Waukegan today when Richard Behrens was found guilty of smoking a pipe in Zion City and was fined $2 by Judge Whitney. Behren's attorney filed bond for an appeal. Judge Whitney's decision affirmed a previous conviction by a Zion City magistrate.

P. O. Purchasing Agent.

Washington, March 12.—It was announced unofficially that Richard E. Edgerton of New Jersey had been agreed upon for appointment for purchasing agent of the postoffice department. The office carries a salary of $4,000 a year and has been vacant since Jan. 6. Mr. Taft named Frederick H. Austin, a Democrat, for the place, but he was not confirmed. Under the law a designated official may act as purchasing agent for only thirty days, and since Feb. 6, the postoffice department has been unable to make purchases of any kind or to enter into contracts for any sort of supplies.

From Homeliness to Beauty in a Few Days

Some Secrets That Have Made Valeska Suratt Famous

Miss Valeska Suratt

Miss Suratt's Beauty Is All Self-Made, She Is Known as the Beauty-Queen of the American Stage.

By Valeska Suratt

NEVER forget this: always make up your own face cream, provided you know the formula is good. The competition of ready-made creams which you buy in the stores is so excessive that expense in their manufacture must be shaved down to the very lowest level. This robs you of the real value you ought to get for the money spent. Though there are some good ready-made creams sold, even these are comparatively weak in their results. You can do infinitely better by mixing your own formula, taking but a few minutes of your time every few weeks for the purpose. I have invariably been disapointed at the results obtained from the creams I bought. Probably I was hard to please, but I have never been willing to stop half way in anything, but to get the best possible. I have found it. And scores of those who have used this formula know this to be true. A statued face molded out of tinted wax could not be more spotless, more extravagant in its pinky-white loveliness and purity than faces I have seen beautified by this formula. To me, it has proven a source of fame. I want to feel that every woman who reads these columns will try it and find for herself the marvels it brings.

Let half a pint of water come almost to a boil. Add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Keep stirring while adding one ounce of zintone, until it is all dissolved. Then let it cool. If the cream is too thick to pour easily from a bottle, thin it down a little with more hot water. The cream will be white and satiny. Hold a wet, hot towel to the face several times for several minutes. Rub this cream on the entire face. Then wipe off with a soft, dry cloth. Then apply again and let it dry on the face. Repeat this again at night. Any good druggist will let you have zintone for about fifty cents.

Do Not Squeeze Blackheads.

First wash the face with hot water and soap. Then sprinkle some neroxin generously upon a sponge made wet with hot water. Then rub well for a few minutes on the parts of the skin which are affected with blackheads. You should be able to secure the neroxin at any druggist's for fifty cents.

Simple sulfo solution is certainly remarkable in its action. It never reddens or irritates the tenderest skin and never fails.

Get one ounce of simple sulfo solution. This you can get at the drug store for one dollar. Apply it with the finger tips to the superfluous hair, keeping the hair moist with it for two or three minutes until it has been dissolved. Then wipe it off with a damp cloth and wash the skin.

Wonderful Growth of Hair.

Long ago I came to the conclusion that the ordinary hair tonics sold are failures. My own formula, perfected after tedious experimenting has had the effect of giving me a wealth of hair that is surprising. I wear no puffs, wool-rolls, turbans or switches, and am known as the only actress in America who does not, and does not have to. This formula stops hair falling and gives life to the hair.

Mix half a pint of alcohol with half a pint of water. To this add one ounce of beta-quinol. Shake thoroughly, and then it will be ready to use. If you prefer, you can use imported bay rum instead of the water and alcohol. The beta-quinol you can get at almost any drug store for not more than fifty cents. This formula should be applied very freely to the scalp after brushing it generously for a few minutes all over. Rub the tonic thoroughly into the scalp with the finger tips.

Good Shampoo Important.

The hair should be allowed to breathe. Remove the greasy film from around the hairs. Soap will not do it. Eggol makes the best shampoo obtainable. It can be obtained at any drug store for twenty-five cents.

Acquiring Bust Development.

An increase of several inches in bust measure is not uncommon by the use of the following simple formula. It does not matter what is the cause of the lack or loss of development, or what the condition of the user. Never use mechanical contrivances; they are dangerous.

In a half pint of cold water, dissolve two ounces ruetone and half a cup of sugar, all well mixed together. Of this, take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine-glass of water, after your meals. The ruetone will cost you one dollar at the drug store.

To Look Years Younger.

Just try this formula on crows' feet, any light or deep wrinkles, and you will find in a short time, a very surprising difference. It gives youthful plumpness to the skin.

Pour half a pint of hot water in a bowl and place the bowl in a pan of water over a slow fire. To this add two ounces of eptol. Stir until it is dissolved and starts to cream. Then remove from the fire, slowly add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine, and continue to stir until it is cold. Eptol may be obtained for no more than fifty cents at any good drug store. This cream should be applied very liberally and thoroughly rubbed into the skin until it has disappeared. The cream will not grow hair on the face. Keep the cream in an air-tight jar or bottle.

Pimples Removed Quickly.

There is nothing so annoying, so destructive of beauty as pimples. And so few people know how to get rid of them thoroughly.

Dissolve twelve ounces of granulated sugar in one-half pint of water, add one ounce of sarsene, and mix the whole together thoroughly, then add more water to make a pint. Sarsene is a liquid which you can get at the drug store by the ounce. Get it in the original package. Take one or two teaspoonfuls of this mixture three or four times a day, with a little water if desired.

TALKS ON NEED OF BEING A CHRISTIAN

"A man may conform to every obligation of the Christian life and still not be a Christian," said Evangelist Robert Whiston at the First Christian church last night.

"Christ came not only to give the world a system of morals, but of redemption. This was the fundamental purpose of His passion, to save us from our sins. To believe and live up to the principles of Christianity, to be good, but to become a Christian by conformity to the requirements of the New Testament, is essential as well. No man has any standing with God unless he is a Christian. One may have standing at the bank, in society, in business and be lost to God forever. You can't hide your sin from God any more than an ostrich can hide from the hon, by sticking his head in the sand. Oh foolish bird, oh foolish man."

Tonight Evangelist Whiston will speak for half an hour on the "New Man." There will be a duet, solo and large chorus. The service will last from 8 to 9 o'clock at the First Christian church, Twelfth avenue east and Fourth street.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD--USE A LITTLE SAGE TEA

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of the ready to use preparation, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance. Max Wirth.

ALL WELCOME TO CHRISTIANITY

That Christianity does not employ an examiner to take note of applicants before receiving them into the fold was a thought emphasized by Rev. M. S. Rice in the second of his week-night sermons at the Lyceum theater last evening. The pastor said in part:

"Christianity does not retain the services of a special examiner to pronounce preliminary examination upon submitted cases before it will take the risk. I have never been called to preach a limited invitation. Whosoever hell-doth in the name of the Lord shall be saved,' means you and, thank God, means me. And as a simple preacher of the gospel I declare that to be my encouragement everywhere.

"In the midst of a strangely interested generation on all questions social and when more books are being written and more discussion is being held on constructive social work, I utter the confidence of my heart in the sure social philosophy of Christianity and declare that the foundation of human society can rest nowhere else than on the regenerated individual. The deepest and most significant facts about every man can only be approached in personal manner. You can't fasten any really great conviction on my life except by personal application. None of the great facts of human life are ever appreciated till experienced.

The Meaning of Death.

"You don't appreciate what death means till it has been driven into your hearts in personal terms. You can go in sympathy to those who mourn, but one day you will, even in your best effort to sympathize, be startled to the sense of your inability as recently I was, endeavoring to comfort a broken hearted mother over the death of her first-born, and she turned sadly and eloquently in her sorrow and said: 'Oh, Dr. Rice, you have never passed through this sorrow.' I stood choked by the consciousness of her utterance, and thankful that not yet had it had to have the dagger of death struck keenly into my heart in personal terms.

"In the midst of this seething life of today I want clearly to discern Jesus whose I come in. And I am sure I speak a great affection of our religion today in the fact that its message is that Christ died not only for every man, but that He died for you, and for me. We never tire of such a fact. There was always been a mighty grip of Christianity in that it has forever personalized its promises and individualized its experience. The difficulty of the preacher is that he cannot make that report, but is compelled to stand before it and simply call, 'Come and see.'"

Shop windows these days are being decked out in novelties appropriate to Eastertide.

Bunnies of all descriptions, large and small, some dressed in overalls, others in the usual garb of white fur, are to be seen in the windows of the big retail stores.

Of course, there are the usual colored eggs with an occasional rooster and a brood of white fluffy chicks. Tiny coops for the chicks are among the new novelties.

Anti-Tobacco Law Upheld.

Zion City, Ill., March 12.—The anti-tobacco ordinance of Zion City was upheld in the circuit court at Waukegan today when Richard Behrens was found guilty of smoking a pipe in Zion City and was fined $2 by Judge Whitney. Behren's attorney filed bond for appeal. Judge Whitney's decision affirmed a previous conviction by a Zion City magistrate.

P. O. Purchasing Agent.

Washington, March 12.—It was announced unofficially that Richard E. Edgerton of New Jersey had been agreed upon for appointment for purchasing agent of the postoffice department. The office carries a salary of $4,000 a year and has been vacant since Jan. 6. Mr. Taft named Frederick H. Austin, a Democrat, for the place, but he was not confirmed. Under the law a designated official may act as purchasing agent for only thirty days, and since Feb. 6, the postoffice department has been unable to make purchases of any kind or to enter into contracts for any sort of supplies.

From Homeliness to Beauty in a Few Days

Some Secrets That Have Made Valeska Suratt Famous

Miss Valeska Suratt

Miss Suratt's Beauty Is All Self-Made. She Is Known as the Beauty-Queen of the American Stage.

By Valeska Suratt

NEVER forget this: always make up your own face cream, provided you know the formula is good. The competition of ready-made creams which you buy in the stores is so excessive that expense in their manufacture must be shaved down to the very lowest level. This robs you of the real value you ought to get for the money spent. Though there are some good ready-made creams sold, even these are comparatively weak in their results. You can do infinitely better by mixing your own formula, taking but a few minutes of your time every few weeks for the purpose. I have invariably been disapointed at the results obtained from the creams I bought. Probably I was hard to please, but I have never been willing to stop half way in anything, but to get the best possible. I have found it. And scores of those who have used this formula know this to be true. A stat-ued face molded out of tinted wax could not be more spotless, more extravagant in its pinky-white lovliness and purity than faces I have seen beautified by this formula. To me, it has proven a source of fame. I want to feel that every woman who reads these columns will try it and find for herself the marvels it brings.

Let half a pint of water come almost to a boil. Add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Keep stirring while adding one ounce of zintone, until it is all dissolved. Then let it cool. If the cream is too thick to pour easily from a bottle, thin it down a little with more hot water. The cream will be white and satiny. Hold a wet, hot towel to the face several times for several minutes. Rub this cream on the entire face. Then wipe off with a soft, dry cloth. Then apply again and let it dry on the face. Repeat this again at night. Any good druggist will let you have zintone for about fifty cents.

Pimples Removed Quickly.

There is nothing so annoying, so destructive of beauty as pimples. And so few people know how to get rid of them thoroughly.

Dissolve twelve ounces of granulated sugar in one-half pint of water, add one ounce of sarsene, and mix the whole together thoroughly, then add more water to make a pint. Sarsene is a liquid which you can get at the drug store by the ounce. Get it in the original package. Take one or two teasnoonfuls of this mixture three or four times a day, with a little water if desired.

Miss Suratt's Beauty Is All Self-Made. She Is Known as the Beauty-Queen of the American Stage.

Do Not Squeeze Blackheads.

First wash the face with hot water and soap. Then sprinkle some noroxin generously upon a sponge made wet with hot water. Then rub well for a few minutes on the parts of the skin which are affected with blackheads. You should be able to secure the noroxin at any druggist's for fifty cents.

Magic for Superfluous Hair.

Simple sulfo solution is certainly remarkable in its action. It never reddens or irritates the tenderest skin and never fails.

Get one ounce of simple sulfo solution. This you can get at the drug store for one dollar. Apply it with the finger tips to the superfluous hair, keeping the hair moist with it for two or three minutes until it has been dissolved. Then wipe it off with a damp cloth and wash the skin.

Wonderful Growth of Hair.

Long ago I came to the conclusion that the ordinary hair tonics sold are failures. My own formula, perfected after tedious experimenting has had the effect of giving me a wealth of hair that is surprising. I wear no puffs, wool-rolls, turkeys or switches, and am known as the only actress in America who does not, and does not have to. This formula stops hair falling and gives life to the hair.

Mix half a pint of alcohol with half a pint of water. To this add one ounce of beta-quinol. Shake thoroughly, and then it will be ready to use. If you prefer, you can use imported bay rum instead of the water and alcohol. The beta-quinol you can get at almost any drug store for not more than fifty cents. This formula should be applied very freely to the scalp after brushing it generously for a few minutes all over. Rub the tonic thoroughly into the scalp with the finger tips.

Good Shampoo Important.

The hair should be allowed to breathe. Remove the greasy film from around the hairs. Soap will not do it. Eggol makes the best shampoo obtainable. It can be obtained at any drug store for twenty-five cents.

Acquiring Bust Development.

An increase of several inches in bust measure is not uncommon by the use of the following simple formula. It does not matter what is the cause of the lack or loss of development, or what the condition of the user. Never use mechanical contrivances; they are dangerous.

In a half pint of cold water, dissolve two ounces ructone and half a cup of sugar, all well mixed together. Of this, take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine-glass of water, after your meals. The ructone will cost you one dollar at the drug store.

To Look Years Younger.

Just try this formula on crows' feet, any light or deep wrinkles, and you will find in a short time a very surprising difference. It gives youthful plumpness to the skin.

Pour half a pint of hot water in a bowl and place the bowl in a pan of water over a slow fire. To this add two ounces of ental. Stir until it is dissolved and starts to cream. Then remove from the fire, slowly add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine, and continue to stir until it is cold. Ental may be obtained for no more than fifty cents at any good drug store. This cream should be applied very liberally and thoroughly rubbed into the skin until it has disappeared. The cream will not grow hair on the face. Keep the cream in an air-tight jar or bottle.

HUNTER SHEDS TEARS OVER HIS BAD MARKSMANSHIP

To see a hunter and trapper shed tears over his bad marksmanship was the unique experience of David Cone, the furrier, a few days ago. The visitor was a young man by the nam of St. Marie, who during the last three years has been gathering furs in the Knife river region.

St. Marie told how, during that entire period, he had been after a magnificent silver gray fox, which he had seen from time to time, but had never been able to get.

His traps had caught plenty of other fur-bearing animals, but somehow that silver gray fellow was too wise, and had successfully eluded every snare. The young trapper had even purchased live chickens, and left them tied to stakes in order to draw the coveted creature, but without success. The chickens would freeze to death over night, and no fox will touch a dead bait.

Once St. Marie followed the trail of the fox for three days, camping in the woods at night, but the circuit brought him back just where he started, and he not only had failed to bag the animal, but had not even discovered his walking in the woods, saw the fox saunter by a few feet ahead of him. "I took aim and fired," said St. Marie, describing the incident. "The fellow sprang high into the air, and I thought I had surely hit him. I have shot birds from much farther off than that, and I do not often miss. He darted away like the wind, as I took a second shot. I examined his track through the snow for spots of blood. Seeing none, I had to admit that I had missed him." And he wept at the recollection of his poor aim, when he had a splendid chance of bagging a prize that would have brought him at least $300.

A short time ago, St. Marie, while

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WOULD SPIT UPON WOMEN

Boorish Member of Crookston City Council Uses Coarse Language.

Indorses Action of Washington Police Saying "Spit in Their Faces."

Crookston, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alderman Stainbrook went on record last evening at the council meeting as being out of sympathy with the police woman movement, or with the suffragette idea.

In compliance with a petition signed by several hundred residents, Aldermen Low and Hughes introduced an ordinance, and were the only ones who voted for it, providing for the hiring of a police matron at a salary of $50 per month. Aldermen Snyder, Sivertson and Stainbrook voted against it, Alderman Christianson refused to vote, and the resolution was declared lost by President Kelly. Alderman Hughes jumped to his feet and insisted that so numerously signed petition should receive due consideration.

"Yes," retorted Alderman Stainbrook, "the same treatment they received in Washington—spit in their faces."

Causes Tense Feeling.

President Kelly drew his breath quickly and looked aghast, and there was a shuffling of feet as the audience grasped the situation, after which business was proceeded with.

The council amended the dog ordinance, which prohibits dogs running at large in the city from April 1 to Sept. 1, making some of the provisions more stringent, and laid final action on all proposed paving over for two weeks.

AGAINST REPEAL OF NURSING LAW

Crookston Society Resolves Against Proposed Legislative Action.

Crookston, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much opposition has developed here to the proposed bill which would repeal the present law allowing county commissioners to appropriate money to employ visiting nurses in the fight against tuberculosis, and at a special meeting of the Crookston Anti-Tuberculosis society strong resolutions were passed against the proposed repeal of the law.

A visiting nurse has been employed in Polk and most of the adjoining counties the past two years, and the excellence of the work resulting is very generally recognized. To suspend this work now, it is very generally believed would be most inadvisable.

The Crookston society passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, A report has come to us that the state legislature is considering a bill to repeal the law allowing county commissioners to appropriate money for visiting nurses to help in the fight against tuberculosis, and Effective Disease Fighters.

"Whereas, We recognize that the visiting nurse is the most effective way of fighting this disease in the country districts, and

"Whereas, We believe the county commissioners may be trusted to guard against needless or extravagant expenditures of these appropriations, and

"Whereas, We see how the repeal of that law will tie the hands of the commissioners in their endeavor to help in this great fight; Therefore be it

"Resolved That the Crookston Anti-Tuberculosis society urge all representatives and senators to oppose any bill to repeal the present law.

"Signed—President, W. C. Hodgeson; first vice president, B. D. Keck; second vice president, Edward Peterson; secretary, Mrs. A. A. Just; treasurer, I. D. Foskett; ex-commissioner, H. Holte, M. D.; ex-commissioner, C. F. Mix."

LAKE NEBAGAMON PLANS GOOD YEAR.

Lake Nebagamon, Wis., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The influx of summer tourists here this year from Duluth, Superior and more distant points is expected to be larger than ever.

Twenty cottages are being erected which will be ready at the opening of the summer tourist season.

There will be at least one new large gasoline boat put in the service to transport the visitors to the various cottages and picnic grounds around the lake.

There will be a strong baseball team to cope with the visiting contestants.

A 20-piece brass band was organized last fall which has been preparing for the summer semi-weekly concerts which will be held during the summer.

Perishes With Home.

Barnesville, Minn., March 12.—John Trody, aged 24, whose home is believed to be near Kent, Minn., was burned to death when a small house in which he was staying in Manston township, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday. The cause of the fire is unknown.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Hazelton, N. D. — The old-fashioned spinning wheel operated by Mrs. Robert Buchanan, the wife of a farmer near here, is a matter of a great deal of curiosity to the people of this vicinity. It is one of the ancient type and there are very few in the state. Mrs. Buchanan makes her own yarn direct from the wool.

Wahpeton, N. D.—Another park is to be constructed here this summer on the block owned by the city west of the high school building. The council let the contract to a practical landscape gardner and a nurseryman. The trees and shrubs will be put in this spring.

Fargo, N. D.—At the agricultural college Homer Dixon was chosen editor of the Spectrum, the weekly paper, with R. Larson as manager. Roy Dynes was named as president of the Student council and Prof. Schalk the faculty manager of athletics.

STOP NEGLECTING YOUR STOMACH

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Do the Work of the Strongest and Healthiest Stomach and Afford Instant Relief.

The worst case of indigestion is simply neglect to give the stomach needed assistance.

When your food does not digest, when gases form, when you experience that uncomfortable feeling of fullness, when the breath is foul, the tongue coated and that sour taste is in the mouth—take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and watch how quickly every one of these symptoms disappear.

Your Stomach Will Never Give Out or Grow Old, If You Depend Upon Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All that was needed was to digest that lump of food in your stomach.—and the glands, whose duty it is to supply the gastric juices, had simply given out from overwork. So when you took that little tablet you were supplying exactly what was necessary to complete the process of digestion that the stomach had begun but was unable to finish.

If you would continue to take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal for awhile, your stomach would have a chance to rest up and get well and strong again.

Try just one box and you will never want to be without this wonderful little remedy for istomach troubles. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain an ingredient, one grain of which will digest 3,000 grains of food. They are entirely harmless because they have absolutely no effect on the system one way or another except to do just the one thing—digest food.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION

GEORGE M. PETERSON.

C. W. SUTTON.

If the local U. C. T. men can "put it over" George M. Peterson of Duluth will be the next grand sentinel of the state council of the order. That is the entering wedge, and the Duluth commercial men who belong to the order feel that Mr. Peterson has earned that recognition in the state and that it is about time that he is coming into his own. George W. Welles and B. P. Neff were elected again to the executive committee of the local council last Saturday evening and each is entering on his tenth year. At the meeting of last Saturday evening, U. C. T. Zenith council No. 40, elected officers as follows:

Senior consul, George Speirs; junior consul, S. F. Chalk; past senior consul, J. D. Lawrence; secretary-treasurer, C. W. Sutton; conductor, J. H. Lindbeck; page, F. A. Tate; sentinel, H. A. Anderson; members of the executive committee, B. P. Neff and G. W. Welles, elected for two years. Delegates to the state convention to be held in Crookston next June were J. D. Sattler, J. E. Lawrence, George Speirs, C. W. Sutton and Bert Holcomb.

It is worthy of note that C. W. Sutton has been in the saddle, in charge, so the other members of the local council say, since its inception. When he took hold there were forty-two members. There are now 380 at present between those ready for initiation and those whose applications went in on Saturday, there are sixty-two, forty being of the latter class and twenty-two of the former.

CLOSE BIG LUMBER DEAL

Reported That 10,000,000 Feet Have Been Sold Here.

Breakup in Woods Due—Conditions Good for the Drive.

It is reported that there is a deal in lumber—just closed—which involves more than 10,000,000 feet in this district. A substantial part of the stock was furnished by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company, it is reported, but could not be confirmed locally today.

The entire deal, so it is reported, includes 7,000,000 feet of No. 3 lumber, 1,500,000 feet of spruce, 1,000,000 feet of 5¼ No. 3 common and 500,000 feet of 10-inch No. 3. The purchasers also have options on an additional block of stuff which, it is claimed, is large. It is expected also that another deal will be closed some time this week involving large figures.

The breakup of logging in the woods is expected to come very early, in fact some predict that it will come within the next ten days. However, it is a fact that every company doing logging this year will hang on until the last opportunity has passed, for between the uncertainty of snow at times during the winter and the scarcity of labor all through the season, the production has been severely curtailed and it is reported that the market is sold out.

It is expected, however, that the drive will be in pretty good shape this spring because of the recent heavy snows, which when they melt are banked on to furnish the necessary water in the creeks and rivers.

WOULD DISSOLVE SECURITIES COMPANY

North Dakota Attorney General Brings Proceedings at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Application for the dissolution of the International Securities company and the appointment of a receiver to close up its affairs is made in a complaint lodged in the district court here by Attorney General Andrew Miller.

Misrepresentation in the sale of stock and contracts; mismanagement and misappropriation of funds and property, and a systematic looting of the company by the general manager, E. Sandile, are features alleged by the attorney general, based upon a report by the state bank examiner, as causes for the remedy he seeks.

That the company has been insolvent for more than a year past; that it was organized for the sole benefit of the Sandiles without consideration for the interest of stockholders or contract holders; than its system of accounting is vague and uncertain; that it has violated its charter and is no longer entitled to benefits under it, and that the directors of the company, as well as the general manager, have been lax in their duty, are further charges made in the complaint.

General Manager Well Paid.

With a capital stock of $100,000, it is charged that $226,100 worth of stock has been actually sold; commissions aggregating approximately $60,000 are alleged to have been paid to E. Sandile, as general manager; since organization it is contended that $6,000 annually has been paid for expenses, and of the total amount paid in it is claimed that $113,812.54 has been expended from which there can be no possible returns.

March 22 is the date on which Judge Cooley will hear the arguments on the order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and the affairs of the company closed up. In the meantime the company directors and officers are enjoined from making any transfer of any of the company's interests.

Start Training Schools.

Fargo, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under a law enacted at the legislative session two years ago, Benson and Walsh counties have organized agricultural and industrial training schools. The first meeting of the state commission to devise courses for these schools will be held here March 21.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS

Duluth Church Members Busy With Evangelistic Services.

Holy Week Will Add to Those Now in Progress.

Seldom, if ever, has Duluth experienced a greater or more general spirit of religious revival than is being manifested at the present time. Holy Week is at hand and the season is highly appropriate for such a movement. Well-attended meetings are being held for public worship in all parts of the city.

None of the revivals has attracted greater attention than the week-night services that are being held at the Lyceum theater by Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First Methodist church. These meetings will be continued up to and including the evening of March 20.

At the First Christian church on Fourth street near Fifth avenue west a series of revival services is being conducted by Rev. Robert Whiston of Lincoln, Neb.

Four churches in the West end are holding revival meetings. These are the Grace M. E., Third street and Twenty-second avenue west; the First Norwegian-Danish M. E., Third street and Twenty-fourth avenue west; the Central Baptist, First street and Twentieth avenue west, and the Bethany Swedish Lutheran, Third street and Twenty-third avenue west.

Special Lenten services are being held in the Episcopal churches. Both the Episcopal and Catholic churches will observe their custom of holding special services during Holy Week. The Catholic churches will hold Holy Week services on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

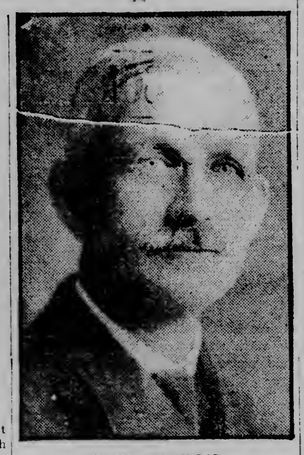
COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION

GEORGE M. PETERSON.



C. W. SUTTON.

If the local U. C. T. men can "put it over" George M. Peterson of Duluth will be the next grand sentinel of the state council of the order. That is the entering wedge, and the Duluth commercial men who belong to the order feel that Mr. Peterson has earned that recognition in the state and that it is about time that he is coming into his own. George W. Welles and B. P. Neff were elected again to the executive committee of the local council last Saturday evening and each is entering on his tenth year. At the meeting of U. C. T. Zenith council No. 40, elected officers as follows:

Senior consul, George Speirs; junior consul, S. F. Chalk; past senior consul, J. D. Lawrence; secretary-treasurer, C. W. Sutton; conductor, J. H. Lindbeck; page, F. A. Tate; sentinel, H. A. Anderson; members of the executive committee, B. P. Neff and G. W. Welles, elected for two years. Delegates to the state convention to be held in Crookston next June were J. D. Salter, J. E. Lawrence, George Speirs, C. W. Sutton and Bert Holcomb.

It is worthy of note that C. W. Sutton has been in the saddle, in charge, so the other members of the local council say, since its inception. When he took hold there were forty-two members. There are now 280 at present between those ready for initiation and those whose applications went in on Saturday, there are sixty-two, forty being of the latter class and twenty-two of the former.

CLOSE BIG LUMBER DEAL

Reported That 10,000,000 Feet Have Been Sold Here.

Breakup in Woods Due—Conditions Good for the Drive.

It is reported that there is a deal in lumber—just closed—which involves more than 10,000,000 feet in this district. A substantial part of the stock was furnished by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company, it is reported, but could not be confirmed locally today.

The entire deal, so it is reported, includes 7,000,000 feet of No. 3 lumber, 1,500,000 feet of spruce, 1,000,000 feet of 5½ No. 3 common and 500,000 feet of 10-inch No. 3. The purchasers also have options on an additional block of stuff which, it is claimed, is large. It is expected also that another deal will be closed some time this week involving large figures.

The breakup of logging in the woods is expected to come very early. In fact some predict that it will come within the next ten days. However, it is a fact that every company doing logging this year will hang on until the last opportunity has passed, for between the uncertainty of snow at times during the winter and the scarcity of labor all through the season, the production has been severely curtailed and it is reported that the market is sold out.

It is expected, however, that the drive will be in pretty good shape this spring because of the recent heavy snows, which when they melt are banked on to furnish the necessary water in the creeks and rivers.

WOULD DISSOLVE SECURITIES COMPANY

North Dakota Attorney General Brings Proceedings at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Application for the dissolution of the International Securities company and the appointment of a receiver to close up its affairs is made in a complaint lodged in the district court here by Attorney General Andrew Miller.

Misrepresentation in the sale of stock and contracts; mismanagement and misappropriation of funds and property, and a systematic looting of the company by the general manager, E. Sandlie, are features alleged by the attorney general, based upon a report by the state bank examiner, as causes for the remedy he seeks.

That the company has been insolvent for more than a year past; that it was organized for the sole benefit of the Sandlies without consideration for the interest of stockholders or contract holders; than its system of accounting is vague and uncertain; that it has violated its charter and is no longer entitled to benefits under it, and that the directors of the company, as well as the general manager, have been lax in their duty, are further charges made in the complaint.

General Manager Well Paid.

With a capital stock of $160,000, it is charged that $226,100 worth of stock has been actually sold; commissions aggregating approximately $60,000 are alleged to have been paid to E. Sandlie, as general manager; since organization it is contended that $6,000 annually has been paid for expenses, and of the total amount paid in it is claimed that $113,812.51 has been expended from which there can be no possible returns.

March 22 is the date on which Judge Cooley will hear the arguments on the order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and the affairs of the company closed up. In the meantime the company directors and officers are enjoined from making any transfer of any of the company's interests.

Start Training Schools.

Fargo, N. D., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under a law enacted at the legislative session two years ago, Benson and Walsh counties have organized agricultural and industrial training schools. The first meeting of the state commission to devise courses for these schools will be held here March 21.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS

Duluth Church Members Busy With Evangelistic Services.

Holy Week Will Add to Those Now in Progress.

Seldom, if ever, has Duluth experienced a greater or more general spirit of religious revival than is being manifested at the present time. Holy Week is at hand and the season is highly appropriate for such a movement. Well-attended meetings are being held for public worship in all parts of the city.

None of the revivals has attracted greater attention than the week-night services that are being held at the Lyceum theater by Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First Methodist church. These meetings will be continued up to and including the evening of March 20.

At the First Christian church on Fourth street near Fifth avenue west, a series of revival services is being conducted by Rev. Robert Whiston of Lincoln, Neb.

Four churches in the West end are holding revival meetings. These are the Grace M. E., Third street and Twenty-second avenue west; the First Norwegian-Danish M. E., Third street and Twenty-fourth avenue west; the Central Baptist, First street and Twentieth avenue west, and the Bethany Swedish Lutheran, Third street and Twenty-third avenue west.

Special Lenten services are being held in the Episcopal churches. Both the Episcopal and Catholic churches will observe their custom of holding special services during Holy Week. The Catholic churches will hold Holy Week services on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

TRAVELS MANY MILES WITH BROKEN BACK.

Rochester, Minn., March 12.—Eugene Thayer, a carpenter of Assiniboia, Can., whose back was broken in a 12-foot fall from a scaffolding, completed the last lap of his 1,600-mile journey here in the hope of securing surgical relief. With him were his brother, Roy Thayer, and a friend, Chris Smith.

Thayer did not arrive in a box, as reported, but traveled from Moose Jaw to this city on a cot. At the time of his accident he was placed in a box and made a journey of thirty miles to the nearest railroad station by wagon, and from there was taken to Moose Jaw in this box, where a cot was secured for the rest of the journey to Rochester.

Norwegian Consul Hobe Is Guest of Brainerd Commercial Club.

Brainerd, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Norwegian Consul Hobe, who has jurisdiction over more Norwegians in Iowa, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington than the king of Norway has in his domain, was here yesterday and was escorted to the Commercial club rooms by Messrs. Mons Mahlum and M. T. Dunn, meeting many members. Later Norwegian whist was played, Dr. J. L. Camp joining in the game. Mr. Hobe, although one of the best players in the old country, was beaten by Mr. Mahlum and his partner. Consul Hobe has a nickel mine in Norway, but owing to labor conditions and other disadvantages, is unable to mine it at a profit to compete with the nickel imported into the country from Australia and other countries.

MICHIGAN PHYSICIAN ENDS LIFE BY SHOOTING

Lawrence, Mich., March 12.—Dr. A. G. Six, a prominent physician of this village, shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon a few minutes before he was to consult with authorities regarding a mysterious fire which destroyed his home Feb. 6, in which his wife and daughter were burned to death.

After the discovery of the physician's body, a letter was found on his desk in which he said that unjust suspicion had been directed against him concerning the origin of the fire and that he was innocent of any blame.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Gossip, Comment and Sporting Editorial Review as Written By Bruce.

THIS is the arrogant era of the limelight. Those at the top adopt careful measures to gull the calcium and keep its fickle glitter glued on themselves. Ty Cobb strolls upon the field last of all—last but by no means least. Just as if they were speaking to him this Tyrus tyrant knows that before he leaves the club house the anxious multitude is multitudily muttering, "Where is Cobb."

Jimmy Archer is ranked as the greatest catcher in the world. He wants all the world to realize this—he has asked for $10,000. Canny James knows and makes ready shift of the subterfuges to swing the spot light.

Luther McCarty is going to fight Bombardier Wells for the white heavyweight championship of the world. Those on the inside whisper that the fight is already carded for Los Angeles, glorious Independence day being said time. But Bomb keeps a pecking, figuratively speaking, with a fountain pen, and they let him peck. It's good business.

An actress loses her diamonds—and finds them again. Battling Nelson has a brass band at his short marriage. Joe Rivers gets married in a striped tuxedo. Horace Fogel used to have himself paged in the prominent New York hotels. Hans Wagner avoids publicity, believing this is the best way to get it. Rube Marquard writes letters to McGraw and gives them to the newspapers. The suffragettes adopt harsher methods and throw bombs and things. Verily, she's great life.

Please, mister, turn the light on us.

ONE Billy B. Hoke—we were almost tempted to say Billy B. D.—has turned a nasty pen loose and said some things regarding little Walter Miller. Mr. Hoke is nice to Miller's smiling countenance and then nasty when the athlete is far away. Suffice it to say in this connection that Walter seriously and searchingly looked for Mr. Hoke for two days upon a certain occasion and failed to ascertain even his whereabouts.

Anent the recent Carr-Miller match, permit the writer to give it as his honest opinion that Miller can beat this Carr at any time or any place where the conditions are equal.

Also permit us further to state that for unfairness and unsportsmanlike conduct the audience that witnessed the match in Minneapolis is a matter that friend Hoke should feel heartily ashamed of.

Carr was the fortunate heir of a golden opportunity; he caught Miller sadly out of shape to wrestle, and beat him. The little fellow was in more fit condition for a rest treat than a wrestling contest. His pluck made him fill the date. Like the rousing rooster that lost its head, it's not in the least becoming for Hoke or Carr to crow too loudly.

MISS ISABEL BUTLER has been through many harrowing experiences. Once she thought a very dear friend had been killed down Dallas way by missing connections in one of those deadly loop-the loop things. The friend rode a bicycle and missed the gap, landing on a two-by-four with his head and snapping the timber like a skinny brittle stick.

"Go out and do your turn and entertain the crowd and keep them from having a panic—Tom's dying," was the terse and imperious command of the manager of the show. Miss Butler did, though she was sick with the horror of the thing.

Discipline in a circus is something supreme. No great tented show is successful without it. In the grand march of the big Barnum show, when Miss Butler was featured in the "Dip of death" act, she was waiting for the parade to start. In her trunk was her wardrobe and a respectable sum of money.

While the parade was waiting for the bugle, like a sudden shock came the word that the dressing tent was on fire. Miss Butler says she is proud of the fact that she did not even turn her head—and she can't remember that any of the other performers did.

INTEREST IS INTENSE.

Bowling Contests in Toledo Followed By Many Adherents.

Toledo, Ohio, March 12.—When the first squad of five men teams went on the alleys in the American Bowling congress tournament last night the crowd in the terminal building had grown to such proportions that there was danger of the fence separating the bowlers from the stands being crushed in. The interest largely was brought about by the Brunswick All Stars of New York city, winners of the 1912 tournament. Also the fact that the Flor De Knispels, went into first place Tuesday night with an unprecedented score of 3,006.

In the two-men events, Thomas and Murphy of Pittsburg, went into eighth place among the first ten leaders with a score of 1,239. Sutherland and Henderson of St. Paul, totalled 1,158 in the two-men events. They were the highest of the leading rollers who made the big score in the five-man events.

In the individual events, Frank Fox of Indianapolis rolled 649 which was high for the squads in that event.

All events leaders: Herman, Cleveland, 1,972; Haas, Fort Wayne, 1,894; Helms, Newark, N. J., 1,891.

Two-man leaders: Schultz-Koster, Newark, 1,291; Mountain-Carlton, Chicago, 1,277; Mauser-Welsh, Youngstown, 1,266.

Individual leaders: Peterson, Columbus, 693; Knox, Philadelphia, 672; Huebner, Chicago, 662.

The Cadillac five of Detroit rolled in the second squad of five-man teams last night and went into fifth place with a count of 2,934. The Wayne team rolled 2,961, and the Burroughs followed with a score of 2,812. Both of these teams are from Detroit.

In the first squad the Maltops of Rochester, N. Y., finished first with a count of 2,862. The Athenaeums of Toronto, Canada, finished second with a score of 2,825. The Brunswick All-Stars of New York were third with 2,813.

Five-men leaders: Flor De Knispels, St. Paul, Minn., 3,006; Overlands, Toledo, 2,992; Hudson Stars, Newark, N. J., 2,946; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,942; Cadillac, Detroit, 2,924; Gambrinus, Columbus, 2,902; Collenas, Chicago, 2,900; Ducators Chicago, 2,896; Horgenroths, Milwaukee, 2,894; Lexington, No. 1, Lexington, Ky., 2,890.

SHOWING WELL AT SECOND

HAL CHASE.

Reports from Bermuda are to the effect that Hal Chase is playing a great game at second for the New York Highlanders. While the majority of the critics shook dubious beans over the prospect of a left-handed player attempting to play station No. 2, it seems that Peerless Hal is really surmounting the handicap. If Chase can play second as well as he played first and Chance returns to form, the right side of the Yankee's infield will be of the stone-wall variety.

LAKESIDE CLUB MEETING CALLED

Officers of New Organization Will Gather to Discuss Organization Plans.

The new Lakeside Athletic club will hold an officers' meeting this evening in the Quayle-Larsen store for the purpose of discussing further plans for the organization of the new club.

Now that the city council has formally given the club the consent to use the old fire hall quarters in the Lakeside district, the last obstacle in the path of the new organization has been removed. The meeting set for tonight is for the purpose of further devising plans to bring the new club to the front.

Starting with every indication of success, it is believed that the Lakeside Athletic club will grow into one of the leaders of local athletics. Many of the star athletes of the city reside in the East end of the city, and with the equipment of a first-class gymnasium and athletic grounds, there is no reason why so live an organization as the Lakeside club gives ample promise of being, should not become the bellwether of Duluth athletics.

All forms of athletics are to be encouraged. Baseball, football, boxing, wrestling—in fact, all of the various forms of manly exercise will be developed at the club.

Just as soon as plans can be formed for the securing gymnasium apparatus the athletic work will be started. It is expected that active work in the new clubhouse and gymnasium will be started within the next two weeks.

WELLS TRAILING LUTHER M'CARTY

Briton Threatens to Appear at Milwaukee and Defy Cow Puncher.

Wire dispatches from New York state that Bombardier Wells, the big English heavyweight, who came to this country for the specific purpose of fighting Luther McCarty, is in a turbulent mood and is threatening to go out on the broad highway and publicly challenge the conqueror of Al Palzer, the man who conquered Wells.

This hectering of a champion has not been adopted for years. Jim Corbett had several fellows follow Jeffries around and butt in with a query as to why the then champion didn't battle with the former champion. Charley Mitchell and Frank Slavin adopted even more drastic tactics in the case of John L. Sullivan, hurling invective at the head of the big fellow at several of his theatrical exhibitions.

Now comes the threat of Wells. The tall Englishman declares that he came over to this country with the sole intention of getting on with McCarty, and that he is going to follow the giant Nebraska cow puncher around the country and ridicule him in front of the audiences.

It is stated that Wells is going to Milwaukee and issue a public challenge to the cowboy. Luther and his fellow members of the big all-star show wend their way Milwaukeewards in the near future and if there is the least truth regarding the stories sent out of New York, the fans in the city of palm gardens and foam may enjoy some strenuous excitement.

GOOD OPENING FOR PAL BROWN

New York Offers Golden Opportunity for a Good Lightweight.

In a letter to the sporting editor of The Herald, Sam Fitzpatrick of New York suggests that Pal Brown come to New York and try it out with some of the boys fighting in the metropolis at the present time.

The former manager of Kid Lavigne and other ring celebrities says that never in the history of fighting under the Frawley law has there been the opportunity for a lightweight as there is at present in the big city.

Possibly this is due to the beating of Kayo Brown by Joe Rivers. The little Dutchman was an idol in New York. Harlem Tommy Murphy, Leach Cross and Brown are about the only three good lightweights in the environs of Manhattan island, and should the Minnesota Brown make good down there he would have all the fights he cared for.

Jimmy Callahan of the White Sox is the authority for the statement that he has the best team in the history of his managerial career. It is upon the showing of the youngsters that the standing of the club in the coming race may depend.

SEE-EYE LEAGUE WAITS UPON ACTION OF WINONA

If the City of Southern Minnesota Refuses to Come Into the New Organization It Is Likely That Six Clubs Will Make Up League.

(BY BRUCE.)

Speaking of spring reminds one of baseball, and leaping thusly from limb to limb we come to the situation in the seething See-Eye.

Pending the settlement of the little ruction it is perfectly fair to discuss the possibilities of the withdrawal of Port Arthur at the quarter post.

Frank Taylor, the pilot of the Canadian Twins, talked much and accomplished little. When it came to the shown down, which was $800, in one imposing lump, Taylor stalled and talked for time. The schedule meeting was postponed for one week, pending the financial convalescence of the Port Arthur magnate. But he grew worse instead of better and the doctors decided that there was not the least hope in the world for him.

Reports from Winona, received here today, are to the effect that this town is likely to come into the league and the plan of eight clubs will then be carried through. Should hesitation and doubting owners of dollars place insurmountable obstacles in the way of those who might be willing to finance the club down that way, it looks as if the officials of the league will be compelled to fall back upon the six-club plan.

As a matter of fact Taylor, the teaser, was the only magnate in the league who failed to accomplish anything. Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Superior, Grand Forks, and Virginia, have signed managers. Winnipeg is just about to close with a pliot—but Port Arthur, this recalcitrant child of the league, has accomplished nothing. Were it not for the lack of progression shown by Taylor the schedule would have been completed by the present time and other details of the new organization completed.

Speaking of anger, wrath and kindred emotions, picture the feelings of the magnates when they reached Minneapolis for the serious task of launching the league and found instead of Taylor and reported progress, a letter from him demanding certain concessions on the penalty of remaining out of the fold.

After this exhibition of sportsmanship the magnates decided, and wisely, that they might just as well then and there make up their minds to do without Mr. Taylor, and they did.

There is a somewhat mistaken idea that the franchise that was made out in the name of Port Arthur was held jointly by Fort William. Such is not the case—or was not the case. Naturally those who started enthusiastically behind the idea expected to draw some of the shekels from Fort William, but that town was not officially connected with the securing of the franchise. And now it is announced from Minneapolis that business men of Fort William are bidding for the vacant berth.

However in the event of Winona accepting the proposition placed before the business men of that city by E. N. Dickson, secretary of the Minneapolis American association team and business manager of the Minneapolis See-Eye team, the city of millionaires will be the eighth member of the league.

Y. M. C. A. SEASON TO CLOSE WITH THREE OPEN MEETS

Athletic activities at the Duluth Y. M. C. A. will be brought to a close with the important events scheduled for March 24, 26 and 28. The big open swimming meet will be held on the first named date, while on the second will come the annual track meet, in which teams from the association, boat club, high school and outside institutions will compete. The gymnastic tournament, coming on the latter date will bring the athletic events of the present season to a close.

All the various forms of swimming, in addition to various racing distances will make up the competition of the water meet. The athletic meet will include the 100 yards, half mile run, shot put, high jump, pole vault, and several other events. In the gymnasium meet the standard form of competition will be followed closely.

The present year has been one of the most successful in the history of the Y. M. C. A. All forms of athletics have been ably conducted. It is expected that the three large competitions will prove a fitting climax and give the public the opportunity to see some of the accomplishments of the athletic department of the association.

OGDEN WRESTLER IS AFTER MILLER

Walter Miller today received an offer from Ogden, Utah, to wrestle Joe Harbeston, a Western wrestler, who has been demanding a meeting with Mike Yokel for some time. For some reason or other Michael has declined the issue.

The little Duluth boy has been working out moderately for the past two weeks and is slowly getting back into condition. Walter stated that he is ready to meet Harbeston or any other man in the world. With the offer made more definite it is probable that Miller will go to Ogden and meet the Ogden boy.

Miller is taking daily workouts at the Catholic Athletic club, the long rest apparently doing the little fellow a world of good.

ALL-HOCKEY STARS.

International Game Planned for New York Soon.

New York, March 12.—Selection of a team of all-American stars to play the best amateur ice hockey team in Canada in this city in the near future, was announced last night. The Canadian team probably will be the All-Stars of Winnipeg, which recently defeated the Victorias of Winnipeg for the Sir Montague Allan trophy, which represents the amateur championship of Canada. The American players selected are for the most part members of teams competing in the local amateur hockey league championship tournament as follows:

The choice of rover is really divided between Morgan of the St. Nicholas and "Hobey" Baker, the brilliant Princeton player.

Baker has been asked to join the team, which he is willing to do if the Princeton faculty consents.

MARQUARD TO WED.

Will Marry Blossom Seeley, His Vaudeville Partner.

San Francisco, Cal., March 12.—Rube Marquard, former New York pitcher for the Nationals, and Blossom Seeley, a vaudeville actress, are to be married here today.

The actress was divorced from Joseph Kane, an actor, following her partnership with the baseball player in a vaudeville sketch.

Marquard gave his age as 23 and Miss Seeley confessed to 22.

HORSE RACING—MAYBE!

Its Resumption in New York State a Problem Just Now.

New York, March 12. — Whether horse racing in New York state tracks is to be resumed still was an open question after a meeting of representatives of the racing association at turf headquarters here yesterday.

"It is a difficult problem and so far we have been unable to make any definite arrangements," was the announcement made at the conclusion of the conference by Phillip J. Dwyer, who represented the Brooklyn and Queens County Jockey club.

SKATERS GIVE CLEVER STUNTS

Isabel Butler and Norval Baptie Please Patrons of Rink.

Miss Isabel Butler and Norval Baptie gave their remarkable exhibition of fancy skating at the curling club last evening. The somewhat doubtful weather kept the attendance down, but outside of the fact that the crowd was not what the officials of the club had hoped for, the exhibition was a thorough success.

Each of the performers gave an individual exhibition and then came the team skate, by far the prettiest event of the evening. The waltz figure was exceptionally well done and brought out a generous measure of applause from the crowd. The rolls and other complicated figure skating was also very cleverly executed.

Baptie gave his barrel leaping feat and then skated on stilts. In the barrel leaping act the crowd had an opportunity to judge of the amazing speed of the man who is without a peer in the speed skating line. Baptie would get up a wonderful amount of speed in a little space and then take the nine barrels like a bird on wing.

An endeavor was made to persuade some of the hockey players to race the Bathgate speed marvel, but hesitation hung like a mantel over the modest young men.

Mackmen Win.

San Antonio, Tex., March 12.—The Philadelphia American league team defeated the local team 3 to 1 yesterday.

BASEBALL NOTES.

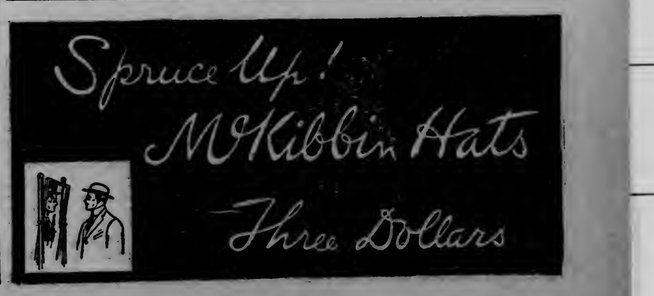
Dubuque, in the Three-I league, has signed a brother of Mike Simon of Pittsburg. Like Mike he is a catcher. Dubuque has also signed Frank Jude, the Indian, released by Peoria.

The Decatur franchise in the Three I league has been offered to Rock Island. Decatur had a disastrous season in 1912 and no interest has been shown by the fans in refinancing the club for this year.

Frank Snyder, the young catcher turned over to the Springfield Central league team by the St. Louis Cardinals, is balking on the salary offered him. A few days' feeding in the majors had a bad effect on him.

Arthur Foye, who last year was signed by the Red Sox after a great record at St. Anselm's college as a catcher, and who was later sent to Jersey City for more experience, has signed a Pittsfield contract.

Harry Bay, signed as manager of the Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, plans to give the fans a new deal there. He will discard some of the disgruntled men of last year and fill their places with new material.



ON THE IRON RANGES

POWER BEATS WEIRICK AS HIBBING PRESIDENT

Swept Into Office on Regular Old-Fashioned Political Landslide.

D.C. Hackett, Heading Business Men's Ticket, Wins Chisholm Contest.

Hibbing, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Victor L. Power, Progressive citizens' candidate for village president, turned the tables upon Dr. H. R. Weirick, now serving his sixth term as mayor of Hibbing in the election yesterday beating him by 722 to 362. The Progressive citizens' ticket was elected from top to bottom. John Curran, Robert Geiselman and B. J. Burrows succeed W. C. Barrett, Peter McHardy and Jacob Messner on the village council. D. D. Haley is elected recorder over A. H. Kleffman, the present incumbent by a majority of 529. D. D. McEachin is elected treasurer as an independent candidate in a field of seven by a majority of 148.

The vote for the other offices follows: Trustees, (three to be elected), John Kern, 690; Robert Geiselman, 679; B. J. Burrows, 707; W. C. Barrett, 376; J. B. Messner, 325; Peter McHardy, 365. Recorder, D. D. Haley, 808; A. H. Kleffman, 279. Treasurer, D. D. McEachin, 347; Hansen, 82; D. E. Corcoran, 145; Gleason, 111; Newberg, 156; Bihlaja, 86; Fisher, 195.

The election was devoid of excitement the moderate vote indicating less than the usual interest but the "quiet" vote seems to have been Dr. Weirick's undoing. The doctor was in Duluth and not on the scene to manage his campaign. He promptly wired his winning opponent his congratulations last night. Mr. Power was waited upon by a band who made the air ring with congratulations.

Winner Pleased.

"I deeply appreciate the honor the people of Hibbing have conferred upon me," said Mr. Power today, "and I am also pleased with the handsome majorities given the entire ticket. I realize the responsibilities of this position, and I shall try to give the city an administration that will be fair to every interest and that will be just as progressive as was indicated in my speech at the Armory Monday evening. I have made no plans for changes in the appointive offices of the village. I am not now prepared to say whether or not there will be any changes. Personally I shall uphold efficiency in every department of the city's affairs. The new administration has made no promises it will not sincerely endeavor to fulfil. It will start with a clean slate with no axes to grind, no grudges to be paid off and nothing but the best interests of the best city on the Mesaba range or Northern Minnesota at heart."

Is Former Ishpeming Man.

Mayor-elect V. L. Power has been a resident of Hibbing for a number of years. He is a son of John Power, one of the first citizens of Escanaba, Mich., and a pioneer of his state, who, although well advanced in years, is recognized as one of the brightest attorneys in the upper peninsula of Michigan, and is well known to many people of Hibbing. Mr. Power's first position on the iron range was assistant blacksmith at the old Chisholm mine for the Oliver Iron Mining company. Later he was employed as bookkeeper in a local store. From his earnings he saved enough money to take a course at law, and returning to Hibbing, engaged in practice. The story of his rise to be one of the most successful attorneys in Northern Minnesota is one of application, backed up by brilliant ability. He is a fine public speaker, and owns one of the handsomest homes in Hibbing. He is a man of positive convictions, the moral courage to back them up, and an aggressive and forceful business man. Just beginning a public career that his friends believe is replete with honor.

The New Trustees.

John Curran, elected trustee is at the head of the Merchants' Warehouse company, and an old resident of Hibbing.

Robert Geiselman is one of Hibbing's most popular young men. He came to Hibbing as a journeyman cigarmaker, was one of the most popular members of the city's old-time baseball team.

B. J. Burrows is at the head of the Burrows Packing company. He is also one of the best types of Hibbing's young men and his public spirit and general red-blooded interest in every movement that is for the benefit of the city has gained him recognition as one of Hibbing's real "live ones."

The New Recorder.

D. D. Haley, the new recorder, was born in Hibbing and educated in the local schools. He is a son of Dennis Haley, one of the pioneers of Hibbing and the range. He is a graduate of Marquette college of law and is just beginning life for himself.

The New Treasurer.

D. D. McEachin, elected treasurer, is one of Hibbing's oldest business men. No one elected yesterday was more deserving of that honor than Mr. McEachin. His fine vote was an indorsement from his many old friends of his worth as a man and a citizen.

Stuntz Township Results.

Al. Dixon was elected township supervisor, M. J. Cox treasurer, Victor J. Benoe clerk, Charles Erickson, Socialist, overseer of highways; Joseph Moran assessor; Erick Nord and Thomas Moore constables, and M. P. Walsh justice of the peace in the township of Stuntz.

Over 1,200 votes were cast in the township. The canvass of the vote was not completed until nearly 3 o'clock this morning. Al. Dixon, who was elected supervisor, has served on the town board before. He is a good roads advocate. M. J. Cox, the new treasurer, has a majority of 157 over John Munter, the present treasurer, who was second in the race.

Charles Erickson, the only Socialist successful in yesterday's election, has about 50 majority over S. Cupples and Victor J. Bedoe is elected clerk by a majority of 78 over J. D. Murphy. There were contests for the other offices.

Graham, justice of the peace, and George Mewhinney, treasurer, by a majority of one over A. E. Anderson, and Noah Tongo, constable.

Chisholm, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters yesterday chose D. C. Hackett, running on the business men's ticket, an old resident, village president over Victor Fugere, on the town progressive ticket, getting 454 votes to 321. Smart, 298; O. Iverson, 387; M. A. Caldwell, 29; Russ, 60; scattering, 6.

Hackett Is Liked.

The president-elect, D. C. Hackett, is among the very oldest residents of the village, coming here before the village was a year old. He has always been prominent in business circles, is a progressive and aggressive business man. He also is interested in the rich agricultural land to the north and sout hof the village, developing a forty-acre plot from the virgin forest to a productive farm. He is at present a member of the school board and has served on the school board for several consecutive terms as well as just completing the term of recorder for the village.

The trustees-elect, J. H. McNiven, Matt Borlin and William Ritchel are well known and prominent citizens, the former being agent for the Chisholm Improvement company, the McNiven Land company, and other townsite companies. He is progressive and has always been zealous in promoting the advancement of the village and country tributary to the village proper. He is much interested in the movement to set aside a tract of land embracing Sturgeon, Side and other lakes to the north as a state park.

William Ritchel is one of the most popular mining men in this section and has served on the village council before giving entire satisfaction during his term of office.

Matt Borlin was indorsed on both tickets. He is at present a member of the administration, is known as a thoroughly upright honorable business man and is extremely popular not only with his own countrymen but with all classes.

C. Minty Tramontin, elected by a large majority to the recordership, is a successful business man, is thoroughly competent to fulfill the duties to which he has been elected, is popular with the business men generally and conducts a prosperous grocery and provision business. Spartans Win in Gilbert.

Gilbert, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Sparta people won about everything in the election yesterday except president, which was won by Dr. Fred Barrett, who was given practically the support of the entire town. By a judicious balancing of candidates the remainder of the ticket was elected complete except W. J. Luke, who ran for treasurer. This is the first village in Minnesota to use the Australian ballot for village elections, and it worked very nicely. Very few voters seemed to require instruction and almost no ballots were lost.

Aurora's Lively Election.

Town of White.

The annual town meeting of the township of White was held here yesterday, and the different contestants kept things livened up until 5 o'clock, the time that the polls were declared closed.

There were twenty different tickets in the field, and the voters were kept pretty busy in the booths looking over the tickets to find the favorite man for the respective office for which they were seeking. Although close in some respects, it was not a very hard matter to judge who had the office after the judges and clerk had spent a short while in counting ballots.

The closest fight was that for supervisor, the head of one ticket running a tie for the office with the Public Ownership candidate, and they being only eight votes behind the other man.

The returns follow:

Supervisor, three years—J. J. Hudson, 96; William Groves, 88; Erik Erikson, 88.

Clerk, one year—John W. Lang, 109; J. E. West, 86; Ernest Seleimo, 76.

Outcome at Nashwauk.

Nashwauk, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—With over 200 votes cast yesterday the election was declared a tie, one vote over $30,000; that no toll would be charged to Biwabik, Eveleth, Gilbert or Mountain Iron; that maximum rates would be, for business telephones $30, for private line, $27; for two-party line, $24 for four-party line; for residence $21 for independent line, $18 for two-party and $15 for four-party. The company offered five free telephones to the city with half rates on all others ordered. The bid stated there would be a 30 cent day rate to Duluth and a 15 cent night rate with a rate not to exceed 15 cents for any distance up to twenty-five miles from Virginia and that a down town telegraph office would be maintained with postal conections.

The granting of the franchise was opposed by F. J. Lister, range manager for the Mesaba Telephone company, and by R. J. Montague and Carl R. Johnson. The speakers for the Range Telephone company were Frank Randall of Duluth, R. L. Barry of Minneapolis, J. C. Crowley of Superior, R. F. Wilder of Minneapolis. Before the vote was taken the council went into executive session. The battle by speech was continued after the aldermen had taken their seats again. Alderman McGhee was the only member of the council who spoke, saying he was convinced the people did not want two systems although he favored the automatic service. The Range Telephone company has not stated what its next step will be but it is well known that the company has made plans to continue the battle to get into the Virginia and range field.

The council accepted the invitation of the council of Eveleth to attend a smoker to be given the night of the 18th at Eveleth. That being the regular meeting night of the council in Virginia, the regular meeting will be held the night following.

LIE IS PASSED AT COUNCIL MEET

President of Virginia Council Accuses Attorney of Fabricating.

Virginia, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—"If you make that insinuation you lie," shouted President Michael Boylan at the council meeting last night to Attorney L. M. Osborne, who had addressed the council in behalf of his clients, Latz Bros., whose gasoline tank had been ordered changed to another style which the attorney intimated had been done after the representative of a certain make of tank had visited the city. The remark of the president went no further, the council giving T. Latz Bros. twenty-four hours to make the change.

Decline Phone Offer.

By a vote of 6 to 3 the council turned down the bid of the Range Telephone company, the only one received for the telephone franchise. Aldermen Moilan, Harvey and Keller voted aye. Petitions were purchased for and against the proposed franchise.

The Range Telephone company in its bid offered the following to install the automatic service: that 2 per cent on gross earnings would be paid to $30,000, and 2½ per cent on over $30,000; that no toll would be charged to Biwabik, Eveleth, Gilbert or Mountain Iron; that maximum rates would be, for business telephones $30, for private line, $27; for two-party line, $24 for four-party line; for residence $21 for independent line, $18 for two-party and $15 for four-party. The company offered five free telephones to the city with half rates on all others ordered. The council accepted the invitation of the council of Eveleth to attend a smoker to be given the night of the 18th at Eveleth. That being the regular meeting night of the council in Virginia, the regular meeting will be held the night following.

Eveleth Associated Charities to Try to Increase Membership.

Eveleth, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the local board of Associated Charities Tuesday, B. C. Prout and Rev. E. B. Peterson were elected members of the advisory committee to fill vacancies left by the dropping of members for non-attendance. An hourly freight service will commence March 16 and agencies to handle freight and passengers are being established all along the line.

The ice is still holding up but it is expected that the present week will end the curling games here for this season.

EVELETH PLANS LARGER SUPPLY

Question of Increasing the Present Water Supply Considered By Council.

Eveleth, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The taxpayers and water consumers of Eveleth are emphatically opposed to the installation of meters to measure the water consumed. The council chamber was packed with citizens last night, in response to a call by the council of a joint meeting of council and taxpayers to consider the question of additional water supply. St. Mary's lake, from which the Eveleth water supply is derived, is gradually lowering, and the city must either add to the present body of water by connecting with Ely lake or lower the present consumption of water. The consensus of opinion expressed was that the city council should add to the supply sufficiently to give the people all the water needed on the flat rate which is very low.

Plant Being Improved.

Improvements in the water works plant now under consideration are the installation of an additional pump and the lowering of all the pumps some twenty feet, the covering of the supply main and the building of a reservoir of some 5,000,000 gallons capacity on the hill near the water tank. The reservoir it is estimated would provide a reserve supply, with gravity pressure, sufficient to last the city three days, in case of accident to the pumps or a breakage of the feed main.

STATION MAN KILLED.

Dragged Nearly Mile By Train on Alger-Smith Line.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—An effort is being made to locate the relatives of Oscar Anderson, station man for the Alger-Smith company at Camp 4 on the Alger line, who was killed a few days ago near Camp 8. He was about 28 and is supposed to have a brother living at Brainerd. The body has been brought here. According to the story of his fellow workmen Anderson left Camp 4 Saturday night en route for Camp 8, a couple of miles distant, for a short visit with friends who were employed at that camp. About midnight he left Camp 8 to return to his own quarters and that was the last time he was seen alive. Anderson evidently decided to walk on the railroad track, where there were several log trains switching loaded cars and he was evidently hit by one of these trains. The body, as indications in the snow showed, was dragged over a mile, but was not badly cut. The accident was not noticed by the train crew, and it was not until the following morning that the remains were found. The body was wedged in such a manner under the cars that it was necessary to jack the cars in order to get the remains from under them.

DIFFERENCE IN TREATING LIQUOR HABIT

The ideal treatment for periodical and habitual drunkenness is the Neal Three-Day Liquor Treatment. It differs from all others in four important particulars. First, it is a harmless vegetable remedy. Second, it is administered internally. Third, it requires only three days' time to destroy all appetite and craving for alcoholic drinks. Fourth, there are no bad effects. The mildness of the treatment, the short time required and the fact that no bad after effect can possibly result, together with the absence of hypodermic injections, make the Neal Treatment the best in the world today. From the very first dose all desire for drink is destroyed and after three days' treatment the most abject alcoholic wreck again becomes a useful member of society. For information address The Neal Institute, Belknap and West Seventh street, Superior, Wis.; St. Paul Institute, 876 Dayton avenue; Minneapolis Institute, 403 South Seventh street.

CASES SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Oscar Niemi Gets $1,000 From Oliver Iron Mining Company.

Oscar Niemi has accepted $1,000 from the Oliver Iron Mining company in settlement for two suits for damages against the company brought for the benefit of himself and of his 15-year-old son, William, in which an aggregate of $12,000 was asked in damages for injuries to the boy.

Last June while the lad was playing in the vicinity of the Genoa mine he picked up a can of blasting powder, which had been left there by employes of the company. Prompted by childish curiosity, the boy set a match to the power. The explosion which followed badly burned him.

In one suit he asked $10,000 for the benefit of the boy. This was settled for $750. In the other, he sued for $2,000 for himself for loss of the boy's services. The company settled this action for $250.

Pursuant to stipulation, judgments have been entered in both cases against the company. The cases have been dropped from the March calendar.

FIVE TOWNS "WET;" THIRTY-THREE "DRY"

Result of Tuesday's Elections One Sided in Northwestern Minnesota.

Crookston, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oklee, Bronson and Brooks, small towns on the Soo, Middle River on the Great Northern-Warroad line, and Georgetown are the only towns in Northwestern Minnesota which went "wet" yesterday, out of thirty-eight towns which voted on the license question.

All four were "wet" before, excepting Oklee, which held its first election on the question. The towns which were "wet" before, which went "dry" include Argyle, Bagley and Lancaster. The only very close votes were Mentor, "dry," by 3. McIntois "dry" by 2, Bagley by 7. The others went "dry" by a tremendous majority. The only "wet" town which did not vote on the prohibition was Fisher, where saloons will continue.

AN UNUSUAL WRECK.

Three Omaha Railroad Engines Are Derailed at Roberts, Wis.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 12.—The darkness and fog early yesterday caused an unusual wreck on the Omaha railroad at Roberts, Wis.

A westbound freight extra in pulling into a sidetrack on the down grade went a little too far and the engine "fouled" the passing track. At the same time a double-header eastbound freight train arrived, and in attempting to pass the side track was scraped by the engine of the westbound train which was projecting over the passing track. As a result the three engines and five cars were derailed.

Engineer Conway of Minneapolis leaped from the cab of his engine on the eastbound train and received a serious fall. One leg was broken and several bruises were received. He was brought immediately to the Sacred Heart hospital of this city. No one else was hurt.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effects of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath but that is percisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every enunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blod of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison: it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, dissolves acid accretions, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiarformations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

The great Swift Laboratory has spent millions of dollars in perfecting, producing and placing in the hands of the public this wonderful remedy. So give your blood a good bath with S. S. S., for it knocks the worst forms of rheumatism every time.

You can get it at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood specific ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

IS ORDERED TO SEIZE DREDGE

Drainage Engineer Directed to Turn Property Over to Contractor.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—The state drainage commission has directed E. V. Willard, acting state drainage engineer, to proceed to Badger, in the northern part of the state, seize a dredge on Ditch No. 84 and to turn it over to H. Banta, a drainage contractor who has undertaken to complete the work. The dredge, according to information received by the commission, is held for Charles Bourke on a claim of $200 for hauling coal to the Standard Drainage company, the original contractor on the ditch.

Surety Attempts to Finish Work.

When the latter threw up the work the Empire Surety company proceeded to complete the ditch, but had not got fairly started when it was dissolved by the insurance commissioner of New York. The court ruled that the state of Minnesota could have the use of the dredge in order to obtain a low bid for completing the ditch.

Visitor From West Says Denver Has 3,000 Vacant Houses.

"Native Son" Spirit in Seattle---7,000 Real Estaters in Edmonton.

"Duluth in a business way is infinitely better than some of the cities of the far West," said Henry Girkler at the Spalding today. "There are something like 3,000 houses for rent in Denver at the present time, and not so long ago this was one of the most prosperous cities in the United States.

"Just where the people have gone, and the cause of their going, is a matter that is at the present time puzzling the business men of Denver.

"Out at Seattle they watch at the end of the big tunnel for the approach of the stranger. They tell you fairy stories and try to coax your roll. After you lose your lucre you are truly initiated into the native son spirit of the city.

"Believe me in saying that the picturesque tales we hear of the wonderful prosperity of the Canadian West are somewhat exaggerated. In Edmonton there are something like 7,000 real estate men. While the Canadian West is a great country and should continue to be a great country, it is also true that there is the alloy in the gold.

"On my present trip over a wide extent of territory I have enjoyed the opportunity to look over quite a few cities of this country and Canada, and I do not hesitate to say that Duluth along with some of the other cities of the immediate Northwest has infinitely better building foundations than some of the larger communities we have heard so much about."

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Mme. Teschow, who is at the Orpheum this week presenting the first troupe of trained cats ever seen in the theater, has a theory about cats.

"Most people think cats are stupid," said Mme. Teschow last evening. "Instead of being stupid they are the wisest of animals and the laziest. They prefer a comfortable bed by a warm fire to any other form of existence, and they feign stupidity. They won't do anything they don't have to do, and they want to be fed and taken care of. I find that ordinary back alley cats are the easiest to train. The lazy habits seem to be more firmly implanted in the thoroughbred cats and it is very difficult to do anything with an Angora, Persian or any of the other highly bred animals. When a cat has been trained it can do tricks no other animal can perform. A cat is the most wonderfully muscled animal in the world. In proportion to its size it has more strength and agility than any animal I know of. It is the most sure-footed of all beasts, as is shown by the manner in which one of the animals in my act runs across a row of pickets. It simply races across them. What other animal could do that? One of the most difficult tricks to teach them is to jump through a hoop of fire. A singed cat dreads the fire you know, and I guess all cats have been singed."

Tonight's performances will close the first half of this week's bill at the Empress theater. The Wellington Trio has been the hit of the bill. The singing and actions of the three boys are more than pleasing. At every performance they have been encored and encored. The boys will be booked over big time in the East very soon. Another good act is that of Vance and Vance, singers, dancers and talkers. Many good jokes are sprung by them and beautiful songs pleasingly rendered. Gormley and Gaffrey do many comical stunts in acrobatics. Bulger's trained goats are entertaining. Incidentally they are eating up all the stray paper at the Empress theater. The bill is completed by good up-to-date pictures and photoplays.

Coming to the Empress theater for three days commencing tomorrow, is Hal Stephens' breezy musical play, "A Broken Idol." Harry Keesler and Alice Clark will be seen in the principal roles. They will be supported by a very large singing and dancing company and the production will be seen here with all the wealth of scenic and costume embellishment that characterized its former presentation at $1.50 prices.

FIREMEN HAVE MANY RESPONSIBILITIES

Witnesses Say They Have Been Increased in Recent Years.

New York, March 12. — Charles A. Kauffman, a fireman on the Baltimore & Ohio, was the first witness called today before the arbitration committee chosen to settle the controversy between Eastern railroads and their firemen. Kauffman said that greater responsibilities had been imposed upon firemen in recent years. Tonnage of trains had increased and coal consumption was greater.

Frederick A. Murphy, another Baltimore & Ohio fireman, corroborated Kauffman. He added that in the efforts of the railroads to observe the 16-hour law of continous service, firemen frequently were relieved from duty long distances from home and received no pay for the time consumed in returning.

Charles P. Hubler, an engineer on the Lackawanna, testified that a request for an extra fireman on heavy engines had been granted by the company in November, 1911, but that the extra man had been withdrawn just before the firemen had entered their present demands.

"Do you think the company took off the extra man on account of these proceedings?" asked Judge Chambers.

"I'd hate to say. That is what is in the minds of many of the firemen."

A butcher on the hillside who evidently has some apparently uncollectable accounts on his books, has adopted publicity methods of his own to aid collections.

In this window he has hung a sign announcing that if all the back bills are not paid within a certain time he will tell the people the names of the delinquents.

That it isn't a bluff is made plain by the several names which adorn the space beneatn the announcement.

One offended customer called up the police this morning and indignantly demanded that they arrest the butcher. The police advised him that if he had a grievance the proper procedure would be for him to consult an attorney.

Acute alcoholism is assigned as the cause of the death of Peter Sima, who died yesterday at St. Mary's hospital. Sima was taken from the Maine hotel on Lake avenue by the police Monday night. He was in a dying condition and lived but a few hours after being taken to the hospital. The body is at Crawford's morgue pending funeral arrangements.

Pearl McDonald said this morning that James Coakley is trying to reform her.

She explained that he evidenced his desire to reform her by taking her from Madame Marguerite's boarding house on St. Croix avenue and by securing a common room for themselves in a European hotel with none too savory a reputation.

She didn't know whether or not she would marry Coakley. She explained that a girl has to be pretty careful and find out all about a man before marrying him. Pearl is 33 years old and has had some experience with matrimonial bliss, although she has not seen her other half for nine years and hasn't investigated a report that he has shuffled off this mortal coil.

The police state that Coakley is a switchman, 25 years old, and that he has been about town for several months. As far as the officials knew Coakley has not been doing any work. He forfeited $15 bail. Pearl admitted that she was a woman of easy virtue and got $50 and costs or sixty days in the county jail. Sentence was stayed to give her an opportunity to get out of town. Pearl said her other name is Victoria de Rosier.

Detectives Toewe and Bradley and Patrolman Harling walked into the back room of Albin Ilanda's saloon at 411½ West Michigan street yesterday afternoon and found a crowd of men playing cards. They placed them under arrest on charges of gambling. In police court this morning Ilanda forfeited $25 bail, Max Ball $15 bail, while $5 each was forfeited by Adam Mittar, Louis Smigie, Steve Cutorilo and Steve Sebolski. The cases against John Savich and Frank Schmidt were dismissed.

John Brown, bartender at the saloon at 411½ West Michigan street, where the card players were arrested, was found not guilty and discharged in police court yesterday afternoon when he was tried on a charge of keeping the bar open on Sunday. The court found that the evidence was not sufficient to show that Brown was operating the bar. The defendant claimed that he was down in the morning to clean the place up. A man who explained that he had attended church in the morning testified that he went to the saloon to call for Brown to accompany him to dinner. He asserted that no liquor was sold or served while he was there.

Mary Mark, the Smithville woman recently convicted of blindpigging, was granted a new trial yesterday afternoon. She entered a plea of guilty and the sentence reduced to $50 from $100, which she paid. It developed that she has a small baby, who needs her attention at home. She would have had to serve a month in jail had the fine not been reduced.

DATE STILL UNCERTAIN

Navigation Will Open Between April 1 and April 20.

Ice in the Harbor Not as Thick as Last Season.

H. W. Richardson, weather observer at Duluth, is authority for the statement that the ice conditions in the harbor of Duluth-Superior are more nearly normal than last year at this time. When he took his last measurements the ice in the harbor was thirty-four inches thick. This was about two inches less than last year at this time, but from five to six inches more than the normal. Mr. Richardson believes that the navigation season will open much sooner than this year than last. That is the opinion of lake men in guesses of from April 1 to April 20. Floating ice in the lake is the great matter of doubt. Until that will have been dispensed with, they feel, navigation's opening will not be sure—that is, as to date.

Of course, the opening of the Soo is the criterion, but vesselmen are not anxious to have their boats "buck" the fields of ice that sometimes ravage fleets on Superior.

As to rates being offered, 2¼ cents for grain still holds good with but few takers. Vessel owners demand a quarter of a cent higher, and as about everything floatable is loaded, or was shartered last fall at better storage-first-cargo prices there is not much anxiety on either side. They are willing to let matters take their course as rates are expected to adjust themselves after the season opens.

An immense amount of ore tonnage has been chartered. That was early in the winter, and it is expected that before the first of the coming month, about all the ore that will be shipped down the lakes will be placed. The ore rate is higher than ever before and it is almost conceded now that the movement will be heavier than the Great Lakes have ever known.

"TEMPEST IN A TEA POT"

Board of Public Welfare Issues Statement On Pending Ordinance.

Board's Position Publicly Discussed and Approved Last Year.

Secretary Courtenay Dinwiddie of the welfare board believes that a "tempest in a tea pot" seems to have been started by the ordinance now before the council authorizing the next commissioner of public affairs, when he qualifies, to appoint an inspector of playgrounds and sometimes referred to as a "social center expert."

The welfare board's position regarding this ordinance, he says, has not been generally understood. Today the board gave out a statement bearing on the situation, as follows:

"The position in question was thoroughly and publicly discussed and approved last year, and was provided for in the 1913 appropriation made to the board of public welfare, but under the new charter has to be reauthorized by the council or the incoming commissioners.

"The welfare board has not at any time asked that it be given the power to appoint a social center director, but has desired that this matter be left to the incoming commissioners.

"The board was reluctant to bring up the matter of this appointment at this time at all, preferring to leave it entirely to the new commission. However, it had been urged before the board that the adoption of an ordinance by the present council would clear the way for early action by the commissioners. There was some doubt as to what saving of time, if any, would be effected by such action. It was only in view of the insistent demand that there should be as little delay as possible in this matter that the board finally voted to refer the matter to the city attorney.

"The board has felt that the gain in time by the passing of such an ordinance would be so slight, if, in fact, there would be any gain, that it took no part in the drafting of the ordinance under consideration, and has not urged its passage in any way, preferring to leave the matter entirely to the judgment of the common council.

"The only concern of the welfare board at present is that the petty question of whether the present council shall or shall not pass the ordinance may not in any way obscure the real and genuine public demand for the organization of social center work that was expressed last year in the school election, in public meetings, in conferences, in newspaper articles and interviews, and in many other ways."

HAVE LOST MONEY IN FREE FARES

Lumber Companies Out Large Sum in Money Advanced Men.

According to the statement of several employment agents of Duluth, large lumber companies have lost heavily during the present season in the matter of paying out fares in the endeavor to get laborers, and then have the laborers go some place else.

All of the large lumbering companies during the course of the present season have willingly volunteered free fare in order to secure men to do the work. Work has been rushing and men exceedingly scarce this season. According to the manager of a certain employment house here, one company in this section of the state has expended something like $5,000 in free fares and has received very little result from it.

There is a heavy demand for men at the present time with few laborers in sight.

THREE FIRES AT THE SAME TIME

Department Gets Letter of Congratulation From Duluth Jobber.

When the fire alarm was turned in from the F. A. Patrick building last evening two others were received from opposite ends of the city. Although all the companies near the last two were out the alarms were answered without loss of time.

The shelter house of the public skating rink at Twenty-fifth avenue east and Fourth street was destroyed by fire last evening. The cause of the blaze is unknown. The Lakeside company made a fast run to the fire with the automobile chemical and hose, the other companies having been called to the F. A. Patrick wholesale house.

About the same time an alarm was turned in from the Alger-Smith mill on Garfield avenue and No. 4 engine was dispatched from the Patrick fire to answer that call, which proved to be a false alarm. Although the three alarms came in a bunch, with one from the wholesale district, the local department handled all of them with dispatch and without confusion, a testimonial to the perfection of the organization of the Duluth fire department.

The department received a congratulatory message from F. A. Patrick & Co. this morning complimenting them upon the manner in which the fire in their building was handled last evening.

RALPH M'KENZIE DIES AT FARGO

Was Engaged in Newspaper Work in Duluth Years Ago.

Word was received in Duluth today of the death at Fargo, N. D., last night of Ralph McKenzie, formerly a well-known newspaper man of this city. Mr. McKenzie was connected with Duluth newspapers about twenty years ago, being at one time editorial writer on the Tribune when it was under the management of Fred J. Chipman. He later went to St. Paul where he was in newspaper work for several years. Subsequently he went to Washington and, upon the recommendation of Judge Page Morris, then congressman from this district, secured an appointment in the Federal service. Of late years he was a special agent of the interstate commerce commission, and his work carried him all over the country. He was in Duluth a few years ago on a trip of investigation.

Mr. McKenzie was of Scotch descent and had relatives residing in Anoka county. He was a graduate of the University of Minnesota and taught school for a short time after graduating, then entering newspaper work. Many old friends in Duluth will regret to hear of his death.

"WEARY WILLIES" OCCUPY HOMES

Quite a Colony Housed in Cottages at Lake Minnetonka.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Numerous summer cottages owned by wealthy St. Paul and Minneapolis people in the neighborhood of Lake Minnetonka, housed a colony of thieves and "weary Willies" throughout the winter. Traces of the uninvited guests were found recently by the owners when they went to prepare the cottages for the summer season.

The houses left last fall carefully closed, were found to have been occupied, provisions had been taken from cellars and the tramps had made use of musical instruments in the houses.

H. A. Balthuff of Minneapolis, owner of a summer home near Lake Minnetonka, found that his cottage had been occupied until a few days before and that the phonograph he had carefully packed away, had been in use. The machine was found on a table with a record, "You'll Remember Me," adjusted ready for playing.

CONCRETE SNOWSHEDS.

Proven to Be Valuable and Great Northern Plans Building More.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—The superiority of the concrete snow shed in averting disastrous mountain slides over that of the timber-constructed shed is proved by the announcement of the Great Northern railroad that they will erect three additional concrete sheds in the Cascade and Rocky mountains during the coming season.

Concrete for the construction of a snow shed was first used by the Great Northern engineers and is soon to replace the old wooden sheds on this road.

"The greatest value of the concrete shed," said J. A. Bohland, bridge engineer of the road, "is its indestructibility by forest fires."

OLDER BOYS' CONGRESS

Important Conference in Connection With Sunday School Convention.

About 200 Delegates Expected From Outside of the City.

In connection with the state Sunday school convention to be held in Duluth March 27 to 30, there is to be an older boys' congress on Saturday and Sunday, March 29 and 30.

These boys' conferences are proving very popular all over the country; in one held in Maine last month there were over 600 older boys in attendance. The congress will open in Duluth Saturday morning and all the sessions will be held in the Danish-Norwegian M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. Each Sunday school in Duluth will be entitled to send six delegates and all the Sunday schools in the state will be represented.

John L. Alexander, International Sunday school secretary and one of the best informed men on boys' work in the country, will be the leading speaker. Mr. Alexander was one of the experts in the Men and Religion movement and is a recognized authority on boys' work. He is a very magnetic speaker and knows how to hold the attention of older boys.

The outside boy delegates will be entertained in the homes of Duluth boys. C. H. Graves has been appointed chairman of the entertainment committee and he is busy securing places. It is expected that there will be at least 200 boys from outside of Duluth.

Program of Congress.

The congress will open Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The first item of business will be the enrolling of the delegates, and the organizing of committees. The conference theme will be "Training and Service." At 9:20 J. E. Hauter will conduct devotional services. This will be followed by a paper on "How to Increase the Attendance at Sunday School." Ralph Dunning of the Endion Sunday school will prepare and read the paper. Richard Cullum will present a paper on "Why Older Boys Do Not Attend Sunday School." John L. Alexander of Chicago will lead the discussion. At 11 o'clock Dr. Robert Yost will give an address on "Motives," and the morning session will close with an address on "The Challenge," by Mr. Alexander.

The afternoon will be devoted to recreation, the weather is favorable the boys will be entertained by an automobile ride. At 4 o'clock there will be a period at the swimming pool. At 6:30 there will be a banquet with after-dinner speeches by the delegates. At 8 o'clock F. H. Brigham, general secretary of the Wisconsin Sunday School association, will give a talk on the "The Place of the Older Boy in the Sunday School," and Mr. Alexander will close the evening program with an address on "Go to It." Sunday afternoon there will be a big rally to be addressed by Mr. Alexander.

The following committee has been appointed by the state association: N. D. McLeod, chairman; Mr. Lundgren, secretary, and Messrs. Lee, McCabe, H. Anderson, Andreson, Rakowsky, Graves, Wheeler, Wollan, Gifford, Batchelor, Forward, Wilson, Jacobson, Reichert, Donner, Cordner and Waldron.

Civil War Story.

A Civil war story is again the feature at the Lyric theater, and its realism is said to be startling. It is entitled "The Coward's Atonement," and it embodies some of the most fascinating and enthralling incidents yet put on canvass in Duluth, it is claimed. Strong love scenes abound in it, and that ample fountain of sentiment and romance—the struggle between the North and the South a half century ago—is drawn upon for heart-stirring interest.

TELLS HOW HE LOST HIS WIFE

Chicago Mission Worker Relates Experience With "Gentleman Burglar."

Mother of His Five Children Finally Went Away With Him.

Chicago, March 12.—Deserted by his wife and struggling to keep his five small children together, Rev. Nestor K. Clarkson, a mission worker of this city, today told of how the woman left him to go with Owen W. Conn, the confessed "society" burglar, now under arrest in San Francisco.

It was a love letter, intercepted by the clergyman, written by Conn, when he was serving a term in the penitentiary at Waupun, Wis., for robbery committed in Milwaukee, which first convinced Mr. Clarkson of his wife's infidelity. The letter was moderate in tone and regret for the necessity of this moderation was expressed. Reference was made in the letter to the "deceitfulness" of some other woman whose name was not mentioned. "Mabel" (Mrs. Clarkson) was thanked for a pair of slippers which she had sent to the writer at the prison.

Clarkson wrote to Conn and asked him to leave Mrs. Clarkson alone. To this letter Conn replied that his intentions were perfectly honorable.

Met Conn in Jail.

Clarkson said he married the woman twelve years ago when she was 18 years of age. She met Conn while acting as a jail missionary, and her devotion to him developed from her attempts to reform him, according to the husband.

In due time Conn was released from prison and returned to Chicago. He professed religion and frequently visited at the Clarkson home. His interest in the housewife, and her interest in him, however, became so apparent that even the children noticed it and told their father that they were afraid Conn would "try to marry mamma." Clarkson tried to break up the attachment, but was accused of unjust and unmanly suspicions.

The break came last Christmas eve when Mr. Clarkson met Conn and Mrs. Clarkson and another couple on the North side. He asked his wife to decide finally whether she would go with him or with Conn.

"I'll go with Mr. Conn," she replied. "Two weeks ago," related the missionary, "Mrs. Clarkson called up over the telephone and asked if she might see the babies. She would not tell me where she was. She wouldn't answer questions as to her condition and said she only wanted to look upon her children once again.

"I was compelled to decline," concluded Mr. Clarkson.

ARMOUR BUYS; WHEAT RISES

Downward Trend Comes to Sudden End When Magnate Purchases.

Slackness of Demand for Flaxseed Sends Values Still Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 12.—What started out to be a very bearish day on the wheat markets of North America was converted into a bullish day late in the session by the Armour purchases. Duluth May wheat closed today ½@⅝c lower. Cash wh at closed 2@1⅝c under May. Durum closed ⅛c higher, oats ¼c up, rye, unchanged and barley 1c higher. Duluth May and July flaxseed closed ⅛c lower.

Wheat was very erratic on the markets of North America this morning. Early in the day the situation was bearish in the extreme. Reports of fine weather in the winter wheat country, and of farmers getting at their spring work in many parts of the West, particularly South Dakota, while some news to the effect that the same thing was going on in Southern Alberta was received, all helped the bearish feeling. Moreover the primary receipts were still very large in comparison with those of a year ago. Late in the morning there was an upturn, caused, it would seem, by the heavy buying of the Armour interests at Chicago.

Duluth May wheat, which closed yesterday at 85⅝c bid, opened today at the same figure bid, then had quite a drop, but rallied later and at noon was selling for 86c. There were corresponding gains shown at noon in the quotations at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Liverpool wheat today closed ½d to ⅝d lower. That market was beared by the decline at Buenos Ayres yesterday, cheaper La Plata offers for cargoes about to arrive, and an official bearish German report. The decline was checked by news of fewer Manitoba offers and a better inquiry for Australian wheat, which was firmly held.

Flaxseed Is Easy.

Country offers of flaxseed on the Duluth market today were quite liberal, while crushers were not at all active in the demand, and the result was a bearish movement. Duluth May flax at noon today was ¼c lower while July was unchanged. Winnipeg May at noon was ⅜c lower at $1.12⅝, being 15⅜c under the Duluth May price. Minneapolis cash seed at noon was 2c under Duluth May, showing a decidedly poor demand on the part of the crushers of that city. Buenos Ayres May seed last night closed unchanged at $1.21⅜. London-Calcutta March today closed unchanged at $1.56⅝.

MARKET GOSSIP.

The Chicago Paint and Varnish Record says:

"Linseed oil market during the past week has been rather quiet, although sensitive to fluctuations of seed, so that trading has been light. The volume of oil going into consumption is fairly large, but this represents deliveries on contracts which were made months ago. The interest in futures is light and buyers have assumed a waiting attitude, basing their ideas on the possibility of May and July options declining.

"On Monday, Feb. 24, the carload price for strictly pure linseed oil in cooperage, f. o. b. Chicago, was reduced to 44c per gal and 45c for boiled. This was a decline of 2c per gal, the influence of which was immediately felt throughout the market, and jobbing prices were reduced accordingly so that the quotation at the present time is 43c per gal in single barrel lots for pure raw oil. Even this decline has not seemed to stimulate any great volume of business. The trade in general are of the opinion that prices are going to be favorable and they, therefore, are satisfied with the present outlook.

"The linseed cake market does not show any particular change; prices are quoted f. o. b. Chicago at $23.50@24.00 per ton, with liberal supplies and few buyers."

J. H. Scofield, a farmer of Ward county, N. D., who has extensive holdings of farm land near Minot, was a visitor on the Duluth Board of Trade today. Mr. Scofield said that about 75 per cent of last year's flax crop of Ward county still lay under the snow, and farmers expected to thresh it this spring.

B. H. Woodworth of the Woodworth Elevator company of Minneapolis was a guest on the Duluth Board of Trade today.

A wire from Minneapolis says: "Wheat stocks show an increase of 170,000 bu for the first four days of this week. The load is getting heavier every day."

A Minneapolis brcker wired: "I think the bull crowd who have controlled the Chicago market the past two years are out of their wheat and the market is going to be allowed to drift. This means much lower prices. With two or three days more like yesterday and today, farmers in South Dakota will be busy seeding."

A. P. Allensworth to B. E. Baker: "Field work is in full swing in Southern Alberta. Moisture is abundant. There is no seeding yet."

Opinions that grain dealers of the Duluth exchange express in regard to the solution of the elevator situation are various. Today some declared that such weather as has prevailed of late promises a bay clear of ice quite early in the spring, and that means the easy movement of boats under the spouts of the grain elevators, furnishing needed relief long before the opening of navigation. The recent snow fall, they say, will help to rot the ice, which, when it begins to go, will go in a hurry.

Information that Duluth grain men have received from Minneapolis indicates that the congestion there is even more of a problem than it is at Duluth, although it is hard to get an admission from any of the elevator men of that city that this is the case.

Last Saturday the total amount of grain in the public storage houses of Minneapolis was 23,626,000 bu. It is estimated that the private stocks, such as those in the flour and linseed oil mills, will bring this total up to about 30,000,000 bu. It is thought that the storage houses of the city cannot handle more than this, although the total storage capacity is given at 35,550,000 bu, as allowance must be made for the sorting of the different kinds and grades. It seems hardly likely, therefore, that Minneapolis will be used to any considerable extent for the storage of bonded grain from Western Canada.

The increase in the amount of grain in store at Minneapolis has been slow, however, compared with the increase at Duluth, as Minneapolis mills have kept grinding wheat and shipping flour, and wheat has also been shipped in large quantities to country millers. There is no difficulty now in getting cars for shipment of wheat, flour or other merchandise out of Minneapolis.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Declines on Report That Germany's Reserve Is Heavier.

Chicago, March 12.—Wheat declined today largely as a result of the German official report making farm reserves 16,000,000 bu heavier than a year ago. Fine weather in this country counted also against the bulls. The decline, however, was checked by fair buying on the part of shorts. Opening prices were ⅜c lower to ⅛@¼c higher. May started at 89¾c to 89¾c, unchanged to ⅝c down, and fell to 89¼c. Subsequently a decided upturn took place because of active export trade. The close was nervous, with May ¼c net higher at 89⅞c.

Corn showed steadiness owing to relatively firm cables. May opened the same as last night to ⅛c higher at 52¼c to 52¼c and rose to 52⅜@52½c. Bull houses were credited with giving the market support. The close was firm at 52¾c for May, ⅝c above last night.

Scantiness of demand hardened the oats market. May, which started unchanged to ⅛c off at 32⅝c to 32¾c, advanced to 32⅝@32¾c.

Higher prices for hogs carried provisions upward. First sales were at last night's level to 12½c higher, with May $20.70 to $20.75 for pork, $10.52½ to $10.55 for lard and $10.65 to $10.72½ for ribs.

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Becomes Oversold and Shows Strength Late in Day.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 12.—Wheat became oversold, shorts were forced to cover and market very strong late today. Early selling caused prices to sell down to the lowest in two months. Minneapolis was relatively stronger than outside markets. May closed ⅝c higher than yesterday, July ⅝@⅞c higher and September ¾@⅞c higher. Local elevator stocks increased 170,000 bu for four days. May opened 84½c; high, 85⅛@85¼c; low, 83¾@83⅞c; closed 84⅞@85c. July opened 86⅞c; high, 87¾c; low, 86c; closed, 87¼c. September opened 87c; high, 88@88½c; low, 86⅝c; closed, 87⅞c.

Cotton Market.

New York, March 12.—Cotton opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 4 points in sympathy with steady Liverpool cables.

There was some foreign buying here as well as scattered covering and a continued demand from certain of the Wall Street houses recently credited with covering shorts, but offerings increased after the call, and the market eased off to a little under the closing figures of last night. Private reports claiming an increase of 5 per cent in the Texas acreage, and favorable reports as to new crop prospects from Eastern belt points, seemed to inspire more or less local selling.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 12.40; middling gulf, 12.65; sales, none.

Futures closed steady; bids: March, 12.14; April, 11.92; May, 11.82; June, 11.76; July, 11.75; August, 11.66; September, 11.42; October, 11.37; December, 11.39; January, 11.35.

London Stocks.

London, March 12.—American securities opened steady and from ¼ to 3 points higher. Prices declined for a time, but improved again at the end of the first hour under the lead of Canadian Pacific. Later Southern Pacific jumped a point, but the rest of the list sagged a fraction on profit-taking. The close was steady.

Chicago Livestock.

HEAVINESS IN STOCKS

Reports of More Gold Shipments to Germany Have Bearish Effect.

Call Loans Touch 6 Per Cent, Highest of the Year.

New York, March 12.—The covering movement which assumed large proportions yesterday, was carried further today. More cheerful feeling in London was again reflected in bidding up of American stocks there, and influenced the opening here. Many stocks were quoted from 2 to 4 points above the week's lowest and traders operated cautiously owing to the extent of the rise. The market became dull and there was some scattered realizing which cut into the early advance so that by noon the list was about midway between yesterday's closing and the highest of the morning. Bonds were steady.

Higher prices for American stocks in London influenced the opening here and there was a general advance. Best gains were made in the international stocks. Canadian Pacific led the advance with a rise of over 3 points. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Can. Smelting and Amalgamated rose a point each.

Eagerness to market stock at the initial prices caused an average setback of half a point and trading became sluggish.

Elimination of a large part of the short interest left the market in a more vulnerable position for bear pressure, and stocks were offered down gradually without much opposition.

Union Pacific, Amalgamated and Steel yielded most easily, and sugar dropped 3 points on its unfavorable annual report.

Renewal of liquidation in Goodrich, which fell 5 points to 35½, a new low record, gave point to the severe and sharp discrimination shown against certain collateral in loans.

Call money rose to 5 per cent which added to the troubles of the bulls and accentuated the decline already in progress. Leading stocks converted their early advances to 1 to 2 points into losses of ½ a point or more. Union Pacific ruled a point below yesterday's closing and Amalgamated 1⅜. Minor industrials were very weak. Goodrich fell more than 8 points, the preferred 6½, Woolworth 4 and Underwood 3.

The market closed heavy. Reports that negotiations were under way to ship $20,000,000 more gold to Germany and that Berlin was bidding 9 per cent here for short time loans, complicated the local money situation and forced higher rates for all accommodations. Call loans touched 6 per cent, the highest of the year. Pressure on stocks relaxed to some extent in the closing hour and there was a marked diminution in the volume of business. The general sentiment, however, continued bearish and there was little recovery from the low level.

INDUSTRIAL HOME SCHOOL IS PLANNED

For Dependent, Neglected or Delinquent Girls in St. Louis County.

County Assessor Bill Killed in Senate By Overwhelming Vote.

House Committee Reports the County Division Bill for Passage.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Louis county is empowered to establish an industrial home school for dependent, neglected or delinquent girls, under an amendment to the juvenile court law proposed in a bill introduced in the senate this morning by Senator Cheadle of Duluth. The law is also amended so as to include within its provisions girls up to the age of 21. It is required that the juvenile courts shall send to this institution all girls coming before them, unless they are vicious, and that domestic sciences shall be taught there. If the county board spends more than $5,000 in any one year to establish such a school, or more than $3,000 a year to maintain it, the approval of the district judges must be secured. The board may also establish a similar school for boys.

The house passed the Campbell mothers' pension bill with nine votes only dissenting.

For Selling Foreign Bonds.

The state board of investment, if a bill introduced in the house this morning by Representatives F. H. McGarry of Walker and G. W. Burrows of Breckinridge becomes a law, will be enabled to dispose of foreign bonds held by the state and invest the proceeds in the development bonds of subdivisions of the state. At present this cannot be done except by the unanimous vote of the investment board, but under the proposed law a majority of the board can act. This is one of the

ANOTHER EFFORT TO PROCURE METHODS

Doctors Would Learn How German Physician Prepares Vaccine.

Washington, March 13.—Director J. F. Anderson of the government's hygienic laboratory, who has begun the test for the public health service of Dr. E. F. Friedmann's tuberculosis culture, will leave tonight for New York to again confer with the Berlin doctor upon his return from Canada.

Dr. Anderson will join Dr. A. M. Stimson of the public health service, who is watching the development in patients treated in New York hospitals by Dr. Friedmann, and another effort will be made to procure the method of preparing the vaccine which Dr. Friedmann has withheld, making the condition that the government must recognize improvements in the condition of patients already treated before he reveals the secret of his mixing method and the dose.

The public health service today procured reasonable verification of the report that Dr. Friedman, as far back as last July, applied to this government for a patent on his remedy. Though such applications are in the secret archives of the patent office, information relating to Dr. Friedmann's intention is said to have come through a foreign source. No patent, however, has been issued.

It also was pointed out that no commercial firm could introduce any such vaccine into the country without the approval of the public health service, which approval could only come after thorough tests.

MANY HAVE ALREADY FLED FROM CITY

Men Named in Firebug's Confession Missing From Chicago.

Chicago, March 13.—Henry Cohen, a fire insurance adjuster and named in the confessions of John Danles and Benjamin Fink, as one "higher up" in the arson ring, was brought into court today but could not furnish the required bond of $40,000 and was placed in jail.

Assistant State's Attorney Johnston, in charge of arson investigation, admitted today that many of the business men and fire loss adjusters named in the stories of Fink and Danles have fled the city. For this reason he said that the issuance for warrants for persons whose names have only recently been brought into the case would proceed without waiting for action by the grand jury.

The South Ashland avenue structure known as "arson house," with the burning of which Cohen is charged specifically, was burned five times. Each time, it is said, the house was fitted with cheap furniture, insured, burned and the insurance money collected.

NESS TO BE TRIED IN MAY FOR BRIBERY.

Bismarck, N. D., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ben J. Ness, charged with attempting to bribe two members of the state legislature to vote against the anti-snuff bill, was released from the Burleigh county jail under bonds of $2,000, after spending about ten days behind the bars. The next term of the Burleigh county district court will be held in Bismarck in May, with Judge Nuessle presiding, and at that time Ness will be arraigned for trial. He will be represented by a Bismarck firm of attorneys, Niles & Koffle, while the prosecution will be in the hands of the state's attorney of Burleigh county and the attorney general.

REAPPORTIONMENT TO BE SPECIAL ORDER IN THE SENATE ON FRIDAY

HAS DONE GOOD WORK FOR REAPPORTIONMENT

SENATOR JULIUS A. COLLER Of Scott County, Who Has Gained a Number of Southern Minnesota Votes for Reapportionment Bill.

House Membership Is Increased Four Over the Original Bill.

Pless Renews Fight for Restoration of Capital Punishment.

Bill for Taxation of Memberships in Trading Exchanges.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate this morning by the adoption of the report of the committee on reapportionment made the reapportionment bill, as amended in committee, a special order for tomorrow morning. It is expected to pass, and as there will be slight disagreements between senate and house, the appointment of a conference committee is likely.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate committee on reapportionment, after a session lasting two hours, yesterday afternoon voted to recommend the house reapportionment bill for passage as amended, and also to recommend that it be made a special order for tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Senator Victor L. Johnson, chairman of the committee, in anticipation of this action had made arrangements to have the bill engrossed last night, so that it might be ready to be reported this morning. In the ordinary course of business this would be impossible, as the bill would have to go back to the house engrossing room so that the amendments could be worked in, an operation that would have taken a day or two if Senator Johnson had not made the arrangements he did.

A number of amendments were adopted, the most important of which

INQUIRY IS PROPOSED

Investigation Into Relationship Between Low Wages and Vice.

Joint Legislative Committee Planned, to Report Next Session.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota may have an investigation into the relationship between low wages and vice, on the plan of the O'Hara investigation now in progress in Illinois.

Yesterday afternoon Representatives Kneeland of Minneapolis, Orr of St. Paul and Pfaender of New Ulm introduced in the house a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee of three senators and six house members to go into this subject and report at the next session.

This action followed the revelations of the Illinois committee, and resulted from the appeal of Lieutenant Governor Barrett O'Hara of Illinois to Governor Eberhart of Minnesota that this state follow the example of Illinois. Governor Eberhart transmitted the O'Hara communication to the legisla-

AID POLICE TO PRESERVE ORDER

One Thousand Citizens of Akron, Ohio, Arm Themselves With Clubs.

Akron, Ohio, March 13.—One thousand citizens armed with clubs aided the police today in preserving order in the vicinity of the big rubber factories. The strikers did not attempt to molest the workers.

More citizens will be sworn in today. Hundreds of automobiles have been placed at the disposal of the officials and the police are prepared for any trouble which may develop.

W. D. Haywood, the leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, may not be permitted to stay in Akron when he arrives today. A delegation of citizens will meet him and present him with a return trip to Paterson, N. J.

THREE AUTO TRUCKS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire Guts Garage of Fuel Company in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three automobile trucks and one large touring car were destroyed early today in a fire that gutted the garage of the Northwestern Fuel company here.

The fire was the result of an explosion in the gasoline tank of one of the cars when it was being filled. Mike Brown, Mike Kelley, Herman Bermeyer and R. Bermeyer, chauffeurs, and automobile mechanics employed by the fuel company, had difficulty in escaping from the garage. They were slightly burned.

Firemen put out the fire before much damage had been done, to the building, but could not save the cars. The damage to the automobiles is estimated at $15,000.

"LIVING WAGE" COMMISSION

Chicago Employers to Be Represented on Trip to East.

Women of Underworld Write Letters to the Senate Committee.

Chicago, March 13.—Chicago employers are planning to have representatives form a detachment of the investigators who will travel through the East with the "living wage" commission of the Illinois senate, according to developments that came today. Especially an effort will be made to have the delegation meet President Wilson at Washington, D. C. A formal invitation to the employers was to be mailed by Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara from Springfield today.

It is now expected that the party will leave Chicago March 20. The itinerary includes stops at New York, Albany, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The governors of each state visited will be called on and an appointment is planned with President Wilson.

The lead of the Illinois senate in its inquiry is being followed by many states where similar investigations are promised.

Mock at Work.

Reformers and the unreformed—the senatorial vice investigation commission and the women for whose moral downfall the commission is trying to determine the causes—differed in relation between low wages and low morality. Letters received by the commission from women of the underworld mocked at the work which the members are doing.

One of these letters, signed K. R. L. reads:

"To the commission: Girls do not go wrong because they are hungry or because they need clothes. They go wrong because they are tempted by

WELCOME MOISTURE IN NORTH DAKOTA

Snow Melting and Soaking in Gladdens Hearts of Farmers.

Fargo, N. D., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nearly every section of North Dakota is visited today by precipitation in most localities it is in the form of snow that melts as it falls In a few places the fall is heavy. The recent warm weather softened the top of the ground so the moisture is soaking in. While the ground was wet last fall there has been less than the usual snowfall this winter and today's storm will prove a boon to farmers.

SONORA STATE TROOPS ENGAGE THE FEDERALS IN BATTLE IN NOGALES

Firing Begins at Daybreak and Bullets Cross Into United States.

American Troops Unlimber Guns and Are Ready for Emergency.

Doctor Reports Seventeen of Defenders Killed and Many Wounded.

Nogales, Ariz., March 13.—Firing began at daybreak on three sides of the Mexican town of Nogales. The Sonora state troops used grenades in their attack.

Numerous bullets crossed the international boundary during the early hours of the day to the residence district.

About 8 o'clock the firing became desultory. Col. Kosterlitzky sent for Dr. A. L. Gustetter to care for the wounded.

Seventy-four Chinamen, under guard from the immigration office, have been removed to the American side for safety.

Seventeen Killed.

At 8:30 o'clock Dr. Gustetter who had crossed the line to attend the wounded, reported that seventeen of the defenders had been killed and eleven hurt. At this time the firing became scattering and was mostly centered upon the left flank.

The United States troops patrolling the border unlimbered two machine guns on Titcomb hill, commanding the two towns.

Displays Men on Border.

At the outbreak of the battle Capt. C. C. Smith, in charge of the Fifth United States cavalry, deployed his men along the border and sent word to Fort Huachuca that the fight had opened. The morning however, had been anticipated and before daybreak a train bearing three additional troops of cavalry and a machine gun platoon, under command of Major Tate was on the way to the scene of hostilities.

The American troops guarded the border to prevent either party crossing the line and warned residents of the American town to keep inside their houses to avoid stray bullets which

OXFORD WINS ANNUAL RACE

Defeats Cambridge Quarter of Length After Close Struggle.

Cambridge in the Lead More Than Half the Entire Course.

Putney, Eng., March 13.—Oxford won the annual boat race with Cambridge on the Thames today by a quarter of a length.

The start was made at 4:38 o'clock. Cambridge took the lead at once and was half a length in front at the middle distance, but Oxford overhauled her in the last quarter mile. The course was four and one-quarter miles. Oxford's time was 20 minutes, 53 seconds.

Cambridge won the toss for choice of stations. At the starting pistol Cambridge immediately took the lead and maintained it, pulling a stroke of 36. At the half mile Cambridge was half a length ahead. At the mile they still were leading and at Hammersmith bridge, about half the distance, they were half a length in front.

Oxford then began to gain slowly. At Barnes bridge, a quarter mile from the finish, Cambridge still was leading. Then the superior power of the Oxford crew carried them to the front and they won by a bare quarter length.

Oxford now has won thirty-nine races and Cambridge thirty, while one was a dead heat.

Thousands of Spectators.

RETURN IN CASE OF INTERVENTION

Otherwise Gen. Porfirio Diaz Will Not Come Back to Mexico.

Naples, Italy, March 13.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz declared today that he would not return to Mexico. He arrived here this morning on the Adriatic. He appeared in excellent health. In reply to inquiries the ex-president said that his only desire was to be allowed to rest quietly.

"All my efforts, however," he said, "will be directed toward assisting my country to reach a condition of prosperity. I would go back to Mexico only in case of intervention in that country by the United States. At such a time all Mexican citizens would be united against the foreign invader."

Gen. Diaz said that Former President Taft had given him full assurance that the United States was not planning anything of the kind, "but nobody can tell," he added, "what politics keeps in reserve or what the new American administration may project."

GOVERNOR BURKE MAY BE MADE TREASURER.

Washington, March 13.—Former Governor Burke of North Dakota, it is stated on high authority, is being considered by the president for the position of treasurer of the United States, which pays $8,000. It is not said that the position has been offered Mr. Burke, but that the president has him strongly in mind for that place and will offer it to him unless his mind should undergo a change in the next few days.

TRANSPORTS ARE RIDDLED WITH SHELLS

Unidentified Ship Fires on Servian Vessels, Setting Two Afire.

Troops Being Conveyed to Assist Montenegrins at Scutari.

Rumor Attacking Ship Flew Austrian Flag Not Given Credence.

Cettinje, Montenegro, March 13.—News reached here today that four Servian transports loaded with troops were yesterday riddled with shells fired by an unidentified war vessel. Accounts of the engagement from two different sources declare that the attacking vessel flew the Austro-Hungarian flag.

The transports were conveying strong detachments of Servian troops to assist the Montenegrins in their siege of the fortress of Scutari. The attack on the four boats occurred off San Giovanni di Medua. Two of the transports were set on fire. The number of killed and injured has not been reported.

No official account of the engagement was available this morning and the unofficial dispatches from San Giovanni di Medua varied considerably.

According to one account the attacking ship was the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh, which is alleged to have been flying the colors of Austro-Hungary.

Another report doubts the war vessel was the Hamidieh at all and says that the cruiser resembled a vessel of the Austrian Kaiserin class.

Feeling Runs High.

Feeling against Austria has been high here since Tuesday when the Austrian minister to Servia announced that his government objected to Servian troops assisting in the siege of Scutari.

Today's news of the attack on the Servian transports therefore created a tremendous sensation here. In official circles, however, no credence was given to the part of the press dispatches relating to the Austrian flag. Officials declared that the attacking vessel was undoubtedly the Hamidieh which was reported in the vicinity a few hours before and added that the Turkish cruiser would have no reason for hoisting false colors.

BOARD REFUSES LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Woman Will Get Vacation, However, and Under Pay.

New York, March 13.—Although the plea of Mrs. Katherine C. Edgell, the Brooklyn high school teacher, for a year's leave of absence, without pay, in which to bear and rear a child, was denied by the board of education last night, Mrs. Edgell believes she has started a campaign for honesty and candor which eventually will receive recognition by the school authorities.

In a pecuniary way, Mrs. Edgell really is the gainer by the refusal of the board to grant her request, for she has filed a physician's certificate as to her health which will entitle her to leave with ninety days' pay, in addition to two months' vacation the coming summer.

It was said among her friends today, however, that this solution of the problem, which is one which teachers have hitherto followed under these circumstances, was not at all satisfactory to those who desire to have the board of education recognize the privileges of maternity among the women teachers of New York.

The action of the board was declared as virtually barring motherhood for teachers. There was talk today of taking the case to the courts, but no confirmation of these plans was obtained.

GOVERNOR HANNA WILL USE VETO

Will Cut Down Appropriations to Extent of $200,000.

Bismarck, N. D., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Hanna will be compelled to veto about $200,000 of the appropriations that were made by the legislative assembly just closed. A hurried survey of the appropriation bills has resulted in the announcement from the governor's office that the total of $1,350,000 in appropriations will have to be shaved considerably. In exercising his power of veto he can only veto whole amounts; that is, he cannot shave an item down, but must veto the entire item. This makes the task before the governor unusually difficult.

One of the most important bills which it is understood that he is seriousy considering as having to veto is the senate bill making appropriations for the rural, graded, consolidated and agricultural high schools. It provides for an annual appropriation of $77,500 for the coming two years, while it provides for $80,000 annually thereafter.

Another bill which may be vetoed appropriates $5,000 for purchasing new books for the public library commission.

It is expected that pressure will be brought to bear to bring about the veto of an appropriation of $35,000 for a dairy building at the agricultural college.

Aeroplanes Collide.

Gave Up All Hopes Of Living

Great Kidney Remedy Saved His Life

About nine years ago, I had given up hopes of living much longer, owing to the fact that I had severe kidney and liver trouble. I took treatments from several good physicians and each one after treating me for some time, told me that they could do nothing for me and after these statements, I decided that I would have to give up myself. Finally, I received a sample of the well known Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I decided to try as a last hope. Even the sample started to make me improve and noting this improvement, I kept taking Swamp-Root regularly and after being down to the weight of 115 pounds and having a very yellowish complexion and all hopes of recovery gone, I am now in very fine condition, my weight being 170 pounds and complexion the healthiest one could have.

I highly recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to every person who has any disease of the kidneys or liver in its worst stages and you have my consent to publish this statement as I wish to recommend Swamp-Root to any one having kidney or liver trouble.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE MILLER,
735 Osborne St., Sandusky, Ohio.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public in and for Erie County, Ohio, this 24th day of October, 1911. ALVIN H. BIEHL, Notary Public.

We sold the Swamp-Root to the above and believe same statement to be true.

SIXTY-THREE CANDIDATES ARE LEFT IN THE RACE

The ballot at the city election April 1 will present the names of sixty-three men to the consideration of the voters. Yesterday was the last day for filing acceptances and C. S. Wilson, nominated for mayor, and C. E. Evens, nominated for commissioner for the short term, failed to file. Mr. Wilson is in Panama and Mr. Evens is in California.

The final elimination leaves ten candidates for mayor, eleven for commissioners for the long term, thirty-seven for commissioners for the short term, two for special judge of the municipal court and three for assistant municipal judge.

The list of candidates follows:

For mayor—Marcus B. Cullum, D. H. Day, P. E. Dowling, Marcus L. Fay, W. B. Getchell, Morris Kaplan, W. E. McEwen, Henry Nesbtt, W. I. Prince and Bernard Silberstein.

For commissioners, long term—John T. Armstead, John T. Dunphy, Carroll F. Graff, William S. McCormick, Leonidas Merritt, P. G. Phillips, James W. Preston, Chan Smith, W. E. Towne, Frederick J. Voss and J. C. Wesenberg.

For commissioner, short term—W. B. Ardouin, Adolph M. Balfany, W. L. Bernard, Edward Blackwood, J. Scott Cash, John Cashin, Edwin R. Cobb, J. W. Cumming, H. P. Curren, Thomas Dillon, E. N. Edes, James A. Farrell, M. Fitzgerald, Charles E. French, Charles G. Futter, W. A. Hicken, Charles R. Hoar, John Hogan, Frank Jordan, Alex Kennedy, W. E. Kern, W. H. Konkler, L. A. Larsen, John A. MacDonell, Neil B Morrison, H. J. Mullin, Roderick Murchison, Martin J. Murray, J. C. Myron, Olof G. Olson, George W. Power, C. E. Roe, William H. Smallwood, Darwin E. Stevens, Frederick Tischer, Bert N. Wheeler and Otto Woelffer.

Special judge of municipal court—John Brown and F. H. Cutting.

Assistant municipal judge—W. H. Gurnee, Harry W. Lanners and Newton H. Wilson.

"SOCIALIST CANDIDATES"

Believed That Party Is Violating Spirit of Charter at Least.

Public Ownership Ticket Being Boomed in Non-Partisan Election.

On account of the fact that the election of any of the five Socialist candidates for the commission is extremely improbable, it is unlikely that they will be disturbed in what is claimed to be their invasion of the non-partisan provisions of the new city charter.

However, it is the opinion of students of the charter that if injunction proceedings were brought to prevent the names of the five Socialists from going on the ballot, the courts would grant the injunction. The members of the party claim they have legal advice to the effect that they have complied with the charter.

Sunday, Jan. 5, a "conference" of Socialists was held, at which the five candidates, Morris Kaplan for mayor, P. G. Phillips and W. E. Towne for long term commissioners and Edward Blackwood and Everett N. Edes for short term commissioners, were indorsed. There was a fight made on Phillips by the I. W. W. faction of the party, and an effort was made to renew it by calling another meeting Jan. 15. At that meeting the original indorsements were confirmed.

The fact was implied, if not expressed, that the five candidates would not file unless they were given the indorsement of the members of their party. No petitions were circulated for them until after the final meeting at which indorsement was given, and the petitions were later filed by a member of the party. Later the five candidates filed their acceptances.

The charter calls upon each candidate to swear to the following statement: "I am not a candidate as a nominee or representative of, or because of any promised support from, any political party, or any committee or convention representing or acting for any political party or organization."

The campaign being conducted by the five candidates is an avowed Socialist propaganda campaign. It is supported by a weekly newspaper issued especially for the campaign, named "The Duluth Socialist," and carrying at the head of its editorial column the inscription: "Published by Duluth central committee of the Public Ownership party of the state of Minnesota."

A resolution declaring that The Herald was in error last evening when it stated that there is a split in the Socialist party in the city was adopted last evening by the Duluth central committee of the Socialist party. In the resolution is the statement: "The very fact that the Socialist candidates pledged themselves to employ none but union men on all public works indicates where the Socialist candidates stand on the question of the American Federation of Labor."

The charge is made that the Socialists are not only evading, but actually violating the non-partisan provisions of the charter, and that they could not sustain their position on the ballot if they were attacked in the courts.

SOCIALISTS MEET ON GARFIELD AVENUE

Morris Kaplan at a meeting at 600 Garfield avenue last evening declared that the electric light plant, the enforcement of the liquor laws and the social evil are only side issues; the main issue is the question whether the powers and the duties of the commissioners are going to be used for the workers or for the shirkers.

He stated that all Socialist candidates will always work for municipal ownership of all public utilities so that cheaper service for the public and better working conditions and higher wages for the employes may be secured.

P. G. Phillips, candidate for long-term commissioner, claimed that the Socialist candidates would equalize taxes by making the big interests pay their full share of taxes.

Another campaign meeting will be held tonight at Lakeside town hall, with Edward Blackwood and E. N. Edes, candidates for short-term commissioner, and Morris Kaplan, candidate for mayor, as speakers.

Friday night the Socialists will meet at 1627 London road and Sunday afternoon at Finnish college, Smithville. Street meetings will be held Saturday and Sunday nights if the weather will permit.

ARE POOR SPELLERS.

Menominee, Mich., March 13.—Twelve business men suffered an inglorious defeat by as many pupils of the eighth grade of the public schools in a spelling bee Tuesday night.

The "bee" was the result of criticism by a newspaper of the pupils' orthography. A newspaper man was the first to go down. A bank cashier and a former mayor were among those who represented the business men.

Five Months in Coma State.

Spokane, Wash., March 13.—As a result of overstudy in preparing for a high school examination, 17-year-old Irene Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burns of Spokane, has been unconscious for five months, with the exception of half a dozen intervals when she regained consciousness for a few minutes. On Oct. 11 the girl was stricken with what was pronounced hystero-catalepsy.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

7,000 Voters Have Not Yet Qualified to Cast Ballot.

Dowling at Auditorium—Open Meeting at Hillside Club.

Saturday is the last registration day for the city election April 1.

Candidates, friends of candidates and all others interested in seeing a representative vote polled for the selection of Duluth's first commission are out urging unregistered voters to get their names on the books Saturday.

There seems to be an impression prevalent that the registration at the time of the charter election Dec. 3 was for the coming election, but the impression is erroneous. The registration at that time was for the primary election Dec. 19 and the city election Feb. 4 under the old city charter if the new charter failed to carry. The new charter carried, the elections were not held and the registration is valueless for the coming election.

The boards of registration will be at polling places Saturday from 6 a. m. to 9 a. m. and those interested in the election are in hopes that the full voting strength of the city will be registered when the books close. Only 5,036 voters registered Tuesday, leaving over 7,000 voters who have not yet registered.

Voters will do well not to count on getting their votes in April 1 if they fail to register Saturday. The charter provides that an unregistered voter may vote on election day, but only on the filing of an affidavit of residence corroborated by the affidavits of two freeholders of the election district in which he lives. If a voter fails to register it will be necessary for him to hunt up two property owners in his election district and have them accompany him to the polls to make affidavits in corroboration of his affidavit. Voters will save themselves much trouble by registering Saturday.

P. E. Dowling, candidate for mayor, will hold his second meeting of the campaign, at the Auditorium tonight. He promises to speak right out in meeting on his views of conditions in Duluth. His announcement is that he will speak on the subjects, "What is the remedy for the social evil, vice and law violation?" "Is municipal ownership of the electric lighting plant an issue in the campaign?" "What are the influences responsible for Duluth's failure to grow, and are those influences interested in this campaign?" "Unfair campaign methods already resorted to by the hirelings of the special interests."

The Central Hillside Improvement club will hold a meeting this evening at the Franklin school, Fifth avenue east and Seventh street. A general invitation to candidates has been issued and all who attend will be allowed to air their views on municipal problems.

Large signs indicating the headquarters for W. I. Prince, candidate for mayor, were placed in the windows on the first floor of the Torrey building today. Oscar J. LOOT WRECKED TRAIN.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 13.—It has become public that vandals looted the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger train recently wrecked at Republic, when most of the coaches were overturned and the conductor was killed, and it is reported that railroad detectives are conducting an investigation with the purpose of recovering the booty and prosecuting the thieves. The silverware and other furnishings of the dining car were taken, as was much of the supply of food and beverages, the coach being fairly stripped of its valuables. The sleeping cars were robbed of curtains, blankets, towels and other articles. A number of persons are under suspicion.

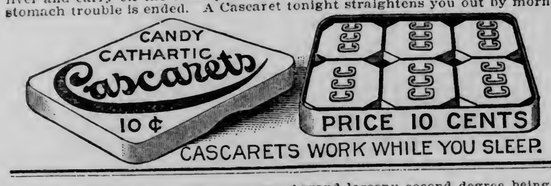
BOWELS SLUGGISH, STOMACH SOUR, GASSY, UPSET? CASCARETS GREAT

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour bile—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

Try Cascarets; they immediately sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipation waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.



CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

Yesterday afternoon, Albert H. Hall, was arraigned on an indictment which accused him of having had carnal knowledge of a young girl. He pleaded not guilty.

THREE BOATS ARE LOADING GRAIN

Three boats are being loaded with grain today, and it is expected that between them all there will not be far from 750,000 bushels put afloat this spring so far.

The Dunham is taking on in the neighborhood of 250,000 bushels at elevator E, where the Pendennis White was loaded a few days ago with 223,000 bushels. The Corrigan is being loaded at elevator K and W. H. Wolf at elevator H. The Hemlock will be loaded in a few days at the Itasca elevator. Just how much she will take on is not yet known.

It is believevd among marine men who have been watching the ice conditions here for some days that unless a radical change takes place in the weather the bay will not be relieved from ice for some time. There are now 34 inches of ice in the harbor and it is claimed by the men mentioned that the snow covers it to such a depth that it protects it most efficiently and prevents the occasional sunshine that the city gets from getting in any damaging work.

Weather Observer Richardson objects to having been quoted in The Herald of yesterday regarding the time of the opening of navigation. He declares that the statement credited to him that navigation will likely open sooner this year year than last is not what he said, and that he merely expressed himself on the thickness of the ice.

However, it seems as though the optimistic views of those concerned in the matter of navigation openings are becoming less rosy as the cold season continues.

War Story at the Lyric.

At the Lyric theater last evening, the most enjoyable film that had been witnessed for some time was presented in the "Coward's Atonement" in two parts, by the 101 Bison.

The battle scenes are realistic, as the producer made a special effort to build the scenes as near as possible to those of the battle of Shiloh, and they received round after round of applause. The story is this: Two young men, Will and Harry, are pals and have been since childhood, both are in love with the same girl, who loves Harry the best, and when war breaks out between the North and South, Harry becomes an ardent Southern leader, while his pal joins under compulsion. Later, in battle, Will loses his nerve as two comrades fall on either side of him. He determines to desert, and from that moment on, is looked upon as a coward, until an inspiration is awakened within him to return to the field of battle, also under the pleadings of the girl, in whose home he found refuge. He redeems himself in the eyes of all, by becoming the Southern flag bearer, where he meets his death.

Gile, Wis., Boy Killed.
Hurley, Wis., March 13.—Earl Bergadola, a 13-year-old schoolboy at Gile, a short distance from here, was instantly killed Wednesday by a trolley car. The boy, with a companion, it is said, was trying to catch a ride on the car when he slipped and was thrown under the wheels.

The Second Division, Minnesota Naval Militia, has enlisted over twenty men in the last three weeks since receipt of orders to recruit up to war strength. These orders were issued by the department with the idea of having a full quota to take the trip from New York to San Francisco through the Panama canal with the battleship squadron. There is still room for a few more men. Enlistments will be received by Ensign Forbes at the Armory Friday evenings.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Volumes of "Direct Evidence,"

Proving beyond a doubt that Hood's Sarsaparilla does immense good, crowd our letter files to the bursting point.

When a disease is in the blood, the medicine to drive it out is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Just read this, another "Direct Evidence" letter, from a lady in Worcester, Mass., who has abundant reason for gratitude to this medicine.

"Worcester, Mass., June 7, 1912.

"I believe if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla I should have lost my left hand entirely. Therefore is it any wonder that I am willing to speak a word in praise of this good medicine? I firmly believe it to be the BEST MEDICINE FOR THE BLOOD AND ALL HUMORS.

I had a bad case of erysipelas on my hands, and on the left hand, on the inside, at the same time, I had a very painful felon. I used poultices and liniments for three months and carried the disabled hand in a sling all that time. The cause was undoubtedly the bad condition of my blood.

"A friend advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, so I bought six bottles and a box of Hood's Olive Ointment. The treatment was an Improvement was noticeable very soon, and when the fifth bottle was gone my hands were all healed up and my health was better in every way.

"There is no question about it, Hood's Sarsaparilla reached the impurities in the blood and effected a complete cure. Why, at one time, people came from all around to see my hand, and many of them told me I Imagine my nervous, distressed condition. Many a time when my friend dressed my hand I would faint before the long, tedious job was finished.

The significance of this for you is, if you need a good blood medicine or tonic you will find it in Hood's Sarsaparilla. N. B. Be sure to get Hood's.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTS DEMOCRAT

Legislature Chooses Henry F. Hollis to Be United States Senator.

Concord, N. H., March 13.—Henry F. Hollis, Democrat, was elected United States Senator by the legislature today.

Henry F. Hollis was born Aug. 30, 1869, and graduated from Harvard in 1892. He was admitted to the bar in 1893 and has practiced law in Concord since that date. He is trustee of the New Hampshire Savings bank. He was the Democratic candidate for congress in 1900 and candidate for governor in 1902 and 1904. Member of state central Democratic committee since 1900.

WILL CONTEST DIVORCE CASE

Mrs. H. J. Kolling Wants Alimony and Return of Legacy.

Eunice E. Kolling, former Duluth actress and wife of Henry J. Kolling, local produce merchant, who was recently made defendant in a divorce suit filed by her husband, who charges cruel treatment, will contest the case.

Mrs. Kolling, according to an affidavit which her attorney, W. F. Dacey filed in district court this morning, is now earning her own living and supporting their 6-year-old son, Evans, by working as a clerk in a jewelry store at Portland, Or.

Mrs. Kolling states that her means of gaining a livelihood are small and that she needs on order from the court directing her husband to pay her temporary alimony and suit money during the pendancy of the divorce case.

She also claims that Kolling now owes her $500, a legacy which was left her by her dead father. The hearing on the alimony question will be held at the special term of court Saturday. Judge Charles L. Lewis is attorney for Kolling and W. F. Dacey will represent the interests of Mrs. Kolling.

In his divorce complaint, Kolling asserts that his wife always thought more of fine clothes and society than she did of her home and family. He claims that she went on the stage without his consent and that she once wrote a play in which she held him, his daughter and his home life up to ridicule, and that she undertook to produce it.

FITZSIMMONS' TRIAL.

Many Witnesses to Testify Against Former Ironwood Banker.

Bessemer, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of M. A. Fitzsimmons, cashier of the wrecked bank of Ironwood, which opened yesterday, is going ahead at a very satisfactory rate. He is charged with the embezzlement of moneys belonging to Fritz Karatl, a private person doing business as the Bank of Ironwood, the allegations in the information placing the amount of the alleged speculations at a sum considerably over $100,000. The accused is not being forced to face trial on charges of violations of the banking law, as was the case with the persons connected with the First National bank, for this reason, that the Bank of Ironwood, being a private institution, was not amenable to the state or Federal banking laws.

The witnesses for the state number more than 100 and the defense will have many more. The trial, which will stretch over a period estimated at from four to six weeks, will prove one of the most costly in the history of Gogebic county.

HAWTHORNE CASE IN HANDS OF JURY

New York, March 13.—Federal Judge Mayer today delivered his charge to the jury which has been trying Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy, Albert Freeman and Dr. William J. Morton, on charges of using the mails to defraud investors on Canadian mining stocks.

The government concluded its summing up with a scathing arraignment of the four accused men as swindlers in their exploitation and sale of stock of Canadian mining claims.

The characterization of Hawthorne and Quincy by United States District Attorney Wise was objected to by Judge Mayer at this point. Mr. Wise replied:

"We all know some of these men have names that have been honorable names. Theirs is the greatest crime because they have prostituted them. The penitentiaries are full of men who have good names and have used them to defraud others."

Counsel for the defense referred to Mr. Wise as a "pinch hitter," because he had taken the summing up from his assistants.

"Since you have adopted the phraseology of the baseball field," Mr. Wise rejoined, "I may say I have been sitting on the side lines watching the game, and I have got on to the crooked curves of Albert Freeman. We are hitting all kinds of crooks, and we are hitting them all the time. We don't need any pinch hitters."

PROHIBITION MORE OF PROBLEM THAN SLAVERY

Augusta, Me., March 13.—Maine's moral problem is with the "so-called prohibitory law," and not "white slavery," Governor Hayes said today in a letter replying to the suggestion by Lieutenant Governor O'Hara of Illinois that state vice investigating committees be appointed.

Concerning the "white slave" traffic, Governor Hayes wrote:

"I have no information that anything of the kind is going on in Maine. We have no large cities and my attention has not been called to this matter by any particular organizations devoted to the improvement of moral conditions within our state.

"Personally, I am very much in sympathy with your work and I should be pleased to do anything I can to help along the object you are working to accomplish."

LOOK TO PROGRESSIVES.

Democrats Hope to Swing Many of Them in Senate.

Washington, March 13.—The hope of Democratic leaders that they may swing many progressive Republican votes in the senate in the tariff fight has the hearty approval of President Wilson. It became known today that Mr. Wilson expects to have a conference with Senator La Follette of Wisconsin within a few days and that conferences with other Progressives will follow.

The first conference with Senator La Follette will be over questions of patronage. The president expects to discuss all Wisconsin appointments with him. It will be the first visit of Senator La Follette to the White House in several years. Other progressive Republican senators will be consulted about appointments in their states. Conferences about appointments are probable to lead to attention to legislative questions where Mr. Wilson thinks the Democrats and the Progressives can stand together.

To Represent Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—Governor A. O. Eberhart has announced the appointment of the delegates to represent Minnesota at the National Drainage congress in St. Louis, April 1 to 12. Among those who will go as delegates are E. Y. Willard, acting state drainage engineer.

SIR THOMAS SURPRISED

Does Not Know Whether He Will Amend Conditions of Challenge.

Recognizes Right of New York Yacht Club to Decline.

London, March 13.—Sir Thomas Lipton, challenger for the America's, expressed the greatest surprise this morning when informed that the New York Yacht club had declined his challenge because it did not comply with the conditions of the deed of gift.

Neither Sir Thomas nor the Royal Ulster Yacht club has yet been officially notified of the rejection of the challenge. Sir Thomas said he had not had time to consider whether he would amend the conditions of his challenge so as to meet the objections of the New York yachtsmen. He expects, however, to confer with his designer, Nicholson of Gosport, on the subject immediately.

Sir Thomas, of course, fully recognizes the right of the New York yacht club to decline his challenge because of the stipulation that the defending yacht must be of the same size as the challenger. Nevertheless, he is greatly disappointed as he fully expected that the challenge would be accepted. He said:

"It is the duty of the challenger for the America's cup to state the size of the boat which he intends to race as well as name the days on which the races are to take place. In this I conformed entirely with the conditions of the deed of gift.

"The size of 75 feet on the waterline which I stipulated is larger than that of any cutter of that type on this side of the Atlantic and as big as any in America with the exception of the Reliance. The race would have been a good one while there would have been no race at all if the defender were a 90-foot yacht racing against my 75-footer. I therefore suggested that both should be 75 feet on the water line.

"I wanted no favors and made what I considered a fair sporting offer.

"When I challenged six years ago under the universal rule which governs all yacht racing in America, my challenge was declined because it did not comply with the conditions of the deed of gift and legally the New York Yacht club had the right to do so.

"Now, when I challenge according to the deed of gift my challenge is declined because I will not allow a 90-foot yacht to race against my 75-footer."

It is understood that Charles C. Allom, the owner of the yacht, Istria, is a prospective challenger for the America's cup. He made some attempt last year to organize a syndicate to build a challenger. Mr. Allom at present is in the United States.

American Bowling Congress Tournament Comes to a Close.

Toledo, Ohio, March 13. — With the rolling of the 2-man and the individual events today the thirteenth annual tournament will be officially closed. WOULD PREVENT ANY CHANCE OF A FOUL.

Chicago, March 13.—If Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion of the world, gives Former Champion Ad Wolgast a return contest for the title, it is more than likely that the fight will not be decided on a foul. Ritchie said today that any promoter seeking to match him with Wolgast will find it necessary to insert in the articles of agreement a clause to the effect that the man committing a foul shall not receive a cent of the gate money.

Ritchie considers this proposition is as fair to Wolgast as it is to himself.

SUFFRAGETTES' TOOLS.

Large Number Found Under Floor of Artist's Studio.

London, March 13.—An extensive storehouse of destructive instruments used by the militant suffragettes in their attacks on private and public property was unearthed by Scotland Yard detectives today.

Armed with a warrant for the arrest of Miss Olive Hocken, who is charged with an attempt to burn the buildings of the Roehampton Golf club, the detectives searched an artist's studio in Campden hill gardens. Under the flooring they found three sets of wire cutting appparatus, several bottles of corrosive fluid for use in letter box outrages, tools for breaking window panes and false identification plates for automobiles.

MEMBERS OF HUNGARIAN PARLIAMENT EJECTED.

Budapest, Hungary, March 13.—Ten members of the opposition in the lower house of the Hungarian parliament were ejected by the police today and the sitting was suspended owing to turbulent interruptions of the proceedings.

Julius Justh, a former speaker of the house, protested against the use of force and declared that all the acts of the present parliament were illegal. All the remaining members of the opposition then left the house in a body.

Exeland, Wis., Institute.

Couderay, Wis., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmers' institute conducted by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, will be held at Exeland, Sawyer county, March 25 and 26. It will be the first farmers' institute held in that part of the county and the citizens are making arrangements for the entertainment of the expected visitors.

SAMARITANS MEET AT MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state council of the Order of Modern Samaritans convened here today. Civil warfare is waging within the ranks of the order, and the annual convention, which will continue for two or three days, may or may not change the internal workings of the organization, according to statements by members of the two factions which have been in bitter combat for several months.

The older members have six members in the imperial council who have life tenure on their offices. Younger members want the lodge officers elected and allege that representation is denied them as they have elected but three officers to the council.

Albert E. McManus of Duluth, general counsel for the order, attcked the validity of Mrs. Lucy Purdy's claim to a delegate's seat.

About 150 attended and the two questions brought out lively tilts between the "insurgents" and regulars. There are numerous delegates from Duluth present.

MARQUETTE COW IS RECORD-BREAKER.

Marquette, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Lady Nellie Colantha," a 4-year-old Holstein cow, one of the large and costly herd at the famous Emblagaard dairy farm of John M. Longyear of this city, recently completed a year's wonderful record. In 365 days she has given 22,710.8 pounds of milk containing 759,157 pounds of butter fat or 948.94 pounds of butter. Dairy authorities say that this gives her the Michigan state record for milk production for all ages and breeds and the record for all the states in the Union for milk and fat for a senior 4-year-old, except New York. Only one senior 4-year-old cow in the world has ever surpassed the achievement of the Longyear cow, it is declared.

McCOMBS DOES NOT WANT TO GO ABROAD.

Washington, March 13.—Chairman William F. McCombs of the Democratic national committee told President Wilson today during a conference at the White House that he preferred not to accept the post of ambassador to France, that he might remain in private life and probably retain the chairmanship of the national committee. President Wilson urged Chairman McCombs to withhold definite answer until he had considered it further and Mr. McCombs agreed to do so.

Chamberlain, N. D., Fire Victim.

Chamberlain, N. D., March 13.—Fire early here Tuesday resulted in the death of Harold Wang, a man of advanced years. As a daughter was moving about the house she detected the smell of smoke and upon running upstairs, found it was in her father's room. She attempted to remove him from the room but failed. She is of the opinion that he had already succumbed.

Two Minneapolis Robberies.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—Charles Carter and Edward Smart, negroes, are under arrest, suspected of having held up and robbed Gus Swanson on a street in a central residence district early yesterday. After being beaten and kicked Swanson says he was robbed of $20. A negro armed with a glass revolver held up Andrew Johnson and Carl Carlson yesterday. A patrolman saw the act and arrested J. W. Semonds.

Considering Fargo Building Site.

Fargo, N. D., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business men are beginning to speculate over the site for the new Federal building. Railroads

MAY GET ITS COAST TRAINS

Northern Pacific Now Obtaining Statistics on Possible Patronage.

Great Northern Would Be Forced to Follow Suit.

If arrangements can possibly be made the Northern Pacific railroad will start one of its daily coast trains from Duluth, as requested by the petitions signed by Duluth people.

The petitions have not yet been presented, but word comes from one of the high officials of the road that statistics are now being obtained on the traffic, actual and available, and if the railroad company can see conditions that warrant the action, the service will be inaugurated.

Presumably if the Northern Pacific runs a coast train from Duluth, the Great Northern will take similar action.

The petitions are completed and they will be sent to the two railroads this week. They request not only a coast train for Duluth, but an arrangement whereby tickets between the coast and the Twin Cities will be made optional via Duluth. What action the railroads will take on that request is problematical.

The source of the information is not disclosed, but it is said the Northern Pacific officials are strongly inclined to grant Duluth's request for a coast train. The sentiment expressed at the banquet to Howard Elliott here impressed them and since the banquet it is said they have had men making a survey of the field to determine the advisability of giving Duluth the direct coast service requested.

RAILROAD TO GET PROFITS

Change Made in Payment of Allouez Bay Dock Company Dividends.

Great Northern Will Take Earnings Instead of Ore Trustees.

The Wall Street Journal is authority for the statement that since Jan. 1 and thereafter the Great Northern ore trustees no longer receive the dividends declared by the Allouez Bay Dock company and the Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company, as they have in the past. The Wall Street Journal also gives credence to the report that the Great Northern railway has ordered two steamships from the Cramps Shipbuilding company for ocean service, but says that J. J. Hill refused to comment on the report.

In the attempted interview the Journal received from the Northwestern magnate the information that business in this part of the world is quiet but steady. Mr. Hill's comment to the Journal regarding the possibility of a general movement to open all railroad terminals to common use is especially interesting to Duluth in the light of recent local and also outside events, the local one being that a demand was made on the Northern Pacific road by the Duluth Commercial club to open its terminals here to all roads, a demand which was promptly refused. Mr. Hill said:

"That is impossible. The terminal problem overshadows almost every railroad question. Terminals are of as much importance to a railroad as hands and feet are to the individual. Each railroad must build and own its own terminals. If railroad terminals were pooled, all development would be at a standstill. No one would build terminals. To open all railroad terminals to common use, would be running a railroad like a hotel. The proposition on the face of it is impossible, and would lead to dire consequences."

Dividend Question.

As to the taking away of the dividends from the Great Northern ore trustees, the Journal says:

"Up to Dec. 31, 1912, the Great Northern ore trustees received, for the purposes of the ore trust, all the dividends declared by the Allouez Bay Dock company, and the Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company. This was by virtue of a resolution adopted by the Great Northern railway directors, although the stocks of the two dock and terminal companies were not turned over to the trustees, as were the stocks of the various mining companies, which comprise the Great Northern iron ore properties.

"From Jan. 1, 1913, the dividends of the two companies will not be paid to the ore trustees, but will go to the Great Northern Railway company.

"By the termination of the agreement for the payment of the dividends, as provided in the resolution, the Great Northern iron ore trustees will suffer the loss of a very considerable revenue applicable to the purposes of the ore trust. Allouez Bay Dock company has been paying dividends at the rate of $1,000,000 a year, and up to Dec. 31, 1911, this company and the Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company had paid a total of $5,740,000 in dividends. The total amount received by the ore trustees in dividends for the purposes of the trust, from all the companies included in the ore trusts up to Dec. 31, 1911, was $8,446,376. The dividends paid by the various companies in 1912 will not be publicly known until the publication of the annual report of the ore trustees.

"The Great Northern iron ore properties will not miss the dividends from the Allouez company, and the Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company as much as they would have a few years ago. The income from the mining operations of the Great Western Mining company, the Steel corporation's subsidiary, has greatly increased, as more ore is being taken out under the terms of the lease which, as is generally known, will be cancelled at the end of 1914. Then, too, the Great Northern ore interests expect that with the cancellation of the Steel lease, they will be able to make satisfactory profits from the mining and selling of ore in the open market and do not feel that the loss of the substantial dividends from the terminal companies will occasion any difficulty.

"The Allouez Bay Dock company and the Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company are the concerns which handle and transfer the ore at the docks at the head of Lake Superior. They are equipped with the most up-to-date and efficient machinery for handling ore and represent a valuable and profitable investment."

NEW FAST FREIGHT TRAIN IS INSTALLED.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 13.—The Great Northern has put on a new fast freight train to run over this division and over the new air line from Fargo to Minot and thence to the coast. The train carries no freight for any point east of Glasgow, Mont., the first cars being set out there. This is the first heavy train to be run over the new Minot cutoff.

"LIVING WAGE" COMMISSION

lies and overpowered by the evil in men.

"They listen to the fair and pretty things that men tell them and they fall because they think they can trust themselves and trust the tempters. It is not the employer. I was a good girl and I worked in a store.

"I didn't get much money, but that didn't matter. I lived on $8 a week and would be living like that now—but I met men. They seemed to consider me their prey and all the time it was fight—fight. They wanted to be nice to me, they said, and to take me to the theater and treat me fair—and give me a chance to enjoy life.

Didn't Know Men Were Bad.

"I didn't know men were bad—all bad—where a girl is concerned. I thought only women were bad. I thought all a girl had to do to remain good was to be truthful with herself. God pity women who think that, and who keep their trust in men until it is too late. Every day it was some one else—always smiling at me, always trying to give me a 'fair chance' to be happy. In the street they followed me. These I could avoid—but the 'friends' who hung around—That is the big secret of the thing that makes a good girl bad. If they had left me be—if they had only left me be—only let me live as I wanted to, I wouldn't have had to slink into the room when your commission was trying to solve things and wouldn't have had to sit in a corner with my veil down afraid to look good women in the face."

Another Cry.

Another cry from the underworld echoed the words of the letter above. It was more bitter though and it read in part:

"You're looking for the things that made such women as I. Low wages! Dance halls! Hunger! Cold! They all helped a bit, but they didn't turn the trick themselves. You're all a bunch of hypocrites, afraid to look the thing in the face and afraid to learn the truth.

"I don't know any girls who sold themselves for money to buy bread or clothes. But I do know lots of us who hit the road for hell because of a lot of blackguards who kept hounding them with their rotten attentions—God help the men and not us. We're all right when we start. All we need is to be left alone. There are hundreds and hundreds of kids and sports who hang around State street and wait like wolves for the tired girls to leave the store.

Wages Will Not Help.

"Why don't you make the men be good? All the wages in the world won't help us. Make the men good and the girls will be good. Now they haven't got a chance and they never will as long as the law smiles at one and spits at another."

This letter was signed with the initials L. M.

While these comments on the situation continued to pour in, the civic consciousness awakened by the commission bestirred itself in the launching of committees and private investigating forces.

Orozco Welcomed.

Mexico City, March 13.—The arrival of Orozco, who for a year had defied the government was not unlike a conquering hero. The crowds at the station were numbered only in hundreds at first but by the time Orozco reached the hotel, they had gathered in thousands.

They wanted a speech, but Orozco adhered to his policy of taciturnity. With Orozco came his father, Gens. Argumendo and Caravao Cheche Campos and twenty or twenty-five of his former officers and a hundred picked veterans. A special train took from the capital the government commission headed by Col. Maas, President Huerta's chief of staff, to welcome Orozco. The trains met at Tula, forty-five miles from Mexico City, and the parties merged.

"I am confident that President Huerta intends to conduct the ad-interim government honestly and in good faith," Orozco said.

"I believe that we will have no difficulty in agreeing on terms. I am assured that honest elections will be held and that the principles agreed to in the previous plan of reform will be carried out."

Orozco was hopeful even of peace and appeared to think that the surrender of many of Zapata's minor officers was made in good faith. The last time Pasqual Orozco, Jr., was in the capital, was when Madero was inaugurated.

The amnesty bill in its entirety was passed in the chamber of deputies tonight. It is expected that the senate will approve the bill.

THE SONG TRUST FOOLED AGAIN

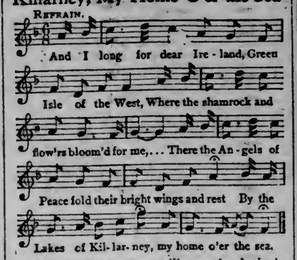
An "Unknown" puts over the First Song Hit of 1913

Ever since "Come Back to Erin" and "Killarney," song writers have been attempting to "put over" a modern Irish ballad that would become equally as popular.

A hitherto unknown writer, Frederick Knight Logan, has accomplished this with his song "Killarney, My Home O'er the Sea," and the so called "Song Trust" are astounded to think that this plum should have fallen to one outside their sacred portals.

With the composer's permission, we reproduce the chorus, so judge it for yourself.

Killarney, My Home O'er the Sea



REFRAIN.
And I long for dear Ire - land, Green
Isle of the West, Where the shamrock and flow'rs bloom'd for me,... There the An - gels of Peace fold their bright wings and rest By the Lakes of Kil-lar-ney, my home o'er the sea.

At first glance you will say the lyric is common place, but a second perusal shows it to be well written, while the melody is about as sweet and dainty as any you ever heard, as it "lingers," and you will surely want to hear it over and over again.

DULUTH BOY IS IN VENEZUELAN HOSPITAL

The Associated Press last evening carried a dispatch stating that Guy Bjorge, the young mining engineer of Duluth who was recently rescued from Indians in Venezuela is in a hospital at Maracaibo with blood poisoning.

The information was cabled to Secretary of State W. J. Bryan by the American consul and in turn forwarded to Governor Eberhart at St. Paul. Hans Bjorge, his father, learned of his son's condition last evening and is endeavoring to get into telegraphic communication with him to learn whether he is dangerously ill or not. William L. Taylor, the companion of young Bjorge, is reported as well.

and Cambridge—dark and light blue, respectively—attracted its usual thousands of spectators today.

Beginning with the dawn, citizens of London began to surge over the bridges crossing the Thames, between Putney and Mortlake, and then waited patiently along the banks for the one fleeting glimpse which was the most they could hope to catch of the contestants.

The Oxford crew, the favorite, has a distinct advantage during the training season owing to its greater opportunity for practice on the Thames. The Cambridge crew in its preliminary training is restricted to the little river Cam.

The expectation was general that Oxford would make it five straight by winning today. But Cambridge had many warm backers, especially among the non-collegiate portion of the crowd. The Oxford crew, half veterans of last year's famous eight was heavier than has occupied a dark blue shell in many years.

Cambridge in Top Form.

The Cambridge men, lighter and less experienced than their opponents, nevertheless showed themselves oftners during training and were declared today to be in top form. They were pronounced by experts the best crew from the Cam in a decade.

As in the past the majority of the oarsmen on both crews learned to handle an oar at Eton, but the Col. Rhodes scholars are beginning to break into this last stronghold of English sport. Last year C. W. B. Littlejohn of Melbourne, rowed seven and today two Australians, H. K. Ward and C. L. Bailliou, occupied thwarts in the Oxford shell.

Great precautions were taken to guard against any outrage by militant suffragettes which might mar the race. The boathouses were watched with great vigilance throughout the night and women were forbidden to stand on the bridges under which the racing crews passed. All boats along the course were compelled to come to an anchor except the steamers officially authorized to follow the race. An endeavor was even made to keep women off the river during the contest but this was found impracticable.

INDUSTRIAL HOME SCHOOL IS PLANNED

measures backed by the Northern Minnesota Development association, and its purpose is to bring the state's funds to the aid of local development instead of remaining in other states to help development there when they are needed at home.

County Division Bill.

The house committee on towns and counties this morning reported for passage the county division bill by Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm and John A. Healy of Hibbing. The senate bill, by Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth, is on the calendar in the senate, and probably will be voted upon within a day or two. Senator Boyle would have brought it up today if a couple of his supporters had not been absent. Senator Boyle has been making a hard fight for the bill, asking the support of his colleagues on personal grounds.

County Assessor Bill Killed.

The senate this morning killed the house county assessor bill by the overwhelming vote of 40 to 17. The bill was a special order, having been placed on the special order along with the similar senate bill by Senator Works.

After the defeat of the house bill Senator Works had his own bill indefinitely postponed. Before the bill came to a vote an amendment by Senator Cheadle was adopted allowing the traveling expenses of the county assessor in St. Louis county, also an amendment by Senator Dale doing away with the provisions of the house bill allowing home rule charter cities to have their own local assessors.

Railroad Taxation Bill.

Senator Fosseen of Minneapolis this morning introduced a bill proposing a constitutional amendment leaving the whole matter of railroad taxation subject to the will of the legislature without the present necessity of referring all changes to a vote of the people. Under this bill, if it passes and the amendment is adopted by the people, the legislature may either continue the present gross earnings tax system or substitute an ad valorem system; and in either event railroad property would be subject to assessment for drainage work and local improvements, the same as other property.

The senate grain committee has exhausted the $500 allowed for its expense, and it is expected to decide this afternoon whether it will ask the senate for an additional appropriation or to excuse it from further investigations. The former is likely to be the course adopted.

For State Inebriate Farm.

Representative Frye this morning introduced a bill increasing from 2 per cent to 4, the tax on liquor license receipts which goes to the support of the state inebriate farm at Willmar.

Representative Skartum of Lake Benton introduced a bill forbidding any person to hold more than one elective office at the same time, and providing that when the occupant of one office is elected to another he must resign his old job.

Representative Walter Anderson offered a bill in the house to prevent fraud in the making and selling of commercial fertilizer.

A state board to examine chauffeurs as to their competency is provided for in a new bill by Representative Kerry Conley of Rochester. The board is to consist of a member from each congressional district, and no unlicensed chauffeur is to be allowed to operate a car.

Good News for Eczema Sufferers

(From the Eastern Drug Reporter.)

"Retail druggists everywhere report continued and growing demand for quintone, the new home treatment for eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and other itching eruptions of the skin or scalp.

"The new drug quintone is different from other eczema cures, and purchasers report that 'they can feel it heal.'

"The treatment is simple and inexpensive. The first application, it is said, will instantly stop the most annoying and intense itching.

"To prepare, get two ounces of quintone and dissolve in a half pint of hot water. Apply this solution to irritated surface twice a day."

CAPT. "BILL" MAY BE U. S. MARSHAL

Texas Senators Indorse Candidacy of President's Former Body Guard.

Washington, March 13.—Capt. "Bill" McDonald, bodyguard to President Wilson during his recent campaign and a former Texas ranger, is likely to be appointed United States marshal for the northern district of Texas. Senators Sheppard and Culberson of Texas, today sent in their indorsements of Capt. "Bill's" candidacy.

Though Capt. "Bill" is past middle age, he retains the vigor of the days when he handled "bad men" in Texas. Capt. "Bill's" markmanship was frequently a subject of discussion when he first undertook to guard Mr. Wilson. One of the senators traveling with Governor Wilson had remarked that Capt. Bill was expert enough to shoot the eye of a mosquito at 300 yards range, which, when put up to Capt. Bill for verification, later brought the quizzical inquiry from him:

"Which eye?"

Gets Black Hand Note.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—Four crosses, a skull and cross-bones and a burning candle adorned a Black Hand letter received by Samuel Boevoenik, a well known resident of Minneapolis, who turned it over to the police yesterday. The letter was typewritten and while it did not demand any money it hinted strongly that Boevoenik leave the city within ten days. This is the second alleged Black Hand letter received by Minneapolis residents within a week.

DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS TO ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Arrangements for the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Minnesota State Sunday School association to be held at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, from Wednesday evening, March 26, to the following Sunday evening, have been made by the local committee.

The convention will open Wednesday evening with an address by Bishop William A. Quayle of St. Paul on "The Church and Its Relation to the Sunday School." The opening business session will begin Thursday morning and continue for four days. Nine convention sessions will be held in all, in addition to three schools of method for teachers, a boys' congress on Saturday and Sunday and a business men's hour on Friday, March 28, at 12:15 o'clock. There will also be several Bible study periods.

Distinguished Speakers.

Eleven Sunday school specialists from all parts of the country are to take part and speak at the convention this year, which, from present indications, promises to excel all others held in the past half of a century. The specialists coming to Duluth are Rev. James M. Gray, D.D., of Chicago, dean of the Moody Bible institute; John L. Alexander, Chicago, secondary division superintendent of the International Sunday School association; Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, Corinth, Miss., adult field worker in the South for the Methodist church; Prof. W. S. Athearn, Des Moines, Iowa, professor of religious education of Drake university; Rev. William N. Dressel, Evansville, Ind., pastor of the German Evangelical church and superintendent of "The School That's Different;" Andrew Stevenson, Chicago, publisher and prominent Sunday school worker; Miss Mabel Baily, Neenah, Wis., elementary superintendent of the Wisconsin Sunday School association; Rev. F. H. Brigham, Neenah, Wis., general secretary of the Wisconsin Sunday School association; J. Lincoln Hall, Philadelphia, composer, and Dr. Adam Giebel, Philadelphia, composer and organist.

A feature of the convention this year will be a program of sacred music every evening from 7:30 until 8 o'clock. A trained chorus of 100 voices from local churches is now rehearsing under the direction of A. O. Anderson. This chorus will be directed during the convention by J. Lincoln Hall of Philadelphia. Dr. Adam Giebel, the blind composer and organist from Philadelphia, will accompany the chorus. Dr. Giebel is the composer of some of the choicest of choir, church and Sunday school music now in use.

The business men's meeting on Friday noon will last just forty-five minutes and is to be open to all the men and young men of the city. Andrew Stevenson of Chicago, publisher and Sunday school expert, and one of the best speakers in America to men and boys, will have charge of the meeting.

Several Bible study periods will be held during the convention under the direction of Rev. James G. Gray, D.D., of Chicago, dean of the Moody Bible institute. All the delegates and visitors to the convention have been requested to bring their Bibles to these study periods.

School of Methods.

An interesting feature of the convention will be the school of methods for teachers and workers. This is to be the university extension plan followed out in Sunday school work and is to be explained carefully by several of the speakers. There will be four sections, with the following divisions: elementary, secondary, adult and general; the last including teachers' training, home department, temperance and missions.

On Saturday and Sunday over 500 boys, between the ages of 15 and 19, representing several hundred of the Sunday schools in this state, will hold a big boys' congress. John L. Alexander of Chicago, secondary division superintendent of the International Sunday School association, and considered the world's greatest expert on boys, will conduct these meetings, which will be held at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street.

Duluth churches will extend their hospitality to the 1,000 official delegates on the Harvard plan, giving them their lodging and breakfasts. A luncheon and dinner will be served at a nominal cost by the ladies of the Swedish Mission church at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, just one block from the convention gathering. Pastors, superintendents, county and district officers are delegates by virtue of their office and become official delegates when their credentials are duly signed by the general secretary, A. M. Locker of Minneapolis. Each Sunday school is entitled to one delegate for every fifty pupils enrolled or fraction thereof.

In addition to the official 1,000 delegates coming to the convention, at least as many visitors are expected from all sections of the state. The convention will represent Minnesota's Sunday school world of 2,200 schools and 200,000 members. These schools are grouped into 86 county and 292 district associations, all of which hold over 400 county conventions and institutes during each year.

The officers of the state association are: J. H. Martin of Minneapolis, president; Dr. R. W. Bowden, Duluth, vice president; W. H. Robinson, Taylor Falls, recording secretary; A. C. Hermann, St. Paul, treasurer; A. M. Locker, Minneapolis, executive field secretary; Miss Edna Bolkman, Minneapolis, office secretary; Miss Grace M. Longfellow, Minneapolis, education superintendent, and Miss Jean Hobart, St. Paul, teachers' training superintendent.

VARDE CLUB WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The Varde club will celebrate its fourth anniversary this evening at the St. Jean Baptiste hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. A program of music and addresses is being arranged by a committee appointed several weeks ago. Halvor Askeland of Minneapolis will make the principal address. Refreshments will be served after the program.

SPRING FESTIVAL OF LUTHER LEAGUE.

The Luther League of the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, entertained at its annual spring festival in the church parlors last evening.

During the evening an address was made by Clarence Magney on "Commission Form of Government," in which he explained the advantages of the new municipal rule over the old system. Commission government, he said, will mean a saving of money to Duluth.

Revival Services.

Rev. Joshua Gravett of Denver, who is conducting the revival meetings this week at the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, preached last evening on "Whose Righteousness Saves."

The pastor took his text from "If righteousness is a law, Christ died for naught." He said in part:

"Man sins because he is a sinner. He is not a sinner because he sins. Man is ignorant of the purpose of the law, which God did not give as a ladder by means of which one may climb into heaven. The law is a mirror in which a man may see his own heart."

This evening Rev. Mr. Gravett will preach on "Christ For Our Homes." The subject tomorrow afternoon will be "The Spirit-Filled Life." The revival will come to a close tomorrow evening when the visiting pastor will conclude his evangelistic campaign with a sermon on "The Unanswerable Question."

Surprise Party.

Miss Aloda Anderson of 3907 West Eighth street was pleasantly surprised at her home yesterday afternoon. The time was spent in music and games, after which refreshments were served to the following guests: Misses Vera Forsberg, Alida Anderson, Myrtle Bergstrom, Ebba Wicklund, Esther Albertson, Gertrude Apland, Ruth Anderson, Eunice Ayotte, Ruth Wicklund, Lillian Anderson, Esther Daulsten, and Messrs. SIMPLE BUT POWERFUL HOME MIXTURE FOR RHEUMATISM

"From your druggist get one ounce of Torris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." This is said to be the quickest and best remedy known to the medical profession for rheumatism and backache. Good results come after the first dose. If your druggist does not have Torris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Torris compound in the original one-ounce, sealed, yellow package. Hundreds of the worst cases were cured here by this prescription last winter.

FOUND KOHLER IN SCANT ATTIRE

Former Husband of Schearer Woman Testifes in Case Against Chief.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 13.—Samuel D. Schearer, former husband of the woman with whom it is charged Chief of Police Fred Kohler was guilty of immoral conduct, told the civil service commission his version of the occurrences at the Schearer home, which constitute the basis for the charges against the police chief.

The prosecution then rested, and Dr. Maurice Budwig, first witness for the defense, stated that he had prescribed for Kohler while the chief was at home in bed on Feb. 12, 1912, the date of his first alleged visit to the Schearer home. On the night of June 5, 1912, Schearer said he smashed a window in his home after ringing the doorbell for several minutes, and then, going through the house, found Kohler hidden behind the icebox in the kitchen.

"You've got me," Kohler exclaimed, according to Schearer. "Now what are you going to do with me."

Then they went upstairs to where Mrs. Schearer was found. Schearer described Kohler and his wife as being in "scanty attire."

Schearer insisted that his wife must go away that night, and said he asked Kohler to provide a place for her to stay. "Sam, you wouldn't put mo out of the house tonight?" the witness said his wife pleaded.

Clayton P. Benjamin, a friend of Schearer's, was called to identify Kohler and Mrs. Schearer, the witness said. Finally Mrs. Schearer left the house, Schearer said, and during the conversation which followed, the witness said, Kohler asked that the story be kept from his wife.

"I said, 'You can rest assured that she will never learn anything about this from me,'" Schearer said. "I thought it was the only sensible thing he had said that evening."

The hearing was adjourned until 1 o'clock Thursday.

In a statement issued by Chief Kohler he outlines what probably will be the line of his defense against the charges of immoral conduct with Mrs. May Schearer on June 5 last. He says he was given to understand that he was to meet Mr. and Mrs. Schearer and another couple at the Schearer home that night, and says he saw he was the victim of a trap when he got there and found only Mrs. Schearer. His statement claims the evidence so far in his trial has not shown any immoral conduct on his part.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ENTERTAINMENT

Cathedral Dramatic Club Will Present Sketches—Hughes as Orator.

The annual observance of St. Patrick's day, which falls in Holy week this year, will be held at the cathedral hall, Second avenue west and Fourth street, tomorrow evening.

The Cathedral Dramatic club will give two short Irish sketches. The casts have been selected from the members of the club, and rehearsals have been in progress for some weeks. The club has staged a number of dramatic successes since its organization, and it is expected to add to its laurels by the presentation of the two plays tomorrow evening.

The address will be given by Ray M. Hughes, a Duluth attorney. Mr. Hughes is an orator of proven ability. He has an intimate knowledge of Irish history and legend, and his address tomorrow evening is expected to be one of the features of the entertainment.

SALVATION LIES IN NEW TESTAMENT TEACHINGS

The Christian, in his relations to God and society, was the subject discussed by Robert Whiston in his sermon last night on the "New Man," in the First Christian church.

He said: "There is no salvation from sin outside of the definite program in the New Ttesament, laid by Christ and the apostles. The gospels of aestheticism and moralism and culture, cannot take the place of the essential gospel of the blood of Christ. The program of the Christ is being ignored in the average evangelistic campaign. We are telling men the need of salvation, and emphasizing the ethical and moral obligations of the Christian life, but often neglecting to point out the way to salvation. God himself has joined together, faith repentance and baptism, and what God has joined together, let no man put assunder.

"The apostles had a faith worth dying for and they literally died for it. If your faith isn't worth dying for it is worthless. The real Christian is a fighter and not a mollycoddle. He turns things upside down to get them righteride up. Two many people are laying down to the devil. They don't want any disagreeable scene and so the devil has the laugh on the church. The only way to whip the devil is to roll up once spiritual sleeves and fight him to a standstill.

"To become a Christian involves an absolute change, a new creation. Vaccination may work and it may not but Christianity always works. Salvation is based not upon feelings but upon the promise of God to save if one will do his will. Doubts have their roots in sin. Stop sinning, square up with God, trot square with the world and doubts will fly."

Tonight the evangelist will speak upon "Suicide and Religion." The chorus will assist and other special music will be rendered. The church is at Twelfth avenue east and Fourth street.

F. Recker. Mr. Chafee was one of the pioneers who helped develop Northern Wisconsin, and was interested in many enterprises. He was a prominent Mason.

"OVER THE HILL TO THE POOR HOUSE"

Seven Unfortunates Admitted in One Day---One Suffering From Frozen Feet, Another Dying a White Plague Victim.

Yesterday might well have been called "receiving day" at the county poor farm. The farm ambulance was kept on the run most of the afternoon and when the day was over, the poor farm's population had been increased by seven. Of the new arrivals, two were in serious condition and five were suffering from temporary afflictions.

John Haley, aged 32, woodsman, will probably lose a part or both feet as a result of having had them frozen this week. Haley, like many others of his kind who are at the poor house recovering from amputations of the feet, tried to make his way alone through the woods from one camp to another and was lost. The night came on and with it the suffering which comes from long exposure to the winter elements. Haley was picked up in the timber north of Virginia after having spent a night in the woods. Both feet were badly frozen.

Oscar Jacobson, 27, another man of the woods, will probably die a victim to the great white plague. He was taken by the poor authorities yesterday from a room in the Clarendon hotel, Garfield avenue and Superior street, and was taken to the farm where he was placed in a ward of the tuberculosis hospital. Jacobson came to Duluth two weeks ago from International Falls, where he has been living for several months. When members of the Linnaea society, an organization of Scandinavian women which is fighting tuberculosis, learned of Jacobson's case, some money was contributed to have him cared for at the Nopeming sanitarium. The sanitarium at Nopeming however, now has a waiting list and in the meantime, the man will be cared for at the poor farm

Another Sad Case.

George Hebert, 62 years old, is suffering from a cataract of the eye and it is feared that unless he is given proper medical assistance that it will make him blind. Hebert was removed yesterday from his home on Fifteenth avenue west, after application for relief had been made to the poor authorities by his son. The latter, a young man, stated that he himself had just returned from the posthouso where he had had a siege of smallpox and that as yet he had been unable to do any work and contribute to his father's support.

Eighteen-year-old Peter Olos, an orphan of Italian parentage, who has been doing odd jobs around Hibbing and Duluth in an effort to make a living for himself, came to the office of the poor commission yesterday afternoon and complained of an abscess on one of his legs. The county physician examined it and sent him to the county hospital at the farm for treatment. He will only be kept at the farm for a few days.

Russell Cushman, 56, who was crippled while at work in the harvest fields of the Dakotas last fall, is having trouble with an injured thigh. He was sent to Duluth yesterday from Virginia for treatment at the county hospital.

Samuel Champagne, a big, stalwart lumberjack, told Charles Sheehan, clerk of the board yesterday, that he had blown in all of his money for booze and that he was without the necessary wherewithal to secure medical attendance for an infected hand. Champagne, in a recent siege of over indulgence, tipped over on the sidewalk and badly bruised one of his hands. It has become infected and has swollen. While it is being treated, Champagne will stay at the county hospital.

John West, aged 24, who has been working around Duluth hotels for the last three or four years but who claims to be in hard financial straits at the present time was so hoarse that he could hardly talk when he applied for free medical attendance at the office of the poor commission yesterday afternoon. The county physician found the young man suffering from a severe case of tonsilitis and had him sent to the hospital at the farm.

St. Paul Jury Disagrees.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—The jury in the case of Ambrose La Mattry, a motorman, charged with manslaughter, last night reported that it was unable to reach an agreement after having been out more than twenty-four hours. La Mattry's car killed Raymond Dusek, aged 6, last June.

Kills Three Big Wolves.

Marquette, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three of the largest wolf pelts that have ever been brought to the county clerk's office have been registered by Henry Haverty of Powell township, and on them he received bounties of $27 apiece. One measured seven feet in length and the two others were well over five feet long.

PE-RU-NA A GRIP REMEDY

A Multitude of Cases Take It After Everything Else Has Failed.

MR. ROBERT H. NORRIS

A great many people in this country have taken Peruna for the grip. They have taken Peruna in the first stages, when the first symptoms appeared. They find by experience that Peruna will abort the course of the disease. People who take Peruna recover much quicker.

Comparatively few however, take Peruna during the acute stage. Generally other medicines are taken at first, where doctors are employed. But when the disease becomes chronic, when recovery has been sufficient to enable the patient to be convalescent and yet all run down, out of sorts, easily fatigued, no appetite, when this stage of grip has been reached, then there are multitudes that resort to Peruna and they are never disappointed. Peruna restores them in a comparatively short time.

Grip is a catarhal disease. Whether it spreads from person to person, or whether each person gets it direct from the atmosphere is a mooted question. I will not discuss it, further than to say that if grip is passed on by one person to another it would be properly called epidemic catarrh. If, however, grip is taken from the atmosphere and not from each other, it would be properly called endemic catarrh.

Yes, grip is a catarrhal disease. An acute catarrhal disease. In some cases it resembles a common cold. There are some symptoms different. Intense aching of the muscles and bones. Tired feelings predominate. It comes on more suddenly than a common cold. There has been no particular exposure to cold to account for it.

Samuel M. York, of Union Grove, Alabama, says: "I was taken with the grip. This produced catarrhal deafness. After taking two bottles of Peruna I found myself well of the grip and my hearing was fully restored. My health is better than it has been in five years."

A great many people have a similar experience. Not only do they find themselves relieved of grip, but they find their health in other respects greatly improved.

Mrs. Jane Gift, Athens, Ohio, R. D. 1, says: "I think I would have been dead long ago if it hadn't been for Peruna. Six years ago I had the grip very bad. I grew worse, in spite of doctors and other remedies. I saw an account of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. My husband got some Peruna and improvement began in a very short time. I continued to use it until I was entirely well."

Mr. C. Happy, of Hardin, Ray Co., Missouri, "took a very bad cold and had la grippe last February," he says. "I took three bottles of Peruna and it cured me."

Similar letters are received frequently, without any solicitation on our part. They come to us through our regular correspondence, and of course represent only a small fraction of the cures made by Peruna of the grip in its various phases and stages.

Yes, Peruna is a catarrh remedy. It matters not whether the catarrh is epidemic or endemic, or where the catarrh is located in the body. Peruna is an efficient, reliable remedy. One trial of it is all the recommendation that is needed to make Peruna a fixture in every home.

Mr. Robert H. Norris, No. 1333 Henry St., North Berkeley, California, whose portrait appears above, also used Peruna with great benefit. He writes: "We have never had any other medicine in our home but Peruna since we have been married.

"I suffered with kidney and bladder trouble, but two months treatment with Peruna made me a well and strong man.

"My wife felt weak and was easily tired and was also troubled with various pains, but since she took Peruna she is well and strong."

Woman's Realm

The announcement that the Glee club of the University of Minnesota will give a concert here on Monday evening, March 24 at the Central high school for the benefit of the Smith Memorial fund is of general interest to high school students and graduates, Minnesota alumni and music lovers in general.

The concert will be given under the auspices of the association of the Central high school with Edward Furni the president, in charge of arrangements. The association is raising a fund to establish a scholarship in memory of Charles Alden Smith, who for years was principal of the school and a good start has been made towards raising the necessary amount.

This Glee club, which is one of the largest student musical organizations of the West, will be heard here with its full membership, giving the first of a series of concerts to be given in Northern Minnesota during Easter week. Prof. J. Carlyle Scott is director.

Walter Dacey, president of the Minnesota Alumni association of Duluth and Mr. Furni are planning a reception and dance for the university men during their stay here.

GERMAN DRAMA.

Social Fermentation Creates Intense Interest.

"The tremendous social fermentation in Germany accounts for the deep interest in the drama in that country," said Rev. George R. Gebauer last evening in his lecture on "Modern German Drama," given under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club at the Unitarian church.

"Present day agitations in America do not go very deep for the Americans are a happy-go-lucky race on the whole, prosperous and contented and so the social conditions here offer little that is truly dramatic though much that is theatrical for the American drama."

Mr. Gebauer gave as the elements of the new turmoil in German thought, (1), the old idealism, pushed to the background, but by no means dead, and ever ready to come to the fore again; (2), a radical and uncompromising materialism, which probably grew out of a mistaken conception of evolution and has given birth to democracy in politics and socialism in economics; (3), the philosophy of Nietsche, who stands for the superman, for intellectual, physical and moral aristocracy and who hates as heartily the spiritual democracy of the church as the social equality of socialism; (4), local state patriotism, especially in Bavaria, which stands upon its hereditary rights and looks somewhat disdainfully upon the north.

"It would take a poetic genius greater than Goethe, greater even than Shakespeare, to fully picture the clash of all these conflicting elements," he said, but pointed out the large body of serious realistic drama which has been produced as the result of these conditions.

VASSAR GRADUATE A SOCIAL WORKER

MARY E. CHAMBERLAIN.

Mary Louise Chamberlain recently startled the world by making public her experience in the canning factories of New York. She told how she had put on the clothing of a working girl and gone into the factories to labor. And then she recounted her observations—how children of 10 were roused from sleep before dawn and driven by their parents to work in the factories until far into the night. Her reports created quite a sensation. Miss Chamberlain is a Vassar graduate of 1909 and lives in Hudson, Mass.

Mrs. Jesse Norton was hostess at bridge parties this and yesterday afternoons at her home, 5090 London road, the game yesterday being played at six tables and the prizes going to Miss Bessie Burgo and Mrs. C. A charming vocal solo, "His Buttons Were Marked U. S.," was given by Miss Whitcomb, with an equally pleasing encore. Two violin numbers, "Souvenir de Wieniawski" and "Hungarian Dance" (W. E. Haesche), were given by Miss Eleanore Kraft with brilliance and precision of touch. Miss Ethel Molitor made a sympathetic accompanist. A pretty little patriotic sketch, "The Flowers of Liberty," was given by Miss Genevieve Blance, and the song, "America," by Miss Whitcomb, accompanied by Miss Kraft on the violin and Miss Molitor, piano, closed the program.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—"A Broken Idol."

Amusement Notes.

There is a clown at the Orpheum this week who has ambitions to be a great violinist.

The clown in question is the elder of the two Arnaut brothers, who are appearing in a novel acrobatic act this week. The two brothers appear as clowns in the costume generally accepted for clowns on the French stage, for the brothers are French. They do acrobatic stunts while playing the violin. In addition to being violinists and acrobats the brothers are clever pantomimists and comedians, and their act is one of the hits of this week's bill.

But in spite of their success with their present act, one of the brothers is determined to become a violinist. He spends all of his spare time practicing, and on his return to France this coming summer he plans to take a year's vacation and spend it in study, to learn whether or not he might hope to become a famous musician.

"I studied the violin just to make our act more entertaining," he said last evening, "but I have become so attached to the instrument that I hope some day to be able to study it seriously, and make it my profession instead of what I am now doing."

The brothers have made several tours of America, and speak English perfectly.

The delightful musical comedy spectacle, "A Broken Idol," will be the welcome attraction which opened a three days' engagement at the Empress theater this afternoon. When this production was seen here last at $1.50 prices, it impressed itself strongly upon all who witnessed it, not only by the excellence of its comedy and the charm of its music, but by the magnificence of its sartorial equipment. And the knowledge that it will be presented here at the Empress standard prices with practically the same production, including the array of unnamed beauties who constitute the chorus and ballet, adds interest to the announcement. Aside from the attractive elements which are customary to musical comedy presentations, and in which "A Broken Idol" is so unusually prodigal, there is an electric tableau at the end of the first act that is said to be one of the prettiest scenes presented on any stage.

The play is given in two acts. The first act takes place in mysterious Chinatown, Los Angeles, the second at the beautiful home of Silar Pugeley at Santa Monica, Cal.

The following are a few of the splendid songs: "A Little China Doll," "I Am a Parisienne," "Love Makes the World Go Round," "It's All on Account of the Same Old Moon," and "Alabama."

The company is headed by Prima Donna Alice Clark, and contains the following well-known people: Harry Lester, Inez Baker, Ed. Keltner, Mae Phillber, Harry Keesler, George M. Purdy, John Phillber, Robert Bentley, Pansy K. Keltner and many others.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

In one of the Superior street windows where new suits and hats are shown, is a dainty little street hat of panama with a red veil tied in careless effect over the entire crown and brim which is particularly attractive. A short coat of blue is also admired by the shoppers who pass this same window.

Other windows are also filled with little street hats in blacks and tans and noticeably prominent are the little slender question mark adornments usually sticking right straight up in front with an independent air.

In one of the shop windows a handsome white coat is priced at $17.50, marked at just one-half the original cost which would be most attractive for summer evening wear. This coat of a three-quarters length.

St. Patrick Novelties.

Hats, clay pips, shamrocks and other novelties suggestive of St. Patrick's day in the brilliant emerald green are shown in several of the shops. One Superior street window is filled with these little favors, place and tally cards and little decorative schemes for St. Patrick's day parties.

Another window is filled with delightful little Easter novelties which are attractive and new.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Baby Rules Some Mothers Like a Little Tyrant.

One of the commonest sights in life is the mother who is absorbed, body and soul, in her infant. She expects the universe to revolve to the tune of his baby laughter and to stand still at his least wail of distress. Ordinarily considerate of others, she becomes a model of solicitude for but one human being—her child; and the moment he is in her arms, all thought for others takes wings and flees.

What wonder, then, that many of her friends find her company less entertaining and agreeable than of old, and that sometimes even her husband, the baby's father, feels himself a very inferior being, and of little consequence in his own home.

Who doesn't know of a household or more where every sound is hushed the moment baby is put to sleep? The husband, returning with eagerness and boyish enthusiasm to impart some bit of news to his wife, is met with the whispered command to be quiet. Who doesn't know of a mother who seems interesting only in talking of her child? The only topic that elicits interest or sympathy from her is baby, and her baby, at that. She will volubly chat for hours about everything relating to the existence of the little one, never realizing, apparently, that you are not engrosed in the subject as she is, heart and soul.

That such a mother spares herself no effort in behalf of her baby, and considers no personal sacrifice too great for it, whether necessary or otherwise, does not alter the fact that she is unwise in persisting in such an extreme attitude, and stands in danger of creating a coolness on her husband's part, and difficulty in exacting the proper regard and obedience from the child as it grows older.

There is nothing in this life more beautiful or nearer divine than a good mother's love for her little one. But a mother may love her baby just as devotedly without neglecting her husband or her friends. She who goes to this extreme, of course, is infinitely to be preferred to that mother who shirks the responsibility of motherhood and places the child in the care of a nurse, neglecting it entirely, and never showing it any affection, while she gads about in the social swirl. Such a mother is not a mother at all; she is a disgrace to the name, if she goes to the extreme.

Give me the sensible mother, who knows just where to draw the line between duty and foolish indulgence, on the one hand, and duty and shameful neglect on the other. Many mothers succeed in finding this golden mean, and they are wise and happy in doing so.

DIED IN AUTOMOBILE.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—M. O. Hoglund, aged 45 years, and Nels Larson, 40, were found dead sitting in an automobile in their repair shop here yesterday afternoon. Gas fumes from the engine in which the men had been riding late Tuesday night are believed to have caused their deaths.

Hoglund, who was at the steering wheel, was sitting almost upright, while Larson was reclining in the rear seat. A physician, who examined the bodies, said they had been dead for several hours. They were last seen in their automobile about 10:30 Tuesday night, a few blocks from their shop.

DIVORCE FOLLOWS AN OLD OFFENSE

Ten years ago, when Doris Tardiff, now aged 64, and a watchman living at 2619 Martin street, found that his wife had been untrue to him and that she had wrongful relations with their "star boarder," he had her guilty lover arrested and sent to the Wisconsin state penitentiary at Waupun for a term of eighteen months on a statutory charge.

Today, Tardiff shook off the bonds of matrimony which have held him to Harriet Tardiff since they were married at St. Ignace, Mich., back in August, 1887. Judge Cant in district court today, acting upon a deposition made by Tardiff, ordered findings in his favor. The plaintiff is also known as Doris Tarjeft, but he usually has been known as Doris Tardiff.

Tardiff testified that he was responsible for the arrest of his wife and one John Atkinson in 1893 at Merrill, Wis., on a charge of adultery. The charges against the woman were never pressed but Atkinson was tried, convicted and sentenced to one year and six months at Waupun. Atkinson had been a boarder at the Tardiff home while they were living at Ashland, Wis.

Tardiff had been married once before and his wife twice. Her whereabouts, he testified, are unknown.

USE THE SECOND AND THIRD CHOICES IN MARKING YOUR BALLOT.

Some of the candidates for commissionerships under the new city government are giving bad advice to the voters. They are urging the people not to make use of the second and "other choice" privileges in marking their ballots.

Whatever may be the motive back of this advice, the advice itself is bad. It is calculated to destroy the effect of the charter provisions that would insure the election of men acceptable to a majority of the voters. Also it seeks to deprive the voter of the personal privilege granted him by the charter of using his best judgment in making his selection for city officers.

The object of the second and other choice privileges is to insure the election of men who will be acceptable to a majority of the voters. In no other way can this be assured, especially when there is such a multiplicity of candidates as is to be presented to the voters in the coming election.

The use of the privilege of voting more than one choice makes election by a majority possible. But it does more than that. It makes it impossible for any particular interest to overthrow the will of the majority by plumping its voting power on the men who will do its bidding in city affairs. If you fail to use the second and other choice privileges you will be playing into the hands of special interests that want to use the city for their own private purposes. If you use those privileges you will be defeating the object of those interests and helping to assure fair and just government.

Voters should reject the kind of advice that these "first choice only" candidates are giving. It may be honestly meant, but it is bad. And it is the worst possible thing that the workingmen, to whom the advice is especially directed, could do.

When you get into the voting booth on April 1, use the first choice and all the other choices, and thereby not only vote for the men you approve, but cast just that many votes against the men you distrust.

Seems as if that man Huerta is staying president for an awfully long while.

COAL.

A few days ago The Herald pointed out the manner in which the consumer—which means you, Mr. Wage-earner, and all your neighbors—had been made to take money out of his own pocket and put it into those of the coal barons without getting any adequate return. It was the report of the United States government investigators that showed this fact, which is, in brief, that while the mine owners have paid an increase of $4,000,000 in wages in the last year, they have made the public pay an increase of $13,000,000 in price. And all on the plea that the higher wages made it necessary. Which plea, it may be remarked in passing, was a lie pure and simple, if a lie can be pure.

Now comes the natural question, what are we going to do about it? Also the question, what can we do? It looks as if there is a trust operating the coal business of the country. Of course this appearance may be misleading. There may be no trust. But it does look a little that way.

But even if there is a trust, what can we do? The question is emphasized when one remembers a statement published some little time ago by the Engineering and Mining Journal, thus:

> No great trade in this country is so closely controlled and unified as that in anthracite. There is, however, nominally no trust or combination among the companies. The control is through stock ownership and common interest and is exercised in ways the law does not reach and which it cannot be brought to touch without the greatest difficulty under existing conditions.

A very hopeful outlook, this! The coal supply of the country, a natural product, access to which is imperative for a vast majority of our people, is controlled by interests that are beyond the reach of the law. So we are tied hand and foot, and must look on helplessly while these interests calmly put their hands into our pockets and take out as much as they please, if even to the last cent they can find.

But there is one solution that has not yet been tried. Whether it will be tried rests absolutely with the interests themselves. That solution is the assumption and operation of the coal mines by the Federal government. The plan has been suggested before, and has been rejected. As long as private enterprise was willing to take only a reasonable profit out of the business it seemed unwise to extend government control to cover the coal business. But the private interests have not been willing to conduct the business at a reasonable profit. They have made it a means of robbing the public without mercy, and that is something the public is not willing to endure. There must be a change in the policy of the coal men, or there will be a change in the policy of the people. It is for the coal mine owners to decide, and their decision will be final, one way or the other. There will be no middle road.

Due consideration must be given to the report that Madero and Huerta had different makes of 1913 automobiles.

A THOROUGH AIRING NEEDED.

Nothing short of a thorough airing of all the circumstances will suffice to clear up the charges made against Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, the official representative in Mexico of the United States government. There must be an airing not only of the charges against him, but in case these are not completely substantiated, there must be a showing up of the origin of these charges and the circumstances that led to their being made.

A long string of accusations is made against the ambassador, which in brief amount to this: That he gave encouragement and virtual aid to the Madero faction in the revolution which resulted in the overthrow of the Diaz government; that he participated in the movement to force Madero to resign from the presidency after the latter had been duly elected to that office; that the ambassador gave encouragement, both personal and official, to the revolt against the Madero government which ended in the death of the president; and that the ambassador's attitude toward the Huerta government has been marked by an intimacy and friendship unwarranted in the representative of a foreign power.

These constitute as serious charges as could be made against an ambassador to a friendly nation. It is almost inconceivable that any man of sufficient mental and moral force to make his appointment as an ambassador possible could be guilty of such acts as these. Englishmen have severely criticized James Bryce for even his purely advisory remarks on internal affairs in this country. What would have been said had he openly sympathized with rebellion against the government to which he was sent as the representative of his own nation?

Ambassador Wilson may not have been guilty of the acts charged against him. His resignation, offered to President Wilson, is no evidence of guilt; it is only the action customarily taken by an ambassador on a change of presidents. Ambassador Wilson is entitled to a thorough investigation of the accusations. If his accusers cannot establish that they are true, he should be retained in the Mexican post, not as an evidence of confidence on the part of this government, but because he is better posted on Mexican conditions than any other American, and because we need an ambassador there who is thoroughly informed on all lines.

Also, if these charges fail of substantiation, their source and purpose ought to be ferreted out and the guilty parties punished as adequately as the law will permit.

The dictagraph isn't as prominent in the news as it was for a while, but that's no sign that it has lost its efficiency. Which would seem to indicate that here is one instrument that is almost human in some of its attributes.

ONE MORE CHANCE.

Only some 5,000 voters registered Tuesday—less than half the number who voted in the election last November. Unquestionably the weather operated to keep many from going to the registration places. Those who did not register Tuesday will have one more chance to make sure of the privilege of voting in the city election April 1. That will be on the second and last registration day, which will be Saturday, March 15.

Every voter should make certain that his name is on the registration books on that date. One of the first requisites of success in city government under the commission plan is intelligent interest on the part of the voters. If you fail to register and vote, you will be doing just that much against the interests of good government in Duluth.

Remember, next Saturday will be the last chance to register. Make sure that your name is on the lists.

Meanwhile let's hope that the legislators won't forget all about the idea of a constitutional convention.

We Are Never Satisfied.

Franklin P. Adams in the Metropolitan Magazine: Hark, O ye that rail at the clinging skirt, to this from Peterson's Magazine of January, 1866:

"The present shape of the hoop skirt is detestable. If the wind blows, the skirt swings to one side, exposing the person; even in stepping up a curbstone the same thing happens. The shape in fashion a year or two ago was much more modest. Why not return to it?"

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHAT MEN ARE NEEDED FOR THE COMMISSION.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read the papers regularly, but I don't often get into print. I've been thinking "some thinks" regarding our new form of government lately and I'd like to print 'em. This should be an election of the capabilities of the various candidates to fill the positions they aspire to. We should learn what the division of duties are, size up the candidates as to their qualifications for the various divisions and vote accordingly.

We have five divisions—public affairs, public utilities, public finance, public works and public safety. The man elected mayor will naturally fall into the division of public affairs which will probably consist of the work in connection with the library, parks, playgrounds and other work concerning the city generally. The welfare work will also come in his jurisdiction and that's an important matter in our civic life. Who will best fill that job?

Public utilities at the present writing, that is municipally-owned utilities, mean the water and light plant. The duties of that commissioner will consist in overseeing that department and whatever work there is to be done in connection with the street car company, the express companies and the railroads. A hard-headed business man is needed there. Who is the man?

The division of public finance will include all the work now done by the present treasurer and comptroller. Both the men now filling these positions are candidates for the long term, with that division in mind as their objective point. If they are both elected, only one of them can get that position. What will we do with the other one if we elect both? If we elect either, we should elect the one best qualified for the position. Which shall it be? It's up to the voters to judge and decide.

For the division of public works there are candidates both for the long and short term that would fill the bill. One long-term candidate has had years of experience in contracting, another has had years of experience as chief clerk of the board of public works and has every knowledge of the work from a technical point of view, another is now on the board of works and should know all about the work of that division, still another is a practical engineer with a knowledge and training that should fit him for the job. Who will we elect? Pick out the man best qualified and vote for him.

Last comes the division of public safety. What is needed there? I think we need a man who has stood for law enforcement in the past and not one who uses law enforcement now as a catch phrase to win votes. We want a man with backbone enough to be the real head of the division, one that will give us a cleanly, orderly city. Who shall it be?

It can all be summed up by saying this is not and should not be made a campaign of issues. It is a campaign, to all right thinking voters, of the best men for the various positions. The one big issue is good government for Duluth and we'll get that if we pay no attention to isms that tend to cloud that issue. Some one in print recently said "voters should be guided by their judgment and conscience." That is the keynote to the situation.

A. F. KREAGER.

MAKES COWARDS AND HYPOCRITES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

This question of segregation makes hypocrites and cowards of us all. We are apt to appear as newly converted reformers, or as openly defying the law; while the truth is that most of us want to do what is right in this matter, if we can only discover our duty and the public will support us in doing it. There ought to be some common ground whereby the moral forces and the public official could make some substantial headway against this tremendous evil of social vice.

Abolition would be ideal if it could be accomplished; but as segregation will not segregate, will abolition abolish? From a strictly moral standpoint, has there been anything gained by scattering the evil, where there can be no system of watching it? There is no doubt at all that the public will demand at least an attempt to enforce the law in the matter, no matter what the results may be. It is to be hoped, however, that when that is done the public will be willing to equip the law enforcing authorities with sufficient force to follow the evil into its hiding places.

A morals commission could do nothing else than to insist on the enforcement of the law, no matter what the results; but a commission composed of men and women who are willing to study the subject from cause to effect and force the general public to an acknowledgement of the real conditions surrounding this matter, would serve a very useful purpose by doing such work as the Pittsburg committee or the present Chicago investigating committee. It would bring the public face to face with all the facts; and to an acknowledgement of their duty in the matter of the necessity of abolishing the double standard of morality, where the man is held guiltless and the woman bears her iniquity. It would divert the constant persecution of the weak-minded unfortunate female prostitute and direct attention to the man prostitute and the inequalities of the law in this respect. There can be no virtue in shifting the evil from one place to another. This is too big a question. The public can no longer shift the responsibility to the public official, nor the public official on the public. It must be handled courageously and in the open, with free discussion; and if the present laws are inadequate, to create better laws. If the contributing causes can be removed, remove them. If rescue and relief and opportunity can be given the unfortunates, then give it.

These are the views of

A CANDIDATE.

Duluth, March 12.

So the Phonograph Happened.

Thomas A. Edison: I was singing to the mouthpiece of a telephone, when the vibrations of my voice caused a fine steel point to pierce one of my fingers held just behind it. That set me to thinking. If I could record the motions of the point and send it over the same surface afterward, I saw no reason why the thing would not talk. I determined to make a machine that would work accurately instructions, telling them what I had discovered. That's the whole story. The phonograph is the result of the pricking of a finger.

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Never in all his life has Representative "Dick" Austin of the Knoxville, Tenn., district cast his vote against an appropriation bill. He takes great pride in the fact that he has never opposed so much as a single item in any bill providing for the expenditure of government money. Austin is unqualifiedly out of sympathy with any so-called economical administration. What he wants to do is get all the money in circulation that he can. That being the case, he does not feel like quibbling over the mere question of what the money is to be spent for. Just so it is spent, Austin doesn't care.

Just the other day, Watchdog Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee was upbraiding Austin for his extravagance, pointing out that with a reduced tariff there may not be enough money coming in to offset that going out.

"Austin," he asked sternly, "do you know how much this country raised from various sources last year?"

"No, I really haven't the remotest idea," replied Austin; "I've been so busy trying to get the stuff spent that I have had no time to bother with such details as the amount coming in."

The next day Austin walked over to Fitzgerald and inquired solemnly if he could find out just how much money there is in the vaults of the United States treasury. "I want to know the exact amount," he said, "down to the penny."

"What's up now?" asked Fitzgerald. "Oh, nothing" said Austin, "only if I just knew how much there was there I might be able to think up some scheme to get it all spent."

One afternoon an economical member of congress suggested to Jim Mann that it might be a good idea to have all the money saved from appropriation bills put into a surplus from which the members could take what they needed, for worthy purposes, in alphabetical order.

"No; that would never do," said Mann. "That fellow Austin's name comes up toward the top, and after he got to the fund there would be nothing left."

Next to spending public money, Austin's greatest hobby is strife. Anything in the way of an argument or a fight makes him all a-purr with joy. There is nothing blustery or pugnacious about Austin's manner, either. In fact, he is calm and his eyes twinkle quietly all the time he is stirring up a fight, but that calm simply enables him to invent more different ways to bring about conflict wherever possible.

Several years ago Mrs. Austin asked a representative, a friend of Dick's, if he couldn't get her husband appointed to some foreign post where he would be entirely out of politics.

"Oh, gracious no! I couldn't think of doing that," replied the representative. "If your husband were sent to some European capital he would bring about war between that country and ours inside of a month."

• • •

Austin did get a job, however, as United States consul to Glasgow. The day after he sailed two friends of his got to talking. Said one:

"Oh Dick Austin's out on the ocean. I'd just like to know what he's doing?"

"Well; I can tell you what he's doing," said the other one. "I know what he's doing just as well as if I were right there with him. He's trying to get his boat into a fight with a whale."

President Taft sent for Austin one day to ask him to vote in favor of holding the Panama canal celebration at San Francisco instead of at New Orleans.

"You'll have to give me some good reason for voting that way," said Austin. "I come from a Southern district, and my people can go to New Orleans and return for less than the Pullman fare would be to 'Frisco."

"Well, I have a most excellent reason," said the president. And he went on to explain that if the exposition were given to 'Frisco, the California legislature would be induced to be more pleasant in its attitude toward the Japanese, and in that way we could avoid a Japanese war."

"Then, if that's what it means—avoiding a war," said Austin, "I can't vote for it. You know, my people down in those Tennessee hills just love to fight. If I did anything to avoid a fight, I wouldn't dare go back home."

On another occasion Taft sent for Austin and asked him if he couldn't see his way clear to vote for a certain measure then about to come up in the house.

"Are you really very intent about getting it passed?" asked Austin, gravely.

"Yes; extremely so."

"You believe in the bill?"

"From the bottom of my heart."

"If that's the case, then," went on Austin, "you must be mighty anxious for my vote. If I vote for it, what will you do for me in return? You see, I'm a great trader. All the people down my way are shrewd traders. Why, one of the sharpest Jews in New York came down there one time to settle, and at the end of two weeks he spent his last cent to wire home to New York for money to get him out of town."

Put Yourself in His Place.

Kansas City Star: A young man in Kansas City was invited out to dinner the other evening; a spur-of-the-moment invitation it was that caught him fifteen minutes before dinner time. However, being a hungry young man and knowing his host too well to stand on ceremony, he went. The host met him in the front hall, smiling expansively.

"Awfully glad we caught you, old man," he said, grasping his hand; "we wanted you particularly, you see, because we are going to have a little game this evening."

"Why—er—that is——" gasped the guest, "to be frank with you I've only got 40 cents with me—if you'd let me know——"

The host roared.

"No, no, you goat," he said, "I don't mean the kind of game you do—it's wild duck, and it's waiting to be carved."

A Promise to a Child.

Liverpool Post: One of the incomprehensible things to a child is the fashion some grownup people have of promising and forgetting. There is no surer way to lose a child's confidence and love. They do not understand excuses or the pressure of circumstances; they only know: "She said she would and she didn't." One child who had used the word "promise" was asked to tell its meaning. He replied, "To promise is to keep it in your mind, keep it in your mind, keep it, in your mind till you do it."

From House to Senate—No. 5

By Saroyard.

Washington, March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—In July, 1876, Lot M. Morrill of Maine resigned his seat in the United States senate to become secretary of treasury in President Grant's cabinet. There was gossip at the time that very nearly attained to the proportions of a scandal, that this shifting of Morrill from the legislative to the executive branch of the government was the result of some practical politics played by that past master of the craft, James G. Blaine. The "plumed knight" was a member of the Forty-fourth congress and hard-pressed by Proctor Knott and Eppa Hunton, who were on the committee to investigate the "Mulligan letters." He had just been defeated by R. B. Hayes for the nomination for president in the Cincinnati convention, where Bob Ingersoll had idealized him in one of the most brilliant bursts of eloquence that ever fell from the tongue of American orator.

The friends of Morrill of Maine, some of them, at least, professed to believe that something like a bunko game had been played to the prejudice of that fine old man, when he was persuaded to resign the senatorship. There will always be a mystery to it, for Grant's aversion to Blaine very nearly amounted to hatred, and Conkling, Grant's spokesman in the senate, entertained enmity toward the "plumed knight" more virulent than Benton's malevolence toward Calhoun, or Clay's hostility toward Buchanan. And it is curious if Grant willingly made a vacancy in the senate for the convenience or advantage of the Republican leader who had taught the Democrats the trick that killed Ben Butler's force bill, that was an administration measure. However, it may be that Conkling desired the presence of his enemy in the senate, where he could the better watch him. In the senate their seats were in the same row, Conkling on the aisle, and Hamlin of Maine and Ingalls of Kansas between them. Conkling and Blaine were in the senate together nearly four years, and neither ever discovered during that entire period that he realized that the other existed.

In the senate Blaine was what he had been in the house—able, brilliant, eloquent, dashing. Had he been a high-minded man, like John C. Breckinridge, or Roscoe Conkling, or Thomas B. Reed, nothing could have prevented his elevation to the chief magistracy of the republic; but no man has yet been president whose pen could trace the "Mulligan letters."

The unspeakable stupidity of our legislative policy is the selection of the speaker from among the leaders of the majority of the house. It operated very well in the case of Henry Clay, who was about as active in the debates of the house while speaker as he would have been had that dignity fallen to another; but the past half a century the speaker has rarely engaged in debate on the floor. Neither Blaine nor Carlisle ever descended from the chair to discuss a measure. Colfax did it once and earned the rebuke of all decent folk for the botch he made of the job. Reed never left the chair to engage in debate; Crisp did it once—the close of the debate on the tariff, when he was painfully overshadowed by the superior eloquence of William L. Wilson. James Hamilton Lewis made a sage suggestion when he proposed that the house select some fellow for speaker well versed in parliamentary law and not a member of the body. Many of the state legislatures could supply such a chap.

Onslow was many years speaker of the British commons. Who recollects him? Who forgets the two William Pitts, or Henry Fox, or Charles James Fox, or Burke, or Sheridan, no one of whom ever dreamed of the speakership of the body they helped to make "the first senate in the world?"

Excepting old Ben Butler, always, James G. Blaine had more audacity than any other man who ever appeared in either house of the American congress. In debate he was like a rubber ball—sink him under the water here, he would bound up there; just as agile, just as intrepid, just as formidable as ever. He was always brilliant—the Henry of Navarre of American politics. In two campaigns Navarre was utterly disconcerted—all his plans defeated by Alexander Farnese, commander of the Spanish army, though there was no considerable battle either year. Who remembers Farnese? Who does not remember the white plume of Navarre that waved in the forefront at Ivry. Matt Carpenter utterly crushed Blaine in a brilliant debate. Who remembers Carpenter? Who forgets Blaine?

The court of international arbitration at Geneva, when Grant was president, awarded the United States against Great Britain $15,000,000 damages for the depredations on our commerce during the war of 1861-65 by Confederate cruisers. The money was paid into the treasury, and congress debated the distribution that should be made of it. On that question a member of the house from Dayton, Ohio, Mr. McMahon, achieved one of the greatest intellectual triumphs that ever came to parliamentary gladiator, carrying the day against a majority of the judiciary committee, headed by Proctor Knott, and many of the ablest constitutional lawyers of the day. McMahon served six years in congress. He ought to have had a life lease on a seat in the senate; but in those days, unless an Ohio Democrat reeked with coal oil, certain vicious agencies there saw to it that he never got to be over knee high, as "Old Roman" Thurman put it.

Well, when the bill got to the senate there was a great diversity of opinion over it. Some, Blaine among them, declared the money belonged to the ship masters, whose vessels had been captured; others held that the merchants whose cargoes had been captured should be reimbursed their losses. Yet others, Conkling and Thurman among them, contended that the insurance companies that had already paid the losses of the sailors and the merchants should have first whack at the $15,000,000. As I now recollect, old Edmunds of Vermont argued that the money belonged to none of these, but was the property of the people of the United States and should be covered into the general funds of the treasury.

It was a brilliant debate, participated in by Blaine, Edmunds, Hoar, Conkling, Carpenter, Thurman, McDonald, Ben Hill and others. Party lines were lost, and had it been political the conflict would have shone in history with the titanic controversies of that elder day when Clay, Calhoun and Webster were on the stage. Once, as Blaine was speaking he made an erroneous statement, and, starting to correct it, he began: "No, I am wrong about that," when Dan Voorhees from his seat interjected, "As usual." The galleries roared, the senate came as near a laugh as its dignity would permit, and Blaine himself was convulsed by the aptness of Voorhees' wit.

Years afterward William Lindsay of Kentucky was addressing the senate in behalf of a proposition to impose on wood alcohol the excise tax paid by the table whisky of Kentucky, when Billy Mason of Illinois asked if wood alcohol was a beverage. As solemn as the town clock, Lindsay retorted, "I understand it is"—and here a pronounced pause—"in Chicago."

What a pity it was that Blaine left congress for the cabinet! We shall not soon look on his like again.

Minnesota Opinions

Comments of the State Press.

Minnesota Is Progressing.

Brainerd Dispatch: The cry the country over is "good roads," and the progressive counties in Minnesota are paving the way for these arteries of trade, and the time is not far distant when county officials who have the road work in hand will be elected on their stand toward the improvement of country roads. There should be no backward movement. Every good road leads to a prosperous community.

The World Moves.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: It wasn't so long ago that the average member of a state legislature didn't know a finger bowl from a glass of water, but now the legislators of Pennsylvania are considering a "pure finger bowl" bill, which, if it becomes a law, will make it a misdemeanor for a waiter to serve a finger bowl that has not first been thoroughly cleansed. How the world do move.

Work for Prisoners.

Ada Herald: There seems to be a growing sentiment that the prisoners of the state should be employed in building roads. This is a good idea. It would give the prisoners healthy employment and furnish cheap labor for a good purpose.

Legislative Suggestion.

St. Charles Union: Perhaps the legislators who are wise enough to decide how many hours one shall work for a day's labor as a matter of health, might also make a law, on the same principle, as to how many hours one must sleep for the benefit of ourselves and future generations. Why not put a curfew on the full-grown nighthawks and drive them to cover?

Results Expected.

Pine River Sentinel: President Wilson has named April 1 for the date of the extra session of congress, and from the general sentiments as expressed it will not be any April fool deal, either. That there are things to do is unquestioned, and with the working majority in the new congress in harmony there should be some results without the usual delays.

Wilson's Triumph.

Fairmont Sentinel: One of the greatest achievements in legislation is the passage of the seven anti-monopoly bills by the legislature of New Jersey. They are each known and acknowledged as the product of the governor, Woodrow Wilson, and they demonstrate not only his broad grasp of public questions but his remarkable capacity for work.

How Money Goes!

Walker Pilot: Take a good windy March, and a $5 bill will go further than during any other time in the year. March is always a good month to blow your money.

Rings Out Good News

Tit-Bits: The bell at Lloyd's, which is rung when a ship, long overdue and reported lost, unexpectedly reaches port, is one of the sensations bells of the world. It was only a few days ago that its clanging announced the safe return of the Snowdon Range, a 3,000-ton steamship, which recently arrived in a battered condition at Queenstown after being fifty-two days out from Philadelphia, and long reported lost. Her loss would have cost Lloyd's something like £100,000, and it is little wonder, therefore, that the underwriters cheered when they heard the bell.

The bell now used at Lloyd's is of naval origin. It belonged to the Lutine, which was wrecked near the Zuyder Zee in October, 1779, while taking specie from English merchants to Hamburg.

England being then at war with the Netherlands, the Dutch government claimed the wreck, and £83,000 worth of the bullion was recovered. It was not until 1857 that Lloyd's secured equal rights in the treasure with a private company to which the Dutch had gained concessions. In 1858, with considerable quantities of specie, the frigate's bell was recovered. Since then it has stood in the library at Lloyd's, together with a chair and table made from the Lutine's rudder.

There is a room at Lloyd's known as the Chamber of Horrors, and here are posted telegrams received reporting casualties. Unimportant accidents are not entered in the loss book, but the most serious are not only entered there, but are cried aloud by an official who stands in gorgeous uniform beneath the sounding-board. When, after a week's disappearance, it is feared a vessel has gone down, the owners make an application to the committee at Lloyd's to have the ship posted. This is done by affixing a notice in the Chamber of Horrors, which says that the authorities would be glad of information concerning the boat.

A week elapses, and then a second notice is put up, saying that the boat has not since been heard of. When you read that a ship has been "posted" as missing, you may know this ship is upon the notice-board, and on that day the insurance money is payable, and all who were upon her are legally considered dead. When a ship is posted the old Lutine bell is tolled once. In the very unusual event of a vessel arriving in port after being posted the bell is struck twice, and the caller makes his announcement from the rostrum amid a breathless silence.

Minnesota's Achievements.

Austin Transcript: Four world's championships in grain and grass seeds and three national awards were won by Minnesota exhibitors at the National Corn exposition at Columbia, S. C., which closed Thursday. Alfalfa, flax, sweet corn and timothy seeds were the products which won the world's championship and the three national awards were made on hard spring wheat, white oats and two-row barley. Several other notable awards were won by Minnesota exhibitors in competition with grass growers and pedigreed seeds exhibited from all parts of North America. Same old story about Minnesota's unexcelled products.

The Might of Insects.

Henry Fabre in the London Daily Mail: In the immense majority of cases the insect evades our influence; to exterminate it if it be harmful, to propagate it if it be useful, are impracticable undertakings for us. By a singular contrast of strength and weakness, man cuts through the neck of continents to join two seas; he pierces the Alps, he weighs the sun, and he cannot prevent a wretched worm from enjoying his cherries before he does nor an odious louse from destroying his vines.

The Titan is vanquished by the pygmy.

A Glib Excuse.

New York Journal: Alphonse J. Peltier, a business man and club member of Brooklyn, was taking a stroll along Flatbush avenue with his wife.

As they passed down the avenue Peltier bowed to this one and that one of his friends.

Finally he lifted his hat to a comely young woman.

"Who is that person?" asked Mrs. P.

"Oh! that's a young lady friend of my brother, Tom," replied the husband.

"But what are you tipping your hat to her for?" further queried the wife.

"I guess I got Tom's hat, by mistake," said Peltier.

Defective Vision in School Children.

In discussing the advantage of medical school inspection in this column recently, attention was called to the frequent physical defects of children, which, when going unnoticed and unremedied, make for backwardness in studies, apparent stupidness and occasionally even viciousness.

Recent investigation in regard to vision alone, in the schools of New York city fully bears out the contention, so far as defect of vision is concerned, and demonstrates that, even this one defect is sufficient to cause backwardness, stupidity and delinquency. An examination of forty children from two public schools, chosen because they were the worst that could be found, showed some striking results. Eighteen of these pupils were so stupid that they were in ungraded classes, eleven had required three terms to do the work of one term and eleven were delinquent. All of the forty children were found to have defective vision. They were fitted with proper glasses and after six months it was found that thirty-two of them had made astonishing progress. These thirty-two were under as many different teachers.

A report of this work has been made to the board of education, along with the recommendation that the entire care of the school children; mental, moral and physical, be vested in one department with a single head, and that should be the board of education.

It was further recommended that a sufficient number of doctors be trained to deal with all defects of school children who are at present in the category of ungraded, backward or disciplinary cases; and that any child whose work is unsatisfactory for one term should be examined and all defects of structure and habit corrected as far as possible. A full report of this work appears in a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical association, and should be read by educators as well as physicians.

Regular and efficient medical school inspection would go a long way toward the discovery and subsequent remedy of all such defects, but the thorough co-operation of parents or guardians is absolutely necessary if results are to be expected along this line under our present school system. Regular medical school inspection is a necessity in every growing city, and will be provided by the board of education when the demand of the parents, who are also voters, is made sufficiently insistent.

All parents, as well as others interested in the making of good citizens, should join in this demand; for the necessary money will be forthcoming just as soon as the demand is sufficiently insistent.

Questions and Answers.

Marriage of Second Cousins.

Isadore writes: Is there any reason why a young couple should not marry when the young man's paternal grandfather and the young woman's maternal grandfather were brothers?

REPLY.

None whatever simply on account of relationship, provided there was no strong neurotic taint or history of insanity in the grandparents mentioned.

Operative Shock.

P. J. inquires: Why should an operation for appendicitis upon a woman 45 years of age, who up to the time of the operation has noticed no signs of change of life, cause complete cessation of menses? Are serious results liable to follow?

REPLY.

1—The shock of operation is quite sufficient to explain this condition.

2—No.

Eczema of the Tongue.

J. B. R. says: For some time I have had trouble with my stomach and my tongue is always furrowed, or cracked. If I eat anything sour, such as salads, sometimes oranges, or tart apples, or cranberries though well sweetened, or drink an excessive amount of water, my tongue gets sore—not on the surface, but deep in the center, and feels as if it had been scalded. If I take lime water and milk and subnitrate of bismuth in 12-grain doses for a few days the soreness leaves my tongue, but the furrows always remain. Cement or soft fillings do not remain long in my teeth on account, the dentist says, of excessive acid in the saliva. My health otherwise seems pretty good. Can you tell me through the columns of The Herald the cause of this trouble and if there is any cure for the same?

REPLY.

It may be an eczema of the tongue which occasionally follows prolonged indigestion. You should consult a good skin specialist if one is at hand. For this condition occasionally follows specific infection, and when this is the cause it is easily cured.

Affection of the Skin.

Mrs. J. T. writes: I see in The Duluth Herald that you give advice for health and happiness. I would appreciate it much if you could tell me what to do for my boy who is 13 years old. He has a breaking out under the chin every once in a while. It does not appear as a scab, but as a little blisters and is very itchy. He had trouble with it from 1 month old until 1 year old, then it broke out on his head and chin, but now it just comes under the chin. When a baby he did not have the white mouth. On his head it appeared that he had a scab which caused the child much agony due to the itchiness. I think it was due to myself, for when I carried him I was sick and constipated all the time. After doctoring him it went away, but now it comes back which is often caused if his coat or sweater rubs against his chin. I think the fault lies in his blood for he has no trouble with the rest of his body.

REPLY.

The trouble is not in the blood, it is most likely an acne arising from "blackheads" in the skin. What he had as an infant has nothing to do with the present trouble, that no doubt was eczema.

ture yesterday, and the Kneeland-Orr-Pfaender resolution is the result.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

"Whereas, by birth and environment emphasized by modern social and industrial conditions, masses of unfortunates running into the thousands are permitted to grow up in poverty and drift into vice and crime, and

"Whereas, by reason thereof there is an enormous waste of human energy which might be turned to the betterment of society, and vast financial loss to the state in the suppression of vice and punishment of crime, and

"Whereas, women and children have become so enmeshed as factors in our modern industrial system as to dwarf their own lives and the lives of future generations, and

"Whereas, the minds of the people are centered on discovering the sources of poverty, vice and crime, and methods for the prevention thereof in place of the archaic methods of protecting society by the mere punishment of crime after its commission, and

"Whereas, The natural resources of the state with its vast area of uncultivated land afford ample means for the sustenance of all, and opportunity for the making of homes by the idle unfortunates, thereby contributing to the public welfare,

Committee to Investigate.

"Be It Resolved, by the house of representatives, the senate concurring, that a joint committee of nine, consisting of six members of the house to be designated by the speaker thereof, and three members of the senate to be designated by the lieutenant governor, be appointed to investigate the social and industrial conditions in the state pertaining to poverty, vice and crime, and their relation to each other, including the wage of women and children in industry as related thereto, and otherwise, and the conditions of defectives, dependents and delinquents in the state; to consider and suggest means and measures tending toward the prevention thereof and remedial legislation therefor and report their conclusions and recommendations to the house and senate at the next ensuing session of the legislature and that the testimony taken be returned to the house.

"Further resolved, That said committee be empowered to subpoena and compel the attendance of, and examine, witnesses, administer oaths and compel the production of books and papers, and to have free access to the rooms, books and records of the several departments of the state, county and municipal governments.

"Said committee shall be furnished by the state with suitable room and all necessary supplies and stationery for the performance of its duties; may employ stenographers and clerks and secure such expert advice and assistance as to them may seem advisable, and fix their compensation which with witness fees and necessary expenses incurred by the committee shall be allowed and paid, from time to time, upon proper vouchers and warrants of the state auditor, but the total of such expenditures shall not exceed $5,000, which sum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of monies in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

Protest Against Manahan.

Charles R. Fowler of Minneapolis, attorney for commission men on the chamber of commerce in the grain investigations now in progress, yesterday afternoon gave out for publication the statement he attempted to make to the house committee as to the reasons for his formal protest against the employment of Congressman-at-large James A. Manahan as attorney for the committee, but the presentation of which was prevented by the committee. It is as follows:

"I desire to protest against the retention of Mr. Manahan as the attorney and counsel for this committee for the reason that he is prejudiced against the chamber of commerce of Minneapolis and for the further reason that because of the relations which have been shown as either now existing or having existed up to a very recent period between Manahan and the Loftus-Hubbard company and the Equity Co-operative exchange and the so-called Independent Grain exchange, he is unfitted to act in that capacity.

"I base this protest upon the following facts which have appeared in evidence at a recent hearing by the senate committee investigating grain exchanges. First, it appears from a written agreement offered in evidence before that committee that a copartnership was entered into between George S. Loftus, C. S. Hubbard, Lucius F. Hubbard and James Manahan, that Mr. Manahan is a special copartner in the firm of Loftus-Hubbard company, such agreement having taken effect on the 31st day of December, 1909, to continue for a period of five years from that date.

"Second, that the Equity Co-operative Exchange is now claimed by George S. Loftus and others to be the only open market trading as a rival to the Minneapolis chamber of commerce at Minneapolis, and it is further claimed that such Equity Co-operative exchange has been the only rival for a considerable time; that from the testimony of Loftus it appears that, beginning Aug. 1, 1912, and continuing practically to this date, the business of the Equity Co-operative exchange has been managed by Loftus, and according to the sworn statements of the officers of that concern, Loftus is the general manager. It further appears that the Loftus-Hubbard company, in which Manahan is a co-partner under the agreement mentioned, and the business of the Equity Co-operative exchange and of the Independent Corn exchange, has been conducted as one business in the Corn Exchange building in Minneapolis, and that the money of the two concerns is deposited in one account; that there is practically only one set of books in which the records of the business is kept, and that in all respects the concerns have been used by Loftus interchangeably.

"Third, it further appears that for a considerable time and right up to within a few days, and possibly now, the Equity Co-operative exchange advertises Manahan as its general counsel on its letter heads and stationery, and in its authorized advertisements which are published under the auspices of the publicity committee of the Independent Grain exchange, and that Manahan has counselled with parties contemplating an action to put the Minneapolis chamber of commerce out of business.

"Fourth, in view of these disclosures, so intimately connecting Manahan as attorney and counsellor for the Equity Co-operative exchange and the Independent Grain exchange, and because of his relations as a co-partner with Loftus, we do not believe that it is good public policy or fair that Manahan should be retained as a confidential advisor and counsel for a legislative committee which is investigating the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, when that investigation has among its objects an inquiry as to whether or not the dealings of the chamber are contrary to the public interests, and also an inquiry as to whether or not the chamber is a monopoly. Owing to the connection which we claim has been shown that Mr. Manahan sustains to a so-called rival exchange, we respectfully submit that it is manifestly impossible to expect him to show that impartiality and fairness toward the chamber of commerce and its membership to which they are entitled before an impartial legislative committee."

REAPPORTIONMENT TO BE SPECIAL ORDER

were those making disposition of the additional senators granted to the First and Third congressional districts. The senators from those districts having been unable to agree, it was necessary for the committee to act.

The First district senator was given to Olmsted county, which had been coupled with Wabasha county in one congressional district. There is a string to this amendment, however, it being contingent on the action of the senators from the First district, who were to meet this morning. If a majority of them opposed the amendment, such disposition as they requested was to be granted.

Coller's Plan Favored.

In the Third district the committee adopted the proposal of Senator Julius A. Coller of Scott county, who, by the way, has worked hard for reapportionment and has gained for it a number of votes in Southern Minnesota. Under this arrangement Le Sueur and McLeod counties are to have one senator each, and Sibley and Nicollet counties are to compromise one senatorial district and Carver and Scott counties another.

Senator Klein of Carver county protested vigorously against this arrangement, stating that 90 per cent of the people of Carver county would object to being hooked up with Scott county. Senator Klein said he would rather the Third district lost the additional senator rather than to see this arrangement go through. Senator Benson also opposed it, and wanted to settle the dispute by combining the three counties in one senatorial district, with three senators to run at large. There was grave doubt about the constitutionality of this arrangement, however, so the committee voted it down, 8 to 6, and adopted Senator Coller's arrangement.

As a result of the committee's discussion, four house members have been added, making the total 129 against the present 120, and two senators, making 67 against the present 63.

At the request of Senator George H. Sullivan, Washington county was given two house members instead of one.

At the request of Senator Clague, the Brown-Redwood district was given three house members instead of two.

At the request of Senator Rustad, Bigstone county was added to the Traverse-Grant-Stevens district, with one senator and four representatives. With the additional members given the Morrison-Crow Wing district at a previous meeting of the committee, these amendments increase the house membership four over the house bill.

For Capital Punishment.

Representative Ernest C. Pless of Sibley county today renewed his fight for the restoration of capital punishment in this state by introducing a new bill covering this subject.

His bill differs very little from the one which was defeated in the house last week. It provides that hanging shall be the penalty for murder in the first degree, but that the sentence may be life imprisonment if the jury recommends mercy. Practically this is only a change in form and not in substance from the bill that was defeated.

Mr. Pless comes from the county represented two years ago by George A. Mackenzie, who had fought through three sessions to abolish capital punishment. This issue figured somewhat in the election contest between Pless and Mackenzie.

The initiative and referendum bill, which was to have been taken up in the senate yesterday afternoon as a special order, was continued until next Tuesday morning on motion of Chairman Haycraft of the senate committee on elections.

This was done because some of the senators wanted more time to consider the bill, and in order to prevent encroaching on the time of the senate reapportionment committee.

Before the special order was postponed Senator Haycraft offered an amendment, proposed by the elections committee, striking out a provision giving "municipal subdivisions" of the state the right of initiative and referendum. They have that power now, under the home rule charter provision, and these words in the bill threatened to create trouble because some of the anti-option forces feared that it contained the possibility that county option might result from the bill as it stood. So the amendment was offered, and it probably will be adopted.

Senate Grain Probe.

In the senate grain investigation yesterday afternoon F. H. King, bookkeeper for the Equity Co-operative exchange, was on the stand testifying as to the business relations of the Equity concern with B. F. Benson, the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce commission man who testified that the Equity was extracting two commissions from its shippers, and with the Farmers' elevator at Voltaire, N. D.

The hearing was more than ordinarily quiet except at one point where Attorney Drake, for the Equity concern, charged Judge Simpson, a former member of the supreme court and a dignified and well-behaved individual of high repute, with "pettifogging."

Judge Simpson promptly said that if the committee was going to permit such remarks he would "in some form or other hang Mr. Drake's hide on the outer wall of the capitol."

The committee instructed Mr. Drake to cease such methods.

Then senate yesterday afternoon passed the bill by Senators Cheadle of Duluth and Wallace of Minneapolis removing the limit on the number of high schools in any one county that can receive state aid.

The present limit is nine schools and St. Louis county by next fall will have twelve high schools.

The limit used to be five, but Senator Wallace some years ago had it changed to seven, and later to nine. Now he and Senator Cheadle have joined in a move to remove the limit altogether, allowing high schools to develop wherever they are needed, and to receive state aid.

The taxation of transferable memberships in trading exchanges like the Duluth board of trade and the Minneapolis chamber of commerce is provided for in a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative Spooner.

From the aggregate value of the memberships outstanding in an exchange is to be deducted the actual value of the property owned by the exchange and taxed, and the difference is to be apportioned pro rata among the members and taxed against each as personal property.

Supreme Court Commissioners.

The passage of the bill providing two supreme court commissioners to take a part of the load of work from the shoulders of the over-burdened justices of the supreme court naturally would be expected to produce a marked activity in behalf of candidates for the two places.

However, it was understood yesterday afternoon that the justices who are to make the appointments under the law, were watching the progress of the bill very closely, and that they were ready to announce their appointments at the earliest possible moment.

The bill was signed by the governor yesterday afternoon, and the appointment of the two commissioners was expected momentarily.

There was a rumor that the court had practically decided that a Duluth judge of the district court would be one of the two commissioners appointed.

The supreme court is now so overloaded with work that it has to choose between letting cases pile up or giving many cases insufficient attention, and the help that will be provided by the two commissioners will be very welcome. Except that they will not be justices of the supreme court, and that they cannot decide cases, the duties and position of the commissioners will be practically the same as those of the justices. Their pay will be the same, and they will do practically the same work except that their decisions will be reviewed and signed by the justices.

The purpose of this law is to relieve the court until the Conatitution can be amended so as to permit the legislature to increase the number of justices of the supreme court from five to seven.

The bill that passed the house yesterday was by Senator Moonan, but it took the place on the house calendar of the similar house bill introduced by Representative Charles N. Orr of St. Paul, who defended the bill against the slight attack that was made upon it in the house yesterday.

The senate yesterday afternoon in committee of the whole recommended for passage the house bill by Mr. Orr proposing a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to increase the number of supreme court justices to seven.

The court commissioner bill provides that as soon as the additional justiceships are created, the offices of the commissioners shall terminate. The commissioners will, however, be in line for appointment as actual justices.

County Board of Education.

Senators Moonan and Dale are the authors of a bill introduced in the senate yesterday afternoon proposing a new system of county educational work, and a new way of getting county superintendents with educational qualifications. The bill provides that by a vote of the people all the school districts in any county may be consolidated under a county board of education, which is to have full charge of all the schools, and which is to appoint a county superintendent who must have proper educational qualifications.

Under the Constitution as it stands county superintendents are elective, and it is impossible to prescribe professional qualifications for elective officers.

The senate in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar the following bills:

By Senator Van Hoven—Constitutional amendment giving the legislature power to fix a minimum wage for women.

By Senator Cheadle—Providing means for the Public Ownership party to change its name to "Socialist" party in a state convention.

By Senator Benson — Requiring counties to pay $10 a month toward the support of their patients in insane hospitals, and allowing them to collect this from the relatives of the patients if they are able to pay.

By Representative O'Neill—Requiring railroad locomotives to have headlights of at least 1,500-candle power.

By Representatives Bouck and Vasaly—Amending the anti-pass law so that railroad employes can hold unpaid public positions without forfeiting their right to passes.

By Senator Boyle—Allowing the St. Louis county board to make improvements in the channels of streams entering Lake Vermilion.

By Representative A. L. Warner—Prohibiting the killing of timber squirrels in cities.

In spite of the opposition of the professional charity workers, the mothers' pension bill is making progress. Bills providing for county aid for destitute mothers of children under 17 years of age were advanced to the calendar in both branches yesterday. The house bill is by Representative Campbell and the senate bill is by Senators McGrath, Moonan and Sageng.

Andrew Davis, chairman of the house appropriations committee, has been making some investigations of the per capita cost of conducting state charitable institutions in this state as compared with other states. He has found that the cost here is greater than in any surrounding state, and that it is in fact near the top of the list. The per capita cost in Massachusetts and California is $1.19, and in Minnesota it is $1.04. It is 96 cents in New York, 99 cents in Pennsylvania, 72 cents in Ohio, 69 cents in Indiana, and Michigan, 57 cents in Wisconsin, 34 cents in Illinois, and 66 cents in Iowa.

DULUTH EIGHTH CITY IN AREA IN UNITED STATES

Alleged humorists have sprung "jokes" about the topography of Duluth until Duluthians in particular have wearied of them. But the census department of the United States, which is not in the business of joking, has just shown in its report of the census some interesting facts about Duluth.

The census department does not spring anything like that old one about Duluth being twenty-four miles long, a mile wide and a mile high, but gives figures to show the area. It so happens that, according to the report mentioned, Duluth, while sixty-eighth in the size of her population, is eighth in area in the United States. On April 1, 1910, the population of Duluth was 78,466, according to the Federal census, and she was next to Youngstown, Ohio, in this matter.

The same report gives the area of the city as 43,116.8 acres, of which 37,715.2 acres are of land and the rest water. Only seven large cities lead Duluth in the matter of area. The seven that lead are New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington in the order named.

PUT DUTY AHEAD OF HIS HEALTH

Ralph McKenzie's Death Due to Great Devotion to Work.

Fargo, N. D., March 13.—The death of Ralph McKenzie, formerly of Duluth, which occurred here Tuesday evening at St. John's hospital, was due to his great devotion to his work and his sense of responsibility to the Federal government which employed him.

The first attack of the fatal disease occurred soon after McKenzie reached Fargo three weeks ago. He was on a secret mission of great importance to the government. As a confidential agent he was sent out to investigate matters for the Washington authorities.

At the Gardner hotel where he was a guest McKenzie was stricken with the disease and was advised by physicians to secure regular treatment at once.

He deemed his work of such great importance, however, that he left the city before his recovery, going, it is stated to Fort Ransom, in the southern portion of the state.

Here he was subjected to exposure and the malady returned. Saturday he was brought to Fargo and taken to the hospital where he was attended by physicians. The patient slept from twenty to twenty-two hours a day and the attendants could gain no information concerning his family or friends. They diagnosed the disease as a form of Bright's disease but closely resembling the "sleeping sickness," which caused many deaths in South Africa.

Beaver Trappers Prosper.

Channing, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trappers of beaver, now legal prey in Michigan, after being protected by law for many years, are reaping a rich harvest this season. One man operating in Dickinson county has already submitted thirty pelts to the county clerk for cancellation and has taken out a third license, which gives him the privilege of procuring fifteen more. The hides netted him better than $15 each.

"TWIN BABIES OF THE CORPORATION"

"Contributory negligence" and "assumption of risk" were likened unto two little babies in argument which S. A. Anderson, St. Paul attorney, made to a district court jury this morning.

Mr. Anderson is well known here through his connection with personal injury litigation. His partner in Duluth is Warner E. Whipple.

"Corporation attorneys in these cases come before a jury with a baby in each arm," he said. "One of them is 'assumption of risk' and the other is 'contributory negligence.'

"Oh, how they love them, how they coddle them, nurse them, teeter them up and down, and play with them!

"Over in Wisconsin, one of these babies has been dead and buried for two years, thanks to the legislature of that state. The other one is also tottering and will also soon be on its way to the grave."

The remarks were made during Mr. Anderson's closing remarks to the jury which has been trying the case for wrongful death brought against the Lehigh Valley Coal company by Anna Matilda Benson, widow of Henry Benson, who was killed on the defendant's coal dock at Superior a year ago today.

Benson was working in a coal pocket when a heavy chunk of coal fell on top of him, killing him. He leaves a widow and eight children, for whose benefit $10,000 damages is asked. Anderson & Whipple are attorneys for the widow and Luse, Powell & Luse represent the coal company.

More Promotions.

Since the transfer of W. H. Smith, formerly local agent of the Northern Pacific road to Minneapolis, where he holds a similar position, and the transfer to this point of W. H. Mitchell from Superior to succeed Mr. Smith, other promotions are taking place as rapidly as the new management of the local office can arrange affairs. Along with Mr. Smith to Minneapolis went Harvey Wolke, who was lake cashier here. At Minneapolis he is now assistant cashier. Succeeding him as lake cashier here is Roger Smith, formerly assistant cashier at this point. Succeeding him is E. T. Harris, formerly a clerk.

WAS VICTIM OF ASSAULT

Man Found Unconscious Near Missabe Tracks Was Robbed.

Did Not Try to End His Life as Was First Believed.

Robbed by his two companions as the trio were on their way in search of work at the stone crusher and then slashed with a knife by one of them, as they ran away, was the experience early yesterday morning of Marko Glumac, 30 years old, who is now lying in a serious condition at the Graham hospital, where he was taken after being found near the D. M. & N. tracks by workmen just before noon yesterday.

Glumac was unconscious when found and taken to the hospital and it was not until late last evening that he regained consciousness. Through an interpreter he was able to tell his story and the attempt made on his life.

Glumac and his two companions, whose names and descriptions he has given the police, left Duluth early yesterday morning to secure work at the stone crusher on Fifty-seventh avenue west, just above the D. M. & N. tracks. Just below the D. M. & N. station the two men jumped on him, according to his story, and demanded his money. One of the duo held his clothes and the other took $30, all the money he had. One of his assailants then pulled out a knife and slashed his throat, intending to finish their victim.

Workmen at the crusher on their way home for lunch discovered Glumac lying near the tracks. His throat was cut and it was thought at first that he had attempted suicide. The West Duluth station was notified and Patrolman Fred Anderson answered the call and took the unconscious man to the Graham hospital. There the suicide theory was again advanced. It was not until late last evening that Glumac regained consciousness and was able to tell his own story.

Dr. David Graham, who attended the man, stated this morning that he hopes for a recovery, although the cut is a very serious one.

Glumac is unable to speak English and through an Austrian interpreter stated that he met his companions in an uptown boarding house. He gave the police a good description of the two men.

The congregation sent a call early this winter to John Nystrom, a divinity student at Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill. A communication was received from Mr. Nystrom, who stated that he will not be able to finish his studies at the college this year and that he must therefore decline the call. He was expected to come here and take charge immediately after the close of the school year in June.

D., pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, has been conducting services at the Bethel church every Sunday. He will be in charge of the pastorate until a successor to Rev. Mr. Oberg is secured.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MARCH 16.

GENESIS xxii, 1-19.

CONNECTION.

Between the last lesson and this we have the account of Abraham's adventure with Abimelech, king of Gerar, the birth of Isaac, the expulsion of Hagar and Ishmael by Sarah and Abraham's settlement in Beersheba about forty-five miles south of the site of Jerusalem. There God appeared to him and gave him this final test of his confidence and obedience.

THE LESSON.

I.

The Tragical Demand on Abraham's Faith. 1-2.

"And it came to pass after these things, that God did prove Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham; and he said, Here am I. And He said, Take now thy son, thine only son, whom thou lovest, even Isaac, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of."

1. TRAINING.—God had been training the man's faith for many years and it had been equal to every test but one kind. Twice he very strangely lied about Sarah his wife and really exposed her to rough treatment. But he had stood the test in every other way and was no doubt ashamed of those two lapses. But something else is required. After these things the utmost test has now come.

2. TESTING.—This was tragical and there is nothing to be feared, if he endures this all right. "Tempt" and "test" are from the same word. A test may prove a temptation when it is used as a means of leading to wrong doing. To "prove" is the same as to "probe." You probe to the limit in order to prove what is there. God is surely probing Abraham. He will prove pure gold, too.

Slaying Isaac meant that Abraham would have no heir, but that was not the worst; his name should not be perpetuated, but that was not the worst; he would have to give up a choice companion for the lad was becoming an interesting companion to his aged father, but there was something worse still; his fatherly affections would be crushed and thwarted, but that was not the worst; his hope of bestowing a blessing on all the world would be blighted, but there was something worse still; God, who had promised this son and had taken such pains to establish his faith in that promise seems now to have violated His own work and that was the worst of all.

God's purpose seems to have been manifold. He would make his faith trustworthy with the highest form of temptation. He would teach Abraham that real sacrifice is that of the spirit, by requiring him to go through with it in intent and express all the devotion and obedience required in offering up the boy and learn that "the sacrifice God seeks is the devotion of the living soul, not the consumption of a dead body." God was putting His condemnation on human sacrifices, for the people round about Abraham devoted their children to God by killing them. To most of them the highest form of religious worship was offering their first-born to their god. He was especially training the conscience and enlightening the faith of Abraham. The latter, as he saw the people around him showing their devotion to their gods that way, may have felt that he was not as devoted as they and his conscience might have troubled him for being unwilling to offer his son. Abraham perhaps felt at first that he was being punished for some oversight, but God will train his faith to know that such sacrifice was wrong in itself and that children are to be offered to God "a living sacrifice" for a "reasonable service." God was also teaching Isaac that by self-giving alone was he fit to be Abraham's heir and successor and a member of the household of faith.

II.

The Obedience of His Faith. 3-10.

"And Abraham rose early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son; and he clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him. On the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes and saw the place afar off. And Abraham said unto his young men, 'Abide ye here with the ass, and I and the lad will go yonder; and we will worship, and come again to you.' And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took in his hand the fire and the knife; and they went both of them together. And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, 'My father;' and he said, 'Here am I, my son.' And he said, 'Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for a burnt-offering?' And Abraham said, 'God will provide Himself the lamb for a burnt-offering, my son;' so they went both of them together. And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built the altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac, his son, and laid him on the altar, upon the wood. And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son."

1. SUBMISSION.—That was something. His obedience was prompt—for he "rose up early in the morning." It was deliberate, thorough and exact, for he equipped himself with everything necessary for the trip and the sacrifice and went to the exact place directed, though it was a three days' journey. The place is uncertain, either Mount Moriah on which Jerusalem afterwards stood, or some mountain in the Sinai group. It was a reverent faith, as he left the attendants behind that he and the boy and God might be alone. It was tender toward Isaac for his heart was breaking for the boy. The obedience was contagious, for the lad seems to have caught it. The boy suspected more than he said, perhaps. The lad's submission was as wonderful as his father's, for he, too, had been told of the honors coming on. By such a faith Isaac became an heir to the promise. He made himself over to God. He was willing to die if his death would help further God's plan.

2. CO-OPERATION.—It was more than submission. His hopeful obedience was an active agency in advancing the very enterprise God was engaged in. He knew this deed could not thwart His purpose. He knew that God would raise him from the dead or replace him in some way. It was a perfect obedience and faith, for he went through the whole mental process of giving him up.

III.

The Triumph of His Faith. 11-13.

"And the angel of Jehovah called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham; and he said, Here am I. And he said, Lay not thy hand upon the lad, neither do thou anything unto him; for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou has not withheld thy son, thine only son, from Me. And Abraham lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, behind him a ram caught in the thicket by his horns; and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son."

1. APPROVAL.—In being complete his faith was a triumph. It went the whole length, and God was perfectly satisfied with it. That was the main object. If Abraham had been unequal to the test, try to imagine what would have been the results. God was pleased with the boy, too, his faith being the reflection and result of his father's.

2. RELIEF.—At the supreme moment God did what He all along intended to do. Abraham had said the Lord would provide. So he does provide the sacrifice.

3. DEMONSTRATION. — Abraham gave a demonstration to all ages of the power of faith. That faith became sight. It knew God, knew that He knew and intended the best. He named the place by a word that means "the Lord sees" or "provides."

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

When the character has been fully tried, when the utmost good to character has been accomplished, and when delay of relief would only increase misery, then relief comes. Still the law holds good that as soon as you in spirit yield to God's will, and with a quiet submissiveness consent to the loss or pain inflicted upon you, in that hour your whole attitude to your circumstances is transformed, you find rest and assured hope. Two things are certain—that, however, painful your condition is, God's intention is not to injure, but to advance you, and that hopeful submission is wiser, nobler and every way better than murmuring and resentment.—Dods.

Prof. Sayce, commenting upon a bilingual Babylonian text, has shown that the sacrifice of children was a Babylonian institution. The text in question declares that "the father must give the life of the child for the sin of his own soul." He says, also, that in the great work on astronomy called "The Observations of Bel," we are told that "on the high places the son is burnt." The sacrifice to Moloch of a first-born or favorite child was not unknown among the Canaanitish tribes among whom Abraham dwelt, and whose idolatrous rites were held by him in the utmost abhorrence.—Long.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1.—Is there any event or occasion that is not a test of our faith in God?
2.—Why could not God rightly make that same test of some father today?
3.—Have you had your final test of faith?
4.—What is the severest test you could have?
5.—Why does not God test less worthy men as severely as the worthy?
6.—Has God His help provided in advance as distinctly as in this case?

PURITY SUNDAY DATE IS FIXED.

La Crosse, Wis., March 13.—B. S. Steadwell, president of the World's Purity federation, calls upon the pastors of all churches of all denominations throughout the United States, to make Nov. 9 next, Purity Sunday. This Sunday will be during the week of the World's Purity congress at Minneapolis. It is expected that the vice revelations being made in Illinois and promised in other states during the spring and summer, will make the topic especially fruitful for the pastors who take it up.

"UTTERMOST SALVATION"

Theology Not Necessary to Understand Words of Text.

"Uttermost Salvation" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. M. S. Rice at the Leyeum last evening.

The attendance at the evening services has been growing all week, and much interest is being shown. The services are not denominational, but they are intended to have an appeal to people of all denominations, both men and women.

Dr. Rice chose for his text last evening, Heb. vii-25, "He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him."

"That's my license to preach," he said. "With that message believed, and knowing human life as I know it, I could not hold my tongue, and the ambition of my simple ministry is to be able faithfully to proclaim that fact, and risk the homiletic instinct of the common heart to appreciate its meaning.

"We need no commentary to put upon these words careful scholarly interpretation. This theology is clear. 'Save to the uttermost.' You know what that means, and every sinner who listens to that word, feels always a comfortable significance in it. That's about the only kind of theology I have much time for in these hurrying days anyhow. Men need a message that stands clear and convincing at first sight. In a preacher magazine some time ago, I read a touching little account of a simple hearted old woman who as she came to die asked for her Bible. As her sight failed her, she requested her friends to put her trembling fingers on these words of our text. They did so and she passed out of this life with these words her last utterance, 'Enough; enough; I die believing that text.' Some other preacher read the story and in the following issue of the magazine offered a profound question as to whether or not it was correctly done. He desired to know if the best critics would justify that woman's position by the exact shade of the Greek text here. Of course I was pleased to find that even for him the case was clear, and by every right of interpretation the poor old woman must not be disturbed in her chosen way of dying. Fullness of provision. Extent of range. Utmost depth of guilt. Lowest limit of intelligence. Utmost pressure of temptation. Utmost corner of the earth. Utmost hour of existence. Whatever else may be limited, the power and grace of Jesus Christ are absolutely beyond limit. I certainly rejoice in that.

Expresses Christ's Work.

"Come on all you correct square-cornered critics and stand here beside the enthusiastic one who leaps at the significance of Christ as portrayed in His compassion, and let us all in unison proclaim, with all our might the message of uttermost salvation. If these was no such verse as this in the Bible I would still preach just such a message, for it is the natural expression of the work of Jesus Christ, and I would base my sermon on the general fact that He came to seek and save the last, and if the words of this text were not here, I would feel sure they ought to be.

"How very far men have wandered away. What havoc sin hath wrought. It has stolen and destroyed every noble work of manhood. It has constantly been at work to turn our race from everything high and holy back and down to the very worst. The one note made clear through all the story of religion among men has been tuned to the consciousness of failure in life. Poor old Socrates was wording it well when he cried out in his sorrow 'Oh for a screen that will hide me from the past.' Men know they have failed. And the message of God in Christ is made to perfectly fit that conviction. He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquities, and while it is not mine now to endeavor to give you a philosophy of the atonement, it is mine nevertheless to declare that Jesus Christ has succeeded in taking the place of the sinner and is able to save to the uttermost all them that come unto God by Him.

"What the world most needs today is to be persuaded of this truth and to act upon it. The profound conviction of that fact has become the motive of my ministry, and I arise here to declare it effectually and simply as I can, and to assure every man and woman here that the provision of God has made calculation for you. Oh, my friends, there are times when we are indeed blind with tears and sick with misery as we look out upon this sin cursed world of ours. It is so utterly packed full of tragedy and sorrow and calamity. There are circumstances which rise up before us at times when we feel the terrible grip of sin on men so keenly that the reform of the world simply crushes our hopes within our breasts. Forever, new forms of tyranny come on to replace the old and worn ones. At such a time there is nothing to do but to turn to the declaration and catch the breath of confidence which breathes in God's message to the world. 'Able to save to the uttermost.' Jesus Christ the Son of God the Redeemer and Savior of men stands between every soul and hell."

FORMER SLAVE DIES.

Was Nearly 100 and Had Lived in Staples and Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Sykes, colored, died in the state hospital for the incurable insane at Hastings a few days ago. His age was estimated as close to 100 years. In his youth he had been a slave and never knew when he was born.

Sykes at one time lived in Staples but came to Bemidji in 1897 and opened a restaurant. He had been a valet and his politeness won him a steady stream of customers. In 1898 his place was destroyed by fire and he lost practically everything he had. After 1898 he did odd jobs around town for a living.

In 1902, Sykes was taken to the poor farm, but he had not been there long before he tried to set fire to the place. The grand jury refused to indict him for arson and it was believed he was not responsible. On an action in probate court, he was sentenced to Fergus Falls by Judge Clark.

This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly, and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SWAMPED WITH VISITORS

Washington, March 13.—Office-seekers have pressed Attorney General McReynolds to the point where he has been obliged to order the department of justice closed to all visitors at 4:30 'clock p. m., senators and representatives included. Applicants for Federal judgeships and United States attorneyships have been particularly active and their appeals have swamped the new attorney general. A continuously open door would consume his entire time, it is declared, and he was obliged to reserve the period after 4:30 for the transaction of government business.

"QUEEN OF SMUGGLERS" DIES IN LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—Mrs. Ethel Hall, 26, the so-called "Queen of the Smugglers," who passed a year in the county jail before pleading guilty and paying a fine of $10, died in a hospital here yesterday. Death resulted from an abscess.

Government officials declared Mrs. Hall was the leading spirit of a band of smugglers who were active in bringing contraband Chinese coolies into the United States from Mexico.

Immigration officers had many a thrilling adventure before the band was broken up. Two indictments were pending against her at the time of her death.

Take Off the Fat Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street or in public places make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. This season's dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery, and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of about 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

WALKER BANDMAN CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Election of Rollie Hocking to Council Furnishes Unique Contest.

Walker, Minn., March 13.—The village election here resulted as follows: Mayor, Chas. Kinkele; councilmen, Louis Krueger, Arthur Lindeke, N. W. Olson; recorder, Rollie Hocking; treasurer, F. B. Davis. The fight was on recorder and was won by Hocking over Oliver by a majority of 14. Hocking is director of the Leech Lake band in Walker and band supporters favored him for the position, owing to the gratuitous service he has given in conducting the band and drilling young musicians, and the political slogan was "Hocking for recorder or no band for Walker." He was opposed by the saloon interests but won out notwithstanding. The new council is distinctly progressive.

BLACKDUCK MAN IS VERY STRONG

Breaks Steel Handcuffs From Wrists When Held on Insanity Charge.

Bemidji, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ludvig Steska, a big Pole, who has been working in the woods for the Northland Pine & Cedar company, went violently insane at Blackduck, was arrested and nearly killed three men in the Blackduck jail. He was brought here and given a hearing early yesterday before Probate Judge M. A. Clark, who ordered him committed to the Fergus Falls asylum.

Steska, who weighs 210 pounds and has the build of a pugilist, became violent while in Blackduck and was jailed by Constable Thompson. He was handcuffed, but soon broke his shackles. His hands were then drawn through the bars of his cell and were cuffed on the outside, but again he freed himself. The constable then armed himself with a revolver and entered the cell, but the big Pole broke upon him furiously and wrested his gun from him. The constable prevented him from firing the weapon by putting his finger between the trigger and the barrel, in doing which the finger was nearly crushed by the pressure of Steska's hand.

The men who were also confined in the jail then came to the assistance of the constable, and no further attempt was made to curb the violence of the insane man until Deputy Sheriff Denley of this city arrived. The sheriff, constable and a Blackduck man named Betram—all of them weighing more than 200 pounds—entered the cell, then intending to put on a leather muff, preparatory to bringing him to this city.

Breaks Loose Again.

As soon as the steel cuffs were loosened, Steska broke loose again and in almost an instant had knocked and kicked all three of his captors to the floor. His fury was terrible. He ripped and tore the clothes of the men to shreds and bit Betram's arm through his coat sleeve so badly that a doctor's services were necessary to heal it.

He was finally bound tightly and brought to Bemidji, where he was strapped to a cot and hauled by a dray team to the courthouse. His shrieks and yells terrified several persons who were on the streets.

Judge Clark and Doctors E. H. Marcum and A. E. Henderson were called and a trial was held. Steska was so violent that his shackles were not loosened. Morphine enough to kill an ordinary man was administered by the doctors, but it seemed to have no effect upon him. His is by far the most terrible and violent case Beltrami county officials have ever had to deal with. He believed that every person he saw was one of forty who were determined to kill him.

JOHNSON UNCONCERNED.

Slayer of Bemidji Man Receives His Fate Stoically.

Bemidji, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—August Johnson, convicted in district court early in the week of manslaughter in the first degree for killing Sam Marin here Feb. 1, was sentenced by Judge Stanton to not less than five and not more than twenty years in the state penitentiary.

When asked if he had anything to say, Johnson replied: "Yes, I have. It has been said that I did not give Marin a chance. I think I gave him more of a chance than he gave me." He met his fate with the same stoicism he had exhibited during the entire trial.

Ferdinand Busick, who formerly worked as a printer here and who was given a suspended sentence for robbery a year ago here, was given an indeterminate sentence by Judge Stanton in the St. Cloud reformatory for stealing a revolver and other property in the West hotel here.

The criminal calendar, consisting of five cases, mostly unimportant, has been finished and the court returned to the civil cases, a large number of which are still untried.

SOLONS AGAINST 120-DAY SESSION

Wisconsin Assembly Turns Down Proposition Limiting Legislative Period.

Madison, Wis., March 13.—The resolution of Axel Johnson for a 120 days legislative session was refused consideration in the assembly yesterday by a vote of 55 to 40.

The assembly passed the Goreckie bill prohibiting the sale or giving away of liquor on the grounds of or within any parochial school building. The vote was 68 to 25.

The anti-free lunch bill was killed in the assembly by a large vote.

Assemblyman Hurlbut introduced a resolution providing for a commission of eleven members—four senators and seven assemblymen—to investigate available sites, outside Milwaukee county, for state fair grounds. The resolution was referred.

The Frederick bill requiring the equipment of hospital wards in railroad baggage cars was ordered engrossed.

Senate Passes Anti-Treat Bill.

The senate passed the Teasdale bill, prohibiting treating in saloons. This action was directly opposite to that taken by the assembly on the same measure. Besides forbidding treating, it makes it unlawful for any person to accept free drinks, but does not prohibit the giving away of cigars or non-intoxicant drinks. A fine of $50 to $100 is fixed for offending dealers.

The senate concurred in a bill giving citizens of Iowa and Minnesota same rights as to fishing on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi river as are given by the laws of those states to Wisconsin citizens.

The assembly adhered to its previous action in fixing six years instead of four years for county judges throughout Wisconsin and advanced to engrossment the bill prohibiting the use of the common drinking cup in public places.

WILL FURNISH POWER.

Appleyard Interests to Supply Iron River and Stambaugh.

Stambaugh, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron River and Stambaugh mining field is to be provided with the first electric railway system on the Menominee iron range. The Appleyard interests of Boston, Mass., operators of public utilities at Ashland, Wis., and in the Ironwood and Hurley district of the Gogebic iron range, are back of the project. Franchises have already been granted by the Iron River and Stambaugh village councils and the Iron River township board. It is provided that the railway shall be in operation within a year. The company has three hydro-electric plants, one on the White river, near Ashland, one on the Montreal river, near Saxon, Wis., and one on the Bad river, near Mellen, Wis. No Longer Do Women Fear The Greatest of All Human Blessings.

It is a joy and comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains and other distresses that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend."

This is a most grateful, penetrating, external application that at once softens and makes pliant the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous, twitching spells, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe.

The occasion is therefore one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress can not be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generation to come.

Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers, thousands of whom have used and recommend it. You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Jack" says: "I need a good nerve tonic. I have to work very hard and am becoming almost a wreck."

Answer: Your condition is very common especially among brain workers. Make the following tonic by mixing syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cadomene (not cardamom), 1 oz.; and take a teaspoonful before each meal and in a few weeks your strength will be restored.

Mr. D. B. asks: "Is it safe to reduce one's weight? I weigh 240 pounds and would like to reduce at least 40 pounds. What is a safe, harmless remedy?"

Answer: Obtain of any well-stocked druggist a tube of 5-grain arbolene tablets and take as per directions accompanying. These tablets are very easy to take and quite reliable for obesity or goitre.

"Miss K." writes: "Could you publish a remedy for liver and kidney trouble and the usual diseases that arise from that source. I am troubled with dizzy spells, dark spots before my eyes and also with rheumatism."

Answer: If you will get three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), and take according to directions, you will not only be relieved, but if you continue the use of these tablets you will be gradually cured of all the troubles you mention. They will purify the blood and also cure your rheumatism.

"Worried"—Your child can be easily cured of bedwetting by using tincture cubebs, 1 dram; tincture rhusaromatic, 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Give him 10 to 15 drops in water before each meal. This is equally good for older people.

"Virginia" writes: "I suffer greatly with catarrh, bad breath, headache and pain across my eyes. Only my nostrils and throat are affected. Could you prescribe a remedy to cure me?"

Answer: The following local treatment should be used: Obtain a two ounce original package of Vilane powder, put one-half teaspoonful in a pint of warm water and snuff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils several times daily until they are cleaned thoroughly. To one ounce of vaseline or lard mix one teaspoonful of Vilane powder and apply twice a day well up into the nostrils, and your catarrh will soon vanish. This should be used at intervals to prevent a recurrence. I have received hundreds of letters from grateful people who have used the above prescription and been cured from that dreadful disease, catarrh.

"Hannah" writes: "I would like to get something that would make my hair soft and fluffy. My hair is greasy and I can do nothing to keep the oil out of it."

Answer: To take the surplus oil out of the hair and keep it soft and fluffy, get a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow minyol and use it regularly. This will cure itching scalp and dandruff and make the hair grow, and you will not be bothered with stringy, straggling locks.

"Louise" writes: "I do not weigh enough for my height. I am dull and lifeless and have frequent headaches. Please advise what will help me."

Answer: Your condition is due to the lack of red blood corpuscles. I can prescribe nothing better than three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, which can be purchased at any up-to-date drug store in sealed cartons with full directions. These tablets will cause the body to assimilate the fatty elements of food and thus give you strength and added color to the skin. Your weight will increase and you will not be troubled with headache. These are recommended by physicians and if taken according to directions you will surely gain flesh.

"Troubled Miss G." writes: "Every winter I am troubled with severe attacks of rheumatism which sometimes keep me in bed for weeks. Please advise something for me."

Answer: My favorite prescription for rheumatism, and one that I know has cured thousands of people, is made by mixing: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Take one teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time, and you will soon be cured.

"Annette" writes: "I have been greatly annoyed lately by coughing and a tickling sensation in the throat and hoarseness after singing. My bronchial tubes are affected also."

Answer: You can be very easily cured of this bronchial trouble by using essence mentho-laxene. This relieves quickly and certainly brings about a cure, by its tonic and laxative action and therefore is superior to ordinary preparations, which only relieve. You can feel the medicine working on the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, giving a feeling of freshness and strength to the entire system. Purchase a 2½ oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to the directions on the bottle and take eight to ten doses daily and you will soon be cured of your trouble.

"N. L. O." writes: "Have suffered for years with stomach trouble and constipation. Have tried many 'cures' but they did not even relieve. I have great pain at times, especially after I eat."

Answer: Obtain tablets triopeptine and take according to directions. These tablets are pink, white and blue. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, a white tablet after dinner and a blue tablet after supper. Regular treatment with these tablets will cure any case of stomach disorder.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

HERDING THE SPORTING SHEEP AND GOATS INTO THE DOPE CORRAL, AS SEEN BY BRUCE

HANNES Kolehmainen has "shin splints." "Whatever is that?" might be the mental query of some of you. In the argot of the track or the rubbing room, "shin splints" mean exceeding soreness of the large frontal bone of the leg, and as the lithe legs of Hannes have been the stilts that proudly propelled him to fame, it is needless to state that he is going to take a rest.

And that is one of the best parts of it. The rest in this case is highly original. The famous Finn is to recuperate laying bricks. It isn't believed that the A. A. U. will decide that getting money for brick laying is violating any of the rules of that august body.

Over in Finland Hannes, Willie and the rest of the Kolehmainens were artisans—i. e. people without fads or appendicitis. It was after the daily toil that Hannes learned to run. Some people learn to run by avoiding labor, but that is neither here nor there.

So while the "shin splints" hold out the world will witness the spectacle of one of the greatest of all modern athletes piling bricks upon bricks.

NEWS spasms from the general direction of Calgary are to the effect that on this March 17, a day revered and held in high esteem by sons of Erin, Tommy Burns is to try the re-entry stunt, made famous by Jeffries, Napoleon, T. R. and others, and will do battle with one Arthur Pelky of New York, the fracas being billed for the Canadian line—thank heaven.

Who is Pelky? Heaven, the ultimate goal of aviators—some of them have reached it, no doubt—alone knows. Perhaps Arthur needs the money. But the idea of this fight is to pave the way for Tommy to step jauntily forward and call loudly for a contest with Luther McCarty.

Burns missed the opportunity of becoming the manager of the big Nebraska cowboy. Since then he has been thinking deeply of the money he might have made. Like a shrewd fellow he calculates to make some through this same medium, if not in an identical manner.

If he can't be the manager of McCarty Burns figures that he will fight Luther. Pelky is the animate stepping stone.

HUMBOLDT, Ioway, is perking up. The center of a thriving farming community, the annual Methodist revival was about the most exciting thing in Humboldt's history before the development of a real world's champion in its midst. Gotch grew worldly famous and right on the heels of the champion strutted Humboldt, proudly holding its head as the wondering world puzzled over the little black pin points on the Rand-McNally.

Since the retirement of the champion there has been quiet and little stir in the village. It has been strangely like the dead city described by our friend, Rud Kipling, a very clever chap, by the way.

But lo and behold the dispatches tell of the hastening Humboldtwards of Emil Klank and Billy Schoville, the plaint of their Garcia-like message being one of stern entreaty. These two would have Gotch come out and meet this Le Marin, the French giant.

Klank is the former manager of the champion, and Schoville is a Kansas City promoter. There is method in this trip to Humboldt.

WLADEK ZBYSZKO continues on his winning way. The other evening he handily put the shoulders of Raymond Caveau to the canvas, thus early indicating that he has successfully imitated some of the habits of his brother.

EXCHANGES tell of the athletic prowess of one John Larsen of Princeton college. The students turned out and hailed John as one of the best fellows in the world. Lars used to be a bartender in Chicago, a place where pale milk and pink noses do not meet. Perhaps the strenuous work on the dog watch formed the basis of the athletic training of John.

BILLY McCARNEY'S monster athletic show moves across the country scattering challenges broadcast. With five champions of the world in one grand combine, it is needless to state that the air is vibrant with bristling challenges. This big troupe got under way at Youngstown, Ohio, and before the start of the show Luther McCarty was challenged by Tommy Burns, Al Palzer, Bombardier Wells, Jess Willard and Gunboat Smith; Eddie McGoorty received a defi from Frank Klaus and Gus Christie; Packey McFarland was dared to combat by Ray Bronson, Leo Kelly and Wildcat Ferns; Johnny Kilbane received war like notes from Johnny Dundee and Jersey Burns, while Johnny Coulon heard belligerent utterances via the wire route from Kid Williams, Eddie Campi, and Charley Ledoux.

Wherever this show stops the local telegraph office is liable to be exceedingly busy.

NOW that Port Arthur is out of the lineup of the See-Eye offers for substitutes are coming in with rapidity and avidity, taking both sides of the question. Fargo wires that worse places in the world might be selected, while Fort William jumps in with a large, open-faced offer of much cash and hearty support, Winona is willing, they say, so that the baby tactics of Frank Taylor will not shed dire consequences. This Taylor is strangely reminiscent of Charley Comiskey, he's so wholly different.

CATHOLIC CLUB TO GIVE SHOW

Walter Miller to Have Charge of Fund Raising Program.

At an enthusiastic meeting last evening in the clubrooms of the Catholic Athletic club, it was decided to put on an athletic entertainment for the purpose of raising funds for additional equipment for the gymnasium. Walter Miller was placed in charge of the athletic program. It was at the suggestion of the little wrestler that the plan was adopted, and if the enthusiasm of those attending the meeting is a criterion from which to judge, the entertainment is going to be an unqualified success.

The plans discussed last evening call for the staging of a large and varied athletic program. There will be wrestling, boxing and other stunts, most of the prominent athletes of the city already having offered their services for the cause.

Mr. Miller met with the club members last evening and went over all of the plans. With the talent already in view there is material enough to give a fine show.

M'ALLISTER BEATS NEWSBOY M'QUINN

Young Olympic Club Boxer Wins First Professional Fight.

Oakland, Cal., March 13. — Bob McAllister, the young Olympic club boxer won his first professional fight here last night when he was given a decision over Willie McQuinn, the "lightning newsboy" in a fast 10-round contest. Much interest centered in the match as it was McAllister's tryout for heavyweight honors.

At the end of the fight McAllister appeared scarcely to have been in action, while McQuinn was staggering about and bleeding. The Olympic club fighter, so greatly outclassed his opponent that it was the opinion of the ringside critics that he could have put Meehan out at any stage of the fight. McAllister carried the fight to Meehan in the first round, scoring a knockdown quickly. After that he merely toyed with his opponent.

LIPTON DEFY TURNED DOWN

Challenge From Another Britisher Expected Soon By Club.

New York, March 13. — Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for another race for the America's cup, the premier trophy of the yachting world, was declined by the New York Yacht club last night. This action was taken, the club announced because the challenge did not comply with the conditions of the deed of gift, which governs all contests for the cup.

The declination of the present challenge, however, it was stated by members did not necessarily mean that no America's cup race was in prospect, as the club was in anticipation of an unrestricted challenge for the cup from a British gentleman other than Sir Thomas Lipton.

The club's action last night was taken at a meeting attended by more than 300 members.

FOR SHOOTING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Colleges Will Shoot Off Ties in Few Days.

Washington, March 13.—Harvard university and Massachusetts Agricultural college, tied with nine victories each in the inter-collegiate rifle shooting league matches, will meet this week to determine the championship of the East. West Virginia university, which still leads with nine straight victories, will shoot off this week for the championship of the West with Iowa City university and the university of Minnesota. Minnesota tied for second place. The results of the ninth match follow:

Western league—Iowa, 952, vs. Nebraska, 861; West Virginia, 933, vs. U. S. College of Veterinary Surgeons, defaulted; California, 920, vs. Oklahoma A. & M., 883; Wisconsin, 907, vs. Washington state, 900; Minnesota, 945, vs. Kansas, 854; Michigan Aggies, 927, vs. Louisiana, 876; Purdue, 933, vs. Missouri, defaulted.

FORMER CHAMPION HEARS THE CALL OF THE RING

TOMMY BURNS.

Tommy Burns is preparing for a ring re-entry. Already, according to the stories sent out of Calgary, the former title holder is training with the anticipation of seeking a meeting with the present champion, Luther McCarty. In his day Tommy Burns, alias Noah Brusso, was really greater than the majority of the fight followers would ever concede. But whether he can come back and fight the best of the present day is a matter of doubtful conjecture.

LAKESIDE CLUB WILL REMODEL OLD FIRE HALL

New Athletic Association Officers Decide to Proceed at Once on Work for Gymnasium.

Enthusiasm pervaded the meeting of the officers of the Lakeside Athletic club, which was held last evening at the Quayle-Larsen store. At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that work will begin today on the remodeling of the fire hall at Lakeside and that within a comparatively short time the former home of the fire fighters will be transformed into a thoroughly modern gymnasium.

It was further stated that funds have been provided for the purchasing of gymnasium apparatus and that a complete equipment for the gymnasium will be ordered at once.

The business of organizing the Lakeside club has been methodical and progressive from the very start, and with the arrangements made for the opening of the new clubhouse within a comparatively few days, its begins to look as if Duluth were certain of having a hustling and thoroughly athletic organization added to its clubs.

According to President Arthur L. Ryberg, the policy of the new club is to be a liberal one.

"As long as an athlete is a gentleman, be he professional or amateur, he will be welcome to the use of the club's gymnasium," said he. "Within the past two years Duluth has been visited by some of the most famous athletes in the world. Visiting athletes will be invited to utilize the Lakeside Athletic club just as long as they show they are gentlemen and fit associates for the members of the club. We believe in physical development and clean moral ways of living. The greatest athletes are of necessity forced to lead clean lives and as a rule are found to be clean and decently behaved men."

It is the present plan of the club to start classes in wrestling and boxing. Professional athletes have already promised to assist in the work of instruction. Later plans of the club also call for the giving of an entertainment for the purpose of raising funds for the purchasing of gymnasium apparatus.

WINONA ALMOST CERTAIN TO JOIN SEE-EYE LEAGUE

Winona has practically decided to take the proffered berth in the See-Eye league, according to the word received here last evening.

At the last moment there was a hurried jump to climb on the band wagon, Fort William, as told in The Herald of yesterday, is importuning to be allowed to come in, while Fargo has suggested that there might be worse baseball towns in the country, and that the fans up that way would like to have organized baseball.

It is evident that in the case Winona does not come in there will be other candidates for the berth.

They are going to try the meeting thing again. Word has been sent out for a gathering of the magnates at Minneapolis Sunday, and at this time serious effort will be made to formally launch the league and possibly announce the schedule.

It is believed that at this time President Barton will be able to announce the eight clubs that are to compose the enlarged organization.

With reports that the schedule is already drawn up and is only awaiting the final word of Winona, it is probable that following close upon the Minneapolis meeting the fans throughout the new circuit will soon have more definite knowledge of the playing dates.

Max Conrad, who is spoken of as the mogul at Winona, is well acquainted with the national game, having been identified with baspball for the past few years.

FARGO WILLING TO JOIN LEAGUE

North Dakota Metropolis Anxious for Organized Professional Baseball.

Fargo, N. D., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—If President Barton can't find a sufficent number of towns to make up his Northern Baseball league, he might investigate Fargo and Moorhead in preference to making an effort to get Winona. Fargo and Moorhead have a population of more than 25,000. There has been no organized baseball for many years and the fans are anxious for it. By placing the grounds in Moorhead it would be as convenient for Fargo as at the former site and much more so for Moorhead. It would also get Dilworth business over the interurban line.

With the rivalry between Grand Forks and Fargo teams would draw well here. Fargo is directly on line between the Twin Cities and Grand Forks and Winnipeg and there would be no extra mileage as in the case of Winona. The field here affords a magnificent opportunity for some baseball promotor.

Trenholm Seeks Fight.

C. Herbert of Eveleth has taken over the management of Billy Trenholm and is anxious to match his boy with Steve Gardner of this city. According to the communication received from the Eveleth impresario, Gardner can come in at 140 pounds, while Trenholm is willing to scale at 133 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Trenholm is training at his own gymnasium at Ely lake.

TRAILING THE EARLY DOPE WITH THE MAJOR LEAGUE PENNANT CHASERS

Although many new players are being tried out by the major league teams at the training camps, comparatively few will earn regular positions. The Giants will begin the pennant race with practically the same team that played in the world's series last fall, with the possible substitution of Arthur Shafer for Arthur Fletcher at shortstop. McGraw has many fine youngsters on the pay roll, and the men are all preparing for a fast pace at the start. With Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreau the mainstays in the box, the Giants will be as strong as ever in this respect.

Chance Has Good Material.

Frank Chance, judging from the latest reports from Bermuda, has material with which to weld together a pretty good ball team. The New Yorks appear to be well fixed for pitchers, with a topnotch outfield and the nucleus for a crack infield in Chance and Hal Chase. It is a trifle early yet to learn how Chance will put together a winning combination, but there is every reason to believe the team will play vastly better ball than in 1912.

Dahlen Will Stand Pat.

Bill Dahlen is satisfied to stand pat with the Brooklyns. He has several new players, including a promising pitcher in Wagner, from New Orleans, but he is going to depend on the old reliables, Rucker, Daubert, Miller, Wheat, Cutshaw, Moran and Ragon, to keep the Ebbets team out of the cellar.

No Change in Red Sox.

The Boston Red Sox, world's champions, will be identically the same as last year, with Joe Wood, Speaker, Cady, Stahl, Gardner and Wagner the star performers. The Boston Nationals, managed by George Stallings, will remain an unknown quantity until many new players from the Northwest have been tried out. Stallings has several seasoned men in Bill Sweeney, Perdue, Tyler, Barden, Campbell (if he plays), Titus and McPaskert.

Rejuvenates Athletics.

In Philadelphia Connie Mack has rejuvenated the Athletics with a brace of new outfielders, two young pitchers and a colt catcher. He still has the best infield in baseball—McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker—and he thinks that his veteran pitchers—Bender, Plank and Coombs—are sure to come back. If they do, look out!

Phillies May Be Factor.

Manager Dooin of the Quakers, encouraged by Will Locke, may prove a factor in the National league race for the reason that he has several star pitchers — Alexander, Chalmers and Rixey, for instance—and some big hitters—Magee, Lobert, Cravath and Paskert.

Griffith Claims Pennant.

Clark Griffith already has claimed the American league pennant for Washington. If Walter Johnson keeps on pitching as in former years Griff will have a look in, maybe. But it is admitted that Johnson will have to receive as much brilliant support from Foster, Milan, Gandil and the catchers as they afforded last year in order to repeat.

Evers Provides Interest.

Johnny Evers, as manager and second baseman of the Chicago Cubs, will provide unbounded interest among the fans. He is confidence personified, even though he hasn't found a shortstop capable of making up for the loss of Joe Tinker. Evers has two first-class catchers in Archer and Bresnahan, the same pitchers that kept the Cubs in the race last year, and Zimmerman, the champion National league hitter, together with the veterans, Saier, Sheckard, Leach, Mitchell and Schulte.

Banking on Ed. Walsh.

The Chicago White Sox, as usual, are banking on Ed. Walsh, the great spitball pitcher, to keep them in the first division. Manager Callahan has other good pitchers and a star catcher in Schalk. Weaver and Borton seem to have copper riveted the infield.

Jennings Is Encouraged.

The Detroits still have Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford around whom to build up a new team. Hugh Jennings appears to be encouraged by the work of numerous recruits in the South, but he predicts nothing.

Tinker Works With Reds.

Joe Tinker, as shortstop and manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is trying to strengthen the weak spots in Garry Herrmann's team. The Reds have a good outfield, a vastly improved infield, fair pitchers and without Kling, an ordinary lot of catchers.

Pirates' Team Strong.

Fred Clarke's Pittsburgs are considered possible pennant winners because of a great pitching staff, a strengthened infield and outfield, with the return of Arthur Hofman, and the fact that Honus Wagner still remains on earth.

Watching Joe Birmingham.

In Cleveland they are wondering how Joe Birmingham will pan out as a manager. He has the great Lajoie, the phenomenal Jackson, the expensive Chapman, the crack southpaw Gregg and a bunch of fairly good men to help them out.

St. Louis Teams Are Weak.

Baseball prospects in St. Louis are not particularly bright. Miller Huggins, who has succeeded Bresnahan as manager of the Cardinals, is purely an experiment, with a team that is no stronger than last year. George Stoval has some good, bad and indifferent material for the Browns.

HUGE STADIUM FOR WISCONSIN

The Madison Institution to Have a Large Athletic Field.

Chicago, March 13.—An athletic field that will cost $1,000,000 and represent the highest development in the stadium is planned for the University of Wisconsin, according to announcement made last night when it was made known that arrangements are being made for the abandonment of Camp Randall and the purchase of a new location on the shore of Lake Mendota.

Will Tell of Plans.

These plans are being pushed by Badger students and alumni and Chicagoans will be told of the progress of the work Friday night, when Director George W. Ehler of the Madison institution will address the local University of Wisconsin club on the matter.

To Rival Other Fields.

An inclosure that will rival the mammoth structures at Yale and Harvard is provided for in the proposed scheme, the details of which are rapidly being worked out.

CHICAGO FANS PLAN A FRANK CHANCE DAY

Chicago, March 13.—Cub fans will be given the place of honor in the automobile parade to White Sox park on May 17, which will be known as "Frank Chance day." West side admirers of Chance also will be prominent on the managing committee which has charge of all arrangements, including a brass band, a male quartet, moving pictures of the occasion, and numerous stunts.

The New York Americans play their first series in Chicago beginning May 15, but the celebration was set for Saturday because of its being a holiday.

CRACK PLAYERS IN BIG TOURNEY

Y. M. C. A. Handball Tournament Has a Large Entry List.

The handball tournament of the Y. M. C. A. is scheduled to start on Friday afternoon, when several games will be played in class B. All of the best players in the city have entered for the tournament, which is going to be in competition for medals awarded by the Northern Hardware company.

Interest in the tourney is probably greater than ever before. Since the campaign was started for the construction of the new courts, new and greater interest has been taken in the court game.

Following is the schedule for Friday's opening games:

Friday at 4:30 p. m., Wisted vs. Sopher.

Friday at 5:15 p. m., Mace vs. McLean.

Friday at 6 p. m., Kingston vs. Bailey.

Early Saturday afternoon, Bartholdi vs. Carson.

UNKNOWN STAR.

Cleveland Youth Startles Bowlers in Toledo Congress.

Toledo, Ohio, March 13.—With bowlers who have held records in past American Bowling congress tournaments rolling, it remained for a practically unknown youth to make a change in the standing of the individual leaders yesterday afternoon. William King of Cleveland, Ohio, rolled up a score 680 and went into second place.

At the same time Larry Sutton of Rochester, N. Y., James Smith, Glenn Riddell and Alexander Dunbar, members of the All Stars of New York city, and Thomas Daly of Detroit, Mich., holder of the individual record of 705 pins failed to make scores entitling them to get among the leaders. Each of the prominent bowlers suffered from ill luck. In the two-man events, James Smith and Glenn Riddell went into fifth place, with a score of 1,258.

Individual leaders—Peterson, Columbus, 693; King, Cleveland, 680; Knox, Philadelphia, 672.

Two men leaders — Schulz-Kohler, Newark, N. J., 1,291; Carlson-Mountain, Chicago, 1,277; Mauser-Welsh, Youngstown, Ohio, 1,266.

All events leaders—Hermann, Cleveland, 1,972; Haas, Fort Wayne, 1,834; Heins, Newark, 1,891; Dornfeldt, St. Paul, 1,846.

With the completion of the last squad of five-men teams last night in the American Bowling congress tournament there was no change among the leaders of that class and the Flor De Knispels now hold the title of bowling champions of the American Bowling congress, with a new record score of 3,006.

In the first squad of five-men teams, the Ahearn Hotel five of Oshkosh, Wis., finished first with a count of 2,851. In the second squad, composed of practically all Toledo teams, the Melvin Cochoine five was first, with a total of 2,778.

Five-men leaders—Flor De Knispels, St. Paul, 2,906, $600; Overlands, Toledo, 2,992, $525; Hudson Stars, Newark, N. J., 2,946, $450; Sir Cliftons, Chicago, 2,943, $400; Cadillacs, Detroit, 2,934, $350; Gambrinus, 2,903, $300; Colonnas, Chicago, 2,900, $275; Ducators, Chicago, 2,896, $250; Morgenroths, Milwaukee, 2,894, $225; Lexington No. 1, Lexington, Ky., 2,890, $200.

CHARLES LEDOUX WANTS BATTLE WITH CHAMPION.

New York, March 13.—There will be considerable activity in bantam weight boxing circles within the next few months, if Charles Ledoux, the "best little man" in France, can start anything. Ledoux generally is considered the third best bantam weight boxer in the business, the palm going to Johnny Coulon, "Kid" Williams, the Baltimore Tiger, easily is second among the 112 pounders.

Ledoux recently arrived in America, and the day afterwards hurled challenges at the two youngsters. Coulon hardly will accept terms, but Williams likely will take Ledoux on in his leisure time. Williams recently fought in San Francisco, but will return east at any time anything sufficiently enticing is offered.

BRADY IS WAITING.

Duluth Boy Wants to Box Frankie Conley at Kenosha, Wis.

Jimmy Brady is expecting to hear from the officials of the Kenosha, Wis., Athletic club in regard to a meeting with Frankie Conley, the sturdy battler who fought Johnny Coulon for the world's bantam weight title at New Orleans, Feb. 26, 1911, and again at Vernon, Cal., Feb. 3, 1912, Coulon winning both of the contests.

While he lost the opportunity of becoming the bantam weight champion of the world, Conley is still regarded as one of the toughest boys in the world. Brady figures that a victory over the iron-jawed Italian would compel the promoters of the country to recognize his claims.

Brady is training here at the present time and will leave for Kenosha when he hears from the officials of the athletic club of that city.

San Francisco, Cal., March 13.—"Rube" Marquard signed a contract here yesterday to pitch for the New York Nationals for the coming season. It was said last night by an intimate friend of Marquard that the new contract carries a substantial advance in salary.

The marriage ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the parsonage of the German Evangelical Lutheran church, with only two theatrical friends in attendance, but with a host of newspaper men and photographers waiting outside.

In the marriage license, the big southpaw gave his name as Richard De Marquis, 23 years old, and his bride as Katherine Kane, 22.

"Rube" was very nervous. "He was so anxious to get her," said Rev. H. S. Felx, who performed the ceremony, "that he answered all my questions before I finished them. Now they're married and as happy as two birds."

ELECTION REVEL CAUSES ARRESTS

Hibbing Celebrators Wreck Saloons and Are Haled Into Court.

Hibbing, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be a mass meeting in Judge Brady's court this afternoon, when forty men and boys ranging in age from 18 to 32 years will be arraigned on a warrant issued yesterday on a charge of larceny, in which the proprietors of Pine street and Third avenue saloons are joint complainants.

The arrests are the outcome of the after-election celebration Tuesday night. After the celebration, in which Mayor-elect Power and the other successful candidates took part, had been concluded, and after they had gone to their homes for the night, a big crowd started making the rounds of the saloons.

Expected Some One to Pay.

In several places they were served with drinks and cigars by the proprietors, under the impression that somewhere in the crowd there was some one responsible who would pay. In one place the crowd broke in a showcase and took out all the cigars. In another, several cases of beer were appropriated. The mob seemed to gather courage and continued its revels until the saloons were closed for the night. The incident aroused a good deal of comment, and it is predicted about the city that all will receive heavy fines.

The physicians in charge of the case found that the heart action of the child would not permit of cold baths and other means were resorted to. The child is resting easily and unless the disease takes a sudden change, which is unlooked for, he will recover.

Many extra policemen are still doing duty and keeping a close watch to prevent children from moving in public at all. Mothers with large families are growing very impatient, but the rule is being adhered to very strictly.

BOOK PAPER MILL PLANT IS PLANNED

Two Capitalists Look Over International Falls as Site.

International Falls, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.) — Another important industry may be located here as the result of the visit this week of Mr. Haupt of Detroit, and Mr. Bachelder of Chishogo, two capitalists seeking a site for a book paper and cardboard plant. They were the guests of E. W. Backus of the M. & O. Power company, who showed them over the company's power plant and paper mill. The visitors were entertained by citizens at the Moose club rooms, where the proposed plant that will cost about $2,000,000 and employ a large force, was discussed.

To Utilize Poplar Timber.

Mr. Haupt said that the proposed mill would employ 400 or 500 people, and would utilize poplar and other timber with which Koochiching connty abounds and which now has but little market value. Before his company would undertake to build such a mill here they would want an assessed valuation established that would leave no chance for disputes and legal entanglements afterwards. His remarks were well received and were followed by brief addresses by Mr. Backus, Mayor Colburn and others. The affair lasted until a late hour and those in attendance went home hopeful that this big enterprise could be secured.

ICE FIELDS ON GREAT LAKES

Weather Bureau Stations Report That Ice Is Holding Stationary.

The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau and meteorological service of Canada indicate that the cold weather of the past week has slightly increased the thickness of ice in the harbors and held the northern fields stationary, the weather officials announce in their weekly bulletin. In Superior there is not as much ice reported over the extreme western portion, the field extending out from Duluth about twelve miles. From Keweenaw point to Whitefish bay the fields cover the southern portion of the lake. The St. Marys river and Green bay continue solid. In Michigan the fields are not so numerous on the west and south portion, but are extensive, but not heavy, on the east shore. At the straits the ice continues firm.

In Huron extensive moving fields are reported over northern and central portions, but the south end is free. The connecting rivers are closed. Open water continues from the mouth of Lake St. Clair to below Sandwich point. In Erie there is not as much ice reported over the western portion and the fields are moving with the winds. From Conneaut eastward there are extensive fields. In Ontario there are a few fields reported over the western portion while the eastern portion is covered with firm ice. In comparison with the same period last year, there is not as much ice, nor are the fields as heavy.

The usual details on Lake Superior follow:

Duluth—Harbor ice is 34 inches in thickness; some open water from quarter to mile from Minnesota point and along north shore; beyond this extensive ice fields.

Two Harbors—Floating ice in harbor; open water extends from eighteen miles west of Two Harbors, eastward beyond vision; no ice fields visible in the lake.

Bayfield—The harbor ice averages from 24 to 36 inches in thickness; the ice has been making during the past week; it is snow covered.

Ashland—Harbor ice averages 22 to 26 inches in thickness.

Port Arthur, Ont.—The cold weather of the past six days has formed the ice so that it now extends to Thunder cape; it is 5 inches in thickness. The harbor ice averages 30 inches in thickness.

Portage canal—Ice inside breakwater 12 inches in thickness; the field extends out beyond vision.

OLD STEAMER TIMECARD.

Relic of Early Days in Lake Navigation Given to Society.

Hubbell, Mich., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—An interesting relic of the early days of navigation on Lake Superior has been presented by Joseph Chapman, Sr., of Hubbell, to the Keweenaw Historical society. It is a time card of the steamer North Star, Capt. B. G. Sweet, master, which sailed between Lake Erie and Lake Superior ports in 1860. The card announces the times of leaving Cleveland and Detroit and makes the following plea for patronage: "Visiting all points of interest on Lake Superior and having on board each trip a splendid brass band. This trip of over 1,000 miles is extended over 6 deg. of latitude and 11 deg. of longitude. It passes through four lakes and three rivers and is surpassed in the varied beauties of its scenery by no other on the continent. The wildness and grandeur of the Lake Superior region, its peculiar physical formation, its iron mountains, its copper mines, the antiquity of its missions, the marvelous clearness of the water and air and the brightness of its skies furnish never wearying objects of interest to the scientific man, the mere seeker for pleasure, the invalid or the general observer."

Medley, drill by the Daughters of Norway, vocal solo by Robert Robertstad. Judge J. E. Diesen acted as toastmaster. Freeman's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and the banquet was served by the Daughters of Norway.

GETS DIVORCE AFTER YEAR OF LITIGATION

Arthur P. Mandelin, aged 26, a local Finnish interpreter, who has lost out in a divorce action brought by his wife, Gabriella M. Mandelin, 24, after a year of litigation during which time the case was carried to the supreme court, must pay her $25 a month until she remarries and the additional sum of $500 as permanent alimony.

The case was tried before Judge Dancer a year ago, but judgment in the case was not entered until today. Mrs. Mandelin brought unusual charges of cruelty against her husband. The testimony as to the nature of his treatment towards her was mostly unprintable. Mandelin fought the case every inch and when it was decided against him took it to the supreme court on an appeal from an order denying him a new trial.

The judgment of the court which was entered today dissolves the marriage which was contracted between them on May 3, 1907, invests the custody of their child, Leo, with his mother, and provides for alimony. Under the decree, Mrs. Mandelin is allowed to discard the name of her husband and assume her maiden name, that of Gabriella Esterman.

Would Divorce Lazy Husband.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—Because her husband is "incurably lazy and shiftless," Mrs. Azar P. Hess, aged 60, filed suit for divorce in the district court here. She also asked that the only property owned by Mr. Hess—a burial lot—be transferred to her. In her complaint Mrs. Hess asserted that it did not require the forty-three years of their married life for her to discover that her husband was opposed to working, but that his idleness had been unusually annoying to her during the past winter.

To the Council:

Your committee on ordinances and resolutions to which was referred an ordinance by Alderman Hicken entitled "An ordinance to create the office of inspector of play grounds, etc., and to define the duties of such office," beg to report that they have considered the subject matter of said ordinance and believe that such an ordinance is altogether unnecessary. The charter of the city of Duluth gives ample power to the commissioner in charge of the welfare work of the city to appoint any subordinates which he may find necessary to carry out such work. If the commissioner in charge of the welfare work finds it necessary to employ an inspector of play grounds he can appoint one, but we believe that this council should create no offices when the commissioners to be elected by the people on April 1 will so soon have to assume the government of the city. In view of these considerations, we submit said ordinance for your consideration and recommend that the same be not adopted.

EXPORT NEWS HELPS BULLS

Rally Late in the Day Prevents the Expected Bearish Closes.

Flaxseed Still Sags Owing to Light Purchases By Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 13.—What promised early in the session to be a very bearish day on the wheat markets of North America late in the day took a sudden upturn, on account of news of large export deals at Chicago, and prices closed with slight variations over and under yesterday's closing figures. Duluth May wheat closed unchanged. There were slight advances at Minneapolis and Winnipeg and a slight loss at Chicago. Duluth cash wheat closed ½@2c under May. Durum closed ¾c up, oats ¼c off, and rye and barley unchanged. Duluth May flaxseed closed ¼c off and July ¾c off.

Wheat fluctuated very irregularly on the North American markets this morning and at noon the quotations were slightly lower at Duluth and Chicago and slightly higher at Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The general situation seemed bearish.

A report from Minneapolis brought the information that the grain elevators in that city were pretty well filled and that wheat was coming into that city faster than the mills were grinding and shipping it out in the form of flour, together with the direct shipments of wheat to the country mills. This was a fair index of the general condition of supply of wheat exceeding the demand. The fact that wheat is coming into Minneapolis faster than it is going out is not due to a want of cars or other shipping facilities but merely to the fact that the demand is not large. There are continual reports to the effect that the grain reserves in the hands of American farmers is very large. The news in regard to the prospects for the winter wheat crop in all parts of the country is almost without exception bearish.

Duluth May wheat, which closed yesterday at 85⅞@86c asked, opened today at 85⅞c bid and at noon was quoted at 85¾@85⅞c bid. Wheat was lower at noon on the Chicago market and higher at Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Liverpool wheat today closed unchanged to ⅜d lower. The market was beared by the expectation of large Argentine shipments this week, rumors that the continent was reselling recent purchases of Plata wheat, freer offerings of Plata wheat, a more favorable political situation and reports to the effect that seasonable prospects for Indian wheat were maintained.

Flax Is Dull.

The flaxseed market was dull and comparatively featureless today. The demand was very slack. Minneapolis cash flax at noon today was quoted 2½c under Duluth May. Duluth May 2½c under Duluth May. Duluth and July at noon were ¼c lower. Winnipeg May flax at noon today was ¼c lower at $1.12⅛ bid, being 10½c under Duluth May. Buenos Ayres May seed last night closed 1c off at $1.20¾. London Calcutta March today closed ⅝c up at $1.57¼.

T. W. Swift of the wholesale grain firm of McLane, Swift & Co., of Chicago, who was a visitor on the Duluth exchange today, stated that prospects were excellent for a large winter wheat crop, both of the white and red, this year. "The wheat is already green and is progressing finely," said Mr. Swift. "The acreage is about the same as that of last year, but while this year we shall get about the usual crop from the Michigan farms, this being in the neighborhood of 15,000,000 bu. Last year the wheat was a failure. The farmers harvested 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bu. Michigan grinds much more wheat than it raises."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Weaker Cables Than Expected Has Bearish Influence on Wheat.

Chicago, March 13.—Weaker cables than expected had a bearish influence today on wheat. Favorable weather conditions in the American winter crop belt also aided the bears. Buying was only of the scattered sort. Opening prices were a shade to ⅜c lower. May started at 89¼c to 89⅝c, a loss of ¼c to ⅜c and fell to 89⅛c.

A reaction took place owing to export sales here and elsewhere. The close was steady with May ¼c net lower, at 89⅝c.

Corn weakened in sympathy with wheat. May opened unchanged to ¼@⅛c off, at 52½@52⅝c to 52¾c and eased to 52½c.

Further weakness developed because of selling by local speculators. The close, however, was steady with May ¼@⅜c lower, at 52⅜@52½c.

Although offerings of oats were small the cereal declined with other grains. May started at last night's level to ⅛c up, at 33c to 33⅛c, and dropped to 32⅝@32¾c.

Lightness of hog receipts was largely offset in the provision pit by selling on the part of longs. First sales ranged from 22½c lower to 17½c advance, including May at $20.75 to $21 for pork; $10.72½ to $10.75 for lard, and $10.85 to $10.90 for ribs.

LOSSES ARE RECOVERED

Stocks Start Lower But Rebound Strongly in All Directions.

New Plan By Harriman Interests for Separation of Railroads.

New York, March 13.—Experiencing comparatively little opposition in jamming down prices at the outset today, bear traders put out extensive short lines for a time. They were assisted in lowering the general level by a display of weakness at new points among the specialties.

The successive downward swings recently strengthened the opinion that the market was a liquidating one in which stocks were being sold between all rallies.

The complexion of the market changed, however, when another severe break in sterling exchange rates occurred, which seemed to preclude the chances of further gold exports.

Prices rebounded strongly in all directions, with many rallies of 1 to 2 points.

Bonds were irregular.

Opening prices of stocks were generally lower today. Declines among the leading speculative specialties were depressed a point or more. Goodrich, Woolworth and Colorado Fuel receded a point and Canadian Pacific 2. American Locomotive advanced 1⅛ and Sears-Roebuck 1.

Large inroads were made on prices of various important stocks before there was any evidence of support which pulled up the list somewhat. Union Pacific touched 147¼, near the week's lowest, and Reading, Amalgamated and Can sagged a point. Several specialties went down rapidly. Corn Products preferred losing 1¾ and Beet Sugar 2¾.

Weakness of Union Pacific which went down again to the neighborhood of a point below yesterday's closing, caused a slight recession in the general market after midday. Selling also was encouraged by the engagement of $500,000 to Hamburg and the stiffness of call money which loaned at 5½ per cent.

New Haven sold at 120½, well below the recent low level, which had been a record since 1875. Discussion of poor earnings and their possible affection to dividends influenced selling. Elsewhere the list was fairly steady but very dull.

The market closed strong. Washington dispatches announcing that a new plan had been prepared by the Harriman interests for the separation of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific produced higher prices and influenced more life into the dealings. Prominent stocks reached their best figures with Union Pacific and Reading selling more than a point above yesterday's closing.

REAPPORTIONMENT TO PASS SENATE WITHOUT MATERIAL AMENDMENT

C. A. Congdon May Head Commission on the State's Expenses.

House Passes Bill to Establish Legislative Reference Bureau.

Abolishment of Office of State Oil Inspector Recommended.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reapportionment will come to a vote in the senate late this afternoon, and this morning the prospects were considered good that the house bill, as amended in the senate committee, would be passed without material amendment by the senate. In that event, the bill as amended will be returned to the house for its concurrence, and the appointment of a conference committee will follow to overcome any disagreements there may be between the two bodies.

A Duluth man may head a highly important commission which will make a thorough investigation of the state's expenses an I suggest a plan for the reorganization of the state government along economical, efficient and business-like lines. The house committee on public accounts and expenditures is considering a joint resolution to provide for such a commission, and it is understood that it had in mind the

JUDGE HAS QUEER CASE TO DECIDE

Does Statute of Limitations Apply to Sponge Found in Abdomen?

Chicago, March 14.—If a sponge is left in the abdomen of the patient after an operation and is not discovered for seven years, does the statute of limitations apply from the date of insertion of the sponge or the date of the discovery?

This is a question which United States District Judge Carpenter was called upon to decide. It rose in the case of George N. Montgomery of Jacksonville, Fla., against Dr. Charles E. Kalke of Chicago. The plaintiff avers that the physician negligently left the sponge in the abdomen after an operation for appendicitis. Seven years later, Montgomery says, physicians removed it.

Attorneys for the defense insisted that the statute of limitations had expired in the case, averring it began to apply at the time of the original operation.

LICENSE FOR AUTOMOBILES

House Advances Bill Providing for State License Fee of $5.

Senate Passes Gunn Bill for New Mining Lease Law.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a fight, the house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon voted to advance to the calendar the bill by the house tax committee taxing automobiles $5 apiece yearly as a state license fee, the proceeds to go into the state road and bridge fund.

Representative Lydiard tried to cut the fee to $2, but his amendment was defeated. So was an amendment by Representative Palmer cutting it to $3. The house adopted an amendment by Representative Conley cutting down the chauffeur's license fee from $5 to $3, and his annual tax from $2 to $1.

Representative C. R. Orr of St. Paul offered the following amendment to the provisions of the bill regulating speed, etc., though the chairman of the committee of the whole ruled the Opposition to Placing County Officers on Non-Partisan Basis.

Idea Has No Defenders in House Committee on Elections.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The project of placing county officers on a non-partisan basis, ratified by the senate, went by the board in the house committee on elections yesterday afternoon.

In point of fact, the idea had no defenders whatever in the committee, and it was not until the more violent partisans proposed to undo the work of the extra session in putting judges of probate and county school superintendents on a non-partisan basis that there was any evidence whatever of a perception that it is incongruous to continue on a partisan basis the election of minor officials whose duties have no more relationship with national party lines than the Aldrich currency bill has with the procession of the seasons.

And even then this perception did

LABORERS OUST FRESH STUDENTS

Attempt to Break Up Suffragette Meeting Is Foiled.

Glasgow, March 14.—Students of Glasgow university and 300 stewards, including fifty dock laborers, came to blows at a suffragette meeting in St. Andrew's hall last night.

The students fared badly. Many of them were beaten, scores were ejected, and the others sat throughout the remainder of the meeting in silence.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the suffragette leader, it was announced early in the day, would address the suffragettes. A large body of students from the university came to St. Andrew's hall to break up the meeting.

After a fierce engagement, which lasted ten minutes, the stewards dragged or carried not less than fifty students into the streets. Those that were left behind, finding themselves outnumbered, did not renew the fighting, but were discreetly well-behaved.

Mrs. Pankhurst had a quiet hearing for thirty minutes.

SERVIANS KILL 300 PEASANTS

Unarmed Albanian Inhabitants Shot Without Trial.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, March 14.—Three hundred Albanian inhabitants of Lluna in the Turkish province of Kossovo, were shot without trial by Servian troops yesterday, according to a dispatch from Uskup to the Frankfort Gazette today.

"The inhabitants of the district totaled 400," the dispatch says. "They were unarmed peasants and did not follow the example of the rest of the Albanians in fleeing to the mountains.

"All were captured by a column of Servian troops, who, after shooting 300 of them, brought the surviving 100 prisoners to Prisrend, the capital of the province."

EXECUTION OF GEN. CARRANZA IS REPORTED

Governor of Coahuila Said to Have Been Captured By Federals.

Later Shot By Troops Under Gen. Auburst Is the Rumor.

Rebels Drive Federals Out of Nogales and Capture Town.

Laredo, Tex., March 14.—It is reported that Venustiano Carranza, governor of Coahuila, who revolted against the Huerta provisional government, was captured and shot yesterday afternoon by Federal troops under Gen. Trucy Aubert at a point between Bajana and Monclova.

Official confirmation of the execution has not been obtained up to a late hour.

Nogales Captured.

Nogales, Ariz., March 14.—Constitutionalists overthrew the Federal garrison at Nogales, Sonora last night and now are in possession of the border town, after a fight which continued with little abatement for twelve hours. Casualties are estimated at 100 dead and twice as many wounded on both sides.

Private Allen A. Umfleet, Troop G, Fifth cavalry, U. S. A., was seriously wounded by a rebel bullet while doing police duty near the international line here. The shot passed through his face from nose to ear. No other American was injured.

The United States soldier was shot when the attack was at its height. Lieut.-Col. Tate, in charge of the Fifth cavalry patrol, instantly sent word to Gen. Obregon, in command of the rebel forces:

"You have shot one of my men. Cease firing or I shall be after you at once."

At the same moment the firing from the regulars under Generals Kosterlitzky and Reyes slackened. By some preconcerted arrangement, Lieutenant Colonel Tate called his bugler and ordered him to sound the Mexican "cease firing" order. The Federal garrison instantly obeyed, but desultory firing continued to come from the besiegers.

Colonel Obregon succeeded in holding back the fire from his men so that Colonel Kosterlitzky and Reyes, with their forces were able to cross to the United States, where they surrendered to Colonel Wilber Wilder, Fifth cavalry, who arrived late to take command of the American troops. The Mexican Federal soldiers stacked their arms before the American troopers and disbanded.

The attackers suffered most heavily. A rain of lead dropped over the American town, many citizens narrowly escaping injury.

HALF A MILLION INFLUENZA CASES.

Vienna, Austria, March 14.—The most severe epidemic of influenza on record is prevalent in the Austrian capital. Half a million cases have been reported during the last three months and the epidemic is still taxing the capacity of hospitals, nursing institutions and physicians.

Whole families appear to be attacked simultaneously and persons of all ages are equally affected.

The disease is of a peculiarly virulent type, with serious after-effects. Doctors hope the setting in of milder weather will diminish the outbreak.

BALKAN ALLIES MAKE A DESPERATE BUT FUTILE ASSAULT ON FORTRESS

Defenders of Adrianople Repulse Enemy With Heavy Loss.

Bulgarians and Servians Said to Be the Heaviest Losers.

Belgrade Paper Prints the Terms Under Which Mediators May Act.

London, March 14.—A fierce but unsuccessful assault was made on the south front of the Turkish fortress of Adrianople last night. According to a dispatch from Constantinople, the besieging Bulgarians and Servians sustained heavy losses and eventually were repulsed all along the line.

The Durazzo correspondent of the Vienna Reichspost accuses the Servians of burning villages in that neighborhood and causing the death of many women and children.

Basis of Peace.

Belgrade, March 14.—A government newspaper publishes the conditions on which the Balkan allies are willing to accept the powers' mediation. Hostilities are to continue until the peace treaty is signed. The basis of negotations will be the same as laid before the Ottoman delegates at London on Dec. 23.

CASE OF DR. HYDE IN HANDS OF JURY

Third Trial of Physician Charged With Murder of Col. Swope.

Kansas City, Mo., March 14.—The jury in the case of Dr. B. Clark Hyde on trial a third time charged with the murder of Col. Thomas P. Swope, millionaire philanthropist, resumed deliberations at 9 o'clock today. The case was given to the jury at 10 o'clock last night but after an hour's deliberation the jury was locked up.

Dr. Hyde has spent three years on trial, in jail or out on bail, charged with the Swope murder. In the first trial he was found guilty and sentenced to prison for life. Placed on trial a second time after the state supreme court had overruled the trial court, a mistrial was called when one of the jurors, weary of confinement, escaped through the transom of the jury room, to be picked up in the fields a week later in a pitiable mental state.

A week after the third trial began Jan. 13, it was delayed by the illness of a juror, in whose place a substitute finally was obtained after the case had approached near another mistrial.

Dr. Hyde first was placed on trial April 11, 1910, charged with poisoning Col. Swope. Eleven indictments charged him with connection with the death or serious illness of several members of the Swope family and household. The state put forward as a motive that Dr. Hyde desired to hasten the inheritance through his wife, Col. Swope's niece, of a share of the aged millionaire's estate.

BURGLAR MAY NOT RECOVER

"Gentleman" Who Worked Many Homes Is in Bad Shape.

Says Chicago Woman Insisted on Coming to Him.

San Francisco, Cal., March 14.—Owen Conn, the "gentleman burglar," is so seriously wounded that he may die. The bullet from a policeman's revolver that brought him down when he was caught robbing an apartment last Saturday, splintered the thighbone and ranging downward, shattered his right kneecap. His vitality is so lowered that it is doubtful if he can survive the shock of amputation.

A letter to Conn from Mrs. Mabel Clarkson of Chicago, who became interested in him as a prison missionary and left her husband and five children to follow him, was found today among his effects and indicates the woman is now in Milwaukee under the name of Mabel Ott, sick and destitute. Conn talks freely from his sick bed of his relations with Mrs. Clarkson.

Woman Good to Him.

"The woman was good to me and I, of course, was grateful, but she insisted on sending me love letters and making engagements," he said today. "Finally she told me she had separated from her husband. 'He gives me 50 cents a day to support my children,' she told me, 'and I'm tired of it.'

"I helped her along and tried for awhile to live straight. But she was a cold-blooded thing, and wanted money and then more money and then jewelry. One night she said:

"'I've got a friend, an old man, who owes me a favor. I'll make an engagement to meet him and you can hold him up. He always carries several hundred dollars.' It disgusted me to think she would treat a friend like that and I quit her. She ran away with a 17-year-old kid. I'm sorry for him."

Of the woman sought by the police as Conn's companion in his California robberies, he said:

"I met her on the street two days after I came here. That's the woman the papers are saying was the chieftainess of our 'gang,' the brains of a thousand thefts and a lot of slush like that. Why, until almost the last days, she never knew I was crooked."

PASSENGER TRAIN PARTLY IN RIVER

Fireman Killed and Engineer Hurt in Wreck in Southern Minnesota.

La Crosse, Wis., March 14.—Passenger train No. 8 on the Southern Minnesota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway is partly in the Root river near Hokah, Minn., twelve miles west of here, with the fireman dead, the engineer fatally hurt and other trainmen possibly injured, according to word received here early today. The accident occurred about midnight when No. 8 running slowly and behind time on account of spring freshets which frequently convert the Root from a small stream into another Mississippi, went into a washout where a bridge had been carried away. Fireman Knute Nelson, La Crosse, was killed, and Engineer Charles Whiting was probably fatally injured, when the engine tipped over. The fate of the rest of the crew is in doubt. Precaution of the engineer, however, saved his passengers, while it did not save himself for the slow speed maintained at the time and reversal of power at the last moment prevented the entire train going into deep water. Though all the cars went into the washout, no passengers are reported hurt. A relief train with doctors and nurses has been sent from La Crosse to bring in the injured and a work train has been rushed forward to repair the damage.

Ethics Committee of Bar Association Shows Curiosity Regarding It.

Wants to Know Why He Did Nothing to Earn Money.

Attorney Forced to Return Fee With 6 Per Cent Interest.

That the St. Louis County Bar association is persistent in placing its stamp of disapproval on shady work or anything approaching it among certain members of the legal profession practicing in the local courts, is made quite evident by the association ethics committee's attitude in a matter involving William Marx, a local practitioner.

Attorney Marx is a lawyer of several years' standing in Duluth. He was called "on the carpet" before the ethics committee of the association this week to explain certain matters in relation to a case which he had been handling. The committee told him that his actions were not in accord with the ethics of the association.

The complaint against the local attorney came to the bar association through a letter written to a Duluth judge of the district court on behalf of Mr. Marx's client, a woman living at Pineville on the Bangor mine location near Biwabik.

The woman's story was turned over by the judge to Arthur H. Crassweller, chairman of the ethics committee. The committee, which consists of Mr. Crassweller, Alfred Jaques, H. R. Spencer, H. Oldenburg and S. W. Gilpin called Mr. Marx before them and asked him to explain.

The story which came to the association was about as follows:

The woman sustained an injury on Jan. 20, 1910. She did not recover

FIVE LOSE LIVES IN SEVERE STORM

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Damage Done Near Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14.—Five known dead, at least a score injured and thousands of dollars loss today marked the path of the severe storm which swept the section just east of the city last night. The storm cut a swath about 100 yards wide and extended through Dekalb county. Today the devastated section is entirely cut off from wire communication, and later reports, it is feared, will swell the list of casualties.

The dead include:

WILLIAM BANKS AND CHILD, Clarkston.

MRS. SALLIE NASH AND SON, at Tucker.

UNIDENTIFIED NEGRO, at Tucker.

The injured: Esna Thomas, Tucker; two Thomas children, one fatally; Paul Thomas, Tucker; Mrs. H. L. Wing, Sylvester; G. W. Makbut, Sylvester.

Relief parties were sent out from here early today.

TO CROSS ATLANTIC.

Former Wisconsin Man Would Use Gas Bag Instead of Dirigible.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 14.—Joseph Brucker, a former Milwaukee man, who is planning on crossing the Atlantic ocean, will not use a dirigible, but an improved gas bag with no mechanical devices, according to a letter to his wife, who is visiting here.

Brucker is the son of a former Mayville, Wis., editor, but has become a millionaire manufacturer in Kiel, Germany, and has won fame as an aeronaut.

Mrs. Brucker says that her husband will leave Munich soon for Key West, where he will begin his air trip across the ocean. He plans on starting April 1 and will make his first and only landing at the Canary Islands.

WIRES OUT OF COMMISSION

Sleet Storm Plays Havoc With Power and Telegraph Companies.

Trains and Street Cars Not Materially Affected By Storm.

This morning shortly after 9 o'clock the "juice" furnished by the Great Northern Power company went off, and incidentally knocked out the supply required for service over the North American Telegraph company's wires between the Head of the Lakes and the Twin Cities. It is claimed that near Thomson, where the power wires cross those of the Postal, the wind, aided by the excessive sleet of last night, broke the power wires. They fell across the telegraph lines, breaking these in turn and grounding them.

As a result, while the power wires were restored in a short time, the telegraph wires were put out of commission for a number of hours and

MUCH STREET WORK PLANNED

Half Million Will Be Expended in Improvements This Year.

Work Estimated to Cost About $300,000 Already Ordered.

It is estimated at the office of the board of public works that $500,000 of street improvements will be finished in Duluth the coming season.

Work which will cost about $300,000 has already been ordered and petitions have been received for additional jobs which will bring the total well over the half million mark.

In order that the work may start this spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground the council has ordered the city to sell certificates of indebtedness for several hundred thousand dollars. This will provide ample funds for the outset of the season and eliminate delays which have been experienced in past years. In addition to the pavements and graveled surfaces which will be put down, a large amount of sewer construction will be completed, including both sanitary and storm sewers.

Among the street improvement jobs which it is planned to complete the coming season are: East Fourth street between Sixth and Fourteenth avenues; Seventh street from Chester park to Fourth avenue west, a stretch of approximately eighteen blocks; Twenty-second avenue east between Third and Fifth streets; Seventeenth avenue east between Fourth and Seventh streets; Princeton avenue from Wallace avenue to the cemetery; East First street street between First and Sixth avenues; Twenty-third avenue west between Michigan and Tenth streets; Vernon street; Parkside avenue; First street between Nineteenth and Thirtieth avenue west and Woodland avenue from Fourth to Austin streets.

A petition is being circulated for improving Third street from the ore docks to Fifty-fourth avenue west and for the paving of West Superior street, Jenswold street and Oneota street from Twenty-fourth avenue west to Forty-sixth avenue west. Both of these are the main traveled thoroughfares between West Duluth and the central part of the city.

PROMOTION FOR RAILROAD MAN

George W. Boyd Made Passenger Traffic Manager of Pennsylvania Road.

George W. Boyd, for twelve years general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, has been made passenger traffic manager of that road, to succeed J. R. Wood, who retires on account of health. Mr. Boyd will have two general passenger agents under him, one to handle local and the other through traffic.

Mr. Boyd became a national character when he was assistant general passenger agent and was the connecting link between the railroad and the administration at Washington. When the president of the United States wanted to make a tour it was always Mr. Boyd who made up the schedules. And a complicated business this was, for it was necessary to consider stops for speeches, public meetings, etc., and to lay out the plans so as not to interfere seriously with regular trains. Not only was Mr. Boyd a genius at this sort of thing, but he was a diplomat in manner and always welcome at the White House for his personal qualities.

Mr. Boyd at one time had charge of issuing newspaper passes and he was well known to every editor in the country. The enactment of the interstate commerce law forbidding the issue of free transportation relieved Mr. Boyd of one of his activities.

CHANGES IN CRIMINAL LAW

County Attorney Greene Makes Suggestions to State Legislature.

Would Make Attendance of Defendant Optional at Some Proceedings.

A number of changes in the criminal laws and in the statutes governing procedure in the criminal courts of the state have been suggested to the legislators of St. Paul by Warren E. Greene, county attorney.

One of the most important changes which is urged by the local prosecutor is a revision of the old technical statute which requires that no proceeding can be had, not matter what its nature, without the presence of the defendant in the court room.

Under the present law a motion on a demurrer to an indictment or a motion for a new trial cannot be argued or heard unless the defendant is brought into court. This often has caused considerable delay and is considered useless provision. It has been abolished in some states. Mr. Greene seeks to have the law amended so as to provide that it will not be necessary for the defendant to be in court in person except at the time of arraignment and at trial. Otherwise he can be represented by an attorney. This change has the approval of Judge Cant and other members of the bench. The proposed bill has been sent to Senator Boyle for introduction.

The county attorney is also seeking to have the statute of limitation in embezzlement and false pretense cases amended so as to have the time commence from the date that the fraud or embezzlement is discovered instead of when it was committed. The present law is that after three years have elapsed since the commission of the crime no prosecution can be made.

Attempts to Commit Crime.

Mr. Greene is also anxious to see a change in the criminal law defining punishment for attempts to commit crime. He has no objection to the present statute, he says, except that it is not broad enough in its scope. He would have attempts at crime punishable by jail sentence or workhouse term, and in cases in which no fine is provided for in the statute he would have imposed the usual penalty of one-half of the punishment that would be given if the attempt had not failed.

Another measure which the county attorney would have amended is the law governing bastardy cases. The change suggested is to make it possible for settlement of the cases not only in the justice and police courts, but also up to the time of trial in district court. This provision was evidently intended in the law, says Mr. Greene, but was overlooked by the lawmakers.

LOST AN EYE IN SALOON QUARREL

Wife of Victim Wants $10,500 From Saloon Keeper.

The case of Inga Rensaa, who is suing Gust Egdahl, proprietor of saloons at 509 West Michigan street and 512 West Superior street, for damages for the loss of her husband's support, is expected to go to a jury in Judge Dancer's room this afternoon.

Mrs. Rensaa claims that her husband, Delaus Rensaa, had his eye put out in a squabble in Egdahl's saloon and that, as a consequence, she has lost the support he would have given her if he had not sustained the affliction. She claims that Egdahl was indirectly responsible for her husband's condition.

The Illinois Bonding company, his sureties, are also made defendants in the action. Damages in the amount of $10,500 are asked.

Woman Fatally Burned.

Grand Rapids, Wis., March 14.—Mrs. Bertha Williams, aged 48, was burned to death and her husband seriously burned following a lamp explosion on a dredge at City Point near here early yesterday. Williams' injuries were sustained in attempting to save the life of his wife. The couple were employes on the boat.

Five hundred dollars was recently paid for the good will of a humble coffee stall in London.

SUPERINTENDENT SCOTT REMOVED BY SULZER.

Albany, N. Y., March 14.—Col. Joseph F. Scott, superintendent of state prisons, was removed from office yesterday by Governor Sulzer. Charges of non-feasance and neglect of duty against the superintendent were preferred by the government yesterday and Col. Scott was given until noon today to reply. The charge against Scott, mainly is the bad conduct of the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane, where Harry K. Thaw is confined.

DEATH MAY DELAY LUMBER TRUST CASE

Ralph McKenzie Had Many Papers Important to Prosecution.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—The announcement from Fargo, N. D., of the death of Ralph McKenzie, employe of the Federal department of justice, brought to a close a diligent search for the man, which had been carried on by George W. Murdock of Washington, special government agent, and the district court officials of this city.

McKenzie's death may cause a delay in the prosecution of the so-called Lumber trust, which was to have started on Saturday morning in Minneapolis.

It appears that Mr. McKenzie, as agent of the department of justice, had been very active in collecting evidence against the lumbermen, who are named as defendants in the case of the United States vs. the Northwestern Lumbermen's association et al, and that he held in his possession the papers and principal evidence which will be used by the prosecution in substantiating its claims against the alleged trust.

All efforts on the part of government officials here and in Washington to locate McKenzie and to advise him of the fact that the case was to come to trial in Minneapolis this week were met with no response, and Mr. Murdock came a few days in advance of the government prosecutors in order to get McKenzie here and to make other arrangements for the calling of the hearing.

Subpoenas for twenty-five persons will be served at once in notification of the hearing of the lumber case, which was announced to start on Saturday. If possible Mr. Murdock will go to Fargo and endeavor to secure possession of the government's papers at once.

amendment out of order after the house had had a laugh over it:

"Section 2. (Rate of speed and whistle.) The rate of travel shall at no time exceed six miles per hour. Every automobile having an engine shall be equipped with a whistle of not less than 25-horse power.

"Section 3. (Precaution.) When meeting any vehicle propelled by horsepower, the operator of any automobile shall immediately stop, take his automobile apart and carefully conceal the parts from view.

"Section 4. (Irrigation.) The operator of any automobile when approaching within eighty rods of any residence when the roads are dry shall sprinkle the road to a distance of eighty rods from such residence before operating automobile over same.

"Section 5. (Signals.) Any person operating an automobile at night shall, when approaching a crossing or section corner, stop 500 feet from such crossing or section corner and blow a whistle and shoot up to a distance of 1,000 feet not less than one dozen sky rockets and wait at least fifteen minutes before proceeding.

"Section 6. (Penalty.) Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall on conviction be punishable by a fine of from $500 to $1,000, or by imprisonment in the state penitentiary from one to three years or by both such fine and imprisonment. New Mining Lease Law.

The senate yesterday afternoon passed the bill by Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids providing for a new mining lease law to replace the one repealed six years ago.

The bill by Senator Carl L. Wallace of Minneapolis, to encourage saving by public school pupils by authorizing banks to make arrangements for collecting the savings of the pupils, was passed by the senate yesterday afternoon.

The house yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar a bill by Representative Nolan, Norton, Child and Holmberg providing for a state legislative reference bureau. The bureau is to be under a commission composed of the president of the state university, the lieutenant governor and a person appointed by the speaker of the house. The commission is to appoint the director of the bureau, and to fix his pay.

The legislative reference bureau is to collect, keep constantly up to date, and have readily available and accessible, to all persons desiring to use the same, under its supervision and regulations, such information and material as will furnish the fullest possible information practicable upon all matters pertaining to current or proposed legislation or any legislative or administrative problems or the drafting of bills. In addition to other matter, such material shall include, where practicable and useful for such purposes, files and explanatory check and catalog lists of the current and proposed legislation of this and other states, the United States and other countries; of the public printed documents of the state, including the printed reports of the state departments, boards, institutions and commissions; analytical indices, classifications, compilations and digests of the state laws; and matter supplemental and explanatory of the foregoing designated material, respectively. The bureau is also to investigate the manner in which the laws of present interest for legislative purposes have operated in other states and countries. When requested to do so by any member or member-elect of the legislature, the bureau shall draft or assist in the drafting and revision of proposed legislation.

The bureau is to procure subject to the approval of the legislative reference commission, such a working library as it may need.

The bill carries an appropriation of $40,000 for the expenses of the next two years.

The bill appropriating $35,000 for Minnesota's participation in the Perry memorial observances of this summer was reported out from the house committee on general legislation without recommendation. On account of the appropriation the bill must go to the appropriations committee.

North Shore Fish Hatchery.

The bill by Representative John A. Healy of Hibbing, providing for a new state fish hatchery on the north shore of Lake Superior between Duluth and Two Harbors, was advanced to the calendar yesterday afternoon by the house. The same action was taken with the bill providing for a fish hatchery at Granite Falls.

The house advanced to the calendar the bill by Representative Healy providing for a clerk of the juvenile court on the iron range.

The Spooner bill authorizing and directing the state to investigate the Mershon canal and water power scheme was advanced to the calendar by the house yesterday afternoon.

The house committee on elections gave its approval yesterday afternoon to the Healy bill requiring the Australian ballot system to be used in village elections. First, however, it adopted an amendment limiting the operation of the bill to villages having more than 5,000 inhabitants, which confines it to Hibbing and Chisholm.

The senate bill by Senator J. D. Sullivan, substituted for the house bill by Representative Palmer of Minneapolis, allowing those away from home on election day to vote elsewhere in the state on all questions of statewide scope, was approved by the house elections committee yesterday afternoon, though doubt was expressed by some of the committee members as to its legality.

Under this bill, a railroad man, commercial salesman or other voter who is to be away from home on election day, can get a certificate from his home precinct that he is a legal voter there, and by presenting it elsewhere in the state he will be permitted to vote on all but local questions. It is provided that the officers of that precinct shall enclose his ballot, with h's certificate, in an envelope and mail it to the canvassing board in the voter's home county. The doubt expressed by committee members was whether this procedure would not be violating the secrecy of the Australian ballot.

SUPERINTENDENT SCOTT REMOVED BY SULZER.

DEATH MAY DELAY LUMBER TRUST CASE

Ralph McKenzie Had Many Papers Important to Prosecution.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—The announcement from Fargo, N. D., of the death of Ralph McKenzie, employe of the Federal department of justice, brought to a close a diligent search for the man, which had been carried on by George W. Murdock of Washington, special government agent, and the district court officials of this city.

McKenzie's death may cause a delay in the prosecution of the so-called Lumber trust, which was to have started on Saturday morning in Minneapolis.

It appears that Mr. McKenzie, as agent of the department of justice, had been very active in collecting evidence against the lumbermen, who are named as defendants in the case of the United States vs. the Northwestern Lumbermen's association et al, and that he held in his possession the papers and principal evidence which will be used by the prosecution in substantiating its claims against the alleged trust.

All efforts on the part of government officials here and in Washington to locate McKenzie and to advise him of the fact that the case was to come to trial in Minneapolis this week were met with no response, and Mr. Murdock came a few days in advance of the government prosecutors in order to get McKenzie here and to make other arrangements for the calling of the hearing.

Subpoenas for twenty-five persons will be served at once in notification of the hearing of the lumber case, which was announced to start on Saturday. If possible Mr. Murdock will go to Fargo and endeavor to secure possession of the government's papers at once.

"Section 4. (Irrigation.) The operator of any automobile when approaching within eighty rods of any residence when the roads are dry shall sprinkle the road to a distance of eighty rods from such residence before operating automobile over same.

New Mining Lease Law.

The senate yesterday afternoon passed the bill by Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids providing for a new mining lease law to replace the one repealed six years ago.

The bill by Senator Carl L. Wallace of Minneapolis, to encourage saving by public school pupils by authorizing banks to make arrangements for collecting the savings of the pupils, was passed by the senate yesterday afternoon.

The house yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar a bill by Representative Nolan, Norton, Child and Holmberg providing for a state legislative reference bureau. The bureau is to be under a commission composed of the president of the state university, the lieutenant governor and a person appointed by the speaker of the house. The commission is to appoint the director of the bureau, and to fix his pay.

The legislative reference bureau is to collect, keep constantly up to date, and have readily available and accessible, to all persons desiring to use the same, under its supervision and regulations, such information and material as will furnish the fullest possible information practicable upon all matters pertaining to current or proposed legislation or any legislative or administrative problems or the drafting of bills. In addition to other matter, such material shall include, where practicable and useful for such purposes, files and explanatory check and catalog lists of the current and proposed legislation of this and other states, the United States and other countries; of the public printed documents of the state, including the printed reports of the state departments, boards, institutions and commissions; analytical indices, classifications, compilations and digests of the state laws; and matter supplemental and explanatory of the foregoing designated material, respectively. The bureau is also to investigate the manner in which the laws of present interest for legislative purposes have operated in other states and countries. When requested to do so by any member or member-elect of the legislature, the bureau shall draft or assist in the drafting and revision of proposed legislation.

The bureau is to procure subject to the approval of the legislative reference commission, such a working library as it may need.

The bill carries an appropriation of $40,000 for the expenses of the next two years.

The bill appropriating $35,000 for Minnesota's participation in the Perry memorial observances of this summer was reported out from the house committee on general legislation without recommendation. On account of the appropriation the bill must go to the appropriations committee.

North Shore Fish Hatchery.

The bill by Representative John A. Healy of Hibbing, providing for a new state fish hatchery on the north shore of Lake Superior between Duluth and Two Harbors, was advanced to the calendar yesterday afternoon by the house. The same action was taken with the bill providing for a fish hatchery at Granite Falls.

The house advanced to the calendar the bill by Representative Healy providing for a clerk of the juvenile court on the Iron range.

The Spooner bill authorizing and directing the state to investigate the Mershon canal and water power scheme was advanced to the calendar by the house yesterday afternoon.

The house committee on elections gave its approval yesterday afternoon to the Healy bill requiring the Australian ballot system to be used in village elections. First, however, it adopted an amendment limiting the operation of the bill to villages having more than 5,000 inhabitants, which confines it to Hibbing and Chisholm.

The senate bill by Senator J. D. Sullivan, substituted for the house bill by Representative Palmer of Minneapolis, allowing those away from home on election day to vote elsewhere in the state on all questions of statewide scope, was approved by the house elections committee yesterday afternoon, though doubt was expressed by some of the committee members as to its legality.

Under this bill, a railroad man, commercial salesman or other voter who is to be away from home on election day, can get a certificate from his home precinct that he is a legal voter there, and by presenting it elsewhere in the state he will be permitted to vote on all but local questions. It is provided that the officers of that precinct shall enclose his ballot, with his certificate, in an envelope and mail it to the canvassing board in the voter's home county. The doubt expressed by committee members was whether this procedure would not be violating the secrecy of the Australian ballot.

DEMOCRATS IN CHARGE

Elect New Officers and Take Up Reins in Senate.

Personnel of Important Finance Committee Announced.

Washington, March 13.—The Democratic forces took charge of the United States senate yesterday, elected new officers to preside over that body and paved the way for the reorganization of committees and a new control of legislative affairs. Another session of the Democratic "steering committee" lasting late into the evening brought the committee lists near to completion. It is expected that a Democratic caucus today will prepare all committees for presentation to the senate Saturday.

The personnel of the finance committee, which is to handle all tariff bills, as now agreed upon, is:

Democrats—Chairman, Senator Simmons, North Carolina; Senators Stone, Missouri; Williams, Mississippi; Johnson, Maine; Shively, Indiana; Gore, Oklahoma; Thomas, Colorado; James, Kentucky; Hughes, New Jersey.

Republicans — Senators Penrose, Pennsylvania; Lodge, Massachusetts, McCumber, North Dakota; Smoot, Utah; Gallinger, New Hampshire; Clark, Wyoming; La Follette, Wisconsin.

Tillman Wins Fight.

Information indicated also that Senator Tillman had won his personal fight to secure the chairmanship of the appropriations committee, the second most powerful of the senate. Persistent efforts had been made for several days to induce the South Carolina senator to surrender his priority rights to Senator Martin of Virginia and to take the chairmanship of naval affairs. It was stated on high authority, however, that the place practically was assured to Senator Tillman.

Senator Owen has been selected for the chairmanship of the banking and currency committee which will handle all currency reform legislation. Senator O'Gorman probably will be made chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals.

President Pro Tem.

They selected Senator Clark of Arkansas as president pro tempore and chose other officers as follows:

James M. Baker, South Carolina, secretary; Charles P. Higgins, Missouri, sergeant-at-arms; Forest J. Prettiman, Washington, D. C., chaplain; Thomas W. Keller, West Virginia, assistant door keeper, Karl A. Loefler, Pennsylvania, acting assistant door keeper.

Senator Gore objected to the election of the latter, who was named by the Republicans as their confidential employe on the floor. He declared a senate page had told him that Mr. Loefler was responsible for the disappearance of the so-called Holtslaw certificate of deposit, which figured prominently in the first trial of Senator William Lorimer. Republicans warmly defended their sole employe, and declared the charge was a "gross injustice" to Mr. Loefler. He was re-elected with the support of a majority of the Democrats and an investigation of the whole affair was at once ordered. Senator Gore was asked to appear today before the senate committees on privileges and elections and the committee will conduct a thorough investigation.

New Republicans Assigned.

New Republican members received the following assignments to the committees:

Senator Burleigh, Maine, claims, public buildings, fisheries and coast defenses; Senator Colt, Rhode Island, civil service, immigration, patents, postoffices and revision of the laws; Goff, West Virginia, military affairs, pensions, claims and conservation; Norris, Nebraska, agriculture, public lands, claims; Sterling, North Dakota, civil service, public lands, pensions and conservations; Weeks, Massachusetts, banking and currency, Philippines, public health and conservations.

Senators Dillingham and Jones were added to the appropriations committee, giving up places on other important committees. Senator Lippitt was added to the District of Columbia committee of which Senator Gallinger long has been chairman.

Senator Gallinger retired from the committee because of his election as Republican leader. Senators Gronna, Townsend and Fall were added to the Indian affairs committee, Senator Kenyon to the military affairs committee, Senator Fall to the public lands committee, and Senator Jones to the committee on territories, Senators Catron and Jackson to the postoffice committee.

Dillingham Retires.

Senator Dillingham retired from the committee on foreign relations and Senators Lodge, Borah and Gallinger from the committee on civil service.

Senator Burton retired from the committee on commerce of which he has been a leading member in the debates in the senate. He received assignments to the banking and currency, foreign relations and immigrations committees, besides a number of other committees.

The more important Democratic chairmanships which are now believed to have been settled include the following:

Senator Gore, agriculture and forestry; Senator Simmons, finance; Senator Bacon, foreign relations; Senator Stone, Indian affairs; Senator Newlands, interstate commerce; Senator Johnston, military affairs; Senator Culberson, judiciary; Senator Bankhead, postoffice and postroads; Senator Swanson, public buildings and grounds; Senator Overman, rules; Senator Fletcher, printing; Senator Pomerene, District of Columbia; Senator Owen, banking and currency; Senator Thornton, fisheries.

FRECKLES

February and March Worst Months for This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in February and March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from Boyce Drug Store and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

BLIZZARD IS ON THE WAY

Snow, Wind and Cold Weather Will Hit Duluth.

Winter is having another fling in the Northwest and Duluth is in for a spell of real weather.

Snow, zero temperatures and high winds are promised by the weather man today. The storm, now centered over Iowa, is the worst of the winter in that section, and the blizzard that will develop in Duluth tonight, may be the worst of the winter here.

The temperature is dropping rapidly over the Northwest. This morning Winnipeg reported 2 below, Devils Lake 2 below and Prince Albert 24 below. Wires are down through the Mississippi valley, which is now experiencing the worst of the storm.

In Duluth last night, the wind reached a velocity of thirty miles an hour. This morning at 10 o'clock it was making thirty-four miles, and indications were that it would increase during the day. The snow that has fallen in the last twenty-four hours, and the snow that is coming today and tonight will drift badly, and there may be a tieup in railroad and street car traffic.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—"A Broken Idol."

Amusement Notes.

A dog that talks will be at the Orpheum next week.

"Don, the Talking Dog," has been a sensation in the vaudeville world this year. He is the property of a German family and he talks German instead of English. For instance when Don "begs" he does not sit up on his hind legs and bend his front paws after the fashion of ordinary dogs performing their tricks. Don says "Kuchen" quite plainly. This is the German word for cake, and Don generally gets his "Kuchen." He has a vocabulary of a score or more of words. Don is claimed to be the only dog in the world that talks.

The rest of the bill will include Caesar Rivoli, "the man with 100 roles"; Charles and Adelaide Wilson in a musical act; Thomas J. Jackson & Co. in a sketch; Elizabeth Otto, "the girl at the piano"; Work and Play, two comedy acrobats; and Delmar and Delmar in an aerial act.

There will be three more performances of this week's bill, which has been one of the most popular of the present winter.

Manager Billings now hopes to have the new Edison talking motion pictures this season. The picture machines are being installed just as rapidly as possible in all the theaters of the Orpheum circuit, and they will probably be seen or heard here before the theater closes for the summer.

Tabloid musical comedy, the new hit of the East, had its initial performance at the Empress theater yesterday afternoon in the B. C. Whitney production of "A Broken Idol." The play will continue until tomorrow evening.

"A Broken Idol," originally a musical comedy, has been reduced to the tabloid form. A number of popular songs are introduced during the action of the play by the principals, with the assistance of a very capable chorus.

Miss Alice Clark, who plays the leading feminine role, scored a hit yesterday with her songs and dances. "A Little China Doll" and "Love Makes the World Go Round," as sung by her, won considerable applause.

The play deals with an American woman, who is anxious to have her daughter marry into the nobility of England. The daughter, however, has a heart of her own and is deeply in love with a reporter. Marion Pugsley, the daughter, is played by Miss Clark and Jack Mason, the reporter, is portrayed by Harry Keesler.

Others in the cast deserving of mention are: John Phillber as Doc Whatt, Ed Keltner as J. Eli Mudelford and Roy Saunders as Silas Pugsley.

Railroads

DEAN OF CONDUCTORS.

Alanson Messer, Who Died Tuesday, Was Pioneer in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., March 14.—Alanson Messer, aged 71, who died here Tuesday, was one of the most widely known railway conductors in the Northwest. Starting as a railroad engineer in the days when cab and car were one affair, and piloting his engine through the pioneer districts of Indian-haunted Minnesota, until, as a conductor, he saw the country develop into cities and great farms, he was always known as the friend of the traveler.

Mr. Messer, called the "dean of railway conductors," was the last survivor of four conductors who ran trains in Minnesota in the pioneer days. John Hutson, George Hunsaker and William Monty, the other conductors of pioneer railroad service, have long since passed away.

NOW HAVE STRONGER HOLD ON THE SENATE.

Washington, March 14.—The election of Senator Hollis aroused enthusiasm in Democratic circles of the senate. The election makes the political complexion of the senate as follows: Democrats, 50; Republicans, 42; Progressives, 2.

"Good" was President Wilson's exclamation when told of the election of Mr. Hollis.

IS GOOD SHEEP LAND.

Many Triplets Born to Flockmaster's Sheep Near Farley, Minn.

Bemidji, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three sets of triplets entered the flock of sheep belonging to W. T. Blakely of Farley within twenty-four hours. In all five sets of triplets have been born this flock this year and all are healthy lambs. Last year only one set came in that flock. In each case the younger ewes have born the triplets.

"Sheep raising up here is first class," said Mr. Blakely. "There is nothing against it. The farmer should start with a small flock. If he is using his own money it don't make so much difference, but where he had to borrow money, from six to twelve ewes is enough for the average man to start with."

Confirmed By Senate.

Washington, March 14.—The senate yesterday confirmed the appointments made by President Wilson of Daniel C. Roper, South Carolina, first assistant postmaster general; Alexander M. Dockery, Missouri, third assistant postmaster general and James I. Blakeslee, Pennsylvania, fourth assistant postmaster general. A number of army appointments were also confirmed.

AITKIN TO BENEFIT.

By Reported Removal of Docks of Railroad From McGregor.

Aitkin, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is reported that the Northern Pacific Railway company, in addition to building the handsome new depot in Aitkin this summer, will move the coal dock from McGregor to this place and also to yard all of its iron ore on side tracks here. If this proves true the town is likely to have a number of Northern Pacific employes to reside here and the business and industrial activity of the company at this point will be considerably more in the future.

HUSTLING WORK ON N. P. EXTENSION.

Stanton, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Every train from Mandan brings material for the Northern Pacific extension from this point into Dunn county. Contracts have been awarded for 100 miles additional and this will be constructed this summer if sufficient labor and material can be had. The line runs in a generally westerly direction from here, going up the Knife river till it strikes Spring creek then up that to the south end of the Killdeer mountains. Next year the company will extend beyond the mountains to Sidney, Mont., to connect with the line built from Glendive.

"SAFETY FIRST" PLANS ON OMAHA RAILROAD.

St. Paul, Minn., March 14.—The "safety first" movement was launched in St. Paul yesterday when more than 200 employes of the Omaha road held an organization meeting at the Prince street house.

The men were addressed by A. W. Trenholm, general manager; James B. Sheehan, general solicitor; T. W. Kennedy, general superintendent, and five men representing the employes.

Plans were formulated for the organization of a safety committee on each division of the road. Each committee will be composed of one or more representatives from each class of labor.

Bemidji, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—More than 300 acres of swamp land adjoining Bemidji on the west have been reclaimed and made fit for city lots, by three four-foot drainage ditches about three miles long. This land is part of which, known as Heffron's Second addition to Bemidji, has been platted to contain 100 lots between Fourth and Sixth streets and Jeanette and Birch avenues and the plat has been accepted by the city council.

PRINCE MAKES STAND PLAIN

Says He Is for City Ownership of Utilities Desired By People.

Declares He Will Carry Out Voters' Wishes Expressed at Polls.

W. I. Prince, candidate for mayor, made emphatic this morning the announcement that he is in favor of municipal ownership and that, if elected, he will carry out in every particular the will of the people in that respect.

Mr. Prince said that he has heard rumors that some people are saying that the plank on municipal ownership in his platform is not sufficiently emphatic.

"I thought when I announced my platform that I had made my municipal ownership plank specific enough, but some people evidently do not think so," said Mr. Prince this morning. "It is to be expected that during a campaign such questions will be raised. Some candidates will wilfully misrepresent opposing candidates in order to put them in a false light before the public.

"I say now to clear away all doubts that I am in favor of municipal ownership of the electric lighting system and of any other utility for the public ownership of which the people may declare, and that I will, if elected, carry out the will of the people as already expressed at the polls.

"I believe that the taking of any utility by the city should be conducted with full consideration as to business details, and as to the commercial value of the utility to the municipality, but the people can safely be left to judge those things for themselves. I do not assume the role of dictator to the people, but I hope to act as their servant and to do their will, in connection with the other commissioners, if I am elected to the office."

BEGIN THEIR FIGHT FOR LIFE

Two Little Children Hope to Recover Their Health at Nopeming.

Walked Four Miles to Courthouse to Attend Free Clinic.

Two weeks ago a little brother and sister, one 6 and the other 7 years of age, walked four miles to the courthouse to have the doctor examine them to determine whether or not they were afflicted with the white plague.

Their father was down with the dreaded disease and he realized how important it is to get medical attention at the earliest possible moment. The tots arrived with their faces flushed and feverish. They showed the symptoms and the later examinations showed that they both have tuberculosis.

Yesterday the two small people were taken to the Nopeming sanitarium. They were as happy as though starting for a picnic or a lark in the woods. They cried a little bit when they said good-bye to their father and mother. The parents were reluctant to part with their children, but having learned of the advantages which were offered by treatment at the sanitarium they did not demur at being separated from them. They are poor, and being relieved of the burden of caring for the children would ease the struggle which they have been making to earn an independent livelihood.

The cost of sending the children to the sanitarium was borne by the Red Cross emergency fund of the visiting nurses, being the proceeds of the sale of the Red Cross seals which were disposed of during the Christmas season. The nurses also fitted the little boy and girl with proper clothing and some small necessaries which were essential.

The boy said that he would be so good that he would get "A" in conduct and his sister declared that she would "be just as good, as good as a little girl could be."

CANDIDATES PROUD OF SOCIALISM

Morris Kaplan Makes Stand Plain at Lakeside Town Hall.

Speaking at a meeting at the Lakeside town hall last evening, Morris Kaplan, candidate for mayor, made it plain that all candidates on the ticket he heads are Socialists and are running as Socialists. He said they are proud of the backing of the Socialist party and that none of them would care to be elected without the approval of their platform by the Socialist party.

Mr. Kaplan predicted that the Socialist party will sweep the city at the coming election.

Edward Blackwood, candidate for commissioner for the short term, claimed that the Socialist administration in Milwaukee saved large sums for the taxpayers of that city.

The next Socialist meeting will be held at the Finnish college at Smithville Sunday afternoon. W. E. Towne and Edward Blackwood will be the speakers. Monday evening, there will be a meeting at 104 Anoka street, Woodland, and Tuesday evening at Sloan's hall at Twentieth avenue west and First street.

RED RIVER BRIDGE WILL BE ERECTED

Great Northern Will Also Build Shops at Fargo This Year.

Fargo, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to an announcement made here this morning the Great Northern will construct shops here this summer and build a larger bridge across the Red river. The shops are made necessary by running trains over the Fargo-Minot cutoff and additional trains stopping here from the Devils Lake and Portal branches. If the shops are constructed here there may be a change in passenger division. The present bridge is not large enough for the huge new engines and double track room is also wanted.

New Railroad Surgeon.

Dr. Rood Taylor, who is associated in the practice of medicine with Dr. A. J. Braden, has been appointed local surgeon of the Northern Pacific road, Dr. Braden holding a similar position. Dr. Taylor replaces Dr. W. H. Magie, resigned. Dr. Magie has been a surgeon of the Northern Pacific here for many years. Drs. Braden and Taylor will move to 212 Lyceum building April 1 from the West end.

Transferred to Dakota.

Mrs. H. J. Osborne, who, with her husband, has been in charge of the lunch counter and newsstand at the Union depot, has been transferred to Jamestown, N. D., in charge of a station there. Mr. Osborne is still here.

Concert Program.

Miss Alice Mae Brown will be the soloist this evening at the concert which the Smith and Allen company will give at their store, 309-11 West First street, being one of their series of free concerts which have proved so popular this season.

STOP NEGLECTING YOUR STOMACH

The worst case of indigestion is simply neglect to give the stomach needed assistance.

When your food does not digest, when gases form, when you experience that uncomfortable feeling of fullness, when the breath is foul, the tongue coated and that sour taste is in the mouth—take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and watch how quickly every one of these symptoms disappear.

Your Stomach Will Never Give Out or Grow Old, If You Depend Upon Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All that was needed was to digest that lump of food in your stomach.—and the glands, whose duty it is to supply the gastric juices, had simply given out from overwork. So when you took that little tablet you were supplying exactly what was necessary to complete the process of digestion that the stomach had begun but was unable to finish.

If you would continue to take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal for awhile, your stomach would have a chance to rest up and get well and strong again.

Try just one box and you will never want to be without this wonderful little remedy for stomach troubles. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain an ingredient, one grain of which will digest 3,000 grains of food. They are entirely harmless because they have absolutely no effect on the system one way or another except to do just the one thing—digest food.

EXAMINATIONS FOR FOREST RANGERS

On March 21 examinations will be given at the various headquarters of district rangers and at the old capitol in St. Paul for those desiring positions as patrolmen.

The examinations will begin at 9 a. m. and will be conducted by the district rangers. New applicants who take the examination must be between the ages of 18 and 40 years. The age limit will not in any case disbar from examination any man who did satisfactory work in the service last season. The questions are largely of a practical nature and are designed to bring out the applicants' knowledge of all kinds of woods work.

THE CROSSES ON CALVARY

Rev. M. S. Rice Draws Lesson From the Three Crucifixions.

Fourth Evening Meeting at the Lyceum Is Well Attended.

Rev. M. S. Rice spoke on the significance of the three crosses on the hill of Calvary at the Lyceum theater last night. The meeting was well attended. He took for his text "Then were there two thieves crucified with Him; one on the right hand and another on the left," Matt. xxvii, 38. He said in part:

"To catch the meaning of either we need the appreciation of each of the three crosses made famous when the mob took Jesus Christ out to His death that mad day at Jerusalem. Many other crosses had been raised on Golgotha, but none other is remembered in the world. One of these we remember, because upon it the most immeasurable sacrifice the earth ever had offered, was slain. The other two found their deathless fame because they stood near then. Three crosses; Always three. The artists keep them. I have not seen a picture of those crosess painted near enough so that I had to take the picture as portrayal of faces and sorrows of the occasion, that made good impression on me. I have not yet seen the picture close done, that I can really thank the artist for.

"I confess not to desire such picture. There are some things artists should not attempt. I should mark Calvary as such and yet every pictuse house has such pictures and men of meager ability make a living cutting the figure of my Lord out of wood hanging to a cross. The only picture amid the great multitude I have seen of the scene on Calvary that really won me was one of a yellowed hillside road winding down a dreary ledge, and some horsemen were riding by and scoffing at something toward the top of the hill, which we could not see. But on the ground there lay the scrowling shadows of three crosses. The greatness of the picture was that it suggested what the artist knew he could not paint, and that is art at its best.

"The executioners of Jesus never intended the association of the three crosses to mean anything more than a rough branding of His disapproval who claimed to be the Son of God. But their endeavor to make it meaningless has put into it a significance that has gone eloquently to all the world, and now in the three crosses together is disclosed a fine harmony of the Gospel of our great Redeemer.

The Unrepentant Thief.

"On one cross dies a thief who plunged out of life here unrepentant. The sinfulness of sin is the teaching. The consequences of sin stand out here in unrelieved outline. How well the world knows it. The cross was a hard way to death, but that was not the dominant sorrow there. I pity any victim of physical pain. But this man's sin had so hardened his life and brutalized his heart that he hung there and with coarsest words commented upon Jesus Christ in agony beside him, and passed out into the invisible future with curses falling from his tongue. All of us will have to die. The physical torture of that experience will be strangely different. I care little about such a trifle as that. The possibility of passing from this life and feeling no sensibility of the degradation of sin is what concerns me as I watch this unrepentant thief die within reach of Jesus Christ and hear no appeal from his lips.

"The second cross also holds a thief, but he has become 'The Penitent Thief,' so-called and as such known everywhere. The fierce judgment of sin the message of the story of the other cross, finds here a more lovely finish through the fine fact of repentance. And when I announce the Christian belief in repentance and forgiveness beside the death of this robber for his sin, dying also as did the other thief, it must stand clear that repentance and forgiveness do not set aside all the consequences of sin. This man's sins were forgiven but the results of those sins only God can know. I speak thus and approach the most blessed message ever heard by man from this angle, because the sinfulness of sin must not be forgotten.

"No finer demonstration of faith in Christ is known than this second cross exhibits. This thief saw even in a dying Christ a triumphant Lord. Had he accepted Him as Lord after some great miracle we had not wondered. But here at the moment when the confidence of others shook and trembled, when His followers had forsaken Him and fled, at the moment Jesus was actually dying and dying the very same death with the robber beside Him, dying betrayed, deserted, derided, there and then comes the faith of this thief. Out of that bitter caldron comes the reinforced word of forgiveness of sin by Jesus Christ.

The Third Cross.

"The third cross is the Cross which has emblazoned the word across the whole world, and set it an undeniable symbol of everything high and holy that finds expression among men. All I have tried to say here in consideration of these other crosses must be but comment on the significance of the one on which Jesus died for the sins of the world. 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world.'

"While heavy burdens must fall upon the sinner for his sins, yet the heaviest burden falls upon the innocent one. Deplore it as you will, that fierce fact stands out in human experience, and the human light or rather gloam, which falls upon the cross of Christ, is just that. The heaviest penalty ever paid for the sins of men was that in which the blood of Jesus Christ was shed. Bathed in the fact of that great cross of our Lord and Savior, the sins of men through repentance lead to the salvation of our God."

WANTED TO DIG A RIVER

Unique Proposition for the Diggers of the Panama Canal.

River Is Desired to Make Fertile a Vast Territory.

Alliance, Neb., March 14. — A new great river, taking its rise in the Black Hills of South Dakota and running through Nebraska and Kansas into Oklahoma, may have to be placed on the map of the West. The government is to be asked to bring its Panama canal equipment and organization in this territory when it is no more needed in the isthmus and to set it to work digging a river to make fertile a vast territory which now is fit only for grazing purposes because of lack of moisture. Congressman George A. Neely has prepared a bill for an appropriation of $50,000 for a survey and investigation of the project.

The new river would be between 600 and 800 miles in length. It would serve a dual purpose—bring water into a dry country, and so divert the flood waters of a number of big Western streams that the inundations which annually cause such damage to the lower Missouri and Mississippi rivers would no longer occur.

J. C. Hooper, president of the Citizens' National Bank of Ness City, Kan., is at the head of the movement, and affiliated with him are a number of wealthy and responsible business men of the states that would be affected.

While the route of the river has not yet been surveyed, the general direction has been agreed upon.

Its Course.

The northern end, or head, is to be in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where a lot of the water which now goes eastward through the White, Cheyenne and Power rivers will be turned into it, thus preventing those three streams from carrying so much water into the Missouri as to cause floods at certain times of the year. In the hills section the altitude will be about 5,000 feet, gradually lessening as the water goes southward.

Down through Western Nebraska and Western Kansas the country is very high, but the fall is gradually toward the south and east. It is the purpose of the promoters to keep that stream going southward rather than eastward, as the natural rivers in those districts run, by always keeping the bed of the stream at the highest possible altitude.

Whenever a natural reservoir site is reached in its course it will be utilized as a portion of the irrigation system to be developed. This depression will be filled and used locally whenever necessary. All creeks, ravines and draws will be dammed and the waters emptied into the new river, from which, in turn, water will be drawn off wherever it is needed.

On its way southward the new river will have to cross both the North Platte and South Platte rivers, as well as several smaller streams after the Kansas line is passed, by means of elevated aqueducts, high up in the air.

At Cost of Beneficiaries.

The third important stream to be crossed is the Arkansas, down in Southern Kansas, over which also there must be an aqueduct. When it reaches the Cimaron river, one of the big Oklahoma streams, the water that is yet flowing in its bed will be turned into the Cimaron, and once again it will flow along a natural channel, leading eventually to the Mississippi.

Mr. Hopper has figures and statistics to show that the cost will not be prohibitive. As soon as a section of the river is completed and can hold water the benefits accruing to the adjacent property can be assessed and the proceeds used in constructig the next link. Mr. Hopper says the entire cost can be saddled upon the section of the country through which the river will run, and all that will be asked of the government is a credit and the use of the Panama machinery and organization.

"HUMAN FLY" HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Steel Rocket in Which He Was to Soar Explodes.

New York, March 14.—A steel rocket containing Rodman Law, the "human fly" in which he intended to be shot 3,500 feet into the air, descending by a parachute, exploded this afternoon when 800 pounds of powder behind it was fired. Law was hurled twenty-five feet from his seat in the rocket, but was unhurt.

Law's hair and eyebrows were burned off. For ten seconds he was unconscious. Then he got up and looked around.

"Darn that thing!" he exclaimed. "I thought I was going up."

Panic spread among the spectators immediately after the explosion. It seemed inconceivable that Law could have escaped being blown to bits and several women became hysterical. When those who were managing the exploit reached the scene they were surprised to find Law struggling on the ground in the midst of the burning framework of the scaffolding which had supported the rocket. His escape was explained by the fact that the head of the rocket on which he stood shoulder high in a hollow extension, was made of an extra thickness of steel. The rest of the rocket 6 feet in length and 2½ feet in diameter, was blown to atoms.

Law walked unassisted to a nearby house to have his burns dressed. He declared that he would make a second attempt as soon as another rocket could be constructed by the moving picture interests which employed him.

RAILROAD MEN ANTI-TREATERS

Employes of the Hocking Valley Have Formed a Society.

Columbus, Ohio, March 14.—No more will friendly and thirsty individuals prop themselves comfortably against the shining mahogany and open their amiable conversation with an agreeable, "What'll ye ave."

No more will the prompt "little-of-the-same" order greet the smiling bartender.

No more—that is, if the plans of Joseph Brown and the members of the newly organized Railwaymen's Temperance and Anti-treating society have their way about it. For the elimination of treating in saloons is the chief object of the organization, which was formed in Columbus last week and which its promoters hope to extend throughout the ranks of the railway men of the state.

The organization starts with a membership of about 250 railroaders, chiefly employes of the Hocking Valley. Of this number 100 are classed as total abstainers, while 150 have been enlisted under the pledge that they will absolutely refrain from treating or from benefiting from someone's kind offer to loosen up.

"We are going on the theory that if we can stop saloon treating we can strike the hardest blow at saloon loafing, and particularly at drunkenness," Mr. Brown explained. "It is not the fellow who hurries into a saloon and takes a lonesome, mind-your-own-business drink that causes the most damage. It is the boozer who seeks to make the bar his permanent address, and is always ready when someone offers to buy.

"Then, too, many a fellow will stop in for a drink on his way home and run into a party of friends, and the jig's up. Someone buys him a drink and he feels in duty bound to buy another, and a third steps up, and soon they're buying them in rounds and in a short time everybody's beautifully soused."

Plans are already under way to extend the scope of the organization. C. E. Skeel, a Pennsylvania conductor, is securing members in the ranks of the employes of the Pennsylvania system, and work has already been started to lead the T. & O. C. brethren on the water wagon."

Electric Lights For Lansford.

Lansford, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives from several small towns of the state that have electric light plants have recently been here and addressed the business men on the proposition. It is now proposed to establish a plant. A municipal proposition is generally favored. It is shown that several towns of the state no larger than this have successful plants.

PUTS AN END TO BACKACHE QUICKLY CURES WEAK KIDNEYS

A Few Doses Give Relief, Helps Lifeless Organs Regain Health, Strength and Activity

It is useless, dangerous, and unnecessary to be tortured with the digging, twisting pains of backache and rheumatism, or suffer with disagreeable kidney and bladder disorders any longer.

The new discovery, Croxone, provides a remedy which every sufferer can now depend upon to promptly and surely relieve all such misery and bring about a speedy cure.

Croxone cures these troubles because it quickly overcomes the very cause of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the membranes and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and makes the kidneys filter and sift from the blood all the waste and poisonous matter that clog the system and cause such troubles.

It does not matter whether you have but slight symptoms or the most chronic, aggravated case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism that it is possible to imagine, for the very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it, and all the misery and suffering that go with such troubles end.

You can secure an original package of Croxone from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

TRIAL OF NEW ELECTRIC CAR

Power From New Storage Batteries of Edison Type.

New Record Established By Imports of Precious Stones.

New York, March 14.—One of the notable events of last week was the trip from New York to Boston over the New York Central tracks of an electric car with motive power supplied from a set of new high-powered storage batteries of the Edison type.

The entire distance of 310 miles was covered in less time than taken by the local trains, but not so short a time as that in which the express trains travel between the terminals.

The work of the car was almost perfect, no troubles on the line, no soot nor cinders, and it is thought the practical operation will be less costly than steam.

The car is to be used in suburban service around Boston and was sold for $18,000.

It seats sixty persons comfortably and its cost of operation is estimated at 16 cents per car mile, while the electric men say that steam cars in operation cost more than five times that price per car mile.

One of the advantages of this type of car is that it will run more than 100 miles upon one charge of the batteries.

The state education department of New York favors the furnishing free to the schools of all text books and school supplies and a bill will be introduced in the legislature at Albany to carry out this plan.

As Governor Sulzer is in harmony with the idea it seems probable that the measure will become law before the session closes.

The expense of the books and supplies will be made a charge upon the state or the school district.

Precious Stones.

The fact that the imports of precious stones entering this port in the month of February were valued at $4,299,435, and that this was a record as to values in February, has attracted attention of jewelers all over the country.

In February, 1907, the imports of precious stones reached $4,275,330 in value, but diamonds today are bringing much larger prices per carat than they were in 1907.

It is said that the prices of the finest quality diamonds have advanced fully 20 per cent during the last year, and although it is known all over the world that the diamond syndicates are marketing only a percentage of the diamonds mined and have large reserve stocks on hand, yet the people continue to buy them freely at the advanced prices.

It is understood that the large importations of precious stones last month were made in view of the probability of higher duties upon such articles after the revision of the tariff at the extra session of congress.

Failed to Affect Stocks.

The report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul showing an increase of gross income for January of approximately $2,000,000, and in increase in net of nearly $1,500,000, was excellent but had little or no effect upon the prices or railway stocks.

Even the soundly based reports as to very large reserves of all classes of grain in the storehouses of the farmers were ignored by the dealers of the stock exchange, notwithstanding the fact that these reserve grain stocks will furnish large tonnages in freight to the transportation companies during the months between now and next July.

The stock exchange dealers are in a very glum mood over the legislative ideas of control and regulation of their organization, and they are all wearing blue glasses now, and their impressions and expressions are of the same shade and hue as the glasses.

The cotton merchants are already interested in the preparations for the planting of the new crop, and are getting exceedingly favorable reports from the Gulf and Southwest states.

Ground in good condition, work well advanced, larger acreage being planted, and season several weeks ahead of normal, seem to be the general tenor of the advices they have received.

The season seems to have started well for the planters of the South.

The earnings of the Atlantic, West Indian & Gulf Steamship company for the month of December were more than $200,000 greater than in December, 1911, and this despite the fact that the civil war in Mexico had interfered materially with shipments to and from that country. Former articles have referred to the growth of ocean commerce, and here we have in the business statement of this company an exhibit of the increase.

Proposed New Railroad.

A telegram from Jacksonville, Fla., tells of a negotiation in progress to complete a through line from Lake Erie to the Atlantic at Jacksonville and the gulf at Tampa, presumably via of the Seaboard Air line.

This route would be of immense service to the people of the states through which its rails would run and would place the products of the extreme South at small cost and in short time in the market of the middle states.

The coal fields and timber ranges of West Virginia, Kentucky, Eastern Tennessee and Western North Carolina would be rendered of greater value, while the state of Florida, which is already growing in population and in all other material factors that go to making a prosperous and influential commonwealth, would have its activities vastly increased.

It is to be hoped this deal will be completed, as it will tend to the establishment of other through routes running from the lakes or the northern boundary line to points upon the South Atlantic and the gulf.

The record of business in the South during the present calendar year bids fair to astonish the world with its great increase and the peculiar geographical position of Florida, running as a peninsula fully 300 miles to the south of the main gulf line, gives that state most powerful advantages in a commercial way in any competition for the trade to South America, the West Indies and Panama canal.

Railroad construction in Florida is not costly; grades are easy in every part of the state, and electric roads will soon unite the ports and cities of that state when the tide of commerce flows in after the opening of the Panama canal.

From the Atlantic to the gulf the trip could be made in four or five hours if electric railways running east and west were built and operated.

MOTHER SEES SON'S PICTURE AND DIES.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 14.—A glance at the picture of her dead son among a group of the "Smilers Club," to which the boy belonged, caused Mrs. Helen Hulme to sustain a stroke of apoplexy from which she died within a few minutes.

The son died last August, but she never recovered from her grief. A friend had given her the picture, thinking she might want it as a souvenir.

MIND WRECKED AND LIFE LOST

By Experience of Two Men in Devil's Canyon in Colorado.

Denver, Colo., March 14.—Three days without food in a rattlesnake and tarantula infested ravine named Devil's Canyon cost the life of Ernest Sutton and wrecked the mind of his companion, whose name is thought to be Willard, both of Denver. The news was telegraphed here by Sheriff Hall at Ray, Ariz., where Willard is attended by physicians.

Willard stumbled into the camp of a Mexican, and though starved and delirious managed to gasp out his story before he became a raving maniac. Sutton and Willard, musicians, left Denver for a trip through the mining camps, believing they could make their way as troubadours. They started for Globe, and Miami, making the journey on foot.

Neither was familiar with the country, and they lost the trail and wandered into Devil's Canyon. Threatened by tarantulas, snakes and gila monsters for three days and nights, they stumbled along, fearing that they would fall victims to poisonous reptiles if they slept.

When night fell on the third day Sutton, weak with hunger, slipped on a loose rock and plunged into a stream. Willard kept on and in the morning he had reached the mouth of the canyon and the camp of a Mexican, who carried him to Ray.

SWALLOWS RING.

Gem Recovered Through Agency of Stomach Pump.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 14.—Joseph Britt's $150 diamond ring was removed from his esophagus at the Allegheny General hospital. Mr. Britt is chief engineer at the Howard street pumping station and resides at No. 2009 Monford street. He is in the habit of dropping his ring into a glass in the kitchen cupboard at his home when he goes to work in the morning. Also he drinks a glass of milk on returning from work.

The other evening he took his usual drink, after which he discovered the glass had contained his ring. At the hospital the ring was removed with the aid of a stomach pump.

WAITS TO READ BIBLE, NABBED BY MARSHAL.

Iola, Kan., March 14.—Stopping in his flight to read a bible sent him by his mother 1eq to the arrest of Edward Barnes, 25 years old, on charges of robbing a railway station in Tracy, Iowa. Marshal Frederickson saw a man lying on his back in a hollow, reading. The marshal arrested the man and found him to be Barnes. Barnes admitted serving a term in the Wyoming penitentiary for robbery. "I had determined to be good and was reading the good book mother sent me for help when the law came along and nabbed me," said Barnes.

Pimples Source of Great Danger

May be Means of Absorbing Disease Germs in Most Unexpected Manner.

The research laboratory of The Swift Specific Co. has collected a vast amount of information regarding the spread of blood diseases. In thousands of instances the most virulent types have been the result of coming in contact with disease germs in public places, and the apparently insignificant pimple has been the cause. It spreads with astonishing rapidity, often infecting the entire system in a few days.

It is fortunate, however, that there is a remedy to cope quickly and thoroughly with such a condition, and thanks to the energy of its producers the famous S. S. S. may not be had at almost any drug store in the civilized world.

This preparation stands alone among specific remedies as a blood purifier. It is somewhat revolutionary in its composition, since it accomplishes all that was ever claimed for mercury, iodides, arsenic and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable product. There are more cases of articular rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, paresis, neuritis and similar diseases resultant from the use of minerals than from disease germs direct. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book compiled by the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with a special letter of advice to all who are struggling with a blood disease.

Get a $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. to-day of your druggist. It will surprise you with its wonderful action in the blood.

Woman's Greatest Trouble

Big Sandy, Tenn.—Mrs. Lucy Cantrell, of this place, says: "Every two weeks, I had to go to bed and stay there several days. I suffered untold misery. Nothing seemed to help me, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Although I had been afflicted with womanly weaknesses for seven years, Cardui helped me more than anything else ever did. It is surely the best tonic for women on earth." Weakness is woman's greatest trouble. Cardui is woman's greatest medicine, because it overcomes that weakness and brings back strength. In the past 50 years, Cardui helped over a million women. Try it for your troubles, today.

COST OF MEAT STILL HIGHER

Fresh Eggs Are Plentiful and Price Continues to Decline.

Oranges Are Higher—Most Fruits and Vegetables Are Cheap.

All kinds of meat, including poultry, continue very high. During the past week the wholesale price of pork loins at Duluth has advanced a cent, the price now being 14@15 cents a pound. Lard is also up a cent, the present wholesale price is 12½ cents a pound. The receipts of livestock at the principal packing centers continue very light, and there seems to be no prospect of cheaper meats. Pork is higher now than it has been at any previous time during the present year.

Fresh dressed and live poultry are about a cent a pound higher than they were a week ago. In fact, they are not to be had, and therefore the quotations are arbitrary, showing for the most part what the dealers would ask if they had them. Duluth poultry dealers say they have not had a coop of live poultry of any kind during the past week. They have tried in vain to get some dressed poultry from Sioux City, Omaha, Mankato and Benson, the places whence they are wont to draw their supplies of such fowls, when they cannot be had from the farmers near Duluth, but these efforts have proven in vain. A week or more ago it was possible to get some fresh poultry from these towns, but now the only answer is that such orders cannot possibly be filled. It is doubtful whether farmers have any poultry to spare just now. They do not like to market their hens during the laying season, which is passing right now, and nearly all their other poultry seems to have been marketed. Poultry, live or fresh, is always scarce at this time of the year, but local dealers say this is the first time they have ever been confronted with such a state of affairs as exists at present, preventing them from getting any live or fresh poultry at any price.

There is a good stock of frozen poultry on hand, and the larger fowls sell pretty well. But there does not seem to be much sale for the smaller birds. The frozen poultry is no higher than it was a week ago.

The recent mild weather has caused a large increase in the production of eggs. They are arriving from the country in large quantities. The price of fresh eggs has dropped 2 cents more within the past week, and they are now selling at wholesale at Duluth for 18 to 20 cents.

Prices of butter and cheese are just what they were a week ago.

Oranges have made quite an advance. The supply in the city is small, but there is a shipment of California oranges coming this way, and it will be here some time next week. Some of the California fruit growers say their oranges were not touched by the frost. The fruit is comparatively scarce, however, on account of the frosts. A new set of prices has been adopted in Duluth for the California oranges, being an advance of about 25 per cent on the former prices. A box of California navels that was priced at $3.25 now rules at $4.25.

Florida oranges are also on the Duluth market, selling at $4.50 a box. If there were a normal crop of California oranges, the Floridas would never have reached this market at all for sale at this time of the year. Florida oranges are somewhat sweeter and juicier than the Californias, but they do not keep so well.

The strength of the orange market has greatly improved the demand for grapefruit, and caused an advance of that product also. A box of Florida Brights and Russets, which a week ago sold for $3.25, is now ruling at $3.50 to $3.75.

The apple market is not strong. All through the winter there has been an abundance of the fruit, and the usual steady advance through the coldest season of the year did not take place. On the contrary, the King's Extra Fancy apples are down a little, the price having dropped from $3.75 to $3.25 a barrel. These apples are not so good for keeping as some of the other varieties, and the price has been reduced to get them out of the way. There has been a good movement in apples all through the winter.

The market is quite easy on most vegetables. Spring is approaching and vegetables are coming in larger quantities from the South. Many dealers are inclined to clear away some of their stocks of stored vegetables.

Cuban tomotoes are no longer on the market, but their place has been taken by the Floridas, which are of fine quality and much cheaper. A six-basket crate of Cubans, which was ruling at $4.75, has been replaced by a crate of Floridas of the same size at $2.50. The first full carload of Florida tomatoes is due to arrive in Duluth tomorrow. These tomatoes are very cheap for this time of the year.

Florida celery is cheaper, as it is coming now in full carload lots. A crate of four to six dozen bunches, which a week ago brought $3.75, now goes for $3.25@$3.35.

Texas head lettuce is also coming by the carload now. It is of fine quality and has completely displaced the Florida product. In place of a hamper of Florida head lettuce at $2.25 to $3.50, the Duluth market now offers a hamper of Texas head lettuce at $1.50 to $1.75. The head lettuce is now about as cheap as the leaf lettuce, which is a hothouse product.

Minnesota red onions since a week ago have dropped from $1.25 to $1.10 for a 100-pound sack, and Minnesota yellow onions from $1.50 to $1.25 for the same quantity.

Potatoes are a little higher, the wholesale price now being 42 cents a bushel, whereas a week ago it was 38 cents. The country roads have been very bad and farmers have not done much hauling of late to the shipping points. This has caused a temporary shortage here, but there is a vast quantity of potatoes in the country tributary to Duluth.

Interment will be at Calvary cemetery. Mr. Bielli was an old resident of Duluth, having lived here for twenty-five years. He made his home with his family at 314 West Fifth street. LUCKY BOY A LOSER.

Lad Finds $9,000 Pearl Which He Sells for $500.

LeLad Hill, Ark., March 14.—To find a record-breaking pearl, sell it for $500 and then learn of its sale in New York for $9,000, is enough to make one lose heart in all things, says John Risley, a farmer boy, who picked up a 68-grain pearl in White river, near Peel, late last summer.

Young Risley sold his prize to a pearl buyer from Cotter, who later disposed of it, it is reported, for $1,000. Its last exchange was in New York, where a wealthy young woman paid $9,000 for it. The Risley pearl is 1⅞ inches in circumference and is perfect in shape and luster. It is a deep cream color.

ROOSEVELT TO PROGRESSIVES

The Former President Addresses Gathering of New Party Members.

Colonel Tells Conference of Aims and Activities to Be Followed.

Philadelphia, March 14.—Urging the need of thorough organization for studying and seeing the ideals on which the platform of the Progressive party was based, Former President Roosevelt last night addressed an audience which crowded the Metropolitan opera house. The meeting marked the close of the first day of a two-days' session of the first annual Progressive conference of Pennsylvania. The policies set forth in the national platform of the Progressive party, were discussed today.

Members of the state electoral college who voted for Roosevelt for president, and the leaders of the Washington party, who conducted the campaign for him, are the leaders in the movement which has an aim, the perpetuation of the party.

It was decided after considerable discussion at the session that the executive committeee or state council of the league shall be composed of the electors and officers selected by them, two members from each senatorial district with an extra member from districts which include more than one county.

Col. Roosevelt, Dean William Draper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania law school and the Rev. George L. Perrin of Massachusetts in their addresses laid stress on the educational side of the work to be accomplished, the acquiring of social and industrial facts on which to base the necessity of proposed reforms.

Roosevelt Introduced.

In introducing Col. Roosevelt, Dean Lewis said:

"We have met here tonight to listen to the man who is the leader in the most wonderful awakening of the individual and group conscience of modern times. There are few who doubt that he has done more than any one man to arouse the conscience of the people. He is a great personal force, making for better things."

"The Progressive party was founded primarily to render social and industrial service," said Col. Roosevelt. "Rotten politics means rotten business and rotten conditions generally. The first requisite in any movement for better men in the country must be honesty.

"The party has divided its activities into several branches. The most characteristic, the most essential, and the most original form of work we are undertaking is the work of the progressive service. We intend to realize the new freedom for which this nation strives, by social research, in which reformation is the keynote; and then, by the immediate translation of the knowledge thus acquired into action by a political organization in which service is the watchword. The progressive service branch of our party activities is devoted to social research, in organized, efficient shape, and is endeavoring to correlate it with the acts of lawmaking bodies and the needs of the public.

Four Fundamentals.

"We are endeavoring to bring to the work of social research the four fundamentals of accuracy, impartiality, order and finally a spirit in which fervent zeal, dispassionateness and kindly good will are united.

"Our party is not in power, it is not in office; but it is our duty to formulate public opinion and prepare it so that it shall insist on action along the lines we indicate.

"Our headquarters, national and state, are to be open all the year round, so that men and women (for men and women stand on an absolute equality in our party), can meet to discuss political issues and social and economic issues, to talk openly of party policies, and to plan for putting a little farther in advance the outposts of progress."

FREE LUNCH AT CHURCH.

Direct Method Used in Kalamazoo to Attract Congregation.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 14.—Free lunch at the churches Sunday afternoons is the method employed by Kalamazoo churches to attract attendance on Sunday.

The latest church to adopt this method is the Park Street Church of Christ, which, in a room designated the "friendly room," will serve lunches to all who remain for the Christian Endeavor service. This room is open all the afternoon for reading, rest and sociability, and just before the Christian Endeavor service luncheon will be served.

At the First Congregational church vesper service is held at 4:30 and Christian Endeavor meeting at 6. Following vespers there is a social hour and light refreshments are served.

WANT UNCLE SAM TO TAKE OVER ISLAND.

Petitions are being circulated in Duluth asking that the Isle of Pines be taken from under the government of Cuba and made a possession of the United States. Similar petitions are being circulated throughout the United States. H. L. Shepherd of this city, and a dealer in lands in the Island, has charge of the petition here. Several Duluthians have purchased lands there and are interested in the movement, as it is believed that the change would greatly enhance land values.

GETTING GRAY? JUST APPLY A LITTLE SAGE TEA TONIGHT

Sage Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre to Hair.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparations put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger. Max Wirth.

Wave of Reform Is Sweeping Over Flickertail State.

Fargo, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a widespread wave of minor reform over the state, as a result of the activities of the new state's attorneys. Many of them have issued long warnings to the people of their counties. These are directed chiefly against violations of the prohibition law and gambling. Along the same line the mayors and the trustees of the smaller towns are also issuing ukases against these practices and there is a more geenral era of reform pervading the state than for many months.

FREE READING ROOM FOR MEN

New Feature Added to Salvation Army Home for Wanderers.

Institution Is Doing Good Work for Homeless Men on Bowery.

Ensign Robert Trembley, head of the Salvation Army Industrial home at 1202 West Michigan street, will this week open a free reading room for the men who frequent the local institution.

The new reading room is part of a plan Ensign Trembley hopes to work out to better the conditions for the man on the Bowery. The hotel in connection with the home is always open to transients, and a number of features to encourage a man to stay at the home have been introduced. It is a humane work that Ensign Trembley has outlined for the West end corps.

The various departments are all as busy as ever, twelve men now being employed in the waste paper department alone. A free employment bureau is also conducted this time of the year, so that housewives anxious for a man to clean the yards and walks can easily secure their help by 'phonng the headquarters. Three wagons are kept constantly busy collecting old clothng, furniture and waste paper wherever they are called.

Ensign Trembley will make out his first report in June, his monthly reports being made out at present in combination with Ensign Graham of the downtown corps. Ensign Trembley took charge of the local institution last October, coming here from Chicago, where he was engaged in similar work.

The skirt buttons at side-front in order to give a smooth and unbroken panel at the back, while the button relief on the jacket is skilfully continued on the otherwise plain skirt.

This suit will give long wear and equally long satisfaction.

The New Warner Rust-Proof Corsets!

Are you a tall, slender woman without curves?

If so, it is the fashionable type of form, but it is essential that you are most carefully corsetted if you do not care to be conspicuous in the fashions of the day, which have a fascination all their own; but never before was there a style that required such careful corset thought.

We realized this when we selected our corsets for this season, and largely purchased of Warner's Rust-Proof lines. It is "the" line among the many which came under our notice, where each model had a specific figure function to perform.

We have always wanted our corset opening with the cloak and suit days, but some seasons we were not quite sure of the corset fashions. However, this season we find that the corset fashion is established by the early introduction of WARNER'S STYLE, which is synonymous with dress fashions.

We guarantee these models not only to shape fashionably but to give a comfortable fitting.

Madison, Wis., March 14.—Senator Burke's bill providing that the Stout Institute be removed from Menominee to Eau Claire to serve the purpose of a state normal school found no support before the joint finance committee and it was recommended for indefinite postponement. It is conceded to be as good as killed already. Senator Ackley of the Eau Claire district spoke against it. Nobody appeared in its favor.

PREFERS PRISON TO RETURNING TO WIFE.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 14.—John Davis was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary in the district court here for wife desertion, after he had told Judge McHenry he preferred "hard labor in prison" to either returning to Mrs. Davis of contributing to her support.

Davis was in court a week before, and was given that much time to determine which he would prefer—imprisonment or reconciliation. He was offered his liberty on a bond of $1,000 to obey the court's order.

"Thank you, judge," he said, "I would prefer hard labor in prison against such a bond." He laughed as he was taken from the courtroom after sentence had been pronounced.

BIG DAMAGES FOR WIDOW

Mrs. Anna Matilda Benson Awarded $10,000 By District Court Jury.

Husband Killed While Employed on Lehigh Dock in Superior.

A verdict for $10,000 was returned by a jury in district court yesterday afternoon against the Lehigh Valley Coal company in favor of Anna Matilda Benson of Superior, widow of Henry Benson, a laborer who was killed on the Lehigh Valley coal docks at Superior a year ago.

The verdict was for the full amount sued for and the maximum allowed under the laws of the state of Wisconsin under which the suit was brought. The maximum under the Minnesota statutes is $7,500. The case was tried before Judge Ensign. S. A. Anderson of St. Paul and Warner E. Whipple of Duluth were attorneys for Mrs. Benson, and Luse, Powell & Luse of Superior defended.

The widow for whose benefit the suit was brought is the mother of eight children. Benson, 40 years old, was killed on March 13, 1912, while engaged in the work of cleaning a coal pocket. A heavy steel chute, rusty and out of use for two years, gave way and fell, striking him on the head and shoulders and causing injuries which resulted in death.

Mrs. Benson brought suit as administratrix of his estate. The jury returned with a verdict at 3:40 o'clock after having been out a half hour.

REJECTED BY COMMITTEE

not go so far as to encompass the conception that there is no more reason why a conty treasurer should be elected because he is a Republican or a Democrat than there is why a judge of probate or school superintendent should be elected for that ridiculous reason

The senate non-partisan county office bill still lives, however, in spite of the fact that the non-partisan feature was eliminated by the house committee.

What keeps it alive are two amendments to the bill adopted by the senate: One changing the date of the primary election from September to the third Tuesday in June; and the other legalizing the Bull Moose party in this state.

And only the consideration that the house ought to have a chance to pass on it prevented the committee's striking from the bill the provision for changing the primary election date.

If that had been done, the phenomenon would have been witnessed of a senate non-partisan election bill making its appearance in the house in the form of a bill legalizing the Roosevelt party; for that is all there would have been left of it.

Col. Wilkinson Appears.

When the bill was taken up by the committee yesterday afternoon following the house session, Col. Wilkinson, formerly an attorney for the Great Northern railroad, but now a violent Roosevelt partisan, appeared in behalf of the provision legalizing the party which carried the state with its presidential ticket last November. He also entered a protest against the Clague amendment to the non-partisan office bill, including senators and representatives in the list of non-partisan officers.

There was no defense of this provision, and it was stricken out of the bill by unanimous consent.

Then Representative Porter moved to amend the bill by striking out of it all the provisions relating to non-partisanship. He wanted to include county superintendents and judges of probate also, so as to restore them to a partisan basis, where they were before last year. He consented to amend his motion, however, so as to leave the county school superintendent the only non-partisan officer. His motion in that form was defeated, 6 to 8.

Then Representative Andrew Davis moved to amend the bill so as to leave the law just where it is now, with the judge of probate and the county superintendent the only local county officers on a non-partisan basis, and his motion prevailed.

The Primary Date.

The committee then considered the change in the primary election date, and the usual disagreement on this point arose. The city members opposed the change because it means an abnormally long campaign. The Southern Minnesota country members did not favor it because they said the farmers in their sections could vote as easily in September as in June, and some of them said September is better than June for their sections. The Northern Minnesota members, however, or rather the Red river valley members, said that in September the farmers are too busy harvesting to vote, and they wanted the change very much. The sentiment seemed rather against the change, but the argument that the house ought to have a chance to pass on the question saved the provision.

The vote to approve the legalizing of the Roosevelt party was unanimous.

The bill was referred to a sub-committee to be amended in accordance with the decision of the committee, and it will be reported to the house at an early date.

The change in the primary date always has been defeated, and it probably will be this time; and if it is, and the house passes the bill, all that will be left of the senate bill when it goes back to that body will be the provision legalizing the Bull Moose party in this state.

"Road House" Bill.

The senate committee on temperance yesterday afternoon voted to recommend for passage the bill by Representative D. P. O'Neill prohibiting boards of county commissioners from issuing liquor licenses. The bill has passed the house.

Represetnative O'Neill appeared before the committee, and made a very brief and pointed speech in behalf of his bill. He said:

"I am sorry to have to impose such a bill on Southern Minnesota, where it might be all right to have places where the weary traveler can refresh himself. But we need this bill to blot out the places in the woods of Northern Minnesota which the lumberjack sky pilot truly calls 'the very vestibules of hell.'"

The house committee on crimes and punishments yesterday afternoon gave decided approval to the Kneeland-Orr-Pfaender joint resolution providing for a joint committee from both houses to investigate, after the session, the relationship between low wages for women and vice.

Action on the bill was withheld, however, in order that an amendment may be drawn up that will put beyond any doubt the power of the committee to compel testimony when the legislature is not in session. This was deemed to be necessary because the senate brewery investigation committee, appointed by Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon, was prevented by the courts from getting the testimony it desired.

Canal to St. Paul.

The Harrison-Vollmer joint resolution, passed by the house, was favorably recommended yesterday afternoon by the senate committee on commerce and trade, in spite of a protest against it entered by Senator H. W. Cheadle of Duluth.

The resolution calls upon congress to provide for a survey of a canal route from Lake Superior to the Mississippi at St. Paul, by way of the Brule and St. Croix rivers, and provides that the state shall investigate the commercial necessity for such a canal.

Senator Cheadle pointed out that the passage of the resolution might be committing the state to a large expense, as the government engineers had reported that a survey for a 10-foot channel, which the resolution calls for, would cost $50,000.

Senator George H. Sullivan, author of a similar resolution in the senate, stated that he would not ask for more than $2,500 to meet the expense of the state's investigation.

Senator Cheadle declared that the project is impracticable and visionary, that there is no call for it and no good for it to accomplish. He pointed out that the government engineers have reported that there is no possible traffic in sight to warrant the enormous expense that the construction of such a canal would entail.

Senator George H. Sullivan and Representative H. H. Harrison, both of Stillwater, and Senator Albert Schaller of Hastings, supported the resolution, declaring that the construction of such a canal would enable Southern Minnesota folks living on the Mississippi or the Minnesota rivers to ship their farm products east and get their coal and supplies back much cheaper than they can now; also that the existence of such a canal would keep rail freight rates down.

Representative Harrison charged that Duluth's opposition to the canal is induced by railroad influences.

The committee recommended the resolution for passage with the suggestion to the finance committee that the state's expense in the matter ought to be limited to $2,500, the figure suggested by Senator Sullivan.

Methods of Equity Concern.

The more interesting matters in the legislative grain investigations yesterday were admissions by F. H. King, bookkeeper for the Equity concern, as to the methods used in handling the consignments of the Voltaire, N. D., Farmers' elevator, and the disclosure by H. H. Bundy, treasurer of the Voltaire elevator, that they had not yet been able to collect the balance due from the Equity on transactions running back to last December, and that the Equity people as a consideration for making a final settlement had tried to induce them to sign a statement exonerating the Equity concern from all charges of dishonest or irregular practices.

This statement, Mr. Bundy said, the Voltaire people had refused to sign.

Bookkeeper King was on the stand in the senate committee most of yesterday afternoon. Though he was not permitted to testify whether or not in his opinion the transaction constituted "bucketshopping," he did admit the following facts: That when the Voltaire elevator shipped grain for storage, the Equity concern did not store the grain, but sold it; that instead of buying a future as a "hedge" for this trade, the Equity concern carried the hedge itself; that when an order came to sell the stored grain, the Equity gave the Voltaire company credit for the grain on the basis of the prices of that day on the chamber of commerce; that as a result of this transaction the Equity concern lost $94.10; and that if the regular practices had been followed the concern could not have lost any money.

Mr. King was asked about the attempt to get the Voltaire people to sign an exoneration for the Equity concern as a consideration for a settlement of the account, and he said he had heard part of the conversation. He understood that the proposition was that the Voltaire people could have the full amount due them if they signed the statement; otherwise they would have to pay the loss the Equity incurred by carrying its own hedge. The Voltaire people refused this offer, he said.

There was a tilt in the house committee at the close of yesterday afternoon's session when Attorney Manahan announced that "we" would then adjourn.

Mr. McHugh, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said that Chairman Bendixen had agreed to hear the testimony of Fred Schmidt, manager of the Voltaire Farmers' elevator, who had been subpoenaed.

Mr. Hanahan accused Mr. McHugh of "butting in," and when E. V. Mercer, attorney for the chamber of commerce, supported Mr. McHugh, Mr. Manahan said:

"I know what game you are up to. You are pettifogging!"

"And I know what game you are up to," retorted Mr. Mercer; "you are protecting your partner."

It was agreed that Mr. Schmidt would be heard today. Previously the committee had heard from Mr. Bundy the story of the Equity's dealings with the Voltaire elevator, and members of the chamber of commerce had been examined by Mr. Manahan as to "scalping" and future trading.

Manahan may yet retire as attorney for the house committee, in spite of Wednesday's indorsement of him by the committee, and be succeeded by Russell of Brainerd, who conducted the Duluth examination, or by another attorney.

Mr. Russell interposed in the senate committee yesterday afternoon as an attorney for the Equity concern as it existed before Loftus took charge of it.

The senate committee has not yet decided whether to quit or to ask the senate for more money to continue the investigation. It is understood that Senators Henson and Lende wish to suspend the inquiry.

Counties will be able legally to appropriate money for the support of incorporated development associations, such as the Northern Minnesota Development association, under a bill by Representative Charles W. Bouck of Royalton, which passed the senate yesterday and is now before Governor Eberhart for his signature.

The bill has been backed by the Northern Minnesota Development association, and it allows county boards to appropriate up to 5 cents per capita for the support of development associations that will work to attract settlers.

NEW PLAN MADE FOR DISSOLUTION

Modified Plan Announced By Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

New York, March 14.—The Southern Pacific company, with the concurrence of the Union Pacific Railroad company, has announced a modified plan of dissolution under the United States supreme court decree in place of the original plan which recently met with serious opposition on the part of California railroad commission.

The new plan as outlined by Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the Southern Pacific company, substantially provides for a traffic agreement without trackage privileges to the Union Pacific and Central Pacific.

In brief, Southern Pacific is willing to carry Union Pacific and Central Pacific traffic over the Benecia cut-off and its California terminals, instead of allowing those roads direct use of this cut-off and Southern Pacific terminals.

Incidentally, although this was not referred to by Chairman Kruttschnitt, acceptance by the Federal authorities and the California commission of these provisions would effectually bar out the Western Pacific road, which has asserted its right to the use of the Benecia cut-off and Southern Pacific terminals.

"The modified agreement," said Mr. Kruttschnitt, "will be submitted to the circuit court in the St. Louis district on Saturday and complete details have been telegraphed to the California commission."

The agreement, it was further stated, has the approval of Attorney General McReynolds, and Southern Pacific officials are hopeful of its acceptance by the circuit court and the California authorities.

DEMOCRATS WILL BE GIVEN SHOW

To Have Chance at Postmasterships One Way or Other.

Washington, March 14.—President Wilson's advisers have hit upon solutions of two of the political problems confronting the administration which promise to be most troublesome—what kind of Democrats shall get plums from the political tree and how thousands of Democrats can be given a fighting chance at least to get near the tree.

Within the next few days, Postmaster General Burleson is expected to present for the president's consideration a plan which will open to Democrats 35,000 third and fourth class postmasterships converted into the civil service recently by Mr. Taft. Mr. Burleson said that he had not decided whether to ask the president for a revocation of this order or not. If he decides against asking for revocation, he will then suggest that from postmasters who benefited by the Taft order be required a merit test which would be open also to others. If the president took the first course, thousands of postmasterships would be available at once, and if he chooses the other, Democrats who entered the merit competition would have as good a chance as Republican incumbents.

Since Mr. Taft issued his famous order, which with a similar one by Mr. Roosevelt, put every third and fourth class postmaster in the country in the classified service, it has been subjected to criticisms by Democrats who charged that its purpose was to keep in office through Mr. Wilson's term, thousands of Republicans who were not in sympathy with the administration, and who were given such protection merely to keep the Republican political machine in working order. Mr. Burleson has given the order serious consideration and any recommendation he makes to the president, is likely to have much weight.

Mr. Burleson and Chairman McCombs of the Democratic national committee have settled upon a plain for patronage distribution which also will be submitted to the president. If it is followed, the question of whether a candidate for office is believed by "organization" men or "anti-organization" men will not figure when he is weighed for a place. The president will be advised to go upon the principle that any man who subscribes to the Democratic platform and shows his belief in Democratic principles is politically fit for office.

SALE OF GEN. SICKLES' HOME IS POSTPONED.

New York, March 14.—The old ivy oovered home of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles in lower Fifth avenue will shelter its aged occupant for five weeks longer. The property was to have been sold at auction to satisfy a mortgage held by the Bowery Savings bank for $125,000. At the last moment the bank officials relented and the sale was postponed until April 16 at noon.

Sympathy is said to have been the only reason for leniency. Gen. Sickles expresses himself as confident that enough will ultimately be raised from the sale of his home to pay off the Bowery bank mortgage, a second mortgage held by his wife and also his obligation to the state as a result of expenditures while chairman of the state monument commission.

CLEAN YOUR LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS WITH "SYRUP OF FIGS"

More Effective Than Calomel, Castor Oil or Salts; Gently Cleanses the Stomach, Liver and Bowels Without Nausea or Gripping. Children Dearly Love It.

You know when your liver is bad, when your bowels are sluggish. You feel a certain dullness and depression, perhaps the approach of a headache, your stomach gets sour and full of gas, tongue coated, breath foul, or you have indigestion. You say, "I am bilious or constipated and I must take something to-night."

Most people shrink from a physic—they think of castor oil, calomel, salts or cathartic pills.

It's different with Syrup of Figs. Its effect is as that of fruit; of eating coarse food; of exercise. Take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs to-night and you won't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste matter, sour bile and constipation poisons move on and out of your system, without gripe, nausea or weakness. Nothing else cleanses and regulates your sour, disordered stomach, torpid liver and thirty feet of waste-clogged bowels like gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it can not cause injury.

If your child is cross, sick and feverish, or its little stomach sour, tongue coated, give Syrup of Figs at once. It's really all that is needed to make children well and happy again. They dearly love its pleasant taste.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look on the label for the name—California Fig Syrup Company. That, and that only, is the genuine. Refuse any other fig syrup substitute with contempt.

OLD 'CELLO TURNS OUT VALUABLE INSTRUMENT

Philadelphia, March 14.—Bertram A. Austin of Germantown has discovered that an ancient 'cello, which has been neglected in his studio for four years, is a Barbe, and worth $1,000.

About four years ago one of Mr. Austin's pupils brought a disreputable looking cello into the studio, which he said he had picked up in a pawnshop. Mr. Austin bought the instrument. He tested it and discovered that the bass was decidedly squeaky. He threw it to one side as hopeless, and for months it lay in the junk heap. Several times he tried to dispose of it in trade, but nobody wanted the old instrument when they heard the sad lament of the treble.

T. A. Daly, widely known poet and humorist, took an interest in the instrument because of its ancient appearance, and advised Mr. Austin to take it to William Moaning, a skillful doctor of sick musical instruments. Mr. Austin acted on this advice. He was astounded when Moaning showed him this inscription inside the case, "J. Barbe, perc; Paris, 1790." Mr. Moaning found that the treble soundpost was three inches out of place, being close against the bass bar. He repaired this difficulty and all of the rare sweetness of tone has been restored to the instrument.

Barbe was one of the most famous makers of violins and 'cellos of the eighteenth century.

DUTCH TREAT BILL IN MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE

Lansing, Mich., March 14.—Opponents of the Middleton anti-treating bill have failed in an effort to defeat the measure by joking amendments.

The bill not only prohibits treating in saloons and barrooms, but makes it the duty of bartenders and proprietors to refuse drinks to those seeking to treat friends. It provides a penalty of a fine of from $10 to $50 for the first offense; $50 fine or ninety days in jail for the second offense; and for the third offense the license of the saloon in which the "have one on me" ceremony takes place can be cancelled.

Among the amendments offered was one to include the treating with cigars, chewing gum and soda water, and another offered provided for the bill covering treating in homes or elsewhere. Both received scant attention.

CUT HOURS OF SALOONS

Ontario Government Planning Further Crimp in Hard Liquor Trade.

New Boundary Between Ontario and Manitoba to Be Surveyed.

Toronto, Ont., March 14.—What is to be the temperance policy of the Ontario government? That something is about to happen along the lines of advanced temperance legislation is apparent. All signs point to it. Moreover, the public sentiment of the province seems to require some further crimp in the hard liquor trade. The Liberal policy is a sweeping one, the abolition of everything but the shop license. The ministerial policy has not been defined except in a negative way in the refusal of Premier Whitney to remove the three-fifths majority restriction from the local option law or to accept the Liberal proposal of the closing up of all bars.

There have been, however, and there continue to be, more or less inspired suggestions as to what the government is likely to do. Feelers are being put out which show that the government is about ready to make some substantial concession to the strong temperance element, and that action will probably be taken during the present session. Premier Whitney last year announced his opposition to the treating system. He thought that to stop treating would go a long way toward curing the saloon evil. He is now said to be favorably considering another remedy of which the abolition of treating is only a part. The proposal is that the period during which liquor may be sold be materially reduced.

Saloons in Ontario are now open from 6 in the morning until 11 at night. The temperance people complain that the 6 o'clock opening allows the bar patrons to load up on their way to work in the morning, and that the long evening tends to long drinking. They also complain that the 7 o'clock closing on Saturday no longer effects the purpose for which it was designed. The law in this respect was enacted some years ago to prevent men from spending all their weekly earnings on the way home from work on Saturday. The Saturday half holiday has interfered with this laudable endeavor, as it provides ample time for investment before closing-up time. The demand now is that the bars do not open till 8 in the morning, that they be compelled to close at 8 in the evening and that on Saturday they close at noon. This, it is said, the government may agree to.

Another contemplated change is the prohibition of bottle selling in hotels. Here is the difficulty. The adoption of local option laws has been found to be comparatively useless in localities bordering upon the wet districts, the reason being that thirsty souls from the dry area just step across to the nearest oasis and there equip themselves for life in the desert by buying fluids by the bottle. Hotels on the borders of dry districts have been doing a large and lucrative business in selling bottles of rye, Scotch or beer. It is more than likely that this trade will be stopped. There is also a suggestion of some method of provincial control which would remove a good deal of responsibility from the individual member of the legislature.

To Lay Out New Boundary.

The Ontario government will send out a survey party this summer to locate the five-mile strip of right-of-way by which Ontario is to have access to the terminal of the Hudson Bay railway at Port Nelson on Hudson bay. This party will have as its immediate task the delimitation of the new interprovincial boundary. Under the act passed last year the province of Manitoba was extended northeasterly to Hudson bay. This left a large section of the old district of Keewatin to be annexed to Ontario, forming what is now called the district of Patricia. The new boundary between Ontario and Manitoba has yet to be surveyed. It is nearly 500 miles long, through a country practically unknown to the white man.

The government of Manitoba will send out surveyors to work in connection with the Ontario party. They will have to carry with them into the wilderness large stores of provisions, as the work is likely to take from two to three years and both parties will be during the whole of that time far beyond the reach of any supply depots. When the work has been completed it is expected that the government will be in a position to prepare an accurate statement as to the character and resources of the new territory. A brief study of part of the district was made by a party last year and the accounts of the richness of the district were very encouraging. The district of Patricia is expected to prove exceedingly rich in game, in timber and in mineral resources. Arrangements for equipping and starting the survey party to locate the boundary are now being made.

Germany Looking for Trade.

Dr. Karl Lang, consul general for Germany in Canada, has been in Toronto discussing trade questions with Ontario manufacturers. The talk was informal, but is none the less likely to produce results. The German representative called attention to the fact that Germany was now buying more from Canada than Canada was buying from Germany, there being a difference of some millions in favor of Canada. He proposes that steps be taken to inform the commercial men of this part of the dominion as to the character of the German market and the lines upon which a heavier trade might be developed. To bring this about it is likely that Germany will be induced to establish an exhibit at the Canadian National exhibition in Toronto this year, with the probability that this policy will be continued from year to year. Such an exhibit would include pictures, pottery, articles of vertu, etc.

Must Stand Their Loss.

Deep gloom pervades many Ontario counties where live the shareholders and depositors who were bitten in the collapse of the Farmers' bank. This bank set out to make money for the farmers. They were to have a share in the big profits which the old established banks were making. What happened to their hopes and to their dollars is a sad page in the history of the farmers of Ontario. They lost all they put into the institution. The man who held the office of general manager is in the penitentiary. The former government at Ottawa was blamed for having been tricked by this general manager into granting the certificate necessary before the bank could start out on its disastrous career. They hoped that with a change of administration they would get their money back, their claim being that the bank ought not to have been licensed and that therefore the government was responsible for the loss which ensued.

The case was put up to the present government and Sir William Ralph Meredith, chief justice of Ontario, was appointed a commissioner to investigate the whole business. The report of the investigation has been issued and the whole blame for the loss which the shareholders and depositors suffered has been laid at the door of the bank management. This blasts the hopes of the losers and the blow is all the more severe from the fact that the shareholders have been called upon to pay double the value of their shares, under the double-liability clause of the Canadian bank act. The sufferers are much dissatisfied with the outcome of the investigation and are now taking steps to make a last appeal to the government for some sort of help. There seems to be little or no chance of such help being given, as the precedent so set would involve the government in all sorts of difficulties.

JOKERS WRECK BRIDE'S HOUSE

Antics of "Cut-ups" May Result in a Damage Suit.

Meriden, Conn., March 14. — Some merry cut-ups here, whose ideas of an ultra fine joke probably would be to drop a brick from a roof on an unsuspecting child's head, devised a "scream" at the expense of Frederick H. Dobson and his bride, who was Miss Frances Agnes Hasting, a stenographer in the office of the city clerk of New Britain.

For weeks before the marriage they gave daily attention to the furnishing of a pretty home in Meriden and left everything in perfect arrangement, so that when they returned from their honeymoon they could step immediately into their own home.

But when they returned it was to find their pretty home dismantled and awry. Lace curtains had been ripped down and dirty burlap hung over the windows in their stead, and signs in some of the windows read: "Gee, whiz, it's great to be married"; in others, "Don't you wish you had a nice little home?"

Here are a few of the other delightful waggeries to which the Dobson home was subjected: All the carpets were ripped up, beds taken apart and the slats thrown on the roof; bed springs arranged as a table in the dining room and the table set for two with charcoal and sawdust in the cups and plates. The grate from the kitchen range was stolen, and all the contents of the pantries thrown into a heap, the pictures taken down and the piano turned to the wall.

It appears that the "wags" overlooked a few things, like hanging dead cats on the chandeliers, flooding the cellar, cutting away the cellar stairs, so that Dobson or his bride would break their necks the first time they tried to descend; filling the rooms with sneeze powder or asafetida, concealing dynamite in the stove or laying a mine under the threshold to be exploded when the young couple arrived at the new home from the honeymoon.

Some of the delicate and subtle humorists may be shocked by the news that many of the residents do not regard the matter as a joke at all, and declare they will advise Dobson not to look at it that way, either, but to call police attention to the depredations committed against his newly established home.

GRAY HAIR DARKENED

A Simple Home-Made Preparation That Excels the Best Dyes and Stains.

It often occurs that the simplest and least expensive preparations are the most meritorious, and this simple little recipe for darkening gray hair and correcting the ills of the scalp will be found to possess all the merits of the most famous dyes, stains and other hair nostrums. It is made by adding to 7 ozs. of water one small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Get the ingredients at any drug store at very little cost and prepare the mixture at home. Apply to the hair or beard once a week until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then once every two weeks will do. This is a remarkably good mixture for gradually changing the gray hair to a nice glossy brown, and is equally as good for removing dandruff and other scalp humors and for promoting the growth of the hair. It does not make the hair sticky, does not color the scalp or soil clothing or pillow slips, like many made-up dyes and stains. If your druggist cannot supply Barbo Compound, ask him to order it for you.

NOTED BUCKING HORSE IS DEAD

Head Was Crushed Against Concrete Block at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—Grey Eagle, the outlaw, is dead. The notorious mouse-colored bucking horse that made his name historic for ten years in the cow country killed himself in a mad attempt to dislodge Art Scheutz, the champion 17-year-old rider of Cheyenne, Wyo. Scheutz lies in the Receiving hospital with an injured skull and a dozen minor wounds.

The final rage of this old outlaw was spent in a death struggle occurring in the northern part of Los Angeles. Scheutz had for several months heard of Grey Eagle. The unmanageable horse was owned by Bartlett Bros., on a foothill ranch. Scheutz decided he could ride the outlaw.

For months Grey Eagle made a round of the various motion picture shows were Wild West scenes were staged. None of the cowboys assembled for the film could handle the treacherous bucking animal. Grey Eagle had become notorious for a peculiar character of his buck, a rotary motion of his back when in midair that dislodged the most skilful equestrians. One after another of the champions of the film squad of rough riders had been tumbled over his arched back and Bartlett Bros. accepted him as a freak in their collection of horses.

Scheutz sent word to the Bartlett ranch in the foothills that he would ride Grey Eagle. The horse was brought to the Scheutz home for the boy to mount. Without preliminary he launched on the back of the beast, and the contest started across vacant lots, along clotheslines, against the side of houses, under ambushes that a maddened but cunning horse could select for a conquest.

Scheutz clung to his seat. Once Grey Eagle dashed down a seven-foot ditch, scrambled along it for a few yards, then climbed the precipitous bank and continued his wild pitching, with the boy still in the saddle.

His energy was nearly gone when Scheutz guided him toward the paved streets. At the first touch of the asphalt at Fairmount and Blade streets Grey Eagle's feet slipped. He made a last desperate stand in defense of his title, bucked wildly and viciously and then started to run again. He continued slipping across the street and launched into the curbing, lying flat, where his head was crushed against the solid block of concrete. Astride him was Scheutz, also knocked unconscious, but still clinging to the bridle reins.

Spectators took the boy to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed, while Grey Eagle was taken back to the Bartlett ranch for honorable interment, even though his title of Grey Eagle, the Unridden, was gone.

SCARE IS CAUSED BY OLD CADAVER.

York, Pa., March 14.—A cadaver procured forty years ago from a medical school by Dr. H. F. Gross, formerly a North York physician and an ex-coroner of York county, was the cause of a stir when portions of a human body were found among rubbish gathered together at a public sale on the farm of Benjamin Gross, Dover township.

The farmer himself cleared the mystery after an investigation had been instituted by Detective White, at the instance of District Attorney Sherwood.

Dr. Gross, it was explained, had amputated and preserved portions of the body. When he left the farm he did not take the cadaver with him, and its various parts had been permitted to lie in out-of-the-way corners of the buildings until their presence was almost forgotten.

Start Your Baby With Sound Health

Regular Bowel Movement from Childhood on Forestalls Future Serious Diseases.

We cannot all start life with the advantages of money, but every child born is entitled to the heritage of good health. Through unfortunate ignorance or carelessness in the feeding of a baby its tiny stomach may become deranged. The disorder spreads to the bowels and before the mother realizes it the two chief organs on which the infant's comfort and health depend are causing it great suffering. If the condition is allowed to continue grave ailments often result.

There is, however, no occasion for alarm, and the sensible thing to do—but it should be done instantly—is to give the baby a small dose of a mild laxative-tonic. In the opinion of a great many people, among them such well-known persons as the parents of Dixie Dudley, Magnolia, Ark., the proper remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. Earl Dudley writes: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine I ever used. It cured my baby of flatulency colic when the doctors failed; it cured my husband of constipation. My home shall never be without Syrup Pepsin." It is a pleasant-tasting laxative, which every person likes. It is mild, non-griping, and contains that most excellent of all disgestants, pepsin.

This remedy is especially intended for infants, children, women, old people and all others to whom harsh cathartics, salt waters, pills, etc., are distressing. In fact, in the common disorders of life, such as constipation, liver trouble, indigestion, billousnes, headaches, and the various other disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels nothing is more suitable than this mild laxative-tonic, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

DIXIE ASKEW DUDLEY

Two generations of people are using it today, and thousands of families keep it constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the size bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

TWO GOOD APPOINTMENTS.

Congratulations are due to the state as well as to the man, over the appointment of Judge Homer C. Dibell of this city as one of the newly authorized supreme court commissioners.

Judge Dibell has been one of the most markedly successful and highly esteemed judges this district has ever had. His personal and official records entitle him to the highest regard, and his ability on the bench has been unquestioned.

It will be the duty of the new commissioners to relieve the justices of the supreme court of a part of the increasing burden of appeals that are made from the lower courts. The commissioners will hold office pending the enactment of a constitutional amendment providing for an increase in the number of justices of the supreme court, and their work in hearing appeals will expedite the judicial work. They will act as justices, with the exception that their decisions must be reviewed and signed by the members of the court itself before becoming effective. No better appointment to this position could have been made than that of Judge Dibell, and he will take up his new duties with the heartiest good wishes of all who know him or have had opportunity to see his work in the district court.

The work Judge Dibell will lay down in this district will be taken up by Bert Fesler, who is appointed by Governor Eberhart to the vacancy created by the choice of the new commissioner. The appointment of Mr. Fesler to the district bench will meet with hearty approval among the members of the bar as well as with the laity of this city. Mr. Fesler has been recognized as one of the leaders in public affairs in Duluth, and a thorough and able student of the law. In his personal character he has won friends in every part of the city where his labors have taken him, and he will assume the duties of a district judgeship with the hearty good will and confidence of the community.

Anyway, it's a safe bet that the czar is glad he isn't president of Mexico.

THE WHITE HOUSE LID.

Nothing more strikingly illustrative of the development of the temperance idea among the American people has occurred in many months than the manner in which the nation at large is greeting the news that wines and other intoxicants are to be taboo at the White House during the Wilson administration.

It is recorded that when a similar stand was taken by President Hayes and his family, there was a cry of protest and criticism from all parts of the country. It was argued that the White House is a national institution instead of a private home, and that the president, by putting the ban on liquors in that place, had insulted a large majority of the American people.

No such outcry has been raised against the action of President Wilson and his family. Rather there is a disposition to congratulate the president and his family for having the courage to make the first home in the nation conform to the beliefs and practices of its occupants instead of yielding to the customs of other people, some of whom must have more or less close relations with White House affairs.

The difference in the way President Wilson's action is taken and the attitude so widely adopted toward that of President Hayes is an unmistakable index of the state of mind of the whole nation on the use of intoxicants. In the early years of our country, even overindulgence in liquor was regarded as an evidence of good fellowship, and to be praised rather than not. After year of experience, came the period when it was looked on as nothing more than a misfortune, and sometimes even a thing to be laughed over. But today the feeling is vastly different. Business houses are beginning to decline the services of men who indulge in intoxicants even moderately, and the day is past when the refusal of wine or other liquor marked one as a fit subject for jest and persecution.

"When wine is in, wit is out," says the old proverb, and we of today recognize its truth and prefer to have our wits about us. Therefore we approve the action of our president and his family. We realize that if any man chooses to avoid the perils of drink, it is his privilege to do so, and we are inclined to applaud such action rather than criticize it.

Now that the nomination acceptances are all in, it is time to begin to pare off the candidates in your own mind.

GOOD LUCK TO THE TEACHERS!

This afternoon the teachers of the city will have an opportunity to tell the board of education why they believe there should be an increase in salaries in this city. The teachers have worked hard to secure an increase, and they have made a good case. They believe that a majority of the board are favorable to them, and they go to the hearing with the greatest confidence.

Every friend of the public schools will wish the teachers success. They have a hard task and a tremendous responsibility. They should be paid enough to remove them from the necessity of worrying about how to make their financial affairs come out at least even at the end of each year. The teachers' pay at present is too low. Their appeal to the board of education should be favorably acted upon.

It's really a shame to expose the amount of the incomes of those working girls. Their creditors are sure to take advantage of the knowledge.

THE WOODLAND PETITION.

At the last meeting of the council a petition was presented by the people of Woodland for the establishment of a fire hall in that part of the city. The petition ought to be granted at the earliest possible date. As conditions are at present there is no immediate means of fire protection for any of that area embraced in Glen Avon, Hunter's Park and Woodland. It has only been within recent years that that section of the city has been built up extensively, and the need of such protection there has not been marked in the past.

Now, however, there are thousands who have their homes in the three suburbs, and many of the residences have been erected and furnished at an expense mounting well up into the thousands of dollars. The builders and owners of these homes are entitled to adequate fire protection. They have nothing of the sort now, and the petition presented to the city council expresses an imperative need.

A feature that emphasizes the need is the prevalence of frame dwellings in those localities. In other sections of the city there are many brick or stone or concrete structures, which would operate to some extent as firebreaks in case of a serious outbreak of fire. In the Woodland and Hunter's Park districts there are comparatively few such buildings. The houses, as a rule, are more widely separated than they are in other parts of the city, but their frame structure would be no check in case of a fire driven by a high wind. Therefore the protection asked for is the more necessary. The petition should be granted with the least possible delay, and a fire hall established in that section.

Apparently Mexico's greatest need just at present is an effective monopoly of government.

THE TRAIN SERVICE OUTLOOK.

Although the monster petition signed by Duluthians asking for through passenger service from this city to the Pacific coast has not yet been placed in the hands of the Northern Pacific officials, it is reported that those officials are already taking cognizance of the movement and are looking into the possibilities, from their point of view, of acceding to the demands of Duluth.

This, of course, is not to be taken as an indication that the petition is to be granted. But it shows that the Duluth attitude is recognized, and that it is regarded as a matter to be reckoned with.

Apparently President Elliott has made an impressive report to his fellow-officials of the kind of a time he had at the banquet tendered him recently in this city. At that time Mr. Elliott was given a pretty clear idea of what Duluth wants and how Duluth feels about having to ask for it so often. The business men who spoke there talked straight from their hearts, and what they said and the way they said it evidently made an impression.

It is to be hoped that this impression will be strengthened by the petition soon to reach the Northern Pacific offices. These things that Duluth asks are not unreasonable, and their adoption would be of benefit not only to the city, but to the territory west of here and to the railroad company. At least there is basis for hope in the fact that the railroad officials are taking up the work in advance of the receipt of the petition.

Once more we have a boyless White House.

MORE LIGHT ON MEXICO.

If anybody has been entertaining seriously the idea that this country ought to intervene in Mexico, he better think over the statement made in Naples yesterday by Former President Porfirio Diaz.

"I would go back to Mexico," he said, "only in case of intervention in that country by the United States. At such a time all Mexican citizens would be united against the foreign invader."

If any person under the canopy of heaven knows the Mexican people, that person is Diaz. And when he says that "all Mexican citizens would be united against the foreign invader" in case of American intervention in that country, it means that the United States would find itself under the necessity of conquering a united nation, or else would have to abandon the task of restoring peace without having accomplished a solitary thing in that direction.

Mexico is fitted by nature to withstand indefinitely any kind of an attack by a foe from outside. We might shell her coasts from our warships and sweep the border plains with our cavalry. But the mountains furnish places of refuge that would be virtually inaccessible to invaders, and the natural products of the country would be ample to supply the people with the necessaries of life for as long a period as they cared to keep up the fight.

Considering these facts, and the nature of the people, intervention in Mexico would mean an age-long warfare against a nation that hated the very name of our country, and it would be marked by a series of unutterable atrocities such as modern warfare knows nothing about. Diaz has, in effect, given the United States fair warning of what to expect in case of interference by force of arms across the Rio Grande. We will do wisely if we heed the warning.

President Wilson may not actually see the office-seekers, but you've got to admit that he's called them, and with a pat hand, at that.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

DULUTH CLERKS ARE FAIRLY TREATED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Monday night's Herald there appeared a letter in this column signed "Subscriber," referring to the vice investigation in Chicago and wondering whether the same conditions obtained in Duluth as respects the wages paid to saleswomen in the large stores. The letter referred to evidence that there were 50,000 women in the Chicago stores working on a salary of $5 or less per week.

If "Subscriber" had taken the trouble to investigate he or she would have found that none of the Duluth stores can be compared with Chicago stores on the score of average wages paid, the average in Duluth being far higher than in cities like Chicago or even Minneapolis. The writer took the time to compute the average wage paid in our establishment, and from actual figures furnished by the office, the average was found to be $12.50 per week.

If, as is claimed, by those who have investigated the situation, the minimum wage upon which a woman may support herself is $7 or $8 it will readily be seen that the average paid by this store leaves a liberal margin for the salesperson.

As far as reasonable hours, healthful and pleasant environment and fair treatment of saleswomen are concerned we doubt whether even "Subscriber" could take exception to our methods in this respect. Respectfully,

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO.

WILSON'S NATIONALITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you please let me know through the Open Court column the nationality of President Wilson. READER.

Duluth, March 13.

As a man must be a native-born American citizen to be elected to the presidency, it is obvious that President Wilson is an American. He was born at Stanton, Va. His father was born at Steubenville, Ohio, and was the son of a Scotch-Irish immigrant.—Editor.

Frogs and Love Songs.

Atlantic Monthly: The love songs of the frogs seemed hardly less wonderful than those of the birds, their musical notes varying from the sweet, tranquil, soothing, peeping and purring of the hylas to the awfully deep, low bass, blunt bellowing of the bull frogs.

Some of the smaller species have wonderfully clear, sharp voices, and told us their good Bible names as the "Whip-poor-will, Isaac-Isaac, Yacob-Yacob, Israel-Israel," shouted in sharp, ringing, far-reaching tones, as if they had all been to school and severely drilled in elocution.

In the still warm evening, big bunchy bullfrogs bellowed. "Drunk! Drunk! Jug-o'-rum! Jug-o'-rum!" and early in the spring countless thousands of the commonest species, up to the throat in cold water, sang in concert, making a mass of music, such as it was, loud enough to be heard at a distance of more than half a mile.

Far, far apart from this loud marsh music is that of the many species of hylas, a sort of soothing, immortal melody filling the airlike light.

Heartsome Words.

David Starr Jordan in the Child Magazine: There is nothing in all the world so important as children, nothing so interesting. If ever you wish to go in for some form of philanthropy, if ever you wish to be of any real use in the world, do something for children. If ever you yearn to be wise, study children. If the great army of philanthropists ever exterminate sin and pestilence, ever work out our race salvation, it will be because a little child has led.

Self-Confidence.

Christian Record-Herald: No man can get far without believing in himself; but he should also believe in a few other things."

The Americans Love Children

Elizabeth McCracken in the Outlook.

One day several years ago, when Lowes Dickinson's statement that he had found no conversation and—worse still—no conversationalists in America was fresh in our outraged minds, I happened to meet an Englishwoman who had spent approximately the same amount of time in our country as had Lowes Dickinson.

"What has been your experience?" I anxiously asked her. "Is it true that we only 'talk?' Can it really be that we never 'converse?'"

"Dear me, no!" she exclaimed with gratifying fervor. "You are the most delightful conversationalists in the world, on your own subject——"

"Our own subject?" I echoed.

"Certainly," she returned; "your own subject, the national subject—the child, the American child. It is possible to 'converse' with any American on that subject; every one of you has something to say on it, and every one of you will listen eagerly to what any other person says on it. You modify the opinions of your hearers by what you say, and you actually allow your own opinions to be modified by what you hear said. If that is conversation, without a doubt you have it in America. But you have it only on that subject. I wonder why," she went on, half musingly, before I could make an attempt to persuade her to qualify her rather sweeping assertion. "It may be because you do so much for children in America. They are always on your mind; they are hardly ever out of your sight. You are forever either doing something for them or planning to do something for them. No wonder the child is your one subject of conversation. You do so very much for children in America," she repeated.

The alarmists warn us that what we do for the children in the direction of costly and complicated toys may, even while helping them to do something for themselves, mar their priceless simplicity. Need we fear this? Is it not likely that the "real" watches which we give them that they may "really" tell time will be used, also, for more than one of the other simple purposes of childhood?

The English woman said that we Americans did so much, so very much, for the children of our nation. There have been other foreigners who asserted that we did too much. Indubitably, we do a great deal. But, since we do it all that the children may learn to do, and, though doing, to be, can we ever possibly do too much?

We are a child-loving nation, and our love for the children is, for the most part, of the kind which Dr. Henry Van Dyke describes as "true love, the love that desires to bestow and to bless." The best things that we can obtain we bestow upon the children; with the goodliest blessings within our power we bless them. This we do for them. And they—is there not something that they do for us? It seems to me that there is, and that it is something incalculably greater than anything we do, or could possibly do, for them.

Tortures of the Deaf

Dr. Clarence John Blake, a distinguished aurist of Boston, has an article in a recent magazine under the unusual title of "The Fatigue of Deafness." Dr. Blake points out the little understood fact that the deaf person undergoes an actual physical fatigue in endeavoring to understand what is said by those about him. After explaining the causes of this fatigue and why certain sounds may be heard, while others may not, Dr. Blake says:

"To the person, who, through imperfect hearing, has distinctly limited relationship with his fellow men, to the aged and the otherwise infirm, to whom the progressive contraction of the accommodative muscles within the drumhead has, by limiting the movement of the sound transmitting apparatus, decreased the transmission of short sound waves, and therefore the ability to hear truly the qualitative overtones distinguishing the consonant sounds, there are two classes of speakers to be regarded with dread: those who articulate imperfectly, who may be said to be slovenly in speech; and those uneven speakers who, in a single sentence, rise to the fullness of their vocal ability and then sink to a whisper. The slovenly speaker demands of his hearer an acute attention and liberal translation, while the effort to follow the billowy lecturer may be compared to that of a lame man who is trying to keep his footing in a rocking boat.

"One of the most effectivo helps which we can render those fellow travelers who find the fatigue of their deafness a daily load is gentle speech, well chosen, well modulated, of an even tenor, and above all, articulate. When it is necessary to increase the voice volume this should be done with due regard to the evenness of tone and the distinctness of articulation; to those who can receive only that which is ministeringly brought to them, to whom the once accustomed volume of the sound of life has become pitiably diminshed, let us bring in gentle mien, carefully, patiently, the best that we have to offer.

"The majority of the human handicaps are more evident and better understood than is the impairment of hearing, which, without outward sign of disability, may first become of public knowledge as an obstacle to the conduct of the ordinary affairs of life and, therefore, as something to be contemplated; a condemnation reflected upon its unfortunate possessor, who finds himself thrust aside because he is apparently too slow to comprehend, or because the obstacle to be overcome in getting into touch with him demands too great an effort in its surmounting.

"Daily experiences of this sort, coupled often with the disappointment in the effort to live usefully and self-sustainingly, bring about a sense of isolation and of imprisonment, adding much to the fatigue and incident depression of the pitiably deaf; and while there are no apparent wounds to bind, there are gashes in the spirit and inroads upon the strength of our fellows who hear imperfectly, which make it incumbent upon us to halt a little in the hurry of the highway and give aid."

Dangers of the Air.

New York Mail: During one of the aviation meets a young woman went through the hangars under the guidance of a mechanic. After asking all the usual foolish questions that aviators and their assistants have to answer during a tour of inspection, she wanted to know:

"But what if your engine stops in the air—what happens? Can't you come down?"

"That's exactly the trouble," responded the willing guide. "There are now three men up in the air in France with their engines stopped. They can't get down and are starving to death."

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little children are not entitled to vote in Nevada.

Yet the children re-elected Representative Roberts to congress—and every other Republican on the state and national tickets was defeated.

Roberts keeps one clerk in his office here who does nothing else but answer letters from children, send them souvenirs, and help him to make a hit with them.

And when he made his campaign he did not waste time speaking about the tariff and other dry topics of interest only to people with ruts across their foreheads. Instead, he talked to the school kids and told them that he never saw a railroad train or had his hair cut in a barber shop until he was more than 19 years old. His mother used to cut his hair, he said, by putting a soup bowl on his head and shearing around it, thus getting a nice circular edge.

The kids—who were always present in great numbers—liked everything that Roberts had to say, and went home to talk about him, which, so far as Roberts was concerned, was the object of the meeting.

It was entirely by chance that Roberts got the hunch a year or so ago to rope in with the children of his state. He was the first Republican congressman from his state in twenty years and he came to Washington knowing that he might get only a single term. One day he got a letter from a little schoolgirl, asking him if he wouldn't send her a little souvenir of Washington.

Right then and there he got his idea. He dictated a circular letter to all the newspapers in his state, saying that he would mail a nice little souvenir of the national capital to every little boy or girl who would write to him. Then he hustled around and bought several hundred souvenir booklets of Washington, and a lot of souvenir post cards. He got his full quota of every government pamphlet that could interest children. The letters began to pour in from youngsters in every nook and cranny of Nevada. He fired back maps, booklets, post cards, colored pictures of birds, and personal letters written on the most ornate stationary the government provides.

Now if the writers had been grown-ups, that would have been the end of the correspondence, but the youngsters wrote back to thank the congressman, after which he wrote back to thank them for thanking him, and so on.

Thus a brisk, voluminous, and intimate correspondence grew up between the congressman and the youngsters of his state. He writes twice as many letters to children as he does to their fathers and uncles.

If a little girl has chicken-pox, a new doll or a broken slate, she writes and tells Roberts about it. She confides in him the grades she gets at school, and the mean tricks the boy next door played on her cat.

Frequently one of these letters says: "Father and Uncle Joe and Mr. Thomas, who boards with us, think the book you sent me is lovely"—or something similar. That is enough for Roberts. He knows that a whole lot of voters out in Nevada, who never thought much about him before are hearing his name mentioned almost every meal.

At several towns where Roberts spoke last fall, so many youngsters turned out to greet him that he felt like a circus about to unload.

And every little while some life-long member of the opposite party came up to him and said:

"I don't feel as if I ought to vote for you, but my two kids have been pestering the life out of me and I had to promise 'em I would."

The question arises: What chance will anybody else have to run for congress in Nevada after all these enthusiastic young friends of Roberts grow up?

When the late Vice President Sherman was about to be nominated at the Chicago convention, in 1908, a young newspaper man rushed into Sunny Jim's hotel suite and asked for a signed statement from him.

"What paper?" asked Sherman.

The young man told him, and it was a paper for which Sherman had a great dislike.

"No," said Sherman. "I wouldn't give that paper a signed statement. I wouldn't even waste that much ink on them."

Yet the next morning when Sherman picked up that paper—a public man always reads the papers he doesn't like, to see what they've said about him—right there on the first page was just the sort of a signed statement he might have given, with his facsimile signature attached.

"Who'n thunder is responsible for this?" stormed Sherman.

"I am," spoke up Harry Devendorf, Sherman's secretary. "I took the liberty of giving that young man the statement he wanted and I signed your name to it. You see, his paper was very anxious to get it and I was afraid if he fell down he might lose his job. And it might take him a good while to get another one. He shouldn't be punished just because you don't like the man that owns the paper?"

"Well, Harry," said Sherman, after a brief pause. "I'm inclined to think that you did exactly right."

Representative Tribble of Georgia is a man who shows a flushed face and great emotion every time he makes a speech. The other day he was talking against an item in the naval appropriation bill. One lone man sat in the press gallery. He walked into the room in the rear where several correspondents were seated and remarked: "Tribble is choking to death again."

Representative Houston of Tennessee met a colored man from his district on a Washington street corner the other day.

"Ah just paused here to light a cigar," said George prosperously.

"Well, I don't see you smoking," observed Houston. "Why don't you light it?"

"Nobody ain't flung one away jest yet," replied George.

Mike Knew a Thing or Two.

Los Angeles Herald: It was during the dinner hour, and Mike and Pat were playing seven-up while waiting for the whistle to blow. In the midst of the game Pat paused.

"Ol'll bet you twinty-foive cents, Moike," said he, "thot Ol kin cut th' ace of diamonds th' furrest shot."

"Ol'm wid yez, Pat," promptly replied Mike, producing the coin.

Whereat Pat carefully shuffled the cards and then, going to another part of the building and getting an adz, he cleanly cut the deck in two.

"Ol'll take the twinty-foive cints, Moike," he happily remarked. "Ol guess Ol cut th' ace of diamonds all right."

"Begorra, an' Ol don't think yez will," responded Mike, taking the card from his pocket. "Ol slipped it from the deck whin ye wint after th' adz."

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Trend of Sentiment.

Red Wing Republican: The education commission bill has been recommended to pass by the house. This bill provides for a commission of seven members whose business shall be to devise ways of simplifying and improving the school curriculum, codify the school laws and economize in administration. It is significant as showing the trend of public opinion on the subject that an attempt to exempt the study of foreign languages from the school curriculum of the state was voted down promptly and almost unanimously.

Team Work Lacking.

Aitkin Independent-Age: One of the features of the present legislature which stands out more prominently than anything else is the lack of team work between the house and the senate. This is truer in a marked degree than it was two years ago when decidedly different factions controlled the two bodies. The much heralded working agreement between the Rines and the Burnquist organizations has failed to materialize. It has proved to be the stuff that dreams are made of. About twenty laws have been enacted, some of them salary grabs, since the session began. It is more than half over and not any important legislation has passed both branches. It is safe to say that Minnesota would have been just about as well off if none of the legislation already passed had been enacted into law. The two bodies seem to be working along opposite lines. There is not the slightest effort to shape legislation so as to make for dispatch. As usual the senate has been the graveyard of most progressive measures. How a little snappy work as during the extra session would be relished by the taxpayers.

Approves Benson Bill.

St. Peter Free Press: The bill introduced by Senator Benson, requiring counties to pay part of the cost of caring for their insane, is a measure that should meet with general approval. The amount fixed in the bill is $10 per month and by no means covers the entire expense incurred, but is considered high enough to put a stop to the alleged practice of unloading the aged folks at asylums, in order to save trouble and expense.

Help for Families.

Laporte News: A bill authorizing the county board of supervisors to give employment to county jail prisoners on county road work at a certain price per day, one-half the amount to be allowed to go to the family of the prisoner so working, has passed the house and should pass the senate, as it would be a good law. There are a great many fellows who commit some petty offense in the fall in order to be sent up for ninety days and have a comfortable place to stay during the winter while their families suffer.

Wants Limit Retained.

Eveleth News: A member from Park Rapids named Stone wants to do away with the ninety-day limit on the length of the session of the legislature. For goodness sake, don't do it. No need whatever for longer sessions. They tire the public now with their lobbying and jobbing and wind-jammng.

Move for Better Results.

Red Wing Eagle: The proposition to elect representatives to the legislature for four-year terms, beginning by electing one-half the number for two years and the other half for four years, is a step in the direction of more sensible sessions and better legislation. By having at least one-half of the house members of the tried and experienced kind at every session the state's business would be greatly facilitated, and better results might be expected in every way. This ought not to mean, however, that representatives should be allowed to draw four years' pay in advance, as they now draw the two years' pay.

Getting Impatient.

Albert Lea Tribune: The state legislature has been in session for two months, but the results in one way, at least have been small. Only a few bills have been passed. As one gentleman remarked a few days ago, it has been killing some first class legislation as well as some that is vicious. It is to be hoped that the remainder of the session will prove better in that which is best for the people.

Tells Sex of Unborn Child.

From the Matin, Paris: A discovery of the highest importance to every parent has been announced by Dr. Robinson, who recently obtained a prize from the French Academy of Medicine. He declares that it is possible to determine the sex of a child before birth.

"Dr. Carlo Basile, assistant of Prof. Grassi of Rome, and myself," says Dr. Robinson, "observed in some of our experiments that by injecting into laboratory animals lecithine or choline, which are substances obtainable from our own organism, masculine element was destroyed and the feminine element left intact. On the other hand, adrenalin destroyed the feminine element and did not affect the masculine.

"Recently I made a number of observations in the cases of two sisters, endowed with the same constitutions, who have numerous children. The elder sister gave birth to six children, all boys. The younger sister had four children, all girls.

"A young American woman who married a French widower came to me recently to ask my advice. Her husband, by his first wife, had two daughters. The American wife also had two girls. She now wishes to have a boy.

"I maintain that it is not impossible to bring about this result. Repeated injections of adrenalin probably will be sufficient in this case."

Masters and Slaves.

Scott Neering in Everybody's Magazine: Was Industry made for Man or was Man made for Industry?

If Man was made for Industry, then it is just that Industry should be made the master and Man the slave. It is just that 500,000 men and women should be killed and injured annually while they minister to the industrial deity; it is fair that women toil long hours for a pittance; it is right that humanity writhe in agony under the goad of the industrial task-master.

If, on the other hand, Industry was made for Man, then it is just that Man should be the master and Industry the slave. It is fair that any calling which crushes men's bodies, destroys the souls of women and little children, or takes a toll of life and joy greater than its contribution to the happiness of the community, should be reformed or abolished.

Two thousand years ago Jesus rebuked the Pharisees and justified his disciples—who had picked corn on the Sabbath day—in these words: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." The world listens for the modern prophet who shall proclaim: "Industry was made for Man, and not Man for Industry."

Driving Fast Trains.

Albert W. Atwood in the American Magazine: Dean R. Wood, who takes the Twentieth Century Limited from Syracuse to Albany, was recently asked at a public hearing what his running time was between the two points. He replied:

"Two hours and forty-two minutes. That's 148 miles in 162 minutes. We are allowed to make up twelve minutes for lost time, which we might drop. We can only go through Syracuse at eight miles an hour, and there are nine other slowdowns, so that we have to run about seventy to seventy-five miles an hour to get in on time. In 148 miles we meet 151 stop signals, which I must locate in all kinds of weather, and if any of them are out of order I report the number of the signal when we get in."

Imagine the dangers and responsibilities which this man meets in fair or foul weather, in snow, in rain, in blizzards, in fogs, throughout the year. His vision must be geared for starlight, for moonlight, or for black darkness or driving storm, to locate, as he dashes by, those 151 signals in 148 miles, the loss of any one of which might mean death in the ditch. A leading railroad authority has been forced to admit that it is doubtful if any human being can properly manage an engine and locate a signal every thirty-five seconds. How can the human element be depended upon when it is being strained to the limit? There are very few accidents on branch lines, although these are usually innocent of block signals and other safety appliances. Is this because the human element is better on branch lines? Quite the contrary. The best men run on the fliers. But on the branch lines average speeds of twenty and twenty-five miles an hour are the rule, whereas on main lines they average from forty to fifty-five miles, or even more.

Sink or Swim.

The Docket: A correspondent commenting upon a recent case involving the age and quality of eggs which came before the supreme court, remarks:

It is undoubtedly true that the most certain way to determine the question is for the court to break and smell of each egg in the 433 cases seized; but, as this method may require more time than the court can well devote to the case, having other grave (smelling) questions to determine, I suggest that the court adopt the rule which the old woman insisted never failed to guide her in testing eggs. She said: "In order to tell whether an egg is good or bad, you take some warm water—not too warm, but just nice and warm—and put the egg in it, small end up, and if it's a good egg, it will either sink or swim." And she didn't remember which.

Artificial Heat and Ventilation.

The common forms of heating apparatus used in this country are stoves, hot air furnaces and steam or hot water radiators; and methods of ventilation must be adapted to the particular system of heating used. The hot air furnace, when properly constructed with adequate provision for humidifying the heated air, has many advantages for house use; and, when it draws its air directly from the outside, and is of sufficient size to heat the air required without forcing the fire so as to bring the metal to a red heat, it should deliver a perfectly pure and hygienic warm air to the rooms above. Rooms heated in the above manner require only ventilators, so placed that they will draw off the foul air and keep the entire atmosphere in gentle but constant motion, to complete an efficient heating and ventilating system. Too many hot air furnaces are, however, installed without regard to either proper circulation of air in the rooms or sufficient moistening of the heated air; and it is not uncommon to find rooms heated with hot air in which the relative humidity is constantly below 25 per cent, and the air currents only affect a small portion of the space. Such rooms are far from healthy living quarters, and the conditions are not so healthful as in ordinary stove heated apartments.

The requirements of hygienic hot air heating demand: First, that the heated air delivered to the rooms is fresh air drawn directly from the outside, and not contaminated with either dust or carbon monoxide leaking through an overheated firepot; secondly, it must be supplied with a large quantity of water vapor while passing through the heating chamber, so that on delivery to the rooms above it will provide a relative humidity of about 50 per cent; and, lastly, provision must be made in every room for a free discharge of befouled air through ventilators, so arranged as to keep the air in the entire room in gentle but constant motion. The method of carrying out these provisions is the problem of the furnace man, but to see that they have been attended to properly is the duty of every householder. None of the requirements mentioned is difficult to provide, neither will they add materially to the cost of installation.

The most common fault of hot air heating is that insufficient provision is made for moistening the air; and as this has an economic as well as a hygienic importance, special attention should be given to the matter. Until about 50 years ago it was thought that heat was carried and radiated by the air molecule itself; but at the present day we know that the heat which air imparts to surrounding objects is radiated from either particles of dust or molecules of water vapor carried between the air molecules, and that its capacity for carrying heat is in direct proportion to these substances therein contained. So, from the economic standpoint, sufficient moisture must be imparted to heated air to enable it to carry and radiate the heat to the best advantage; and, properly moistened air feels comfortable to sit in when the temperature is no higher than 65 deg., while an air with a relative humidity below 30 per cent, will feel chilly when the thermometer stands at 72. Therefore, less fuel is required when the relative humidity is kept between 50 and 60 per cent, and evaporated water is considerably less costly than coal.

From the health point of view, sufficient moisture in the air is of much greater importance than any other element except its oxygen content; and it is now coming to be understood by medical men, that much of the winter illness, such as coughs, colds and catarrh, can be directly traced to the constant breathing of air which is both too dry and too hot.

Relative humidity is determined by a little instrument known as the hygrometer; and every home, heated with hot air, should have such an instrument installed in the hall, so that it may be readily seen whether it is more coal or more water the furnace requires, when the air feels chilly.

The proper degree of humidity for living rooms is in the neighborhood of 50 per cent, and the temperature should not be allowed to run above 68 degrees F.

Questions and Answers.

Hardening of Nerves.

M. L. W. writes: I have been told that locomotor ataxia is due to hardening of the nerves, but on asking a physician what was meant by hardening of the nerves, he said there was no such disease. Please tell me what is correct, and what is the cause of hardening of nerves?

REPLY.

All the symptoms of locomotor ataxia can be traced to a hardening which takes place in the posterior part of the spinal cord; and this, no doubt, is what has been described to you as hardening of the nerves. We know of a condition of hardening of the brain, and more than one form of hardening of the spinal cord; but your physician was right, there is no such disease known as hardening of the nerves.

Eat More.

R. A. C. writes: What is, and how may I attain the normal weight for a boy of 18 who is 5 feet 9 inches tall?

REPLY.

Your weight should be about 145 pounds; if much below this, increase your diet, especially meat, bread, vegetables and fruit; to this add a quart of milk per day, taken a glass at a time between meals. Care must be taken during the time of this over-feeding that enough exercise is taken to burn up the food products which are injurious. Frequent bathing and regular hours of rest are also of prime importance.

Indigestion In An Infant.

Mrs. R. C. K. writes: Will you kindly suggest what to do for indigestion in an infant of one month; also recommend a good laxative. Are glycerine suppositories harmful if used constantly? The baby is entirely breastfed, and I am careful of what I eat, but its stools contain mucous and curds of undigested milk.

REPLY.

It may be that you nurse the baby whenever it cries, and, therefore, have produced irregular habits of nursing, or it may be that it nurses too rapidly. Both of these things tend to cause slight indigestion, but the constipation, with your baby, is likely to be the sole cause. You should be able to correct the infant's constipation through your own diet. Eat plenty of fruit of all kinds; particularly good fruits are apples, oranges and prunes. Also eat plenty of coarser vegetables and drink plenty of pure water. This diet should correct any constipation present in yourself and will likely also cure the baby. Giving the baby just a little orange juice, starting with half a teaspoonful each day, is often beneficial in such conditions. Adopt regular hours for nursing the baby, letting him have all the plain boiled water he will drink between feedings, but nothing more.

2. Glycerine suppositories should not be used continuously. It is safer to use little suppositories made of pure white castile soap, but the constipation must be corrected permanently through diet on your part.

MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

Special Session Called to Consider Increasing Teachers' Salaries.

Plans of Proposed New Buildings Also to Be Submitted.

The request of Duluth teachers for an increase in salaries will be considered at a special meeting of the board of education to be held this afternoon at 4:30 in the board room at the Central high school.

The Board will also consider the plans drafted for the Robert E. Denfeld high school at West Duluth, the Roger S. Munger school at Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street, the Edwin R. Cobb school at Woodland and the addition to the Lakeside school.

The action to be taken on teachers' salaries is problematical, but the members of the board are said to favor an increase if the finances can be arranged to care for it.

Teacher Makes Plea.

Miss Florence Mailling of the Jackson school, secretary of the Teachers' association, has made public a letter in which a grade teacher touches upon the reason for the request for increased wages. The letter says:

"We could live on the salaries we receive if we would make up our minds to wear uniforms (black for instance, so cheerful and it would save laundry); deny every human relation; live in groups or communities and have no intercourse with the outside world. In this way I think, we could manage to eliminate the present worry and struggle to keep even in a city that demands so much and gives so little in return.

"Efficiency depends upon the standard of living and unless efficiency wages are paid to the individual the standard of efficiency must inevitably be lowered. Low wages and accompanying low standards are obvious conditions. It seems that now the responsibility for decent wages and standards must be assumed by the progressive and wide-awake citizens of the city. The public, no doubt, realizes that the employer who pays low wages is a grafter, grafting on the life and health of the future, lowering vitality, creating a cost that can never be computed. Such an act, willfully and deliberately committed is far more anti-social than merely grafting on the public treasury. The treasury can be replenished easily and quickly, but the sapped vitality and decreased efficiency of those employed can hardly be remedied, and your boys and girls, the future citizens of your city, can never be reimbursed.

"Your buildings and equipment justly deserve praise. Have you given as much thought to the well-being of the teacher? Has she not been given the least consideration in all your plans for securing stronger and better schools? Have you been providing ample material means, insuring freedom from undue care, creating normal conditions which pre-suppose sufficient quantity of nourishing, well prepared food, sanitary and hygienic accommodations and conveniences, proper and sufficient clothing, opportunity for normal recreation and normal leisure, under which comes time to think, time for personal improvtment and development, this, too, to be unrestricted and lastly, but not least, pleasant working conditions."

HEARTS FAR FROM THE LIVING TRUTH

Evangelist Robert Whiston Speaks at First Christian Church.

The revival meetings at the First Christian church are increasing in attendance and interest, and last night was one of the best thus far in the series. Evangelist Robert Whiston preached on "Suicide and Religion," involving the conversion of the Philippian jailer.

"The Jews crucified Christ because they were not familiar with the Old Testament prophesies relating to His coming," he said. "They were followers of the traditions of the Talmud, ignoring the clear-out prophesies of the Old Testament. If Christ were to come to the world in this twentieth century, the ignorance of men would crucify Him, even as did the Jews 1,900 years ago. We claim to be followers of Christ and we don't know what Jesus taught. The conventional forms of Christianity and the moral obligations are adhered to, but the doctrines of Christ and His apostles have been relegated to the rear. We are careful of the outward forms of religion, and during Lent we say, 'Good-bye, Mr. Devil, for forty days,' but our hearts are far from the living truth."

Some of the evangelist's illustrations in this sermon were most realistic and striking. The singing was unusually good last night. Tonight Mr. Whiston will speak on "Gulfs," and will discuss the social, industrial and religious gulfs of today. He announced that this was one of the most dramatic sermons he preaches. There will be no meeting on Saturday night. Sunday he will speak at 11 a. m. and at 8 p. m.

ADMITS MANY HOLD-UPS.

Minneapolis Negro Tells Police of His Highwayman Activities.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—Fred Smart, a negro, charged with being implicated in the attempted robbery of Gus Swanson, has confessed, the police say, to fifteen holdups in Minneapolis within the past few weeks. Chief of Police Martinson says that Smart has so far given only vague details as to whom he has held up or the places in which the robberies were committed.

He implicates, according to the police, Charles Carter, another negro, who was arrested with Smart in the Swanson robbery. Highway robbers have been terrorizing South Minneapolis since the first of the year, and it is in this territory that Smart claims to have operated. Carter has not yet been told by the police of Smart's confession.

The business of this district has dwindled to a small amount as a result of the almost complete settlement of the lands. What official transactions are made come from the extreme western edge.

...SHIP SUNK, ...TINOPLE REPORT.

...n Account Says Re Umb... Was Driven on Rocks—

Tugboat Blown Up.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 2.—The Italian battleship Re Umberto, which had been conveying landing expeditions in Tripoli, has been driven on the rocks by a storm. She sank on the coast near Zuara.

The Re Umberto was built in 1887, and carried a complement of over 700 men. She was 400 feet long and 77 feet in beam, drawing 28 feet of water. Her armament included four 13.5-inch guns.

Zuara is on the northwest coast of Tripoli, near the Tunisian border. Shoal water and rocky patches extend along that coast for half a mile off shore, making navigation hazardous.

Woman's Realm

"In Germany, Arthur Schnitzler ranks as a playwright with the two great matadors of the German stage, Sudermann and Hauptmann, and as a novelist he is considered worthy of much more than passing notice," said Miss Frances Earhart this morning in a paper on that writer which she read at the regular meeting of the modern drama class of the Twentieth Century club.

"We are accustomed to look upon Austria culturally as a German province. This opinion is decidedly unjust for at the same time as the decline of political power of the Hapsburg monarchy, Vienna, the home of Schnitzler, has seen a renaissance of literature, especially of the drama. Not only "Merry Widows" and "Kiss Waltzes" have come to us from the jocund capital of Francis Joseph, but also the rugged strength of Schonherr and the cynical genius, half sad, half gay, of Arthur Schnitzler, who invades with the weapon of psychology the twilight of the soul.

"Arthur Schnitzler has stood for more than one decade at the head of the Austrian school of playwrights, and the essential genius of the man, his curious psychology, his subtle, brilliant yet melancholy gift of analysis, these remain beyond our grasp, and even in his own land he is considered more French than German.

"Schnitzler writes for an enlightened public, enamored of the theater for the theater's sake, sophisticated in life as well as in art, ever demanding in its ideal of literature. In contradiction to the authentic German spirit, ceaselessly intent upon searching out the heart of life's mystery and revealing in human will, man's divine potentiality, the authentic Austrian spirit delights to invest human life with the grace and charm of poetry. Romance shot through with melancholy, happiness tinged with regret, a delicate handling of the indelicate, refinement in portrayal of the unrefined are characteristics of his writing. The cynicism with which he is often credited proceeds from an extraordinarily astute perception of the frailities of human nature and atmosphere and temperament are the two keywords in the mystery of Schnitzler's charm. Sparkling and piquant through the dialogue is and audacious though the situations in his plays are, only the most casual reader misses the undertone of sadness. Schnitzler is at heart a great tragedian."

Miss Earhart spoke of some of his plays and the reading of his "Liebelei" or "The Light o' Love," as it is translated, was commenced under the leadership of Miss Amy Oliver, parts being read by Mrs. Guy Diehl, Miss Annie Hugo, Mrs. Arthur Sheridan, Miss Earhart and Miss Oliver.

Mrs. J. C. H. Engel, chairman of the class, announced that the dramatic afternoon for this month which was announced for Tuesday, March 18, has been postponed for one week until March 25.

The affair is under the direct management of the evening department of the club.

Mrs. Jane Everington Scully will sing and Miss Edna Harris will play several piano solos during the evening and Mrs. J. B. Richards, chairman of the general social committee of the club will have charge of the refreshments. Mrs. N. F. Hugo and Mrs. Gage will preside at the tea tables assisted by Miss Annie Hugo, Miss Amy Oliver, Miss Helen Harbison, Mrs. J. L. Strong and Miss Lella Sparks.

To Study in Chicago.

Sigurd J. Erdtman, the young Swedish tenor, will leave this evening for Chicago to study vocal music with a prominent teacher of that city. He has been studying with Miss Faith Rogers of this city until about two months ago when he contracted pneumonia from which he has just recovered.

FAIR PLAY FOR GIRLS IN INHERITANCES

GLADYS UNGER.

Gladys Unger, the American playwright now in London, has come out in favor of giving English girls equal rights with boys in the matter of inheritance. She says that the law of primogeniture is all wrong. She complains that not only does an entailed estate go to the oldest son, but it has developed into a custom to bequeath the greater part of unentailed estates to the eldest son. After the oldest son come the younger sons and the girls may have what is left when the boys have all been satisfied. This, Miss Unger says, is all wrong because all girls cannot be expected to marry and that is the only salvation of well-bred girls without money in England.

BUT HOW ABOUT MADAME.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Under the lax American system of bringing up girls," says a Paris journal, "the American young man rarely wins the first kiss from the girl who is to be his bride." Maybe, but by Heck! that is not so bad as the Gallic discomfort of never knowing who has won the last kiss from the "madame."

DON'T BELITTLE THE HOME

Wife and Mother the Greatest Titles, Says David I. Walsh.

Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts Declares That Woman Must Beware Lest She Dethrone Her Supreme Duties to the Race.

Boston Post: Mother is the greatest title a woman can achieve, political honors notwithstanding. That is the positive, though old-fashioned idea of David I. Walsh, lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

"Wife and mother—those are the titles and conditions of honor and dignity," declares Mr. Walsh. "Not all attain them; situations arise that change the currents of life and the mode of living; but these remain the ideals.

"The rearing of children, their teaching and training, are the noblest functions and the highest duties of the species."

Child Rearing a Science.

It sounds like oratory. It is. For Mr. Walsh cannot talk without eloquence. He believes sincerely every word he utters, whether it be in a crowded hall with an interested audience that he speaks or in his own office.

"The idea that children can be reared by instinct is absurd," continued Mr. Walsh. "The nearer a science motherhood can reach, the finer children will be reared. The further from the standards of a primitive race we get, the more health and vigor we are bound to have.

"What is good enough for the animal will not do at all for the man. Old notions of rearing children are as archaic as predicting weather by the thinness or thickness of the goosebone, as the case might happen to be."

Mr. Walsh stopped a moment. He had been walking up and down the length of the lieutenant governor's office in the statehouse.

"I want to explain here"—he was speaking in his characteristic manner of deadly earnestness—"I want to explain that I think the woman who believes devoutly and devotedly that her best and highest work lies in following the commands of her maker, will find no difficulty in doing her legitimate share in the other work of the world. She must never lose her sense of proportion and try to dethrone her supreme duties and place upon a pedestal the things that may lure her from the highest calls of womanhood and motherhood.

Woman's Legitimate Interests.

"If the home is made the center of reverence, peace and right living, the community in which she lives is sweeter. The safety and integrity of the state is assured, for the unit of the state is not the individual, but the home.

"Women ought to take more interest than they do in things which concern them as a class. They ought to read the newspapers and find out how they are being governed.

"Letters to statesmen and city councilmen and to newspapers would do much to improve many things which are not ideal in any sense of the word. Though I do not think that motherhood should be subordinated for any interest whatsoever.

"There is a dangerous loosening in the bands that keep the home sweet and sacred in this age; an attempt to minimize the sanctity of the marriage rite. There is a constant seeking to place emphasis on the wrong phases of woman's activities; the belittling of the home and its influences. All of the old heresies that have poisoned the purposes of life are here again, posing as new truths. All these dangers must be met by woman.

"In a word, after all has been said and done, the future of the Republic is in the hands of woman—the wife and mother. She has the chance to mold the nation.

"There is no royal road to perfection, no broad highway to human happiness; the world begins in the cradle and ends in the coffin, and woman's functions center in the home."

THE AMBITIONS OF A GIRL

At 18 She Must Begin Preparation for the Future.

From a Girl's Diary in the London Mail:

Several important things have happened to me today.

In the first place, it is my eighteenth birthday and in the second, I have put up my hair and worn a long skirt (at least as long a one as the dressmaker said could be worn this season) for the first time.

Lastly, I have had a very long and very wonderful talk with mother about my future—I cannot resist spelling it with a capital F.

My mother, I am secretly convinced, is just the wisest, most understanding mother that ever was born. She has a way of knowing exactly what everyone she talks to is feeling like inside.

And although conditions have changed a lot since she was 18 she says she felt the same about most things as I do when she was my age. Of course she will never grow old—not if she lives to be 90. She is really far younger and more up to date than I am and she has simply hundreds of friends.

Her Mother's Advice.

One of the things she said today was that she wanted me to have a good time and have no worries or responsibilities at all for at least a year.

She thinks every girl ought to have a year of nothing but enjoyment after she leaves school.

But she did not want me to drift through this pleasure-time without definitely making up my mind about what was to follow.

So now I have to sit here and decide what I really do mean to make of my life. I must ask myself:

1. Do I want to be useful?
2. Do I want the lot of the bachelor woman or that of the happily married wife and mother?
3. Am I going to earn my own living, and, if so, in what way?

A Girl's Ideal of Love.

I do want to be useful and I believe I shall have more opportunities if I find out what it is like to earn my bread and butter. All the women mother likes best, I have noticed, are women who work. And all the girls I was fond of at school were those who meant to go in for a profession of some sort.

Now, what about love—and marriage? There I am all vague and rather trembly. I want love in my life, of course. What girl doesn't? But I want it to be something very fine and splendid—something that will not easily get spoiled. I should like to give my love only to a man who would be strong enough to let me keep my ideal of him always clear and untarnished. To be allowed to make a home some day—and to look forward to holding a tiny soft bundle—my very own—in my arms! Yes, that is what I want most; but he must be a very nearly perfect husband to make the home for before the task would seem worth while.

I am not going to sit down and wait for marriage. If it comes—the sort of marriage I dream of—my work will go to the winds. But if I never get within reach of more than a "second best" love, then I will do without it altogether.

The Secret of Happiness.

There will be a lot left, even if I miss that. I shall try to get into touch with other people—as many of them as I can find. I shall aim at being the same sort of woman as my own mother. She would have had plenty of love in her life without her husband and her children.

I have watched her methods of drawing people out, of getting at the finest that is in them. (Not that she would ever allow that she has "methods" at all. I believe she does it all instinctively, without thinking of how the results are achieved.)

But it is always managed in the same way. I have observed it in dozens of cases.

She simply sees the very best side of every man or woman she comes in contact with, and then she tells them what she sees.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

One Rich Woman's Example and the Cigarette Habit.

Cigarette smoking does not henceforth wear a halo merely because one of the richest society women of New York insolently puffed a golden-tipped cigarette in the faces of a dozen or so newspaper reporters. I do not believe that really nice women ever will become addicted to a habit that is so far removed from womanliness, although perhaps a horde of foolish women without any deep-rooted ideas of what constitutes being a lady, will think this wealthy woman's act and those of others of her sort in this respect sets the seal of aproval upon cigarette smoking by women.

But it does not, and I doubt very much, and certainly hope, that the day will never come when it will be considered other than brazen for a woman to smoke cigarettes, or when such a woman will not, by such a practice, open herself to suspicion. I haven't any idea that cigarette smoking is actually any worse for women from a moral standpoint than it is for men. I do not know that it works any worse havoc with them mentally or physically. But I do know that it strikes a horrible, frightened chord deep within most of us to see a woman, daintily dressed, bright faced and aparently refined, smoking a cigarette—publicly or privately.

I hope I am broad enought not to place any woman whom I might see smoking in the utterly disreputable class. I certainly should question her taste and breeding, and I think I should look upon her with contempt for lowering her dignity, compromising her womanliness and being so silly as not to know that such conduct can only detract from her charm in the eyes of any but those like her.

Don't, because a few women of wealth and so-caled social position take up with such a deplorable custom, get to thinking that it is the accepted thing among women of refinement and wealth, and that therefore it behooves you to imitate them.

The reporters who interviewed this woman, acustomed as they were to unusual sights, and calloused to things that would shock the layman, were very much disgusted. With all her wealth and insolence, she was still a woman, and she impressed them as any other woman would, with a lighted cigarette betwen her lips.

The better class of men and women will condemn such a practice, and no womanly woman would think of indulging in it for a moment. Women of the rich and vulgar type, who fancy they can do as they please and care not a fig what the public thinks, may keep on doing so; but sooner or later perhaps their self-respect, if they have any, and their innate sense of modesty, which lurks somewhere in every woman's breast, will find them out and shame them.

PROBLEM OF THE THEATER AUDIENCE

To Please Each One, to Strike the Universal Note, a Play Must Revert to the Primal Laws of Nature.

Paul Armstrong in the Chicago Record-Herald: I have stood in the lobby of theaters and seen managers and authors white with fear as the big, careless third equation of the theater crowded in.

"What are they going to do to this?" they ask each other. "Will they understand it? Do they want to understand it?"

The audience is a terrifying thing. It is merciless, brutal or kind and gentle. It will weep or laugh or sit grim and threatening. But either way, in any mood, it has always in it the mob spirit, and perhaps one or two lines may turn it for you or on you.

Audience One By One.

If you will stand on a busy street corner some day and study the faces of a thousand persons who pass and then consider that your bread and butter, house, lands, horses, motors and other things which go to make up the simple life depend on your ability to strike a universal note which will amuse or divert that hurrying, worrying thousand, you may get some idea of the problem an audience presents.

Here comes a man with his eyes fixed before him, heedless of his fellows, careless of his dress, with his mind fixed on how he cal rest his little snare, called business, so it will get him more. Women pass in the rush to bargain sales, young girls with roving eyes ever looking for the knight. Young men with despairing eyes slowly being pushed about learning that life is not the college "rent." Lads whistling, mothers watching of the crossings fathers worried to shadows and youngsters wide-eyed in glee.

There they go, crowding along a thousand strong; you cannot pick or chose. There is your audience. Each with his little dream, his strange point of view, his hatred and his loves. In two hours—firm in the belief that you will give them two hours' respite from the hurrying world and crashing tragedy of life, they have paid money at your gate. Seated, waiting for their money's worth, they are yours.

It's hopeless, absolutely hopeless, if you attempt to handle an audience from the individual standpoint from which you viewed it on the corner. But if you will revert to the laws which Nature wrote away back in the dim and foggy first night of creation, you have a chance. The first law came as man opened his eyes, drew in a deep breath of sweet air, stretched his limbs and said:

"I want to live."

First Big Instinct.

Here we have the first big instinct—the love of life.

And after the man looked about and breathed and found life was good, there crept over him a strange loneliness. Then a woman passed and his heart pounded as he watched. He spoke to her and touched her hand and the second big law was written across the world:

The love of woman.

And for her and the children she might bear him or that she might ever rejoice in his strength or brawn there sprang the desire to achieve.

So, after all, there are but three big things in life, and it is a variation or ramification of one of these that answers every question.

To live. To love. To achieve.

Disregard the individuality of the mob, refuse to take seriously the fluff which supercivilization scares up, smile at the cultured esthete and the overloaded mental gymnast and get back to these three foundation stones. They are all human down deep, and if they are not they're not worth while.

Must Have Love and Combat.

The curtain goes up. Two men appear. One says something hateful about somebody. It's not much and we don't know whether he is right or wrong. The other man defends. Knowing nothing, the audience goes with the man who defends. A moment later one woman abuses another. The audience goes with the abused. They enter a theater ready to love somebody. But woe be to the play in which there is no one to love. An audience pays for the privilege of loving someone. And, further, the audience, men and women, want real conflict. Not a one-sided affair, but a pulse-halting, hair-raising, breath-catching combat.

The nearer the villain comes to winning, and loses, the better they love it. Nor need the combat be fought with any weapons other than brain. Combat is combat, whether fought with broadswords or epigrams.

DOESN'T LIKE CUBAN COOKING

George McKay Tells of Trouble in Eating on the Island.

George McKay, formerly of the Hotel McKay, has returned from an extended pleasure trip, taking in various cities of the United States and also Havana, Cuba.

"Cuba may be all right for those who have been reared on cooking that reeks with garlic," said Mr. McKay, "but to the average American this highly seasoned form of food makes him long for home and think lovingly of the things that mother used to make.

"There are some pleasant things to see on the island, and you can have some good times, but this question of satisfying the inner man was one that kept bothering me during most of my visit at Havana.

"Business is good over there and the people seem to be very well satisfied with their lot in life. Cuba is a country of infinite promise, but to the tourist the inability to secure the food that he has been used to since the time he was able to begin gnawing, is one of the serious objections."

CAN HANDLE THE GRAIN

Managers of Duluth Elevators Say to "Send It Along."

Confident They Can Cope With Situation Until Navigation Opens.

Managers of the grain elevators at the American Head of the Lakes are not pleased to have their ability to handle the grain, both domestic and bonded, that anybody or any company wishes to ship here between the present time and the opening of navigation, at all questioned. They are eager to get all the patronage that can be brought this way and declare that they can cope with the situation and are not in the least worried over it.

Of late they have not ben making arrangements to have any more ice cut to bring vessels that are wintering in the harbor under the spouts of the elevators. It is expensive to cut ice for this purpose, and the elevator men do not wish to have this done undess it is necessary. It is believed that the ice can be broken with very little trouble about the first of next month, and then the vessels can be moved about with ease.

General Freight Agent Stephen of the Canadian Northern was in the city a few days ago talking the situation over with several of the leading elevator men of Duluth and they told him that Duluth had facilities to take care of all the bonded grain that came, and they would be glad to receivo it.

Mr. Stephen spoke of the new grain elevator that the Canadian Northern was building at the Canadian Head of the Lakes. He said this would have a capacity of 3,000,000 bushels, and that the company expected it to be ready to receive grain about March 15. He said about 1,000 cars of grain were waiting, ready to be unloaded into the new elevator.

At present the Canadian Pacific is taking 200 to 250 cars of grain out of Fort William and Port Arthur elevators daily for all-rail shipment to the East. This just about balances what grain is being received by these elevators. They could take no more, for there is no more room, but with the opening of the new Canadian Northern elevator, there will be quite an increase in the receiving capacity at the Canadian Head of the Lakes for a time. This probably will mean smaller shipments of bonded grain to Duluth and Superior.

The bonded grain received daily at Duluth and Superior now amounts to about 100 cars. The domestic receipts are about 75 cars a day. The total shipments of grain by rail out of Duluth daily amounts to about 25 cars. Thus the accumulation of grain at Duluth amounts to about 150 cars a day, or about 1,000,000 bu a week. At this rate of accumulation, Duluth elevators can take care of the receipts for several weeks to come. It is likely, however, that the opening of the new elevator at the Canadian Head of the Lakes will have some effect in diminishing the receipts of bonded grain at Duluth and Superior. If after two or three weeks the ice in the Duluth harbor becomes so soft that it can be readily broken, as is likely to be the case, the boats on the bay will be ready to afford abundant relief to the elevators long before any great amount of relief is needed.

"Suppose," said one of the elevator managers today, "the grain cars received at Duluth and Superior should even have to stand unloaded for a week, nobody would suffer seriously. The grain is in good condition and it would keep. There would be only $7 demurrage on each car, and that would be no great matter. No, we are not at all worried about taking care of the grain. We don't want those Western Canadians to get the idea that we cannot serve them. They might hold their grain back and not ship it at all before the opening of navigation.

"The situation is easier than it was a year ago at this time, and we handled things all right then. We had much more difficulty then, as there were so many more grades of grain to keep apart."

WILL GIVE WARNING IN ENGINE ROOM

New Electric Sounding Device Invented By Duluth Man.

A West Duluth man has just invented a contrivance of warning for ships in shallow waters, and those who have seen it believe it will be accepted generally. It seems to fill a long-felt need in marine circles, both in fresh and salt water.

This man is D. B. Ferguson of 210 North Sixty-first avenue west. The invention is an electrical sounding device attached to the bottoms of ships. When a prescribed depth of water is reached and the lower end of the contrivance strikes bottom it sounds a warning bell in the engine room.

It is believed that such a device will save many cases of groundings and disaster.

CANADIAN LINES ARE COMBINED

Dominion's New Transportation Company Outlines Plans for Season.

Harry Hurdon, local agent of the Northern Navigation company, has just returned from a meeting of local agents at Toronto, Can., and announces a change in the arrangements of the company. The Northern Navigation company, the Inland lines and the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation company have amalgamated and will hereafter run under one general management. This, it is said, is one of Canada's greatest transportation combines in years.

H. H. Gildersleeve, manager of the Northern Navigation company, has resigned and will be manager of the combined lines west of Kingston, Ont. Peter Padden will be manager of the Northern Navigation company, with headquarters at Sarnia.

Mr. Hurdon said today that it has been expected that a passenger steamer being built at Fort William would be in the Lake Superior trade during the season of 1913, but it has been found impossible to bring this about. It was planned that instead of the two-times-a-week service that has been in vogue on Tuesdays and Saturdays with the steamers Hamonic and Huronic in the business, there would be a thrice-a-week service on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, with the new steamer in. This will not now be put on until the season of 1914 unless matters develop much more rapidly than expected.

Fitting Out Boats.

The engineers of the fleet of the A. T. Kinney Steamship company have reported at the Head of the Lakes and are fitting out the engines of their ships. The stewards of the four boats are also here getting ready for the opening of navigation. The engineers are as follows:

Steamer—	Engineer—
H. P. Bope	George A. Gardner.
Ward Ames	William D. Murphy.
J. C. Wallace	Ed Donaldson.
A. B. Wolvin	Ed Rehbein.

Anoka Judge Is Failing.

WANTS DAMAGES FOR FROZEN PIPES

A jury was drawn this morning to try the issues at dispute which are involved in a lawsuit brought by A. A. Mendenhall against Frank J. Nixon. The case was brought to trial in Judge Dancer's room.

Mendenhall, plaintiff, claims that he was lessor by assignment of a house at 1411 London road, on which Frank J. Nixon defendant had a lease which ran fourteen months from March, 1911.

He claims that Nixon failed to keep the furnace fires going and that as a consequence the water pipes froze causing damage in the sum of $123.45 for which he is suing.

In answer, Nixon asserts that the furnace was not in good condition and that had conditions been as represented there would have been no damage.

TOWER CITY PAIR ARE UNDER ARREST.

Fargo, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry M. Doley and E. Houll were brought here today from Tower City where they were charged with breaking into a house, stealing articles and choking a woman, who discovered them, into insensibility. Her condition is reported serious.

Found Dead on Haystack.

New Richmond, Wis., March 14.—Thomas Maxon, who had been employed on the farm of P. G. Early, near Jewett, was found dead on top of a haystack. He had been afflicted with locomotor ataxia and had evidently been overcome while doing the chores. He was about 55 years of age and came here three years ago from Brandon, Can., where his wife lives.

FILE PETITIONS TO BE DECLARED BANKRUPT

McCoy & Gould, saloon keepers at Virginia, have applied to the United States court to be declared bankrupts. They give their debts at $4,080.61 and their assets at $1,000, nothing of which is claimed as being exempt.

William McCoy, of that firm, makes similar personal application and so does the other partner, Albert J. Gould. The personal statements are: McCoy—Debts, $330.71; assets, $150. Gould—Debts, $653.20; assets, none.

Morris Johnson, a cook of Grand Marais, Minn., is another applicant. He says he owes $3,885.78 and has assets of $1,250 of which $250 is exempt.

United States engineers say that nearly a million-horse power could be developed from the Green river, a tributary to the Colorado.

DIBELL IS PROMOTED

Appointed One of Two New Supreme Court Commissioners.

Bert Fesler Will Succeed Him on the District Bench.

District Judges Homer B. Dibell of Duluth and M. D. Taylor of St. Cloud were last evening appointed by the supreme court justices as the two supreme court commissioners provided for in a bill which yesterday became a law.

The new law provides for two commissioners, whose duties will be practically the same as those of associate justice. Their pay will be the same, $7,000 a year. The aim of the legislation is to take a part of the burden of work from the shoulders of the justices.

In Duluth, Judge Dibell will be succeeded on the district bench by Bert Fesler, former city attorney, and a well-known member of the legal profession. Mr. Fesler was appointed late last evening by Governor Eberhart. Attorney John J. Roeser of St. Cloud will succeed Judge Taylor on the district bench.

The court commissioner bill which was signed by the governor yesterday and became a law provides that as soon as the additional justices to the supreme court are created, the offices of commissioners shall terminate. The commissioners, it is understood, will be in line for appointment as actual justices.

The commissioners will be a welcome addition to the supreme court, as the work in that tribunal has piled up so that it has been found necessary to give the justices help. The purpose of the new law is to relieve the court until the Constitution can be amended so as to allow legislation providing for an increase in the number of justices from five to seven.

The new commissioners cannot actually decide cases. However, they will do the actual work and their decisions will be reviewed and signed by the justices.

Judge Dibell, whose appointment was made late yesterday, is regarded as one of the most prominent jurists in the state and has often been mentioned as being next in line for a place on the supreme bench.

Attorney Fesler, who succeeds Judge Dibell to the local bench, is conceded by Duluth attorneys to be one of the best equipped lawyers on municipal law practicing before the bar and is held in high esteem both as a man and an attorney throughout the state.

Both Judge Dibell and Mr. Fesler were the recipients of many congratulations this morning. Judge Dibell said he would not assume his new duties until April 1.

Attorneys John G. Williams and L. C. Harris, and Odin Halden, county auditor, were in St. Paul this week, urging the appointment of Judge Dibell to the commissionership which has just been created.

LAWYER CALLED UPON TO EXPLAIN $100 FEE

as she thought she should and she had a notion that she might have an action for malpractice against her physician. In February, 1912, she came to Duluth and consulted a so-called electric doctor, but no regular physician. The electric doctor did not treat her. She met Mr. Marx. X-ray pictures were taken, and a regular physician made an examination. Mr. Marx told her she had a clear case and he agreed to take it. He wanted $100. Her husband is a laboring man and she had little money. She gave him $20 at the time. She then went home and arranged with the storekeepers to wait for their money. She paid Marx $40 in April and $40 in May. By dint of saving for about a year she and her husband have just now been able to pay the storekeepers who gave them credit. Marx told her the case would be heard in May. One delay followed another, and finally she could get no word from him. She has to use crutches and gets around with difficulty.

Received the Money.

When questioned by the committee, Mr. Marx admitted the receipt of the money, and that he had not brought suit, and that he had made no actual claims against the physician. He said the action was a doubtful one. He made some excuses, and claimed he intended bringing suit, though he is intending to leave for Canada about the first of April. The committee indicated to him, in a serious way, that his action was not at all in accord with the ethics of the profession. They impressed this upon his mind so emphatically and thoroughly that he refunded the $100 with 6 per cent interest from the time that he received it. This morning, Mr. Marx handed $106 over to Mr. Crassweller, chairman of the committee. Members of the committee had informed him that they were unanimously of the opinion that they should do no less. The money was sent this morning to the woman at Pineville.

The Woman's Story.

The letter through which the woman's story came to the attention of the bar association is as follows:

"Pineville, Minn., March 5th.

"Dear Sir: I would like to ask you for some advice in regards to Mrs. Mark Millington, who lives here at Pineville. This woman had the misfortune to hurt her leg June 26, 1910, and called in a doctor at once, who claimed it was a sprain. Later they said it was a little fracture. After suffering eight months she consulted a doctor at Eveleth, who told her that the ligaments in the knee were torn loose, and if her leg has been properly treated they would have united. When he found out it was a range doctor who had treated her he didn't care to say any more, but he said that he had expressed his opinion and wouldn't go back on it.

"At her request he took an X-ray picture and she paid for it, but instead of giving her the picture he sent it to the other doctor, who tried to patch up a spoiled job by putting on casts, one of leather and one of plaster of Paris. In February, 1912, she went to Duluth with a lady friend to see the electro doctor. They discovered a dislocation and fracture, but, as they don't operate, they didn't take the case. She was advised to sue the doctor for his neglect and a friend of hers brought Lawyer Marx to see her. Mr. Marx brought a doctor, who examined her, and the doctor said that beyond a doubt it was a case of gross neglect. Lawyer Marx told her she had a clear case and agreed to take the case. She had X-ray pictures taken in Duluth that cost her $15.50.

"Mr. Marx asked her for some money, but she didn't have much, as her husband is a laboring man and in her condition she had to keep help most of the time, as she is unable to get around with the use of crutches. He asked her for $100. She gave him $20 then, and after she came home she made arrangements with the storekeepers, who agreed to wait for their money. She sent $40 in April and $40 in May. Mr. Marx told her the case would come off in May. She didn't hear from him until June. Then he said he would come and see her, but he failed to do so. Then the woman who went to Duluth with her called him up by telephone, and he said to tell her not to be uneasy. Then she wrote to him in October and sent him a registered letter in January, but he hasn't answered any of them.

"She is unable to write on account of her eyes. While she was in Duluth the doctor gave her some medicine for her eyes, and while her eyes were so sore Lawyer Marx brought her a paper to sign. She was alone at the time. The woman friend was out and she wanted to wait until she came back to sign the paper, but Marx refused to wait. He read the paper to her but he read so fast she couldn't understand what he said, only that he was suing for $10,000, so she don't know what she signed.

"Her husband is indignant about the money. He has to work hard for what he gets and in giving that money to Marx it put them so far behind that they just paid up the store last month.

"If she could have got that much money together since then she could have gone to a hospital for treatment, but through Marx she is put back a year.

"If the doctor that first treated her had told her he couldn't have helped her she would have tried to see a specialist, but he kept trying to patch up a spoiled job.

"She is in hopes you can give her some advice. Marx certainly ought to be brought to account. If you can give her any advice please do so. You can address either her or I. I am helping her at present as her eyes hurt her and she can't take a step without crutches. Her case is indeed pitiful.

"Hoping you can give her some advice, and thanking you in advance, I remain, yours truly,

"MRS. HARRY EMERY,
"Pineville, Minn."

"Her address is Mrs. Mark Millington, Pineville, Minn."

WIRES OUT OF COMMISSION

the commercial business and the Associated Press service of The Herald were delayed for a large part of the day.

Railroad men believe the storm of last night and this morning to be purely local. Trains have not been delayed as railroad men regard delay. Some trains have been from five to fifteen minutes late, but according to reports that is about the limit, and that is claimed to be likely to happen any day.

The street railway company was not bothered by the storm until the wires of the Great Northern Power company refused to work this morning. Everything was off for about ten to fifteen minutes. The street cars were stalled, electric lights, where they are needed in daytime, had to stand for candles as substitutes, newspaper presses stopped their hum and in general everybody who needs electrical assistance was "up against it."

The North American Telegraph company was the most unfortunate of all those in this part of the country where the "juice" is required for the transaction of business.

The Western Union management is shaking hands with itself. Its wire superintendents were on the qui vive expecting trouble but very little developed.

The telephone companies had little or no more trouble than usual.

DIABETES YIELDS IN HOSPITAL

Place—Good Samaritan's Hospital in Dawson City, Yukon Territory, Alaska.

Patient—G. A. Hatch, a business man of Dawson.

Case—Diabetes, believed to be incurable the world over.

Prognosis—Hopeless, not only because physicians consider it so, but the condition of the patient was so extreme that death was believed to be not far away.

A friend of Hatch's, by the name of E. S. Strait, auctioneer of Dawson, heard about his plight, and called upon him. Strait told Hatch that five years ago he was in the same fix and sent to California for Fulton's Diabetic Compound, and it restored him to business. He stated that he kept some of it on hand and would loan Hatch some till more could be had from San Francisco.

To the surprise of the doctor, nurses and Hatch's friends he was soon able to leave the hospital. Instead of being in his grave, as was fully expected, four months later found him on a visit to his old home in Portland, Maine.

Passing through San Francisco he called at our office and gave us this item in person.

If you have diabetes and are over fifty years of age you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Diabetic Compound before giving up. You can get it at druggists supplied by Leithhead Drug Co.

REUNION AT GETTYSBURG

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Great Battle Will Be Held in July.

W. P. Strickland Gathering Names of Duluthians Who Fought There.

Were you in the battle of Gettysburg? If you were, send your name to W. P. Strickland of this city and tell him that you will be glad to go to the national reunion on the field of Gettysburg on July 1 and 3 this year.

Mr. Strickland, of 21 Carlisle avenue, has been asked to secure the names of all Gettysburg veterans in Duluth who will attend that reunion. Great preparations are being made for the old soldiers, both those who fought for the North and those who fought for the South. It is expected that 40,000 men will meet on the field where the decisive battle of the Civil war took place, and camp accommodations are to be furnished by the Federal government for that number of men.

During the present session the state legislature appropriated $20,000 to defray the expenses of the Minnesota Gettysburg veterans who will go to the reunion. The only equipment the veterans themselves are expected to furnish consists of a tin plate, a tin cup, and a spoon, knife and fork. Camp tents and dining tents will be provided by the government, and the meals will be served to the men in these.

President Wilson and his cabinet will attend the encampment, and will take part in the exercises during the three days. A feature of these will be the laying of the cornerstone of a national peace monument. This will be laid under the auspices of both the Federal and Confederate veterans, and probably will be placed at "the high water mark of the Confederacy." This is the place where Pickett's charge against the Union lines was broken by the Union army, and is, as nearly as can be determined, the exact spot where the preservation of the Union began to be an assured fact.

Wants All Names.

It is important that all the names of Duluth veterans who will attend the Gettysburg reunion should be in Mr. Strickland's hands by the last of this month so that preparations for their transportation and accommodation can be made. They must be on the Gettysburg field by July 1, the anniversary of the first day of the big battle. The encampment on the field of Gettysburg probably will continue throughout the week, though the formal reunion exercises, as planned at present, will occupy only the three anniversary days of the battle, July 1, 2 and 3. The veterans will have to leave Duluth by June 27 at the latest in order to be present at the opening of the reunion.

This Gettysburg gathering will be the most impressive that has been held by the veterans since the close of the Civil war. It will not only be held on the field where the great battle was fought, but it will bring together the men who opposed each other there, to talk over the days when they were trying to kill one another, and contrast that other meeting at Gettysburg with this one a half century later.

That reminiscences will play a big part in the events of the Gettysburg week goes without saying. In these, Comrade Strickland will be able to take an interesting part, even should he recount no more than the few incidents he outlined to a Herald reporter who went to ask him about the plans for the reunion. Mr. Strickland enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-first New York regiment as a drummer boy, being too young to be accepted as a full-fledged soldier. This regiment, according to the records in the war department, participated in twenty-five of the most important battles of the war, including Antietam, Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, the Bloody Angle at Spottsylvania Courthouse, Cold Harbor, the siege of Petersburg and four battles under Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley.

Captured By Enemy.

In the list of 2,000 regiments that took part in the Civil war, the One Hundred and Twenty-first New York stands twelfth in the rank of those that lost the most men in battle. Throughout the three years of the regiment's service, Mr. Strickland lost not a day with the regiment, though he came exceedingly close to losing several days when he was captured by the enemy, not to mention the times when shots pierced his clothing or came so close as to leave marks on his flesh.

It was at Chancellorsville that he was captured. The night after the first day's fighting the drum corps was at work with other members of the regiment removing the wounded from between the opposing lines of battle. Rebel skirmishers were watching the field and occasionally took pot-shots at the men, so most of the work had to be done either crouching or lying flat on the ground, and the wounded were moved by being rolled onto blankets, which were then dragged within the lines with their human burdens.

A sudden shift of position on the part of the rebel line caught the Union drummer boy and his comrades behind the gray front, and they were marched to the rear of the Confederate line of battle, where all the prisoners taken during the day were herded together, preparatory to being removed to Richmond. It was night, very dark, and a cold drizzle made the situation even more uncomfortable than it might otherwise have been. Mr. Strickland tells what followed in words something like these:

"I was sitting there, all hunched up in the rain, along with the rest of the boys, and I was mighty blue. My mind kept going back to home and all the things they were doing there, and I thought of my father, a chaplain in the navy, and my two brothers, who were serving in other regiments in the Union army. In fact, I thought of everything that could make a young chap feel blue, I guess.

"Next to me there crouched another drummer boy from the same corps as myself, named George Fay. After we had been sitting there for what seemed like half the night Fay nudged me with his elbow.

"'Come on, Strick,' he said, 'let's get out of this.'

"The idea seemed so preposterous that I didn't even give it a second thought. We were behind two lines of Confederate soldiers, besides the skirmish line, and there seemed absolutely no chance of crossing the space between the Rebel and Union skirmish lines alive, even if we could manage to get that far. So I paid no attention to Fay's talk.

"The guard who was over our squad of prisoners had been fighting all day, and he was pretty tired, and once when he had got to the end of his beat he put his musket on the ground, rested his arm on it and laid his face in his arm for a moment.

Ran For It.

"Quick as a flash Fay jumped and ran, and without thinking what I was doing I took after him. The guard near by shouted at us, but it was so dark that he probably thought that he was mistaken, since the rest of the prisoners made no move. Fay and I ran a few rods, then slowed down and walked as naturally as we could. We soon came to the inner line of the army, and found the men walking to and fro, only a few of them being able to sleep or even to lie still for any length of time. We mixed in with them, and in the darkness were not suspected. Gradually we worked our way through that line and on to the front line of battle, where we practiced the same slow tactics we had with the other men.

"The next question was how to get outside the skirmish line, and at the same time not draw the fire from the Union side. The skirmishers were all awake, and all at work. Every minute or so there would be a flash of musketry, either from the Rebel or the Union line, and sometimes three or four men would fire at the same time. There was only about two rods between each skirmisher and the man next in line, and it looked like a pretty poor chance to get by.

"Finally I stumbled and fell into a ditch that crossed the skirmish line and seemed to cross the field diagonally in the direction of our own army. The ditch wasn't over three feet deep, but I whispered to Fay that we might be able to crawl along in it and so get by the skirmishers. We tried it, but it wasn't exactly a pleasant business. At one place the ditch went so close to a rebel skirmisher that I could have raised up and taken hold of him with my hand without stretching my arm to its full length. But I didn't do it. I didn't even want to. I just wanted to get away from there, and I couldn't even do that as fast as I wanted to, for fear some little noise might prompt the skirmisher to stick his musket down into the ditch and shoot. They were not waiting to investigate before they shot, in those days.

"But we made it safely as far as that skirmisher was concerned, and kept on crawling in the ditch, not daring to come up out of it for fear we might have both line of skirmishers shooting at us.

"Finally we came to the end of the ditch, and then we were stumped. We couldn't tell just where we were, and it was too dark to make even a good guess. So we lay still, on the bottom of the ditch, until daylight began to come. When he could see a little we found we were about two-thirds of the way across the field between the skirmish lines, and liable to be shot down from either side. We waited until it got a little lighter, and then began to signal to the Union men by waving our caps above the edge of the ditch. They called an officer, and after watching our signals for awhile he beckoned to us to come on into the lines. Well, we did it, but it was an anxious piece of business, I can tell you. We jumped and ran as hard as we could for the Union lines, and the minute we were above ground it seemed as if every rebel skirmisher in the whole line let fly at us. There was a storm of lead around us that a fellow can't describe to anybody who hasn't been in one like it. It wasn't a very long run to the lines, not nearly as long as it seemed. But I don't think we were either of us sorry when it was over."

These two were the only ones of the prisoners taken at that time who escaped. They were offered the chance to be exchanged to some other regiment's drum corps until their own corps was exchanged and back in service, but Mr. Strickland preferred to stay with his own company, and so was allowed to take his place in the ranks. The rest of the men captured with him spent the next nine months in the rebel prison of Belle Isle, and then were paroled and spent nine months more recuperating in the parole station at Annapolis, Md., so that they lost a year and a half of service.

GOOD ROADS ARE HELPED

North Dakota Advocates of Better Highways Pleased By New Laws.

Doing Away With "Working Out" Road Taxes Is Big Boon.

Fargo, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The good roads enthusiasts of North Dakota have some things to encourage them as a result of the recent legislative session. Among the measures enacted were two of interest to the good roads movement. One provides for state aid and makes the state eligible to receive Federal aid and to participate in the proposed national trans-continental roads.

The chief cause for elation, however, is the measure by Farmer Dynes of Cass county, which provides for the payment of road taxes in cash. The early settlers of this state adopted the traditional methods of older sections and permitted farmers to "work out" their road taxes. The "working out" process was light on the farmers' purses but it never proved beneficial to the roads, as the farmers usually converted road day into a general picnic. The Dynes bill makes it possible now to have the roads worked by contract and systematically.

Good Roads Meet March 19.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the state good roads convention to be held here March 19, when representative men from all over the state will be in attendance and will participate in the discussion. The new road legislation will be discussed in all its phases so the people will know just what the changes really mean. Governor Hanna and State Engineer Atkinson will be the leading speakers.

The greatest boost for good roads in North Dakota is the fact that so many of the farmers own autos. They have the double interest of wanting the roads good for their machines and for hauling their farm products to market.

The local automobile club has always been an active factor and will do more work this year than ever before.

LICENSE VICTORY IS SHORT LIVED

Mahnomen Votes "Wet" and Court Enjoins Issuing Licenses.

Mahnomen, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although this village voted for a license by twenty-seven votes Tuesday, the joy of the saloon keepers was turned to consternation the next day when the members of the village council were served with injunction papers restraining them from issuing any licenses.

The question will be heard at a special term of the district court to be held here on the 28th of the month. The matter is brought before the courts at the instance of County Attorney J. T. Van Metre, who holds that the village has no legal right to issue licenses, as Mahnomen is on the White Earth reservation. As the present licenses will expire on the 15th, a few days of drought is assured.

Mahnomen has been dry twice before, but never by a vote of the people. "Pussyfoot" Johnson closed the saloons once. There were no saloons here after that until the Willard decision was rendered. Two licenses were granted shortly after that, but these were both revoked by the council on account of the selling of liquor to persons of Indian blood. There were no more granted for several months after that. The question will undoubtedly now go to the supreme court and be finally determined, so far as the state's authority goes.

IS SEEKING PARDON.

Michigan Convict Arrested on Mesaba Range Would Leave Prison.

Houghton, Mich., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—George E. Hamilton, who was sent to the penitentiary from here four years ago for sending an infernal machine to August Beck, then local sheriff, is seeking a commutation, according to Dr. Rocke of Wolverine, a member of the pardon board. Hamilton was known in Duluth and on the Mesaba range, being arrested at Virginia and brought here for trial. He was sentenced for from ten years to life. It is understood that he will get little or no time off for good behavior, for his record while in prison has not been exemplary.

Hamilton's crime attracted considerable attention throughout the whole country. Former Sheriff Beck received a package from Iron River, Wis., with instructions to "open here." His suspicions were aroused, however, and he exercised more precautions in opening the box. It proved the package contained an infernal machine. After some clever detective work, Hamilton was arrested in Minnesota and convicted.

The prisoner was once a prominent business man in Laurium, having conducted a prosperous livery business. Business reverses came, and after the burning of his home and stable, he was suspected of arson, and the crime was proven. After serving a short sentence he left the Copper country and was not heard from again until the infernal machine arrived.

TO FIGHT READY PRINTS.

North Dakota Country Newspapers Are to Defy "Trust."

Grand Forks, N. D., March 14.—Claiming that the big publishing houses, that furnish the smaller publishers with their newspapers, one side printed, have united under a gentleman's agreement as to prices and quality of product, and have raised costs to the printer to a point that makes it almost impossible for him to live, 350 country newspapers in North Dakota, members of the North Dakota Press association have agreed to discontinue the use of the syndicate "ready-prints" and are taking steps to organize a co-operative plant for the production of their own papers. Knowing that for a time during period of change their papers will suffer in makeup and production, they have laid the matter fairly before their subscribers asking their forbearance and support during their fight with the "trust."

NEW LAND OPENING.

People Glad Standing Rock Lands Will Be Thrown Open.

Fort Yates, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement that the bill for the opening of the remaining lands on the Standing Rock reservation had become a law pleases the people of this section. No date for the opening or how it will be done has been announced, but it is understood there will be no more land lotteries. It is possible that the government will permit settlers to file for the first three months on payment of $5 per acre, the next three at $3.50 per acre and the subsequent three at $2.50. Shields, Fort Yates, Morristown and McLaughlin will be benefitted by the opening. While the Indian allotment lands are the best there is considerable fine farming land left.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Man Drowned Last Summer at Spooner, From Grassey River, Ont.

Spooner, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The man drowned from the Spooner dock May 26 last has been identified as Carl Hedman of Grassey River, Ont., a brother of Mrs. Arvid Lindstrom, formerly living at Pitt. His father and two brothers live at Grassey River.

When the body was discovered by J. W. Collins, no one was able to identify it. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

GOOD ROADS ARE HELPED

Doing Away With "Working Out" Road Taxes Is Big Boon.

Bismarck, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The good roads enthusiasts of North Dakota have some cause to congratulate themselves as a result of the recent legislative session. Among the measures enacted were two relating to good roads movements, one providing for state aid and making counties eligible to receive state aid, and the other authorizing counties to participate in the construction of the transcontinental highway.

The measure for election, however, is the measure by Farmer Dynes of Ransom county, which provides for the payment of road taxes in cash. The other sections of this state adopted the old system of methods of older sections and required farmers to "work out" their road tax. The "working out" system ran on the farmers' honor system and never proved beneficial to the roads, as the farmers usually put the time into a general picnic. The Dynes bill makes it possible to have the roads worked by contract instead of personally.

Good Roads Meet March 19.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the state good roads convention to be held here March 19, and a large representative men from all over the state will be in attendance and participate in the discussion. The good roads legislation will be discussed at length and the people will learn what the changes really mean. Hon. Hiram and Stole Ellsworth will be the leading speakers.

Interest for good roads is increased by the fact that so many autos and "They are waiting machines and farm products to

The middle child is always neglected, but it will be more than ever before.

LICENSE VICTORY IS SHORT LIVED

Mahnomen Votes "Wet" and Court Enjoins Issuing Licenses.

Mahnomen, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although this village voted for a license by twenty-seven votes Tuesday, the joy of the saloon keepers was turned to consternation the next day when the members of the village council were served with injunction papers restraining them from issuing any licenses.

The question will be heard at a special term of the district court to be held here on the 28th of the month. The matter is brought before the courts at the instance of County Attorney J. T. Van Metre, who holds that the Village has no legal right to issue licenses, as Mahnomen is on the White Earth reservation. As the present licenses will expire on the 15th, a few days of drought is assured.

Mahnomen has been dry twice before, but never by a vote of the people. "Pussyfoot" Johnson closed the saloons once. There were no saloons here after that until the Willard decision was rendered. Two licenses were granted shortly after that, but these were both revoked by the council on account of the selling of liquor to persons of Indian blood. There were no more granted for several months after that. The question will undoubtedly now go to the supreme court and be finally determined, so far as the state's authority goes.

IS SEEKING PARDON.

Michigan Convict Arrested on Mesaba Range Would Leave Prison.

Houghton, Mich., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—George E. Hamilton, who was sent to the penitentiary from here four years ago for sending an infernal machine to August Lindstrom, local sheriff, is seeking a commutation, according to Dr. Roche of Wolverine, a member of the pardon board. Hamilton was known in Duluth and on the Mesaba range, being arrested at Virginia and brought here for trial. He was sentenced for from ten years to life. It is understood that he will get little or no time off for good behavior, for his record while in prison has not been exemplary.

Hamilton's crime attracted considerable attention throughout the whole country. Former Sheriff Beck received a package from Iron River, Wis., with instructions to "open here." His suspicions were aroused, however, and he exercised more precautions in opening the box. It proved the package contained an infernal machine. After some clever detective work, Hamilton was arrested in Minnesota and convicted.

The prisoner was once a prominent business man in Laurium, having conducted a prosperous livery business. Business reverses came, and after the burning of his home and stable, he was suspected of arson, and the crime was proven. After serving a short sentence he left the Copper country and was not heard from again until the infernal machine arrived.

TO FIGHT READY PRINTS.

North Dakota Country Newspapers Are to Defy "Trust."

Grand Forks, N. D., March 14.—Claiming that the big publishing houses, that furnish the smaller publishers with their newspapers, one side printed, have united under a gentleman's agreement as to prices and quality of product, and have raised costs to the printer to a point that makes it almost impossible for him to live, 350 country newspapers in North Dakota, members of the North Dakota Press association have agreed to discontinue the use of the syndicate "ready-prints" and are taking steps to organize a cooperative plant for the production of their own papers. Knowing that for a time during period of change their papers will suffer in make-up and production, they have laid the matter fairly before their subscribers asking their forbearance and support during their fight with the "trust."

NEW LAND OPENING.

People Glad Standing Rock Lands Will Be Thrown Open.

Fort Yates, N. D., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement that the bill for the opening of the remaining lands on the Standing Rock reservation had become a law pleases the people of this section. No date for the opening or how it will be done has been announced, but it is understood there will be no more land lotteries. It is possible that the government will permit settlers to file for the first three months on payment of $5 per acre, the next three at $2.50 per acre and the subsequent three at $2.50. Shields, Fort Yates, Morristown and McLaughlin will be benefited by the opening. While the Indian allotment lands are the best there is considerable fine farming land left.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

CARLTON SCHAUB, former captain of the Minnesota Boat club, was here yesterday and during a conversation gave out some information of early interest regarding the forthcoming Northwestern International regatta, which this year is to be rowed over the Mississippi river course at St. Paul.

"Detroit and Grand Rapids are coming up this season for the express purpose of defeating Duluth," was the statement of Mr. Schaub. "The members of these two clubs took their defeat at the national very hard and are looking for revenge. This desire for revenge is what is going to make the regatta the present season the best in years.

"Minnesota should be strong this year. We tried every way possible to induce John Kennedy to come out shortly after the first of the year and take the crew candidates in hand. Thought we had the matter fixed up, but some family objections at the last moment prevented our carrying out the scheme.

"At the present time the officials of the club are in communication with some Eastern rowing man, with the idea of having this chap come out and take charge of the oarsmen. The boys have started training and there is some promising material in sight. Sure, we are going to promise to have a better representation than last year.

"'Pears to me as if the senior eight race will be some contest. We have heard from Winnipeg. They tell us that the same old senior bunch is out on the road already. If the Winnipeg senior eight is as good as it was last season, and you have the same eight that represented your club at the National, and then Detroit and Grand Rapids enter the race, this event should be by all odds the best race ever held in the history of the regatta association."

Mr. Schaub stated that Jimmy Otis had been elected as commodore of the club and "Mon" Cochran captain. The officials are going after new blood and promise to have some of the best crews in the history of the famous Mississippi river rowing organization.

THE ENTRY of the Lakeside Athletic club into the local field is calculated to prove one of the best things imaginable for Duluth athletics. For instance the equipment of a first class gymnasium where visiting athletes, if they bring the passing qualification of being a gentleman, will be admitted, will be a good thing for the city in general, for since the passing of the gymnasiums of the old McKay and Duluth Athletic club, there has not been a place, with the exception of the fire hall and the Catholic Athletic club, where courtesies were extended to celebrities from the big outside.

For long the extreme East end of Duluth has felt the need of an athletic club. A large part of the best athletic material of the city resides in this portion of Duluth. Athletic clubs run along the right lines make for the development of strong-limbed athletes and clean-minded boys. This is one of the cardinal aims of the new club, which gives early indication of fulfilling what should be the cherished object of every well disciplined organization of this sort.

PACKEY McFARLAND and Jack Britton may meet over the twenty round route. Overtures are being made to the pair at the present time by Uncle Tom McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club of Los Angeles.

Although eclipsed by the brilliant boxing of McFarland in the recent garden festival, Britton still clings tenaciously to the straw of the longer limit.

"I can beat Packey McFarland over the twenty round route," wailed the disappointed Britton in his dressing room after the contest of the other evening.

Dumb Dan Morgan, so called because he is the nearest thing to the phonograph that has been discovered to date, sought this alibi with both hands. All live managers seek alibis. All except Eddy Reddy, and there is a grave question as to whether he is a live one. He is after the match in the sunny clime of California and the only stipulation that remains is the important question of money.

Christy Mathewson has come boldly out in print and declared his liking for the playing of Jim Thorpe. After this it will be difficult for McGraw to tie a can to the aborigine.

At the rate the suffragettes are going at the present time there should be some great pitchers developed in the next generation.

The present age is surely a skeptical one. Every once in a while you run across some young fellow who asks who John L. Sullivan ever beat.

Surely baseball has become elevated. President Woodrow Wilson is scheduled to pitch the first ball at Washington. In the older days the leading prize fighter of the community was generally chosen for this distinction.

Pitchers who have lost all semblance of control might find strenuous employment in the firing line of the militant suffragettes.

The reports that large Edward Walsh is showing great form in the spring training is gladsome assurance that Charley Comiskey will have at least part of a team.

As a diplomat there are some who come nearer to our ideal of this calling, but Emil Klank, if authorized to come through with an offer of $20,000 might succeed in getting great Gotch back on the mat. Funny, this money madness.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

From the training camp comes the news that Christy Mathewson is showing some of the old stuff that has made him one of the most famous twirlers in the world. Though nearing the age when most baseball players are through with the spangles, this brainy exponent of the best in the game continues to be one of the decided factors in the success of the Giants.

LARGE SUM TO BE SPENT AT THE CURLING CLUB

Banquet Hall to Be Built, Sun Room Constructed and Other Improvements Made at Big Building.

Plans are already afoot for the improvement of the Duluth Curling club. At a meeting of the directors and members of the club, held at the club rooms, ways and means were discussed as to the raising of $15,000 for the interior completion and improvement of the big building.

Among the improvements listed are those of placing plate glass windows at both ends of the rink. There are windows at the upper end of the rink at the present time, but these will be replaced with plate glass in order that the view of the games may be unobstructed by the small panes.

The sun room and banquet hall are to be built at the other end of the building, this space being unused at the present time. This will give a large and cozy observation room at the lower end of the rink and will enable the club to comfortably seat a large number of spectators.

The club rooms are to be improved and furniture purchased, and the banquet hall is also to be built.

Methods of raising the necessary funds were thoroughly discussed and it is stated that the money is in sight. With the completion of contemplated improvements it is believed that the Duluth Curling club will be surpassed by none in the country.

According to the reports of the hockey committee of the club the game has proved a financial winner during its first year here; that is the first season it was placed on a large basis.

Something like $2,800 is the result of the present season and this is after some very large expenditures were made to get the team started. It s believed that in another year the returns from the hockey end will be trebled, as the season that is practically at an end has been a very short one.

Among the possible future investments of the club is an artificial ice plant. However, until the present indebtedness of the club is less than it is at the present time. It is hardly believed that the board of directors will consider the purchasing of apparatus that would prolong the season to an indefinite length.

N. Y. YACHT CLUB REPLY EXPLAINS ITS ATTITUDE.

New York, March 14.—The New York Yacht club "would have accepted with pleasure an unconditional challenge for the cup similar to those which it has received in the past from the Royal Ulster Yacht club and which have resulted in the three series of matches for the cup between our respective clubs."

This is perhaps the most striking sentence in the reply of the New York Yacht club, declining Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for a series of races for the American cup in 1914. The reply emphasizes the unwillingness of the New York Yacht club to accept a challenge which deprives the club of its right to select under the broad limits of the deed of gift a yacht of such type as it considers a fit defender of the famous trophy.

The club's objection was centered upon Sir Thomas' requirement that the cup be defended by a yacht with a length on the low water line of not more than 75 feet, contrary to the terms of the deed of gift, which allows a length of from 65 to 90 feet. The reply carries the resolutions passed at last night's meeting.

CRACK NORMAL TEAM TO PLAY

Fast Superior Quint Will Meet Duluth Boat Club Team.

The fast Superior Normal alumni basket ball team will be seen for the first time on a local floor when they play the Boat club team Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. "gym."

The Normal alumni have lost only one game this season and that to the boat club team by a close score, two weeks ago. The "Peds" say that their regular center man was not in that game but will be in the mix tomorrow night and with their strongest line-up in the field are confident from winning from the "oarsmen."

The Boat club five has been playing good ball in their games lately, their team work having improved noticeably. The basket shooting in the last two games in Superior was not up to their usual standard, but this was accountable in a great measure to the very fast banking boards in use at the Superior Normal "gym." The oarsmen also have lost but one game and are out to finish their schedule with straight wins.

The game should be one of the very fastest and will be one of the last of the season.

The teams will probably line up:

RITCHIE WAS DISCOVERED BY A FORMER CINCINNATIAN

Cincinnati, March 14.—The man who discovered Willie Ritchie has been discovered. He is a Cincinnatian, who went to the Pacific coast years ago. Ben Bruns, formerly a member of the famous Exeter minstrels, is the man in question. Bruns is an interesting character. He has been in all parts of the world, and was the first man to introduce vaudeville in Honolulu. Bruns is now a millionaire and takes life easy, but he is very much interested in Ritchie's welfare.

"Billy Ritchie got his name from me," said Mr. Bruns. "In 1903 he was driving a 'sandhek,' or sand dump cart, in Frisco, and used to punch the bag in my warehouse. At that time I was in the patent medicine business and an ardent boxing fan. One night a boy named Ritchie was to appear in an amateur bout and Billy took his place and adopted his name at the same time when called upon as a substitute. His real name is Gerhardt Aloysius Steffen, and he is a devout church member, and was brought up in the Catholic faith. His parents came from Germany, but he was born in Frisco and is 23 years of age. He was born on Feb. 13, 1891. There are ten children in the family. His father still lives in San Francisco, but his mother died shortly after the earthquake. As near as I can recall he has six brothers and three sisters. Louis Steffen, one of his brothers, is a vaudeville performer. Frank Steffen, another brother, was quite a clever boxer and taught Billy the manly art."

Has Fine Character.

"Billy," said he, "has as fine a character as you would find anywhere. He is a careful thinker, good liver, faithful trainer, and has complete knowledge of the art of boxing.

"I first saw him after the earthquake in 1906. He was then driving a sand cart. My place of business was at 446 Clementina street, south of Market. While digging in the ruins the men came into my building to rest. Near by was an eating house. A young man named Walter Schwartz conducted the place. He was a good boxer and taught Billy the rudiments of the game. At that time Billy weighed only 105 pounds. 'Say, Ben,' asked Billy, 'can't you fix up some sort of a gymnasium to train in?' Being a crank on boxing myself, I complied with the request. It was in this improvised gymnasium that the champion was developed. His brother, Frank, who was an accomplished boxer, looked after the boy's training.'

"Did Billy show any of the proverbial 'ear marks' of a fighter, Mr. Bruns?"

Didn't Look Good.

"Just about as much signs as I show of being a race horse, but he was full of fight and loaded to the guards with ambition. I honestly believe that seeing Sam Langford fight is what made him the boy he is. Sam has a very fine side shift on the order of the one used by the late Stanley Ketchell. Billy got a peek at this, and then went in the ring and beat Monk Enocks, an Indianapolis boxer, who was on the coast at the time. The police stopped the contest in a round and a half. Billy then got used to fighting every week or so, and, never having received a beating, was the proudest kid you ever saw. He took up the 4-round game in San Francisco and made good at it. He beat any number of good men in short bouts without gaining any advantage in the way of championship fights. 'Frisco knew him well, but the outside world did not."

"Is is true that Billy quit fighting at a time when he was going along at a lively clip?" Mr. Bruns was asked.

"Yes, he did quit fighting, but only for a better purpose. He showed remarkable skill ss a mechanic, and at the solicitation of a big automobile dealer took up repair work. He is an expert mechanician and knows the buzz wagon from one end to the other. Tiring of his trade he got on a match with a boy named Charley Reilly and beat him. In 1910 Ritchie again quit boxing and came East.

"Upon his return from the trip East he got an offer to fight Antone La Grave. He accepted, but La Grave refused to fight. After this fiasco I made another business trip to Honolulu. While away Ritchie came to the front like a rocket. He made that famous twenty-round fight with Freddie Welsh, at Los Angeles, taking the bout on twenty-four hours' notice. This is the go that brought him into the limelight."

Mr. Bruns says that Ritchie is a good saver and provides well for his father and brothers. His brothers' names are Frank, Henry, Lou, Mike and "Pigeon" (the nickname of the youngest).

WILL FRANK GOTCH SHOW OLD ABILITY?

FRANK GOTCH.

Gotch has been flirting with the comeback during the greater part of the present season. Figuratively speaking the great champion has been itching to get back in the game. Money talks, they say, and it might be added that the old thing with the lady's head has one of the most eloquent and persuasive tongues in the world. While this talk of the return of Gotch is being indulged in the world will wonder if the marvelous man of Humboldt is the Gotch of old.

FLOOD IS MADE WINNIPEG PILOT

Former St. Paul Player Signs as Manager; Winona Likely to Come in.

Tim Flood has been appointed the manager of the Winnipeg club. Flood is a former member of the St. Paul American association team and is a baseball man with lots of experience. Just how much executive ability he possesses, is a question that the progress of the season will alone answer.

It looks at the present time as if Winona would decide to come into the league. Reports from there indicate that some of the wealthy merchants of the city have agreed to form a holding company and take out sufficient stock to guarantee the amount that the rules of the new league require as a deposit of good faith and also as a guarantee of the team completing the schedule.

In the event of Winona coming in the offer from Fort William will not be considered, it is understood.

Hockey Results.

New York, March 14.—The champion Quebec hockey team was defeated, 9 to 4, here last night by the Wanderer seven of Montreal.

Boston, Mass., March 14.—The Winnipeg All-Stars, met defeat here tonight, 6 to 4, at the hands of the Pilgrim Hockey club of this city.

Signs O'Leary.

St. Louis, Mo., March 14.—A dispatch from Columbus, Ga., where the St. Louis National league club is in training, says that Manager Huggins has signed Charles O'Leary of the Indianapolis team and former American league star, to take the place of Shortstop Arnold Hauser whose injury Wednesday will keep him out of the game for several weeks. He will remain with the club as a utility infielder.

Tyler Gets Increase.

Boston, Mass., March 14.—George A. Tyler, pitcher of the Boston Nationals signed a contract for the coming season at the training camp at Athens, Ga., yesterday. He was given an increase in salary of $900.

FEW EVENTS REMAINING

Only Seven Games Left in Regular Trophy Curling Play.

Finals in Four Title Contests May Be Played Saturday Evening.

There are but seven remaining games in the regular trophy curling events on the present season's schedule of the Duluth Curling club. Of the games left on the four unfinished events, two remain in the Manley, three in the Duluth Universal, one in The Herald and one in the Bagley.

Dinham and Bradley will meet this evening in the Manley, the winner going into the finals. Walsh and Schiller will meet in the Universal, the winner of this contest also going into the finals. Bradley and Fregean are also to meet in the Universal and the winner of this game will likewise go into the finals of this event, thus bringing three rinks into the finals as the result of the play of this evening.

It is expected that the regular trophy event play will come to an end with the games of tomorrow evening, if the present plans are carried out. This season, counting the regular events, will go down in the annals of the curling club as the most successful in the history of the organization.

With the close of the regular trophy games curling will not be called off for the present season. There is the Anderson event to be played with Superior, and then there will also be the president's and vice president's event to be contested for, with a large and succulent supper as the prize.

Just so long as the ice holds out there will be curling. She's a great old game, she is, and it is safe to state that never before has the game taken the persistent and tenacious hold as it has the present winter.

JUNIOR TEAMS IN TITLE GAME

The Intermediates of the curling club and the Nationals will meet this evening at the curling club rink in what may prove the deciding championship hockey game in the Intermediate league. Both of the teams are tied at the top of the percentage ladder and the contest will put one of the two sevens in the lead. The contest is expected to prove the best of the present season in the Intermediate league circles.

PULMOTOR SAVES LIFE OF INFANT

Newly-Born Child of Virginian Given Breath By Machine.

Virginia, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The pulmotor, the wonderful artificial resuscitation oxygen apparatus that is saving lives all over the world, scored a new victory on the Mesaba range yesterday when it put breath into a newly born child and saved the little one to its parents, Superintendent and Mrs. Charles Grabosky of the Alpena mine near here. A little daughter was born to them yesterday and the infant breathed so little that after forty-five minutes' work in endeavoring to induce respiration the doctor gave up all hopes of its living.

Rush Pulmotor From Eveleth.

In despair the father, a member of the Oliver first aid corps called up the company's Eveleth mine rescue station and requisitioned the pulmotor. Mr. Trevarrow, in charge of this station, responded in record time in an automobile making the trip to the house from Eveleth in twenty-five minutes from the time he received the call. Arriving, he immediately set to work to adjust the large pulmotor to the tiny infant. This machine is not being designed for such a small patient, he and Dr. Ewens had some difficulty in getting it adjusted. Twenty minutes from the time Mr. Trevarrow arrived the pulmotor had established the regular breathing of the child.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Hawes, mine rescue engineer of the Oliver company, telephoned to Duluth for an infant pulmotor which he recently received from Germany. This was dispatched on the flyer, arriving at Virginia at 10 p. m. where it was met by Mr. Hawes and General Superintendent Hawkins and rushed in an auto to the home.

Dr. Ewens and Mr. Hawes remained in attendance all night giving several treatments with the infant pulmotor which is designed especially for cases of this kind. The child is resting easily and breathing in a normal manner and everything looks favorable for its living.

NEW ROAD BIDS WILL BE OPENED

At Joint Meeting of Stuntz and Keewatin Township Boards Saturday.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The town board of the township of Stuntz and the Nashwauk town board will hold a joint meeting at Keewatin Saturday to open bids for the construction of that portion of the new judicial road between Hibbing and Keewatin and Goodlands in which both townships have reached an agreement to bear half the cost. The Stuntz town board will have a meeting in Hibbing Saturday evening at which considerable business of importance is to come up for disposition.

Tax Levy Is $180,000.

The tax levy for the township of Stuntz for the year 1913 has been fixed at $180,000. This is the largest sum ever levied by the township and is $55,000 larger than last year. The extra amount is levied for the purpose of taking up outstanding township orders and stopping the payment of interest and is in line with the board's policy of conserving the township's funds. The newly elected township officers are expected to qualify at the meeting Saturday night.

MONEY DISTRIBUTED.

Sum Received From Company for Man's Death Divided By Court.

Virginia, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The application for distribution of funds in the case of Louis Kallanj, administrator for George Vukelic vs. the Oliver Iron Mining company has been granted and the order filed in the district court here.

George Vukelic was killed at the Alpena mine here in December, 1911 and the company voluntarily paid $1,377.30 without taking the case into court.

Distribution of this sum has been ordered by the court as follows: Louis Kallanj, $51.72, for expenses, $60 for service, total $114.72; Luja Vukelic, wife of deceased, $337.75; Mate Vukelic, child of deceased, $168.88; Marija Vukelic, child of deceased, $168.88; Mrs. Jela Pintar, step daughter, $168.88.

FIREBREAKS ORDERED

Around Northern Minnesota Towns Surrounded By Woods.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Forest Ranger H. C. Nelson has returned from St. Paul, where he attended a meeting of the state rangers to consider desirable changes in state laws affecting the forest service and to hear a series of lectures on the practical side of a forester's work by experts at the state school of agriculture.

Mr. Nelson is mailing to the newly elected village and town boards copies of the state law requiring that firebreaks must be installed around all towns that are surrounded by forests. The attention of the village councils at both Nashwauk and Keewatin will be especially directed to the law. Mr. Nelson says the risk is greater in those two towns than at any place on the range.

An examination will be held in Hibbing Friday, March 21, for forest patrolmen to serve in this district. Mr. Nelson's territory extends from International Falls to Pine City and comprises a total of fifty-four townships. Within a few weeks he will make a trip over the entire district to see that the logging contractors are properly disposing of their slashings.

A SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

"Pape's Diapepsin" Overcomes Your Indigestion in Five Minutes.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you truly will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Culver, 213; Jesse Madson, 47. C. E. French, 1. Trustee—Matt Borlin, 745; J. H. McNiven, 445; William Ritchel, 485; S. Sapero, 297; A. J. Feldstad, 307; O. H. Higbee, 1. Treasurer—Fred Hunt, 399; C. It is expected the new council will hold its first meeting next week. A resolution was passed that the village will look after the Catholic division of the new cemetery. The fees derived from grave digging going to the village until the Catholic cemetery is self supporting.

Liquor Licenses Granted.

Liquor licenses were granted to O. H. Haggbloom, Gust Peterson, John La Muth and Sol Rubloff.

A warrant for $8,150 was issued payable to the First National bank, to be used in payment of the library site as the deeds are delivered.

Bids for furnishing the village with a street sprinkling and a combination sprinkler and slusher were opened and laid over until they can be carefully considered.

All bills that had been presented prior to last night's meeting were cleaned up, including the judges, clerks and doorkeepers of election and the checks for the council members were included in the list.

ELY MAY HAVE DISTRICT COURT

Session May Be Held There in Accordance With Resolution.

Virginia, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—An adjourned term of the district court will probably be held at Ely after the closing of the April term here. A resolution was passed recently by the Ely council granting the use of the city hall for purposes of holding court.

The matter practically rests with the attorneys of the city Ely, as if there is sufficient business the court will undoubtedly order an adjourned session in that city.

It has been the practice of some of the attorneys to have the bulk of their cases tried in Duluth, and it is felt that the Ely term would be a benefit to many of the litigants of Ely.

A copy of the resolution adopted by the Ely council was filed in the court-house yesterday.

Hibbing Firm Sues.

Messner Bros. of Hibbing have sued Peter Ecklund of Hibbing for $1,385.58, claimed to be due for groceries. The plaintiffs claim that they supplied Mr. Ecklund with $1,700 worth of groceries and that the bulk of this has not been paid for.

The suit of Clara Bartness vs. The Pittsburg Iron Ore Company and the Consumers' Ore Company has been appealed to the supreme court.

GILBERT TO HAVE TWO BIG AFFAIRS

Finnish Midsummer Day and Firemen's Tournament to Be Held There.

Gilbert, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Finnish people are making preparations for the celebration of Midsummer's day next summer in Gilbert. A fine program is being arranged and as the street cars are now running it is expected that a large crowd from all the range towns will be present. The Commercial club has the affair in mind and will aid all in their power to make it the most successful celebration ever pulled off on the range.

Firemen Plan Tournament.

The firemen of the Schley and Gilbert fire departments are making preparations for the tournament to be given next summer at the Schley location. They propose to augment the funds already on hand for the purpose by giving a grand ball Easter Monday evening.

SECTION 4 MINE WORK PROGRESSES.

Eveleth, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Development work on the Section 4 property is progressing under the most favorable conditions. Under the direction of Supt. Nick Kent the shaft is now down sixty-five feet, and during the past week complete machinery for hoisting and drilling has been installed. Analysis of the ore shows the grade increases rapidly with the depth, being 41 per cent at fifty feet and 43 per cent from sixty to sixty-five feet, phosphorus being .019 in both cases.

CHISHOLM EMPLOYE MAY LOSE EYE.

Chisholm, Minn., March 14.—(Special to Tuo Herald.)—Jack Christofson, single, aged 50, an old employe of the village, received a very painful injury to an eye while doing some work on the water mains and may lose it. His pick struck a boulder and a small particle of the rock hit him in the eye.

BOOSTERS WILL GET STATISTICS

Also Prepare for Itasca County Development Meet at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a recent meeting of the directors of the Town and Country Boosters' club a lot of work was outlined and Secretary Peterson was directed to gather statistics about shipping from this point for the benefit of President Pennington of the Soo who desires such information before deciding whether to extend his system here as tentatively promised.

The board also discussed plans for taking care of the summer meeting of the Itasca County Development association, which will be held here on Memorial day. The association is essentially a home-building association and its work would in no way desecrate the proper observance of the day and being just before June it would serve the purpose of giving people from other sections of the county an opportunity to come here and pay their taxes before the end of the month. The board would like to arrange a trip to the state experimental farm in order to give the visiting farmers an opportunity to get over the ground and have Supt. McGuire tell them and show them what really wonderful results can be obtained from proper methods, methods that every farmer in Itasca county can use and get the same results.

Many Joining Club.

A good many people have signed up the membership cards and pledged all the way from $1 to $20 a year towards supporting the club, but in order to be of the greatest possible benefit the community it is desirable that every man and woman who has any interest in Grand Rapids become a member.

On account of Easter coming so soon and not wishing to have the meeting during Easter week the next meeting of the club may be held early in April, when the board will have a good many reports to make.

STUNTZ ELECTION MAY BE ATTACKED

Reported Corrupt Practices Act Was Violated During Late Contest.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rumors are rife that proceedings will be started to have the town board of the township of Stuntz declare the late township election illegal and call a new election, because the provisions of the corrupt practices act were not observed. Some very sensational stories of the methods by which votes were secured are in circulation.

There has been much sentiment created here for the Australian ballot both in connection with the township and the village elections in the future and at its next meeting the Commercial club will be asked to adopt a resolution addressed both to the city council and to the township board for such an act as will provide the Australian ballot at the next spring election.

Would Simplify Voting.

All the candidates favor it. It would considerably cut the expense of making a campaign, as fewer tickets would be necessary and it would considerably simplify the business of voting.

Representative Healy has a bill before the legislature at the present time for the extension of the Australian ballot system to townships and villages.

ONLY TWO ADMIT THEY ARE GUILTY

Balance of Thirty-Six Arrested in Hibbing Election Royster Released.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty-six men and boys ranging in age from 15 to 30 years were arraigned before Judge Brady yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging larceny. The warrant was sworn out by Charles Kolvu, proprietor of the Shamrock saloon on Pine street. Thirty-four of the thirty-six pleaded not guilty. Kolvu was put on the stand and was unable to positively identify any of the parties brought into court as being directly interested. He told Judge Brady that the mob had stolen from him 1,500 cigars, four cases of beer and two cases of whisky. Thirty-four entered pleas of not guilty and their cases were dismissed for lack of evidence. The court did not pass sentence on the two young men who pleaded guilty, announcing that he would investigate their cases before doing so.

Four Are Juvenile Cases.

Four of those brought in on the warrant were turned over to the juvenile court. The youngest was a boy of 15. Several of those arraigned frankly admitted to having been with the mob, but none confessed to having a part in the theft of the goods from Kolvu's place or at other places from which complaints were also lodged.

One young man said he had been in a saloon buying a drink when the election celebration crowd came in and gave his age as 20 years. He was uncertain what the name of the man who served him with liquor, was. It is highly probable that from his testimony will result the prosecution of the owner of the place for selling liquor to a minor.

No More Constipation

It's Me for Olive Tablets!

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own." 10c and 25c per box.

SNOW

All the necessary elements to make a real blizzard are headed toward Duluth. They are snow, high winds zero temperatures. The weather man issues a warning to Duluthians to be ready for the storm. Today isn't exactly a day for promenades. The wind is doing between thirty and forty miles an hour and blowing the snow around. The cold weather hasn't arrived yet, however.

Fair, snappy weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 6:23 and it will set at 6:12 this evening, giving eleven hours and forty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The most severe storm of the season is centered this morning over Iowa. During the last twenty-four hours light to heavy snow or rain fell over the Rocky mountains, the Northwest and Central, Eastern and Southern states. High northerly winds prevailed last night and this morning throughout the Middle West and Northwest. Mild temperatures are the rule throughout the South and from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast, but it is much colder over Northwestern districts and the Rocky mountains. Zero temperatures may be expected in St. Louis and Douglas counties late tonight."

FATHER POLLAK BACK.

Hibbing Priest Returns From Professional and Pleasure Trip.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Father Pollak, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, has returned from Sheboygan, Chicago and Joliet, Ill. At Sheboygan Father Pollak assisted in the conduct of a mission for the Austrian people. In Chicago he visited old friends and in Joliet he visited former parishioners and attended a meeting of the staff of the Amerikanski Slovenoe, a Catholic weekly newspaper with a wide circulation, printed in the Austrian language. Father Pollak was actively connected with the management of the paper during his residence in Joliet and is still one of its most valued contributing editors. The publication is to be issued twice a week hereafter, instead of weekly.

POOR NEED CLOTHING.

Eveleth People Asked to Help Out Unfortunate Ones.

Eveleth, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several people in Eveleth are destitute of clothing, and families in more prosperous circumstances are urged to rummage through their garrets and collect such cast-off clothing and shoes as are still serviceable.

If these bundles are sent to Judge Moylan of the municipal court he will turn them over to the proper committees of the Associated Charities, and the garments will be placed where they are most needed. Garments, particularly underwear, are needed for men, women and children.

At the regular meeting of the executive board of the Associated Charities held Monday two members were dropped for non-attendance, and B. C. Prout and Rev. E. B. Peterson chosen in their place.

Accuse Italian of Chicken Theft.

Hibbing, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seven hens and a rooster, the pride and joy of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gulas, living at 119 Lincoln street, and renowned locally as poultry fanciers, have been stolen. Joe Catterina, Itallan, is accused. Catterina has been having chicken a la Maryland for dinner every day, it is alleged, and this fact, coupled with the disappearance of the brood of the Gulas, was held sufficient evidence to warrant his arrest. Catterina stoutly denies the charge. He lives just across the alley from the Gulas family and convenient to the back door of the chicken coop. They allege there is no mistake. Both factions will tell their story to Judge Brady today.

MESABA RANGE IS IN STORM'S GRIP

Worst Blizzard of Winter Is Now Raging at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—What is declared to be the worst blizzard of the winter is raging on the Mesaba range today. It is especially severe here. A high wind is tearing through the streets to the destruction of numerous signs and snow is drifting badly. It is believed a velocity of sixty or seventy miles an hour has been reached by the wind. There is scarcely a person on the street, and very little business is being done. Fortunately it is not very cold or there might be loss of life in remote sections.

OVERLOOKS MONEY.

Biwabik Sneak Thief Makes Mistake in Throwing Away Card Case.

Biwabik, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A sneak thief prowled through the Manley hotel at the Iron Range depot here last night but secured very little. He picked up a card case from one of the roomers which contained two $10 bills and overlooking the money threw the case back onto the porch as he left the place. About $6 is all the booty he received. The culprit has not as yet been caught as it is a rather hard job for the authorities to work on as they have no clew.

LEAGUE HOPEFUL.

Two Harbors Organization Hopes to Elect Many of Its Candidates.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the regular meeting of the Citizens' league last night about 180 members attended. The meeting was thrown open to a general discussion and smoker. The league members express much confidence in their electing a majority of their candidates at the coming city election next Tuesday and have urged every member of the league to appoint himself as a committee of one to see that every citizen who is entitled to a vote gets out on Tuesday and exercises his citizenship. The league will endeavor to secure Mr. Hughes of Duluth for next Tuesday or Thursday night, when he will give a talk on "Good Government". An effort was made to have that gentleman here last night, but owing to previous arrangements it was impossible for him to comply with the wishes of the league.

LIE PASSED TO DOWLING AT POLITICAL MEETING

Member of Commercial Club "Calls" Candidate for Mayor.

Candidate Stands By the Charges and Flays Maj. H. V. Eva.

A meeting that developed a few of the ear-marks of the old-fashioned political gathering was held at the Auditorium last night. It was P. E. Dowling's meeting in more than one sense. It was called by him that he might explain to the audience his attitude on the questions that are being discussed just now in the mayoralty and commission campaign. Mr. Dowling is a candidate for mayor. And it was Mr. Dowling's meeting in the sense that the small crowd present was indoubtedly with him; an attitude which was shown plainly when A. T. Banning startled the audience by telling the speaker he had lied. Mr. Banning did not hesitate to use the "shorter and uglier word." He said plainly:

"Mr. Dowling, that's a lie."

This came when the speaker had made the statement that his previous charges that the Commercial club was a detriment to the city, a misfortune to Duluth, and that with "the clique in control" no sincere effort is made to bring industries here had never been denied. It was then that Mr. Banning leaped to his feet with the assertion given. The audience hissed him, told him to sit down and somebody even went so far as to shout:

"Sit down before you get knocked down."

Mr. Banning stood his ground, however, and despite discouragements from those about him insisted on explaining that what he had reference to was the speaker's statement that his charges against the club had never been denied. He also visited Mr. Dowling immediately after the meeting and reiterated his statement.

Charges Against Eva.

Immediately following this interruption came the next sensation of the evening. Mr. Dowling told of his career in Eveleth and of the banquet which was given him as a farewell. He then read the copy of a clipping from an Eveleth paper in which sarcastic references to the speaker's departure were made by the editor, whom Mr. Dowling termed "a shrimp." He then said that this clipping had been cherished for years by those who wished to prevent him from advancing in life; and that it had recently been printed and the slips it covered had been peddled around the city in an attempt to discredit him with the citizens of Duluth.

"The man who did this," said Mr. Dowling "this contemptible underling is a servant of the people, an employe of the Commercial club, from which he draws, I am told, $3,500 a year, when he could not earn more than $75 or $100 a month in any other business. This man is Maj. Eva, secretary of the club."

This brought forth yells of delight from the audience, and some very uncomplimentary remarks concerning Maj. Eva were shouted from the crowd.

"They employ this man," continued the speaker, "with an assistant, who, I understand, gets $7,500 a year, supposedly to work for the good of Duluth at large but who are working for the clique that controls the club. The payroll of the club is about $20,000 a year, paid mostly to 'experts.' Heaven knows that Duluth is acquiring more of these experts to the square inch than any other city in America."

The Social Evil.

At the beginning of his speech, Mr. Dowling dealt with the social evil and the saloon question. He was very explicit in regard to this and read his statement carefully not trusting to memory. A copy of the statement follows:

"What is the remedy for the social evil?

"The strict enforcement of law, both in spirit and to the letter, through the proper officers as the agents of the people, always remembering that the officers must have the co-operation of the people. This co-operation must be brought about by the establishment of social centers. Our unused, except for school purposes, magnificent school houses should be brought into use for this purpose, whereby your public servants can constantly keep in touch with the people and the growing demands of the age, and thereby initiate remedial and wholesome laws which will have uplifting and healthful influences. All obsolete, impracticable and inadequate laws should be repealed, and thus destroy the present contempt which the violators of such laws hold. There should and must be perfect co-operation between the officers of our city, county, state and Federal government. Such co-operation brings about efficiency and elimmiates useless expense. Your officers constitute the agency and means by and through which your laws must be enforced. The proposition which confronts you is the selecting of such men from among the candidates now seeking your support."

Enforcing Laws.

Mr. Dowling declared himself in favor of the enforcement of laws in general from Washington down, but added that there must be square dealing. He said that it is his belief that if there was efficient enforcement of the liquor laws in the red light district it would be a most effective blow to the traffic in sex. He said also that while saloon keeprs must be made to observe the closing laws they have a right to demand protection for they are legalized by the state laws and must therefore be looked upon as conducting a legitimate business. He asserted that after April 14 there will be no excuse for the city not being run cleanly as to morals.

"The power will then be centered in a few who will be held responsible," he added, "and in addition to that you have the new 'instrument of torture,' the recall. There should be law enforcement without qualification and you can compel it if you wish. If you don't you will be as much at fault as your city officials will be."

Municipal Ownership.

He attacked the delay in acquiring or building an electric light plant, the bonds for which were voted a year ago Feb. 6.

"The people said they wanted to own their own plant," said Mr. Dowling, "and they should have it. Within the past few years the people are demanding their right to exercise jurisdiction over all public utility corporations. President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad has in substance declared that it seems that the people insist upon either owning the pubic utility corporations, or else exercising absolute control over their earnings.

"Locally, this right is a settled question. The people of Duluth own and operate their gas and water plants, and at their last city election, held a little over a year ago—to use the language of a lawyer—a verdict was rendered. In substance, that verdict provided a means for the people of this city to acquire, own and operate an electric lighting plant. So far, judgment has not been entered upon the people's verdict. The verdict, however, still stands of record. So far there has been an absolute and designed failure on the part of the people's servants to enter judgment on this verdict and to carry it into execution. The law's delay, as we laymen call it, is not responsible for this departurefrom duty. Here again we find the domination of the special interests, the game of politics played by the people's servants, and the will of the people defeated.

"My remedy is for you to elect servants to execute the will of the people.

"My record on this proposition antedates that of most all of my mayoralty opponents by at least seven years, for as a member of the legislature in 1905, I was an advocate of the right of the people to bond this city for said purpose, although the bill was defeated, through the domination of the special interests working through your legislative servants."

In connection with the question as to what to do to make Duluth a greater city, he advocated more attention to public markets that the farming industries hereabouts may be encouraged. He also said that if properly approached, the railroads entering here can be made to give Duluth a better service. He advocated a deliberate combination between the city and the Soo road in order to force matters. He said the lack of railroad service is largely the fault of the city itself. He reminded his hearers of the Louis Hill banquet, and said that several times Mr. Hill asked what he could do for Duluth, but was assured that there was nothing, that everything was lovely as it was. He then recalled the Elliott banquet of recent date and said that the same condition would have existed had not F. A. Patrick had the courage to get up and demand things of the president of the Northern Pacific. He declared that a mayor and commission whose backbones are not flabby can do much with the heads of these railroads and accomplish results rapidly.

Commercial Club "Destructive."

Following this he began his attack on the Commercial club. He said that Duluth needs such a club and that the rank and file of the members are all right but that the club has gotten "into bad hands" as he expressed it. He said that the club as it stands is "destructive and not constructive for Duluth." Said he:

"The club was the concern that backed the cry for a municipal expert. We have too many experts as it is. The plan in this case was to make a connection between the club and the commission to be elected and form a commercial oligarchy. If that happens then God help Duluth for four years. If there is one cry that makes me tired it is that 'Do it for Duluth.' If Duluth merchants do not sell their goods as advantageously as they can be purchased elsewhere, why should they be favored? Why do not the big interests do it for Duluth? I have it from a reliable source that Pillsbury flour is shipped in here from the Twin Cities with a rebate of 30 cents a barrel in order to kill off the Duluth Universal mill. I suppose that is doing it for Duluth by the large concern which takes the flour.

"Don't take too many men like Mr. Banning into the control of the city. Another thing I would advocate is that all of you men join the club and see that it is properly controlled for the good of the city."

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Boards of Registration Will Be in Session All Day Saturday.

Tangling Red Tape Surrounds Voting of the Unregistered.

Tomorrow is the last day of registration for the election April 1.

Everybody interested in the election is out today urging the voters to register. Each of the sixty-three candidates for office believes his chances will be improved by a heavy vote and is hustling for a heavy registration.

The man who did not register Tuesday and who fails to register tomorrow will be in a hard position election day. If he wants to vote he will have to find two property-owners living in his election district and take them to the polls with him that they may corroborate his affidavit of residence. The chances are that few will want to go to that trouble, so the registration tomorrow should be heavy.

Only about 5,000 voters registered Tuesday, which was the first day of registration. There are over 7,000 voters who have not yet registered and an effort will be made to get every one of the 7,000 to register tomorrow.

The registration last fall is not good for the coming election. There must be a new registration. If a voter did not register last Tuesday, he must register tomorrow.

The importance of the election and the multiplicity of candidates should bring out an unprecedented vote on April 1, but the vote will be cut sadly unless nearly all of those not now registered get their names on the books tomorrow.

The boards of registration will be in session from 6 o'clock tomorrow morning until 9 o'clock in the evening, so everybody will have an opportunity to register.

O'BRIEN TO MAKE SPEECH

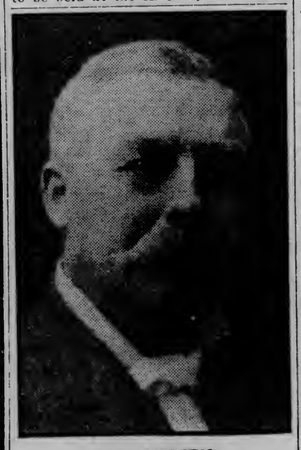
Former St. Paul Mayor to Aid "Lon" Merritt's Candidacy.

Two Men Have Been Warm Friends Since Boyhood.

In order to aid an old friend in his campaign for office, Chris D. O'Brien of St. Paul will come to Duluth late this month and make a speech on behalf of the candidacy of Leonidas Merritt for commissioner for the long term.

Mr. O'Brien has hundreds of personal friends in Duluth, and many hundreds more know him by reputation. He will draw one of the biggest crowds of the campaign, for he is not only personally popular, but he is a powerful orator and is one of the best posted men in the state on municipal problems.

The date for the meeting has not been definitely set, but it is expected to be held at the K. of P. hall on Superior street Tuesday evening, March 25. Mr. O'Brien will visit Duluth in a few days, when the definite date will be set.



C. D. O'BRIEN.

Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Merritt were friends when they were boys. Mr. O'Brien lived at Bayfield and Mr. Merritt at Duluth. They served in the army together during the Civil war and Mr. Merritt, a few years older than Mr. O'Brien, was the companion and mentor of the younger man.

When Mr. O'Brien heard of Mr. Merritt's candidacy, he immediately volunteered to make a speech in behalf of his candidacy. He is well qualified to talk on municipal problems, for he was mayor of St. Paul some years ago and since that time has maintained a deep interest in municipal government.

CANDIDATES TALK TO HILLSIDE CLUB

Eight Aspirants for Municipal Office Speak at Franklin School.

The meeting of the Central Hillside Improvement club at the Franklin school last evening was turned over to candidates. Three candidates for mayor and five for commissioner were present and all made short talks. Those who spoke were M. B. Cullum, D. H. Day and W. B. Getchell, candidates for mayor; and Roderick Murchison, D. E. Stevens, Bert N. Wheeler, C. E. Roe and John Cashin, candidates for commissioner for the short term.

Dr. Cullum said that the principal issue before the voters is the election of five good men who will give the city the benefit of their best efforts. He said the municipal ownership question has already been settled by the voters and the successful candidates will be required to carry out the will of the voters. He said that if elected he will enforce the laws relating to the liquor question and to vice.

Dr. Day made a strong declaration for municipal ownership and urged the advocates of that principle to give their first, second and third choice votes to municipal ownership candidates.

Mr. Getchell said that the commission form would not be efficient without efficient men in charge. He said Duluth needs a business administration, and he promised to bring about business-like methods in the city government if he is elected.

The club last evening passed a resolution requesting the school board to make the Roger S. Munger school at Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street an eight-room building instead of a four-room building, as now planned. A committee consisting of Ole Persgard, John Christianson and E. Neiswanden was appointed to lay the matter before the board.

GIVES TALK ON VOTING SYSTEM

Walter F. Dacey Says Undesirable Candidate Cannot Be Elected.

The preferential system of voting, if properly used by the voters, will prevent any interest or organization "putting across" an undesirable candidate, according to Walter F. Dacey.

Mr. Dacey, who is secretary of the committee in charge of the campaign of instruction on the preferential system, gave a talk at an open meeting of the Builders' Exchange at the Lyceum building yesterday afternoon. He replaced G. W. C. Ross, who was unable to attend.

Mr. Dacey instructed his audience in the method of marking the ballot. In regard to the second and third choice columns, he said:

"The claim has been made by those who are working in behalf of the special interests that the use of the second and third choices will work against the first choice vote. This is not true. For instance, if one man receives 400 votes out of a possible 1,000, another 300 and another 150, while the third man receives 600 second choice votes, or more than the necessary majority of 501 to elect, you have done your first choice candidate no harm. He couldn't be elected anyhow, as the charter provides that a candidate must have a majority. All this talk that the second and third choices will nullify your first vote is only for the purpose of giving the special interests an opportunity to slip in their man.

"If the preferential system is used extensively, as it should be, no power on earth can elect any man who a majority of the people do not want. The preferential system was designed to give the majority the right to rule, and it stands to reason that more than half the voters will not vote for a man who does not represent the principles they desire made a part of the municipal administration."

Miss Frances Malthaner, principal of the school, was in charge of the program, having prepared the pupils in the various specialties. The proceeds of the two performances will make a good start for the picture fund, said Miss Malthaner this morning.

The complete program rendered yesterday follows: Club swinging, eighth grade; combination exercise, B third grade; circus day folk dance, A third grade; "Cradle Song" and "The Mill Song," fourth grade; gymnastic exercise, first grade; Swedish dance and German folk dance, second grade; dumbbell drill, sixth grade; songs, "Mr. Wind and Madam Rain" and the "Song of the Woodland," fifth and sixth grades; bean bag game, fourth grade; Norwegian mountain march, A third grade; wand exercise, fifth and sixth grades; violin solo, Ethel Mattson, eighth grade; hoop and flag drill, B fifth grade; scarf drill, seventh grade.

POLICE DOUBT HIS STORY OF ASSAULT

That Marko Glumac, who was found Wednesday noon near the D. M. & N. tracks with his throat slashed and who claimed later that he had been robbed and assaulted by his two companions early that morning, in reality attempted suicide, is the belief of the local police.

Lieut. Wilcox investigated the man's story yesterday and was unable to trace the two men, whom Glumac claims attacked him. A razor was found near the tracks and it has been identified by Glumac as his own property. The patrolman, who was called to the scene Wednesday noon and who took Glumac to the Graham hospital, claims that the latter attempted to tear at his bleeding neck while in the hospital wagon.

Glumac is now at the hospital where he is expected to recover. He does not speak English himself and he told his story through an interpreter. Further investigations will be made by the police.

PROCTOR VS. TWO HARBORS.

Hodap, Averson and Wiles, forwards; Shelton, center; and Baudette and Anderson, guards, will make the trip. A number of rooters plan to accompany the team.

WILL COMPLETE BANQUET PLANS.

Reports will be made by all the various sub-committee chairmen and the program for the evening announced. Action will be taken on all the unfinished business and work started in preparing for the banquet just one month off.

COLLIER MEN WIN FIGHT

Secure Control of State Council of Modern Samaritans.

Z. H. Austin Withdraws From the Contest for Grand Samaritan.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Collier-Hicken-McManus faction secured control of the state council of the Modern Samaritans, the vote standing 62 in their favor to 28 for the Christie faction. The objection by A. E. McManus to the validity of the claim of Mrs. Lucy Purdy of Duluth to act as a delegate was sustained by the council and she was not seated.

The contest between the two warring factions was brought to an almost peaceful conclusion this noon with the election of officers, as follows.

Grand good samaritan, C. H. Richter of St. Paul; grand vice good samaritan, H. G. Golderman of Proctor; grand scribe, J. C. Schnacke of St. Paul; grand treasurer, Ed. Mattson of Minneapolis; grand counselor, J. D. Markham of Rush City; grand high priest, A. C. Davidson of Winona.

Upon the conclusion of the fight over Mrs. Purdy's credentials began a verbal battle between the Collier-Hicken-McManus faction for the election of Mr. Richter of St. Paul as grand good samaritan, and the Christie faction for the re-election of Z. H. Austin of Minneapolis. Seeing that the fight was going against him Austin withdrew today, resulting in the peaceful selection of the St. Paul man.

The council has turned its attention this afternoon to the election of delegates to the Imperial council which meets in June and expects this business can be completed today.

GUFFEY IS AGAIN A MILLIONAIRE

Pittsburg, Pa., March 14.—Col. James M. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman for Pennsylvania, was lifted out of bankruptcy today. The J. P. Morgan interests closed a deal whereby they took over 100,000 acres of coal land that Guffey owned in Taylor, Barbour and Preston counties, West Virginia. The price was approximately $10,000,000.

Col. Guffey is one of the most picturesque figures in national politics, although since Mr. Bryan read him out of the party at the national convention in 1908 he has not been conspicuous. Incidentally he has been kept busy with his tangled financial affairs since early in 1909, when, after being a millionaire more than thirty years, he went into bankruptcy.

The Guffey oil interests in Texas have proved remarkably profitable during the last year. The colonel's friends say he is back in the ranks of millionaires to stay.

Superior

The question of whether Douglas county should purchase the Superior crushed rock plant and site for $25,000 was not taken up at the meeting of the county supervisors yesterday afternoon, as the committee was not prepared to make its report. The matter will be taken up again at the next meeting.

POLICE DOUBT HIS STORY OF ASSAULT

That Marko Glumac, who was found Wednesday noon near the D. M. & N. tracks with his throat slashed and who claimed later that he had been robbed and assaulted by his two companions early that morning, in reality attempted suicide, is the belief of the local police.

Lieut. Wilcox investigated the man's story yesterday and was unable to trace the two men, whom Glumac claims attacked him. A razor was found near the tracks and it has been identified by Glumac as his own property. The patrolman, who was called to the scene Wednesday noon and who took Glumac to the Graham hospital, claims that the latter attempted to tear at his bleeding neck while in the hospital wagon.

Glumac is now at the hospital where he is expected to recover. He does not speak English himself and he told his story through an interpreter. Further investigations will be made by the police.

COLLIER MEN WIN FIGHT

Secure Control of State Council of Modern Samaritans.

Z. H. Austin Withdraws From the Contest for Grand Samaritan.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Collier-Hicken-McManus faction secured control of the state council of the Modern Samaritans, the vote standing 62 in their favor to 28 for the Christie faction. The objection by A. E. McManus to the validity of the claim of Mrs. Lucy Purdy of Duluth to act as a delegate was sustained by the council and she was not seated.

The contest between the two warring factions was brought to an almost peaceful conclusion this noon with the election of officers, as follows.

Grand good samaritan, C. H. Richter of St. Paul; grand vice good samaritan, H. G. Golderman of Proctor; grand scribe, J. C. Schnacke of St. Paul; grand treasurer, Ed. Mattson of Minneapolis; grand counselor, J. D. Markham of Rush City; grand high priest, A. C. Davidson of Winona.

Upon the conclusion of the flight over Mrs. Purdy's credentials began a verbal battle between the Collier-Hicken-McManus faction for the election of Mr. Richter of St. Paul as grand good samaritan, and the Christie faction for the re-election of Z. H. Austin of Minneapolis. Seeing that the flight was going against him Austin withdrew today, resulting in the peaceful selection of the St. Paul man.

The council has turned its attention this afternoon to the election of delegates to the Imperial council which meets in June and expects this business can be completed today.

GUFFEY IS AGAIN A MILLIONAIR

Pittsburg, Pa., March 14.—Col. James M. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman for Pennsylvania, was lifted out of bankruptcy today. The J. P. Morgan interests closed a deal whereby they took over 100,000 acres of coal land that Guffey owned in Taylor, Barbour and Preston counties, West Virginia. The price was approximately $10,000,000.

Col. Guffey is one of the most picturesque figures in national politics, although since Mr. Bryan read him out of the party at the national convention in 1908 he has not been conspicuous. Incidentally he has been kept busy with his tangled financial affairs since early in 1909, when, after being a millionaire more than thirty years, he went into bankruptcy.

The Guffey oil interests in Texas have proved remarkably profitable during the last year. The colonel's friends say he is back in the ranks of millionaires to stay.

Superior

The question of whether Douglas county should purchase the Superior crushed rock plant and site for $25,000 was not taken up at the meeting of the county supervisors yesterday afternoon, as the committee was not prepared to make its report. The matter will be taken up again at the next meeting.

REAL ESTATE MEN WILL FIGHT BILL

Northern Wisconsin Association Going After Measure Before Legislature.

Spooner, Wis., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Wisconsin Farm Land association met here yesterday and besides electing officers decided to fight the real estate board bill now before the state legislature at Madison providing for a commission of three clothed with unlimited powers at a salary of $8,500 each to employ help and which is looked upon as a scheme to give jobs to some favored ones.

The association decided to urge the passage of a real estate board bill of a different nature, one that will pay the commissioners appointed by the governor nothing.

Officers Are Chosen.

These officers were elected and committees named: President, Tom O. Mason, Cumberland; vice president, Hans P. Fuley, Hayward; secretary, George H. Harmon, Spooner; treasurer, H. A. Wilkinson, Bayfield.

The members of the executive committee are: A. H. Quale, Hayward; B. I. Bliss, Rice Lake; W. E. Webster, Hudson; Sam Vander Weide, Superior; O. H. Kjorstad, Nobleton. The legislative committee consists of: Tom. O. Mason, W. E. Webster, George W. Harmon and E. C. Nord, the latter of Rice Lake.

A publicity committee was also named, headed by Henry P. Peterson, of the Superior Telegram. Quite a number of new members were taken in among, them being Archie McDermott of Eau Claire.

BROKE UP WEDDING.

Dog Found Usher Wearing His Master's Dress Suit.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Cape Charles, Va.—A big dog caused a panic among the wedding party and the guests at the marriage of Harry Roberts and Miss Mabel Hemming, at Eastville, recently.

The animal dashed up the aisle behind the wedding party, proceeding to the altar, and sprang upon the back of Arthur Addison, one of the ushers, grabbed the coat he was wearing between its teeth and tried to tear the garment from the man's back.

Many of the women guests rushed from the church, believing the dog was suffering from rabies. The ceremony was halted until the animal was put out.

It appears that the dress suit worn by the usher had been borrowed from the dog's master, C. T. Cobb. The animal wandered into its master's room, and, taking a scent of the missing clothing, followed it into the church and made the attack.

The New Style Skirts

SHOW THE ANKLE—AND YOU'LL WANT NEAT FOOTWEAR.

Skirts are so narrow around the bottom that the shoes will be conspicuous, unless they are "just-right."

Fortunately shoe styles have changed somewhat—they're more sensible than we have ever known.

French heels are giving way to more comfortable models which our shoemakers have made quite as good looking.

New models now ready in a range of sizes and widths to fit all feet.

Our shoe people know how to fit you and they'll take time to do it properly.

The Small Hat Is La Vogue

Upstanding trimmings rule—and the manner in which the trimming is applied makes the difference between individuality and mediocrity.

Our Millinery Section is now under the management of a woman of wide experience in catering to women of refined taste. She was formerly in charge of the millinery department for one of the very best stores in Dayton, Ohio.

Her notable success there inspired us to give her charge of our millinery—and we believe the women of Duluth will appreciate her efforts.

Our formal opening occurs next Tuesday—but we'll be ready to show some of the new hats tomorrow.

REAL ESTATE MEN WILL FIGHT BILL

Northern Wisconsin Association Going After Measure Before Legislature.

Spooner, Wis., March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Wisconsin Farm Land association met here yesterday and besides electing officers decided to fight the real estate board bill now before the state legislature at Madison providing for a commission of three clothed with unlimited powers at a salary of $8,500 each to employ help and which is looked upon as a scheme to give jobs to some favored ones.

The association decided to urge the passage of a real estate board bill of a different nature, one that will pay the commissioners appointed by the governor nothing.

Officers Are Chosen.

These officers were elected and committees named: President, Tom O. Mason, Cumberland; vice president, Hans P. Fuley, Hayward; secretary, George H. Harmon, Spooner; treasurer, H. A. Wilkinson, Bayfield.

The members of the executive committee are: A. H. Quale, Hayward; B. I. Bliss, Rice Lake; W. E. Webster, Hudson; Sam Vander Weide, Superior; O. H. Kjorstad, Nobleton. The legislative committee consists of: Tom. O. Mason, W. E. Webster, George W. Harmon and E. C. Nord, the latter of Rice Lake.

A publicity committee was also named, headed by Henry P. Peterson, of the Superior Telegram. Quite a number of new members were taken in among them being Archie McDermott of Eau Claire.

BROKE UP WEDDING.

Dog Found Usher Wearing His Master's Dress Suit.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Cape Charles, Va.—A big dog caused a panic among the wedding party and the guests at the marriage of Harry Roberts and Miss Mabel Hemming, at Eastville, recently.

The animal dashed up the aisle behind the wedding party, proceeding to the altar, and sprang upon the back of Arthur Addison, one of the ushers, grabbed the coat he was wearing between its teeth and tried to tear the garment from the man's back.

Many of the women guests rushed from the church, believing the dog was suffering from rabies. The ceremony was halted until the animal was put out.

It appears that the dress suit worn by the usher had been borrowed from the dog's master, C. T. Cobb. The animal wandered into its master's room, and, taking a scent of the missing clothing, followed it into the church and made the attack.

MUCH WHEAT; POOR DEMAND

Neither Foreign Nor Domestic Buyers Are at All Aggressive.

Arrivals Continue Large---Wheat and Flax Both Move Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 14.—Large arrivals, a poor demand, both domestic and foreign, and fine crop prospects caused a further sagging of wheat on the North American markets today. Duluth May wheat closed ¼c lower and July ⅜c lower. Cash wheat closed 1¾c to 1½c lower. Durum was unchanged. Oats closed ⅜c lower, rye unchanged and barley 2c higher to unchanged. Duluth May and July flaxseed closed ½c lower.

The wheat markets of North America were weak throughout the morning. Export demand was very poor. Reports from the winter wheat regions were still fine. Good snows were reported in Kansas and Nebraska, this being very favorable to the proper development of the hard winter wheat crop of those states. Receipts from the farms and country elevators on the principal North American markets were very large.

Duluth May wheat, which closed yesterday at 85⅞c bid, opened today at 85⅝c bid and at noon was quoted at 85½c bid. There were no quotations also from Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Liverpool wheat at 1:30 p. m. was ⅛d higher. Reports of purchases of nearby steamers by France, a forecast of smaller world shipments other than American and unfavorable weather reports from Russia all helped bull that market, but the advance was checked by heavy shipments from both Argentina and Australia and the report of a quieter demand for Canadian and Australian parcels.

Flax Market Weak.

There were quite liberal offers of flaxseed on the Duluth market today and the demand was slack. Crushers were not at all aggressive in their bidding. At noon today the price of cash seed at Minneapolis was 3c under the May price at Duluth. Duluth May seed at noon today was ⅜c off and July was ¼c off. Winnipeg May seed at noon was ¾c off at $1.11¼ bid, being 16⅜c under Duluth May. Buenos Ayres May seed last night closed ¼c off at $1.20½ and London-Calcutta closed today unchanged at $1.57¼.

The Chicago Paint, Oil & Drug Review says:

"There is no linseed oil business being done and one the whole the market is in a panicky condition, owing to the large receipts of seed which have been constantly coming in and as buyers are only taking these into consideration without other conditions that surround the market, they are of the opinion the market will go still lower and are looking for 35c oil.

"The market in Chicago was quote at 43c on Monday of this week and it is believed that sales were made at 42c, although there was an advance of 2c in flaxseed on that day.

"Crushers claim present prices are below the cost of production, based on the price of flaxseed, but in the absence of any demand with receipts accumulating which cannot be shipped before the opening of navigation, it gives a weak tone to the market, whether it is justified or not.

"The linseed cake and oil market is very quiet; in fact, there is nothing doing, more especially in the export line, and the domestic market is relatively better than for export. Nominal quotations for cake is $22 per ton at Minneapolis and $26 for meal at the same point, with Chicago prices $2 higher."

COPPERS MOVE IRREGULARLY

Movements of copper stocks today appeared to be very irregular, as far as any quotations could be received, but the closes could not be obtained on account of wire trouble. Sleet storms in the East broke down wires over a large section of the country. The latest quotations received showed declines in Shattuck, Calumet & Arizona and Amalgamated, but there were advances in Butte & Superior and Hancock. The general stock market of New York seemed fairly firm. The copper metal market of London closed today with spot and futures 2s 6d lower than at the close yesterday.

UNABLE TO FIND LEASE DOCUMENTS

J. P. Morgan Tells Committee He Made Efforts to Get Them.

New York, March 14.—J. P. Morgan, Jr., was the principal witness today in the hearing of the government's dissolution suit against the United States Steel corporation. Before Mr. Morgan was called one or two employes of the firm reported that they were unable to find documents the government had called for, dealing with the leases of the Hill ore lands by the corporation in 1907.

The only question Morgan was asked related to the missing documents. After stating that he had done his best to have them found, he was allowed to go.

THE KILOWATT.

The Electrical News: What is there about a kilowatt that so mystifies the average citizen, or about a kilowatt-hour that reduces him to a state of incoherence? The gas meter has long been an object of suspicion, but in spite of its innate depravity men assume to understand it and occasionally dispute its verdict. But a wattmeter! How often have you heard one of the hundreds of thousands of users of electric current casually tell another how much each kilowatt-hour is costing him? He knows in New York that a cubic foot of gas costs him 80 cents. He knows how much a week he pays his maid. But he doesn't know how much an hour he is paying that other servant—electricity, and he doesn't know how he can check up the question, whether he is getting what he pays for. At best he knows that his electric bills are about so much a month.

Electricity has often been called the universal servant. It is more than that. It is the tabloid of energy. It is the best disciplined energy because it moves in an orderly fashion and with lightning-like rapidity. Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler, president of the Crocker-Wheeler company, has said that the difference in the motion of those two first cousins, heat and electricity, is the difference between a panic-stricken mob in a fire, and the fire drill in a public school by means of which a building is emptied of hundreds of students in less than five minutes. Dr. Wheeler is responsible, too, for the expression: "Electricity is the tabloid of energy." It is as easy to handle, he says, as extract of beef. Just add hot water and serve in the first case. Just turn a switch and be served in the second. It is the only form of energy that can be stored in practical quantity and used when wanted. Heat, for instance, is rapidly dissipated. You can't get horse-power without starting an engine or a horse, but you can keep kilowatts in a storage battery by converting them into chemical energy and hold them in a glass jar for a long period of time with little deterioration. Why is the public, which spends $300,000,000 a year, directly and indirectly, on electric machinery and a like amount on current, so devastatingly ignorant of the most simple fundamental facts in regard to it?

THE HERALD IS DULUTH'S GREAT WANT AD MEDIUM

SAYS TEARS KILL GERMS

Danish Professor Sees Great Value in Good, Hard Cry.

Deadly Poison to Bacilli in the Water From the Eyes.

New York American: It has been claimed from time immemorial, and proven in recent years, that crying affords relief, but only recently has it been claimed that there are other values in tears; that, in fact, tears are great germicides and perform no small amount of work in helping destroy microbes.

Dr. P. Lindahl, a Danish professor of bacteriology, of Copenhagen, is responsible for this assertion. He declares that children that cry a great deal may suffer in temper, but they also profit in health as a result of their weeping.

In adults the weeping that is beneficial should be tears of laughter, anger, optimism and sympathy or pathos. Dr. Lindahl objects to what he terms "sentimental balderdash, to hysterical, nonsensical crying, and the tears and lamentations of the unduly sympathetic," and also agrees that the well-known symptoms called "blue devils" are not good for one, but he insists that the other sort of tears not only serve to kill microbes, but also afford no inconsiderable relief in case of inflammation of the lungs.

According to his studies tears of the young and innocent and tears of laughter contain the same bactericidal properties of the blood and lymph.

Dr. Lindahl collected in tiny tubes the tears from many different kinds of dividuals. He was most careful at first to take persons who were normal both in mind and body. Later he found that such men and women who were not in health mentally or physically were the very ones whose tears had less destructive effect upon the microbes of disease. The tears from strong, healthy children, however, were more powerful in getting rid of various bacteria than those of healthy adults. The latter, again, were very much more germicidal than those of nervous and hysterical individuals.

Altogether Dr. Lindahl exposed the germs of boils, tonsilitis, blood poisoning, typhoid fever, pneumonia and diphtheria to the influence of tears, and these, according to his account, were in every case reduced in number. Furthermore, if the tears were evaporated by a special method that required no heat, the tears were made much more dangerous to the germs. In fact, these could not live at all in the concentrated tears.

Dr. Lindahl also calls attention to the important fact that not only are the tears deadly poison to disease bacteria when they are quiet and not flowing, but when the watery tears are flowing down your cheeks or nose they have the added strength of washing away numerous bacilli. Crying, in other words, conducts the microbes beyond the seat of any possible damage to tissues.

However, he also emphasizes the fact that crying is a sure way of precipitating a threatened cold or other malady. Thus he describes several instances, one his own, of how sentimental tears may start a serious conflagration in the way of an ailment.

"I was reading a short story translated from the English into Danish, called 'A Dog of Flanders,'" he writes. "Suddenly, I came to a most pathetic part, and although I am a hardened fellow not prone to tears—it was the first time I had cried in ten years—for the life of me I could not contain myself. Try as I did to suppress them, the tears had to come. They welled up into my eyes, and I sobbed and sobbed as if my heart would break.

"And with what result? Well, I snuffed and sniffed and sneezed and sobbed, and the welling tears must have washed the germs from my eyes —my eyes were then inflamed—and these pink eye bacilli must have planted themselves in my throat and nose. For when I suffered about the worst case of tonsilitis and sore throat that I had ever had in my life. It lasted nearly five weeks, and the cough that followed lasted several months."

MAKES SUCCESS OF PAROLE PLAN

Judge Latshaw of Kansas City and His Work to Save Accused Men From Their Own Weakness.

Kansas City Star: A man approached the bench of Judge Ralph S. Latshaw in the criminal court when his name was called. It was parole day in the court. Two hundred men of 210 who had been paroled had reported. The man whose name was called had been reporting regularly for two years.

"Henry," the judge began, "you have been prompt and regular, during the two years you have been paroled, in reporting to the court. I have decided to cut off the other three years of your sentence and give you your freedom."

"Don't do it, judge, please," was the unexpected response. "I want to be under your influence as long as I can. During these last two years I have straightened up, married a sweet little woman, have bought and nearly paid for a little home, and I owe it all to you. You saved me from hell and I want to see you as often again as I can."

Over 1,000 Paroled.

Judge Latshaw took the bench of the criminal court Dec. 12, 1908. Since that time more than 1,000 prisoners have been paroled. And of that number, the judge says, about a dozen have had their paroles revoked.

"The paroled men have made good," the judge said this morning. "Every man, branded a criminal, usually is a bread winner. It is estimated that he supports four or five persons. If those thousand and more men had not been paroled there would have been 5,000 persons today who would have been dependent upon charity for their support.

"The county jail over there was built a quarter of a century ago. Yet, notwithstanding the fact that Kansas City has more than trebled in size during that time, there are fewer prisoners in there today than there were then.

"Before the parole law went into effect 55 per cent of the prisoners in this state were first or single offenders. Ninety-five per cent of those can be saved to their families and themselves by probation.

"The law requires that every prisoner paroled shall give a bond. It was a puzzle to me at first what size bond I should give. I read the law on the question thoroughly. The law said the bond should be made sufficient to satisfy the court. I decided that a man's word, even though he be called a criminal, would be sufficient bail in my court—his promise to report to me at stated intervals.

The First Time Up.

"The first time a man is up before me? After a few quick questions I am satisfied whether a man is a crook or not. If he's lying he hesitates before answering or doesn't answer at all. If he's telling the truth the answer comes out quickly.

"If he's worn stripes you can tell it. Penitentiary bars take the nerve out of a man; they make him a slave; the marrow has left his backbone and his eyes give his story the lie. If I think a man has been in the penitentiary I ask him how many times he has been there. Before he realizes it he tells me.

"If I am doubtful as to a man's former life I give him a stay of execution while I have the police look into his past life.

"But if I am satisfied it is his first offense and the crime is not too flagrant, I give him a chance. And I say if you're going to give a man a chance, give him a real chance. A criminal on parole is more to be trusted than a man of the same caliber who has not been apprehended.

"These came in this morning's mail," and the judge showed two letters. The first one read:

"Dear Judge: For the last week I have not been working, through having had an accident which nearly proved fatal. While greasing the automatic governors in the elevator shaft I was caught by one of the weights and crushed severely in the chest. • • • It will be three years this month since I was paroled. I have tried to behave myself with credit. The baby is nearly a year old and is walking everywhere. She is certainly a bright child if I do say so myself. Trusting I may have proved myself worthy of the confidence you put in me.'

"Here's the other one:

"'• • • I am on the road to manhood again. The last two years have been as a bad dream. I go to bed with the thought of the wrong and wake up with it on my mind. Bad companions did it for me. Mr. Latshaw, it certainly was generous of you to give me a chance, and I appreciate it because at heart I am no criminal, although criminal I am branded by the state. I now realize where my worst trouble lies—I am my own worst enemy. • • • Here I am now just 21 years old and branded for a thief. Is it any wonder that I hope other young men don't have to go through it? I am trying to make the best of myself.'"

INCOME TAX IN NORWAY.

Consul General Charles A. Holder, Christiania, in the Consular Reports: Since Jan. 1, 1913, several changes are effective in the assessment of income taxes in Norway. The rate of the state tax is changed from a graded tax of 2 to 6 per cent, according to the size of the income, to 5 per cent on all incomes, and this change, it is expected, will yield considerably more revenue.

The finansdepartment (finance department) has distributed to the taxpayers the new form, to be filled out and sworn to, that will be used in estimating the amount of the tax each shall pay. It is said that under the old system income taxes were based on very incomplete data, in many cases most inaccurate statements, so that many persons, especially those with large incomes, escaped paying on the greater part of their incomes.

Information Required in Returns.

The new blanks are rather complicated and call for the most minute details. The following forms of property are specified on the blanks, and any of these items that are owned, or furnish a source of income, must be fully set forth: Real estate, mining property, water power rights, hunting and fishing rights, movable property, such as machinery, tools, raw and finished materials, livestock, vessels and steamships; claims of every kind, shares, stocks; government, community or industrial bonds; mortgages and investments in foreign countries; money on deposit, as well as cash in annuities. Board, lodging and clothing, or fuel and light, when these form part of the annual remuneration or income, must be given.

Those who receive wages or salaries must state whether they are paid by the year, month or day, or whether they work by piecework or on time, and all commissions, tips and gratuities of every kind must be included and set forth. Shipowners and those who gain their living by fishing or whaling must state their gross and net incomes. The statement is then signed and declared to be true before a magistrate. Incorrect statements make the taxpayer liable to a fine or four months' imprisonment.

Method of Levying Taxes—Exemptions.

Incomes are subject to two taxes: State tax, which will hereafter be 5 per cent, and the community or city tax, which was 10.7 per cent in 1911, but will probably be somewhat lower in 1912, owing to the fact that under the new method no incomes will escape payment.

For the purposes of the state tax, which for all Norway yielded a revenue of 48,298,371 crowns ($12,943,963) in 1911, incomes are divided into four classes, and in each class a certain amount of the income is not taxed: Class 1, incomes up to 4,000 crowns ($1,072), is allowed 600 crowns ($161); class 2, incomes from 4,000 to 7,000 crowns ($1,876), is allowed 1,000 crowns ($268); class 3, incomes from 7,000 to 10,000 crowns ($2,680), is allowed 1,400 crowns ($375); class 4, incomes over 10,000 crowns, is allowed 1,800 crowns ($482).

For the community or city tax, which yielded 11,885,000 crowns ($3,185,180) to the city of Christiania in 1911, taxpayers are divided into eight classes, depending upon the number of persons each is called upon to support, and a certain amount of incomes in each class is untaxed: Class 1 is for single persons; class 2, married persons without children; class 3, married people with one child; class 4, married people with two children; class 5, with three children; class 6, with four children; class 7, with five children; class 8, with six or more children.

The proportion of income untaxed is arbitrary and not on a fixed percentage basis. For example, incomes of 2,000 and 4,000 crowns ($536 and $1,072) have the following amounts untaxed in each of the eight classes:

Classes.	Amount Not Taxed—2,000-Crown Income. Crowns.	4,000-Crown Income. Crowns.
1	930	930
2	1,210	1,390
3	1,320	1,600
4	1,430	1,810
5	1,500	1,970
6	1,570	2,140
7	1,620	2,250
8	1,680	2,420

The income tax is in addition to community or city taxes of 2 crowns per thousand on all personal property (money, stocks, bonds, etc.), 7.25 per mille on improved and 4.5 per mille on unimproved real estate, and a state tax of one-third of 1 crown per thousand on all personal property.
